Su has moved into C's house this afternoon, and we had a quiet evening together; there is the same kind of space with her that I find with John H, with the added grace of her femininity; I don't know how it will turn out between us, but she is someone I trust.

... I received today a letter from ChJ with recent pictures of my brothers and sister and father; I couldn't recognise my younger brother, O...

4-12-1986, Auroville:

When I went to "Ravena" this morning I found that both N and P were all upset with an experience they'd had in the night, of hearing distinctly, loudly, and repeatedly over an hour, D.M's voice calling N's name, jus as she used to whenever she needed him; and then N had found two large cats sitting near to the graves, and they moved then towards the main house... And Jaimurthy later told me of a very complex and interesting dream he'd had last night with Janaka, in which Janaka, back from America where D.M had died, was very disturbed by something that had just been built near the house, like a sort of huge pipe-line... I don't know:

yesterday was the new moon, D.M's sign; perhaps something has upset those parts or elements that have remained connected with the place and with the work... I do not know anything; and I don't care to "know" mentally; I care to grow more aware and conscious, centrally, but I have no knowledge: only a mixed bag of perceptions, impressions, and fragments of experience...

I spent a quiet moment with Su, because I'd seen that she had become upset, and I find it important that friendship is upheld.

... I have been preparing a comprehensive statement of accounts, to be sent to Janaka's sister, along with a letter, as Larry told me today that she had talked over the phone with Nini of "Aurelec" and expressed the view that the family wasn't at all considering contributing more money to "Ravena"... Larry seemed to be depressed about it and feeling defeated and about to give up trying; but I insisted that we must keep trying to make them understand (the significance of "Ravena" and its importance to Janaka)...

9-12-1986, Auroville:

One of last night's activities was an interesting adventure: we were on the moon, and had found, finally, water; and we also found a pack of elephants; and we also met "people"; they were few, but very intense people, with very interesting attitudes; and the quality of the air is such that I can easily and happily do what I could only do in dreams of the subtle physical, that is to float up and down and over the whole place freely, fast or slow, fast and slow, just like a naiad in water, moving comfortably with the air currents...

10-12-1986, Auroville:

There's been some agitation today regarding Krishna: Akash, sent by Barbara, went around trying to gather everybody "as a group" (probably the worse movement to fall into), so that could be conveyed to Krishna that he must change his ways regarding his music playing - his loud and insistent and relentless playing has driven both Barbara and Pat to a near-hysterical state... I know well what it is, for having lived it myself, but my experience with Krishna makes it impossible for me to join such a gathering; so, I declined. But it worries me: Krishna isn't well within himself...

... This afternoon Su left on my cycle the most delightful note I have ever received: she has tried to write in French about the clothes line that had broken, and her attempt created a most wonderful, sweet and funny sentence; strangely, it has left me with an impression of much dearness: I shall keep it with me...

11-12-1986, Auroville:

Ar. came to meet me at "Ravena" this morning, needing to talk; she is worrying over my relationship with Su...

And then Yaap came and somehow, for the first time, it turned out to be a rather simple and straightforward talk; he seems to have seen now and accepted the necessity for him to build his own house on a different plot, not as near to the main house, rather than to convert the hut into his own thing; this is encouraging...!

And today we finished the main plastering of the top terrace, and the entire space is now quiet, open, vast and true...

I went to watch the end of the concreting at Matrimandir, then, and could have a few moments of friendship with Arjun, and then with John H and Su...

12-12-1986, Auroville:

"Ravena" is coming up so beautifully: this place is meant to be a manifestation of beauty, vast, the true beauty and simplicity... Let it be so, let it be so...!

14-12-1986, Auroville:

It became clear today that both Su and I were ready; we went out for a walk after dinner, and I took her to the pond behind "Dana" and we sat there watching the moon light playing over the orange water; it was all silent but for the frogs... When we returned here, I said to her that I'd come later; and I went over to Ar.'s, as she had been very strung up today, and I don't want her to suffer; it took a while for her to laugh again and to relax... I am sad and helpless about her states; but she alone can change it; she must learn to move out and away from that pit. I can only try to be her friend, always...

I went back to Su.

This was calm, and I felt at home with her.

I like her ways. She is together, and lucid; I feel that I can trust her.

... All evening I was seeing that life is the one domain where I am unable to feel the way, where I am lost and clumsy and divided and wary and tense... I can feel the way above and below and behind but, right there, I haven't had the experience of Yoga. There is a chasm, there. I keep making mistakes and causing others to suffer... If I go into life, it is only with a part of me, and I do not back it up; and when I move away, centring back, it is as if I'd never been there, and the other person is left with nothing to hold on to.

Perhaps I am being taught, now...?

15-12-1986, Auroville:

"Ravena" is becoming more beautiful day by day. It is a wonderful place to work in, to look after, and it only deepens and strengthens my feeling towards D.M, who has seen it, and carried it and given it birth...

16-12-1986, Auroville:

I have been looking at this "heartlessness" of mine, this absence of sentiments that forbids me to build a living relationship with anybody in time, least of all with a woman... And sometimes it feels like my "heart" – this area of experience and being – is locked up, and that I don't know where is the key, nor if I'm even meant at all to search for it; like, perhaps, someone will just come along one fine day, who has the key...And until then, I can fantasise all I want, it makes no difference!

Perhaps it will be a woman, and she will have the beauty I so much need to revere and to cherish, outer and inner beauty...

Up until now, all the loving care I am capable of I have invested in Matter, in material and natural environments, in light and space; but not in any human being... It would have grown into just that with Auragni, had I been allowed; but it wasn't meant to happen.

I respect and appreciate Su and am at home with her, but I cannot make her my queen, my incarnation; she doesn't have the key, although she is the kind of woman who may sense what needs to happen; she has the capacity, but she will not use it because she knows – and I respect her for that, gratefully – that she is not, ultimately, the one I need...

17-12-1986, Auroville:

Larry came, and I found out that he had never sent my statement and letter to Janaka's sister, for some confused "good reasons" (which may have to do in fact with Auralice's schooling and care in the US)...

18-12-1986, Auroville:

Larry came here so I could help him write his own letter to Janaka's sister; it took an hour to work through his confusion...

... Ar. was more joyful; but she said that she sometimes wondered about being so "inhabited" by me...! I had to reply that, if such was the case – of a sort of possession –, then the best thing I could do was to cut the relationship and the contact, so as to free her; that it would be painful for a while but she would recover and centre...

And this evening I found a short, simple note from her saying that in any case I was her friend, and that was true, and not to be touched...

20-12-1986, Auroville:

Quelquefois tout paraît si simple : une seule chose est nécessaire, c'est d'apprendre pratiquement à s'ouvrir à la Conscience ; parce que, devenir plus conscient, c'est devenir mieux capable d'être. Et c'est tout.

Et l'on regarde en arrière, et l'on voit toutes les complications, les formations que l'on a projetées sur le seul chemin, et comme notre ignorance pèse et déforme...

23-12-1986, Auroville:

Yesterday night I had this longing to be with Su, but kind of distrusted my mood; I do not want to be merely taking from her, taking what I need from her company, without being able to give. I watch her and learn from her and her ways: she likes to laugh, she is congenial and warm to people, and I feel gloomy in comparison... Tonight is the same; I am tempted to go to her, and just have her be with me, next to me, quietly, but I have nothing to give; this depression must leave me first...

... On my way back from work I met Coni with her little one, Auro Yami, whom I hadn't seen for nearly a year; she has grown so much, and I met in her eyes that sweet love of the psychic which I only know in infants, and miss so much... In a way, it didn't help, because it made me miss my princess even more...

24-12-1986, Auroville:

I know more and more concretely that the one, unique way, is Consciousness – to grow conscious. Consciousness does the changes. Everything else is a consequence.

And It must incarnate in Matter. Itself being Matter, the full circle, it is this image of the serpent biting its tail that You gave the children...

From there will begin a new adventure.

And until then, nothing will ever be in its true place.

Individualities do not matter as such, or in the way we think or conceive of it – they do matter, but... Everything is the same and yet different...

25-12-1986, Auroville:

Su did have a gift for me and it was indeed wrapped in orange flowers, and she was keeping it ready at her house; I opened it after midnight: it is a miniature work, a tiny silver statuette of a dragon, resting on its hind legs and holding in its front paws a crystal globe that contains a rainbow... It is exactly the same work than on the tiny statuette of a unicorn which Auralice had been given just before D.M and Janaka's passing... I like it so much! I don't know really what dragons stand for, but they may represent an aspect that matters!

... I went later to Barbara's; she had invited several of us to come by and she had prepared some Christmas gift for everyone; this was a sweet movement on her part... And it was good to be with Arjun and Deepti and John H and Ar. and Su and Akash, together...

... Ar. brought me the latest "Auroville Review": its main intent seems to be to officially allot to Satprem the place of "the one who now does the work"... I don't know; their attitude is disturbing: it is not a question of whether they are "right" or "wrong", but that they find it necessary to say such things at all... I can't help sniffing the old "ego" there, and it has got nothing to do with Satprem; but I do worry, sometimes, that it may affect the quality and the reach of his own experience...

28-12-1986, Auroville:

Souvent ces temps-ci il m'est donné de sentir le Chemin. Et combien les termes du Chemin sont simples.

Une seule Chose compte ; on peut le dire peut-être ainsi : l'infusion de Conscience fait tout le travail.

C'est par le processus de devenir plus conscient que tous les changements nécessaires s'effectuent ; c'est un seul mouvement, une seule réalité évolutive.

Et, à certains moments d'expérience, il me devient clair combien tout, tout, et toutes les « difficultés » contribuent à la concrétisation du Chemin, pour chacun uniquement...

29-12-1986, Auroville:

It is a blocked mood, waiting just to lie down and sleep; I seem to need a crazy amount of sleep...

Also, due to an accumulation of small lies, and little ugly pulls on the part of most of the men at "Ravena", there is a climate there that is sad, subdued, lacking sufficient trust, and it is not easy to cope with it... And with N I had a scene this morning: I simply had to tell him what I thought of his attitude; and he began to cry... Yet, later in the day, it got better and clearer, and we could recover some of that sweet flow between us... I know it is not easy for him to be my friend, as most people around him, at work or in the village, never seem to lose a chance to be nasty about it, and he must carry it alone...

... I met Larry on the road; he'd just had a strange telex from Janaka's father who claimed having received no communication whatsoever – when it had been on the express instructions of Janaka's sister that we had only related to her, trusting that she would in turn do her best to explain things to the father; this was confusing...

PART FOUR

- 1987 -

1-1-1987, Auroville:

There is this strange fatigue pulling me continuously; I feel no pain in the heart, yet it is clear that it originates there: it is very odd; I would have to sleep several times a day, as it is...

And at one point this afternoon, it got too much; there was nothing outwardly, or visibly wrong, not even pain; there was just a sort of acute, extreme unease, and a pull, radiating from the heart throughout the body... I don't know...

2-1-1987, Auroville:

Ar. is so willing, so open, so given, and it is so real to her, and so constant... And yet I can't do it, because I simply do not want her to take up more space; I do not want her energy to move and act even nearer to my consciousness; I cannot give myself to it, because I do not trust it, in the sense that I do not know it as my home. And it is puzzling and disturbing that she keeps feeling I am her nest and her anchor; it cannot be! So, why this disharmony, why this unreality? Isn't there enough of it in the world? Why isn't it set right, why isn't she made to turn to the right person for her? Or is it that she still has something to learn through this relationship with me?

4-1-1987, Auroville:

I have placed the two paintings of Your Symbols in the big room.

I am reading "The Looking-Glass Universe", and discovering with enthusiasm the contribution that David Bohr has made and is making to the Work; it makes me happy, within...

... With Su I seem to touch the tip of a reality that implies, or evokes, a huge and terrible need in me to find at last, in Woman, the one presence I can adore and celebrate, without separation... Sometimes it brings tears...

5-1-1987, Auroville:

I was disgusted with myself this morning, feeling so cramped and disharmonious, and dull, so dull, preoccupied with little physical disorders – this ball-like growth above my forehead, for one thing, which has remained indifferent to all my efforts and arguments for 3 or 4 years now: it is ugly and it hampers the whole balance of the body and its rhythms, and I don't know what to do about it any more and I am considering seeing Datta soon and asking him to remove it surgically...

... There is this one prayer I have made to You this year, and it is a prayer I want and need to renew every day, and every moment: deliver me from all self-consciousness...!

6-1-1987, Auroville:

Last night, once again, I spent a long time with Satprem; it was at his place, in the garden, almost abandoned, where he stays much of the time by himself, and I am helping certain people to see him, while preventing others from eating up all his time; and in his atmosphere I feel so much lighter and happier, naturally joyful...

... While in Pondy I went to visit Paolo at his flat; I'd heard that he was already here, and that he'd been meeting often with Piero about Matrimandir, and I wanted to see whether he was willing or able to help clarify the directions, regarding the completion of the sphere... I knew he would be feeling the way I do, but I wasn't sure about Piero anymore. But he told me that Piero was still sharing the same sense, in relation to the final appearance of Matrimandir and the formations made by Roger A... So we shall see...

But something has to come from here, from within the people here, who must attune to and centre with the essential purpose of Matrimandir, and express a clear and firm wish; otherwise, this issue may just go on and on...

7-1-1987, Auroville:

Je me sens, littéralement, mal dans ma peau... Et il y a, physiquement, le mouvement de se cacher dans une grotte et de muer – jeter, laisser tomber la vieille peau, et en former une nouvelle, dans le silence...

La nuit, toute la peau, et tout le cuir chevelu particulièrement, me démangent frénétiquement ; et le jour, c'est la peau de tout le visage, et les narines, et les yeux, qui sont douloureux – pas au sens nerveux, mais un état de désharmonie aigu...

... Je ne vois pas ce qu'il se passe ; je me sens comme coincé dans un conflit d'énergies, ou immobilisé dans une ornière abandonnée : plus rien ne coule ; il n'y a pas de Présence ; c'est ridicule, inutile et désolé...

... Je viens de recevoir une lettre de Soaz qui m'a touché ; elle m'envoie une petite photo de Samuel et me dit que souvent il me réclame, mais qu'elle ne pense pas pouvoir revenir avant deux ans ! Il me manque, mon Tilou ! Presque autant que ma princesse... !

... N est venu me raconter ses nouveaux déboires ; il s'est battu avec un homme qui, dit-il, harassait sa mère depuis longtemps, et, pendant la lutte, l'homme lui a arraché le collier et le symbole que je lui avais offerts...

... Pourquoi toute cette désharmonie, humainement, dans ma vie ? Pourquoi ? Ceux que j'aime me sont retirés ; ceux que je ne puis aimer me sont imposés... Pourquoi ?

Tout est comme cela doit être pour aller le plus vite et le plus droit à l'Union.

Oui.

Je Te donne tout cela, Douce Mère !

8-1-1987, Auroville:

It is very strange for me these days: I tend to feel absolutely nothing in the presence of the few people I usually see – even with Su, I am blank. There is no movement, no emotion: nothing. With N it is the same. All is frozen.

9-1-1987, Auroville:

Psychologically (!) too, I am looking at things with a dawning understanding, which seems to be directly proportioned to my ability to truly surrender...!

12-1-1987, Auroville:

Having resumed the practice of Hatha Yoga feels good; my body is happy and comfortable with it; it feels like home. Along with the decrease in my smoking, and the opening to deeper rhythms, it feels like perhaps I may find some physical harmony again... But the physical mind is resisting...

13-1-1987, Auroville:

I woke up before 6 am after another night of madly scratching my itching scalp... I still do not know what causes this; obviously, an imbalance in my system; in the day-time, my attention is drawn to whatever goes on, but in the night the body-mind just doesn't have the will not to yield to this frantic itching...

... I tried different asanas; my body is glad, and its gladness is quiet and trusting, and completely open. And I see many things: I see how much we are under the effects of vital perversions, how steeped we are in a false reality, a false physical reality...

Death is often repulsive to me these days; yet I know that there should be no repulsion either...

After the asanas I lay down and chose to smoke slowly one beedie, following the discipline I gave myself some days ago: not to stop entirely, but to control the number to just a few a day, till it does not matter any longer and I am free of it.

... Perhaps I should write poetry again, and tell the experiences that come through poetry, in free flows and rhythms; I have a hard time writing in this journal: the grammar, its necessary rigidity, is an obstacle; by the time I manage to make a coherent sentence, it's like the contact is gone. And yet it still feels like writing may somehow be useful, if I find the way to go on doing it, because it builds tracks into what otherwise remains a soon-forgotten multitude of fleeting or seemingly innocuous perceptions, experiences, openings, and questions...

Still I find my consciousness hovering, hesitantly, near a pivot of trust it doesn't yet touch: some experiences are missing, or some blocks are still veiled; the fact of physical death, physical un-doing, is pressing on my awareness in different ways; some of them are, I feel, open-ended agents of growth, while others are less clear, or less evolved, or they deny the Presence...

... Kenneth came; I had been told that he had decided to leave Auroville for some time, back to the US, on his own... Our friendship seems to have matured in the past year, and become an inner fact, and I was simply waiting for him to come when he would feel ready, and I had sort of understood it would be best for me not to say anything regarding his decision... He stayed all afternoon, outside on the terrace with me, and Ar. joined us later, listening quietly, as he more or less constantly talked... He feels very real to me, an evolving awareness, honest: honest to You... It may be right for him to go, I do not know, but I felt that distance would not affect our relationship, and might even make it more valid...

17-1-1987, Auroville:

There are these moments when I experience a kind of jubilant trust, because I seem to be grasping the very substance of the way, and there is this gratitude that wants to sing and to celebrate... And then the next moment, there is fatigue; or else, suddenly, the difficulty is there...

19-1-1987, Auroville:

I am tired, drained; the problem with Ar. makes me feel that I am no good to anyone; according to her, she is unable to free herself from her attachment; whenever I try and explain to her what is needed, she says she understands mentally but she just can't do it... So, the only way out she can see is to look for another house to live, to move away from me physically, and that in turn makes her feel terrible... I don't know; my contribution to life, to people, seems to be all negative...

... Nothing here in Auroville seems to ever emerge into more living truth; it turns in circles ever and ever, without any substantial progress or evolution...

20-1-1987, Auroville:

N came back to work, late, with a funny face; there too, it is like the smallness, the misery has won; the village people have teased him and harassed him so well, it seems, that... he went under, and our friendship has become impossible; and I too have withdrawn, as I could no longer ignore his deceptions, half-lies, or his carelessness; yet I know that he suffers; and his suffering is just one more thing I can't help: nowhere, in human relationships, am I able to contribute harmony... Nowhere am I able to open to life, in simplicity...

21-1-1987, Auroville:

There has been heavy fighting in the village these last few days, and N, it seems, was involved – but perhaps not as much as some people would have me believe; yet he is been hiding from me, and this makes me sad: I can't trust him anymore... And Larry came to me with discouraging news: a letter has come from Janaka's sister, dismissing our concern for "Ravena", while confirming their invitation for Auralice to come and live with them in the US... This is probably the opposite of what Janaka would have wished – he would have wanted "Ravena" to be completed and Auralice to continue developing here... But Larry... is satisfied, I guess, because Auralice is going to be well looked after. And so I remain alone with the load of that whole place, which no one wants to acknowledge for what it truly is... It was probably my mistake to trust that Janaka's family would care enough, but to whom could I turn, practically?

... I went running, this evening, after a long time, just to come out of that pit of depression...

22-1-1987, Auroville:

The news that Larry gave me yesterday have eroded my confidence that some response will come, as an expression of the Lord's care for the offering that was thus attempted... It now would appear that this will just be another unaccomplished, unfulfilled, un-reached, defeated thing...

As a result, this morning, I just didn't know what to do with myself there...

... I resent D.M and Janaka for having gone, and I resent Janaka's sister and all of that world, with all its pretence at "love"; and I resent being thus part of another "waste"...

23-1-1987, Auroville:

I am battling with strange states and strange weaknesses. I don't want to tell myself stories, but it would appear as if I am getting closer to where death, as a force, or as an agent, has its influence in the physical consciousness. It is like I am left with no vital energies – and therefore this incredible need for sleep...

24-1-1987, Auroville:

Now I have got this problem with the heart, which most of the time I take as a gift, to put me in the place where some work can be done on the physical mind to open it to true awareness; and there is this mad secretion on my scalp, which causes constant itching, and this bumpy protuberance on my forehead; and there are these haemorrhoids, and this extreme sensitivity of several nerves, particularly in the area of the lowest centre, at the base of the spine; and then there is this terrible need for sleep, and a general sense of a loss of balance, and a fatigue in my feet so odd that I want down to Pondy merely to get some of these old-fashioned wooden soles made for me; and my skin has become so sore with any change of air pressure and humidity... All of this is rather silly, and I do not worry really, but in some other way I also feel it is the expression of a little more awareness, and it gives me a little hope, and gratitude...

25-1-1987, Auroville:

This morning particularly I had difficulty breathing, and it is connected with the heart; I have been wondering, because there is the part that is just attachment to form, attachment to the present physical identity – its advantages, and its qualities, and its experience in Matter; and that gets somewhat in the way of the right perception of what actually goes on about death, its processes in the body – in the bodies -, the allegiances to it, and the different roles played by will, fear, aspiration, surrender, understanding, offering, etc... And I wonder, whether it is asked of us to take position: to refuse death in the substance, in one's substance. But that of course means firstly to become aware, concretely, of the real, of the true Matter – or, rather, of the incarnation yet to come, in Matter, past humanity...

29-1-1987, Auroville:

This afternoon I tried to attend the special meeting that had been called at Matrimandir regarding the options for the final cover of the sphere; but I am too impatient of those here who do not need to look within and experience more consciously what it is all about, and to seek what is truly necessary... All this sterile talk has been going on for years, and Piero is practically a saint, to be explaining over and over again what the material implications of the different options are...

30-1-1987, Auroville:

There seems to be a real battle going on: the influence of death on one "side", and the need for true Matter, for true material incarnation in conscious substance, on earth, on the other "side"... It goes on all the time...

... Ar. went this morning, following Bob and Barbara's advice, to see some weird doctor in Pondy, about her physical troubles; this man pointed out and listed all the things that have gone wrong, some of which she hadn't even seen yet, and proceeded to make such statements about her energy degenerating and wasting away, and about the "Lord of Death", that she returned to me doubly upset and struggling to put it all out of her physical mind... And this evening she talked to me of her fears, and about those parts in her that are too unhappy with her present life-experience and too willing to quit...

... I went to the concreting at Matrimandir after my work at "Ravena", and I met Hans atop the structure, who told me that Petra's child had left her body just a few days ago...: this is another of Auroville's defeats...

... I know that, in order to grow more aware, one has to become more capable of assimilating intensities of experience, and that, as one touches more living truth, one must also touch more of the resistance to it... But there's only one thing that makes complete sense, and makes life worth living, and that is You, Mother: Your Work, Your Way, the Becoming You herald and the Conscious Reality You incarnate...

Mère d'Amour, Douce Mère, Mère que j'aime, Mère, Mère, Mère, Mère...

1-2-1987, Auroville:

I keep having this trouble in the heart-breathing relationship...

I am reading on "Mémoire d'Essénien", a very interesting rendering; it is all attuned, so far: nothing exotic or suspect and its atmosphere is rather open...

... I wanted to finish writing my letters to C and to O.P this evening, but Ar. came and stayed, saying she wanted very much to be with me, that I am so much part of her life; she is so sweet and open and offered and gentle, and it feels so terribly unfair of me not to cherish it all as she does... And yet I just can't: however much it makes me feel selfish and cold and harsh, I still cannot change the feelings I have; they are just there. The only movement I can do is to step back somewhat and stand in a sort of non-personal space, or position... But then she feels me far away, or absent!

She heard that today's meeting on the Acts and Auroville's future had been exceptionally good; if it is so, then I am glad...

2-2-1987, Auroville:

Something went badly wrong this morning; I must have acted blindly: probably there must be times for frankness and times for caution...! And I felt like crying, afterwards, beyond the numbness... I met Larry on the road, on my way to Bharat Nivas after the work at "Ravena"; he asked me again for a fresh copy of the statement of accounts we had earlier sent to Janaka's sister... (I write this down because it may help to formulate and offer it all before You). I had been resisting it and postponing it since our last talk, as it had become apparent that Larry had appointed himself as the caretaker, in charge of everything and "allowing" me to go on with the construction work. And that had come in blunt contradiction with working together in trying to bring "Ravena" to its completion. So, this time, rather than remaining vague about it, I told him openly why I had been unwilling to comply; this at once made him very sour and angry; the immediacy and the force of it took me by surprise: he tried to hit me, right there on the road! And then he exploded, saying that he'd been waiting for this moment when I would act weirdly, that he'd been warned against me all along and by so many people, but he had tried to keep it away and go on relating to me, but now he saw it: they were right, all these people...! And he shoved me violently and I nearly fell... All through, I kept very quiet, preoccupied not to get swayed by the fear of physical violence, and I called him back... But he cycled away, steaming...

I don't know... I should have known...: this is the establishment, and he is "bona fide" and I am out; and my commitment is to "dead" people! And I am weird. I am different; not to be trusted... And on and on...

I went over to Bharat Nivas and took down those statements of accounts from the main ledgers, put it all in an envelope along with a note which I made as friendly as I could, and brought it over to Larry's house; he was already gone to Pondy, though; so I left it there. We'll see how he responds; this will tell me exactly where things stand in Auroville today.

This is an upside-down-world; yet I feel there is still a sort of fifty/fifty ratio, and there is too the possibility that Larry acknowledges he's been wrong and we make it together; but if he doesn't, then it means that a certain type of dishonesty is now covered, or legitimised, and we as a collectivity are not trying anymore...

3-2-1987, Auroville:

I did asanas three times today; and I worked in the garden here; and I read...

I have received a confused letter from E.B who has been admitted into some psychiatric hospital near Paris...

... This thing with Larry has thrown me back into a tight place of unease, in relation to most of the Auroville people and to my own way here... He and Auralice came to "Ravena" this morning, to gather and collect more things for Janaka's family, as Auralice is leaving for the US tomorrow; I was willing and ready to go over the whole incident and to meet openly, but Larry kept his dark sun-glasses on, and practised a non-committal attitude, all steeled in: a sort of status quo...

... I went before 3 pm to Matrimandir to look at the models and maps of F.Gr's proposals for the Matrimandir Gardens, and I tried to attend at least part of the meeting that followed; I like his proposals, but I have no patience: I just can't stand hearing over and over again, after so many years, the same empty mental arguments...

5-2-1987, Auroville:

This unease remains; but now it has the character of something I must simply endure, until it is lifted away, until it has done whatever work it came to do...

And there is this extraordinary book I have been reading, about Jesus Christ and the Essenian Fraternity, and it is packed with authentic experience; it is such a contribution, such an offering, I am very moved by it...

... I am going on with a rhythm of daily life which I am not too sure about! As it is, it makes days rather "un-productive"; but I am given time, and time I need, and I use it gratefully... There seems to be so many aspects to the "inner call" that, at the moment, solitude and a quiet pace seem most fitting; relationships, even casual, brief exchanges, contiguities, are more often than not a weight and a source of discomfort; it would be different only if I had some function, self-evident and organic, within the community; then I could absorb any amount of contacts on its basis. But it is not so now.

... N has started to come to me regularly, at breakfast time, and our relationship is quieter, in a sort of neutrality...

6-2-1987, Auroville:

Mother, please, make me conscious of what must come...!

Death is so repulsive, the master of illusion...!

Mother, take me, take me towards the coming Incarnation, the One that unites all worlds within one substance...

Mother!

... It is odd how much I need solitude, rest, sleep and quiet; it is amazing... Or perhaps it is that all the energies are being channelled or used in some concentrated way I don't have the distance to evaluate...?

7-2-1987, Auroville:

I am down into a pit again, fighting with a monster I can't even see, and I doubt everything arising from myself... It is only with Matter, objects and things, and with Nature, vegetation, animals, and to some extent with the people of here, the "Tamilians", that I can find my own harmony... The Auroville people make me shrink and suffocate under a weight of unease, a mass of sickening "perceptions"...

... When I went back to "Ravena" this afternoon, N came at once to tell me, all sad and upset, that Larry had come during my absence and looked everywhere and asked questions about the work, and that he'd told him, asking him not to repeat it to me, that as soon as the construction would stop he wanted me to leave, as he didn't like my being there at all... I don't know what to do; I just feel like quitting, when this happens and hits me; but, after a moment of quiet and repair, I look and I ask, and it feels then like I must hold on, and learn not to be affected...

Later Ar. came there, visiting after long, and it was comforting to see how moved she was by the beauty of the place and the quality of the work done...

8-2-1987, Auroville:

Su is ill; pain all over her chest, and fever, and she worries. She'd said nothing to me, but I had to realise something was wrong in the evening and found her lying in bed...

9-2-1987, Auroville:

Would You show me clearly what it is I am fighting with? I do not understand the process. It is like every time I reach a space in which I can gather some trust and recognition of the progress to be made, it is the next moment swept away from outside and I am thrown back into this weird dark...

Ar. left me a letter written in the night; why does she have to feel the way she does? Why does she have to suffer from me? When I get quiet and calm and able to offer a space, she doesn't even see it; she only feels that I am denying her demands and barring her way to me...!

Larry came to "Ravena" this morning; I hadn't expected it. At first, his intent was to ask me to move out and let him take over. He said that his trust in me had been shattered and he now felt the way these people felt who had warned him against me (and among them he mentioned GI and Piero!)... I could see then why I had been moved to question the stance he had begun to take, earlier: it was the logical one for him, but for me it implied distrust and condemn, it was loaded. But this is a vicious circle: once more, instead of offering it all in silence, I have gone and put my finger on it and it snapped back at me...!

But then, after a while, once I had shown him the work and explained some of it, it eased a little, and his feelings changed; we parted with a question-mark, but less ambiguity. Yet, how to communicate? All our values are different. And he is socially in place, well-accepted and justified, within the fold. While I am out: everything I do, every way I go, every approach I have, it is like I am on the other side of a subtle barrier or borderline; it is rooted differently, as if in a different soil, and arises differently...

I don't know. Where can I go? Won't they ever let me be? Why this active, constant harassment, like hounds, manifesting through egos, misunderstandings, projections? What is it that I must offer, and vanquish?

... This afternoon Larry came back to "Ravena", this time to help fishing out part of the foot-valve that had dropped to the bottom of the small old well, and it was alright between us, practical and sober...

But I know that I cannot function when there is distrust.

... Just as I was about to leave "Ravena" this evening, P.J ("Bhagavandas") came to visit. I showed him around; he seemed to really like the place; then he told me that he'd had news from G.M; G.M had phoned two days earlier (he and Jaya are staying in G.M's house) from Mahabalipuram where he's been staying with F since his return to India the Sunday before; and he'd asked for him and Jaya to come and pick them up next Sunday. What pained me was, as I knew already where he was from my own perceptions, then too my other perceptions must be equally valid, of the reasons for his silence: that, because of his new relationship with F he wouldn't turn to me anymore, and that he'd been fed nasty false things about me while in Paris and been affected by it... And it made me sad: am I not his friend, truly? Is he not my very deep friend, truly? But I have also known, all the while, that I must keep trusting, and be patient, that it will be cleared... Still...! It is the intent and the intensity of these formations against me that, sometimes, like now, overwhelms me... And when it hits, everything I touch or relate to becomes questionable and stands on edge...

Even my relationship with Su worries me now; I feel it is time to communicate more outwardly, or formally, and together look at it all, instead of keeping mostly silent as we have been doing all along, a silence that was a bounty and a token of implicit trust and a rest, but that can also turn around and become a cover under which movements of attachment can settle...

... I don't know... The way can't be isolation and complete solitude. I must find a level, a position that enables me to relate without causing more confusion and pain...

10-2-1987, Auroville:

Su has been feeling poorly all day, with this pain all over in her rib-cage, and being deeply upset, a sort of inner revolution, with waves and troughs...

... There is a lot being looked at, within me, at the moment. And much of it has to do with time, and with death, and the necessities before oneself in order to reach the readiness from which a truer incarnation may take place – what is waiting, what is still the "future", a diviner substance for a more conscious life...

11-2-1987, Auroville:

There are so many states in one single day, and so many fluctuations of the awareness too... Often now, since I have resumed the practice of Hatha Yoga, the physical mind for some reason becomes very active again, loud and tiring, like a robber of time and space...!

12-2-1987, Auroville:

At "Ravena" P.J came again. But this time he told me why he had come in the first place: he and Jaya have been staying at G.M's for several months and they haven't found where to go now that he is returning with F, and besides that they have been more and more involved in a research for special physical atmospheres, practices and diets (they're onto this now famous fruit diet), along with Sharan who is doing polarity, massaging, etc.; and they have been thinking of "Ravena" as the ideal place... He said that they had offered it to You, seeking Your guidance; they have drawn sealed papers after some special meditation – he didn't really know the method – and received the indication, from You he said, to come to "Ravena"...

I don't know... The talk flowed alright; I like and can respect P.J, the individual, although I can sense a weakness there, an opening to mental influences; but I am rather reluctant as regards this whole bubble of "healing" and so forth, and I told him why, in clear terms... Besides, he wanted to move almost right away into the house, on its upper floor, and I do not see that as feasible for another several months, as I can't see any rightness in having him and Jaya and Sharan, which means two women, living in the midst of about twenty men working... And there's more to consider... So, I sent them over to Larry, as a first step!

I didn't like much the pressure he was exerting; at the same time, there might be a possibility there that would better correspond to the spirit of the place; but I am not certain about that either...

It isn't easy to have to act as a barrier, as people have their own interests and understanding; how long can I hold the fort? I wish something soon becomes clear, evident, one way or another... What I resent is this attitude of taking, whatever has actually initiated and oriented the manifestation, and at what cost... Yet I felt that P.J had a genuine respect for the place and its potentials.

... And at dinner tonight, as if by chance, John H told us of a long lecture he'd got the day before from Jaya and P.J on the virtues of what is called "instincto-therapy", a method of self-cure that seems to be in great fashion in Auroville today...! I find this phenomenon rather depressing: to open to this flourishing of "methods" when what is needed is to open directly to the workings of the Conscious Force, each being, each body developing their own research and evolving according to their own discoveries, no one method being brandished around...! The thriving of this pretentious amateurism in Auroville is disgusting!

I am still reading this book on Jesus the Essenian; I find it is quite a step in opening up hitherto hidden knowledge; it is also extremely beautiful and moving, including the revelations about the making of such a powerful collective living symbol, and it touches on a number of questions and wonderings I have had over the years. I have much respect for the courage and integrity manifested by these two people, the French couple who have written this book.

14-2-1987, Auroville:

At times during the day, what was always there supporting the material experience and would rise now and then like a jewelled peacock, seems to come purer and more flowing now, closer to material ecstasy, quietly brimming, nowhere exactly, or somewhere between the body and the whole...

It is as if the asanas, and the breathing, do help to clarify some issues...

15-2-1987, Auroville:

I had last night another of these wonderful moments of experiencing: flying! This time I was moving freely in the air over a crowded beach, and around structures in the city, learning to control every movement, to increase or regulate speed... I love it!

16-2-1987, Auroville:

Ar., who seems to be my provider of knowledge these days, brought me a copy of a fat report published recently, in a limited printing, on contacts made with beings from the Pleiades, and materials received from them, with descriptions of their spaceships; I am not quite comfortable with the quality of awareness that comes through those people who have committed to making contact, while, oddly enough, I feel much more at ease with the precise descriptions of the ships, or of the metals they use: this makes sense...

...Ar. told me of the general meeting; some Aurovilians have worked with a young lawyer who has come up with the idea of "collective property"! Everybody seems to be enthusiastic about it. I don't like the notion! I have no faith in it! I want Auroville to remain the way You have set it, to be the Lord's property exclusively! But maybe I am just too wild?!!!

... I have received a good letter from C; in it she relates some hearsay: L, who visited here last year, would have been told by Diane that she now knew she had been influenced by people and should have stayed, and Auragni, with me...! But I haven't experienced any change or any opening in her attitude; I can't say; it is possible, knowing her, she might have spoken that way at a given moment, but it makes no difference as long as she does not have the courage or the honesty to make a sign towards me!

Now that I have, in my experience at least, gone so close to a physical break-down and begun to pull out and reach for a beginning of harmony, physical, corporeal, I can measure more concretely the devastating effect of negative formations, especially when they are emotionally loaded; and I am still struggling for balance as regards G.M's shunning me...

... We went to watch that movie about the Amish community in the US, and it was alright, interesting; but it seems that in order to acquire an identity and a harmonious structure of solidarity, a group must perforce base itself on Manichean principles and be exclusive and discriminatory, which at the same time is its condemn and the end of its progress...!

The way I'd like to live the days isn't realistic; it would require time to stretch by many hours... I can't follow all the disciplines I'd want to; I've got to choose! And no choice ever seems to be fully right...

... There are these active, insistent formations that keep assailing me regarding my relationships to the people of Auroville, to the "community" – this time the trigger is G.M's strange attitude. I know well that it is a smallness in me that allows all this to come; so I try to concentrate on offering this smallness of being and opening to a position that is trusting and embracing, integrating and free... And I keep failing...!

Yet I am also aware, within the intricate mesh of these formations and possibilities, of an "I" that allows it, that even may want it that way, so as to reach, to be compelled to reach, a state that is no more dependent but is exclusively centred on the progressive incarnation of the Presence, and the progressive awareness of, and opening to, Its Action...

For instance, I do feel different when I am trusted and when I am not; but I believe now that this isn't real, and that I ought to feel the same whether or not I am trusted by other human beings... It is the involvement of the ego that, as a result, makes me doubt my own existence, or makes me feel right and justified...!

Those things aren't very deep, but they make up the stuff of daily life, of this broken-up experience, the linear one...!

I've got to surrender, and to accept as coming from the Lord all that concerns me and let it be the way He wants. It must be a trusting and willing surrender!

... Su came by this morning just before I left; near her, I am unable to conceal the pain, I don't know why; she just picks up on it.

... I am quite lost!

19-2-1987, Auroville:

The whole of last night was occupied with Matter: degrees of substance, densities and intensities of it, movements and rhythms within it, layers of it, and the sounds circulation, different qualities and actions of sound... This type of activity is recurring more and more frequently... It shifted last night to surface matter, the land movements, and the making of bunds and dams and fences and the planting...

... Thank you, my Lord, G.M has come!

He came around 6 pm, while I was still doing asanas, and he stayed for nearly two hours: he is back! I have missed him, truly! It is only with him that I feel in place.

He confirmed all the impressions I had got from him; I was right in everything! And now it is over, we are together again. And I feel less isolated, less lonely in Auroville: he is there! We matter to one another, before You.

... Something else has taken place today, a comforting event: Larry came to "Ravena" this afternoon and he was sweet; he had merely wanted to share the first news of Auralice, who'd phoned him from New York; we also talked of all the other aspects that concern "Ravena"; I appreciated his movement...

This state of physical insecurity remains, and I don't know what it is going to evolve into. I experience the near constant necessity of fighting this influence that has been pressing on my life all through... It has become a physical battle too.

The purest way I have found to look at it is to take it as the hammering of the Lord, whatever the guise He wishes to assume, so that this substance melts into His Hands: this brings a trusting recognition in my consciousness.

There are times, though, when I am pulled by a more immediate need to be delivered from it all, so that this nastiness, this weird harassment, comes to a stop, and I am able to function among others just like anyone else...

Picking from G.M's mind I have realised that, for instance, my involvement with D.M and Janaka till their "deaths" has already been interpreted in the light of those formations about me; I had no chance yet to talk to him about it, but my first reaction was that it was so unfair...! Yet, it has happened, it happens, and there's no point to complain about it, and I can't change it by my own will and efforts either! So this too is Your Hammering!

... Ar. made a little drama when she learned that I was going to Pondy with Su; I decided then not to go at all... When I went to Su to tell her about the change of program and the reason for it, she spoke words that suddenly lifted the whole weight from me; even physically I felt at once different; she said something very simple: she said that I should not let others use my own power over me.

She was referring to something she had had to go through in herself, but these words acted like magic and I could look at things very differently: yes, I do not have to give people this power over me; it is as simple as that; I do not have to!

Among many other things I had an odd encounter with Krishna last night that was perhaps significant; the contradictions expressing themselves through him, coming from him, were directly linked to my finding, while watering the garden, asleep or simply resting on or in the ground, in the warm sun, lots of cobras, infant and adult cobras, and some of them very old and nearly buried in the earth; and there was no aggressiveness, only awareness...

I realise the harsh falsity of certain attitudes of mine, seeing them in the light of Your Incarnation, and the mechanism by which they in turn attract corresponding harshness and falsity from others; when it is given to me to see things that way, I feel grateful and relieved of a shadow...

... I had at "Ravena" the visit of Roger A and Jacq with a whole group on a tour of the latest constructions in Auroville... It was an ugly, vulgar, superficial show! They hardly stayed half an hour, criticising everything, and went away as noisily as they'd come...

Poem written on that day.

"Exuberant jubilation
To the soul's perfectness
Matter's imperfections are Often a delight

When scorched
 By sun and wind the flaming petals
 Curl and darken
 On their rim, beauty still pulsing
 In their veins, velvet joy
 The soul's love
 Rises with care –
 Slow tears of bursting Adoration

It is the Lord's Body
 That Matter
 Incarnates"

I am trying hard to become conscious of what causes these fluctuations of energy; why, for instance, for days on end I must endure this heavy fatigue and dejectedness and then one day it is all lifted up and the energy is free and flowing and there is a fullness in the body and a quiet enthusiasm... I try to see and feel what is happening, from different angles; I tend usually to believe that it must all be a matter of the right attitude, of sincerity; but then there are obviously other factors as well: there is the determinism of what constitutes the general atmosphere at any given moment; there is the weather and its changes; there is whatever one has to experience and assimilate coming from others or from situations and formations; then there is the factor of how much energy must go into the work of inner change and transformation; and there is, there has been markedly in the past several months, the struggle with what was perceived in me as agents of the force of death – tentacles of the false renouncement, the action of ending, undoing and decomposing... There is also, always, the question of mental transparency and quietness, of the mind's freedom from all formations and thoughts rising from old states of consciousness, and that of their effects on the body's equilibrium; and there is the sense, varying, puzzling, and evolving, of time, of duration, and of its complement, space...

Su spoke at length of her present state, of the strain of not being able, as yet, to settle anywhere, of having to restrain herself from attachments and, about "us", of the knowledge sometimes hard to bear that she cannot hold me and must let go and be on her own while at the same time continuing to experience the reality of our relationship... She said these things with some pain, but with complete honesty, and she felt much relieved afterwards...

