HOW TO USE THIS PRICE LIST:

ORGANIZATION

This price list contains two major divisions: The Henry Wine Group Distributed wines and our Brokered divisions. Our wines are listed by geographic region with informational maps preceding pricing for each group.

BROKERED WINES

Brokered wineries establish their respective pricing and discounts.

Terms of Sale — Net 30 days from date of delivery. All first orders will be made on a C.O.D. basis or until receipt and approval of a fully completed, signed and dated credit application and a resale card. Credit and terms are determined by the individual wineries.

CREDIT APPLICATION / RESALE CARD

Visit www.henrywinegroup.com, click on “Become a HWG Customer” to download forms.

NEW CUSTOMERS

Here's how to order quickly:

If you have not ordered from us before, call our toll-free order desk at 800.669.9428 and tell us that you are a new account. Your first order can be delivered within 48 hours C.O.D. Please have your A.B.C. license and resale numbers ready.

PLEASE NOTE:

Minimum Order Fee

$300.00

Less than minimum orders require a $10.00 handling charge. Outlying areas may require higher minimums.

Broken Case Charge

$1.50 per bottle. This charge is not reflected in the bottle cost column of this price list.

Returned Items

Any product that has been ordered and is in sound condition may be returned within the A.B.C. regulated time period of two weeks. All returned items are subject to a restocking fee.

Credit Terms

Delivery will be C.O.D until a signed and completed credit application has been processed. Net 30 days on approved credit only. A service charge of 1.5% per month will be assessed at 43 days and every 30 days thereafter. Shipments to past-due accounts will be C.O.D. only, per A.B.C. regulations.

Pricing Corrections

Although every effort has been made to insure the accuracy and usefulness of this price list, we reserve the right to change pricing and discounts, or to correct any pricing errors that may exist at any time it may be necessary.

The Southern Rhône Valley

BY PETER NEPTUNE, MS, AIWS, CWE, FWS
 Senior Vice President, Corporate Training & Wine Education for The Henry Wine Group

The mighty Rhône river begins high in the Alps, south of the Swiss city of Lucerne, and flows west through the vineyards of the Valais, then northeast into Lake Geneva. From there it flows south through the vineyards of Savoie, then west to join the Saône River at Lyons. There it turns due south and flows through a steep river gorge as it makes its way to the Mediterranean Sea west of Marseilles.

Although the Rhône is considered to be one region, it is effectively divided into two distinct parts: the Syrah-dominated north (Rhône septentrionale) and the Grenache-influenced south (Rhône méridionale). The climates are different, as are the soils. The northern Rhône vineyards lie between Vienne and Valence, a distance of approximately 40 miles. Then there is a gap of around 35 miles, before the southern Rhône vineyards begin again just south of the town of Montélimar. This article will take a look at the Southern Rhône.

The AC structure is three-tiered. First is the generic AC of Côtes du Rhône, from vineyards anywhere in the region. Second is the Côtes du Rhône-Villages AC, reserved for certain villages in the south only. Finally, at the commune level, are the crus, villages with individual AC status.

As the Rhône makes its way south the valley begins to spread out around Montélimar, losing its steep slopes and giving way to pockets of sandy soil amidst the garrigue, the wild herbs that dot the scrubland. The climate changes from continental to Mediterranean, with hotter summers and milder winters. With nothing to shelter the vineyards from the Mistral, windbreaks of trees have to be planted. Instead of Syrah dominating the plantings, this is a blender's appellation, with more than 13 different varietals cultivated in varying numbers. Grenache is the most important, with a natural high sugar content that results in wines of high alcohol. Cinsault and Mourvedre are also significant, the former is low in tannin, with high acid fruitiness, and the latter is deep-colored and tannic, adding a meaty weight to the blend. Carignan is also used in a red blend, along with others. For the whites, Marsanne and Roussanne are joined by Clairette, Ugni Blanc, Rolle, and others. Muscat blanc a petits grains is also cultivated, to be used in the production of vins doux naturels.

All vines are pruned low, to resist the fierce wind and to maximize the reflected heat of the soil. Syrah is often wire trained to the Guyot single system, while the others are bush-pruned.

THE TOP APPELLATIONS OF THE SOUTHERN RHÔNE

CÔTES-DU-RHÔNE AOC: this is a generic AC that covers the entire Rhône region, with the vast majority produced in the Southern Rhône (over 90%). The quality and character varies widely, with a number of high-quality wines being made, representing tremendous value. Reds, whites and rosé wines are from Grenache, Clairette, Syrah, Mourvedre, Picpoul, Terret noir, Picardin, Cinsault, Roussanne, Marsanne, Bourboulenc, Viognier, with up to 30% Carignan, and a maximum 30% of (in total) Counoise, Muscardin, Vaccarese, Pinot blanc, Mauzac, Pascal blanc, Calitor, Camarese, etc. Nearly every top Rhône producer has a Côtes-du-Rhône in their stable.

