With her affinity for lace and lingerie as well as her knack for intimate's construction, Maddie Flanigan has wooed women over the past few years with me-made lingerie. Based in Philadelphia, her one day bra workshops that teach women how to make their own bras and panties continue to fill up with ladies traveling from all over the world to attend. It was only natural for her to continue her collaboration with Simplicity Patterns, releasing 3 new packs. All three designs are meant to be versatile intimates pieces that can be mixed and matched with the first collection to create a well-rounded, self-stitched lingerie wardrobe.