... This morning Larry and I met Joy and Edith at S's house and we took them down to "Ravena", where we showed them around and explained everything to them; they were open and very moved by the place: they have offered to try and convince Janaka's father, when they return to England in a week' time, to send the necessary amounts to complete the work...

... These days I often "think" I'd like the opportunity to create freely an entire place, drawing from my own access to creativity, or else to be given the responsibility for the manifestation of something like the Matrimandir Gardens, for You, Mother, to be used by You...!

I saw a wonderful, wonderful man dancing – humble, simple and full and flowing, perfect and sweet and sober, I'd give him everything, I'd follow him anywhere, for the loving living offering he incarnates, discreet, gentle and so, so present... I do not know his name, but he is a blessed one! Chandralekha came back to Auroville to present her latest creation and perform at Bharat Nivas with her group; there was mixed energy, and not an even quality, but this man was there: I just kept watching him and loving him...

This man has given me delight.

I now wish I had gone to him to thank him and give him something, to let him know how much he gives, but... it is selfish! India still has such living treasures, I am so glad!

At some point in the night I found myself climbing down some cliffs, where ducts were concealed and ancient tombs hidden in caves, and priceless documents were kept, and I had to manage on my own, hiding from groups of people who wanted to reach in... I do not make the effort of taking detailed notes any more; I am not sure any longer of the purpose it serves...

... Take me, Mother, to the true capacity to serve Your Work, Your Incarnation...

I want to reach that point when it is no more for the sake of one's own subjective growth that one lives, when one's existence actually becomes one's offering of one's substance to the Work, to the objective change of condition and consciousness, to the Lord's own evolution...! Only then does life become worthwhile, and not another waste; only then does it take on meaning and sense...

... Ar. reported to me, after my work at the Kitchen, on the meeting that was held this morning at Matrimandir: Piero and Roger A have agreed on a glass cover for the sphere! No one else really spoke; it was a sad show! It is very discouraging...

... I went over to "Certitude" to bring rolls of film I have shot of "Ravena" to Joy and Edith, for Janaka's parents; Joy told me of the opinions she has heard expressed concerning "Ravena"'s future, and of a delegation which had come to her to protest against its use as a Guest House, endangering the purity of the canyons...! Sometimes I feel as if this is a place for sick people!

... I can't believe nothing will direct people any more for the sake of Matrimandir's own truth of manifestation... If it is left that way, to be made into some cheap show... then, what?

I need You, I need the conscious One, Mother, Mother...!

We're having a water-crisis in the area already; what usually happens in May only is already on us now, with people arguing and clashing over valves and ducts; since two nights, either I or R have to stay up to run the pump, when the current supply is more stable... All this haggling has been going on for years because, in the "high places" the resistance to looking at the overall situation inclusively has been stubborn; the money is there at Matrimandir to build the proper adequate water-facilities and begin to ease the tension, and to help find solutions for Auroville as a whole; but they resist and accuse and are righteous, and they stand "above"...!

Nothing of what happens in Auroville nowadays ever seems to make me feel that I want to participate, to contribute, to support... It is not that I am egoless, far from it! But there are gross justifications for the continuing action of ego that are gone from me and I would expect they should be gone from everyone here at this point...

Last night there a strange, absurd dream-episode with Larry, where his arm had been shattered and I was putting it back together and, in so doing, some trust and intimacy was building up between us... This was followed by another episode showing Ar.'s troubles, her body' ailments; her waist was circled with an ugly belt of large, dark welts...

... On my way back this evening I met B who told me that at Matrimandir people were now trying to find a way out of this decision that was taken last Saturday, and head back towards what several of us feel to be the most faithful solution: a simple, bare double ferro-cement shell clad with some fine and noble material such as stone or ceramic... She was vague about how exactly they intended to reach there... I still feel that the only way is to do what was done about 10 years ago regarding the presence of the 12 columns inside the Inner Room: to write down a clear collective statement and sign it and that's it...!

A while ago I tried to formulate such a statement, but I don't know that I can contribute anything there at the moment. My position is known anyway. Whatever "process" the people at Matrimandir are involved in at the moment, I don't have much connection to it – or much respect for it, to be honest!

I spent a long time last night in the company of old Ashramites, in their own set-up of activities, all centred on the Two of You, their atmosphere of childlike confidence and dedication, of devotion and offering, but no aspiration for change; only the rhythm and flow of a complete centring on You Two...

... This morning Su came early to me; she was a little lost and she cried; there was some big knot in her, about having to leave. I took her with me to "Ravena" and then to Pondy and we had lunch there, and it was alright...

4-3-1987, Auroville:

There is a hollow, suddenly – vanished energy; I feel like jelly: no bones, no axis, no purpose...

I got into questioning the nature of what motivates me to try and reach a physical harmony; I have been doing this discipline of Hatha Yoga to unblock the avenues of energy, when the state of imbalance had become rather extreme, and to let energy flow back unhampered, bringing with it natural, innate harmony, translating into health and fullness and strength and plasticity... But how much of it is for my own self-satisfaction? It is not clear to me...

... Ar. left me another letter; more of the same! And I haven't found any true answer either; I have found nothing! I only have met another woman-soul, a person, someone I respect and value and with whom a real contact has established or renewed itself; I haven't found the person who will matter centrally in my experience...!

... On my way back from work, I met Surya (Sj); he had just come here looking for me; he returned yesterday from Europe, after several years, to stay; he is swollen up and grey-white, like a man who has nearly drowned, but he's still there and it will be alright... He called me "my brother", and I know what it has meant to him all this time, away from here...

5-3-1987, Auroville:

Yesterday night, Ramu (Ina) came to talk to me about Su's distress; they have become close friends, and Ramu feels concerned and worried that Su, upon leaving, was crying so much, because she couldn't be sure that she could come back to me; according to Ramu it was my responsibility to be clear and choose the one woman I wanted to live with... I left word for Su, later, and at night she came: I told her again how it is for me, that there are no attachments on my part and that I have been trying all along to free Ar. from hers and will keep trying; and that with her, Su, it all feels very natural and right that she is here, and that is all I can honestly and truthfully say...

And so, all of this morning, while at work, I have been looking at what is attachment actually, and what it does... However much I sometimes wish I could feel strong attachment to the right person and thus belong to the normalcy of things, still in the long run and in my deeper awareness, I do not believe in the truth of it; it is felt as an obstacle, an obscuring and confusing agent... And now with Su I somehow feel a little betrayed, because I had believed her when, earlier, she had committed to friendship as a basis for our relationship...

... Tonight Su and I spent a long time quietly talking, sitting at the amphitheatre, and it is very good: there is a thick and hard crust over me, and sometimes it dissolves a little; she is good; she is Su!

Whatever, but I can't understand what is wrong with me, that whoever comes close to me has to shed so many tears...! I sometimes wonder if I am not letting people indulge in misinterpreting what is simply an ill-understood intensity?

I am having trouble with the "father Asana"; since a few days, every time I am about to settle on the right spot of the head and let the body-weight align on to it, it seems to press a switch and I go off like a flame and loose consciousness at once; so far I have managed to jump back down just in time, but it is very intriguing... I have been learning for now about twenty years to open to the Force flowing from above through the opening at the top of the head; perhaps then it is contrary to now put the head down and to press on that very opening?

In a more general way I am struggling for a grasp on energies or, rather, the different modes, qualities and intents of energy; there has been a recurrence of sexuality for some days, and that specific mode is often met when doing asanas, quite tangibly: when I am well oriented it is integrated, while when I am wavering and mixed-up, it divides and begins to pull... And there are many other modes one meets during one single day, according to one's activities, to the time of day, to the circumstances and the interchanges with others...

I have been reading these excerpts of Sri Aurobindo's diary "Records of Yoga" from his early sadhana in 1912... Oh Mother! Clearly, either You do the Work and one only has to provide a steady receptivity, or else nothing will ever be accomplished in our substance – it is impossible to expect us to be such sadhaks...!

I am hardly taking any notes of my nights now; this is all as if I was running parallel lives: nightly it goes on, with their own sets of circumstances, situations and people and relationships and events, but almost none of it ever seems to express any higher, deeper or more useful state of consciousness than I am able to experience in the daytime...

... Three weeks from now, I shall have to stop the work at "Ravena" if no funds come in; I have considered trying to send an appeal again; but it feels like I have done all I could in this direction, and I can now simply rest it all in Your hands and await Your indications...

For me there seems to be nothing in front, nothing that I would rather do, or not do, no particular future, no specific development; I juts wish, and pray, that it will make sense, whatever it is: that it will be Yours...!

11-3-1987, Auroville:

Trying to figure out what has been preventing me to do the head asana properly, I observed several phenomena, and this morning I seem to have hit upon what is perhaps the main resistance in my being: the resistance to manifestation, to becoming, the resistance to existence and to Your Work in it; a tangible, almost material refusal, a very powerful pull towards non-being, non-participation, towards a return into some bundle of undifferentiated energy. And it seems to be that which translates itself either into fatigue, weariness and lack of interest, or the reluctance to express, to manifest, to share in any given situation...

13-3-1987, Auroville:

Much of last night was an interesting, long and multi-aspected adventure, collective, with outer events, pursuits and discoveries – ships stranded, engines from the sky -, but with a lot of inner meaning too, all full of details; some of the Auroville people were part of it, and people from other worlds as well, and all are trying to find the truth, and what really happened; there are some Chinese-looking people, sort of sub-people, who have been enslaved, and are represented and choose to come over to "our side" and to renounce other masters when things precipitate...

... I do not have a very complex outer life, and I see relatively very few people, and relate personally to even fewer, and yet there are so many aspects that are acutely unsatisfactory in terms of harmony and truth. I wish I would begin to learn how to manifest helpful creative vibrations instead of what I see again and again in its results: this mixture of distrust, condemn and fear, and of craving, need and attachment...

... Surya came to visit, at noon, and pulled me out of that time of silence and retreat I still need; and although I know him and care for him inwardly, as he knows, I was struck by the physical smell emanating from his sweat, as if it carried all of his experience in the West and what it has done to him, and to his body, and I had to fight nausea all the time he stayed, nearly two hours...

A large group of "my men" have gone on a pilgrimage to Thirupatti, by cycle, for a few days; and so "Ravena" will be a very quiet place in the meantime...

Today again I had to skip two of my sessions of asanas; but it seems to me that I must stick to this discipline, as a material support for the offering, to bring all the energies into the work...

15-3-1987, Auroville:

I have been all day trying to recover harmony, or to reach a new harmony, and to become more conscious of my sheaths, so that these waves are no longer able to enter and sow their seeds of disorder and ruin... And I am wondering how to respond to people, pushing and being pushed to a point wherefrom I may look at my past as a necessary stage now gathered into the beginning of a new life, of a new awareness...

16-3-1987, Auroville:

As always, help, "spiritual help", comes to me through women; this book, "Initiations", by Elizabeth Haich, has been handed to me through two women, and it is most interesting: it relates, among a number of other matters, disciplines of Ancient Egypt, especially those that concerned the nerve centres, their education, training and adaptation to higher states of consciousness; it makes a lot of sense, even today for Your Work, and it is quite relevant to the difficulties I have met in my life; I am reading this very carefully, as it acts as a sort of revelatory for what has been more confusedly held within my own consciousness...

... I still need a lot of sleep; I still have these strange fatigues, although they now have a much less depressing character; it feels sometimes as if I am lacking a back bone, or some sort of central illumined will isn't there; but there seems to be less confusion...

... Ar. did come; I told her of my choice, that we should see each other as friends really, quite regularly – on the basis of a common and mutual commitment to friendship and trust, without any of these undertones; we talked a long time, because she couldn't accept it abruptly and couldn't see herself able to do it; but it eased a little. Perhaps she will see the necessity of it. I hope she does.

I spent the evening with Su; she finished packing up and she will stay the night with me, till it is time for her to leave, before dawn... I don't like emotions; whether one is able to hold them in check or not makes little difference, they're there, and I find them more and more disruptive, and damaging...

20-3-1987, Auroville:

Su managed to cry very little and, as soon as she sat in the car, she became composed, drawing on her own inner resource, and it was good. John H, B and Akash went along with her, and Pala and Ramu had come to bid her farewell...

21-3-1987, Auroville:

I stopped at "Abri" on my way back this morning, to hand over the money to Tom for the purchase and installation of a diesel engine for the pump here, so that we can run it even when there is no electrical power supply; it is not a joyful decision; the pollution is depressing; but there seems to be no other choice, at present, if I want to keep the place going and maintain the garden.

Larry came to "Ravena" and we discussed the organisation on which to fall back, soon, if no money comes to complete the building. I could go on at a slower pace using the funds that Ed is still owing, with carpentry work and the maintenance and guarding of the whole place, while Larry would try – as he is also going to the US and will meet Auralice there – to get more funds... So whatever happens, it looks like I shall remain committed to "Ravena" for some more time...

I do not know how to progress; I do not know what experiences are needed: I put it all before You...!

... I went down to Pondy with N this evening, for some shopping, and we had dinner in a restaurant; there's still this longing to possess him physically, to hold him and to be held; but that it doesn't happen alters in no way the sweetness that's always there between us; and it is somehow a constant surprise, in peculiar, non-mentalised ways; we communicate hardly at all on most levels; we can only share very material things, like food, and yet he happens to be the one person I am glad to see every day...

23-3-1987, Auroville:

I had to send B away again, as she'd come at the time of my asanas, and I told her when I'd be free; I felt bad, but I have seen that if I relax the discipline for such occasions, it will be undone in no time; however selfish or rigid it may appear, I want to persevere – but who cares anyway: it seems that my attempt at sliding quietly into anonymous oblivion is succeeding well! -, knowing that this may take several years to begin to establish a condition in the body that will be favourable to Your Work...

24-3-1987, Auroville:

Lately I have more often been tiring of having to absorb, day after day, the obscurity carried by the men at "Ravena"; I guess I am open to them in the wrong way, because it draws a lot on me and is no help to my own atmosphere; whenever I see that, I want to stop it all and pull out; but then a gesture rises, a smile, radiant and pure, and I forget at once all the darkness that is around them and makes up most of their lives...

25-3-1987, Auroville:

I cycled over to Angad's early this morning, to check on the lime-mixing session which we had agreed to have there, with Jaimurthy; but this fellow, for no reason at all, was all uptight and aggressive, complaining of pressures and reluctant to keep to the agreement, in such an obnoxious way that I nearly gave up and left with D, the lime, the cart and all; but I realised: he is just cracked up! That's all!

He hasn't resolved certain contradictions in him; he hasn't examined the necessary changes of values, and thus he has tripped into this unreal condition... But there was such a blind, diffuse violence in him, and such bad faith in his expressions, that it took all I could collect not to blow at him... What struck me most, though, is that, in different forms this phenomenon is quite frequent in Auroville, and has considerable repercussions in the collective life...!

Later I examined my own reactions; I am finding out these days, more and more, about the necessity to actually see, feel and perceive everybody and everything within the conscious embrace of being, instead of away and outside of one's own experiential space. It has become increasingly important to me to learn not to reject in an ignorant way. And just this one progress, so truly and well needed, is such a program in itself...!

Myrtle called in; it had been such a long time since she last had come. It was good to sit together, for an hour; she too has found in herself the imperative need to concentrate on her own progress for some time, and she could well understand that I do not wish to see much of anybody right now...

29-3-1987, Auroville:

My last dream was a surprising encounter, in the sand dunes leading down to the beach, near sundown, with a very, very tall, large and strong man, whose whole physical expression is very moving, unique, not beautiful, with odd proportions, but vibrating intensely with a sort of contained tenderness; he is so much larger than me and yet he is open to me, he walks towards me all absorbed in me; after a few words we sit together close, facing the sea, and I lay his hand on my sex and my hand on his sex and it is brief, and surprising, my body responding at once with a flow of semen that woke me up...

It left me a little depressed, though, not of itself, but for what it shows: I am simply not making it! I still long and crave for a man-to-man thing... Like, with N, I enjoy every part, every movement and every place of his body, his skin is wonderful to me, I delight in the changes of his face, I want to lay my head on his breast, to kiss him everywhere...It is all maddening, because I haven't yet touched the cause of it, the living cause; it eludes me still...

I keep pushing toward a new, formidable comprehension or realisation, which is already conscious somewhere up or deeper within, but hasn't yet had its impact on the outer, active consciousness: it has to do with an entirely other perception of all relationships... I am led, with a sort of inevitability, towards it; that, somehow, all relationships, in our present state of consciousness, entertain the same illusion, or falsity...

But most natures aren't equipped to even consider that it is so; they have the best reasons to maintain it all – to help others, for instance, to save humanity or the world... -; while it may be easier for me to accept it, even though it implies experiencing myself as a kind of a monster during the transition!

It hinges on that absolute truth that the Lord alone is objective; that the only objectivity is the Supreme reality. And That stands hidden by the Light, while opens a creative way that will purify the world, and all relationships will be experienced altogether differently...

The whole of last evening and far into the night I was miserable, as if a belt was tightened all around my middle, with constant nausea, and a draining of the body's energies, and pain in the limbs and back... I have no idea where it came from. I tried to make myself vomit but nothing came...

1-4-1987, Auroville:

I met Larry on the road; he said that Ed was still withholding the borrowed money, for "good reasons"; that he and others were objecting to "Ravena" being made into a Guest House because of the traffic... I don't know what to do. All along I have trusted the Grace, and the gracefulness of the place itself; trusted that You would care for it. But I have also to acknowledge that people in Auroville do not like it...

2-4-1987, Auroville:

This evening, after a dinner alone at the Kitchen, I decided to walk over to the "Field" and visit with F and L; I found them quietly settled, with a good atmosphere. They are in the phase of enjoying their re-discovery of Auroville, and the comfortable distance their years of America have created in them towards all issues in Auroville... About "Ravena", and about D.M and Janaka, I gathered, almost implicitly, that the impressions most people share are quite negative, heavy, burdened; that they don't even want to see the place for themselves; it is a kind of superstitious rejection, very ignorant, but very persistent...

... I guess I could be said to have a "tormented nature"! And I didn't know that!

Of everything that I have experienced so far, and all the perceptions that have accumulated, how much of it is pure - un-slanted -, objective in the sense of not being influenced by my own limitations and the positions taken by my ego at any given time? And what do I truly understand, adhere to, of Your Work?

Formations regarding Your Work keep coming, almost all tending to present it as an interference in the "course of things", and they are legitimised by the gap that yawns between what people who define themselves as Yours do practice and spontaneously, "naturally" express and the very nature of the Truth You have incarnated...!

... The matter of "Ravena" worries me no end; I wish I would know what to do and be able to hold the right position towards it; I wish I'd be given the means to bring it to its harmony and offer it, ready and clear. But the way it is now, I find myself antagonised from all sides, bumping into a mesh of incomprehension or, worse, aggressiveness, jealousy and obscure superstition; somehow people resent the whole thing, and resent D.M; they are hard, because - I suppose - they feel threatened in their little worlds...

... This seems to be another crisis... There's no breakthrough anywhere.

There is only either hardness or a slippery ground sloping back to an absurd forgetfulness.

Self-consciousness must go, must go.

But it sticks...

It is the will for transformation that brings up all the resistances, the obstacles and the contradictions.

Death sits at the centre of life, pointing the way back to salvation, away from this manifest world of Matter...

One cannot strive past it, down here, past its swallowing mouths and its tentacles, without Your Help and Force and Will and Drive. And I can't open myself to it. There's interference.

I feel intensely that need to reach timelessness in the physical consciousness itself. I see that, without it, all the proportions, perspectives as all the attitudes and strivings, are falsified.

And yet, to reach that, one would have to be sufficiently transformed already, at the other levels, so that the experiences arising from the constant interchanges can no longer affect or bear on one's physical condition...

... I have fixed myself some dinner here and I am sitting outside under the Service tree; I hear Krishna playing his loud, disharmonious music, on and on; he is entrenched, barricaded in his own enclosures, making the few young people who follow him turn into fixed, blank, hard masks, shunning everyone else with this bottomless hatred that is only the other side of his devouring need for love...

And I too am entrenched, and the victim of my own affirmations and self-consciousness; but crying within, and seeking, searching for a state that will trigger a full, unconditional "yes", a flowing wholeness...

A rounded integrity...

... I have received a card from Kenneth from San Francisco, a picture of that wonderful bridge under which, he says, he hopes to sail soon, back to India...

3-4-1987, Auroville:

Physiologically, becoming aware means that the consciousness becomes also, in the beginning at least, more or less constantly occupied with the need for harmony in the organism, and there is such a complexity of incidents and events translated into sensations, up to pain; it is a jungle, and one has to learn everything...

4-4-1987, Auroville:

N arrived late this morning, on foot, with his little son Nitya, rather distressed and looking beat; he'd met with fresh trouble at home, his wife had somehow called his brother's friends, four of them, who just went at him; he'd sent his children to his mother's house... While he told me all that, he went into fits of sobbing; then he asked whether he could try and join Auroville and live on some Auroville land... I was always reluctant to invite him to try; I wanted him first to sort out his own orientations and to wait for some ripening... But I can't be certain; perhaps the time has come? I told him to go and speak to Rama, whom I trust... I know that much of him is basically "inadapted" to the context of a Tamil village; he gets hurt from all sides, is constantly misunderstood and misjudged; but, to enter the way of Auroville, a lot must be sifted through...!

... I am having a good seat to watch, in myself, the selfishness of human "affections"! How it is really all a bargain, blindly self-interested usually on both the sides! And I keep catching myself at it, in my relationship with N... Yet it also seems to evolve and to contain something genuine...

5-4-1987, Auroville:

I did the asanas very early – the point of dawn seems to be a most favourable time – and left around 6 am to go to the old temple in Irumbai. I had promised Y that I would attend his marriage, as I knew it truly mattered to him and it wouldn't be a social thing. This temple, defaced and neglected, has yet retained something of its original atmosphere; the ceremony was set at its inner door, a very poor ceremony – even so Y has had to borrow heavily and will be in debts for more than a year – led by a dirty, hairy, raucous Brahmin, with general attempts at dignity, and much emotion on Y's part; the bride is a very young, robust and rather beautiful girl; the audience was largely matter-of-fact and indifferent, but Y's mother was thoroughly engrossed and very sweet and lovely and proud; I took pictures and stayed a while; as people there knew me I was not bothered at all...

... I met Larry at his house, as planned, tonight. He has changed. He seems to now truly care for "Ravena" and to want it to be completed and willing to do everything he can to see that it happens, even considering advancing his own money if he sees, once in the US, that funds are forthcoming... He is determined to get Ed to repay the money he owes, and also to try and get the funds that have been blocked in Janaka's Accounts; so I could feel a supportive attitude coming from him, and that makes a difference.

8-4-1987, Auroville:

Whenever the smallness of desire, of wanting, manifests, it becomes nearly impossible to conceive of any human relationship that would be devoid of this element of bargain. It says "if this one doesn't at all give me what I need, why should I ever be interested or why should I care?", and many other such graceful things...!

... I met Larry again after the work. Ed has plainly refused to return the borrowed money; he doesn't at all care for the house; he only cares to expand the land owned by Auroville.

To me this is plain dishonesty: only it is worse than in the ordinary world because it hides behind "new reasons"; I have no more respect for these people; and I wonder what it is that Auroville does to individuals: sectarianism, clubism, territorialism and complicity of interests, all under the banner of human unity and ecology...

What all the experience of "Ravena" has shown me isn't pretty.

... I am to go and meet Larry tonight, so we can try and figure how to proceed. He leaves for the US in 10 days or so.

For people, Janaka is "dead"; finished; over with; their sense of fraternity extends only so far, as long as the interests of the "living" are covered.

What a comedy!

I still don't know what to do. To trust is probably the only useful thing I can do!

... I received a birthday telegram from F.J and Ch.J; I should have expected it, but it came as a sweet surprise; I had forgotten about it!

9-4-1987, Auroville:

I had wanted this day to be unmarked and had asked Ar. not to do anything special; yet when I returned home I found the house filled with garlands of jasmine, and plucked roses and orchids...

It is strange: I felt no joy, not even pleasure; it is only gradually that sheer love for the flowers themselves arose, and a certain respect and wonder at Ar.'s resilience of affection... But later, by chance lifting a garland to attach it around my little statuette of Krishna dancing, I uncovered something that had been wrapped underneath: it is a most beautifully worked brass and copper statue of Ganesh, and I felt delighted at once, that Sri Ganesh himself had come, the very sweet and very true Ganesh...

... I didn't want to see anyone today, at least anyone who would know of my birth date; I seem to be touching the end of something human, the human experience of relating, and I do not know what is on the other side...

After the work this evening I rode down to the beach with N, and I happened to ride right behind Diane and my princess as they were driving that way; it was painful: Diane turned once toward me, almost as if she had known I was there; she saw me, and it took her an instant or two before she glanced away, and that was the pain... Why, why all this?

When I came back, leaving N at his house, I found on the door a sweet sign from G.M; and he had left there a tiny bronze Ganesh as well! Lord Ganesh really came to wish me something today!

10-4-1987, Auroville:

This afternoon Larry and Yaap came together to "Ravena" and we discussed the practicalities of Yaap's starting to build his own house in the adjacent field and how I am going to keep things together on the site... It was a little tiring and it took long and I returned here late for the asanas; as my back is still hurting, I guess I shall take a break till Sunday.

Soon I shall have to take a number of decisions, none of which I find easy, though probably for someone else they would pass as small matters; but for me it is just not easy to have to lay off someone, to be the instrument of such a drastic change in someone's life... I have also thought of trying to sell the logs of wood that are left, so that some work may at least continue, but that too makes me uncomfortable!

11-4-1987, Auroville:

I have been asleep for so long; I think I may have briefly woken up at the turn of this year, but I relapsed. It is mere grinding, on and on and on: no fire, no opening and no growth... I must say now that I understand why we, human beings, need the whip of pain...! For it is only pain that makes us search for the Presence!

... This longing is crazy, to melt into a friend's embrace, to kiss and to hold and to be held; and N is so very sweet, but he doesn't at all feel the same way and... it is somehow cruel; cruel, because I have really tried to move away from those areas of need and turn to the Presence, but I haven't found the Lord's hands, He has not pulled me towards Him; and those longings catch up with me and overtake me, and I live in a context which, compared to modern life in the Western world, is extremely moral and conservative, despite of all its pretence at being the cradle of a new world... And I can't see that I am going to make any progress here if You don't give me a little push or help one way or another; or else I would have to avoid all contact other than the most superficial or practical, so as not to be reminded of these longings... Sometimes it is all so dark and hopeless for "me"! And so very absurd...

... What is the secret behind it all? What is the hidden evolutive sense of it? With all my conscious experience, with all my awareness at present, I see nothing that is in any way superior, truly more valid or useful in "me" than there is in, say, N... What is the point of all this? Isn't all this ridiculous? Or else I am perhaps just a fraud, nonsense?

14-4-1987, Auroville:

In the midst of all the night activities, I noted some that had an interesting character, and more depth of meaning: there were happenings in outer space involving several people and, after some early attempts had failed, I was made to try and locate the point of disappearance of those who had not returned and may have had to pass over, to "die", and I found the emotional traces of what had happened to one of them, a black man, a lovely, wonderful being, and his contact and his presence go very deep...

15-4-1987, Madras:

Throughout last night there were odd bits of activity in many directions and areas, between frequent waking from the mosquitoes and a tension or unease; and there was a surprise encounter with someone very close, like a best friend or a family member, who is "dying", and I refuse to respond emotionally, but I put instead all my concentration on the reality of consciousness, and he actually "revives", but not as he would with a vital breath: he revives with the breath of consciousness, a very different event, in its quality and its simplicity...

... N came, last night; I had prepared the bedding on the roof and we went up there together after our food, and we met, and it was sweet and it felt that perhaps it was important to him too, and his response made me grateful; but he left soon after...

... I reached the airport well in time, to find that C's plane was delayed and would only arrive at noon; I came to the Taj then, and am now sitting in this cosy luxurious place eating a kingly breakfast and hoping the book-store will open soon...

... I know nothing; I am trying to unravel the mesh that has got me entangled again; there are worlds of things there, and I guess I could write for ever about it... But I need to know the Lord's hand in it all. There is always this ashy taste that comes from having wanted, pulled and obtained something that didn't just bloom out of genuine recognition and abandon... I have tried hard not to do just that, but there are many ways one takes, to still do it while seeming not to do it! I can see also, though, that I may simply be grateful for what has happened if I remember the very stuff of N's own life-experience; I need not feel betrayed then, because I know that he never intended to cheat me!

This particular trend is inscribed in my whole time in Auroville so far and, at this point, it is far from positive; there is nothing outwardly, in the context of this supposed collective experience, which helps me in any way to break through my own limitations to give more, contribute more and participate more... On the contrary everything tends to throw me back into calling directly, alone, at the Source...!

And I honestly do not believe it is all my own ego's projection. Auroville, humanly speaking, isn't a place of progress in the real sense; not anymore, or not now, or not yet. Things have crystallised in the ways of ignorance; spontaneous attitudes do not reflect any attempt at growing more conscious, but a sort of self-justified seeking for a middle-term harmony, not ever looking behind or beyond...

I seem to follow a slow movement of inner realisation, wherein material existence gradually, and inevitably, enters a new perspective; it is the sense of time, as measured in physiology, which poses problems: that is where one is bound to ignorance.

... But I still ignore what is the real sense of this contradiction in my life that has brought about the separation from my only child – the one being who could have reconciled me to the world. From that side no sign has come yet of a change, not even of a promise of a change, and years have already gone by...

Somehow I do feel like a guest in this world... Often unwanted, or merely tolerated... I know that, for this as for all the rest, once away from Matter, when one goes to rest, all is understood in truth and simplicity, and all contradictions and all judgements vanish, and there remains only compassionate comprehension... But in order to uncover material harmony one has to become able to bring this very consciousness here itself and to live on its concrete basis all of one's movements...!

... The plane is due in half an hour; I have read in the paper that aboard this very same plane, yesterday in New York, components for a radio-timed bomb had been found stuck under one seat; and now the entire airport is in a confusion of attempts at security!

I just can't force myself to start the process of terminating the work! I don't know why and I don't know what else can happen either! I can't accept Ed's attitude, his refusal to return the borrowed sum... I have to move, to do something; but even to sell the wood doesn't feel right; but something has got to clear up within a week or so, because I have responsibilities towards the men: I can't simply fire them when the money is finished; I have to give them a proper lay-off so that they have time to look for another job...

And then I took her to "Ravena": she was, as I knew she would, very deeply moved by the beauty already manifest...

I keep coming back to that point! It becomes increasingly unbearable, like a pain. I don't like humanity, mine or others'... I don't like what it makes of death, or of life; I can't accept it... And so at times I am angry, or depressed, or desperate; rarely do I calmly endure; it is only when by the Grace I have been a direct contact with Your workings...

J'aurais tellement besoin de Toi, Douce Mère.

Je ne sais pas, Douce Mère.

Tu m'as seulement dit que je devais avoir l'endurance.

Encore faut-il que, quelque part, je sente, je sache, je comprenne pour quoi ? Mais je ne vois, ne puis mesurer aucun progrès de conscience, ni aucun sens de la concrétisation d'un Etat qui justifierait tout ce labeur de la multiplicité de l'expérience d'exister...

L'Amour ? L'Amour vrai ?

Douce Mère, l'Amour vrai, c'est Toi ! Et quand Tu n'es pas là pour l'incarner, que peut-il se passer ?

La misère d'être prolifère, et c'est tout !

Pour ceux qui peuvent encore s'établir momentanément dans la circulation des énergies vitales, il est encore possible de croire à une harmonie relative ; mais de mon point de vue – qui est peut-être faux, irréel -, c'est une réalisation superficielle et factice...

Je me sens tout à fait perdu.

... I am sick of myself, sick of this joylessness and sterility; and sick of wanting tenderness where and when I cannot find it and being unable to give it when it is wanted; sick of not being aware of the way...!

I look, and look, and look: isn't all this a huge and vain comedy? What are we all after?

Please, oh please take the ego away, please do that!

23-4-1987, Auroville:

Je suis maintenant conscient comme d'une énorme peine qui s'est accumulée, et qui demeure là, silencieuse mais écrasante, absorbante ; et je ne suis pas conscient du Rire du Seigneur, ni de Ton Sourire, Douce Mère...

... C has been worrying over "Ravena" and trying to think out some way for her to come up with the necessary funds to complete the construction; but I do not feel that this would be the right answer; besides it would make a big hole in her budget and off-balance all her equilibrium in her work... She has suggested I could take a break, go and travel for a while, leave the context... I don't know. I can hardly talk, unless she asks questions...

I should like to feel that this condition I am in is the tail-end of the disappearing ego...! I do feel sometimes the need to vanish – not materially, but in "myself"... But shouldn't there be some joy, somewhere, somehow?

24-4-1987, Auroville:

C is such a real treasure: she had another experience at "Ravena" today, by herself, while I was gone with Jagannathan to see for the sale of this wood; this was an experience private to her, but connecting with the sense of essentiality, and she felt very strongly, almost imperatively, that she must see to it that "Ravena" is completed. When she later told me about it, it began to make sense.

And tonight we talked about that nearly-forgotten fund she had been keeping for emergencies, for me, in an Account in Switzerland, which might be sufficient, at today' rate of change, to bring the construction very near to completion... And thus it may be that I shall not have to stop the work next week...

I was at first reluctant, because of the personal aspect to it; I had hoped that something would come which wouldn't be connected to "me", as a sign, something that would say "yes, the Lord is concerned with that place and appreciates the offering, and here are the means to make it whole!" This would have been much like Your Blessings... But it may be so even this way! It is, I guess, this terrible need in me, which has been so heavily and nastily denied, to find some measure of acceptance near You...! Let us see, then...

25-4-1987, Auroville:

I sent a message to Larry, in case we wouldn't meet before he leaves for the US on Tuesday, saying that I might be able to continue the work, with private funds, no strings attached. I don't know; I get rather hostile waves at times; I had the impression that he might be upset at this news, in the sense of losing control over the place if I can go on by myself...

26-4-1987, Auroville:

We started off at 8 am, B, Akash, C and I; we reached Madras before noon and spent two quiet hours in the Taj.

R arrived at 3.30 pm or so, happy; I was glad to see him. B and Akash's boarding was due an hour later and we left them there, as several others from Auroville were to travel with them to Europe; they'll be gone for 3 months or so. It seems that a lot of people are taking a "vacation in the West" this year! I too sometimes crave for places and cities where there is cleanliness and a minimum of material harmony and order, instead of this growing, tentacular horror of carelessness and dirt...!

... This world is terrible: all the way I wanted to scream!

Where is the Force that can act over and through all these blind, low, insane forces? How far into the insanity must humanity go? How far must the earth be defiled?

It is hard to be human!

27-4-1987, Auroville:

The weather is tough, and we're all tired.

I feel a strain that is almost unbearable, from just having to live.

... Larry came to "Ravena" this afternoon, along with Roy (fat and vulgar); he left me his address in the US. Oddly, and weirdly, he made no mention at all of the fact that I may be able to continue with the work; he asked no questions, and I didn't bring it up; it is as if, after some hesitation, he has taken the easy way out, letting me get all the burden if I choose...

28-4-1987, Auroville:

I am just holding on... I don't think that it has ever been so difficult, or so continuously, or for so long... Yet there must be, within or above, somewhere, an awareness of being, of reality, against which every human experience is felt as a contradiction or an infirmity...

... I realise now how much part or parts of me were eager to "relax", to have that break that stopping the work would have made possible. How I would have wanted to go to some secluded, comfortable place, to concentrate in a beautiful natural setting somewhere, doing nothing, worrying about nothing, with no responsibilities, and to wait, wait for some clear direction or impulse, some orientation...

... G.G and S came here this evening and stayed a while; they asked me about "Ravena" and G.G offered to write up a Project for some Foundation which, he thinks, would surely give the money to finish the work and also maintain the place for a while... So I shall help him to prepare it...

1-5-1987, Auroville:

I stayed the entire day in bed; worried, because tomorrow I must get up and get moving for "Ravena"...

What is difficult is that I have no sense of wanting to live, of wanting to serve.

... This afternoon in my sleep I was crying, because of what all You went through, and because You had to go...

I need a sign: something...

14-5-1987, Auroville:

For two weeks I haven't written. I was wiped out: hepatitis; extreme fatigue, white stools, brown urine, eyes and skin yellow.

In the first week it was as if nothing mattered anymore, nothing made sense. There was no purpose any longer; not that I doubted Your Work, but just that it had nothing to do with my life and being. All the failures and disharmony of the recent past loomed large and there was no room left for trust or hope.

I drifted; I read some good novel, a huge one of a thousand pages, by Clavell, set in the Iran of Khomeini...

All the while, C and R, Ar. and N were sweet, gentle, ever present.

I managed somehow to keep the work going, just by seeing two or three of the workmen daily here.

Then on May 6th, the day of C's birthday, something stupid, nasty and absurd happened: around 10 am, C went with R to B's house to fetch some iced water, slipped on a cement step which was wet and fell violently on her lower back; this was terrible, given the vulnerable condition of her spine and osteoporosis. R came at once to call me; after a couple of hours we managed to slowly, very carefully walk C back here.

Why? Why on her birthday? Why was there no protection?

She got more and more pain.

We didn't know what to do. We thought that either Gupi or Birenda, examining her, ought to tell whether any bone was damaged. Her and R's departure date was approaching. We had to know whether it had to be postponed.

But Gupi, instead of a simple examination, insisted on giving her, twice, a heavy and full massage; I was still very weak and not at all in control, and he overwhelmed my caution easily, saying that he was "in command"...

The pain increased tenfold. C could only bear it when lying on her side, all curled up. We gave her pain-killers. She wouldn't eat any more, and got rather desperate; she made R swear that he would help her leave the body rather than remain crippled and endure so much pain... We postponed their flights for a week.

We called Datta then and had her admitted in the Ashram Nursing Home.

We took her down there, in Datta's van, lying on a mattress; X Rays were taken, but the lady Doctor couldn't read them with enough certainty, as the marks of the old fractures and crushed vertebrae (from her road accident when I was 10 years old) were confusing. But she diagnosed two collapsed vertebrae, something serious enough to cause her hell of discomfort afterwards... R became frantic to get her somehow back to France and admitted in a specialised clinic.

C had a couple of terrible nights there, despite the gentleness of the nurses and staff.

We got no help from the French Consulate in trying to arrange the flights back to France with a stretcher for C. There was only money, money, and R had to pay huge amounts. I would have rather waited until C was able to sit up again, quietly, but R was too worried and C herself was eager to be taken care of in more equipped settings...

C. had not eaten for days. Her nerves had become very tight. I obtained from the lady Doctor that a morphine-based injection be given to her, so she would relax a little and eat.

Air France exacted huge sums from R. Finally the date was set.

17-5-1987, Bombay:

C had to be given serum to feed her.

Once we got moving, though, the nausea abated and she began to sleep more and deeper.

G.M and F, along with 2 Ashram guys, rode with us all the way to the airport in Madras.

In Bombay, A.GC had arranged for a private ambulance and we went to his flat in the upper city; C slept much of the time.

At night when we went back to the airport, the authorities wouldn't let me accompany her up to the plane; but the people who were handling such cases were so rough and careless that R got really mad and finally obtained a permit for me to take her myself up into the plane. I just had time to see her settled on a couch that had been set at the front of the plane – this huge metal bird packed full of people. I could well have gone along with them as the company had made R pay for 9 seats! But I kissed and hugged her and R and stepped back out and they shut the cabin door behind me and I was rushed into a car and out of the airport, where A.GC was waiting for me.

And there I was, riding in this beautiful car at night, listening to Verdi, along the richer streets of Bombay up and down its hills that are built above the sea...

19-5-1987, Auroville:

R phoned from Paris yesterday night, at Matrimandir. C is resting and the doctors have confirmed that there is no serious damage and she will only need reinforced treatment for the osteoporosis, once she is able to move freely again.

... I am trying to bring everything to order...

Right now I just long for physical harmony, physical ease, physical beauty. Sensations are largely, I know, an illusion or a crust; but these days, in every 24 hours, there are hardly one or two pleasant sensations and they come like stolen parts, not as from a whole...! I long for a room with bay-windows looking over the infinite sea, I long for its wind...

This morning Datta and Mitra removed that cyst from the top of my forehead, with Nicole's gentle help; it was simple and quiet and they were very sweet and funny and light. I think I hold Your children at the Ashram dearer than those in Auroville...

They removed a hard smooth, separate formation of cells from my scalp, like a large bean: cells that have gone their separate way?

My head is shaved now. I wear a turban!

I wrote a letter to Gupi, so that he knows how wrong he's been regarding C; but I haven't sent it yet: I am resentful towards him and I wonder whether one can do any good in that condition! Twice in my life he has intervened, and twice he did damage, although at different levels...

5-6-1987, Auroville:

At Ravena I began placing the geese in their flight – on the two murals D.M and I had designed on either side of the entrance -, one by one, and looking, looking: it is so delicate to find their exact individual places and their number...

8-6-1987, Auroville:

I rode down to Pondy early this morning, to get the bike serviced, and to purchase the items for the plumbing and sanitary in "Ravena": this is always the toughest part for me in a construction; I am quite lost with these contraptions, nothing ever seems to fit correctly, and it's all so... fabricated!

... I placed 5 more of the flying geese; it is hard to be sure but, so far, it feels right: they express a truth – a rising out and upward, a thirst and a thrust of powerful aspiration toward the light... I can only hope that D.M and Janaka would like it, and feel fulfilled in them...

9-6-1987, Auroville:

I saw, in retrospect, that every effort one makes is tainted with ambition and narrow exclusiveness...

Now I tend to accept that there is no realisation of any sort; that all the activities go on, ceaselessly. Whatever will was there to control them, or to move beyond or above them, or to silence them and make them receptive, this will has somehow abdicated...

... Let it be as That makes it to be...

The only focus of prayer or aspiration, of awareness, that remains is in the simple experience of being material – of existing materially. To be aware of it from the core, wordlessly, and without conditions.

Just that.

... Ar. is the one person here who has this need and will to be near me all the time, and it remains a mystery to me; and now she accepts more easily my silence and for instance if I take a book in her presence, she herself takes one as well and is content... And so it has become a little easier, as she has also ceased from making demands, and she brings with her a sort of joyfulness which is very pleasant...

