QUICK ANSWERS TO YOUR MOST IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

Our proximity to Arlington National Cemetery?
Both of our homes are easily within 15 minutes' drive. Our Alexandria location is on the George Washington Parkway which leads directly to the main entrance. Each year we conduct on the average of one service per day from simple to Full Military Honors.

Are we convenient to national Airport? Yes. Less than 10 minutes away.

Communities we primarily serve? Over 90% of our families live in either Alexandria, Springfield, Annandale, Burke or Franconia, Virginia. Our staff is licensed, however, in Virginia, neighboring Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

Type of facilities? We offer two recently decorated, elegant and spacious colonial funeral homes with generous parking.

Pricing? We monitor our fine competitors on a regular basis and are very much in line. Chances are you will be pleasantly surprised.

Reputation? We started as cabinet makers and handled the funeral of General George Washington. Operating exclusively as funeral directors, we are in our 175th year, which should speak for itself.

What's our phone number? (703) 549-0074. You can call collect. If you choose to Fax, dial (703) 836-7265 in Alexandria, or (703) 549-0074 in Springfield/Annandale.

SHIPPING REGULATIONS

International Shipping And Receiving Of Human Remains

By Melissa Johnson Williams, CFSP

The shipping of human remains under any circumstances is one of the most stress and anxiety producing parts of funeral service. In essence we are giving up control of a case to another entity. Whether shipping within the United States, or shipping to or from a foreign country there are important aspects of this part of funeral service that need to be kept in mind.

When shipping to a foreign country, it is necessary that the shipping funeral director call the embassy to determine the current regulations. Many embassies have consulates located in selected cities around the United States. These consulates may have specific geographic areas that they are responsible for. This consulate of jurisdiction of the foreign country will be the agency that the funeral home will be working with. Many of the foreign embassies today have web sites that can provide the consulate of jurisdiction information and in some cases information about shipping a human remains back home. It is still strongly advised that you contact either the embassy or consulate and determine if the regulations are current.

Despite the fact that we as funeral directors here in the United States may find the regulations outdated, it is necessary to follow these regulations to the last detail. Each country as a sovereign nation has the right to impose whatever regulations they choose. The consequences of not following the regulations as stated are potentially severe for the shipping funeral director. The remains can be denied entry into the country and returned to the local US funeral director at their expense. If this happens it will be necessary to correct the problem and reship the remains, again at the local funeral homes expense. For cargo expenses to some places in the world, this could amount to nearly $10,000.00. There are documented cases of this happening.

Additionally, if there is a situation where the remains is to be shipped to one country and then transported to another country for final disposition; both countries regulations must be complied with.

General Considerations

Remember, this is a time consuming process and make your charges accordingly. The entire process may take 10 – 14 days and many, many phone calls and additional trips to secure all the items required. As early on in the process as possible, try to determine what will be needed to get a start on procuring any special items.

Check for airline schedules, as flights are not necessarily available on a daily basis to many foreign destinations. You will need to figure an approximate weight for the shipment to calculate the charges for the family. Many countries still require the use of an all wooden outer shipping box (the old train cases) that may also require a zinc lining. The airlines may ask you for the dimensions of the box to determine if it will fit into the cargo hold of the plane. If you can not get these items locally you will need to determine where you can get these items.

Documents and Inspections

Nearly all countries require some form of “legalization or authentication” of the documents stated in the regulations. This legalization refers to the examination by representatives of the embassy or consulate of the specifically mentioned documents. The documents will have the seal of the governmental agency on them attesting to their authenticity. These documents must accompany the shipment. Keep in mind that many countries require the translation of all the documents into their native language.

All documents including certified copies, burial and/or transit permit, non-contagious disease letter, embalmers, and non-contraband affidavit that are required by the individual countries must have a “dry, raised, or impressed seal.” These terms refer to the use of a device to impress the insignia of a notary seal or issuing agency on a document. This requirement cannot be fulfilled by the use of a rubber stamp or Xerox signature.

If the cause of death is pending on the death certificate from the Coroner or Medical Examiner, that office will need to issue a letter stating that the death is not due to a contagious disease.

When discussing the authentication process with the consulate or embassy ask if the documents can be faxed. Many consulates now permit this. If you must send the documents, send them by a service such as Federal Express and enclose a self addressed envelope for the return of the documents.

Many countries require a visual inspection of the deceased and/or sealing of casket. This requires that a representative of the consulate or embassy view the body (and confirm identity) and/or casket and its contents, as well as the outer container. The casket and/or the outer container is sealed by cords or ribbons tied around the casket and held in place by sealing wax impressed with the seal of the embassy or consulate. Never send flowers with any shipment over seas. This constitutes a quarantine situation and may result in returning the remains to the country of origin at the shipper’s expense or will be held in a quarantine area at the receiving airport.