CÔTES-DU-RHÔNE-VILLAGES AOC: within the southern Rhône there are a number of villages entitled to call their reds (and some rosés) Côtes-du-Rhône-Villages, if they meet a higher criteria set out in the regulations of the AC. Here, for example, the minimum alcohol is 12.5% instead of 11%, and the maximum yield is 42 hl/ha, instead of 52 hl/ha. When wine from a number of these villages is blended, its AOC is simply Cotes-du-Rhone-Villages. There are 20 villages that can append their name to the Appellation if the wine comes exclusively from that stated village, such as Côtes-du-Rhône-Villages Sablet AC (see below for full list). Compared to generic Côtes-du-Rhône, these wines generally have better depth, character and quality. The reds are generally excellent, from a minimum of 50% Grenache, plus a minimum of 20% Syrah and/or Mourvedre, and up to 20% Carignan and Cinsault. Whites are improving, made from a minimum of 80% Clairette, Roussanne, and Bourboulenc, with up to 20% of others. There are excellent rosés from Grenache, Carignan, and Cinsault with others.

The list of the 20 villages of the Côtes-du-Rhône-Villages (all must be preceded by Côtes-du-Rhône-Villages): Cairanne, Chusclan, Gadagne, Laudun, Massif d'Uchaux, Plan de Dieu, Puyméras, Roaix, Rochebude, Rousset-les-Vignes, Sablet, St. Cecile, St.-Gervais, St.-Maurice-sur-Eygues, St.-Pantoleon-les-Vignes, Séguret, Signargues, Suze-la-Ruisse, Valreas, Vaison la Romaine, and Visan.

VINSOBRES AOC: This former Côtes-du-Rhône village was justifiably upgraded to AOC status in February 2006. Located in the Drôme department (the same as Hermitage), Vinsobres is the most Northern-Rhône style Southern-Rhône wine, and is one of the best places to grow Syrah in the Southern Rhône valley, because in this climate the syrah keeps the finesse and elegance that it can lose in other places of the Southern Rhône (due to altitude and also cooled by the valley of the Aigues river and its east-west Le Pontias wind).

The blend is a minimum 50% Grenache and an additional minimum 25% Syrah and/or Mourvedre, with the wines showing an appealing peppery/lavender, blue and red fruit character with distinct finesse and clarity. The Vinsobres Cru consists of a selection of the best terroirs of the region. Only 1300 hectares of the 1800 have been selected based on the geology and exposition (south-exposed vineyards only have been included in the cru delimitation). The non-selected parcels will be allowed to produce 'simple' Côtes-du-Rhône AOC, which means that the AOC Côtes du Rhône Village disappears.

RASTEAU AOC: In 2010 the red wines from this former Côtes du Rhône Villages were elevated to AC status. 75% of the appellation's vineyards are hillsides rising between 500 and 1000 feet, and the region features smooth, stone covered clay-limestone terraces. It has been long considered a top red Côtes du Rhône Villages wine. Rasteau's application to be elevated to a specific AOC - Crus des Côtes du Rhône - as a dry red wine took almost a decade to be approved. The winegrowers' syndicate requested it 2002, but experts from a board of inquiry studied the vineyards and excluded some 100 hectares from the then 1300 ha before granting the status.

GIGONDAS AOC: a top-quality former Côtes-du-Rhône-Villages that was promoted to AC status in 1971, Gigondas' 1,230 ha produce one of the most authentic wines of the Southern Rhône. This is where Roman centurions of the famous Second Legion built their country villas in the first century AD, away from the garrison of Orange. Located in the western flank of the Dentelles, this is a cooler, higher spot, and the name comes from the Latin jocunditas, meaning delight or merriness. Gigondas is fortunate to have a large proportion of fairly high vineyards, promoting slower ripening patterns. This not-too-hot climate ripens grapes to full maturity, with ripened phenolics and sugars resulting in dark, rich, robust reds with ripe, herbal and plummy flavors. Red and Rosé are made mostly from Grenache (maximum of 80%) with at least 15% Syrah and Mourvedre, and a maximum of 10% other grapes. No white wines are permitted.

VACQUERAS AOC: elevated to AOC status in 1990, the south-facing, sun-soaked vineyards of Vacqueras produce some of the Southern Rhône's most punchy, powerful wines. The soils here are typical – a garrigue of stone covered sand, red clay, and limestone, with traces of marine fossils from thousands of years ago. At 1,394 ha, it is larger than any local cru except for Châteauneuf-du-Pape. An early-ripening vineyard, Vacqueras can produce reds and rosés from a minimum 50% Grenache, plus at least 20% of Syrah and Mourvedre, and no more than 10% in total of other grapes. The wines show a peppery combination of dark fruits with garrigue and cedar, with deep, baked red fruit flavors predominant on the palate. Whites (actually quite rare), are from Grenache blanc, with Clairette, Bourboulenc, etc. Wines from this appellation remain excellent values.