10-6-1987, Auroville:

I was ill-tempered all day from having to cope with all these contraptions and mechanical parts – the plumbing at “Ravena” and the installing of the diesel engine here; fortunately Ar. helps and today she went to town and ordered barrels, purchased oil and grease and such things that are, it seems, indispensable to life...! It is always the same reluctance, or resistance, or even repugnance in me towards most mentalised Matter – having to depend on it for everything else: the dependence.

I have placed the last two geese. I am not very sure: it doesn't express an easy harmony; it isn't a smooth flight of geese as one sees in the sky, migrating; rather, it is a complex movement, and each is individual, although obviously part of a thrust and a rising... Now the background must be plastered, egg-white around the white of the birds...

... I am reading an interesting report, made, I feel, with sincerity, on recent research done with people who have experienced clinical death and survived: their experiences away from the body at that moment when they “knew” they were dead or dying...

No one, I suppose, will ever be able to measure what You have done and are doing to erode and dissolve that barrier, to “un-realise” or “de-realise” what we still call “death”, and to teach us to open to what is to replace it...

12-6-1987, Auroville:

There seems to be an un-doing process right now; making room; as if a sort of slow gathering towards a new virginity...

... Ar. is now the one single person I have contact with in my daily life in Auroville. Without her I'd only see the men I work with, and N. When I go to Pondy it is the same; it has often struck me that I almost never meet anyone there: I can spend hours there and only talk to the shop-keepers; and so I do not take my isolation as merely the result of an attitude of mine: it may also be an expression of the Will...

13-6-1987, Auroville:

It is as if I have never started on the way.

But physically there has come some stability: those deep chasms of fatigue have gone and although I do not feel inclined to rely on vital energy, still there is an improvement; I think the credit goes mainly to the practice of asanas, and perhaps also to the fact that I have ruled to eat every evening a full plate of vegetables...!

I listen every morning to Your Agenda, while doing the asanas, and it is good, and necessary.

But that's about all the concentration I am capable of at the moment!

I have seen how much all my previous “efforts” and “attitudes” were a fraud.

I need my existence to be genuinely opened to Thee, to be opened by Thee!

J.P had a motor-cycle accident this evening on the main road; he was in the Jipmer Hospital, unconscious, when first John H and Andy heard about it and went.

J.P has a fractured skull, but I am told he is conscious again, and talking... I haven't yet gone to see him.

19-6-1987, Auroville:

I went to see J.P in the hospital. As I stood there next to him for about an hour and talked to him, he began to realise what had happened and why he was now lying there; he remembers nothing as yet of the accident itself. His face is swollen up and his eyes and eyelids are hugely tumefied, his torn ear has been stitched; he cannot swallow anything and feels dazed and cannot see – it is all dark to him, but he could sort of perceive my hand as I moved it in front of his eyes, and reach for it...

... I went to a restaurant to have fish and cold beer; L came in and joined me. I like the contact with her: she is still free from the conditioning of Auroville's affairs, and there is somehow a flow between us that has different colours and depths...

20-6-1987, Auroville:

I worked at the Kitchen most of the morning; but without J.P, and with the new "management" of A and Dhanapal, and with Dadu announcing his "retirement" (this sweet old-child-man is a barometer!) it was all a little tedious...

22-6-1987, Auroville:

The last X Rays taken of J.P showed another fracture at the back of his skull, which had somehow pressed on the optical nerves ends causing his near-complete blindness...

And N... He fell down last night, in another bout, he says, of intestinal crisis, and went unconscious in a bush of thorns by the roadside, and got himself all scratched up and sore – and desperate! He still refuses to go back to Debu for more treatment; he is still so proud and so tight... One can only try to help when help is wanted! I feel bad, though, and useless!

... G.M has written again: he has seen C several times, and it now seems that he's taken a work-contract in Abu Dhabi for a couple of months...

23-6-1987, Auroville:

When I went to visit J.P this morning I was met by an unexpected barrage of hostility from a German fellow named Kl who was there on duty along with a girl, also German; J.P himself had relapsed into a semi-conscious state, was very dehydrated and yet was unable to absorb anything orally and was left uncared for medically but jealously surrounded by these two people; it was impossible to get a clear statement from Kl, who had seen the Doctor earlier. I had to soon leave because this tussle couldn't be any good for J.P. I tried to return later, on my way back from Pondy, but the guy was still there... Back in Auroville I went to see Eric who I thought was more or less in-charge of coordinating the duties and care for J.P, but I found that neither he nor anyone else here knew anything or had any idea what had to be done and that no one was in direct contact with the Doctors... So I tried to convince him and Edgar to move and meet the Doctor and find out what the position was... This was all very vague and discouraging; I had kept away from doing any regular shifts because, so soon after my illness, I didn't feel ready at all to spend hours on end in that unclean hospital. But now that I see how J.P is left neglected and uncared for, I have to see... And tonight Ar. saw that Kl had posted a note in the Kitchen to the effect that there should be "no tourism in J.P's room in Jipmer and only serious people with the right attitude should come..."!!!

24-6-1987, Auroville:

I'd like so much to see progress, real progress, anywhere!

I miss the experience of the Force acting...

Whether it is up to the individuals to call and to open and to receive, or that the Force has withdrawn from Auroville, I do not know...

... Something is missing: is it merely a psychological fault on my part, or is it that the time hasn't come?

26-6-1987, Auroville:

I am reading a book by a French lady, Janine Fontaine, on her own research into healing, and this has stimulated that missing part in my experience; instead of merely waiting, enduring, keeping quiet, it has sort of revived the sense of intent in the call and of usefulness in making one's movements conscious...

In the past few years every time I have read about a sincere research, genuine and progressive and fruitful in terms of evolution and further human comprehension, I have felt those two things: one, the regret that some of these individuals hadn't been able to come to You and to work with You; and two, a kind of secure awe that You are so very much ahead of all of this that these discoveries are necessary translations and emanations of the very first steps of the way You have cleaved... And thus what was held within Your Experience is little by little spreading into the world, a new realisation of the nature of reality and a maturing in man's relationship to the Supreme...

27-6-1987, Auroville:

I seem to have become addicted to reading! Fleeing from my own stagnation and feeding on the progress others make and share, or even, simply, on their life-experiences! It is the small "me" that feels that way, that is afraid of sterility, of barrenness since, in the eyes of the world, one is judged by what one produces and contributes – and, on that score, I am pretty useless!

The only thing, the only movement that makes sense to me now is to let go!

To learn to offer my little shadow up, to let it melt and be no more, so that It may be, whatever and however It Wills...

... I feel a kind of awed reverence towards all those individuals who believe and feel that they're existing to serve the Divine and to be its loving and serene and active instruments...

But it feels to me also like just another trick, or another veil...

Only the Lord's own existence and manifestation is worth it all...!

... Auragni, my princess, is today 5 years old...

Deep down, the pain is surely there. But I don't go near it.

28-6-1987, Auroville:

It rained throughout the night; the sick "Realisation" tree near the house toppled down and crashed over the terrace of the house, breaking its rails; I knew its roots were damaged by fungus and I had wanted to take it out already last year, but it had started to shoot new leaves and there were now flowers blooming...

... Maybe there is something wrong with this life of mine; it can't seem to reach anywhere. Always it is said that one must face the difficulties in the present life, lest one has to face them again and again; but at this point I no longer know what these difficulties are, that call for my effort and sincerity...

I stand before a wall that seems formidable. Whether it is objective or merely the effect of my own, hidden resistance to the true consciousness, I honestly do not know now.

I look and search and I try and grope and I hold on, but I can find no joy in the fact of being, as an individual... I just don't see the point!

And I can't conceive of, let alone feel, any ulterior, future stage or state wherein to be conscious will carry its own justification of joy...

Perhaps I am still prey to the conditioning of human time, as measured by the duration of a human life, and I should simply relax and accept that it, It, does not happen for the moment, trusting that some time, inevitably, It Will Happen...!

For, surely, there has to be a state of being that justifies it all, reconciles it all.

You said it. Sri Aurobindo said it.

And yet, You have suffered so much, and You too have had to "go"...

And what is left when the Two of You are gone?

... In a way I see – I have looked at it again – how terribly proud and unforgiving I am... Because I cannot accept certain things in human life and behaviour, particularly in people who pretend to be aspiring to a truer life, then I withdraw, cut myself off, move away from an increasing amount of circumstances and situations...

And now, I can hardly move further away!

... I resent the lack of understanding, or perception, of what Auroville is about, on the part of those who have seized the – relative – power of action and influence, and even in those who just live here as in some "community". I resent the distortions they bring about. It feels as if Auroville has been stolen away from its purpose. People have turned it into an experience that is devoid of interest or meaning, and pretentious...

Despite the dull joylessness, the lack of flow, of purpose and meaning, despite the barrenness of it all, there is also, although it is difficult to define it, a sort of cleansing going on: an ending of the old, of the past – not only my own, but in

Ed came to "Ravena" this morning, to talk: he has finally managed to purchase a piece of disputed land, adjacent to "Ravena", thus connecting the Auroville land in that area; this is achievement he is rather proud of; he has worked hard on it and he considers that this settles his debt to Janaka. He wanted to let me know this... I could appreciate the urge that had led him to speak to me, but I took the chance to give him a review of what I have had to go through for "Ravena" because of the lack of funds... However he merely kept asking me "what, if... what if I cannot complete it? And who will maintain the place? What will it be used for...?" And I have no answers!

9-7-1987, Auroville:

I have been wondering about the difference, sometimes subtle, between self-discipline and self-jailing or self-limiting...

I was cycling home from work with the intention to do my evening asanas, when I met G.G on the road, who wanted to return to me the papers I had given him to write up a project on "Ravena" (the possibility he had thought of didn't work, in the end), and we got unexpectedly involved in a long conversation and there came an encouraging sharing of views on the present condition of Auroville; G.G has recently been led to take certain positions in which he believed, and that has exposed him to various reactions – and he's been called names, and this has taught him a bit, it seems; it was, for once, like communicating to a brother, someone likely committed...

I went to visit J.P at Dr Sen's; I hadn't seen him for about 10 days: he has aged, and thinned out considerably and, sitting up on his bed, Hélène near him reading him a story, the look of the blind on his face and his voice still catching, he could have come out of a Camp... But his sweetness and his formidable need for friendliness is dominating everything. He still cannot see more than vague shapes, and with one eye only, but he makes out the colours when presented at close range...

... There was a rather sad scene at "Ravena" today: someone has offered to Jagannathan the job of chief carpenter, with higher wages than those I can afford paying him (in Auroville terms I pay him good enough wages, but he has become obsessed with money, even though by village standards he is not a poor man, as he owns fields and assets...); he pretended to ask my advice, but he was actually pressuring me to increase his wages, or else...! So I let him decide for himself, and he did: he has quit. And that was sad, for many reasons: he isn't going to really earn that much more, while on the other hand he is leaving unfinished a work which we have been doing together for about two years now, and I was hoping we could complete together, thus sharing in a concrete offering...

This should free me from a sense of being duty-bound to these men – this had been my main worry all along, to see that these people can finish the work they had started, as a complete experience: I guess this is a remnant from past times, when I must have mixed with or been part of guilds, when teams of artisans and craftsmen would work their lifetimes on a single work or construction...

And the wind-mill broke down again...

... Sometime I get a sort of impersonal glimpse of the shape of my life and its apparent direction, and I wonder what is holding me on... It looks like a life of waiting, and yet there are processes of growth that seem to overlap, at different speeds or along different time scales; even with regards to, say, a "normal" human life, I for instance feel as much a teenager, as I did when I was 18, that I feel like an ageless person – watching and enduring and trying to become physically aware and manifesting that very agelessness, that timelessness... Likewise I feel as much a woman as I feel a man, in my own experience of meeting others, of relating... And further, I also feel as alive as I feel "dead", as "white" as I feel "coloured", as much from the past as I feel from the future... And even, more "locally", I feel as much of Auroville, as I feel not of it, or out of it...

There is a lot of stuff coming through these days; in another context, I might take it as materials for writing; but here there is no such self-evident activity to which I could give myself: rather it all feels equal, or indifferent – this or that activity, so long as there is no indication from above or from behind the heart, nothing in particular, however agreeable or creative, makes much sense...

14-7-1987, Auroville:

There is this odd, constant contradiction, between feeling like a boy, almost like a child, with infinite time ahead, and the conditioning that watches the number of years that elapse and measures the time of my body: when one is nearly forty, then one ought to have the sense of making something of one's life...!

And, translated in terms of this yoga, one should by now be at least all centred and moving forward with a clear and steady aspiration, the results measured in consciousness...

But none of that is there; one hangs on, day after day and night after night...

The nagging problem is that, most of the time, I so dislike what I manifest; and if I was to leave the body now, I couldn't be happy of the use made of this opportunity... In that sense, the negative presence of "death", as the negative of a colour print, is still playing the necessary role of a reminder...

For it is only seldom that I Move into the state of consciousness where everything is actually Thy Will and Thy Action; and one is left with no ambition, not even the desire of being worthy of You: there is then only a transparent acceptance, a neutral freedom...

The nights are again very restless and tiring, and the dream activities very puzzling; last night there was a long time spent with Diane and that crowd, with a lot of disconcerting factors at play, and something of Auragni that was disturbingly grave: she was telling me how she had missed me, not knowing why I couldn't be there, and that she had a weakness in her physical heart and I must be very careful about it... I don't know; I don't understand...

I met F as I was cycling back to "Ravena" this afternoon; he was on his way to a special meeting he had more or less initiated, at the Matrimandir office, between the so-called "neutrals" and the Executive Council, of which he has become a member; he isn't without lucidity, at least mentally, about the whole thing, but it pleases his vital to play that game, perhaps backed by a more genuine need to see Auroville open up to a direction more worthy of You. I cannot disagree with him, because he is just being himself...!

I will try and complete "Ravena", Mother, and then You must clearly tell me what I do. And that will be that...!

I had come to the conclusion, regarding N, that he'd been tricking me much of the time, and that it'd be better to put some distance between us. There's something I do not know, which makes it all off-balanced; I am quite sure of it now; and it works against both of us.

The atmosphere in the work is a little odd, especially since Jagannathan has left, for higher wages; it seems actually that he's been hired by Pete, and Pete would surely have known that Jagannathan was working for me; so it is like that: Auroville today isn't such a good place; everything seems to be going wild, nothing stands to replace the discarded ethics. And in that direction, inevitably, lies in wait the old power of money... Almost everything I see in Auroville now, everything that is of consequence in the daily life of Auroville, makes me feel nauseous and anguished...

... G.G and S came to visit at "Ravena" today, a gentle gesture, to inform me that one of the trustees of that Dutch Foundation, a lady, would be in Auroville for a few days, and I should try and meet her about "Ravena", to ask for funds... Since there is no effective coordination of all the projects at the moment, it is everything for grabs! I am reluctant to run for the pie, but G.G said there was no other way...

I halted in the Matrimandir Gardens on my way back today; Ar. and a couple of others at the Nursery had asked me to help them clean around the trees that F.Gr has abandoned, and around Ruud's grave; there was work for me there if I wanted to help with the pruning; it felt good, and reviving, and I think I'll do it. I have missed working in a team, for Auroville!

... I went to pick up that Dutch lady, Mia, and her adopted daughter, a young, very interesting Nigerian woman, and I took them to "Ravena"; Mia had said at once that there would be no chance of financial help, but they stayed a long time, and sat quietly on the upper roof terrace, and I felt that their understanding and emotion were genuine...

I can no longer take health for granted; it has become a constant adjustment, and watchfulness, like steering a boat in an unknown sea. I have also to learn to depend less and less on vital energies, and so, in ordinary terms, I seem to become less and less capable. There seems to be some unavoidable transition between the old, illusory, semi-conscious capacity (with its degrees and stages), and the new growing awareness which will reveal the direct power of consciousness; a transition that may last...!

In a day like this, there are such odd fluctuations of energy: moments of fatigue, laboriousness, moments of peace, moments of quiet energy, and moments of suffocation... Much of this fatigue has to do with the weather, I think; I have become more sensitive or vulnerable to its action – its effects? -, and on certain days now I feel a great reluctance to be out in the sun, almost as if there was danger; yet, on other days, I sense a good relationship as if with the amount of water in the air, and it is quite alright...

... Before noon I went by Matrimandir; there was a small concreting and J.P was sitting by the office in an armchair, not yet able to move around on his own; I sat with him awhile...

The car that was to pick me up before 5 am never showed up; I waited and waited, getting depressed and nervous because I do not like to fail anyone who is waiting for me, and then T came to tell me he'd just gotten a phone call from B in Delhi, to say that their plane would be delayed by 7 hours; T soon figured out that, by mistake, the booking or the car had been entered at tomorrow' date only! And so I re-arranged the day, and went to work...

Being unexpected at "Ravena", cycling in quietly, I came upon a scene probably more exact of the work atmosphere that prevails when I am not there; it saddened me that I couldn't trust even Nar: he was talking and smoking, lounging comfortably and doing nothing else at all, as in a most natural state of affairs...! I can't blame them, though!

... Both Ar. and Arjun separately gave me a report of the morning meeting at Matrimandir: it goes round and round... I think I would never choose to be in Auroville now if I was just visiting for the first time; and I am well and finely shut off, bound and gagged: I can't raise my voice, lest the truth I would try to share would be denied merely because it is uttered by me...!

... B and Akash's plane landed at 5.15 pm; B is looking good, a little fleshed out, more harmonious; Akash too is better, but he still makes me nervous! B chattered away the whole journey back here, about all they have seen and done, and she never stopped till we were home! She is good; I am glad she is back. She also gave me news of Samuel – he wants me to come and fetch him in a yellow airplane; and of C and R...

I am determined to go and find N tonight, both for his sake – he needs money, as he has not come to work for days – and for mine; this is taking far too much room in my physical consciousness and I must find the way out. I just hope it will be through some harmonious progress and not through another failure and rejection... But this is pinning me down, weighing me under, and it has been so for months now; it is neither healthy nor compatible with a movement of conscious progression. Tonight, for no reason, I feel cold!

After dinner Ar. came by and reported on the general meeting: regarding Matrimandir, nothing conclusive so far; but regarding Auroville as a whole, the Government is now urgently asking Auroville to consider negotiating with the SAS

This morning N came back to work. There was tension as I approached him (I had not found him yesterday when I looked for him); it resolved itself gradually as we talked, as I made him answer clearly... I realise that, regarding his physical troubles – I think that it is actually a sort of nervous disorder, deeply rooted, that moves all over and creates havoc here and there -, he is scared that it may be something like what Janaka had, and that he has to struggle all the time to overcome this superstitious fear...

The wind-mill has broken down at "Ravena" and the diesel engine has failed here and there has been no power supply for the past 24 hours, so both gardens are miserable... Every means we must use seems so artificial: a little nut here, a broken screw out there, and an entire community veers brutally to the lowest survival level... And the old question: how to care, without attachment? How to grow living plants, and see them wilt and die with "detachment"? I don't know!

In some way it might be better to let Nature move on her own and join her, complement her, co-create with her only when there is solid possibility...

But here in Auroville we are bound to rely and depend on all these contraptions, for the water-table is too low for open wells, and there are no rivers nearby...

... I cycled down to the beach after the work, and I passed my princess; she was walking with several other little girls, and among them was Aurassi, her elder sister, while most of the others were Tamilians, I think: my princess is remarkable, with her rich hair turning brown and her deep-set ice-fire blue piercing eyes; she is stunning! I have never seen eyes like hers... They met mine briefly, her unaware, not knowing; but Aurassi was all stiff and uptight and sombre at her side, perhaps fearing I might want to stop... But how could I, when her own mother still denies me? It would only upset her balance...

... A general meeting took place this afternoon, about the negotiations with the SAS; I looked at the issue within myself, while at work; there could be some justice in having to work again with the people of the SAS over the destiny of Auroville; but whichever way it goes, it is sincerity and awareness that are lacking... And too there is the problem of Satprem...!

Individually this seems to have little importance; I can't see it as a crucial issue any more; in some way I believe that the people of Auroville have missed the opportunity that was given during the last few years, and that they have instead started on the wrong track...

30-7-1987, Auroville:

There are moments, rare – yet these are the moments that are truly "normal" – when it clears up a bit and it feels that this struggle is over at last, this heavy obstinate pull is undone and dissolved and I can now turn on the way and walk and see and love and grow, free and given...: a natural state of the true being...!

... Am I crazy to go on with "Ravena", not knowing if money will come in time, nor how it will be utilised, who will live in it, who will care for it, not knowing but the smallest step ahead?

31-7-1987, Auroville:

P.V stopped me on the road, to ask me to sign a petition drafted by those in Auroville who do not accept any compromise with the SAS and thus feel misrepresented by the proposal Al.B has made at the general meeting of yesterday. I cannot attune to any of these games now; but I looked at the petition, and the first sentence, stating the betrayal by the SAS of the basic, living principles of Auroville, I could well accept and endorse; but this was followed by some dramatic wording to the effect that to accept any compromise that would provide entry to the SAS would deal "a fatal blow to our aspirations and hopes"; and it went on requesting the continuation of the Government's active protection... And this to me is nonsense, and such a comedy! (If such are our "aspirations" that they can so easily be killed, then they aren't worth mentioning!) P.V wasn't happy at my abstaining!

Open letter regarding the Organisation of Auroville and its relationship to the Central Government of India.

(Note: I had written this document, it appears from the date, at the beginning of 1987, but I do not remember when it was shared with others in Auroville – however, it remained actual...)

- 26.1.1987, Auroville -

"It seems we are being asked to come up with some practical, workable proposals concerning the next few years of Auroville's evolution.

It is understandable that the Government of India does not wish to remain perpetually entangled with Auroville and that on the other hand, having committed itself so concretely for several years, it cannot just pull out without certain guarantees.

Auroville too does need guarantees that it will not have to return to the previous sterile state of conflict with its would-be owners.

But it also needs to find its own ways to evolve, to discover them with the least interference from any of the machineries that are based in the ordinary world and society.

We chose to ask the Government's help and, given the general conditions at present, it appears that we still need that help for some time to come.

So perhaps, rather than making big declarations and taking foolish stands, or else passively going under the crushing weight of inadequate and rigid organisational formations, we could suggest some simple and effective means by which both the Government and Auroville will feel their respective duties are un-compromised and their respective responsibilities are clear.

The following discipline and agreement could be proposed for a period, say, of 5 years, after which it would be either extended, if it has been found useful enough, or changed or adapted according to a further, truer understanding.

There are three major areas that are of immediate and permanent concern to the Government: visas – and admission; finances – how to earn or receive the funds needed for the development and maintenance of Auroville; and land – purchase, use and management.

For each of these three areas, the Government could post an employee who would act both as an observer and as a relay, a channel between Auroville and the Central Government.

These employees would be the Government's contribution to the work of Auroville. They would have no control and no authority over the internal affairs of Auroville or its general orientation. But they would be entitled to ask questions, to raise objections, and any decisions in any of their areas would have to be open to them before they would relay them to the Government with their endorsements. They would be permanently based in Auroville, but their functions would be clearly, unambiguously defined.

Our internal means of organisation would not have to be changed; we already have them and if they are not satisfactory it is, as we well know, entirely our responsibility – they can be sufficient if we make them so, by contributing... the right attitudes.

It certainly would require from us discipline, dedication, self-commitment... But we know that; and no external agency is about to pour these gifts on us.

In the first area, we know how we can formulate our necessities: that, in the absence of an unquestioned spiritual authority, the only way to know whether someone is able to stay in Auroville is by experience, and therefore this probationary period after which a careful assessment can be recorded and recommendation for admission be made.

In the second area, there are delicate issues that we must bring openly and separately to the Government's attention, such as: how on earth is Auroville ever going to support itself if, by law, its residents are forbidden to earn the money Auroville needs? And so it should perhaps be proposed that after, say, a couple of years of residence, any individual who, being a "Foreigner" in India, feels inclined to try and earn money for Auroville should be allowed to do so, provided that the productive activity concerned is based in Auroville.

In the third area we meet the necessity to legally acknowledge certain facts that are contingencies to the Charter of Auroville; as a Society, the SAS purchased so much land for Auroville; when it reached its legal limits it bought more land under individuals' names, for Auroville; in our time also, we have purchased more land, for Auroville, under other individuals' names. This practice ought to be made legal by the Government, given the unique aims and purposes of Auroville, and therefore all land purchased for Auroville, under whatever name, could legally be considered as one, and its management could be legally handed over to the actual residents of Auroville. Members of the SAS as well as any individuals who have lent their names in the purchase of land for Auroville would have no legal say in the management of this land unless they are accepted as residents of Auroville, and then their say would be equal to any other resident's.

This is, roughly, what I feel could and should be formulated now – and that is for the temporal issue.

The permanent issue is clearly enough stated in the Charter of Auroville.

Such an agreement would leave open the channels of creative cooperation with the Government such as the Institute, Educational Research, Village Action, Ecology, etc; depending on our ability for discipline, it might even fortify them.

This is a contribution. Please consider the substance, not the name.

(These points, if found useful and acceptable, must obviously be developed in some detail, and rather carefully I suppose!)

Divakar"

Late this morning, after some hesitation, I went to see the exhibition on Tibet at the Bharat Nivas; just to see the face of the Dalai Lama makes me happy, the spirit of this man is so manifest, so real and simple! And the nostalgia hugged me, of these spaces of pure air and crystalline light, the far distances and the sound luminousness of that high country... while, down here, one has so often the sense of being steeped into a fog of miasma! I didn't stay long, just took in the fragrance of their medicinal herbs, the colour of their clothes, the roundness of their faces...

... I realise that this formation that keeps hovering over my life, this strange twist of nature that has been my lot, is holding me back like an iron shackle, a heavy band; and that when it will at last be broken, I shall perhaps simply jump into the true state, because there is nothing else to prevent me... Sometimes, suddenly it is almost there, like a great sweeping of the space, free and clean...

I am bad-tempered. There is the wear and tear of more than two years of continuously, day after day, interacting with these 15 or 20 men, and no other activity to balance the weight of it; all the small lies, the meanness and duplicity, the jealousies, the rivalries and the vying for status and the exploiting – and yet that open space within, and their smiles and their resilience and their simplicity... Nothing ever feels quite straight or one, with them; and with N too it is often so: it is slippery, dramatic, and elusive; it is contradicted at each and every step, and yet it is somehow profoundly attaching... Shahbahadur, the Ghurkha, who is Nepalese, is of a different substance altogether; he is the one person there who would be unable to lie. And this morning Nar avenged himself on him, meanly, for having told me the truth, and I saw this sweet, gentle man weeping...

... I yearn sometimes to belong to a community whose every interaction is conducive to individual progress, instead of confusing and evading while pretending to be more than it is...

The fact of solidarity can act both ways: it can be quite destructive too...

... I went to watch that video film on Tibet, in that underground room at Bharat Nivas, this evening; it was tedious, stuffy, and I feel now such a stranger to all that natural warmth and ease which nearly everyone else seems to be sharing, despite all the issues and conflicts that occupy their minds, and tongues... And the film was snapping every few minutes... I didn't know, though, the extent of the nasty, ignorant, devastating action of the Chinese against Tibet's very identity, or of its deviousness...

Yesterday I sensed that I was just about to tip over into the wrong kind of solitude... I have always liked and appreciated solitude; it has always made sense to be living by myself, rather than with people, to have few social contacts rather than waste energy into useless talk and shallow relationships. But there is also a kind of solitude that a lot of people fall into, of a barren, pitiful kind, the kind which, when one encounters it in someone's atmosphere, draws a feeling of pity and recoil, which almost has a smell; it is a sort of misery. This scared me!

So I know that I must shift my attention; perhaps I must get back to painting, or writing...

I have been looking too much at the consequences of the ostracism I have been subjected to, and letting myself go under its weight while vainly trying to understand its real causes. The pain of it has been very active lately: not being able to relate to my own child; not being allowed to contribute anything to the collective life and organisation – be it just a poem, or some function in its daily life and progress; not even being able to use some of its services... Part of it is due to my own demise, my own disagreeing with the directions taken... But I still do not understand why it has been laid on me, or why it is being kept that way, why nothing else happens to change it...

It's been too long, too many years; and it affects every one of my movements, of my activities: just because I am the one looking after it, no one in Auroville gives any support to "Ravena" for instance, except from Ar....

And that tormenting question remains: was I wrong to come back to Auroville? Would have I progressed more on Your way if I hadn't?

I know that I must collect myself, and break through these ghosts...

... On my way back this evening from "Ravena", that big German shepherd she-dog of Ed's ran barking at me; she does that often, and usually I stop her by talking back to her, but today she was fast and surprised me, she went straight at my leg and bit it; I responded angrily, and so she withdrew at once; Ed was following behind and I turned to him; I could have tuned into a big anger then, but it would have been out of proportion... I do not think that I had fear, or any negative thoughts, as I was cycling by, and so I couldn't understand why that dog had come after me, other than for the reason Ed himself may have...

8-8-1987, Auroville:

The nights are always filled with so many activities – I have almost stopped taking notes; there are interesting circumstances and experiences sometimes, with an element of learning, of discovering, that would be very encouraging... if at least somewhere, somehow, it would bring about some change, make some concrete opening... It's just been too long, being stuck with the same grey-faced obstinate denials and difficulties, just too long...

... I want to belong to the Lord, that's all.

In my nature I do have very strong and persistent sexual drives, drives for endless enjoyment, but this is only a part and I can't see why it should ruin the whole...!

The Lord knows why it is so, because I have always felt that it had been laid on me at the start, and it must therefore have some purpose?!!!

Then I told her, truthfully, that I only knew this was a valid relationship, but not which way it would evolve; and that about her, Ar., and me, I knew that I would never feel toward her in any other way than toward my sister and friend; that this was truly and naturally how I felt her: my sister... This seems to have dispelled a lot of the stuff that was still in her mind; I believe she understood it.

I have received a letter from someone I do not know, the woman who is the new friend of my brother J.Y, and she writes about Auroville and her wish to come over even without him if he cannot extricate himself from his present situation... I know that things are moving for him this year; but I would be apprehensive if he would decide to come now, as I would be for anyone else who is dear to me, because I know that he would expect much more than what there is at the moment, and that he would have to experience sooner or later some brutal landing... Yet perhaps the time for him has come indeed; and for me personally it would be a sweet comfort to have him near...

I was at the Dawn Fire at the amphitheatre; I was there at 5 am. And later I went and sat alone under the banyan tree; it is still the same pain: to be there in Auroville prevented to relate to my child, ostracised to the extent that she cannot even know me – and it overlaps on every possible relationship I might have, even on any casual contact. It has been very effective: Auragni was my door to life and to others, and this door has been shut upon me, and I still cannot accept it as coming from You. It is still wrong!

Last night among many other things I had an unusual experience: I was like very high up on a huge structure, standing on a narrow pathway open on one side to the void, turning around this massive structure, like an enormous Matrimandir; and came upon me a formidable pull toward the void, the un-doing, the death of this "me", the physical crash... It was pulling me like a final dizziness, overwhelming and inescapable, and there was no fear, nor any particular recoil, only a sort of lassitude; yet the necessity arose in me not to yield. And, not with the will, but with a kind of focussing of the energy, tense to breaking, I concentrated on a material detail on the structure wall: it was a window frame with a mosquito-net on it that prevented my hand from grabbing it, and it was feeling quite impossible to hold on, as the pull was getting so absolute; but I said Your Name, imperiously, stubbornly. And, in a moment, the pull dissipated, the giddiness calmed away, and it was over.

Last night after dinner John H came over. It was good that he did so. I knew that since Su had come here and become close to me there had been a change in his movements toward me, that he had reservations about his own sister getting "involved" with me, lest she should find herself in too deep waters... I asked him, and he admitted it, and he said that he'd also seen now that it was rather out of place, and not helpful...!

After lunch John H came to tell me that he and a few others had put up a few cardboard mock-ups of the columns in the Chamber of Matrimandir, along with a model to-scale of the globe resting on the four Sri Aurobindo's symbols, and that I should go and see... So I went, a while later; it is good; but I keep feeling that they have made the symbols too small and too crowded and the columns a little too fat! But it is perhaps just "opinion"!

But there is only one way: to go deeper into the true consciousness of the body, its awareness of the Lord...

I must make a move now, to see how to proceed with the work and how to get the funds. For many months now I have been naturally thinking of this place as connected to evolution, to research; a special place to receive certain guests or to shelter for a few days individuals in Auroville who need to take a break and to re-charge; and I have long thought of Sharan as a possible keeper and caretaker; I am also thinking of Bhaga who, together with her, is running the "Laboratory of Evolution" at Bharat Nivas. So probably I'll have to make it known to them soon and find out if it corresponds to their needs and may fit their plans...

Bhaga and Sharan came to visit "Ravena" after the work this evening; I do not know accurately how they feel; they were obviously moved by its beauty; but whether or not this first contact may mark the beginning of a living way for "Ravena", I cannot say. ... Some story is going round in the village: over the weekend a man was murdered by two men from Edayachavadi; N hasn't come to work since last Saturday, and the Ghurkha told me that last night some 10 or 15 policemen in a van had come looking for him at "Ravena"; he hasn't come to see me here either...

I spent even more time than usual in "Ravena" today, cleaning and re-organising the store-room, now that Nar, who was so perfectly tamasic, is out of the way...

2-9-1987, Auroville:

A very strange day for me: P told me this morning when I reached "Ravena" that N had been arrested yesterday, charged with the murder of that man from Pattai.

Later, as I had to go down to Pondy anyway for purchases, I decided to look for him; that was optimistic! I went to three different stations, and to the Central Prison, and met only with dumb non-cooperation and general inertia... Finally I was told that he might have been taken to Court, along with the other accused, who had admitted to having murdered the victim; but I was advised by the local police to have no contact with N, that he was the worse drunkard of the entire area and a very bad man... Yet they relented a little, seeing my determination, and gave me the name of the Inspector in charge of the case, with a wink of suggestion that I might have to bribe my way, and adding that I should hire a lawyer and make a petition for bail... I didn't know what to do next!

Later I met with Subramanian, whom I know to be genuinely friendly towards N, and talked with him, and he will look into it tonight, and enquire about bail and a lawyer if need be, and act as a go-between so that it may cost less than if I show myself...

3-9-1987, Auroville:

I have no illusions as to the purity of my rapport to N by now; yet there is more to it than just that mixture; I have often felt that an extension of myself, or a limb, was there in him; I have felt the pain.

... This morning I finally found my way to the Court and I was there ahead of N, who arrived an hour later, manacled to the second convict, between several constables: a hard moment, with that sensation of the irreversible; that he had stepped on the wrong side of his own drama and the mechanics were rolling; his first look at me, when he saw me standing at the balcony as he climbed the stairs... I couldn't describe...!

I soon made friends with the constables; I didn't try but, being quiet, they became receptive, and they of their own accord arranged to seat N near to where I sat, so we could talk. He cried. The charges are serious, and the Inspector to whom I talked later said that three eye-witnesses had come forward; yet I know, as some others know, that this "evidence" has been trumped-up... To bail him out would cost a lot of money...

Later in the day I went to visit this Devaraj, an Aurovilian originally from Edayachavadi I think, and a relative of N's wife, who I'd been told had been helping discreetly so that N wouldn't be beaten up in the station or in the jail; I had in mind to try and get the village elders to put some weight on those who have maliciously accused N and perhaps to withdraw their "witnesses"; I learnt that the victim hadn't died on the spot; that it was an old man who had got somehow involved in a brawl at the arrack shop and when he'd fallen down, his people at once had taken him to his home village and that's where he died; and that his relatives would be open to direct financial compensation...

But this is all so thick; and N himself I can trust no longer...

I am open to help with money perhaps, but only if it is part of a sharing with his people and relatives...

4-9-1987, Auroville:

There is an odd, deep sorrow, as if part of my being was there, unevolved, unable to contact the Real in any way, incapable of growing out of the dark prison; this pain is deep in the breast; and there is the kaleidoscope of feelings and questions – guilt, regret, for having let him go, let him down, and thus perhaps thrown him back into the obscure turmoil of that dumb, darkly crowded world...

It is as if part of my body is missing; a joy has gone away...

... P.V stopped me on the way; he'd heard for N and had found out more detailed information as to what had actually happened; he wasn't optimistic, and thought the best we could do was to plead for involuntary homicide; he gave me the address of a lawyer he knows...

Can this irreversible evolve into an act of Grace?

This part of the human consciousness must, must grow! O Lord, there is Your Presence in it too; give it awareness...!

5-9-1987, Auroville:

I rode over to N's house to see what clothes and things I should take for him, but the scene there was the very picture of neglect and squalor; his wife is a poor hollow creature; she and the kids were covered with soot and dirt, she knew nothing of his belongings, only that her brother had taken them...

... I went into the Prison and could talk with N for about 10 minutes; he had washed his clothes and looked more together, but was all intent on getting out of there, as if he hadn't at all realised how bad it is... I got a permit to come twice during the week besides the visiting day which is Saturday... Coming out I was feeling that perhaps I should pull out of this completely, as there are just too many lies and too much trickery which I can never hope to control; at last Devaraj showed up and we sat in a café for almost two hours...

6-9-1987, Auroville:

Devaraj came, along with Mani, N's brother-in-law, a gentle fellow; they had contacted one Ar, who has some influence over the man M, one of the Alankuppam village chiefs, who had given N's name to the Police and produced two of the witnesses against him; and this Ar had promised that he could make M pull out, so that the Case would be somewhat invalidated... As a first step they needed to find out whether they could put some of their own land as surety instead of money, so that N could be bailed out...

7-9-1987, Auroville:

There was a big storm last night, with gigantic lightnings and formidable thunder stroking, lashing and cracking and tearing right above the house; hardly any wind, and the rain drove deep into the ground...

... N cried a lot when I visited him today, and he asked about his kids; I promised to bring them along the next time...

... All the roads in Auroville are damaged, and many bunds in "Ravena" had to be repaired; Yaap sent his own men to help...

8-9-1987, Auroville:

The more I learn about this story, the more overwhelming is the sense of the falsity that dominates and pervades this world of village politics, customs, and balance of power; it is as if truth couldn't exist there at all, couldn't be found anywhere... It now appears that N was framed after some village chief convened a meeting and collected enough money to build a case against him; the actual event of the beating of the victim had involved nearly a dozen people and had taken place right next to where N had been sitting, at the arrack shop; at first the family of the victim had been willing to accept compensation, but that same man, M, had intervened and given the names of N and Logan to the Police; everyone then had become accomplice to these manoeuvres, and the sub-Inspector himself must have been part of it, so that there is no way for me to straighten it out... As for superior echelons, it falls into the larger political play in Pondy, between the supporters and representatives of the Indira Congress Party and their opposition, as both the sides are competing to draw votes from our villages; and besides I would only be trying to fight an entire way of life from which nearly everyone draws contentedly some benefit or security...

There is no room in this world...! Unless one wields the power of money, there is no way one may even try to exist away from these practices...

I do not understand what the Lord expects from us, whether here in the local web of circumstances, or in the world at large...

Auroville as it is lived at present makes no sense; India as it is lived now makes no sense; the Western world as it is lived now makes no sense...

Is one bound to merely wait, till it all rots?

But isn't all substance one? How is one to preserve one's creative awareness of the Real, of That which cannot rot, but progresses, transforms itself, grows and becomes?

It is really money that governs this world; it is its power that reigns over the physical consciousness...

Dutifully, at dawn, I attended the last part of Nar's marriage ceremony, in a neon-lit, ugly apple-green hall packed with cackling ladies, rackety kids and men counting coins and notes: the utter vulgarity, senselessness and absence of dignity those affairs have become nowadays...

12-9-1987, Auroville:

Ar. reported to me on the current discussions at Matrimandir; it seems that G.M is now an active part of a group of Roger A's supporters, trying to finalise the design for the outer cover of the sphere, with plastic discs and other polyester stuff and all...: sad!

... No one has come back to me, not even to inform me; but I suspect that my open concern for N, when no one there was at first willing to help him out, has woken up their pride and that they are now determined to settle it on their own, which is quite alright with me... I have no intention of pulling N any way; he will have to choose what he wants in his life...

... I found a letter from J.Y's wife, most bitter and unhappy, informing me that she had now asked him to leave her house on August 15...! She writes that she doesn't even know his new address!

16-9-1987, Auroville:

I have received one more – and last – negative answer from Janaka's father: he will not contribute for "Ravena"; he is not interested in it.

And there's been no word from Sharan and Bhaga either; only strange, uneasy impressions...

I have thought of asking yet one more thing from Janaka's father: some Bank statements have come that show that there are still some $ 3,000/- in Janaka's personal US Account; so I did write to the father asking him to instruct the Bank to send that amount here, so I can finish the work...

... I have started to read F.J's latest book – on Psychiatry; it is good; I have endless respect for his way: it is unique, and a self-giving of great and finest quality... If I had more family-sense, I'd very proud that he is my father! As it is, I take it as a Gift of the Grace, a truly natural flow and movement of It...

17-9-1987, Auroville:

I could spend a moment with N at the Court today, where he had to be signed in for the next two weeks; it seems that the lawyer, who has been hired both by N's brother-in-law and the family of the other accused, will put in an application for bail tomorrow... And this afternoon, I brought him biddies and fruit at the Prison; now the Superintendent invites me to sit at his desk, and they bring N over to me and they all smile, and this is the sweet, unique face of India...

18-9-1987, Auroville:

Ar. hasn't been coming so much lately, she was busier with Ritam. She came after dinner last night; this is a much happier rhythm this way, it makes for a more joyful meeting, like sharing with my sister the odd, funny, interesting things we each have come upon... At Matrimandir it seems that G.M has made himself the main pawn of Roger A, along with his new friends, Louis C, El, etc, and they are working on this acrylic/polyester/Plexiglas trip, garish and loud and utterly artificial... What will happen? It is sad: G.M hasn't come once to see me since his return to Auroville, two months ago, and that says something too...!

20-9-1987, Auroville:

Early this morning I brought my gift to Ar.'s house, for her birthday, while she was out; it is a coloured wax drawing I have made and framed for her; I think it is peaceful and harmonious and musical, and hope she'll be happy with it...

... She came this evening to bring me a piece of cake; she was disturbed; Ritam hadn't been nice to her the whole day; and then she said that she had decided to leave "Sincerity" when Su would arrive... And at once the old fatigue bore down on me, the drama and the falsity, and the depression...

21-9-1987, Auroville:

That depression is still there. But there is also a sort of anger – at Ar., for choosing drama over progress and the overcoming of her limitations and exclusivism... This resurgence of the drama yesterday has at once instilled its poison and there is now a tension; when Su's return was a simple, rich and quiet event in itself, it has now become involved and weighed upon with the tricks, ropes and chains of unreality...