Bear in mind that the remains may need to be transported to another city (Chicago, NYC, Washington, DC) where the consulate or embassy is located. This will require the services of a funeral director in the city where the consulate or embassy is located incurring additional expenses.

Apostile’s

Many funeral directors become concerned about the “apostile” that some countries require. Simply stated this is the verification of a notary seal or governmental agency seal and accompanying signature. The apostile is obtained from the agency in each state that issues notary or governmental agency seals. This may be a secretary of state or a county registrar. The shipping funeral director will need to contact their state authority to determine the agency responsible for this issuance. Additionally, some countries may require the apostile of the US Department of the State. To obtain the authentication of the United States Department of State, in Washington, D.C., the documents must be sent to: United States Department of State, Authentication Department, Columbia Plaza, 518 23rd Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20520. (202) 663-3468, fax (202) 663-3636.

Transfer to the airport

Once you have completed all the documentation and have your airline reservations you will need to transfer the remains to the airport. In light of world events, airports and airlines are far more cautious about accepting shipments. You may be required to transfer the remains at a specified time to allow for any inspections at the airport. The person dropping off the remains may be asked to provide identification and verify whom they work for. This is necessary to protect all of us and the use of patience in this scenario will make the process go more smoothly. The airline has the right to refuse any shipment and if they have any reason to believe that there is a security risk they will not hesitate to take whatever action may be required.

Receiving a Remains from Abroad

The death of a US citizen who is to be returned home from abroad is equally complicated. The family will need to be in contact with the U.S. Embassy in the country where the death has taken place. The Consular Services Representative can assist by providing information in many countries about funeral services that are available. If there is difficulty in reaching the U.S. Embassy the family can contact the United States State Department Overseas Services, Washington, D.C., (202) 647-5225. Call this number to speak with a State Department Representative regarding the death of an American citizen abroad.

Neither THE AMERICAN EMBASSY NOR THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE WILL PROVIDE FUNDS TO RETURN A US CITIZEN HOME. Decisions by the family will need to be made quickly since in many countries the body will be buried after 3 days without the families consent. After a given period of time the family may be able to disinter the body and return it to the United States. However, in many countries this can not occur for a minimum of 2 years and may be as long as 15 years.

Embalming is not uniformly available in many countries and may not equate to the process performed here. There are some countries where a generic form of embalming is available. When talking with the family about the possibility of viewing use caution until you have the remains in your possession. Always allow at least 24 additional hours from the time the flight actually arrives in this country to schedule services. There are many delays that are not under anyone's control that could create a problem. These problems include flight delays or cancellations, weather and aircraft delays. You will also need additional time for any corrections to the body that may be necessary.

The family should select the least expensive services available in the foreign country, as they will have those charges as well as charges for services here to pay. Inquire with the airline if the return portion of the airline ticket can be used to defray the cargo shipping charges. If the family is unable to meet the financial demands of shipping from overseas they may have to choose cremation or local burial until such time as a disinterment is permitted.

You need to keep in mind that there are no federal agencies in foreign countries that regulate funeral services. Whatever the funeral service provider states the charges are, even if you feel it is excessive, will unfortunately have to be paid. I strongly urge any funeral home NOT to involve any US officials such as congressman or senators. Foreign countries often do not respond well to this and if anything this can slow down the process.

Many foreign countries do not issue death certificates or one that has a cause of death on it. The US Embassy will issue a "Consular Report of a Death Overseas" that is accepted by insurance companies and other businesses such as banks that require it.

Federal Regulations on the Shipment of a Human Remains to the US

When a person who has died abroad, regardless of nationality, are to be shipped to the United States, the U.S. Embassy representative must be assured that they are properly encased and prepared for shipment. The requirements of the country where the death occurred must also be met at all times.

The Code of Federal Regulations Section 72.12 of Title 22 applies to all such shipments. This section is summarized in the paragraphs that follow.

The following documents will accompany the remains:

- 1) A certificate of death if legally permitted by the country where the death has taken place OR the American Embassy's "Consular Report of Death Abroad" will also be accepted
- 2) Affidavit for U.S. Customs which would include evidence of embalming
- 3) A transit permit authorizing export of the body out of the country (issued by the health authority at the port of embarkation) stating the date of issuance, name/sex/race/age of deceased with cause and date of death

Packing and Labeling of Casket

In order to facilitate clearance through U.S. Customs at the port of entry into the US, whoever is responsible for packing the body for shipment is required to make a sworn declaration, attached to the consular mortuary certificate, that the casket or box contains only the deceased and clothing. The sworn statement will be made, if practicable, before the consular officer. If this is not possible, it will be made before a qualified local official whose signature and seal can be authenticated by the consular officer. The outer box will be labeled in conformity with port of entry health requirements.