BEAUME DE VENISE AOC: the red wines of Beaume de Venise have become the 14th AOC of the Rhône. The new appellation covers four communes, including the eponymous Beaume de Venise, from the department of the Vaucluse, south of the Dentelles de Montmirail Mountains, which are based on limestone (The other three are Lafare, Suzette, and La Roque-Alric). All wines within the AOC must contain at least 50% Grenache and 25% Syrah, with a typical blend being 65% Grenache and 35% Syrah. The wines show earthy, spicy aromas and leathery textures that encompass black fruits, with a thread of tannin that can require a year or two to round out. Post cru status, the white and rosé wines of the region have been downgraded to the Côtes du Rhône category.

CHATEAUNEUF-DU-PAPE AOC: the most well-known of the southern Rhône Appellations dates back to Gallo-Roman times. In 1157 the Bishop of Avignon, Geoffry, planted and personally managed his own estate on this ancient winegrowing land. By the time of the dual Papacy in the 14th century, when Pope Clement V arrived in Avignon in 1309, the wine from the village was in great demand. Pope John XXII constructed a "new castle" between 1318 and 1333 as a summer residence. This became part of the line of fortifications encircling Avignon, and remained standing until the retreating Germans blew it up in 1944. On the viticultural side, the region, after being devastated by phylloxera in the late 1800s, began a slow return to form, and by 1923, under the energetic guide of Baron Le Roy of Château Fortia, had established a set of strict rules for the production of wine that became the model for the entire AOC system in France.

The region is known for its amazingly stony soil, the surface of which is covered, in varying amounts, by rounded pudding stones or galets, which range in diameter from that of an egg to larger than a man's fist. They store the heat of the sun and reflect it back onto the vines at night, resulting in elevated grape sugars (the Appellation had, for years, the highest minimum alcohol content in France, at 12.5%). Here the "symphony of 13 grapes" (although the allowance of both Grenache blanc and noir and Picpoul blanc and noir really make it 15) makes up the blend, with Grenache dominating (and restricted to a maximum yield of 35 hl/ha, or 2 tons/acre, hand-harvesting only), followed by Mourvedre, Syrah, Cinsault, Muscardin, Vaccarese, Picpoul, Terret Noir, and Counoise. Four white grapes are allowed (a fifth, Grenache blanc, is counted as Grenache): Clairette, Bourboulenc, Picardin, and Roussanne. There has been a modern change in winemaking and "cepage", resulting in a variety of styles, but the wines fall into 2 basic categories- the traditional, full-bodied, dark, spicy, long-lived style and the full or partial carbonic-maceration method easy-drinking modern style, brimming with up-front juicy, jammy fruit. Very stringent regulations are enforced here that ensure that only fully-ripe grapes in healthy condition are utilized: "le rape" requires that 5 to 20% of the grapes harvested within the maximum yield are rejected and declassified to vin de table. A small amount of white wine is made from the permitted white grapes of the appellation, and the top examples are rich, with an opulent, exotic fruit style and refreshingly crisp finish.

LIRAC AOC: located on a soil base of red clay, quartz chippings, and limestone, was once only an appellation for rosé wines, but production of high-quality, fruit-forward reds, from Grenache, with Syrah, Mourvedre, Carignan, and Cinsault, is on the increase. White wines from a wide range of varieties (Grenache blanc, Clairette, Viognier, Roussanne, Picpoul, Bourboulenc, Carignan blanc and Ugni blanc, to name a few) also show great promise. Rosés are also top-notch, from either the saignée or direct press method.

TAVEL AOC: for rosé wines only, and has one of the Rhône's longest and most widespread global pedigrees. The wines were immediately popular with the liberating American and British soldiers advancing up the Rhône Valley in 1944. Thus US markets were bountiful for Tavel, and the wine—easy to pronounce—was widely consumed both in the US and by American tourists to the region. Tavel produces the most famous French dry rosé, considered to be the best in the country. There are nine varieties permitted for Tavel, a mix of red and white. The Clairette, Bourboulenc, and Picpoul, all white, contribute aroma and acidity. The allowed red vines are Grenache, Cinsault, Syrah, Mourvedre, Carignan, and Calitor. Most wines are made largely from Grenache and Cinsault, using the saignée method (bleeding the juice off the skins after a 24-48 hour maceration). Many also practice the direct press method, which results in a lighter color and style of rosé, arguably influenced by the success of Provence's rosé wines. Either way, the best combine body and fruit to make a classic example of dry rosé wine, and are the classic accompaniment to Mediterranean cooking of both summer and winter.

THE VIN DOUX NATUREL AOCs OF THE RHÔNE VALLEY

RASTEAU AOC: the first of the Rhône's two vin doux naturel AOCs, from a minimum of 90% Grenache. There is also a Rasteau Rancio AOC, where the wines are stored in oak casks, exposed to sunlight, for a minimum of two years, where they develop their "rancio" character.

MUSCAT DE BEAUMES-DE-VENISE AOC: This Côtes-du-Rhône-Village also has an AOC for vins doux naturels made from Muscat blanc a petits grains and Muscat rosé a petit grains. These are the most elegant of the world's sweet fortified Muscat wines.