22-9-1987, Auroville:

There's been a heavy transport strike for several days, and tomorrow is to be a general bandh in Pondy. In Auroville too there's been some agitation; lots of meetings and tall declarations, and new factions forming and strange alliances...

And at Matrimandir the "Acrylic group" is going on with that ugly and vulgar model for the cover of the sphere, while the great man himself, Roger A, has written an awful letter of dismissal to Piero... It is the very attitude of religion: he, Roger A, is for ever the depository of the one and final truth of the matter...!

23-9-1987, Auroville:

There is a rather unpleasant atmosphere all around, with violence and bullying, and more strikes and road-blocks... And here in Auroville, there's effervescence that seems to lead nowhere at all: Ar. told me of the special meeting that took place under the Banyan Tree, for "those who want to live another way, to find Something Else"...: new combinations without a real inner change... I just know that there is a false tension abroad, and I do not wish to fall prey to it...

... This evening after work I cycled down to the beach; the sea itself was turbulent, with powerful currents driving the waves almost parallel to the shore; Franz was there and saved my clothes from being grabbed by three drunkards...

... Some village agitators went around Auroville today to intimidate and prevent stop the workers in all the units and settlements; but here and at "Ravena" they kept working without a word...

24-9-1987, Auroville:

Today I have been drafting an open letter to Roger A, regarding Matrimandir; I have noticed that every time that I think of it, since a few days, a great tension comes over me; while this group that is going ahead with the design has every intention of pushing it down on everybody, I have nothing else to propose, no masterly alternative design to present... But I feel certain that this particular design of theirs is not compatible with the very being of Matrimandir, and I find that Roger A is behaving like a pig, particularly towards Piero. It is quite ugly.

So perhaps I shall post this letter in a few days; it will not be very conducive to my own tranquillity but, as no one else is saying it out loud, I can at least do that! I am used to being unwelcome!

25-9-1987, Auroville:

This day has been crowded. It's as if, by putting my attention on the Matrimandir issue and merely considering to contribute some action, I had entered back the area, or opened myself to it all...

Late this morning, after "Ravena", I went to Matrimandir for the concreting of the slab at the centre of the Chamber floor; I felt good to be there, and it was simple; there were no mundanities, no social talk and no visitors; just the guys who had been preparing and fixing the shuttering, and for once in a long time I felt at home there. Then I met Surya who told me of his research with Piero for the exact dimensions of the Sri Aurobindo's symbols and their melting and casting, and of his other work with G.M's team on the polyester model for Roger A. He asked my views. He was not rigid about his own preferences and he was open to another approach...

... I met J.P this afternoon, always so eager for friendly contacts, who told me some very real and beautiful experiences he's had, and of his difficulty meeting the suggestion that he must go back to France to get his eyes fixed... And there and then G.M drove by and stopped, and asked to spend a moment with me...!

We came here, and spent about an hour talking, mostly about Matrimandir. I told him how I felt about his present action, and made my suggestions; he told me of the process he'd gone through and the reactions he had encountered... At least we were able to communicate and that made me happy.

... I received a telegram from Su announcing her arrival date, on October 8, and just then Ar. came, in a state: she had already read it at the Kitchen!

But somehow, as the Matrimandir issue was foremost on our minds, this got dissolved quickly; she showed me then a very tendentious text that had just appeared in the Auroville News including carefully edited quotes of Your Agenda and letters of Yours, and even of an old letter of Satprem to me (I don't at all know how they could get their hands on it), all to the effect that Roger A was the unquestioned authority...

This is the usual old, nauseous arguing that feeds on the trails left by the Avatar...

26-9-1987, Auroville:

I have taken notes to form a work-basis for the search of a solution to the issue at Matrimandir, so that everyone can see the options clearly and contribute one's experience, regardless of personal considerations.

... Ar. told me after lunch that, at the morning meeting at Matrimandir, G.M had been his usual self again and suggested quietly that everyone should contribute to the finding of the right answer, opening up to dialogue... And that it had made a difference in the atmosphere there.

She wanted to come down to Pondy with me; I cannot refuse her these days, as she is so scared of Su's return, although she really tries to overcome it, I think... Over dinner she went over all my notes and she became enthusiastic, insisting I should send it to the Monday meeting... My problem is that I fear the very mention of my name may jeopardise the quality of the process, as there are still those who will reject out of hand whatever I am associated with...

... I am reading this story by Leon Uris on Palestine/Israel, "The Haj", and I find it very interesting, and it fills many gaps in my knowledge...

... Just today, pay-day, I finished the amount that I had received from Switzerland for "Ravena"; now I am going on with the "gains" from the current exchange rates, off the monthly allowance C is able to send me for "Sincerity" and my own needs; how long I can go on, I do not exactly know, but surely a couple of weeks, "hoping against hope"...!

28-9-1987, Auroville:

I met Bhaga on the road. Probably she hasn't cared as much as I had expected; she said that she and Sharan do feel positive about the place and about my suggestions for its use, but that they cannot commit personally to its care, at least for the time being... I asked her that they at least make a note of it to the Auroville Council, so that a basic agreement may be reached on the future usage of "Ravena" and the requirements to complete it...

But I was told later that Mauna had interfered, saying it would be better to wait for Larry's return...

30-9-1987, Auroville:

Devaraj and Mani told me that the lawyer had filed a second petition for bail, and that N ought to be released on Monday.

... Ar. is again surrounding me, filling all the spaces, and it puts me bad-tempered; for which I then feel ashamed; but she never seems to realise how much she wraps herself around me... Yet she is also the one constant friend I have here and now, the only person with whom there is actual sharing...

Work-paper on the present issue of the design for the final cover of the sphere of Matrimandir – September, 1987.

"The Options.

Option I: Matrimandir with a full smooth double shell.

(Nature of the outer finish unknown. Design of the environment to be elaborated.)

A: Technical and practical advantages:

- a- Ideal insulation, with the possibility of air circulation between the two shells.
- b- Smoothness and cleanliness.
- c- Easy maintenance.
- d- Easy diffusion of the light inside the sphere.
- e- Ideal sound-proofing.

B: Technical and practical objections:

- a- The problem of how to get sufficient light without using electrical lighting even in the day-time.
- b- The problem of the sphere appearing as a dark mass in the night-time. (A study could be made on how and where to make sufficient openings through both the shells)

C: Advantages in terms of the essential function and purpose of Matrimandir:

- a- Silence.
- b- No distraction.
- c- Entering a distinctly specific atmosphere.
- d- Simplicity.
- e- Preserving the fullness and unity of the sphere.
- f- Allowing for a more natural environment, "the most beautiful garden in the world".
- g- The sense of timelessness.
- h- Unadulterated power of the sphere.

D: Objections:

- a- Not yet knowing what sort of final covering would be laid on a simple sphere, one could object to an absence of the quality of joyfulness.
- b- Not knowing yet what sort of structural movement would immediately surround the sphere as an alternative to the 12 petals and their strong symbolism, one could object to an absence of movement in response to the sphere.

Option II: Matrimandir with discs, plastic translucent elements filling the space-frame behind the discs, and 12 high solid petals surrounding the sphere, with a symbolic pattern of gardens around.

A: Technical and practical advantages:

- a- Heat insulation from the discs.
- b- Translucency.
- c- Illumined presence of Matrimandir at night.

B: Technical and practical objections:

- a- Difficult maintenance.
- b- Problems of cleanliness (dust accumulation, pigeons nesting in the space between the discs and the space-frame).
- c- Sound (outside sound, wind blowing).
- d- Uncertainty as to the durability and weather resistance of the materials used.
- e- Difficulty of watching efficiently the 12 chambers designed within the petals.

C: Advantages in terms of the essential function and purpose of Matrimandir:

- a- A debatable point, subject to inner understanding: it manifests symbolically the status of the supramental being, radiating while emerging from the earth-nature.

D: Objections:

- a- Non-simplicity.
- b- Distraction.
- c- Incompatibility with a natural environment.

- d- A quality of aggressiveness.
- e- Giving a definite character to Matrimandir, partial and exclusive (i.e. not allowing for individual discovery and experience of the truth and power of Matrimandir, of what the sphere stands for).

History.

. The actual space-frame was built for the purpose of supporting the double ferro cement shell, including fixtures for the discs.

. Before the work was started on the space-frame, 7 years ago, the question had arisen to replace it with a tubular structure, lighter and quicker to construct, which could support a translucent polyester shell bearing the discs.

. However, the choice was made to continue following the plans provided all along by the Structural Engineering Research Corporation, Madras. The anchoring rods had all along been fixed into the ribs sides for that purpose.

. A feeling generally shared at that time was that there was a material incompatibility between the body of concrete of Matrimandir and a light metallic structure.

. Recently, once the space-frame was nearly completed, its very structure of triangular openings all over the sphere seemed to provide a new opportunity to consider again the possibility of translucency, by filling these openings with some material that would let the light through.

. Simultaneously, the design of the discs and petals returned as a main option.

. Other alternatives, again using the opportunity of the triangular space-frame, are being studied, one of which presents a multi-faceted sphere.

Cost and duration of the remaining works.

Our reference in this matter is the necessity for Auroville to have Matrimandir built as soon as possible.

However, regarding any option in terms of designs and materials, it still largely depends on our capacity to organise and unite in the effort of completion. For instance, the building of the space-frame might possibly have been done in a much shorter time.

A: The design with polyester elements and discs may be materialised sooner than the planned ferro cement double shell. Yet as a design it implies the further construction of the 12 petals.

B: The temporal option of completing the Chamber first, as our priority (installation of the crystal globe, setting of the marble slabs on the walls, carpeting and finishing) regardless of the outer cover, implies technically that it will then be impossible to go on with the actual work of building the double shell."

Toward the completion of Matrimandir, our soul, guide and anchor into Her world.

“Seeking for the right action, the unity of all those who feel concerned is a necessary condition.

Unity around our soul – not around this or that model, this or that design, this or that person.

(... 'Not that some give way to others, but that on the contrary all should combine their efforts to achieve a more comprehensive and perfect result..' – Douce Mère.)

What do we want for Matrimandir, and what do we not want...?

These are suggestions for the formulation of some basics:

. We want the Sphere: whole, evident, simple; we want to enter it, to experience its material action, its power of change and initiation to the new consciousness; we want it to be a sacred place, in the sense of being exclusively the instrument of the Mother's Force...

Therefore we tend to see it, from the inside, as a smooth and closed sphere.

. We want Matrimandir to be surrounded by beauty, with the collaboration of Nature; we want it to be simply beautiful, at all hours, in all weathers, always new and always itself, in complete peace; we want it to reign silently at the centre of the Mother's Garden...

Therefore we tend to see it, from the outside, as a smooth and fully closed sphere, covered with noble materials, neither too bright nor too dark, materials that respond with all the states of light and harmonise naturally with the presence of the garden and the water.

Having stated these basics, we consider that:

. At present, there is no satisfactory model; the actual, living solution that corresponds to the actual, living Matrimandir, has not been found yet; and this is the challenge that Matrimandir is actually putting before us all.

. According to these same basics it is obvious, besides matters of tastes and opinions, and even besides technical pros and cons, why the model with discs is not satisfactory.

. There is truly a call for us to gather our energies, open our minds and prayerfully work to reach together the fullness and evidence of Matrimandir, our soul.”

(PS: This paper could be used thus: be circulated for everyone's perusal before the 15th of October; and at the meeting of the 15th, when we have to assess the situation and the nature of the challenge, those who identify with what is expressed above could simply refer to it openly as a reference point for the process. This paper is un- signed for the only reason that it is of no use unless it reflects and expresses well enough the perceptions of more than one individual.)

In a street in Pondy this evening I met Roger A a moment, and the contact was simple and direct – he was alone! When he is by himself, it is always so much better: social environments – and sycophantism – are so damaging to such people...

4-10-1987, Auroville:

I was doing some pruning work in the garden, and thinking to shift to the laundry soon, when J.P groped his way in ; he sat near me while I finished clearing that large bougainvillea; he is experiencing a lot on his own, and feels a strong need or urge to communicate, and it is deep and real...

5-10-1987, Auroville:

I have received a second letter from Claire, J.Y's wife: a very bitter, aggressive and ugly tirade; it serves me right, for having tried to reach her in response to her first letter...

... I went to the Court again; we met the lawyer, who said he'd file his second petition for bail tomorrow; I don't know what to expect anymore... I was tired after that... Later, in the street, I met once more this very gentle Italian man, P; he is a very sweet and quiet homosexual, with a lot of presence and dignity, about 48 years old; there is an affectionate sort of bond between us, and I felt this time that a closer relationship with him might be just what I need at present, but... I will not force it in any way...

I attended the meeting at Matrimandir this afternoon... O Lord, O Mother !
It scared me! If this is the unity You want, and these are the means You give to achieve it... then, perhaps they were right in calling me "asuric"...! I want none of it! But they're happy, and supportive of one another, all agog at Roger A's odd charisma... And I can't judge him; I like him too! But this was just a display of what human consciousness can do as a matter of positive distortion of a captured truth... There was nothing one could say; they were all set on being "as one" and no one attended who might have brought another perspective; so that, to dare suggest another approach would automatically be seen and felt as opposing the truth of unity, the growth of Auroville, and Your own Choice, all in one go! A little too much for any single individual!

What will it amount to?

I pray to Matrimandir's sovereignty! You have stated that it was directly under the influence of the Supreme, Mother: that is the only security!

7-10-1987, Auroville:

I do not understand the real position.

It has occurred to me that, with their present model for the cover of the sphere, they will not touch what has already been built, but only lay their ornaments over it; so that the very body of Matrimandir will remain, and all the possibilities of further, different manifestations will stay open. And so, if it comes to that, let them play with it: as long as the Chamber is safe, and essentially as long as You want to use it and work with it or through it, it is alright...

I cannot concur with the attitudes and views expressed, nor can I adhere to the false unity that is being publicised; neither do I believe in gadgets for a serious work. But to counter it all might actually amount to delaying, obstructing and damaging further a process which is already tedious enough...!

I felt angry today; the methods, means and practices are, I find, so ugly and so dishonest; and yet somehow it creates an opening to energy...

I feel alien to this world... It seems to me to be a very cheap unity that allows for such attitudes to dominate...

I went by taxi to meet Su at the Station in Madras. The GT train was half-an-hour late: she was on it. It was simple and happy.

... As we approached home, Su became anxious; she said she was having a mixed feeling, with some sadness and the sense of irreversible, or "inextricable"; she had worked so hard to make it happen, for this return to come true, all the time she had been away, and now it was over; she had left her past, and she didn't know... Part of this, I felt, had to do with the degree of uncertainty in our relationship, but we hadn't talked about it at all, just held hands... I myself do not know; because of Ar.'s psychological position, there is the likelihood of some tension, although none of us wants it... With Su I find a natural intimacy and ease, which includes the possibility of renewed sexual intercourse, but is not pulling at it...

10-10-1987, Auroville:

Jaïmurthy told me today that the people in the village were now angry at me as they believe that I have committed a large amount of money to have N released, as they wanted him to remain in jail, and they had even sent delegations earlier to the Governor to make a strong case against him... This came out as I had asked him why he'd been having negative thoughts towards me...!

11-10-1987, Auroville:

Su came briefly this morning... She is very tense these days whenever she is near me. I know that we must talk and I must tell her as accurately as I can how it is for me, and how is my relationship with Ar., so that she can look at it in herself and make her own choices...

... Ar. came to invite me to come with her and a few others to Madras to watch a dance performance by Pina Bausch; it is surely interesting, although I am not attracted by her line of work, but I do not wish to make that journey again for some time...

13-10-1987, Auroville:

I have been seeking Your direction, as regards the present issue at Matrimandir...

But will this group be willing to listen, to search together with others for the real thing, can they be freed of this hypnosis, or will they try to bully everyone else into accepting their plan?

... Yaap came to see me at "Ravena"; he'd heard that Larry may be back within a couple of weeks, possibly with money to finish the work, and he thought that I should perhaps postpone the meeting with the Council, "to avoid troubles"... I had to remind him again that I had waited long enough, that Larry had sent me no message whatsoever; that there was now some opening in Auroville towards the place, and I had no reason to postpone it further, as in any case Larry and I had agreed on the future usage of the place... Yaap likes me now, I think, and he means no harm; but still he is Larry's friend and has been introduced to "Ravena" by him... I feel a little weary of all this; either I am trusted enough and I can complete the work, or I am not and I'd rather pull out right now...

14-10-1987, Auroville:

Ed came to see me at "Ravena" in the morning, and we talked frankly; we agreed that he would send a telegram to Larry informing him of the present direction and asking him to confirm that he would be bringing funds to finish the construction. And the meeting with the Council did take place – its 4 remaining members, Al.B, Suzy, Prem M and P.P – and Bhaga, Sharan and Yaap also attended; it went alright. ... I want to be open and responsive for the big meeting on Matrimandir tomorrow; I pray that Matrimandir will call for the true and right solution...

15-10-1987, Auroville:

Ed stopped me on my way to "Ravena" this morning, to deliver the bad news – why he hadn't told me earlier, I do not know: a few days ago Larry had phoned Afsaneh and told her he was returning soon with enough money to finish the house alone and use the house for Auralice and himself, and that he wanted me to stop and move out at once; apparently Afsaneh had joined him in the US earlier and returned ahead of him to Auroville, and she had known of his intentions all along... And this corresponds to the actual feeling I was getting from Larry all this time... What is this battle I must wage? It is obvious that Larry's position is dishonest, and contrary to the basic principles of Auroville; but then he is also supported by the wave of ordinariness that has overtaken a lot of the Auroville people – ordinary dealings, ordinary reasons and motives, ordinary orientations and considerations... My weakness in this is that I fear physical violence once I have met it; and Larry has wanted to hurt me once, and I remember that he has no control there, and no will to have any.

To me it is that I am working to complete an offering which is Your property and meant for Your use, and I aim at getting recognition of its usage in the most faithful way possible; I do not think that any individual in Auroville today is doing such a conscious yoga as to justify their own personal use of this place; therefore I want it to be dedicated and open to all who may benefit from its concentrated and special atmosphere. And at present it seems that Ed, Yaap, the members of the Council, and quite a few others, genuinely agree to this direction...

So I put on paper a few straightforward questions for Afsaneh to put to Larry when she talks to him on the phone, regarding his intentions and the future usage of the house; and I added one rider: in case he persisted in "taking over", would he be willing "to pay back at least part of the amount I have myself contributed"...! And I intend to communicate both my questions and his answers to the Council...

... At 3 pm I went to Bharat Nivas to attend the big meeting on Matrimandir; in the hall there were displayed all 3 models of Roger A's designs, and one model prepared by "Auroform" according to Paolo's instructions, of just a faceted sphere clad in white marble... It went on non-stop till 9.30 pm... About 150 people attended. What to say...?

In all these 6 ½ hours I felt the Force perhaps for one minute...

The atmosphere generated by all the statements and declarations was most of the time hermetic, but there were moments as if between waves when one felt that everything was still possible...

No firm "decision" has been taken although, by some weird brand of forced voting (hands raised) the majority favoured Roger A's design; a process of further in-depth study is now to take place, in which, of course (!) everyone is invited to participate...

I found a great mixture of genuine beliefs and old tricks – the blindness that causes religions to be what they are; and the demagogy and the mental and vital dishonesties...

I am certain that if it wouldn't be for their claims that Roger A's design is in fact Yours, since You are supposed to have blessed it, it wouldn't stand a chance: it is insane, absurdly complicated and garish, and so ostentatious, as if they didn't know You at all...!

... Su was deeply disturbed by it all; this was her first direct contact with the forces at play here, of the panoply of their tricks...

17-10-1987, Auroville:

The people near "Ravena", ED and Mauna, Yaap and Ulla, have conveyed to me this morning, though Yaap, their full backing for me to continue with the work; so I am going on, as far as I can stretch the money without relying on those funds Larry is supposed to bring.

... There was another, follow-up meeting at Bharat Nivas today, to organise the work-teams; I went only for a while; I couldn't stay on, I was so tired... It all looks very nice, though, and the symbolism of the design can be described in glorious terms: it is indeed attractive, but...

I fear that they are calling a catastrophe; a half-lie here, a twist there, a bit of stretching here and there, and a whole lot of pushing and vital strength, but to do what, and to cheat whom...?

I remember Your warning to the Matrimandir workers, years ago:

"I can work with you only if you do not say a lie and are at the service of Truth..."

... I do not want to serve division; but I cannot see either what good it does to try and participate with good-will to such a fake...!

18-10-1987, Auroville:

I have been depressed, the after-effect of that big wave, and wondering, now what? Is there something to be done, or should one just keep quiet and let it unfold, and see... I don't know...

20-10-1987, Auroville:

I keep wondering about relationships. Ar. is in such misery... and all of human life is mostly misery of one sort or another, for a tiny bit of delight...

... I want nothing from either Ar. or Su. The friendship with Ar. is precious – but if exclusivism is its price, I won't hold to it... Su is good, and I feel at ease with her as a woman; yet if she grows anxious over me, I can't sustain that either. I'd rather be alone...

If they could be friends together too, that would free a flow of progress...

Ar. came to find me at "Ravena" this afternoon; she was calmer, but afraid I might be hard on her because of her drama yesterday: she can really go far, much too far, it scares me; she'd talked to Namas too, who now thinks that I am ruining her, driving her to madness... and on and on: the rule of drama, the solidarity of drama...

21-10-1987, Auroville:

I have been in constant tension, due to the conflict of energies between these two women and me. I do not see the point of it, and yet I must acknowledge my responsibility in it: I invited it, to some extent... And yet it doesn't come to me that way, in my own experience: I just open to a given relationship, without measuring the consequences. I want nothing from either of them. They're both persons I appreciate and trust, in different ways, with respect. But I cannot fulfil a role. I can't give shelter, as a man is expected to give a woman. I can only find my own security in You, in That. Anything beyond mutual reciprocity becomes interference...

23-10-1987, Auroville:

Late this morning I went to Matrimandir. People were working at the top of the structure, lifting the crane up and away from the top ring, each one manning an adjustable fork... I climbed up there and I liked the atmosphere: the simplicity of what Matrimandir requires from us was there, in everyone present – and none of the new team was there! It is strange to see how much we delude ourselves still with "doing", when it is actually so much closer to the truth to be merely and simply instruments...

24-10-1987, Auroville:

I feel clearly how, physically, the wear and tear to which the body is subjected is directly related to the interactions between individuals, because any human contact that is more than accidental fixes the consciousness to an image, as of necessity; and the codes have to be consistent; therefore one is trapped, and one traps the other...

By myself, I rather feel the necessity of renewal, permanent renewal along different rhythms and tides; and that, as long as one is willing, there is no reason that it has to cease; as long as one is progressing and experiencing sufficient sense, one can go through this permanent renewal endlessly...

26-10-1987, Auroville:

This morning, carrying a tray of seedlings, I fell off my cycle, stupidly; I didn't drop the tray, though! I didn't hurt myself, only bumped my ankle; but I felt so foolish, because I could easily have avoided it, were it not for this uncertainty in my physical consciousness, that heavy, obscure lack of trust and joy...

29-10-1987, Auroville:

I saw Devaraj about the proceedings for N. It seems that, according to the Indian Law, once a petition for bail has been duly recorded, even if it is refused by the Judge, and 90 days elapse without the Case being heard, the prisoner must be let out anyway, until the Case comes up and judgement is passed. In this case, it seems that the Police Inspector has blocked the bail and would have had to be bribed by us. So it looks like N will be released anyway in a month or so...
... I am reading a very good book, the latest of Morris West, "Cassidy"...

30-10-1987, Auroville:

I have again thought of all these personal diaries that I have written over the years, along with other texts, that have just accumulated; I always hesitate, between destroying the whole of it, or keeping it... But perhaps I should take the time to sort it out and extract what may have some value as a kind of testimony to the process, and throw the rest...? If I had to leave, to "die" now, it wouldn't feel right to leave all that behind as it is: I want a neat offering, not a messy load for others to clean up...!

31-10-1987, Auroville:

My heart is "fibrillating"; I don't know what it exactly does or does not, but the "sensation" is of jumps and starts in the area just around and over it, twitches that sometimes reach further up in the main arteries; it goes on all the time, perhaps twenty such twitches in a few seconds, and it is for some reason very tiring; I know that the physical mind makes up for much of that fatigue, but the phenomenon is there nonetheless; and I know nothing about it.

It is easier when I concentrate into some activity, or when I have fallen asleep. The anxiety mainly comes from the knowledge of the fact of Ruud's demise: the fact that one of us can be made to just quit, suddenly, without any preparation, and in the most stupid circumstances... So now I think I really must clear up my own personal scene and be ready at anytime...

It is not that I want to quit; deep within there is the awareness that the nature of the progress taking place implies that I must stay in the body for a long time; but it is not an argument: it is quiet and deep and does not compete with the surface stress and questioning...

... Ar. tells me of the meetings at Matrimandir; it seems that the "Acrylic group" has reduced its steam a bit...

... We should soon know about the status of Auroville from November 8 onwards: an extension of the Government Takeover, a return to the SAS, or some compromise of a sort...

Two poems written in October, 1987:

12-10-1987 :

« Faut-il sombrer dans la Matière
 A la découverte
 De ses forces vraies,
 Se distendre
 De la conscience du chemin
 Si laborieusement formée,
 Mourir encore
 A l'Energie blanche
 Qui transcende et contient ?

Mais nos interprètes infirmes
 Trahissent à nos sens
 Cette Action silencieuse.

Nul ne sombre
 Qui ne croit à son ombre.

Ainsi lentement s'érode
 L'opacité de notre mémoire.

Cachés encore à notre violence,
 Circonscrits
 A l'abri de nos faillites,
 Les contours de la Forme exquise
 Emanent pourtant
 Leur appel en nos corps.

Demeure encore impossible,
 Submergée
 Mais protégée
 Par notre chaos,
 La permanence
 De notre état futur,
 Dont la Paix puissante
 Parfois un éclair
 Indicible
 Nous révèle la présence ;
 Comme au naufragé
 Qui abandonne enfin
 Son sort
 Il semble, entre la folie
 Et la tourmente,
 Distinguer
 Cet impossible reflet
 Immobile, indifférent à son cri
 Et pourtant si intime,
 De la Cité de lumière.

Et parfois
 Comme un double plein
 Qui n'a plus de contraires,
 Cette Paix centrale
 Sans Nom ni Lieu,
 Ce Pur Matériel
 Où Tout Est,
 Totale destruction
 De nos opposés,
 Ferment

De l'Un,
 Naissance de l'aventure,
 Ouvreur de l'Inconnu,
 S'incline
 A la porte – humble, opale et légère –
 De l'impossible sanctuaire.

Plein et libre
 De nos gloires comme de nos défaites,
 Etranger à tout
 Ce que nous sommes
 Et pourtant le Seul
 Habitant de nos âmes,

Attendu, imploré,
 Méprisé, adoré
 Par les âges brûlés
 De son absence,
 C'est pourtant
 Son imminence
 Qui démolit nos raisons
 Et supporte en nous

Ce Seul besoin »

"Somersault and bang
 Way into The light
 And light against light
 My contacts are gone
 'Cling to me, for thy sake' says
 A Voice
 Aum, am I confused,
 Who is Thee, and me,
 What of it
 Clear up, clear up, old world and down
 With verbs and nouns
 It I Thee

Is that it?

Love, hold a hand,
 Smile of Forms
 Cruising into
 Light, and light after light,
 Knowing,
 And loosing,
 To know more

Aum Thee
 Leaping
 Over, ever,
 Into being

But what of here,
 To exist in Confusion

One of ones of
 The One

Thou art
 It Thee Me
 Ever creating Worlds unknowing?

Let thee be"

Su met me at Ravena this afternoon, and after the work we cycled down to the beach; we swam, and sat quietly until dark; we ate noodles in the village and cycled back the long way... We were sitting silently by the cycle-shed when Ar. walked in, searching, waiting for me; but it was so quiet that she also became calm... Sometimes she frightens me; she seems to go right off balance, and I am helpless; but always we end up laughing about it: her trust, and a kind of selflessness in her nature...

4-11-1987, Auroville:

The news came that Auroville has been "granted" a one-year, last extension of the Central Government' Administration.

Next year, 1988, will be a leap year, and the twentieth anniversary of Auroville, with the last 8 years under the Government...

5-11-1987, Auroville:

I have been worrying for Ar.; possibly because I got caught by some guilt – like she makes me feel that I am cruel or unfair to her; that while she gives herself constantly, and asks so little, I keep rejecting and refusing her... But I do not like to see her, to know her miserable; it isn't right; and it isn't her...

9-11-1987, Auroville:

This afternoon B.B came to see me at "Ravena", on behalf of the "Acrylic group", to ask me for money to help them collect go out on a fund-raising tour of India... I told him I couldn't, and explained why... There was something rather comical in the meeting of our two realities...!

10-11-1987, Auroville:

I requested Yaap to send a telegram to Larry today, asking him to state what he is really up to; I cannot go on this way; the means at my disposal are insufficient and it is not harmonious, something isn't right; and perhaps I must first move out of the scene so that someone else with the proper means may come in and care for the place...?

11-11-1987, Auroville:

I have been listening to Your Agenda twice a day for quite some time now. But there are only a dozen tapes left, and I get scared: I need so much Your physical Presence, with Your strength and will for constant progress...
... I have received a sweet attempt at a letter from N! I want him to persevere in his studying so that he can eventually read English books, learn about himself...

12-11-1987, Auroville:

I had an unclear, uneasy, shifty contact with Afsaneh and Nadaka today; they said that Larry had written he'd be back any day now, and they commented vaguely on some funds for a "Students Exchange Program" which would have "Ravena" as a base in Auroville... Nothing I can rely on... This sort of unclarity makes me angry; I find that perhaps two thirds of Auroville is rubbish, pretentious, a sham, and I resent it all... But then I must examine my own intolerance and pretensions as well; and after a few hours of this sorting out, everything is quiet again...!

13-11-1987, Auroville:

Throughout the days aspects come upfront – aspects of offering, of necessary changes, seeds of disciplines, or progresses, and a seemingly endless range of responses and states; and, like a magnet at the centre of it all, or a deeper, or new gravity, is the call, the need and the awareness of That...
... I am no longer making an effort to write down all that goes on; it takes too much time for one thing; and then I am not convinced that it helps to define with the mental expression what is, by itself, fluid and in constant motion, with such differences of depth and quality...
... C has written that R's health is still very uncertain and unstable; between her words, it is plain that she is worried, tired and a little distressed, although she does try hard not to show it; I think I'll try to phone them at their home this Sunday...

15-11-1987, Auroville:

It was a struggle of nearly two hours to get the phone connection; finally it came through, I could hear C much of the time and she could hear me if I shouted: she said that R had been taken urgently to an intensive care-unit two nights ago and is being monitored constantly to find out whether the coronaries can hold or it needs to be operated on; that his spirits are good and he is trying to be calm.

The thought is there now that C might need me with her for a while – that I would have to go. But that very possibility runs havoc in me...

16-11-1987, Auroville:

It is Su's birthday. We spent a long time today on the beach, watching the ocean in silence. Early this morning I put the painting and the poems in her house. She was moved in a strange way; she cried. I don't exactly know why.

. N hasn't yet been released; I have had no news; Mani was to look for more land for surety with some of his relatives who own land in the State of Pondichéry, as the Judge had upped the amount for each from 6,000 /- to 20,000/-; this entire process is bizarre...

... Ed has offered to contribute a weekly amount to help me go on with the work...

18-11-1987, Auroville!

I am reading two books at the same time: one is by the Dalai Lama on the Chinese occupation of Tibet; and the other is by Donald Woods, on Steve Biko, the black African leader who was assassinated by the white South African Police...

The only thing that will ever redeem so much distress in this material world will be the actual, concrete incarnation of the Consciousness here...

... There's still resistance in those of my parts that reserve the rights to some more "experiencing"; but I also see that, the less I look at that and the smoother the transition is, even if, in the meantime, I find myself often in strange states and conditions...

19-11-1987, Auroville:

While shopping in town with Su, I met Logan's family. They had all the necessary documents now with them and told me that both N and Logan would be surely out this afternoon itself, and I should come and meet N when he is released.

... I have been taking a good look at this; I must have N tell me the exact truth, no matter what. Otherwise, this relationship will make no sense at all, and for his own sake he must face it...

... As a woman Su is more developed, has realised more and is therefore more capable of honesty, while Ar. remains quite lost in this area, all the more as she stubbornly believes that she must learn it all through this one relationship with me...

20-11-1987, Auroville:

N walked in, early this morning. He'd been finally released late evening yesterday and had spent the night at his mother's house with his children. He didn't stay long, as he had to go and sign in at the Police Station – he'll have to do this daily, I think...

21-11-1987, Auroville:

While doing the asanas this morning I listened to the tape of that very difficult episode about Satprem's book, the dealings of SABDA, and the Ashram publishers, etc, and it made me so tense: it expressed so acutely the forces at play in us, and the hardness that dogs us on, rising again to cover our sincerity; Satprem's tone of voice, Your almost pleading, attempting to bridge these different states, Your Love and Your Need...

22-11-1987, Auroville:

There are moments of pure gratitude, a gratitude that is aware beyond expression... The physical consciousness cannot sustain those states for long; one returns to the need for rhythm and discipline, to give it time to become more receptive, more stable and more offered...

24-11-1987, Auroville:

I am sad and tired of my nights... Things just happen, people just are there, I just find myself in such and such circumstances, with such or such activity, but I never seem to have that freedom of a conscious choice, of even saying "hey, wait a minute, I just want to be alone and concentrate for a while..."! Nothing! It's like being rolled on by the mechanics of existence, without the presence that alone may give it sense... and time irreducibly swallowing all...

25-11-1987, Auroville:

O.P's lady friend has just walked in. She'd written to me several times about her wanting to come to Auroville... She's already been staying in "Aspiration" a few days and got her fill of stories and judgements; a lot was told her about me even while still in Paris; she's now met Diane, and has seen my princess, and has heard all the nonsense. And she hasn't liked it and wants to move to the Camp here and work at Matrimandir... She seems to be open and cheerful, but probably not grounded enough... It was alright with her, but I was not prepared to hear again the same old things, unchanged, with no more prospect than before of ever finding a way to be with my child...

... I feel rushed, as if eaten by time, going from one action to another and to the next, from one chore to the next and the next, one part of the routine to the next and the next, and yet there's no escaping it: the physical life demands it...

I need to shift to where consciousness embraces it all, contains it all, and is able to gradually permeate it all, instead of acting as stop-gap and reminder of concentration and awareness...

26-11-1987, Auroville:

There is this wonderful light abroad.

I measure how much is left to be un-done before I can say in all sincerity: "I am Yours, all Yours..."

27-11-1987, Auroville:

I often feel like crying, the nights are so... such a negation of a conscious state, of a receptive condition – and they throw me back all bruised and sorry onto the days, without rest, denying me any access to the source, so that it becomes merely an addition, a wearying accumulation, instead of a rhythm and a growth... And physically too it is strange, filled with questions... - moments of wonder and beauty, and the rest is trudging and grinding on and groping...

28-11-1987, Auroville:

I just learnt of G's suicide, a couple of days ago: he hung himself, in a room in Pondy...

... I read C's letter; it sure gives me a problem: R, although he seems to be past the danger-point, is going to need very quiet circumstances, with the proximity of a care-unit, for several months, in case there'd be a relapse and the need for another dilatation of the coronary; and so C won't be able to come here as planned next January nor, for that matter, until R's condition is stabilised. She seems to have found some help in my letters, and has a good attitude. R, she says, was determined not to die; he wanted to stay with her, and he wanted to see me again. Now he and she, in her thoughtful way, are asking me to come over, in the near future, even for a short while. I understand they wouldn't ask this lightly. And perhaps it is right. But I have great apprehension at moving out and away from here, especially as I seem to have become more vulnerable to contacts...

In terms of "being with", I do not see the point really; I know from experience that real proximity has nothing to do with physical distance, and is even often clearer and purer precisely at a distance. But I can also see that for them it may not always be that way.

And so I am wondering... Because, to start the process - visa, papers, etc - I would need to feel the inner support; at first there was only silence... But I have to answer; and perhaps, by tentatively setting it sometimes in March...?

29-11-1987, Auroville:

I think that this physical disharmony is connected to a faulty functioning of the heart - I have pain sometimes just around it, and the blood circulation is all uneven; but then what is it that causes the unruly secretion on the scalp, the itching and pain in the facial skin, or these moments of sudden fatigue, these muscle cramps, this dull pain around the back of the head...?

There is throughout a sense of unease; not that anything is wrong: I can at the same time feel consciously grateful. It is hard to put in words; I don't know what is going on; I only know it is clearer when I am by myself; to be with someone else becomes difficult...

Anything that is true, anything that is real, at once makes me very happy; but it seldom happens in the outer world, except in Nature...

Mother, put Your sword of true Light right through "me", plant it there as my axis and centre... I want That to exist, to manifest...!

30-11-1987, Auroville:

I don't know whether to take it seriously or not; if it wouldn't be for Ruud's messy death, I wouldn't be anxious. If I have to go, I want to be told clearly and I want it to be neat and as harmonious as can possibly be... I do not want waste, I don't want drama, I don't want people cleaning up after me...

I am aware of a process of change, of "decantation", that is taking place, and of a growing sense of commitment and surrender, and I want to grow along with it, here itself... Yet there is this strange fatigue that overtakes me; the pulse is so erratic, the heart behaves so oddly, the whole metabolism is upset... I have noticed that some activities seem to shift the focus and ease the tension, while others seem to increase it, but it's hard to tell from one moment to the next...

1-12-1987, Auroville:

Su came with me to "Ravena" and then down to Pondy; I had to buy cement and then we both had to go to the "Foreigners Registration Office"; the man there told me I can see him directly for my "Return Visa" once my Residential Permit has been extended, in a month or so, which means that I can keep the whole thing quiet.

... Ar. gave me the news, from the general meeting; the new Central Government man who has been handed the Auroville file is due here tomorrow, as Kireet has been removed through some political pressures; and through the same pressures it seems that the SAS is trying to have the present Administrators, Nigam and Ojha, replaced by people in their favour...

2-12-1987, Auroville:

The new man has come, a Mr. Raghavan, who replaces Kireet, and everybody is at Bharat Nivas to meet with him; I am doing my night-watch at Matrimandir...

... I received another letter from C; R is back home with strict orders to rest; C seems to be holding up well, but I know it's got to be a big pile of worries for her, between her own work, the huge repairs of the house in Brittany after that devastating storm, and the impossibility for her to come here...

... I find myself still restless: I always have to be doing something, some work or another, or reading or cycling, writing, doing beads-work; I can't stay still, as I used to do for hours on end, and I am not sure why it is so...

3-12-1987, Auroville:

I decided to tell Ar. where are the instructions I have written in case something would happen to me... And I feel much lighter now! Now I do not mind one way or another...! It is all on Your way, whatever happens...!

4-12-1987, Auroville:

It has been raining all night, and this evening I took Su down to the beach and we sat under the rain a long time; it was cold and windy, but so vast and quiet...

... I am reading a historical novel on the extermination of the Cathars, "All things are lights" by Robert Shea...

5-12-1987, Auroville:

There's a big monsoon rain since two days. Auroville is flooded, cascades of orange water rush down into the canyons, the bunds break and the roads are fields of mud, and everything indoors is moist and mildewed...

6-12-1987, Auroville:

After dinner the rain stopped and Su and I went for a walk; she told me of a difficult dream she'd had the night before, of not finding her own people and safety, of having to go through more estrangement, away from her past and yet not arrived where she is meant to reach, and how it related to her need to be held sometimes, to know that comfort and security...

7-12-1987, Auroville:

I am reading on about the Cathars, a beautifully written work; it feels that this was definitely one of the epochs I had a life in, and quite a few of us as well...

8-12-1987, Auroville:

Ar. told me of the general meeting yesterday, about some delegation of Aurovilians meeting Rajeev Gandhi in support of Kireet , with a request not to let the SAS come back to Auroville – and who should go, and what should they say, etc...

9-12-1987, Auroville:

I was a little discouraged to day at "Ravena": there is too much work for the means I have in hand, I can't make it whole... It is depressing to be yoked to a work without the means to complete it harmoniously... Sometimes I want out...!

... I have finished listening to the tapes of the year 1973 of Your Agenda...

Mother, in gratitude for Your Being and Presence, can't at least a little something be achieved in my substance, to draw a smile from You? This is what I want! And yet there is so little progress...

10-12-1987, Auroville:

I understand clearly why and how suffering is still a necessity for evolution.

And yet I also fully appreciate that the true need for change – that is a lasting, trustworthy need – can only arise in freedom and fairly harmonious circumstances (as opposed to dramatic ones)... And that's where it hurts! Because when there is no particular difficulty and life just seems to go on with some eurhythmy, then one tends to accept a mid-term condition of being, and the need is somewhat dormant.

Yet I am certain that it is precisely in this condition and at that time that the need must rise and stay intense, as intense as it comes in times of difficulty; and then, when that happens, more than half the work will be done...!

11-12-1987, Auroville:

Most of last night was tough. The heart was acting funny and there was this strange phenomenon: whenever I would slide into sleep, the breathing would just stop, and a sort of subconscious reflex would jolt me back awake... It is sometimes for a period of days that I become conscious of every single breath I take, and when the moment of sleep comes, it's like I do not know how to do it anymore, how to hand over the control, to whom...

12-12-1987, Auroville:

I seem to be learning a bit about the body-mind and its conditionings; it's a little of a plunge into its nature, and into the meaning of change there. Vital courage, mental or moral equanimity, seem to have no value there. The only movement that makes sense and is necessary is what I guess You called "surrender": an awareness of the Presence and a confident, trusting, un-calculating given ness to It.

... Because of the peculiar behaviour of my heart there are moments of panic, which are very difficult to change without moving into another part of the being; what feeds the panic is the knowing of Ruud's demise – it can happen! And it is an open door to the most nagging doubt...

... There are moments when, in spite of the mixture I manifest at present, I am given to feel more accurately what is, what will be, the true position for me as an individual; as the sense grows of a non-existence – the ego's non-existence – grows also the sense of security, of being Yours entirely, as a realisation that is bound to come, whatever the circumstances on the way...

Coming out of a café in Pondy, I saw Kenneth standing, watching me from across the street! We were both happy! He has returned just a few days ago. Every time I go out to the village, it brings me back to the real India, and it feels like today's world is a nightmare dreamed by India's Soul; there is still, in the atmosphere, that vast and tangible silence directly aware, and in people's bodies there's still that beauty and nobility, of form, rhythm and presence... And yet this is today's world with all its falsity and pretence and misery, one cannot step back, the necessity leads one ahead, into another condition of being...