Consular Mortuary Certificate

A consular mortuary certificate will be prepared indicating how the shipping container is marked and addressed. It will state the mode of transportation to the United States and full flight itinerary. The documents that accompany the remains will be attached to the consular mortuary certificate, signed by the consular officer, and sealed with the consular seal.

Cremated Remains

- 1) certified copy of death certificate or equivalent by American Embassy
- 2) cremation certificate, identifying the remains to be those of deceased named in the death certificate or equivalent
- 3) affidavit by the crematorium that the container holds only the cremated remains of the deceased

Special New York City Port of Entry Requirements

Human remains entering the United States at New York City as port of entry only, must have a transit or removal permit issued at overseas point of origin. The permit will indicate permission for release and shipment from the point of origin to the city of final destination in the United States.

Additionally, an airline cannot transfer the remains to another airline or railroad without securing the services of a New York City funeral director.

The author will provide any additional information as required, please call (800) 728-9185.

The phone number appearing may not be the only Consulate to contact for that country. Be sure to refer to the complete list of numbers for Foreign Consulates following this section.

This section is intended to be a guide for the International shipment of human remains/cremains. Please contact the appropriate Consulate for complete regulations. Failure to comply with any country's regulations may result in considerable delay and/or refusal of entry.

- Upon importation, cadavers, body parts & other human remains must be accompanied by Death Certificate
- Death Certificate considered valid unless screening officer suspects fraud. In such cases, quarantine officer is to be notified

- Depending on presence or absence of death certificate & cause(s) of death, screening officer follow these protocols: (a)if death certificate clearly indicated deceased did not have communicable disease, remains can be released (b)if death certificate does not set out immediate cause of death or any antecedent causes, if container is (i)hermetically sealed, remains can be released with advisory, container should not be opened, or (ii)not hermetically sealed, screening officer must contact quarantine officer (c)if there is no death certificate accompanying remains & if container is (i)hermetically sealed, remains can be released with advisory, container should not be opened, or, (ii)not hermetically sealed, screening officer must contact quarantine officer, or (d)if death certificate indicated that deceased had communicable disease & if container is (i)hermetically sealed, remains can be released with advisory, container should not be opened, or, (ii)not hermetically sealed, screening officer must contact quarantine officer
- Screening officer must inform quarantine officer if there are reasonable grounds to suspect remains have communicable disease or arrive in damaged state (e.g. hermetic seal appears broken, container leaking, container been damaged, or appears to be compromised) This applies whether or not death certificate been provided
- Communicable diseases of concern do not include HIV/AIDS or hepatitis. Unless there is another reason why remains are being detained, remains should be released
- Persons importing remains where no death certificate is available can provide letter from coroner identifying remains & attesting they are free of vectors
- If quarantine officer concerned about potential public health risk posed by remains, officer will issue directive to conveyance operator indicating precautions to be taken in handling and/or transporting remains to destination
- Cremated remains, because they do not pose quarantine risk, do not require death certificate. It is recommended when transporting cremated remains, importer carry copy of death, cremation certificate & ensure remains are in container that can easily be scanned (e.g. cardboard, wood or plastic)

FIJI (202)466-8320

- Shipper or funeral director will have to liaise directly with airline from point of origin & will request airline for space, further provide information on cause of death, age & all necessary certificates regarding human remains
- Airline will then liaise directly with international carrier. International carrier will subsequently liaise with their counterpart in Fiji or Air Terminal Services (handling agent) to get an authority for human remains into Fiji. Carriers will advise ATS the cause of death, age & including incoming flight details of deceased & phone contact of consignee
- ATS will then advise health authority in Fiji on all information pertaining to deceased. Health authority (which is the Doctor on duty at Nadi International Airport) will in turn permit or refuse above entering country. ATS will also contact consignee for deceased to ensure the above is collected on day of arrival
- Remains must be accompanied by certified copy of Death Certificate, statement by local health authority at place of death stating decedent did not die of contagious disease
- Notarized statement by embalmer stipulating embalming process
- Notarized statement by local health authority at place of death that embalming was carried out in accordance with standard US procedures
- Embalmed remains must be placed within hermetically sealable container or casket, which in turn must be placed within outer box constructed entirely of wood
- If remains arrive in unsatisfactory state, they will not be cleared through customs, health inspections & entry into country will be refused. Casket remains will be returned to point of origin at sender's expense