... I seem to be nearing the end of my contribution, at "Ravena"; I have now found another work for D and I'll continue for a while longer with only Jaïmurthy as a mason, to try and finish the plaster work in what was meant to be D.M's room, the last room...

... Show me; take me, Mother, Mother, Mother... You carry the secret of this world. Without You it is senseless; without You one can never hope to truly exist...

This afternoon, after some quiproquo which was partly my fault, Ar., Su and I each made a small movement forward, to push beyond the psychological barrier and dispel the tension, and the three of us ended up working quietly together at

"Ravena", and cycling back together... I must say that both their attitudes of respect and trusting commitment made me proud and happy and grateful... It is not that often that one is able to respond to such challenges with care and a progressive and open manner...

Lifting and carrying rocks this afternoon I had trouble with my left arm: the blood did not move fast enough; the scare of a stroke is there, and I have no means to verify whether this anxiety is founded; anxiety itself is wrong, in any case! I do not wish to go through the hands of medical science, because I do not want to have a label affixed on "my troubles"... My body wants You, Mother! And at such moments one realises so acutely and clearly how secure it all was in Your physical Presence, knowing that You would make sure the true Force was acting and embracing and working... Knowing that, whatever happened, with or without a body, one was held within the field of Your white Force... But now? You are hidden. That security, for the physical mind that is tricked by appearances and its material conditionings, isn't there, not quite there...

... Su came with me into the canyons looking for good stones and large chunks of petrified wood, and we lifted them out with ropes; it was good to do that together and she was happy, I think; but my body's reactions led me into another state of deep, quiet wonder, aware of the necessity of fighting doubt and anxiety... And then I needed to be alone...

26-12-1987, Auroville:

I have finished reading a book by L. Collins, "Fortitude", titled after the name of an under-cover operation that greatly helped the Allies' victory in June 1945; I was completely into it for the past two days. It brings into a very sharp light the perpetual human question of whether the end justifies the means... This, together with the reading of the latest issue of the "Auroville News", took me to that high point, which feels by comparison almost inhuman, beyond all the values that men have evolved and needed and clung to, and judged by, such as loyalty, courage, dedication to a cause, and all the processes or mechanisms that have brought about the numberless martyrs and victims...

In practice it always comes down to this question: when the milieu is oppressive and false, what is the truest, in the long run? Is it to let oneself be turned into a martyr for whatever cause – justice, freedom, or one's own beliefs? Does it really serve the Truth? Is this not also a sort of self-glorification in reverse, the ego's need for identity? Would it not be truer, although more difficult a surrender, to give up any outer expression of one's faith, while preserving the inner discernment and maintaining inwardly one's readiness to act and to serve when the time comes again...? To keep silent and go within, asserting nothing – not in order to save one's skin, but in order to remain here in the body to serve the Lord's Will and Presence, whatever may be the external circumstances, aware, open and ardent...?

Somehow I fail to see what lasting good any cause has ever done in this world, when it was brandished as an identity... While those few scattered beings who have known to remain and to continue consciously, despite everything, unknown have kept the balance of things, till the time enough men will realise that the Lord is to be found directly, and uniquely, by each individual person...

Before dawn I had tea with Su at her house. Then we walked over to the amphitheatre and sat watching the Fire: tall and full yellow flames sparkling and waving; all was quiet, although Su was restless within, at first.

When the fire slowed and the daylight gently spread I left alone and went to pick roses at the Camp garden, and brought them to Krishna at his house; it woke him up; he was happy, and so was I. We sat quietly for over an hour; when there is peace and trust, what is between us is what I truly want, and it belongs to You...

I can see that there might be a more positive attitude, from which I'd take it as a work to be with such or such person and to offer whatever takes place between us; but there's a terrible lack of interest: it is like seeing the old worn-out ropes behind the scene; to speak is to make noise, and to look at one another is to be caught in the very falsity of a matter that does not respond...

I met F on the road and we had a long talk about the problem he is facing in Auroville, now; it seems that some of what is called "the French group" (P.M among them) have accused him of dealing with drugs and informed the Administrators on him, who are now refusing to guarantee his visa, even though they admit to having no proof whatsoever... It reminded me of Diane and her own demands and her affective blackmailing, which had the power to rouse violence in me... I don't want this around me; already it is often through her obsessive attachment that I am brought back to my own sexual needs... Perhaps I must put a full stop to it, and close the door for some time...

We talked... Perhaps this is a promise of evolution, and she will now be able to move forward...

Observing my physical condition, I find that it has lately much improved, in terms of harmony, and evenness, or steadiness; I guess the credit goes to the asanas, and to a disciplined life and diet, and to cycling and exercise; at the same time I also find it is becoming more and more sensitive, almost precarious, and that it demands constant vigilance and adjustment, like a very delicate apparatus...

... Reading Your words to the children of the Ashram in the 50s, I come often upon Your diamond-like explanations of the reality in which we live – things I know, somehow and somewhere, but that are given such a clear and practical, such a profoundly useful form, that one feels "oh! why have I been so thick and slow not to see it that way! This way one can make real, conscious progress!"...

Last night, around 4 am, Su woke me up; she had so much pain in her back that she had nearly fainted; I took her with me and gave her a pain-killer and told her we'd go and see Datta first thing in the morning, and that she might have to stay in the Nursing-Home for a few days; clearly she didn't know how to cope with this, and as clearly this was some dormant trouble in her organism that had awakened here and needed attentive care, and perhaps this was the opportunity for her to align herself to her present choices... I am not telling her that, though!

Yaap told me some of what Larry is saying and of his present attitude... I know I must not add my own ego-reactions... The complicity people seem to share on the easy side of things already puts me in a position in which I am "not of them", but acting and moving on a basis, or for reasons, that they do not quite comprehend... Yet I'm sometimes tempted to put my foot down and spell out openly what it is that Larry has been doing all along... One thing I am determined to make clear to all is that, if I am to continue at "Ravena", I shall remain fully in-charge as I have been from the beginning...

... Late morning I drove to Pondy to visit with Su and see Datta about her at the same time; but the tests-results hadn't come yet; Datta seems to think there's nothing wrong with her and she might come home in a couple of days; but I feel there is a spot of infection, and that it must be localised and treated correctly... I stayed with her for an hour, in that wonderful room overlooking the ocean...

Su has been quite shaken in herself, and there's some intensive working going on, and she sometimes looks sad and disoriented, but she picks up confidently... She returned in a taxi today and spent the evening here with me; while she was still here, Ar. came to check on me and found us thus, Su sitting next to me very quietly and comfortably, and she freaked, and left; and later she brought a letter – more of the same. I think it is now imperative for her to take her distance and re-set her priorities...

25-1-1988, Auroville:

Larry came at "Ravena". We had a two-hour session. He came with good-will; obviously he had gone through some process of sorting out and adjustment in the past week, and his meeting Yaap, Ed and others here had eased his tensions sufficiently so he could at last come and meet me. He described honestly the anger he'd felt at me – as he saw my insistence in requesting Janaka's family to help complete "Ravena" as jeopardising their agreement to take care of Auralice's education in the US, antagonising them further towards anything that had to do with Auroville... But he seemed to accept my own understanding of the whole issue. He also told me in some detail of what he had experienced there, with jobs, with people, and how he got those funds for "Ravena", towards its usage for seminars and Students' Programmes... And so it appears that we may be able to finish the work and that he and I may work it out together as it goes...

It is a relief, but I also feel a little sad, opening the place up to rather mixed energies, so far below what it was meant to shelter... But what can I do? At least I am given the chance to complete it, and in a few months time I can pull out...

27-1-1988, Auroville:

Ar. seems to have decided to move out of "Sincerity", as she doesn't feel capable of taking the necessary distance to me without the help of a change of circumstances. But she is asking my support, so that we can keep "what is beautiful and true between us"... There is calm and the perspective of a new progress in her, so it is quite alright...

... I received 3 letters from C at once: she went through a period of confusion and inner conflict, but now it seems settled, and practically she has decided that she will only come in August, and R a little later, instead of rushing it to come this March; she says that, yes, it will be long, but she won't be sad and she doesn't want me to come anymore, as she now knows that, should the need arise, I'd be ready to...

So it is now clear that I am not going! And honestly, part of me is disappointed now, that was looking forward to this break and meet people and life and the world from another angle, just for a time... But You know what is best and if, in spite of my difficulties in Auroville, You see it is best for me to stay, I am quite happy!

... Sometimes I want to cry, because I am not yet one...!

Yet other things also came in; there was a great sudden sadness, a sorrow welling up when, from inside a shop in town, I watched an elephant beggar: the elephant stand before the shop and the owner goes out with money it takes it in its trunk and then blesses the man by touching the top of his head, all the while its two ancient eyes, non-human eyes, gazing... went and talked to Jaïmurthy, sort of trying to make friends, and asking if there were any "problems"; and of course Jaïmurthy took advantage of it and mentioned the advance he'd been asking me... Kasinathan told me about it this afternoon... It felt as if being stabbed in the back...

This is a nasty spot, and a small torture. There's this terrible need for a free, intimate relationship with a man; and I do not know what to do... Recent periods, during which I had somehow shifted above or beyond, into a truer condition of receptivity, now feel like pure grace, unattainable...

It got compounded by N's visit this morning; he declared that he wanted to work here from now on; but I find I cannot let him: it would be constant hell, because I can't alone get rid of this attraction and he, on his side, doesn't care for it; besides it would probably cause more problems than solve any here, as both R and Ran would certainly feel jealous of their territory...

... I finally received the envelope with money which C had given G.M's mother, Suzanne, for me, before she left France; it came in such a roundabout fashion: G.M gave it to Luigi in a meeting, and the latter sent his worker to hand it over to me here... G.M is so stuck in his new allegiances that he can't even contact me with a message – nothing. There was a little pain that surged. But then I had expected some such evasion: I have known all along that he could "sell" our friendship in order to get something else he wanted, if he had to. And so he did. But I also know that it does not affect the truth of it within... Only, he is not within, at the moment!

I only know that his model for Matrimandir, supposedly blessed by You and therefore, so they say, "The Truth", isn't the right thing; that they have twisted

I realise that it is perhaps an absolute law that the Lord is as present and tangible, or distant and immaterial, as one needs Him to be... Horizontally I feel no interest whatsoever in the processes taking place in Auroville at present... Yet I wish I would be used, have some function...

... I listened to You saying, in Your Agenda, that in order to be able to participate to the change and evolution of consciousness, one must first be able to accept totally and joyfully all what is at present... This is very difficult.

Locally, I do not much like this human Auroville; I find it mediocre, pretentious, un-adventurous, narrow and shallow; but precisely because I feel that way, and mostly that way, I am unable to participate and to contribute to its evolution...!

I haven't been in such a spot for a long time; I could howl...!

I am tormented by my own lacks; and I am tormented by what goes on obstinately around Matrimandir, with this formation of a cheap, attractive cover pushing its way, against every inner sense, with a made-up authority that pretends it is coming from You – like another Mother, who is not true...; tormented by the psychological situation I have been stuck in, within this smallish narrow society...; by the absence of friendship; by the recurrence of this obsessive need in my nature; by this terrible hollowness...

... Early this morning Su and I walked over to the Matrimandir office to watch a video there, of, I think, the Darshan You gave at Your Balcony in April 1973; we were joined there by all those who had sat in meditation under the Banyan tree...

This Darshan is terrible: You are clothed and covered by this formation of a very old woman, and there is as if a juxtaposition of extreme restlessness, complete impotence, and a terrible will; and all these people watching You from the street below, gaping at You, and then resuming their routines as soon as You turned away...

... Later J.P walked in, and it wasn't good; he was full of complicated reproaches and silly misunderstandings, and his attitude made me at once sad and angry; as if here is just a bunch of sick people, trying I don't know what, or to what end... Life goes on, and the coming week is all programmed to the dot, down to the anniversary of the Supramental Descent, this being a leap year... This is now an ordinary institution, still in the guise of something new...

There is a part in me, of the inner being, that has remained a little aware of a mode of existence compared to which the condition this world is in feels like an assemblage of tricks, a sort of machinery one must fit in, in order to belong, and to survive: in order to manifest, one must relate; in order to channel, one must accept to be pinned to a position; in order to belong one must comply with the gross arrangement of the energies and their circulation; in order to function with a semblance of autonomy, one must mate, pair up, associate; and in order to simply physically live on, one must participate in an entire chain of expense, waste and labour... All the way down it is as if made of tricks and devices, death being the ultimate crown...

It is not that I object to relating per se: I miss the delight, the free joy of it, when it occurs for delight's sake, out of a free rhythm of joyful discovery...

... While doing the asanas this evening I listened to Your Agenda of October 63; you had re-read the passage of "Savitri" that sets the advent of Death, and all its perverting and falsifying consequences for the earth, as part of the earth's material evolution; and You wondered whether, after all, those who just want to get out of it and exist elsewhere, in other modes, are not justified: their choice at least may be legitimate, as they do not try to merely escape into Nought...

But, as You Yourself have striven here and discovered here the Supreme, this question arises no more...

When I reached Ravena this afternoon, Iris and Constance were just ending their visit; I had looked forward to communicating with Iris, as she's probably the one woman to have been close to D.M; I had felt I could tell her a lot, share with her, show her the place in a deeper way, the inner basis for its conception... But I was caught at once by a strange tension, and found Iris being very peremptory and guarded, refusing any exchange and asking only for her own personal letters back... This entire scene surprised me, and the sorrow that welled up in me also took me by surprise: I was just going to cry there and then...! Perhaps this is just the way she behaves, or else she has been told against me, here or back in the US, I do not know... This was just one more thing that went wrong...

And there was something powerful in the general atmosphere; it almost took the form of some sort of craze but, beneath it, I felt the plain, simple need in all these people for Your Force to move and to act and to accept them individually, each of them, in Its folds of Light...

... I did the week' laundry, and prepared some of my recent paintings to hang them around the house, and later Su came up on the roof to take pictures of some of the asanas I am doing regularly; we want to find out whether it could be interesting to do a whole series of these, a studies of movement, with coloured geometrical patterns on my body...

... Ar. had seen Su and me walking together this morning, hand in hand as we often do – and generally appearing as a regular couple, I guess; it is not easy to be free from the public image and its circulation; yet I do not feel that I am living with Su in any such exclusive manner: to me our relationship just is, and is just what it is...

I am mainly concerned with keeping somewhat afloat; learning to unite with a steadier flow of energy... Constantly I have to struggle with what feels like sudden drops of pressure, like air-holes, or sucking under-currents; from one minute to the next it varies, and sometimes while doing something, especially when I have to talk or to listen to someone, there's this sudden sensation underneath, as if the ground has fallen in; it is only when the body itself is involved in the activity, such as painting or waxing or cycling, that a semblance of steadiness is there...

Something is blocking the sweet awareness of You... It has to be insincerity, but I do not know what it is; I cannot identify it...

... N came, very early; he hasn't found any work; I sent him looking for materials – rocks, stones, etc – which I intend to purchase for the garden here...

Later, as Su was hurrying to do my braid (we were both getting late for work), Ar. just happened to come by, and she freaked at the simple intimacy of the scene, the very thing she has wanted to have with me, and she cried and cried... I don't want her to be in such states, I don't want her to be sad; but appearances seem to state that I am sharing my life with Su, as a couple; yet in my experience it is not so:

they both are my friends, the only close friends I have at present, and each of these relationships is simply what it is, and expresses itself in different forms – and this ought to be alright...!

This ego keeps in the way, like a lump of false substance deflecting the light...
Can't You burn it away?

3-3-1988, Auroville:

I had to go to J the dentist this morning. When I reached there I saw that G.M was already in, before me; I had to wait a long time outside, and I tried to put my attention on something creative, to counter the apprehension, and prepare myself for the shock, as it felt there was hardly any chance that he would even acknowledge me; I felt that he had "taken position", and I felt the sick bed of formations underneath, that feed on us; and I didn't want to force him; this after all has been his own free choice... And so when he came out, he had already put on his dark glasses and he walked by me and soon drove off without a single glance...

Now, if in this life there has been someone I could say I "love", as human beings love, it has been him, and for many years... And today it seems to be all gone: I do not find it anymore, not in him, and not in me... As if it had been taken away, removed...

... Materially You protect me constantly and surround me with the beauty and the harmony I need; and this makes me feel so ashamed of being of so little use...

To remain in this world, I need to have a function of some sort. This is the only way for me to relate. And I do not find this function.

Late morning after the work I went and attended the meeting at Matrimandir, mostly in an effort not to be only negative regarding what is happening there at present, around Roger A's vital power and attractiveness; I needed to somehow put it in perspective, and to try and accept whatever is the process that is taking place... But it is all so wrong, so false, and so absurd; and it is painful to see how many here have come under it...

6-3-1988, Auroville:

I am beginning to worry a little; I don't like what's happening with me; it feels like an emptied, deserted shell, as if all inner stuff was gone; and I also sense the action of some influence that seeks to destroy faith and to draw a thick veil over the inner experience, and to portray You as a sham...

This last period of a month or so has been very disorienting...

I don't know why so many blows... It's like every time I again feel able to raise the head above water, another wave knocks me under...

Larry came to "Ravena" this morning with the lady who is the friend of Peter Callaway – who donated this last amount; Larry laid his trip again, not even introducing us, but just passing me by and acting like he is sole-in-charge, planning with her the future usage of the place and showing her around...

... In Your Agenda You tell about the true creative power that comes in keeping oneself actively aware of what must come, keeping alive the vision of what must be, instead of looking at what is not how it should be, at what must change or disappear... And I know I must try that...

8-3-1988, Auroville:

I was in town today and once more, in the Bank, I passed Purna; every time this happens I know this feeling of tenderness, with an element of passion, but quiet and basically friendly – and yet, after more than 15 years, she still refuses to smile. She has aged, her face is very lined, but she remains the same beautiful and proud being, your own grand-daughter – and the one who, it seems, laid that curse on me...

9-3-1988, Auroville:

Ar. had a report from the lady herself – who visited "Ravena" with Larry -, who said she hadn't found it was the right place actually for the kind of activities she and P.C were funding...

I am upset with myself for being unable to respond to this kind of situations in a simple, straightforward, healthy manner...

10-3-1988, Auroville:

As N keeps coming and wanting to stay in my life, I thought to try again to have a free intimacy; he was sweet and open about it, in his own way rather unconcerned but willing to give me what he thinks he has understood that I need... But without reciprocity, how can it be fulfilling?

... Ar. tells me that Roger A's team now wants to cut down the group of beautiful "Service" trees that F.G had planted in a half-circle around the amphitheatre, as they are not "part of the design"... It is sick!

12-3-1988, Auroville:

There is needed the courage and clarity to move past that so-called decision of last October 15; for the truth is that Roger A's design is neither sound nor worthy of Matrimandir, and that its inspiration is no more than vital, however magnified... At least one point has been made clear now, and it is that the use of plastic, polyester or other such related substance is not acceptable at Matrimandir... But a basic dishonesty remains...

I have received a long, surprising letter from the woman who now lives with my brother J.Y, Patricia; she tells me of a long and detailed dream-experience she's had on February 27, in which she met me, and it was the experience of finding me back after very long, like perhaps several lives, and being welcomed by me; and she goes on telling me of her attachment to me, and of her wish to come to Auroville alone – without J.Y – and to come to me, to be with me where I live... It isn't the letter of someone who is exalted, or un-balanced; its tone is quiet and there is some sort of honesty in it, and gentleness... So, what is it? I wish I had a letter from J.Y too; she implies that he has grown very much attached to her, and has changed his whole life since they met... What is all this about?

17-3-1988, Auroville:

I just passed my princess on the way back from work; she was riding behind Diane on their Moped – I only had a glimpse of her thick, wonderful, copper-coloured hair and her adorable little face with those piercing blue eyes... Diane's face was a grim mask...

Will there never be any opening?

Is my life, and all I am and can become, wholly in Your hands, Mother?

... As it is up to me to make my own discipline and set tasks to myself for the sake of being at least of some relative use in the general economy of things, it sometimes feels so pointless – I might as well do nothing at all, it wouldn't make any difference whatsoever, except I wouldn't be any happier... And so I continue with my chosen routine, waiting, waiting for what... I do not know... That the ego gives way and there flows the Presence... that Matrimandir is ready to be an active centre of Your Force and circumstances be guided by It...?

... Y came this evening, after long; his wife had their first baby, a girl, and has now gone to her family for a few weeks... Unlike N, Y comes to me with his own desire, and there's real tenderness that comes from the many years he worked with me here; and this evening, as he made to leave, we hugged, and kissed, and he wanted us to be naked as we used to, years ago, and I went along with it, as this was offered...

19-3-1988, Auroville:

I attended the general meeting at Matrimandir. The main topic – or pretext for it – was the issue of these two Cheques that came through the SAS and were accepted, as it seems Roger A put all his weight on it... It eventually became clearer that the way Auroville as a collectivity has been reaching decisions or making choices, in the past several years, is becoming unacceptable to more and more of us... And I was able to cite the instance of the use of "majority vote" in that meeting of October 15 as an example of it...

21-3-1988, Auroville:

N came early this morning, saying he'd lost the money I'd given him yesterday for his needs; that someone had stolen it from his clothes... But this was just once more that he'd lost money, or things given him, and it has reached a limit for me; I refused to give him more...

24-3-1988, Auroville:

After "Ravena" this morning I went to Matrimandir to spend a while with the small concreting of one of the entrances slabs; something went off in Narayana's head, about the way I was supposed to have looked at him when I came, and he aggressed me suddenly, shouting at me that I had a "bad gaze"; there was a kind of venom in it, that stunned me; but by the time I was already about to leave; I just walked away... I feel that this has been fed by my refusal to comply with the "decision" to follow Roger A's design and my silent position of not compromising with the dishonesty displayed... But this depressed me... I came home and lay down for longer than usual...

And all this seemed to be so ridiculous, all this discipline one puts to oneself, and being regular and steady, on top of things, "on schedule", all so absurd when, in fact, one is merely carried away on the treacherous wing of human time...

I attended the meeting at Matrimandir.

It has become concretely clear to me that we MUST have the courage and the honesty, each of us, to integrate ALL the viewpoints, on any given issue, and try and find their common spiritual or conscious resolution – and this can, no more be a mental solution, but rather it has to be a direction, a way...

The play of reaction and conflict has lasted far too long; for too long it has blocked the flow of the creative energies necessary for the change of condition, without which our lives here are pointless...

But how to communicate what I feel? It often seems to me that the best is to communicate silently...

27-3-1988, Auroville:

Sunday clean-up... and, after our Sanskrit study (Su and I have taken this up some time ago, with Toshi's help), I sat to write down a paper on our collective process, with the suggestion to introduce a new organic function, that of "gatherer" of viewpoints, offerer to the Guidance, for each particular issue or problem... But I am not sure that it is right for me to present it; perhaps this will evolve of itself?

28-3-1988, Auroville:

There's now the story of the planning of the "Ring Road", with G.G's office ordering surveys of the area and workers breaking the fence and planting sticks and markers and measuring right across the garden... Their proposed road now cuts right through the buildings here, regardless; but among themselves they fight over the actual length of the radius of the central circle... I let the survey continue this time, provided they wouldn't touch any tree, as G.G declared this was for the purpose of drawing a precise map, so they could adapt to what already exists...

And this evening P came to make sure of my position, as he'd been surprised and alarmed to find that I'd let it happen (the week before I had closed the fence back)... He came like a brother and I was glad of it, after these years of uneasy silence between us...

There was a long session in G.G's office at Bharat Nivas this morning, with us making our point clear, and poring over maps, and blowing at Ajit – his insect-like

I begin to comprehend that this is for me a time when I must simply learn to be, surrendering all my attempts at "progress" and my mental conceptions of what forms progress should take, and to accept a kind of abolition, of nullity... so that, eventually, another state may draw me in, or become – "I" being less of an obstacle...

For a couple of days I had felt the need to go down to Pondy by myself in the evening and sit before the ocean and then at the Samadhi; and this is what I did today... Whenever I do that, I realise what sort of change has taken place in the meantime... It is like approaching the same eternal instant from various angles, different point in time, and each successive approach is somewhat less encumbered, less burdened, less self-conscious, and quieter...

... Later I went to a restaurant and there a parrot came to me, climbed up my leg and sat on my lap, talking away...!

13-4-1988, Auroville:

I really want to understand this odd mechanism that makes me feel short-tempered every time Ar. enters my atmosphere; this occurs every single time, the minute she enters: a minute before I am in my normal state of quiet, and the minute after I find myself as if displaced, annoyed and grumpy, and it sometimes lasts as long as she stays with me, and it will stop as soon as she has left me; but then it leaves after-effects, as I am upset by my inability to respond to it properly and to change it... It is obviously not a contagion, because by nature Ar. herself is never in that condition. But it is this strange alchemy between vibrations, vibrations as chemical elements, and also perhaps internal modes of functioning, that does it... But how? I want to find that out...!

14-4-1988, Auroville:

I guess I have gone a little deeper in that part of the "forest" – as Satprem calls it – wherein happen all the body-sensations: of discomfort, harmony or disorder, or various aches and alarms, and constant adjustments and adaptations, in a sort of perpetually precarious balance... I have been "there" for years already, but now it is as if nothing much else happened, and it is also taking another dimension as a sort of struggle unfolds between the habit of ageing, and the spontaneous, conscious need in the body to keep growing and developing and learning about harmony and how it is to manifest...

... Last night, at the moment of sliding into sleep, very late, that breathing trouble recurred; I suddenly realised that my body was cold and covered with a sort of immobile shiver, almost like goose-bumps, and the normal breathing had ceased; instead, this other, internal breathing, almost still, was going on, that kind of breathing that occurs during cataleptic states... I don't know what this stands for...

Early this morning Krishna came in, offered perfume to Su and asked me to come over and see him... He is feeling lonely, rotten, and often panicky...; and that his life in Auroville has become meaningless; he worries about his kidneys; his passport is expiring and there's no Moroccan Embassy in India any more; he want to leave, to go away... But this, I know, can't be the answer to his needs...

And I see how I myself need an atmosphere around me that isn't influenced by people's emotions and reactions, however dear and close they may be...

He seemed to feel better after we'd talked, quietly...

... Later in the day I also went and visited with Kenneth, who had been waiting for it; he too is finding his solitude hard to bear...

23-4-1988, Auroville:

I went to attend the meeting at Matrimandir, but the group of Roger A's supporters, with G.M as their pivot, have done so well with their stupid and ambitious confusion that they have taken away the meaning of any communication about the work itself; everything is now at a stand-still, except for the work on the structure which they couldn't stop, where the same old team is proceeding as best they can...

24-4-1988, Auroville:

I'd like sometimes to, just for a while, be unrelated to the circumstances around me, be "irresponsible", sleep on, or walk or watch people and nature, read, do something or do nothing – instead of being tied up to the routine and discipline I have myself established... I am trying to find a solution for re-doing the surface of the first-floor open terrace at "Ravena", which has cracked in several places; and there seems to be no other solution but the best – which is costly! But Larry appears to see that too and to agree with me...

30-4-1988, Auroville:

I received a parcel from C; this parcel had been stopped at the Customs, along with many others I guess, and they have obviously got a little confused...: among Russian cups, which C indeed had sent me, I pulled out a number of flimsy lady undergarments, black frilly sheer lace, it was hilarious...

2-5-1988, Auroville:

Larry sent me a note saying he doesn't think we can spend such amounts to red-do the terrace, and we should try to patch it up... I think he is old, trusts no longer, and is no help! I know that "Ravena" must be done well, like a jewel – a simple but honest offering, having trusted to the end, and chosen quality and harmony even against all odds... So I am now looking for the means to do what has to be done...

... Life seems to be an exposed line, vulnerable to both sides, tending to reduce itself in order to protect itself, driven by the convention of time and the routine clamour of its sameness everywhere...

And the being seeks for a spherical existence, pulsating with the One Heart, free and yielding and transforming itself ceaselessly without fear of losing its One Anchor or its unicity...

3-5-1988, Auroville:

I cycled down to the beach after the work. The sea was rough and warm, and half the sky filled up with enormous black and deep grey clouds, while the rest of it remained white as hot iron, and the ocean itself became like a vision through some space-warp... I was glad... It started pouring as I cycled back, and for part of the way I had to push my cycle into the wind and the driving rain, the whole landscape rushed in torrents of rusty orange water... I had needed just that...

Soon after I'd returned, the rain stopped... I am dry now, the dinner is cooking...

... There is this growing need of an existence that wouldn't be driven in a linear way anymore, from the birth to the death of the body, but – I can't find another word – spherical, evolving in a spherical way (multiple, yet whole, expansion?)... I don't know how to say this... But it is becoming so contrary, so absurd, to go on, to let it go on... Yet this would mean turning into the work in the body-consciousness, and I don't know that I'm ready for that, Mother...!

4-5-1988, Auroville:

John H sat with me at night-watch for a long while, until Su joined me... He has been quietly taking part in this series of meetings on the formation of Auroville's internal organisation; what is now called the "Core Group" is to make the liaison between the general assembly of the Aurovilians and the "Executive Council", whose task would become mainly that of administering, coordinating and following up on decisions and policies arrived at; he says that he's been impressed with the quality of the attempt made by elements who were so far opposed or antagonistic to work together...

7-5-1988, Auroville:

I was told this morning why N hasn't come for two days (I knew instinctively that he'd got himself into further trouble): there was a bad, nasty village fight, and he got several wounds, and hurt or injured others as well... This of course made me sad; it's like in the last two days the old drama has raised its head again, and the response to it hasn't changed...

And when Ar. came, today, as is her habit, or need, or "right", it was all I could do not to ask her to leave me alone... And for the first time I asked You directly, Mother, to please undo this attachment she has for me... I know and appreciate and respect the quality of her self-giving, but her demands and the blindness of her own subtle possessiveness are getting unbearable; it is so that I think sometimes of going away myself so as to be free of her...

8-5-1988, Auroville:

9-5-1988, Auroville:

There's a heavy and mean wave of depression... N came, early this morning, his right arm slung in a huge bandage, plasters all over his body, with that look again, of having gone to the other side of the border, like he had when I'd first found him at the Court after his arrest last year... Right away I demanded that he tells me the truth; he cried; he then told me at least part of the story, that several guys had finally caught and held him and cut his right arm down to the nerves; he showed me the medical reports made by the surgeon in Jipmer who operated for four hours to save his arm...

... I looked at all this from all the angles I could "think" of... And I also had to see that this acute, extreme disharmony came at once, within the last few days, including the aggravated tension with Ar....

There is a lot all the time for which I have no words, nor the desire to even find them... And this is why sometimes this journal-writing feels rather senseless...

I have been wondering at an aspect of what has happened in the last several days; N's troubles can also be seen as a sort of personal set-back for me, and it occurred on the 6th of May, and last year C had fallen on that same day...: striking the ones that are close to me, striking me through them...? This is only one aspect, though, I know it well...

I was so tired during the night-watch, and while listening to John H on the present confusions at Matrimandir, I kept remembering what You have explained about the un-reality of these so-called physical sensations; and I still have a long way to go to disengage my consciousness from this language of sensations and symptoms...

12-5-1988, Auroville:

I always feel very interested and concerned, by what is happening in Israel and Palestine... As if the resolution of this conflict had the inherent capacity of bringing things to the right step for the earth, while the continuation of lies and escapisms becomes more and more dangerous, for the earth... There seems to be much substance there...

13-5-1988, Auroville:

Ar. wanted me to help her see more clearly, and to explain to her the nature of my relationship with Su; we talked; she quietened; enough to come and work with me... But I had already agreed that Su would meet me at the beach, after the work, and we would cycle back together, and didn't tell Ar. about it; and of course she found out later, and there was another scene this evening... I do not understand how she can be so utterly helpless in the grip of these vital delusions; I have known those pains and obsessions, God knows, but somehow there was always a space within, even when the suffering felt unbearable, where I knew...

... What is it? There are these two women who, each in her own way, are as given and trusting as can be asked of a woman... Yet I didn't ask that, not in that way... With Su, it is more natural for me to be man and woman, it has its place inwardly and she finds her space in my being; with Ar. it is more like a sister, or a dependent, or a satellite; it has its inner truth but, in mental terms, it gets deformed and ambiguous... And neither one is the woman I could adore and celebrate... Su is more lucid, honest and courageous about her own affective wants and needs and that's partly what makes it easier for me to spend time with her, to be natural with her...

But toward both of them I raise walls, so that it doesn't take over a physical daily space I need away from human interference...

14-5-1988, Auroville:

I attended the meeting at Matrimandir today. Things seem to have turned: as if Matrimandir had neutralised all that agitation, that false energy that had gathered around Roger A and his design; donations have dwindled and plans have not been made, and all have somehow agreed to concentrate on the one priority that is evident, that is, the completion of the Inner Room; they have also agreed, on the basis of the labour required for it, to cut down other activities and reduce the number of people working only part-time, and yet drawing their "maintenances" from Matrimandir, so that a more exact and proportionate relationship is established between the work to be done and the people contributing their labour. It felt like this was on the right track for the present...

Last night I'd had a good dream with G.M and today I was relieved to find that he seemed to have surrendered his own drives and preferences and committed to allow Matrimandir itself to show the way... In the dream he was in the process of letting go of his attachments and, as it was happening, I could feel the return of the closeness between us, of that deep-rooted tenderness...

... This morning I woke up very early with pain in my left eye – a burst vessel – and a moment later my body expelled a fat and hard 5" long worm; these creatures appear to dislike alcohol, as yesterday I had made for Su and me a gin-based cooling drink: I find it depressing that these things can feed on our organisms, suckers that our bodies do not seem to be equipped to fight; I have what is called a healthy diet, I never eat meat, I am clean and live in a clean place, I drink only filtered or boiled water... nothing doing!

I keep at a distance and abstain from giving any advice or extending any other help than just the minimum allowance N needs to go on with life...

22-5-1988, Auroville:

I knew it was high time for me to make some show of authority at "Ravena", however inadequate I usually feel in this kind of situation; I took the opportunity that J was on leave today, to "seriously" talk to the others, with Shano's help to translate... And as a result, everyone this afternoon was working with renewed conviction and energy... I guess I must take like as it is, and not expect from people more than what they are ready to give...

... I needed to have a break from the daily routine of the relationship with Ar., the daily obligation of it, and from the circle of her emotional involvement: I brought her some fruit and requested her to meet on Friday only. She cried. But I believe that, way down, she understood...

... It is so mysterious how I feel more at home with N's substance – except for those times when he has dropped into a sort of unconsciousness, or is just awakening from sleep, or has fallen "sick", when his mere presence becomes actively negative; I am also wary of a sort of duplicity in him; and yet I still trust him, and his attachment to me...

After the work today I went to Matrimandir to help with the preparations for the big concreting of the large RCC cap-slab in a couple of days. Su joined me there after dinner; there were only people I was glad to work with, Ramalingam and his team, John H and the workshop boys, and Gopal, and Narayana, and there was this family feeling I'd been missing... Yet it was too long since I had been exposed to that energy and it threw me a little off...

... I received a letter from J.Y's lady-friend, Patricia, announcing her arrival in a week' time and a letter from JF.D announcing his and his friend's arrivals in a month time...

2-6-1988, Auroville:

The concreting started at about 4 pm yesterday. I had not planned to be there all through, but the energy was reaching so strongly that it was easier to stay there than not; I only took a break between 10 pm and 1 am; struggling to rest, I had a very puzzling experience: I suddenly entered another space and found myself sort of visiting a vast building that had been made in Your atmosphere, by one of Your children, as a housing-complex, a multi-storeyed apartment building, completely harmonious and serene and clean and warmly cared for, with lots of wood and brass, and clear and simple lines and much individual space and common halls... and this stayed with me as a demonstration of the power of true consciousness, its natural radiating power, of exactness, of harmony, of wholeness...

I worked at Matrimandir again from 1.30 am till the end at 10 this morning, replacing John H at the mixer-machine; Su had also come back to help eventually, and we finished together...

... This evening when I came home from work, I found N waiting for me; I cut his nails; we lay together for a moment; I guess I had needed that release, with the tenderness that has now come between us, despite the confusion it brings...

4-6-1988, Auroville:

I went to visit with Kenneth late this morning. This friendship seems to grow, and develop virtues that make it belong to You, offered to You, and this is a happy thing; it is not an easy contentment, for it demands the best in either of us, but that is also its value...

5-6-1988, Auroville:

J.P came, after long, to see me here; I made him tea; he asked why I had been so cool with him; I told him. And so he can now choose whether he cares for that friendship or not...

... Y came with his wife, bringing me their baby-girl...

... How long will it take for me to become wholly gathered for You, Douce Mère...?

The more I go and the greater and purer and truer and more indispensable You become to me: an intimate, ultimate and absolute necessity...

How beautiful and real is the Divine You bear...

6-6-1988, Auroville:

Before leaving for Madras, I rested longer at noon and, in my sleep, I went to the Samadhi, and then to the alcove by Your stairs, where they had put You down on Your bed, and I was crying and crying and crying...

... I met Larry on my way, and he now agrees with the tiling of the terrace at "Ravena"... It is comforting to find the way opens when one is set on making an offering to You; despite everything else that goes on in Auroville, as long as this still happens, it is a good place...

... Su came home, shocked, around 2 pm, back from an awful morning at Matrimandir, with Narayana and Bhavani's vicious, delirious hysteria... ; they're not strong or poised enough to bear these waves of energy such as what came last week; they blow up and all their pent-up resentments rise and burst nastily like a virulent steam; Su cried...

7-6-1988, Auroville:

I returned with Patricia at 1 am. I was counting the miles!

Her plane landed on schedule. She stood on the tarmac, looking for me.

We talked a little, quietly, part of the way. Something of J.Y came with her.

It's possible - I do not know - that we have met before, in other times, but not in a man-woman relationship, I do not feel that at all... Perhaps she has merely found, through both J.Y and me, the echo of the Presence she was seeking, of the purpose she was missing... She came for a month, and on my request P and Jossie have made a room available for her in their house... In her I detected a sort of propensity for militantism, which I distrust, but also a quality of listening, of silent attention and attunement; and other aspects as well...

8-6-1988, Auroville:

Krishna came, with a bouquet of wild flowers, sweet and wanting to communicate...

13-6-1988, Auroville:

First thing this morning I got a note from Larry saying that the US donors would give no more funds to "Ravena", and that the teachers' seminar was postponed till next January, so would I please cancel the order for the tiles...

I understood why there had been that slight unease marring the joy of being able to do the right thing... But I still feel that it must be done; so I'll try to cut down on other expenses... Auralice is returning in a few days, and Larry is all focussed on that...

... There was a difficult moment with Krishna; he was resentful and reproached me for what he'd taken as my getting rid of him the other day – he'd come to me full of his own drama, wanting to leave, wanting me to find someone to look after his place, and mainly to indulge him a moment; but this I can't do anymore: I went all the way to the other end, the last time he'd called me in, a few years ago, and it cured me for good...

And I have begun to have glimpses of a state or condition that is entirely beyond that sense or drama and need for emotions as we experience them here; and at the risk of seeming inhuman, I understand that it opens onto a truer condition, more capable of sustaining, later on, the actual charge of Your Love... But we must first outgrow our so-called needs, and achieve an entire and detailed honesty...

14-6-1988, Auroville:

The work on Barbara's house is taking more and more time and attention; I have now less time for the study of Sanskrit...; time, the question of time... I tend to conclude that the only way out, or in, is to become capable of acting exclusively under Your impulse, at each moment, whatever the consequences and regardless of the appearances... Every attempt at organising time is bound to fail, or to remain so inadequate and arbitrary... But there must be such a "long" way to go in order to reach that capacity...!

16-6-1988, Auroville:

I took Patricia with me to Pondy for a few errands and to get fresh garlands for John H's birthday, and we made a halt at the beach on the way back; and there I passed my princess, her eyes against the dust of the road, her small adorable face raised up, just in front of Diane's hard mask... What is the sense of this, Mother? I still do not know...

... At "Ravena" this morning, Larry came with Auralice, and a few other kids; Auralice is all fat and hardened and acting up, and it was vulgar and like a betrayal...

17-6-1988, Auroville:

I think I can say that there are, in my aspiration, two needs that predominate, like a note of music, a unique call: one is to open time, and free it from its linear slavery – be it animal, in the form of growth followed by decline, or mental, in the multiple sense of projected activities, habits and structures... The other is to open myself drop by drop to the Conscious One, so that whatever I am progressively becomes whatever It wills to be...

23-6-1988, Auroville:

I was so exhausted for this past week; I couldn't cycle, or walk anymore; there was nothing painful, nothing acute, just this general, definite fatigue, with a little fever. I couldn't even stand up for more than a moment; I was immediately drained of energy...

... I thought this perhaps was caused by worms, but couldn't be sure...

Even now I can hardly stay out in the sun, I feel sucked out, depleted... I feel the trap of linear time, of all these values that have to do with one's use of one's life, of one's time, and all the logic of movements they imply, and all the choices that are directed by that determinism of linear time... It all feels wrong, like feeding a huge monster on and on, and never reaching for the truth of the Manifest Being...

... I want to learn to tune into another rhythm, a circular, inclusive, growing rhythm; I want it not with the mind, nor with the emotions; I want it here, in Matter, in the smallest events and circumstances and expressions...

24-6-1988, Auroville:

Whatever it is that "ails" me, it seems to stay on, not worsening, but not letting go either: general weakness, intolerance to the sun-rays, a low-keyed fever... nothing else...

27-6-1988, Auroville:

I have cautiously resumed my routine of work...

28-6-1988, Auroville:

At noon N came to me, and we lay together for a while; it was very sweet, but the usual impasse, that leaves me uneasy with myself... Basically, I suppose, it is because I ought to be free from all desire...!

... The more I go and the more I feel as if I am floating in the world, within the world - a great, mysterious, immensely loaded womb, charged with a complexity no individual consciousness can ever resolve -, myself being merely that tenuous yet enduring cord that is anchored and joined to the True, to the Lord, to the Real... Nothing, near or far, makes any more particular sense, in terms of destiny or task; only You, and the awareness, in "me", of You...

29-6-1988, Auroville:

Krishna came. He has been longing for a renewal of our bond; he is considering going back to Morocco next year, to try and get a new passport; should I accompany him, even part of the way?

... Soaz has written, asking me to come and receive her and the kids at the airport, in a week' time... Samuel will be a grown little boy now; shall we still be able to relate?

1-7-1988, Auroville:

The pressure of time again; there is a cramped ness and a rush, one has to do this, and then that, and on to this and on to that, and at night one finds oneself in this activity and then another one and the next, and there's never a break, or a gap, to simply be... It is so difficult to shift and establish oneself in a state that contains the activity, in the silence of the Presence... I don't know how to say that, but I am sure that, short of such a state, life here goes round and round and calls for its own end...

Sometimes it feels that such a condition is at hand – only it would take what is called a "warp", or a slip, a sort of accident, to get there, or that it gets here... And perhaps "here" and "there" are the same, only we are trapped and bound...

It's like this matter of relationships; how to be free, really free, so as to let flow the rhythms and pulses of each and every relationship, as and of itself, and not to make demands, not to have expectations, not to be turned to, not to be eager, but simply be, aware and free...

... I met briefly Al.GC, and asked him point-blank to give more money for Barbara and Akash's house; he looked "pained", but he must do it!

... Patricia came and sat with me a long time; she is perceptive and seems to be open; but there is an imbalance in her, an undeveloped ness that may cause her to get exalted about things or people; and for that she must, I think, work for some more time away from here, for her own sake...

3-7-1988, Auroville:

Last night I was a long time with Satprem, in a car. Sujata was next to him, and with me there was someone else, a friend, and I was facing Satprem all the time, sitting as in those old-fashioned big automobiles, with folding seats set opposite the back seat...

5-7-1988, Auroville:

N arrived this evening, after two days of absence, and threw himself at my feet, sobbing and whimpering, inarticulate, and wouldn't let go of me... Little by little, I piece it together; he got himself drunk, then he swallowed some DTT powder; his grand-mother died; his wife blamed him for not bringing enough money home, half his wages go directly to the children's school-fees, etc. He vomited, then; and I forced him to drink a full glass of milk, to counteract the poison; I bathed him, and made him rest... There's this unexplained bond between us, almost as if he was my child, or part of me, and yet subjected to influences and forces which I can, at best, only guess about... But this is the first time he comes to me like this, undone, completely relying...

6-7-1988, Auroville:

N slept through the night and went on sleeping through the morning; when I returned from work and the Sanskrit class (with the visit of the Governor of Pondichéry), he was waiting for me, and it was really sweet: for the first time I felt that he was there, himself, rather than wanting to merely accommodate me... I thought that perhaps he could try to move away from the village and perhaps stay here, in the store-room, for a while... But I don't know if he has it in him to pull out and try for a truer balance; I can't do it for him... He is also very attached to his kids, and may not want to live away from them...

I asked him, later, to stay this night too, while I went for night watch at Matrimandir, and fill the tanks... And this was demonstrative of what he generates in the atmosphere! He got a scare, seeing, he said, two men walking in the dark, and then throwing stones; and he came right over to fetch me, with this vibration of drama and insincerity all around him... This will never do...!

8-7-1988, Auroville:

As I have too much work here, I decided not to go to Madras, and let Ar. go alone, to meet Soaz and the children.

I received a letter from J.Y, oddly exalted, unreal; I'm becoming quite devoid of any "romanticism"... I find, more and more, that our expectations, our ideals, and even our aspirations, are perhaps as much in the way as our so-called resistances...

9-7-1988, Auroville:

Ar. has not returned; neither has she sent any message. I don't understand, but I don't feel worried; I have to take care of Ritam...

... Krishna came, first thing this morning, declaring that he was in need of the contact with me, beyond even his own will, and that I must not bar him...

10-7-1988, Auroville:

Ar. returned in the middle of the night, alone, and went back again at noon.

... Krishna came early, had breakfast with me; he needed to make sure that I won't let me down if he needs help, vitally and emotionally, and also physically, and he want me to be especially aware of him these days...

11-7-1988, Auroville:

Ar. stayed at Juanita's in Madras. I cooked for Ritam, it was good with him, and Patricia slept there to keep him company.

... I have so little physical or nervous endurance; as soon as it becomes a little crowded, and tensions go beyond the little I can quietly assimilate and work on, the nerves go awry...

12-7-1988, Auroville:

And I saw my Samuel this morning! He came right into my arms, and it all felt and was right between us.

He has grown up of course, his voice has become defined and very articulate, he talks fine and easy; he has taken perhaps too much after his sister's way, because she's been his only model for the past two years, but his own nature is overwhelming, sweetness and fine presence... They're here for only 6 weeks...

13-7-1988, Auroville:

Krishna came to have breakfast with me. It's like moving through an unknowable forest, or jungle. But it is Yours, it belongs to You, and if he comes to me out of need, I know that You are supporting it, automatically, necessarily...

You are so beautiful...!

16-7-1988, Auroville:

Su and I went with Patricia to Madras – she is leaving. We spent the day in the city; it was wet and drizzling, and both were in good spirits; we had lunch in a luxurious restaurant, with a piano player!

I know the Lord is leading me towards conscious purity.
It is better no one is made judge of the way: only He knows!

20-7-1988, Auroville:

I resist, ignorantly, clumsily, fumblingly, this coalition of energies, habits and usages that render it unavoidable and, eventually, necessary to, out of sheer wear, quit the scene...

I want to find, in this physical condition and world, the Presence that is Itself Its own renewal and takes every part, every element, in Its charge...

... When I returned from the night-watch, past midnight, I found Y asleep on the porch of the house; he'd been caught by the heavy rain on his way home; he came to sleep inside, and I yielded to the attraction of that comfortable embrace...

22-7-1988, Auroville:

Tom came to tell me that they would have no room (in "Revelation") for JF.D and his friend Michel; this made me a little sad, as they, Tom and the others there, haven't been quite straight with me, but also quite relieved: my relationships with French people mostly tend to go sour, ambiguous and unclear, and I like it best to be isolated from them all...! I'll have to see for some accommodation at "Discipline" tomorrow...

23-7-1988, Auroville:

These days there's such an accumulation of material details, of things that demand attention lest they go to pieces – from water-pipes to Barbara's house, to the new bench by C's house, the money-flow or the tyres for the wheel-barrow: nothing in itself, but a sum of symbols of the precariousness and artificiality of this present physical condition which knows not how to evolve but tends to rigidify, and therefore must then break or be undone...

... I cycled over to "Discipline" to see with Meike for JF.D and M's lodgings; it isn't very well looked after, but there's this gentle, mellow farm atmosphere, a quiet activity...

25-7-1988, Auroville:

I spent much of last night fighting with mice, and was defeated: six of them and now another hole in the new screen, all to waste... Su fixed the holes this morning and this afternoon squirrels went at them and made them only bigger! Lesson: I have to buy a stronger mesh-screen!

And these days I am saturated with the preoccupation with money; everything in this life, nearly every single movement, translates in cash-flow... Here money is always short, or too slow to come, dragging things on and making it all complicated and causing more waste which snow-balls into more needs and necessities, and it is endlessly frustrating... "Ravena" needs money, Barbara's house needs money, this place needs money, and Ar. needs money: one step outside and someone stops me with a bill...!

... No news of Samuel: since the other day, when he threw a tantrum at Soaz and me, he hasn't come back to me; I am no good for this age of vital practicing; I myself do not have vital energy to spare, and I am not tolerant enough. Yet there must be some way to relate that cancels the need for whimsicality, isn't there? Perhaps not; I do not know...

26-7-1988, Auroville:

JF.D and his friend Michel have arrived. Michel has actually come last year already, for a short visit, but I hadn't met him. There is a direct and simple contact with him...

27-7-1988, Auroville:

I returned late this evening, after a tedious, probably necessary but not apparently fruitful, meeting with Larry, Pala, Ed and Yaap, at "Ravena", on how to finance the remaining work, on the building of a new road, and on how to use the place apart from these planned seminars and programs already committed to... Larry's position, in Auroville's terms, isn't clear, and Pala tried to point it out to him, as I have several times done, but it doesn't reach him...! As for me, I do not know what to do: there are not enough funds to finish what I ought to be the one to finish; and even then, for me to vanish would mean leaving Larry to cope with a heavy material load on his own... But I somehow do not feel any more at ease to contribute out of the little that comes to me...

28-7-1988, Auroville:

I am half-drowned under the weight and definition of material manipulations, mentalised Matter, money-flow, things in disrepair, things to adjust, things to make, to fix, to coordinate - to try and harmonise... And there is the conflict between Larry's attitude and drive over "Ravena", and the spirit of offering that has been my living thread and support all along. I don't know whether I must continue, at this point; one psychological factor that motivates me to try and go on, or rather that prevents me from disengaging further, is the wish I have for C to see the place nearly done and whole, when she comes in September, and before it passes into other hands...

30-7-1988, Auroville:

Su is nervous and apprehensive at her sister's visit; and she has been needing some more emotional support, which I can "let" her find, but have no impulse to display: it is there, if she cares to look for it, which she often does... I too have sometimes such a need, to be held, to hug and caress and be hugged and caressed... What to do?

31-7-1988, Auroville:

I am seeing, and developing in my mind, a very beautiful and synthetic structure to build as the Pavilion of France in Auroville: this came in response to JF.D's dream and prayer that it must be built soon... It is a vast square, a cube rather, with in its inner volume a four-sided tiered atrium...

1-8-1988, Auroville:

Vivian, Su's and John H's sister, has safely arrived, and it is as if her entire emotional being is already known and experienced...

3-8-1988, Auroville:

I am suffocating: the whole process of "doing", the mechanics of energies, and the dependency on money and how it deforms, twists and bends every movement, every action and every situation... And here particularly, in this country now, the low degree of quality and reliability and the high quotient of deteriorating and disintegrating agents, factors, or tendencies: I feel swamped within a thick, heterogeneous, jarring mass of disparate elements; and I get confused, cerebrally confused, at not being able to do properly what, in the circumstances, is expected of me...

5-8-1988, Auroville:

The pressure of a deadline to finish the work at "Ravena" without enough money is throwing me in a dumb panic much of the time; I struggle with depression, as I catch myself perhaps wasting money, not giving enough attention and care, not succeeding in perfection; defects appear magnified and I tend to find myself incompetent; and I struggle through this false relationship to Matter, bound by intermediate energies and artefacts, loud and ugly, not ever reaching completeness, not ever neutralising the processes of deterioration...

... I cooked dinner for JF.D and Michel, and it was a quiet evening with them; I find that they have sort of complementary imbalances! But I enjoyed the moments spent in their company; I do not think, though, that they would make it here, at present...

6-8-1988, Auroville:

I went to help a while at Matrimandir, preparing for the next concreting on top of the structure, with John H and Su and Narayana and Somu and a few others, each of us grateful for this gorgeous, peaceful gift of Matrimandir, watching the sunset all over the land and the ocean in the distance... This morning too, I attended a meeting there, with Piero and Carel sharing their findings in their trip to Europe, regarding the technical problems, and possible solutions, of the next stage of the work...

Early today Krishna came, just after N had come and gone, with the sense of this special date of the 8-8-88, but I was confused and not receptive to it: it surely manifests a rhythm, and I may have felt it now and then through the day, but I can't say I am aware of it really...

There's been a soft rain, and every living thing is filled with sap and rested in the quiet, cool air... There was another scene with Ar. today, which resolved, as usual, in laughter; she is like a child-woman with me; she doesn't seem to ever grow up, in this area of life...

... I cooked dinner for JF.D and Michel, and we worked at translating JF.D's piece about the building of the Pavilion of France in Auroville, which he wants to post as an open letter; he has at least accepted to let go of some of his aggressiveness towards a variety of exclusivism he has encountered here in Auroville; I believe that he is onto something valid and meaningful, but his emotions, pent-up for so long, are constantly coming in the way...

I have been building houses for years now; and I haven't yet found the contact with a progressive matter. The determinisms that tend towards disintegration are always stronger, based as they are on inertia; and the condition of human society at present is centred on shallow values, and one has to struggle against it whenever and wherever one seeks to establish another base... And so it is within the body, it seems...

Su has now moved in with me. Faced with Ar.'s clock-like insistence on being with me daily by 2 pm, she cracked, from the sheer tension of it in the room, and she asked Ar., right in front of Vivian, not to come so early anymore, so she could rest. Ar. left at once. Because of the implications of such a statement, on such a tone and at such a moment, I got a little mad at her inside me and couldn't see how to accept any of this, couldn't see the validity of her staying with me at all, even though it is only for a few weeks... I waited till this evening, and we talked; I told her bluntly about it; but she had by then already looked at it herself, and she took my meaning in, and received it well, and it was alright again...

I was given a bull of a driver: he went so fast that I reached the airport in time for a quiet lunch, in a freezing room overlooking the first mountain range...

Early this morning, Krishna came to see me; he'd come several times already but hadn't found me; he's had heart-troubles lately – his heart stops now and then, and starts with a big thump; he'd tried to work on himself and find out what it is that stands in the way; he was worried that, living alone and isolated, no one would find him if something happened to him, and he wanted me to check on him every morning... Oddly – or perhaps naturally – the thought had come to me yesterday that we two should make a pact that, should one of us leave, the other would see to it that everything is done right...! We laughed about it...

I am unable to evolve out of this sense of constantly racing against time, day after day, night after night... Whichever way I try, to organise the activities, to concentrate, or to let go, it remains within the same circle: physical time is a prison, a snare, or else an illusion which is tied to all other illusions and ties the consciousness to the round of their mechanisms, ageing, disease, fear, insecurity and death, the inability to simply be, to perceive reality...

... Yesterday at the Raja Sabha the Bill was passed, despite a loud opposition to Rajeev Gandhi, for Auroville. I do not understand clearly at all what all this Bill means and implies, but it sets Auroville as a venture of national importance and makes it a Foundation, directly relatable to the Central Government of India; perhaps simply out of ignorance, I must say I feel nothing much one way or another, at this point...

Today I haven't seen Krishna; he'd started to bring flowers every day at dawn, so I'd know he's alright and I don't have to check on him; but the relationship had lately got so, externally, that it was beginning to slip – the old point when he begins to over-extend and brings too much noise and energy...

... When I drove through the village this evening, with C, on our way to visit with Jaïmurthy's family, I saw that N was getting himself nicely drunk... I haven't been able yet to break his allegiance to those energies that feed from continuous drama...

... The Foundation Bill is to be passed in the second Chamber today or tomorrow; it doesn't sound that good! It seems to mean direct management by a Government constituted body, an awful perspective...!

9-9-1988, Auroville:

We have got copies of the Bill that has been passed in the Parliament for the Auroville Foundation: some of the clauses are likely to be misused, and the old administrative machinery can very well crush us all; but the main point remains that the Central Government of India is now legally, openly and officially committing itself to serve the Charter of Auroville, and also to acquire thereby all lands, funds and assets, as well as all legal formations in the name of Auroville, whether from the SAS or from the Aurovilians....

I am still very reluctant to accept what happens – the validity of whatever progress one may make - when one is constantly with others; this is a far-reaching question to which I have yet to find a convincing answer. Certainly it is useful in the sense that one is obliged to draw resources from within or from above, and must present to the Light a greater diversity of aspects and evolutive angles... But I still tend to believe that the test of the Presence, of the incarnation, is clearer in isolation, free from constant interactions – rather than amidst others when the matter of time is much worse an obstacle, when there is no time to assimilate and to offer...

B is full of questions regarding this Act of Parliament and the creation of the Auroville Foundation, and the contradictions that arise from it. For instance, the "members" of Auroville will be all those persons who, on the first official day of the Auroville Foundation's existence, will be listed on the Master-Lists maintained by the Administrators, and that will include automatically many of the SAS people, as well as the "neutrals": a thorough levelling...!

Right after B told me all this, I developed what is called a "splitting headache", and I spent the rest of the day trying this movement and that, till it began to fade; behind it there is a sort of ill-temper before the majority of my contacts with people, and a resentment towards "Aurovilians" in general for creating this basically mediocre, dishonest, superficial reality...

I attended the general meeting at Bharat Nivas, devoted to the legislations that have come into effect with the Act of the Parliament. The Master List of all Auroville residents now comprises all the names that were entered on the Register maintained by the Administrator, including a number of SAS members and "neutrals" – the old "enemies"... This could be one more opportunity for all of us to re-affirm our commitment to the Charter of Auroville, and to activate the true engine of the adventure, through which the true Force, the true Consciousness can act...

But perhaps people here are too thick, or else they do not really want the Consciousness to act, preferring their own interests and what they consider as an "interesting" community life... I used to get depressed by this state of affairs; today I got more angry than depressed, and I tried to speak, twice... But it is always the same phenomenon: there is silence, like a shock; and then it shifts back to the ruts of routine, and the point made is diluted...

8-10-1988, Auroville:

In the night, around 1 am, a huge storm rose. Several times the lightnings stroke so close that the houses shook, and one struck just between the two houses; every time this happens, I wonder how it works, and how for instance the heart gets affected by the jolts of electricity in the air, no matter how safe and calm one may be – what is the relationship between the charge in molecules and the emotions...?

And today I got entangled in a couple of wrong movements; I clashed with Barbara this morning, who was whining and complaining, unable to let the house be completed at an harmonious pace; despite my repeated pleas and warnings she went on, and I quit... There was a mixture of anger and sadness, because I have wanted to make it as beautiful and offered as she would let me, but she kept spoiling the joy of it...

... Reading the papers, I have felt again the distress and suffering of the Kurds, who are being coldly decimated by means of chemical warfare... One tends to avoid looking into it, because... what can one do? But this is so wrong: this is such a beautiful people, perhaps one of the very last upon earth to retain some of that natural integrity... It is all so wrong and so false...

It is the old vicious circle; I have learnt, I have changed a little, quite a bit of it has dissolved along with ego, but an obstruction remains...

24-10-1988, Auroville:

Jaïmurthy just spent two full hours here with me. He is growing and learning...
The heaviness I often feel in my work at "Ravena" comes from the dissembling, and the petty dishonesty of the workmen here, who aren't able to appreciate the opportunity given them.
Sometimes this is very depressing: one cannot build Auroville without some sort of true and straight response in the people of the land... But the dominance of money – dark, eroding, divisive and contagious – is terrible...
... Barbara's house is nearly finished; at least my work there, along with that of the masons, is nearly over, and I'll have time again, each day, to study or paint or work in the garden. But Ar.'s demand to see me every single day weighs like a shadow, to which I have no answer; whichever way I try or turn, I do not find the movement to change it, to dissolve or undo what is wrong, unreal about it...
... I have again been experiencing the need to know, to concretely rely on the aspect of Puissance of the Lord – His masculine aspect, the Ishwara, or Purusha? –, like a base of Puissance, or a puissant Presence, that knows, and that loves...

25-10-1988, Auroville:

Today was probably my last taking care of Barbara's house; the work is now done. At "Ravena", Larry came this morning, to tell me that $ 1,000/- has finally reached, for the furnishing of the house; even though we have already spent part of this amount, by borrowing in advance, it will still see us through a few more weeks of work...

I attended the meeting at Matrimandir. And, for the first time in months, it was possible to calmly mention the fact that the design imposed by Roger A may not be the right one, and that because of that the work remains blocked; Andy spoke first and made a very clear statement, and I felt that this time I could follow through - I usually only sit and watch and listen, as I am not working there at present -; and others spoke, afterwards. The interpretations are still often biased, and there are still those who would rather continue with the conflict game, and thus it may take longer... But there was a clarity today which I hadn't felt for a long time.

I attended, the entire afternoon, a general meeting about the City Master-Plan, which Roger A is going to deliver tomorrow in Delhi, along, I suppose, with his expectations to be officially appointed as "The Architect"...

What to say? He is a pig. But he has capacities, and he is in this position whereby a wonderful advance could be made in Auroville, at all levels, simply because You had put him there; but he doesn't even see the opportunity, as he only functions with his ego. And the group that has formed around him adds dishonesty to deformation...

It seems to me we have as yet so little understanding; it is a poor circus show...!

7-11-1988, Auroville:

This is a very restful weather, soft and lush and cool; no blare, everything is subdued and quietly thriving, there's a little wind, a drizzle at times: Nature re sourcing... I had thought I would do the asanas, back from work this evening, but instead I found myself aligned in the garden, nowhere in particular, simply there, gazing, being, breathing, perceiving, as I've had no time to be for... a long time!

... If we weren't still bound by this sense of time determined by the duration of a human body, it seems to me there would be no frustration of any sort; whatever process one is into would simply go to its fruition, whatever the time it may take, and one would never feel the "waste" of it by having to compare it with all the other efforts or endeavours or progresses to be made... It is this engineering of time and death into the present body or material state that is truly THE obstacle – there seems to be none other...

8-11-1988, Auroville:

Mentally I want to work actively on freeing my physical consciousness from the sense of time – to try and open to a physical condition unbound by the pressure of time; and to let go of all the formations of what "I" ought to achieve, realise, serve or contribute: this condition must exist... But today I hit upon the other aspect of this pressure: relationships. For, without a sort of defined purpose or discipline in daily life, relationships tend to hover, flood in and spread and take over; and therefore it seems that, in order to become free of that falsifying sense of time, one must first find and establish the true, the new basis for all relationships, in oneself...

I am up against a question: a need to be taken over by what I seek.

I understand I must find a state of eternity, so that there may be an increase of consciousness in the substance. I do not find the right movement; I do not even sense its actuality...

Krishna stayed all evening here with me. We seem to be going at the same time through a similar crisis, reaching for some opening, sign or action, a way over or into the Real, and the undoing of death; often I see that Krishna and I are to each other what we both want most, and it is a Gift, a more-than-human thing. And yet, we each still have to go through the motions of striving and struggling, that circular or spiralling advance, that makes us seem to be unaware of what we already have...

13-11-1988, Auroville:

Gnanivel came this morning, to ask me money for his house. I refused, but was led to speak up and tell him what he and the other young guys who have recently joined Auroville are loosing, wasting, or burying, and how it is high time for them to wake up again; I guess I care for them; and I resent the show that the Auroville people are putting on, as exactly the wrong example to set before them... And then Udayan came to visit, with his little daughter...

... Today it is exactly 15 years that I returned here. And I seem to be still so far from the capacity to serve You, to be truly and wholly Yours – whatever that means, in truth.

But these days the Pressure is felt all the time, and the silent ecstasy and gratitude in response...

14-11-1988, Auroville:

The difficulty with Ar., adjusting to her presence, remains as mysterious. I have gone down the whole list of reasons, by now; so that, not only do I feel the problem, but I also feel guilty of having it, as if I was striking at her offering hand. There seems to be a phenomenon akin to magnetism: she cannot conceive of keeping away from me more than a day; I ought to be aware at least of where, at which level or in which area it is located, so that I try to undo it, but I am not. And I can't identify the corresponding movement. Short of actively denying or barring our friendship, I do not see a way out of this...

... Krishna came and had dinner with me here; we've been sharing a lot of our perceptions lately, and there is this comfort of being able to trust one another so basically, and it is all about You, around Your Presence, in You... And it is also like work, because it makes each of us see more aspects with more clarity, and the seeing is like an action and a progress, a kind of realisation...

There were troubling moments today. Early morning Krishna came, unhappy, saying that Anita, after she'd visited with the "pure ones" in "Fraternity" and Co, had decided to leave again, implying that Krishna and, by extension, me, are too bad a company, the formation being that, by his association with me, Krishna is loosing her... I don't know...: I just see that she is unbalanced, not yet centred...

Shano had said he would visit this afternoon, and I was all taut about it; that longing came in the way, and it was like a middle-age woman waiting and wanting! I can see the mechanisms of it, I can see the unreality of it, and guess at the truth that is buried or imprisoned in it, but I can't altogether push it away: there must come the right answer to it. Just because I happen to live in a small society that is too narrow-minded to allow for these variations doesn't mean that I am not to find that equilibrium. The alternative is to split, to deny it all persistently, until, probably, age and wear merely dilute and dissolve it...! But then the real power that is needed to progress will also be gone...!

... Krishna was still a little dejected, but he stayed and had dinner with Su and me, and it was sweet; the strange irony is that what he and I have together IS truly our fulfilment; it is perfect, it is whole; and yet, because of the work going on in some of our parts, we must withhold from it the forces we could otherwise join...

The Pressure keeps me in Its Fold...

... I have read today the last issues of the Auroville Review and Newsletter, put out by the "pure ones" of Auroville, my dear brothers and sisters, and there is again that painful mixture, or juxtaposition, of truth and ego. I often feel the way they do, and I often agree with their assessments, but I am glad not to be part of their group, I am glad to be removed from them and not to fall in the trap of this group-ego...

Shano came again. There's something new, in the contact with him. I wanted to make sure what his motivations are, for his sake and for the sake of clarity: he wants me to teach him to read English fluently, and he also wants to come to me at night, sometimes in the week. We worked quietly for over an hour; there is tenderness, and there is sincerity in him; there is also a sexual pull, but it seems to be even on both sides, un-rushed, open and tentative...

Larry came to "Ravena" with Auralice this morning, beaming: P.C is sending another $ 2,000/- to finish all the work; this is a happy thing!

... After my asanas Krishna came and brought me photocopies of all his papers, so that I send them to C, explaining what must be done at the Moroccan Embassy in Paris...

29-11-1988, Auroville:

Last night Shano came. I gave him dinner, and an hour of English class. Then he chose to stay overnight, and it was a complete fiasco! I guess this is an example of "cultural differences"; emotional and sensual behaviours are world apart, it is an almost perfect misunderstanding! And yet there is an absence of perversion and a simplicity in him, as in most people here, which is so comforting... But it is a little as if two alien architects, having made their own constructions separately, were now trying to join them together... I suppose that, for them to succeed, a huge amount of "decorations" has to go; but, more deeply or importantly, something of their very structures has to give way, must be altered... I do not want to "change" him, so I just kept to what he could understand; he finally slept downstairs, and I didn't sleep at all, except, strangely, for a couple of deep snatches, filled with an intense psychic drive... It is alright with him, though; there is no hurt, and this tenderness remains...

30-11-1988, Auroville:

I felt a little like a funambulist this morning, who has done just one trick too many. But with the growing trust that rises under the gift of Your loving Pressure, shadows do not cling long anymore; I love You all the more for it, and the gratitude grows ever and ever; I know more and more that it is through trust and gratitude that the way is revealed...

3-12-1988, Auroville:

I love You.

There is no other word, but it isn't right.

Every time I write this, it feels inadequate, narrow, linear, artificial – the separation.

The one word that feels right is: gratitude.

4-12-1988, Auroville:

This morning, as nearly every week since years, P started his dominical session of pop-music, but only louder; I've had to accept this atmosphere for long, but today it went for me past the point of balance, and I decided to go there and simply tell him this was just too loud: I wasn't aggressive; I wasn't resentful; I simply wanted to state a fact and ask him not to go beyond what is bearable; but I found that he was as if expecting my reaction, and unwilling to be honest about it; he at once began to reproach me for imposing on him all the times when I listen to Your Agenda on the roof... But there is no comparison between the tiny old machine I have and the brand-new hi-fi stereo equipment he is so proud of; it was so absurd. But he did lower the volume.

Later on I felt sad: whenever I interfere in anything, I feel this sort of regret. How to communicate with P now, having said that the kind of music he likes is depressing to me? One feels happier when there is a movement of circulation of consciousness that brings about the changes necessary for a truer harmony, rather than interventions that are bound to carry some ego; then one can but pray that it is taken up and used by the action of the true consciousness...

5-12-1988, Auroville:

Mother! Sometimes, it is perhaps like this: the buried Inhabitant, the silent One who has been there, ignored but supporting all for ages, and now there is an opening, a small, inadequate opening, slow and fragile, and the flow of Your Force is there; and it is so often like tears, a mass of tears; not dramatic, not sad, no sorrow; it isn't a feeling that can be humanly translated or manifested yet, it is perfectly quiet and sober; but it does weep. It is an enormous, intense, intense gratitude...

... Perceptions come and go; or, rather, they come, they rise, they join and feed the flame of Presence... It is gratitude and safety, it is endless becoming...

6-12-1988, Auroville:

Su and I spent the entire day in town; I had to place orders for much of the furnishing items for "Ravena", such as rolling mats, cushions and bolsters and mattresses and cloth, etc; I'm trying to complete this place right, down to the last detail, but I somehow get a little confused in the planning of it, as I have only 15 days left and the money came so late, and I don't know yet whether I must then withdraw from the scene altogether or remain there as a sort of caretaker for the time being... You have to show me what's next for me...

... I try to rely on the experience You are giving me, but today I had to cope with those small mental movements of, in effect, resistance: movements of doubt, mostly (how can this last? It will drop me again, it is too good to be true, I won't be able to hold it... the dumb ordinary denial)... Yet, by the centring of the Presence, I begin to understand a little, not with thoughts or feelings, not even with intuition, but with consciousness, to understand the Real, and the way, the process...

And all the rest, all of our movements, everything we seem to be, is part of the clamour of emptiness – "la clameur du vide"...

7-12-1988, Auroville:

I am still confused, about "Ravena"; there is the formation that I simply have a problem of attachment: but it feels unfair to me, because I know I can move out and away in a minute and it will be done; there may be an attachment to a rhythm, and to a type of work-environment, or to the possibility of being useful somewhere, and creative; but I trust that I can find harmony again, whatever will be the next thing. It is rather that I do not know clearly, before You, to which extent I must care, or cease to care for the place, for its quality and its purity... This morning Larry came there, accompanied by Gordon and Jean and David; it is obvious to me that Larry isn't the right person to look after "Ravena"; yet he behaves as if it is all his! It seems to me that, would the right person be there, I would feel none of this confusion...

... Douce Mère, make me a child of the Force...!

8-12-1988, Auroville:

I have still this anxiety, this apprehension that Your gift will not remain. The longer it stays and the more precious it becomes, and the more creative, as it makes the way so concrete and so clear, and so simple; the element of the necessity of personal effort and collaboration becomes itself a joy, just as when a child concentrates on making a new movement right...

15-12-1988, Auroville:

Over the last few days, I seem to have lost the awareness that had been Your gift... I think it has been gradually obscured by the tide of this energy that came at me from the necessity of finishing "Ravena" in such a short time, of accepting the challenge... It isn't an energy that comes from the Force; it is an energy to "do", to move, but it is full of gaps, and it brings no fulfilment, no peace and no certitude... It only moves!

16-12-1988, Auroville:

It seems that, for some reason, we'll get 6 Russians and 2 Indians at "Ravena" instead of US students, and oddly I am happier this way...! Ar. came to help me mornings and afternoons and she got into the rhythm of it, and we also did all the dyeing of all the covers at home, and she accepted Su's help for the ironing, and the tension has much lessened...

17-12-1988, Auroville:

I am aware of the mistakes I have made at "Ravena", acutely so; but it still feels like a beautiful, good and unique place; it is to me full of Your Grace and a song of Your Harmony. I am glad for D.M and Janaka that this has been accomplished... I now need to find how to place it rightly at Your feet, deliver it into Your care...

18-12-1988, Auroville:

There is some tension for me with Larry, the way he goes about things – shallow and utilitarian, grey and confused; it makes me sad that there isn't a wider space in which to make this offering, and that it is rushed and swallowed and used, when it is so rich with Your Grace...

I have to trust, and cling to that trust.

This is a tiny, minuscule detail under the stars, I know; but what is turned to You is by nature wide and eternal...

I know for myself that as long as I am not whole and unified in the Force, my responses will remain personal: too limited and too weak, incapable of living, direct and tangible reliance... Therefore I can only learn and progress towards that condition, and not complain...!

19-12-1988, Auroville:

There are problems either in my quitting or my remaining; Kasinathan came to me here this evening, crying: besides having lost his money, he said he doesn't want to go on living if I am no longer "in-charge"... This is of course mostly drama, but there is something genuine to it, and this gives me a sort of responsibility towards the workmen there; Larry is such a dumb and piggy fellow, but he is also a sweet kid... Show me, please, how to move out in harmony...!

20-12-1988, Auroville:

I started the day by speaking up to Larry frankly. And he chose to adjust and correct his drive; he saw it was needed. But it is only this afternoon, when P.C visited "Ravena" and had there a very striking and profound experience – I saw how much he'd been moved when I met him on the upper terrace – that Larry really turned, and the rest of the day was happy, and I could even make him acknowledge how scattered and messy he tends to be and he could take it with good humour... And so it now feels that I'll be able to wind up harmoniously, with regards to "Ravena" itself as to the workmen, and help the transition... Theo and Yaap have been helping too, gently...

I also met Pala today, and complained to her that no one was coming forward as a caretaker; she said that most people don't even want to hear about "Ravena", both on account of D.M and Janaka's story and on my account: just because I have done the work means to them that this must be a "bad" place...!

21-12-1988, Auroville:

There seems to be no one yet who has the capacity to keep the place together, and to renew or re-establish order and harmony during the day... Larry is sweet but he has no material consciousness whatsoever and tends to spread an atmosphere of shallow liveliness, confused and noisy and unquiet; Theo is quieter, but he is unused to have to exert control over a physical, material space; Megan, the young US girl who is Larry's friend, is alright, but very immature and inattentive... I try to train Nar and Shivagami to keep house... Show me, Mother, how to withdraw... The 6 Russian teenagers came in this afternoon, among them one strange, suspicious character who carries with him the typical vibration and mind-set one expects from a brain-washed enrolled Soviet youth: sombre, unable to look in the eyes, heavy and dumbly alienated... The others are a rather uninteresting, well-fed, stupid bunch, three almost ugly girls and two boys (one of which may have at least a little intellectual curiosity, a student of Physics). And the two young Indians are two brothers from a well-to-do Madras family, used to luxury and fun, and somewhat connected to Auroville through their uncle, Swami Nathan, the lawyer...

22-12-1988, Auroville:

I am going through the process of detachment, or withdrawal, and it is the sense of a passage between dimensions, or between experiences and realities...

23-12-1988, Auroville:

Life has now taken "Ravena" over, and I find that I have made no progress in accepting life as it is, in embracing it... Tonight there is to be a "concert" there, with over a hundred people attending – the kind of music people like nowadays, loudly self-satisfied and hollow; but people are "happy"! The best I could do was to step out altogether. I still had to make a couple of trips there, to settle the matter of the workmen' wages with Larry and arrange for the left-over wood to be lifted, and see last details of organisation with Yaap...

It is as the Lord wants... I only feel sorry to be still so small that I cannot unite with Him in all things...

This life, what people experience as happiness and fun, is to me like a sham...

24-12-1988, Auroville:

There. It is done. All is in order.
I lay it at Your feet, Douce Mère.

... Centre me, Douce Mère, where I am trusting and aware, so You can change me and use me as a being, a movement of That...

It is odd that I am ending a work of almost 4 years just on Christmas Eve...! I have kept, from Janaka, a string of 24 natural pearls – I had left it in a cupboard there with other things, but Larry didn't want it and asked me to put it all away; so this is what I kept, along with a string of coral bits...

Krishna this morning brought me two bottles of champagne! Ar. brought me a surprise gift, a very special photograph of Sri Aurobindo she's had framed, his face and the top of his chest, resting in Samadhi on his bed... And earlier Su offered me a faceted crystal, to hang in the light...

26-12-1988, Auroville:

I spent the entire day here, and time ran twice as fast. All morning I went on pruning and cleaning in the garden and all afternoon I sorted out and cleared and re-organised old papers and just now I finished a big bonfire of it... But all through I had to struggle and strive to pull out from or undo the unreality that prevents me to be aware of the Presence and Its axis – barriers, or rigid orientations that are of my own making, re-built in the ignorance of energy...

This is my goal now, my constant goal without a goal: to be aware of That and let it flow and be and do, to let It reveal the concreteness of Your way in all things, at all points and at every minute...

27-12-1988, Auroville:

I had to refuse Krishna's movement of bringing his electronic machine and to practice his music here; explaining to him why has sort of cleared up the two years of distance between us...

... Kasinathan is sad to be at "Ravena" without me; I know it's true, and I too miss him; he is such a sweet creature... He tells me that, now that I'm gone, Nar has assumed full ease and is acting bossy – which doesn't surprise me...!

29-12-1988, Auroville:

There is the psychological tension due to the pulls of these two relationships, with Su and with Ar. Because of that unease, I tend to withdraw and put up barriers in both directions, since I do not believe in the truth of declaring "this and not that", of choosing one to the detriment of the other; I value each reality, in its place. But obviously, the way life goes, it creates a knot, rather than a widening...

... I tend to be obsessed again with a desire for N, to hold him, to caress him, to let go with him; the only way I can be quiet about it is through gratitude before Thee. When I realise that this too Thou givest me, the strain of desire and its interference dissolves... I can do it, but I do not have to be prisoner of it... But it isn't a steady realisation, it comes and goes... Late this morning, N did come to me, and we met quietly; there is sweetness and a home-feeling with him...

30-12-1988, Auroville:

Suddenly this afternoon I just had to move. I cycled down to the ocean and stayed there a long time; there was a backlash and a struggle of ego-resistance, and then there was a wonderful, wonderful state, filled with gratitude and a clear, limpid sense of the way...

You know...

... Last night, among many other things, at once coming up to me was Diane, her eyes wide and her inner being intent on mine... Auragni wasn't with her; it was so vivid that I almost expected it to happen in the day...

31-12-1988, Auroville:

I am not planning to go to the Dawn Fire for the New Year.
It will be the first time I won't go. I don't know.
I need You. I need the Force.

- 1989 -

1-1-1989, Auroville:

Su has been through an intense crisis, emotionally, regarding our relationship, and it had to come out; I helped her this evening to speak up and in the process some relief and some peace came to her, and it was again light and simple.

And in the night Vivian, Su and John H's sister, came back to Auroville, this time with her daughter Nathalie.

2-1-1989, Auroville:

It is mingling: at once I am learning to grow more aware and oriented and to discover the presence of the Way, and I am also tense and wary of intrusions, wanting to be left alone; and yet I also wonder what can be the right activity for me here, and whether I ought to face my situation in Auroville, there being no opening for me to work anywhere... But I feel, more deeply, that my priority is to trust the Force and to rely exclusively on Its Pressure...

3-1-1989, Auroville:

Kasi came by a moment ago, sweetly wanting for a hug on his way... What I hear of "Ravena" through him or through Shano is, could be, depressing: hundreds of people visiting, parties with loud music and drink, litter everywhere; noise and superficiality... So it is one of two things: either I have been weak and impure in my offering and I have lacked the courage to stand for the true usage of the place – but I do not really know what that is, and I don't see what I could have done; or it is in Your hands and it is being used or the best, regardless of what I feel about it...

4-1-1989, Auroville:

Heavy pruning all morning, waxing and cleaning all afternoon, I worked hard the entire day, and tonight Su and I have our night-watch duty. There is a whole lot I can do right here; gratefulness is there always, for this possibility You give me to evolve in beauty, and in an environment that grows as I grow, to thus give myself to this collaboration with material Nature as an offering to the Presence...

... Shano just came by; it's like he just wants or needs to feel at home here, with me...

5-1-1989, Auroville:

Late morning Larry came here with Auralice. I wasn't too happy to see them and was wondering what it was they wanted... And, after telling me all about how beautiful the whole experience has been of opening "Ravena", with all these people sharing the space and all the life coming to it, Larry asked me for... the white cycle! But I have actually spent on repairing it twice and maintaining it, and besides, N has been using it, and I've had enough of their claims of inheritors...! So I just made a blank wall and kept quiet and they eventually left...

6-1-1989, Auroville:

I get a little carried away with the energy of working with plants, with natural and material substance. It seems that this is what I like most, to be with Nature, to create environments of conscious beauty and harmonious material call for the Presence; and I also, at times, enjoy working with N: I am really fond of him!

Yet I must reach some sort of balance with the energies...! But just now, the weather is so good, it is the blessed time of the year, gorgeous and crisp and cool and quiet, when the garden is at its best and every moment of the day is a new creation of light and silent growth, but for the sweet movements and chirping sounds of the birds... so many birds are here now, all over the place, of all sizes...

It seems to me more and more that, to a very large extent, it is "man" – our human condition as an evolving stage of the One – that sets the pace: that, in those terms and once the contact is given, it is largely up to us... One may call it "resistance", but it is perhaps simply an evolving balance between the intensity and steadiness of the flame, of the need, and the process of replacing unreality by the Real in all movements of our nature...

These are words; but today I went through the whole cycle of energies – work, physical need of intimacy, tenderness and sexual release, recovery of receptivity and re-centring... And I see no longer that I ought not to have yielded to this or that; what I see more and more is that, by the action of Your Grace, the connection with the Force takes up more and more time, and as it does, the confusion of needs gradually decreases, while the experience of conscious gratitude grows and develops... And I'm learning all the time...

8-1-1989, Auroville:

It is always this problem of time versus activity: without centred awareness, it all becomes flat, a mere race and gesticulation...! Like squirrels and ants, busy, busy... and separate!

10-1-1989, Auroville:

While pruning, this morning, a heavy branch dropped on my foot.

For some years now I have sort of practiced, with small cuts and bruises, to immediately go blank and make silence, calling for peace and harmony, through the Force... This time it was more spectacular: right away a big swelling appeared, and an acute pain; I became silent, and called, and stayed that way perhaps one minute, so the cells in that part would remember the Lord; the pain subsided and disappeared almost entirely; after a few more minutes, the swelling disappeared too. And I could move and walk and climb back into the tree and keep working.

I didn't concentrate long enough though, for it to be thorough: now, this evening, the front of the foot and the toes are slightly tumefied; but there is no pain, and movement is free...

It all becomes more tangible and more concrete in my experience... Only in That, and with That, does existence have a sense...!

11-1-1989, Auroville:

The daily contacts with Ar. and Su haven't been easy lately. I don't know what to do with this sort of feminine energy, of just wanting to be with... It isn't what I look for: I need Shakti, the concreting power of the Force, the creative thing... And this I find in You...!

I am an adorer of Woman, but I am not good at giving security, warmth, a nest; it hampers my perceptions rather than supports them...

13-1-1989, Auroville:

A difficult morning, wanting to clear up this whole thing with Ar. once and for all; also, I received another message from Auralice, asking again for the white cycle! It has become the symbol of the conflict between me and them over the matter of "inheritance"; I answered in the negative but invited her to come and talk about it if she wished; and then, just an hour later, while pruning high in a tree, my hand got caught between a falling branch and another one, right on top of the large ring I wear, which crushed on itself; I had to struggle to free my hand; I climbed down and ran over here to try and widen the ring so the finger would live; but I couldn't remove the ring; I went back to work; hoping the swelling would go and I could remove the ring later, but it doesn't work. Su suggested wrapping some ice in a cloth around it and I'm trying it now...

... I went down to Pondy, to the silversmith, who had to cut the ring open, this beautiful, unique Hopi ring...

... I only want to become aware of That, to let That be...

Whenever I am open enough for It to flow and be, all questions vanish, all yearnings, all notions of how to be, how to serve, how to change – it all becomes obsolete... It destroys me not! It only makes me the happiest thing in the world!

All the rest, all the rest is old, unreal, distorted, thick and slow...!

This is immediate, complete, totally creative, and whole!

And "I" become a flame of gratitude, unique, fulfilled, for ever safe.

All of this human condition is like the cooling lava left on the wayside: hardened, thickened fire, it flows no more, but feeds on itself, incapable of growth...

The only way to relate that ever feels right to me is whenever I am given a function, within a collective organisation – be it serving food, distributing mail, or looking after this or that practical necessity of collective living...

And as far as a relationship with a woman is concerned, I see now that for it to find me willing and active, creatively, so many conditions would have to be fulfilled to begin with that it is quite unrealistic to expect it will ever happen! If a woman who is, as a person, conscious of her inner being, finds in a quiet and undemanding relationship with me enough material for her own growth, then I am grateful to let that happen; but I can't turn "my" needs towards her, lest it would shatter her...! As for my ordinary needs, such as they are, they are best met in friendship, where it is undemanding, sweet and humorous, as it is at the moment with N...

Yesterday night I had found another letter from Ar. waiting for me: the usual formations, arguments and demands, but also an obvious goodwill and the authenticity of her affection... And today, right after lunch, she came: I had to remind her again that it takes two to choose the form, the rhythm and the width of any given relationship... After a while we could laugh together again...

... I went over to Janet's; she'd asked me to help her rebuild her house at the "Field" and I first wanted to see for myself to what extent I would have to get involved... She'll bring me a detailed ground plan of the existing house; but she has too little money for me to have any creative function there, and she stated her need of me as of someone she could turn to for advice as the work goes on... I'll see... For now I see the garden here as my work; it is only if You would open the way for me to help manifest the Gardens of Matrimandir, or else if You would give me an opportunity to create an entire environment somewhere in Auroville, that... Otherwise what You give me right here is fulfilling enough for me, as an offering...

I don't know, I miss a direction... Whenever one's activity comes from You, whatever it may be, one feels one with everything, everywhere; but when there is a lapse, or a waiting, and one seems to have to find an activity without Your direction, then one feels separate, unused and unfulfilled, whatever the apparent use or purpose of the activity one has found or chosen...

... Jaïmurthy came to visit, with his wife and children, and brought some Pongal dishes; and then, while Su and I had dinner, Gopal came, and then Vivian came; and then suddenly Ar. came in, shocked, in pain, holding up her dislocated thumb: she'd just had an accident on her moped, hit a tree; I didn't quite know what to do; I felt it wasn't broken, but no one here knows how to reset a dislocated joint... Later, Hilde mentioned Dhruva, and I took Ar. there on the bike, but he couldn't or wouldn't do it, and he thought it might be a bad break... So finally I had to take her to Jipmer Hospital – a Sunday night, and Pongal festival! We went to Casualties – the usual nightmare of crowded dirt and administrative absurdity: but they eventually did the job, reset the bone and declared it was fine but would need to be held in place for three weeks as there was a small fracture just over the joint; Ar. was alright all through; she only shouted when an injection had to be given, and she could laugh and be calm... We returned before midnight...

18-1-1989, Auroville:

I had left a sketch at Janet's. She came here later; we discussed all the aspects of the work given the funds available to her; she is alright, but I am not sure yet I should get involved, perhaps because, even though she says she only needs advice and some direction, I can sense that I'll end up supervising the entire thing, and this isn't exactly a small job... Is it right for me to go into it, Mother?

20-1-1989, Auroville:

I'm feeling bad again about N, just like it was when he'd been arrested; it is like a sorrow, a painful wondering, a sense of waste and of helplessness in the face of it, and the sadness at being separated, a seeking out of his true future, of his true becoming... I sense this obscurity like a pain, the pain of falsity...

... I wish I could help manifest some of the power of harmony that is so badly needed on this earth; to channel at least a little ripple of it in my immediate surroundings, in the few beings I am in close contact with... But even that, I do not seem to be ready for...!

22-1-1989, Auroville:

I am reluctant to go into Janet's work; I am no "professional" who can produce a drawing and let her manage with it; I'll have to actually work there and find the way step by step, and I'm not quite willing just now to get that involved again with someone's place, with workers, with materials...

23-1-1989, Auroville:

What has become obvious is that N has lied to me again, and got trapped in the logic of lying, and couldn't face me with it; and more than that, is his lack of commitment: he prefers still to elude it rather than acknowledging that he cares. I am not sure why it affects me so much; but it does; the reason for it is there, but I do not grasp it yet; there is something important there which I yet need to understand, to realise...

... Shano has been here again; he is wanting something with me or from me, which is not yet clear, and it becomes ambiguous and frustrating; probably he'd want me to take charge of him, to care for him. And then Jaïmurthy came, to talk about his problems. And all the while this sadness remained, which I know only too well as a vibration or a condition, but the real causes of which I still ignore...

25-1-1989, Auroville:

The nights are so crowded with ignorance and noise and useless forms of existence, leading nowhere, never opening to the Presence... And this morning the sorrow returned and has remained since; it is on several levels, down to this problem of N, who has made no sign as yet; I miss him like a limb, a part of body and life; a response that sparks... He is the only person here who does that for me, and why it is so, or how, I do not know...

26-1-1989, Auroville:

Yesterday night, during my watch at Matrimandir, John H asked me, on behalf of the new Coordination Group there, whether I'd be willing to supervise the work of building the first Petal...

And this morning Catherine, who has been making all the drawings, came here to ask me the same...

John H also told me that U, who is now the last of the team initially set up by Roger A, has also come to the conclusion that Roger A's design for the shell and its cover isn't the right thing, so that the issue, now that Roger A has just returned to Auroville, is bound to be re-assessed...

Please Mother, let my ego move out and away, keep me pure in this, Mother, keep me Your child...!

I said that, of course, I was willing – although, in my small way, I feel quite incapable of such a thing – but that, obviously, now that the entire design is to be reviewed, one must wait a little to find out how these structures are supposed to stand...!

28-1-1989, Auroville:

Each night is such a confused jumble, what to do? In the day the Pressure is there and there is some flow, some silence, and some growing consecration, although there's still need of a breakthrough in the individualised, or ego-based control over the awareness; yet there seems to be a minimum of waste or disorder, and an almost constant need to be conscious, to become conscious. But the nights remain unaffected; the quality of their experiencing doesn't seem to evolve at all...

29-1-1989, Auroville:

N finally came, mid-morning, while I was still busy with the Sunday clean-up. Unclarity comes in the way: I can no longer simply believe him, whether or not he is lying, because I cannot find the contact of truth in him – or else it is a case of split personality, one half of it occurring away from me; one thing is clear, however: it is that he does suffer from some actual physical ailment, and that must be checked...

30-1-1989, Auroville:

There is at the same time, these days, an harmonious ease, which is made of gratefulness and a sort of ecstasy in Matter, in its beauty – a base of harmony which is one with the flow of the Force on Its axis; and there is, or there appears now to be, an increasing number of small disharmonies, a multiplicity of them, almost as if the body itself was about to fall apart, to go to pieces, through sheer lack of unity: several plexuses have become painful, especially about the stomach and the throat, hands and forearms get numb or tingling, instant headaches come and go as well as all sorts of aches all over... It is a constant learning...

31-1-1989, Auroville:

I got once more angry at Ar., at her lament and misery. And I saw the entire atmosphere of harmony of the day just shattered in a second, simply because I am incapable of responding truly to this sort of moral and affective violence; but she came back a moment later, to arrange for the milk-money for the whole of "Sincerity"...!

I worked like a bull all day...

... Mother, make me a child of the Force...

2-2-1989, Auroville:

I cycled over to the village, to Rad's house; he's been asking me for months to help him rebuild his house, financially; he and Kuppumma have 4 grown-up kids; I have tried in Auroville to find some channel for a grant to build a model house that could then be replicated in the area, but there has been no response so far; and by myself I cannot cover the cost, and I don't know what to do...

... There's a happiness growing, as the Pressure remains and gratitude and a clear need gradually take over more of "me"...

... Shano has been waiting for his class, and I haven't yet eaten...!

3-2-1989, Auroville:

There was interference today in my opening and receptivity, and this was entirely due to my letting in a suggestion of desire and allowing it to drive; nothing dramatic, nothing "wrong": just the ordinary cycle of physiological need; I have observed that it returns in a little less than a week' time: something like every six days I have to cope directly with the pressure of this need, and I find no change at that level; whatever else I experience at other levels and in other ways makes no difference there; and if I try to impose a will on it, it just shifts into the night activities, and that's all... I wish, though, that human society would be simpler about all this and makes less fuss over it...!

4-2-1989, Auroville:

I am finishing the reading of a book that is a delight and impresses me a lot; it is so finely written, such an exquisite and accurate rendering of life, ordinary human life and experience, and it weaves an interesting story about the values of courage and self-giving versus cowardice and self-protection; it isn't pretentious; it isn't making use of any of the usual tricks, and it is a beautiful piece of art: "Ocean Front", by Douglas Wallop.

... Time goes very fast; one week is gone in a moment. Perhaps physical work, all day long, makes it move even faster... The weather is still wonderful, but there is anxiety growing in our area as wells are already going dry, since we've had no real monsoon to speak of... I am mulching all the young trees and plants; but, mainly, I trust that something of the Lord cares enough for the beauty we're trying to establish here to protect it...

5-2-1989, Auroville:

The laundry is done, the house is clean, and dinner is prepared for Su; the light is wondrous, so clear and vivid and tranquil...

I haven't won the battle with the rats, though!

This morning, in the middle of my clean-up, Y came, the sweet one; he is unhappy and working long hard hours to feed his entire family; he is married now and has a kid already, but he came for a hug and a caress, as he sometimes does, remembering what we had together. It was simple and tender and without any heaviness...

It seems to me that I need the Force to open my awareness of what is meant to manifest at that level: what truth of Thy existence, what substance of the future being is to replace that set of energies and habits... If I could begin to tune in to that, it wouldn't be an impasse any longer, nor would there remain the dry necessity of rejection and denial; there would be instead an adhesion to a truer state...

It is only an impression and a sort of faith - a glimpse in the feeling -, but I believe there is, hidden behind the small round, a great treasure of rich giving, a solidity of Thee...

7-2-1989, Auroville:

I am seeking the way. There seems to be the absolute necessity to find the Presence, and the new state of truth, in this "lower vital", where the sex energies run, in order to move into the physical. Time is passing and, while that process concretely takes place, "time" means many years of a very short life in one body...

I don't know; it isn't clear yet...

... The water-situation is a big question. We are only about 600 people in Auroville. We have planted and planted, wherever we could, mainly to recreate a balanced environment, and to attract and retain water in the soil; but also to provide for harmony, for an atmosphere of beauty and sweetness. Is it all bound to go to waste? I can't believe it; there has to be some subtle action, so that this entire place is truly claimed by the Lord, despite the small human mediocrity on the surface...!

9-2-1989, Auroville:

Today is Diane's birthday; that has triggered of course thoughts of Auragni, and the same interrogation, although it has now been cleared of its drama and of most of its pain... It is also the day, Jacques the dentist told me this morning, Nostradamus in his prophecies had predicted to be the last day of the "Kali Yuga"...!

10-2-1989, Auroville:

I have by now received two telegrams from C regarding Krishna's papers, and both are rather confusing; it doesn't seem possible for Krishna not to go... This morning he worked with me in the garden; it is a good thing that we work together; yet it does take adjustments in the energies; he still wastes and talks too much and is too tense. But besides what there always is between the two of us, in You, there is also a growing inner unity among the four of us, Su, Gopal, him and me... And I feel happy about it.

12-2-1989, Auroville:

I am sort of hanging in a quiet confusion... It feels like waiting for a further degree of Presence and of Force, waiting in a clumsy, barely redeemed stance, for a channelling down, an animation: the lack is concrete, and its very concreteness may be a sign of that fulfilling concreteness to come...

It is clear one cannot ask for oneself; it is clear one cannot really progress by one's own efforts either. There is offering and courage in accepting to remain empty...

13-2-1989, Auroville:

N insisted that I come with him to see the small piece of land he has recovered from relatives in Sanjeev Nagar, where he now wants to move: taking down his hut in Edayachavadi and building a new hut on that spot; it may be a better village, I am not sure; he may have less troubles there, being on his own land, and there's a school for his kids, and work opportunities for his wife; I'll try and help him...

... Besides some sleepiness the last two days, I've had like a string or a series of insights - what one could call revelations -, that came to strengthen, ground and illumine my comprehension of the way; I feel no need to fix them into formulae; it is wonderful, part of the Pressure and Its gift... There is rather a growing need to break through lower down, so that a solidity of Force may manifest... Still, as often in the past, I see that a single of these insights could give rise to a religion, if blown out of proportion and... "context"; and I am grateful for the silent, discreet and humble construction of the new being and of its new world...!

14-2-1989, Auroville:

At noon, N and I met, quietly. It remains puzzling to me how I can find so much in him or with him, almost as a quintessence of all physical relationships...

I am seeing with him and Rad how to get bricks made and fired here itself, using all the wood from the pruning to fire the kiln, for both their houses and for the garden here as well...

15-2-1989, Auroville:

C's last letter about Krishna's papers finally came. It seems to be impossible for him to avoid going back to Morocco, if he must have legal papers at all. She has gone everywhere and worried a lot and is now depressed about it, and I too feel bad. Now it is up to Krishna to find whether he must go there – an adventure with risks and many pitfalls -, or let go of it all and remain here as an "impossible case", both for India and for Auroville – another adventure, but less personal...

... Time passes so quickly; I've got into a rhythm of working here all day, and all desire or inclination to have a "job" anywhere else seems to be gone...

I am handicapped by a steady toothache which started the day after I'd gone to the dentist and has been unfluctuating since, day and night, and turning every meal into an ordeal; and I watch at close range this phenomenon: this acts as a seed of disharmony in the body, triggering all the possible disharmonies this body has a relationship with... It is so "natural", and so dumb, and so... depressing!

Depressing too is the condition of the pipes that have been pulled out of the well: all corroded, half of them unusable... This waste, this constant wear and tear, and the maintaining and the repairing and the replacing, all this just in order to... be! To be here, to be anywhere, materially: to be material! So I am now considering making another big expense and installing new PVC pipes instead; but there may be other hazards I don't know about, such as cracks forming from the pressure, etc...

17-2-1989, Auroville:

This morning Barbara gave me a copy of a long study G.G made to argue against Roger A's Master-Plan; I know of his ideas already, and it makes some sense; but I don't see that Roger A is developing at all a truer attitude towards his function here... And Ar. came by, after lunch, with a copy of a recent issue of "Geo Magazine" featuring Auroville; a very poor article, with text and photographs by Nadia: a sad performance.

18-2-1989, Auroville:

Ar. is very busy with the preparations and rehearsals of her group' performance on Your birthday; all her energies are utilised, and it makes her that much more harmonious and centred, and it is a joy to see her that way...

19-2-1989, Auroville:

This is a Sunday! Jaimurthy and his helper are working on the new bench by the entrance door; carts are carrying in mud bricks; N crashed in at breakfast time, in a state: he'd started before dawn, and the bricks owner had given him a drink, and by the time they reached here, loaded (!), N just fell off the cart, fainted and hurt himself a bit and got scratches all over and was mostly shocked and still quite drunk, and he sobbed profusely on and on, right here on the bed, having made a fool of himself once again and "disturbed" me... And all that while Su was still here, who'd hardly finished telling me, with almost as many tears, of the troubles she'd got herself into with Krishna...!

I had gathered most of it on my own already, anyway; but what has saddened me and caused, I suppose, the confusion I have been feeling lately, was Krishna's own lack of simplicity and openness: he got himself into dissembling, with me, and that was, and is, very stupid of him. Because I had trusted them each to remain simple and open if anything of that nature should take place between them; I do not mind that; I am not jealous; but I mind the duplicity!

Su needed help to see clearly. Krishna has already begun to reject her, and me!

20-2-1989, Auroville:

I am carefully trying not to lend myself in any way to the little vibrational drama that Krishna has brought upon us once again. Yet I am sad that the beginnings of a flow of simplicity between us here has got once more contradicted; I feel again stuck in a small place, and work in the garden is like treading between egos and mined territories. I wonder whether one must give some consideration to these reactions, or simply ignore them...

... Later in the day Ar. came to me and delivered the other half of the "confession": during this same period, Krishna has also got into a relationship with her, and it was fine until he rejected her, just a few days ago, very dramatically...!

There we are!

I can't help, though, seeing the funny side of it! It is somewhat redeeming!

21-2-1989, Auroville:

Today Tom, Babu and Nagappan put in the new pipes and foot-valve into the well and secured everything and, at 5 pm, we started the pump; and it worked!

Perhaps this is Your birthday gift! At any rate it shows that You care for this garden and this place!

First thing this morning, before starting any work, I went and brought one lotus bud to Krishna, just that; and we hugged each other and it felt alright. But something must yet be cleared; and when that will happen, a big weight will be lifted and dissolve from our entire experience together, ever since we met, at Your feet. It is duplicity, which went in him through the gamut, including hatred. This must go, so that we continue on Your way.

... I find myself a little withdrawn from Su; there is, I think, a choice for her to make, freely, on her own, between a range of emotional behaviours and a greater, more silent and centred womanhood...

22-2-1989, Auroville:

True to his old unchanged patterns, Krishna has "evicted" Su this afternoon – from his old house, the one I had built for him, which he'd offered to her for her workshop... I feel a little lonely, in the sense that, since last year and up until now, I'd had an impression that perhaps You were claiming both Krishna and I, and making Your way more tangible in each of us, and that this would make a difference in terms of harmony here and around us, receptive and creative harmony... Even though I do not want to give importance to the present movements, they still show that there's no real change; and that bothers me: time is passing!

23-2-1989, Auroville:

This morning I was unaccountably tired and hazy, and feeling invaded. At times the delicate equilibrium between our purpose here and the daily grind of the village life around us gets strained, and I day-dream about closing this place down and doing all the work myself (which wouldn't be right); the weight of this pulling multitude of needs can come in waves sometimes, and also act as a very subtle deformation...

25-2-1989, Auroville:

The weather is greying, heavier, as if collecting rain. I've been fighting depression all day: Shankar and Uma have left at dawn, left Auroville, gone away. I am sad about it. Not that I didn't disagree with their pretence and attitude; what makes me sad in such moments is that it seems there isn't anymore an active Force of Change in Auroville – and without It there would be no purpose whatsoever in this place... G.M has gone; Shankar has now gone, others have also gone; Krishna is repeating old patterns; nothing ever seems to move into another condition, truer, new, unknown... Meanwhile, more and more people come to Auroville and stay, for reasons I do not comprehend, and relate to one another in ways that make no sense to me...

... N was sick this morning, with fever, cough and headache, and slept it off in the store-room; and after lunch he came to me and we met, quietly. I had needed it.

... I don't know how to progress, Mother, if the Force isn't doing it; I can only push, with a nameless need for That to exist, instead of "me", instead of this...

26-2-1989, Auroville:

Last night performance at Bharat Nivas was wonderful, perfect, and I nearly cried when the troupe came back onstage to salute; there was a large crowd attending, with people from Pondy and Madras and there was even a Catholic nun! Chandralekha's work made everyone happy.

... Without the awareness of the Pressure, it all seems to be at a standstill. I may have glimpses of a more conscious condition, but the fact remains of a bare waiting in the physical consciousness – waiting for It to act, to flow. And most of the waiting is made up of maintenance: of the body, as of the surroundings; this is about the only responsibility I feel is "mine", in the sense of accepting to be still separate...

27-2-1989, Auroville:

Ar. came to bring me the mail and a telegram, which she had already opened and shown to Krishna, from C, announcing that he need not move, that it is all settled and his papers will be waiting for him at the Embassy in Delhi... Brave C! There was also a letter from her with some puzzling news: it seems that R's new-found son has been diagnosed with AIDS – with R himself being involved in the research work...

28-2-1989, Auroville:

Su and I walked over to the amphitheatre before dawn, for the Fire. The atmosphere was better than usual – the Fire burnt high and clear and there was enough quiet and intent to be able to concentrate for nearly an hour... Lots of people from the Ashram were also there.

... Later I tried to attend the general meeting that had been called in response to a new proposal on a method towards achieving an economy within Auroville more compatible with its aims and purposes... Words! But I'd felt that the mere trying could open doors again, and I had prepared an envelope with my contribution... So I went. The group that has put up the proposal was there and hardly anyone else! And soon their spokesman mentioned their having met a number of times in... "Aurelec": at that my unease increased; I felt I was among old people, old inside, and that information sort of resolved the picture... I left right away, with the money! I cycled back home, sort of stunned...

... My work here seems to be over; I finished the new bench; the pruning is all done; the house is all in order... Mother?

1-3-1989, Auroville:

I must use my separate will in order to make it through the day. I haven't felt that way – this sort of crushing wave – for a long time! If I yield to the negativity of it, it becomes, as I remember from previous such periods, quite unbearable and one then wants to scream and howl... There is nothing specific, no particular conflict within or without: it is just, I guess, a sort of tunnel, or a gap, or a passage through some antagonism...? I don't know.

In those moments the progress one has made is measured by a tiny difference – a millimetre of freedom away from the pit, or a minute breath of air that takes away just enough off the power of this black hole...

Externally I managed to do some garden work through the afternoon, till I became aware that the first symptoms of a cold were already asserting themselves, masked under some sort of idiotic, tamasic acceptance of a stretch of disharmony, and I realised I must react; I did a long session of asanas then, listening to Your Agenda. Now there's status quo!

I look back onto a number of weeks, recently, when I was experiencing a state of grace; somehow I seem to have learnt that there is no true reason why it shouldn't remain, and grow; but I haven't yet learnt not to let the veils interfere again...!

2-3-1989, Auroville:

I find our condition here rather bewildering. But I seem to sense, through or despite the dishonesty, the contradictions and the many different forms of betrayal, a call or a sign, as if coming from a consciousness where perhaps it becomes impossible to react, or to be affected by any movement arising from our unchanged humanity, and yet where one is also aware at all times of the true reality of each individual person as part of the One.

But the transition is so awkward and uneasy and uncertain...

... I got involved this morning with the moving in of this French couple, Guy and Tina, who haven't signed the statement of "no ownership"; I found the guy to be a sort of escapist, secure in the falsity of the present social Auroville, crooked of words and arguments...

... Went back and forth between Janet's and Ramalingam, to see with him about the structural elements for her new house and the materials for it; I have sort of accepted that, this being the only activity that has been indicated to me lately, I'd better get on with it... So I am making the sketches and calculations...

... There is this sense that, whatever and however, the Guidance is sovereign and contains all, and nothing that happens can ever be outside of It – can be anything else, in truth, than an expression of It...

3-3-1989, Auroville:

I seem to have made a big fool of myself, as it appears that, technically, those two people, Guy and Tina, had already signed a statement of "no ownership" when they signed the first admission sheet at the time they were accepted as newcomers; only they hadn't remembered it, or not paid attention to it; and it seems that nowadays, when one is later accepted as an "Aurovilian", one doesn't have to confirm such commitments, that once is enough... I had to withdraw my objection, and Su was quite embarrassed for having misled me... Yet, in retrospect, I still have the same feeling, that these people do not care and it isn't right for them to move in...

... But I am also sorry to have made such a wind; even though I haven't been aware of any unease when I raised the issue, I am not proud of stirring the air; there's enough turbulence as it is!

Oh please, I realise more and more how much I want to feel, to think, to move, to sense, to "know" only, exclusively, what You want me to; and how anything else, short of that, is hollow, sterile and vain...

4-3-1989, Auroville:

I have started to spend some time every day at Matrimandir, on my way to or from Janet's; and it's like a bit of vacation, just being around people there, and it's also interesting to find out how much awareness can remain while interfacing, mingling externally; I generally have to talk more these days, if only at Janet's, as she is very talkative; and I still feel somewhat at home at Matrimandir, at least with those who are involved in its daily work...

5-3-1989, Auroville:

Rad has just finished loading and carrying away his pile of bricks; so, I find that my duty to him is now done.

I am feeling much quieter, much less affected than I'd expected, after last night's incident. P had thrown a "party" for Dayini's birthday; and a party today in Auroville means as much racket as one can afford, with the help of this loud, repetitive, dumb contemporary music (pop or disco I don't know, I've lost track) to which is added the restless noise of about 20 motor-cycles and the near-constant shouting of the thick, poor and callous exhibition of "fun", the kind of joyousness that makes me shrink and recoil from human race... And all this carries out for miles around in the quiet night of Auroville... Till 11 pm I held myself in check, reasoning that it couldn't possibly last much longer; but the whole show was so devouring of the atmosphere, it reached right where I was like a violation, the violence of sound, as a terribly clear sign of how Auroville is being misused and Your Gift being wasted... And I don't know where I'd go if I had to leave this place, if Auroville became just an ordinary failure... This became unbearable and I started crying; then I realised that, instead of letting it cornering me into a pocket of despair, I could stand for the objectivity of the Gift... I went down and over to Patrick's and asked him to please lower the sound; but he resisted and at once became extremely angry and raved at me for acting "superior" and what of all my "trips" which he had to bear all the time – this with a heavily loaded meaning which I found revolting – on "other levels"... And there we were. Rather than admitting that, yes, he could indeed make it bearable by simply lowering the volume, he turned on to me using the same old used trick of labelling me as a dark and treacherous being, as others were wont to do...

And for part of the night I was back before the pit: what do they mean exactly? What are these "trips" of mine? And I still do not have the answer, because no one has ever come out with a frank and straight definition to my face...

But he did lower the volume, once he'd let the steam out...!

And, later, despite the ugliness of the moment, I contacted a sort of inner purpose, that is, the validity of what I can and must learn in it, from You; however difficult it may be, still it is worth it; because there won't be "another time", there won't be one more failure and other attempts to redeem it; it is now that what we have failed to learn in the past must at last be learned.

And each one is alone with the Lord. And it is right.

On the other shore, in the other condition, in the true consciousness once it will be manifest, there will be togetherness, for real.

But first one must pass. One must offer and let go.

7-3-1989, Auroville:

Ar. just brought me a letter from JYL confirming his arrival in April, along with C. It is a happy letter. I wish, though, he'd chosen another time, after C and R's stay here; the prospect of this daily concentration or crowding for a whole month makes me wince already; it becomes unreal when situations claim to be so exceptional, and I don't quite understand why it has to be that way...

I found myself tired and depressed this morning; it is wrong and I must react out of it, I know, but it took me by surprise; at dawn N came and he wanted to finish all the loading and transport work today itself; I gave him some heavy lecture, but I was near tears and he saw that I've had enough... This was meant to take half a day only but, as it happened, at noon the cart got a puncture and so it is all delayed again.

But this is direct experiencing of how subtle disharmony and confusion intrude in the behaviour of Matter and circumstances. I am only a couple of steps removed and I still do not clearly know how to counteract or prevent the advent of disharmony; I am learning to do it in myself, but there must be an objective movement allowing one to be instrumental in that for others as well...

11-3-1989, Auroville:

It is puzzling. I have nothing to show for this "illness", but I am extra careful not to let the liver give in; I am not actually feeling weak, but it is very clear that I must rest and that there is a disorder of some amplitude and a mobilisation of healing processes throughout the body – a small additional thing can tire me out in a second...

... And Ar. brought me news that, were I to dwell on it, would make me even sicker: it seems that the entire team working on Your Agenda here, the "Mira-Aditi" team, have now officially left Auroville, announcing that "the Agenda is leaving Auroville"... I don't want to look at this: I'd go straight into the hole... Somehow, I now feel that I am growing out of something, of a kind of bubble, in relation to Auroville, to You, even to oneself... I now see that the way isn't defined; it cannot be! And it is one with the Pressure, the very Pressure I am now missing, knowing yet that it only takes a very slight movement of the consciousness – and the secret is in that slight movement – to recover awareness of It and thus let It create the new condition, or clear the ground for it to become possible...

... Su has been having a hard time with my not letting her "look after me" – how to explain that such solicitude is more tiring than helpful...?!

12-3-1989, Auroville:

Jaïmurthy, who has been working for them, confirmed this morning that indeed P.M and Rose and their group have left two nights ago, rather secretly and suddenly too, taking with them all the books and materials and equipment connected to the Agenda; his impression is that there's been some conflict at the Press also... I don't understand it; I am afraid that this is all drama and ego-constructed posture; although I tend to agree with their assessment of Auroville today, I find that, by supporting one another the way they do, they get blinded as a group to a certain naked awareness that is so necessary...

13-3-1989, Auroville:

When I went to Matrimandir this morning, on my way from Janet's, John H told me that help is needed with the laying of the marble slabs on the Chamber walls; I think I'll try and join from tomorrow on – it will be a good activity to have when JYL is here, and C and R may also join in now and then...

14-3-1989, Auroville:

I went up to the Chamber at 9 this morning, to make myself available...

It wasn't easy. Two things come in the way: generally there's an atmosphere of loose talk and little commitment, with a lack of concentration and precision; and particularly, there's hostility towards me from at least a couple of people – Andy is definitely one -, even though there's also a gentle welcoming on the part of the others. With Chris, who is supposedly in-charge of the work as he's learnt the trade in the US, it goes well and I hope I'll be able to work with him, at least for the first few days...

All the while I have been aware of the Pressure, and it gives me a sense of tangible security that I may stand on my true need and the answer comes...

Yet it oddly doesn't prevent part of the physical mind to sense, watch and record, and even to somewhat react or respond to others' thoughts and movements, just beneath the surface – it even sort of feed the overriding meditation, which is itself wrapped in silence and recognition...

15-3-1989, Auroville:

At Matrimandir today, after an uneasy start, U came up to me and offered that we work together. I was glad of it as I've always been fond of him; we teamed up, then, and took up a row, and it went well; but he is planning to leave soon, for quite a while, and so this can only be a temporary arrangement.

16-3-1989, Auroville:

It is interesting to do several types of work in the course of one day. Now the daily rhythm seems to be: organise the day' work at Janet's; from 9 am to 1 pm at Matrimandir; a moment of rest and reading after lunch; back to Janet's; work here late afternoon; evening, some drawing or painting, and asanas or a cycle ride... Today in the Chamber U didn't come, but Yan offered to work with me; he is also a quiet fellow, able to concentrate and be simple about it... I am learning the tricks of this trade: marble-laying...

18-3-1989, Auroville:

At such times when the physical mind is particularly energised, I have found that the only discipline I am able to practice more and more constantly in the waking state is to keep orienting it actively, turning it into an active meditation, making use of any element that comes in to perfect and elaborate its attunement to the consciousness above and within; it is a constructive practice; it requires no negative effort of rejection or struggle...

... Today both U and Yan were there, and Agnes also asked to join, so we made a foursome, working from both ends of one row, and it went smoothly... It looks like I'm going to do this for some time; and if any breakthrough occurs regarding the outer structure – the extension of the four pillars for instance -, I can probably find my way to contribute there as well, I hope with Ramalingam's team...

... Douce Mère, make me grow; it's like only now I am having a glimpse of the way, and I feel like a baby, wanting to walk and stumbling and rising again and losing grip and finding Your hand, forgetting and remembering and taking a first run and crashing, and still trusting... with gratitude...

19-3-1989, Auroville:

I have finished reading the true story and records of a number of women who were prisoners in the Japanese Camp of Sumatra, from the fall of Singapore till after the end of the war, and survived. To think that, just on the other shore of this small ocean, the Two of You were here, waging the great battle for the evolution upon earth...!

... I have just prepared dinner for Su; there is a "problem" on the way...: it is hard for her to adapt her own needs to my semi-withdrawn way of life; and I have little interest in what all makes a "relationship", to the extent that sometimes her energy can bore me to instant exhaustion; I must try to let her feel on what level there can be a basic sharing, or in what mode, but I don't know... This may be mainly a matter of reliance: that she hasn't yet learned to find her own centre...?

21-3-1989, Auroville:

Krishna is back from Delhi. We found each other in town; he was just off the bus from the airport. The Moroccan people promised to send him a new passport within a month; he had to struggle through a strange of evasion on the part of the few men who were still posted in Delhi, isolated and with no real function since India has cut diplomatic ties with Morocco; they first pretended that they had no instructions concerning him, and he let them play it their way, until they turned to him in a different fashion and began to show some respect and wonder at his actual experience in and of India... On the whole, he isn't too unhappy about it...

... This morning I was at Matrimandir by 8.30 and ended up working alone and I found that I can manage alright by myself when it seemed at first that there had to be a team of 3 to set a row of slabs; it just so happened that no one was there to help and I simply tried it, and it was fairly harmonious; later Menaig teamed up with me to fill up the joints, quietly; I was glad of this experience because now I do not have to depend on anybody else's presence or regularity in order to do some useful work... This has always been the problem at Matrimandir for me: I do enjoy working in a good steady team, but most people here, for one reason or another, are either too distracted or irregular, while I have this old-fashioned sense of commitment and discipline, and this difference used to be very depressing...

This is the second day in a row that I skip the midday break, and I miss it. It clearly serves a purpose and helps processing all the accumulated impressions; now I feel flooded and disturbed, like a house that has been too full.

There were delays and complications in the work this morning, as Piero wanted us to be more deliberate in the selection of the slabs, which aren't all of the same white – this is Carrara white marble, but depending on the original block, the tone varies from white to silver-white and dove-grey. And then I mixed too much compound and I had to use it up...

23-3-1989, Auroville:

I seem to be edging back into a field of external, physical action, and I have some trouble adapting, assimilating the crowd of energies... I cycled down to the beach this evening to wash it all away and to centre – it felt like crying, not in sadness, but in yearning for the real thing, the real silent Action that is Yours exclusively...

... This afternoon after my second daily tour at Janet's I ended up with John H and Ramalingam visiting the Aurofuture office at Bharat Nivas and meeting with Roger A and Catherine over the extension and finishing of the 4 pillars of Matrimandir, discussing details with them and Jacq... I was surprised to find that they all assumed I would do the work... I hadn't realised they'd been talking about it...!

... Gopal just came in with a message from Krishna, that startled me, a little painfully too! Upon his return from Delhi, he'd given me a small photograph of him, which he'd had taken for his passport; now, he says, he wants it back, as he feels insecure in my atmosphere and through me has been "attacked" by a vicious and nasty energy taking E.B's form and therefore wants no further contact with me; and yet, he adds, that doesn't affect the tenderness he feels for me, which is greater than he is and beyond his grasp...!

I have sent the picture back with a few words, answering that I didn't know but perhaps I ought to say also, then, that deformations coming from him or through him do cause me trouble as well...?

I wish, though, that he would break away from this false occultism and be more honest about his own movements...!

Yet I don't know, Douce Mère... It all seems to belong to that false world of shadow – I don't want to be part of it in any way, I don't want it to use me in any way; but over the years I have come to the understanding that it will continue to assume reality as long as there remains in us any trace of dishonesty and crookedness... From the standpoint of that subjected consciousness, even You were used by it...

25-3-1989, Auroville:

I had a long quiet walk on the beach. Sometimes there is a surge of pure enthusiasm, because It is, because of the Gift of Awareness, in which all mental and emotional conceptions of the Divine happily drop and melt away and remains only the sense of an infinite, limitless Possibility...

... At Matrimandir, LN seems to have decided to team up with me; I don't mind, I think I can work with anybody there, for the time being.

I am more exposed to the general atmosphere of Auroville these days, to what people think, to their movements and little choices in life, and... it isn't a very supportive atmosphere: it is rather grey and hollow, and a little sad, in spite of all the show of social "fun"...

27-3-1989, Auroville:

This has been a charged day, but I am learning. At every point one must check for resurgences of ego, but I learn not to do it negatively, but to place it before the growth of the "vrai regard", the "true position"... One feels supported then, and what was felt as impossibilities begins to appear as mere absurdities, irrelevant inconsistencies; at the same time the necessity is even more imperative to be at peace – a sort of neutral, blank, attuned immobility...

... O Mother, make this awareness safe, secure and solid... This is so beautiful, this is the way...!

... Within the present play of forces, reactions and formations at Matrimandir, I have felt it was necessary and only fair to try and open the communication with Piero regarding all the work and particularly the work on the pillars; I approached him this morning and we met for over an hour; I feel a drive to make myself available for a breakthrough in the present situation – mainly between Roger A and Piero – so that the spirit of Matrimandir itself may indicate how it all must be done, materially... And the pillars are logically the starting-point...

28-3-1989, Auroville:

After the work at Janet's this evening I went back to Matrimandir to meet with Arjun; he'd asked for a talk about the situation and the work; he wants me very much to start the work on the pillars, regardless of Piero's response to it; after a while Toine joined in, and we shared a long, honest conversation of about two hours; I better see the actual situation now, with its entrenchments, and the more I see of it, the more absurd it appears to me... Please, keep me secure, Mother!

... I actually enjoy the work in the Chamber now, and LN seems to have adopted me; I still have qualms and misgivings, though, about trying to complete the Chamber when the rest of the sphere is still so far from completion; and therefore I must do my best and find the courage and the support to also start the work on the 4 pillars... Show me, make the way...!

30-3-1989, Auroville:

I had a three-hour session with Catherine this evening on the work of the pillars, with all the drawings and calculations, seeing details and various possibilities in relation to other elements of Roger A's plan... We studied on the structure, by the structure and later, at dark, in the office, and so far solutions that are synthetic and harmonious seem to emerge from the very physicality of Matrimandir; I find Catherine to be open and attentive... The next steps will be to check with Toine for the electrification and with Piero for possible solutions that may cancel his objections... And after that we'll have to get back to Roger A with clear proposals... Up until now it seems to make sense and there is a thread... Help me, Douce Mère, to follow it truly...

31-3-1989, Auroville:

There is some resistance in the atmosphere. Obviously the fact that people know I am committing to the work on the 4 pillars is acting like a virtual nest of misunderstandings ready to take flight...! But I also feel there is the necessary protection.

... I like the morning work; and the Pressure is there and that makes me profoundly happy. In human terms, though, I either feel blank or almost painfully bored by... whatever it is that constitutes this human, social existence...

As I grow, you become more and more beautiful and true and creative, Douce Mère, creative of the One condition of existence that alone can fulfil and justify all that has been...

... I wasn't well tuned this evening; even at the Samadhi I couldn't concentrate well; I didn't feel the Presence there particularly, and I was almost irritated or annoyed with this perpetual ritual of devotion around so-called "death" – that is, when it is safe to merely adore, and one isn't required or challenged into living commitment... It is Your Life I want; it is That, tangible, the One...

1-4-1989, Auroville:

Without That, this life and this world are a farcical waste and an absurdity.

Without That, time is swallowed, the body ages and nothing bears the fruit; there is no becoming, but only a fragmented, tedious, clumsy, endless evolution...

2-4-1989, Auroville:

I am done. The house is in order, everything ready for both Su and JYL to move in. The laundry is on the line. The body is fairly clean. The dinner is cooking for Su and me.

I had a relaxing moment mid-morning, when N came to me, for a sweet and gentle "farewell" meeting, as we won't be able to meet for a month or so, with the house full...!

And earlier, at breakfast, Lila came; this was supposed to be a surprise, concocted by Su and her, that she would come of a morning and sing a song for me; but I had found out and not liked the idea of it, although Lila is dear to me and most welcome; the thing had the undertone that one must have "fun" and not be too serious in life, etc... But I already find Auroville much damaged by this very snug humanity; and so Lila had to be content with just having tea with us. Then this was followed by Barbara's visit and her pouring out all her resentment and distress at the way things are moving in Auroville – commercialising even the services of the collective... And then Coni came, to talk to me about a project she has of turning Krishna's old house, of which he has given her the key, into a children' centre... This is alright with me but we do not have enough water and she might have to see about drilling another well...

3-4-1989, Auroville:

I am rather taken up by Matrimandir again. The work of completing the 4 pillars is a thread to resolve the entire outer material truth of it, amidst all the positions assumed by all those concerned: the factions, the opinions, the formations and the reactions; at times I feel I am drowning in it, and I have to edge back towards a direct and simple contact with the material reality and integrity of Matrimandir, with its requirements; and on that level it seems to move well enough. The next work to be done, and the one after that, becomes fairly evident.

But the issues that divide people there tend to neutralise every attempt to be open and willing.

And then, personally, I don't quite know how to manage. The work in the Chamber feels right for me, at this point; it has the type of concentration that can best help me. But I also have the impression that, if I am clear on my commitment to the entire structure of Matrimandir, then I should perhaps give up attachment to the very quietness I find in the Chamber...

... This morning Arjun arranged a meeting in the office with Toine and Catherine; with Toine it was alright, as he agreed to adapt the electrification work to the new possibilities we have elaborated; but Arjun seems to be clinging to the division with Piero, and insists that I shall reach nowhere by trying on and on to communicate with Piero... But then, afterwards, I found Piero and talked it out with him; it was his birthday too...!

On his request, Piero and I had a long talk this morning. He told me in some detail the idea he and Paolo have for the completion of the pillars and the access to the sphere; I hadn't known about it, and it isn't very clear; but I feel moved by his will and need to try and materialise something that would meet Your spoken requirements or descriptions. The problem is that he doesn't have the width of vision, or the capacity, to propose an over-all model for the entire surroundings and approach to Matrimandir that would resolve all the issues...

Later I was asked by Andy to give everybody an update of the work Catherine, John H and I have been doing...

... The issues at Matrimandir are occupying me constantly now; but I have found that it all gives to the inner progress a field that is more integral, that it actualises it... In this way I am able to persevere in trying to break through a set of resistances and contradictions which lay over the work like an affliction...

... In human terms, Matrimandir seems to be in a precarious moment; but I am given to feel and see things from another position, as of the beginning of Your way, Your wonderful way: it isn't all poetic, it isn't "ideal", it isn't bliss, but it is one step removed from the ego's world, one step closer to the true world...

I am 39 today. Even though I knew well that both C and JYL were glad to be with me on that day, I still managed to have forgotten all about it when I woke up this morning... But, there have been lots of gifts, with a real affection, from C and JYL and from Su and Ar....

11-4-1989, Auroville:

I couldn't avoid going back to "Ravena", so that C and JYL could see it completed. I knew that I'd be saddened, or angered, by the state I'd find it in; I have put it all out of my active consciousness, not knowing what to do about it short of declaring war... And so we went, in the morning, and I found the place exactly as I had feared or expected it would be – neglect, carelessness, dirt everywhere, and the pervading sense of indifference: the ordinary life... Yet the place cannot be denied its true nature: despite the chaos, there's still the high quality of that space... I can't help asking "why, Mother, didn't You accept the offering of "Ravena?", as if You were responsible for people's consciousness... But aren't You, somehow?

... It is a delight to be working with JYL in the Chamber. But now the dominant or prevalent mind-set, the group condition, begins to affect me like a weight; in the first days I still had the distance to allow me to bring in a different energy and commitment, and this had harmonious consequences; but little by little I have begun to rely on the general atmosphere, instead of relying exclusively on You, and to expect some communication, a movement and a flow... And this is wrong; I know that I must shift, and have no expectations whatsoever, except from the Force... I must find the time to concentrate – and this itself nowadays is a bit of a challenge, given my "family scene"....!

I would never be able to constantly live with people, even the dearest ones...! Because of our physical constitution, the body's needs – mostly food, and the preparation and the partaking of it – become so prominent and sort of compulsory occasions, which I find extremely difficult to turn into conscious moments... And these days, since I am back at Matrimandir, I have perforce to hear so much talk: people there are so incontinent that one may wonder whether there can be humanity without noise...!

... I gather that very recently, within the last few weeks, in several countries including India, the same experiment has been conducted in various laboratories: passing an electric current through a bottle filled with heavy water – palladium mostly, I think – an enormous amount of energy is released: this would herald a momentous revolution: freedom from so many bondages, and energy available to all...

But perhaps You'll bring him back here very soon; I see that he has a lot to go through in his physical consciousness, and my impression is that it will be easier, quieter and less dramatic if he can be here... But how do I know what is best, in Your terms, for anyone, even for me...?

... R has given me several books and reviews to read that are on or related to AIDS; his son has been contaminated, and he himself is deeply involved into the research. But I can't read that language; I feel more and more like an imbecile: whatever has to go through the mind, or rather whatever comes from people's minds or from the general mental milieu makes me go blank, frozen... I don't know what is truly expected of one, in terms of "action", of initiative... The situation around Matrimandir, between the people who are concerned with its work, is very weird. One ought to feel a very clear necessity to initiate some process of resolution, but I feel no support from the Pressure, no indication to move one way or another. Everyone is stuck in some absurd, particular position; the group that has formed around Piero wants Arjun out, and ugly masks are worn; John H is confused; and there is such incontinence all around, and all this "having fun"...

I still believe that to start the work on the pillars can help clear out the atmosphere, even if that implies the enacting of conflicting attitudes for a while. I don't understand anything, really; to me Matrimandir is such a simple evidence, so packed with Force, that it can only be a joy to let it reveal itself, down to the very last detail of the Gardens... As soon as someone else joins me, a set of energies comes into play and calls for attention – a new balance and harmony to achieve -, and the main purpose is veiled; it was only in JYL's company that not only I could remain centred in the silence of the need, but the centring had itself an added quality of sharing...

18-5-1989, Auroville:

The situation among the people at Matrimandir is becoming critical. I wouldn't know how to sum it up; clearly, though, it just cannot go on... I haven't been present to all the recent incidents, as I've mostly been trying to concentrate on the work and to get hold of a thread in the midst of all these conflicts. But now lines are being drawn between two sides, with loud undertones of racial conflict.

Piero and his group are losing all sense of perspective; Piero is doing some ugly manoeuvring.

It appears that 3 of his group have gone to Arjun to tell him to go away, and that this move was triggered by some emotional upset on Mauna's part... That same evening, Ramalingam called all the boys together and they decided to ask for a general meeting to clarify the situation...

I hadn't known any of that! I had been working with Selvam in the Chamber; I had seen that Mauna was upset, earlier, and sensed that the whole group, as usual – Edzart and Andy and P and Giovanni and Lorenzo – was working itself up...

It is all quite insane and becoming so grotesque, practically, that now Selvam and I are doing between us, effortlessly, three times as much work as the whole gang of them is doing, so engrossed they are in this elemental, ugly enactment...

19-5-1989, Auroville:

This morning there was tension and unease. Both Selvam and Ramalingam told me about their meeting and showed me the letter they have written.

At tea-break, when the boys learnt of the action taken against Arjun – Piero has written to the Bank asking for Arjun's formal dismissal, they got so upset that there nearly was a fist-fight between Giovanni and Ramalingam.

Later in the morning Ojha came, on an official visit, and called all of us down again; he made a speech, rather sweet with an obviously sincere feeling, but making it quite clear that he was prepared to formally intervene if we couldn't reach a harmony together...

At the end of the morning work, after 1.30 pm, I met quietly with Arjun and Deepti; and I knew then how critical the situation is... But somehow I also feel it is also all to the good, because it is time a shadow is lifted from the work at Matrimandir; Piero has now gone too far...

Let it be a true release, and a new start; there is so much wonderful work to be done...

... This afternoon, I was a little dazed, and rested too late; and N came to me, and it was simple and tender.

20-5-1989, Auroville:

This morning' meeting at Matrimandir yielded some result: a little opening to start on a new basis. The boys were beautiful: they demanded that these "Coordination group' meetings" must cease and the Matrimandir affairs go back to the larger forum of all the workers, and no issue should be dealt in small groups; I also insisted that we may not condone or support in any way such actions as the one Piero took against Arjun (his letter and his spoken accusations to the Bank Manager) and that we must all make an effort, individually and together, to be free from any influence, be it Piero's or Roger A's or anyone's or anything' that is not IT...

... It seems that Al.B has recently written to Satprem and that a long reply has come, which Ar. wants to take down for me...

21-5-1989, Auroville:

I am thinking a lot of Matrimandir. How to progress there, and how to reach a truer way of working together: I can see a sort of organic hierarchy, allowing for all the energies to find their place in the material realisation... But the question remains: is it right to propose it, and to work towards it, or should one merely accept the unfolding of forces at play...?

Psychologically the atmosphere is sickened, and thick with tamas... I do not know the answer; and I don't know either why I do not know it...! Perhaps I am afraid of getting my ego into it, and of having to cope with the ignorant returns... Or perhaps some abscess must first burst open and a preliminary cleansing take place before one may usefully propose a direction and the outlines of a work to be shared...

22-5-1989, Auroville:

The air was sweet with damp earth and the garden was lovely when I left this morning... I went first to Janet's, as usual, on my way to Matrimandir; when I reached the Chamber, Gloria came up, alone; I was glad of it: we never have a chance to see each other any more. We talked quietly, of the general situation and of Satprem's letter; I felt I could share with her a little of the experience You have given me these past months, and how for the first time in my life I have truly been happy, because That is there... Later I wanted to say also how stupid Piero had been in his recent actions, but the old contradiction of her life came up, and I became quiet.. She left. And the rest of the morning I found myself sad and irritable, and became impatient at the sluggish pace we're all contented to go, with this sort of cheap fatalism that is so close to inertia...

... This evening Catherine and I took measurements for the work on the pillars, and figured out more details of the organisation of the space – such as where the people would leave their shoes, where they'd wash their feet...

Something MUST happen at Matrimandir, so that we may pick up the thread of Your service...

23-5-1989, Auroville:

I wish I could put myself at the service of a true force of evolution and progress, but... I guess I am not ready...! I don't know... If at least there was some fire in the moments of the day, in people there; or if each one was trying, out of real need, to dispel the illusion that You are gone...!

I feel so inadequate...

He keeps asking me to let him move in here with me; this has been going on for nearly two years, but he has now begun to press more; I say that I want to live alone; so then, he says, let him build a small capsule over here, nearby, and do any work with me... I don't know...

26-5-1989, Auroville:

It is strange how Selvam has been insisting, slowly but with growing certainty, that I must help him to read and write, as a way for him to move beyond the limitedness of his present circumstances; I have from the beginning felt him to be an older being, and I have known him with a kind of inner joy; but the dearness that gets confirmed by our daily work together is also yielding some attraction, and I do not know what to do with it or about it... It is clear, though, that he wants to progress, and to come into his own...

27-5-1989, Auroville:

Half of this morning went into a long meeting of nearly all of the Matrimandir workers. There are still all these accumulated tensions but there seems to be in most people a wanting to reach for another basis for the work which must be done and can only be done together... I felt quiet all through...

But later, while at the Samadhi for a moment of rest and assimilation, I realised that this quietness I now feel is actually one consequence of having turned more wholly toward That, of having been enabled to open more concretely to It... And that I must not let the play of forces, through people and contacts, supersede that need and that opening.

The situation seems to be a sort of impasse: mentally we do not have the means to "solve" it. Even with the best of goodwill, if there is no conscious anchoring to the new condition that is to come, we shall reach nowhere, not in human terms, nor materially... I am reluctant to put words on this, but it is so important...

28-5-1989, Auroville: Open Letter.

"This is a wholesome complaint.

I complain that the women of this place aren't doing their job.

I resent it. It is getting to be suffocating.

Whether I, or we, can derive some sort of benefit from the event of suffocation remains to be seen.

But meanwhile – while I can still articulate – I wish to share my complaint.

What do we have here at present?

We have the cumulated defects of two trends: a small self-institutionalising society, and a small selfish anarchy within comfortable limits.

We are wasting time and Her gift.

We have boards, units, committees, trusts, all rigid formations made by men, which cannot progress and need to be dismantled or multiplied as they go: unyielding structures.

We have executives all over the place, nearly all of them men, self-appointed with a nice thought for balance: two heavies, one light-weight, and no notion, no sense whatsoever of a flow of creative energy.

At Matrimandir for instance, where one can see and touch the impasse in its quintessence, we have been asked to nominate executives (Government regulations); those two are fighting; so we pull back one heavy and replace him with a lighter one and in-between we put another one who is supposed to be "neither here nor there"; if that doesn't appease the spirits, we're all set to add two, three, or even four more, picked from opposite sides, in order to achieve... what? A sort of status quo of decency...

Men like to be decent. They feel sorry when they don't make it.

As for the actual function of "executives", all we know is that it may have to do, even if nominally, with some sort of control or power; therefore the political gloves.

But take one look at the whole scene, at the atmosphere pervading the work at Matrimandir and the physical place: an embattled territory, not an inch of free space: men' egos, men' conceptions, men' plans, men' exclusivism...

Yet Matrimandir, according to Her (who remains until further notice the sole authority over all matters here), besides being the soul of this collective adventure, happens to be also the House of the Mother – of the Creative Principle; it is being built so that may flow the Force that alone can create the beginning of a material basis for the New World.

This Force alone can, as we all must know very well, direct our energies to the seat of the true consciousness.

Alright; to reach there, Mother is helping each of us, regardless of the circumstances, provided we are willing; and for that stretch women as such may go on sleeping if they wish. Anyone, man or woman, with Her help can eventually reach the border and open to That and even learn to hold It.

But there is something that men as such, however much they fret, cannot achieve: it is to collaborate with that pure Force down into our lives and our matter.

At Matrimandir nowadays this Creative Force is nearly completely blocked, hampered by the negative alchemy of confluent rigidities.

A trickle of it keeps flowing. Even that is precarious.

It is not the Force itself that is precarious. It is what's left of our receptivity to It.

Remember, those who were there, what was pouring over us all at the time when, according to our senses, She was sitting in Her chair, up in Her room?!

Why not now?

We all want That to be back, don't we? We all want It to be concrete, active, constant, day and night, in every movement, at every instant, don't we?

What is usually called "creativity" is like the foam of the wave: external harmony, some beauty and refinement, a certain richness of expression – we have plenty of all that, thanks.

But it is the women' job to attune to that Creative Principle that alone can seize the bits of truth here and there, left, right and centre, and use them all in Its flow; that alone can discern the far-reaching purpose through all the myriad of small steps to be made, not with the mind or with the emotions, but with an innate sense of birth-giving.

Gentleness, grace, charm and ease, and nearly all the qualities that are conventionally the contribution of the feminine can be achieved and manifested by men as well.

But just as perhaps only men can stand alone in the Presence and let go, only women can actually learn to become one with the creative flow of the Force in life and matter.

It is a most difficult job. But it is crucial.

If it is not done, Auroville will remain at best on a tangent, on and on; never quite getting there.

I find this prospect even more frightening than failing entirely.

Divakar"

Clarification:

"To try and make myself clear: I find that we have a serious problem here, of energy.

The right, the true energy, the one Energy that can build the real Auroville, the real Matrimandir, isn't flowing – or only a trickle of it does. And therefore all of "our energies" are ill-used, if not misused.

What we have is a status-quo.

It is the natural consequence of unresolved conflicts enacted by men; the end-result of a bargain between egos: you yield this, I yield that; you have this, I have that. And let us sit on each side of the fence and wait out our mutual siege.

Like the making of Europe, or like disarmament, it is typical of masculine conduct.

In our case nothing has truly been worked out and nothing truly creative can happen; the ground of manifestation is frozen.

Usually such situations are helped on by those who crave in ordinary ways – ambitious men, trading men, money-makers; they'll trample their own mothers and embrace their enemies: they will be un-ethical but at least life will move on.

Here, what can we do?

At some level of creative resolution, it should have been Roger and Piero who, breaking away from their own personal limitations, for Her and with Her help, made the step and released the flow.

It clearly didn't happen.

Each has, from his own point of view, valid reasons for blaming the other.

The point isn't there.

The point is: how can It flow again?

How can Matrimandir be completed, become whole and functioning, vibrant with Her Force? And how in the process can we, all and each of us, find commitment and progress?

I am no "feminist". And really I believe we are all here to try and become true individuals – persons, consciousnesses – whether we happen to be of one gender or another; and besides, as Mother has explained, there is no longer a pure feminine or a pure masculine anywhere incarnated. Each one individual must learn to integrate both the aspects and their myriad variations.

Yet there is still a basic difference, regardless of the physiological apparatus: women have access more innately, intimately, directly and consciously, if they aspire for it, to the creative nature of the Force; they can almost effortlessly seek for living ways of resolution and discern processes towards progressive harmony; they can approach issues with a deep practical sense, in a perspective that is lasting and basically integral – non-exclusive.

If here in Auroville we become able to let that sense express itself at the service of Her Work, to make room for it and support it and strengthen it, right into Matter, then it will become interesting, and I am confident that Matrimandir will again guide our movements in this adventure.

There is no criticism involved here.

It is only that I feel constantly that it is up to us, not with muscles or with minds but with an active need, to break through this impasse.

My choice of words may be inadequate; please understand.

Divakar"

I am developing an attachment to Selvam; I can't help letting rise again a longing for the sort of friendship that I have been missing over the years, something at once physical and inner, a mutual giving and fulfilling that wouldn't be exclusive because it would know itself and be sure of itself... I haven't been actually looking for it; it just came: Selvam came to me. Perhaps for him it is only a sort of extended security, the sense of being appreciated and welcome; perhaps it is more: I am not sure. But I tend to trust him.

... I want to merge into that condition where I have found Your gift of oneness.

I want that and yet, again and again, those parts of "me" that are still attracted to human fulfilment get triggered, called upon, and then it is "I" again, and a divided, hesitant, unsure oscillation...

State upon state upon state,
Stepping up and down towards
A rounded infinity
Whose centre
Whirls and breathes
In perfect eternity"

Last night, during our watch, Su brought me documents just received from France regarding the break between Auroville and the French Association, in the wake of "Mira Aditi"'s recent departure from here; the "official" document states their change of purpose and name to "Agenda International France", and listing their reasons for doing so. Another document has been made by a woman who has been kept away from this move and could only attend the last "assembly" and, along with a few others such as D.D and Klara, tried to object.

Agreeing with the move, alas, were all those who have recently left Auroville, including G.M, Ulrich and Eliane, etc. According to them, Auroville is "finished"; it has lost any significance; the Agenda has been rejected by Auroville and therefore they, who want the Truth and are following Satprem's and Sujata's guidance must also turn away from Auroville and consecrate themselves to the real work... And so on and on...

I find it all at once comical and gross and frightening and bewildering, and very petty...

There was a very long session this morning, which was taken up by two questions: one, whether Matrimandir will try and join the "new" economic organisation in Auroville; and two, a detailed and punctilious review of all the "rules and regulations" of our meetings and of all financial operations... It ended well after 1 pm and then Luigi wanted to talk to me about the work-situation, and I had to rush back here to get into the taxi to accompany Ar. to the airport... She was quiet, but apprehensive and not too happy to go - her mother has invited her for the summer

-, but perhaps seeing this journey as providing a helpful distance; I kept her laughing, though, and it was simple, and without fuss...

I cycled down to the beach this evening under a dark stormy sky and walked there, by the quiet vivid sea, and it was almost there; I was almost absorbed again in that one centring; but the human longing was hovering still, expectant: the persisting enslavement to the attraction born from the separation...

On my way back G.G caught up with me and told me the news: the Chinese army killing thousands of students, with tanks and guns, on the orders of that tiny old monster who still wields such incredible power... And I thought of stupid Rajeev Gandhi who keeps missing every right turn and has opened India's flanks even wider to the danger that China still represents (it is mean and almost inhuman, and can strike terrible blows)...

7-6-1989, Auroville:

This morning in the Chamber was somehow especially sweet; Selvam came earlier than usual and stayed the whole time and I am happy with both him and Narayana, whom I appreciate more and more as our years in Auroville pass... Also, Mauna has quietly circulated my paper and, later, at the end of our shift, Piero came up to me, almost like a child, sober and rather subdued, wanting me to understand how Roger A has along been the one to blame (!) and those, such as G.M, who have agitated on his behalf; Piero didn't deny, however, that we may now need a fresh approach, from a different perspective... But I find that he has become very defeatist, and attaches far too much importance to committed wrongs and hurts... he too needs a push and a lift...!

... Tonight during my watch, Narayana talked to me a long time about the "torture" he has suffered under Arjun... and of his own efforts at sadhana...

Am I capable of being an instrument for a renewal of energies there? I don't know. Narayana said that he'd liked my open letter very much and was in full support of my proposal, but... will You show me, step by step, moment by moment?

8-6-1989, Auroville:

I have the impression of standing on a border. It is not precise, nor quite positive: it is mostly a blank. In ordinary terms, I am being processed through this encounter with Selvam, in the sense that my own private store of emotional involvement, or what's left of it, is activated, and I am shy and uncertain about it. The hours we spend working together are sweet. And yet, as today, when he has to leave early and I remain alone at work, there is at once a relief, an immediate clearing, and I am in contact again...

11-6-1989, Auroville:

Two Indian engineers came today to meet with us, who have offered to make studies for both the 4 pillars extensions and the structures of the 12 large petals around the sphere (as per Roger A's design). They have figured their best, but Roger's concept is like a magnet for complications; it is such an unsound proposition that I cannot understand how anyone can still support it (such as Luigi or Arjun, for instance); at best it implies such a large uncertainty; there can be no guarantee that it will be durable, and the whole point of this monumental architecture is so pretentious, and so essentially meaningless, or useless... The entire array of positions taken by people around this issue is enough to drive one to madness or at any rate to take one's leave of reason for good!

I don't know what to do, really.

I am again considering trying to work out on my own some alternative proposal – but what can ever happen to it, something made by "me"? This is truly maddening. The stubbornness displayed by some people here is seated at a level which I am not able to reach; it is very odd.

... We could soon start, I suppose, just one pillar extension; perhaps that will help... But to move materially in the midst of such blindness is rather a dubious challenge... Where to seek help?

13-6-1989, Auroville:

After talking with Catherine, and with Piero, separately, I don't see any other way now than to try and figure a simple, cohesive alternative to the whole design; but it doesn't feel right that I should do it; so, how?

I see that my impatience was premature and vain. Now I do not want to start this work, because it is too blind, it is a piece-meal advance, and I don't find Matrimandir's support for that.

It is somewhat attractive to just withdraw and let things follow their course; but isn't this very attitude far too well represented already, and generating this atmosphere of imbalance and inertia...?

... This evening I went to visit with Selvam at his house on the beach – the house that D has sort of built "for him". I find he is at some dead-end, and I feel for him. He wants so much to go away, and be released from his two families for a while, and to have other experiences of his own life than the one he's always had of working, since a child, to support his own people... I am moved by his need and would help him if I can, but my own longing is too strong at the moment and my own selfishness is in the way...

Selvam is leaving tonight to the hills with Janah, for several days, to prepare the summer camp. He bade me farewell this morning after the work. And this afternoon I began to open again to, or to regain awareness of, the Pressure; I felt acutely how I'd been like pinned down within a tight closed room for weeks, due to this new-born attachment; it wasn't so much that a weight was lifted as that some contrary magnet ceased to act, and the physical consciousness could expand again and reach within and above...

... Shano was waiting for me when I returned for my walk on the beach this evening, and I made dinner for both of us; he's been quiet, unobtrusive. He gave me, though, more depressing news of "Ravena" (where he still stays at night as a kind of guardian): it does seem that I have failed my duty there, by leaving it into the wrong hands...

I am going on translating Soham's text and actually enjoying it. Despite the poor language and the repetitions, the semantic unclarities and sometimes an obvious lack of maturity or perspective, it is a sincere attempt at sharing a genuine and valid experience; and it is also interesting for me to try and make it flow better in the French language.

... Sometimes I am shocked, to the point of disgust, at the signs of ageing, at the growing disharmonies, imbalances or imperfections it forces on the body; perhaps it is one odd trait of my constitution, that there's always been a simultaneity of the maturing and the ageing processes, as well as a constant fluctuation of energy, so that there are moments when the body is filled and smooth and others when it is drained, dissociated, old... In these moments I experience such an acute and sharp contradiction with both my internal, psychological status, whereby I still feel like a young boy, a teenager, and the inner reality, wherein I am ageless... It is in a way like having all the experiences at once that the physiological time is supposed to bring about successively...

JYL has sent me a series of photographs he'd taken here, 4 of which are of Auragni – he'd met her or, rather, heard her name called and seen her at play in "Aspiration" and decided there and then that he must take her picture for me. She looks serious, and intent, and beautiful; my first reaction was "I don't know her anymore", and then it was "she looks too much like Diane"; but now I look at the prints again and I see she will really be beautiful and unique... Will she ever come back to me...?

... This morning I asked Catherine whether she'd help me to work on another, simpler design for the completion of Matrimandir... She is still very much under Roger A's influence and loyal to him to a point of near-blindness, but she is willing to look at it with me...

His wife, it seems, has tried to hang herself; he'd come home and found her still alive, and called people to help, who took her away; and the next day her relatives came to beat him up; he'd worked himself drunk so he could come to me and he was all set to leave his children in my care and go finish himself off... This all took quite some time and finally I drove them home and left food-money with them...

The meeting at Matrimandir this morning started rather dangerously; Mauna had posted her letter of resignation and sent Ed to return all keys, and it seems that yesterday Ed had already come to threaten Arjun; and so there were first all kinds of heavy arguments back and forth, until everyone agreed to concentrate on work matters, and thereafter it proceeded rather well, for once; I was even able to announce that work on one pillar extension was ready to start, and there was no opposition... Selvam came back to work this morning, and Narayana kept gently teasing me because I couldn't help my happiness; but as I am still uncertain of how much Selvam wants our friendship to develop, I find myself also burdened with the weight of something too vital or too one-sided, alone with that same old longing...

Even though the Pressure has been there all day, steady and immobile and wonderful, there were moments of tension in the morning, when I nearly slipped and fell off the scaffold... I find there's been some disharmony in my work since LN insisted to take up one entire section of a wall on his own, and he is so devoid of any team-spirit and so separate and such an arguer for each and every detail, that it has thrown the pace of the work off-balance; and today both Piero and I got upset at him for making it so complicated, at which Narayana, who'd been trying to help LN, got angry at me, and that pained me most... I want to fix that first thing tomorrow, it is no good like that...

... It is the beginning of the work at the pillar; there are hesitations and awkwardness and I am not too sure how to proceed most effectively: I need to be very calm and focussed and go step by step...

28-6-1989, Auroville:

All morning at work, even though the Pressure was there with its immobile love, and Selvam was with me, sweet and quiet, I felt like crying, because of Narayana's change of attitude over the incident with LN; he is now closed and unsmiling, just as unhappy as I am but determined to remain separate; I don't mind LN: even if I find him unnerving, as most of us do, I do not resent him; but to see this beautiful Narayana get clouded over by such a silly argument feels like a pain... Even Piero came to me very gently to tell me he hadn't been able to convince LN to do better, because the other team, Andy's, wasn't either... I get a sense of disharmony being like a disease, always ready to creep in, to dissociate, to aggravate, for which there seems to be no cure as long as each of us retains some allegiance to ego...

... At the pillar, there isn't much I myself can do at this stage, short of making a show of breaking stones or carrying mud with the team employed by Ramalingam, and getting blisters that will be no help in the marble-work... So I meditate on the Petals design, on some alternative structure around the sphere, on the discs design or an alternative to it, on and on...

And this evening, while doing the asanas, I listened to the conversations of January 1970 on Matrimandir, and wondered once more what is to be done with Roger A's architectural creations... What do You like, Mother? Truly, what do You like?

I no longer have the conviction to say "no" to anything; and yet Roger A's design, even when I accept it and seek practical ways to realise it, doesn't reach the condition of peace and vastness that is inherent to Matrimandir: there's too much will in it, and it is at once too specific and too spectacular... Help, Mother!

30-6-1989, Auroville:

I hadn't been exposed to so much for a long time...

With Selvam it is fluctuating; we have entered another phase, where adjustments are more frequent and we get to know more of each other's life; I have this longing to make it worthwhile, to create a space of our own...

And with Matrimandir, things tend to get very edgy; Mauna has now posted an open letter stating the reasons that led her to resign, and it is rather devastating for Arjun; Piero asked me to read it this morning and to tell him what I thought; I did what I could to stress a direction we could all take together as a commitment, rather than blaming anyone in particular for our difficulties to relate to one another... I see that Arjun too is the prisoner of his own rigidity and of the consequence of expressing them with much vital strength; but I don't know really. Just as for the design, I still fail to see a way to break through all the formations. I keep searching, but I also sense that I am not yet at that point of need and consecration where I can no longer be mistaken or misled, where there can no longer come any deforming interference between Matrimandir and my own receptivity...

I had a very disturbing night. I had to repel whole processions of people clad in white but with an unclear, false intent, and I was holding a rod that was smouldering at its end; they didn't pass. But later I found that another, more ordinary crowd had massed near the house, and it was connected to something N had done... I got up drained, and not looking forward to the day at Matrimandir...

And the morning meeting was terrible. Piero insisted that Mauna's letter must be read out; it had been translated in Tamil and many copies circulated. And then he demanded that Arjun must make a gesture of goodwill. I tried to call everyone's attention to the real effort and commitment we could all make, instead of focussing on individuals, but Piero wouldn't let go; he'd worked himself up so much that he too declared he was resigning, unless he got the assurance that he and his "collaborators" could work "in peace", and this "poisonous atmosphere" was cleared; he called Arjun a "psychopath", and Arjun called him I can't remember what... It was quite sick; like a curse gaining strength the more one moves...

The only good moment came when Selvam announced that he'd arranged for a Tamil teacher to come 5 evenings a week to teach a large group of the Matrimandir workers to read and write in English, and the meeting agreed that Matrimandir could pay part of the teacher's salary...

Now what? Piero's resignation, on top of Mauna's, would mean that much of the work would soon be halted; and Arjun will remain seated in his plush office, the giggling Stuart by his side, doing what?

Piero's show was stupid, and his repeated threats to withdraw are boring... But the atmosphere seems to be only worsening, as if through our weaknesses we were all inexorably dragged to the defeat of the whole purpose...

I was feeling quite sick, as if to smile was a thing no longer of this world; sick too of my own clinging and wanting to own, in relation to Selvam, of my incapacity to reach out in purity – not the moral purity but the purity of a movement devoid of wanting, secure in the truth and integrity of its own self-giving... We are miserable creatures. In that condition, there can be no future...

... Janet, this afternoon, insisted that I must carry on and bring out my proposal for a new direction at Matrimandir and a process to be adhered to in order to come out of this impasse... She was so positive about it that it drew me out of depression, and when I returned here I sat re-writing the paper I had prepared about two weeks ago... Menaig also came to sit with me this evening, having now realised that participation of another kind is now necessary...

... F.J has written that he and Chr.J are thinking to come here next January along with C, and asking what I think of it...!

1-7-1989, Proposal:

Introduction:

"The text that follows was written about three weeks ago; I didn't share it at the time because I felt it would be so much better if the workers of Matrimandir could either find a progressive balance or, as a group, issue a similar request to Auroville at large.

Since then however, first Mauna and now Piero have resigned from their work at Matrimandir; their respective decisions to do so were triggered by a difficult, unresolved inter-personal conflict in the context of the day-to-day work – not over the issue of design, at this point.

Yet I would maintain that such conflicts can only last and become suffocating when the flow of energy is blocked or hampered to a serious degree, when it can no longer help each one to find the right work, the right place and the right function within a whole.

Matrimandir is giving us all a test – a tough one: to discover how It needs and wants to be made complete and how It wants to communicate to the world; to discover Its true living functions.

We do not need more meetings; we do not need more flags, more exclusivism; we do not need compromises.

We need the contribution of individuals of Auroville who recognise the necessity of a solid physical anchor into the True, so that a collective being may evolve past the divisive mental ego."

Proposal:

"I wish to request Auroville to become actively concerned with Matrimandir and the choices and decisions to be made regarding its completion.

My suggestion would be to call for a research team whose work would be based on a fresh approach to the problems of choice involved, who would be impartial in the sense that they would endeavour to listen to all the viewpoints and seek to identify the components of a harmonious solution, which could then be presented to the community at large.

We badly need this fresh approach.

In a recent proposal I made, at Matrimandir, I mentioned a team formed of women who would have had the experience of the flowing of the Mother's Force in the physical, in the early days of Auroville; I did so because it seemed to me the closest we could get to this necessary approach: a level of resolution wherein practicality and inner sense are one; where what matters most is the flow, the active and peaceful and puissant transforming flow of Her Force, without which there can be no Matrimandir and no Auroville worth speaking about, without which there can be no individual centring, no change of condition and no new creation.

I felt that these women, were they willing, would be more capable of attuning to it, responding to it and working from it.

But in whatever form something must come from Auroville, as a tribute to the central and indispensable function of Matrimandir – the soul of Auroville, yes, and also the House of the Creative Principle, and the actual tool a collective venture towards a truer life needs now and will increasingly need in future.

Back in 1987, this approach was lacking. It was lacking in the General Meeting of October 1987 which, supposedly, unanimously or "by consensus" chose to follow the design offered by Roger.

Now, nearly two years later, we are still spell-bound in the very same situation, only worsened and grown almost habitual: absence of dialogue, entrenchment of positions, accumulated hurts and ego-reactions. And nothing has happened on the ground; nothing has materialised; there hasn't been a single break-through.

Some research work is still being pursued outside Auroville, but it has little backing. Yet the positions remain as rooted, even though a large number of individuals have dropped out.

It is easy to say "oh! let them work it out"... But it is of no use.

The facts are that a "decision" was taken by Auroville; that it is binding and also paralysing, since it may well be that it was either a slanted, biased and blinded, or simply immature decision.

At any rate it does need to be reconsidered.

The entire issue isn't merely one of decoration.

Matrimandir is one and cannot be seen in pieces and parts.

It is there to generate an atmosphere, a living and conscious help, a force of creation.

But for many months not only the work on the structure around the Chamber is at a standstill, but it has also stopped in the Gardens, and a growing inertia has settled all around.

The human energies are not well channelled; there is imbalance in the work; even inside the Chamber the work is only proceeding half-days, while outside of it hardly anything happens.

Some say that there is, based at Matrimandir, a nucleus of resistance to the design accepted by all; others say that, having refused all dialogue and rejected all objections raised (which cannot have all been irrelevant) an "official" plan has been bulldozed on Matrimandir, whose principal protagonist, Roger A, is in Auroville only 2 months out of 12 after an absence of 10 years or so, whose team has more or less collapsed but for a few steadfast supporters who themselves are unable to solve even its most basic technical inconsistencies.

But it could be that in such a status quo one is no longer able to perceive the elements of a wholesome harmony which may lie on all sides, and therefore that an active, revealing and resolving movement can no longer occur.

Roger has himself repeatedly told the community "you have to decide"!

Would it take too much of our pride to acknowledge that some commitment and concern, some active meditation, some courage may have to be contributed on our part before such a choice or decision can be truly made AND have a creative effect on the work ahead of us?

Everyone will recall that one of the constant traits of Mother's physical guidance was to insist on agreement: genuine agreement rising out of everyone – not being forced by some on the others. She used to say that we must first reach this agreement, and the rest She will do.

She described in detail the Chamber She had seen. And this became the centre of the work of building Matrimandir. It will be ready perhaps in some months.

Will it hang inside the skeleton of a sphere in the midst of an overgrown, neglected terrain of mud and dust, with a few crops drying in the sun and patches of luxuriant grass and some decrepit keet structures and the buses of tourists plying to and fro, "is this a water-tank?", "what is your native place?"...?

I request everyone in Auroville and particularly, I maintain, those of us who had the opportunity to experience Her physical Presence and, being women, may have developed an ability to attune to Her Force in life and in matter (are they all asleep now, have they ceased to care?) to come forward and, as a team, to set an atmosphere that will allow for the right choices to be discerned and the right decisions to be made.

As a team they could commit to this task for a given period of time and work out the ways they would proceed.

Perhaps as a first step they could interview the different people concerned and listen to their views, consult model and drawings and ask questions, and take the time to reach a living awareness of the entire physical reality of Matrimandir as of its functions, present and future.

I trust that if such a team is formed in an attitude of genuine seeking, with no partiality involved, everyone will collaborate and be sober enough not to flood them with recriminations.

At the close of that given period of time this team could then submit its conclusions to the community at large.

Please respond to the Auroville Council or to Matrimandir, to begin coordination.

Divakar"

This was an odd evening. I cycled off, after 5pm, towards the beach; a little way past "Dana" I got a puncture; I thought about it and decided to go on, and I jogged the rest of the way, pushing the cycle with one hand... about 5 miles down to the beach... And while running, my present involvement in the issues at Matrimandir cleared up...! I saw that I didn't have to "do" anything, but to continue my work there and let the drama unfold, but that I could give copies of my proposal to a few people, just as a seed. A weight was lifted away.

I reached Selvam's house and he made tea and showed me the work he'd done in his garden... I told him candidly all the feelings I had toward him, and that I wanted him to feel free and not forced into any relationship he wouldn't be at ease with; I saw that he wasn't comfortable with all these words, but he said that his life had begun to change since we met and that he wanted our friendship to continue and develop... I felt a space there, big and deep and real, but I am still confused by my own longings and by some response in him for which he has no living reference... It is troubling, but also wonderful...

I got the cycle fixed in the village and rode back at dark...

Shano came to have dinner with me, and it took me off the pain... There were moments today when I could have howled: the human animal! The pain was raw; like an exposed wound... All my life I have longed and yearned for this impossible relationship, like an inheritance: a free friendship with a man that would be intimate and spiritual at once... Along the road, I have met parts of one or the other, but never both at the same time. The accumulated defeats make this longing so terribly acute, I'd kill myself if I didn't know all I now know, as I did try to kill myself and nearly succeeded when I was in my teens... But I remember then, as a moment ago while listening to Your Agenda and doing the asanas, that this too is given by the Lord, it can but come from Him, and I must accept it and let it do the work that must be done... I didn't look for Selvam; he came to me when I was concentrating in my work in the Chamber, and it is only then that I opened again to the possibility... But it has trapped me into such a confined and narrow space in my own nature; I have been struggling since, and see still no way out...

Mother, it isn't easy to have one's private nature denied constantly by life; it only makes it more difficult for one to offer it to the Change...

Early this morning while I was still at Janet's, Piero came in to bring her a copy of Mauna's letter for her to take to the Council meeting. I tried to let him see he'd better come back to work; but he says he is revolted and very depressed and wants Auroville to do something about Arjun... I feel this is not only wrong but dangerous, but at this point it seems that all the protagonists are blinded to anything but their own roles... Janet also took a copy of my proposal...

7-7-1989, Auroville:

At Matrimandir it is still very uncertain. But Su's work in the office (she has volunteered to do the job Mauna had been doing) seems to be fitting, and it is alright with Arjun. However Piero is still agitating in Auroville and it is all very tricky.

Andy came to me in the morning to tell me of his idea to ask for a team of 3 people from Auroville at large to investigate and try to find a solution to the conflict, at the same time re-opening the entire issue of Matrimandir, its work and its completion, to the whole of Auroville... I said I could agree to that only if Piero would first resume his work for, otherwise, he was only misusing his authority and responsibilities. Andy seemed to see that, but I feel I may have to clarify it further at tomorrow's meeting...

... When I came home early afternoon I found, waiting for me in the garden, Pnina, accompanied by a friend of hers, a beautiful Israeli man, Avi. There are here only for a few days; I was glad to see her, after nearly 4 years I think, and to meet her friend. They'll come again soon.

8-7-1989, Auroville:

From 11 am till 2 pm we had this difficult, exhausting meeting.

Piero was absent.

Besides observing the respective truths, as well as the respective dishonesties, and wondering still how so many of us here can remain blinded to the most basic necessities, it is also very instructive to watch and be part of such events – but in what way it is instructive, I cannot well define: it helps a certain awareness to grow or expand... Yet, by the end of it, I felt depleted...

It is only toward the end that I spoke and tried to disengage, or disentangle what could be a basis for agreement: that we would all be at work on Monday; and that a commitment on Auroville's part – on the community's part – would be made to help organise the work of completing Matrimandir in all its aspects.

To this John H added that we would also commit to cease criticising – meaning, I guess, blaming – others...

I felt, too, that somehow in each individual, in each person, there was, and it is the mystery of this transitional stage, a purity of intent...

9-7-1989, Auroville:

Su has taken hard this entire drama at Matrimandir. She needed comforting. It is difficult for her to enter this work there without the security that she won't be displaced by another upheaval, and she fears the loneliness of it, with me being so aloof and independent... I suspect she has also felt let down seeing how much time I am willing to spend with Selvam, lately...

Shano came this morning; he wanted money to buy himself some clothes: he turns to me like to a second family, and he does it like a child would, demanding it in a sort of pure uninhibited way, and it's alright, he doesn't take advantage of it...

... According to Myrtle, Ed and Mauna have been pressing on Piero so that he wouldn't return to work unless something is done "about Arjun"... I hope they do not succeed.

But I may well miss the point here, and my view is surely minuscule...!

Whatever forms the resistance takes I must trust the Pressure on us all...

But I am not able to comprehend how progress can occur from disharmony. I keep feeling, in spite of everything, that one can make no real and lasting step unless it is made from the basis of the maximal harmony that can be reached at the time...

11-7-1989, Auroville:

At tea-break this morning Giovanni proposed the draft of a statement we could all sign and send to the Council, formally asking them to form a group to look into all the areas of work at Matrimandir. It was vague and clumsy and fairly superficial and, as it made mention of both Mauna's and Piero's withdrawal, it was surely ten rungs below the proposal I have made. But it seems clear that this is where we are at, collectively, and conflict seems to be a necessity in order to shake off some of the tamas. So I signed it, as did everyone else present except, predictably, Arjun and Stuart.

But in the afternoon I realised that Arjun may have felt let down and hurt by my signing; I went to him. We sat and talked quietly; I told him why I had signed, and thought that he too ought to sign; he disagreed but at least we each honoured our friendship and parted with affection.

Soon after that I had to check on the work at Janet's and I found Piero there! So I went and talked, or tried to talk with him... I don't know, he is so... off-balance, somehow; but he's managed to gather all his conviction in his present, untenable stance... What can happen? In the meantime Mauna is pursuing her own fixed ambitions; she even wrote to Su that she is hoping to come back and therefore that Su's usefulness there is only temporary... It is all very low, each one weaving dishonesty with high feelings and principles...

12-7-1989, Auroville:

I got angry. In Piero's continued absence we cannot actually fix the marble slabs in place – we could, but too many of us would rather wait for him and it doesn't feel right to push ahead. And I am dependent on others to be also on time and to concentrate so we can at least select the next rows and lift the slabs onto the scaffold... And there it got me: I blew at Selvam and Menaig, fed up with dragging them on.

I wanted to cry, then. I left.

... This evening Selvam sent me a message that he was sorry.

I have taken a good look at this whole situation. It is beyond me. There is too large a play of forces and too little sincerity in us.

I regretted my movement, it was a weak yielding to that play; it was an ego reaction, even if in reaction to laziness and sloppiness. It wasn't called for.

13-7-1989, Auroville:

Selvam came and had breakfast here.

A while later Su who had gone to work in the office sent Kumar to tell me that Piero had arrived. So at about 10.30 am, Selvam and I went back to work in the Chamber; both teams were present, and the work was resumed.

The Council has now decided to indeed form a group; the names of its members will be communicated soon.

... Su has been under a lot of strain; she is wondering whether she was ill-inspired to volunteer for that secretarial work at Matrimandir. She has been crying a lot, but also been very courageous...

15-7-1989, Auroville:

The announcement came of Mauna's return to "her" work. The point was made, though, finally, that she must first conclude her series of contrary declarations by making a proper statement of her commitment and intentions; and that she must then collaborate with Su and not seek to be the "boss"... The Council sent Janet and Allan to tell us that the final composition of the "Commission" formed to assist us in the organisation of the work will be communicated to us on Monday and that its members would start working right away...

16-7-1989, Auroville:

Last night I ran down to the beach and to Selvam's house. He'd spent the afternoon cleaning up, and it was all much clearer. We went to swim; we made coffee; a village delegation came to meet him, and I just watched. Then he had to run an errand in town and I waited for him, reading "The Human Cycle"; he soon returned, with dinner. He drove me back here around 10 pm... It is an intense experience given me, through this relationship; it is at once a torture and a delight. It is as if all my longings and seekings, in terms of relationships, have collected for a last time, to be offered... In his presence I feel happier than I've ever felt; in his absence I feel deprived... At times, watching him move, deal with things and people, I am so very fond of him; and at other times, I must shake him up, to bring him back to a centre and an axis...

17-7-1989, Auroville:

I became very tense this morning. I didn't at all like the atmosphere: Mauna came back to work, and her first, free movement was to bluntly dismiss Su. Perhaps someone talked to her then; a little later she came back to offer Su some "simpler job", along with Grace, adding that she would not have chosen her for help... And this was somewhat worse. I could do nothing about it; the play is such that, should I make one move and all the formations would pounce to show that I am trying to influence the situation... And besides, ever since Su volunteered for this I have felt ill at ease, on her account and for her sake; so today, at noon, I talked to her quietly and suggested that she better pulls out, without a word, and concentrate on other things and be happy again: this arena isn't for her...

It was quite sickening to watch Piero's group behave, all up and going...

... Selvam and I are slowly learning to find our way into this "us" that has happened; this evening, up until dark, we planted seedlings along his fence at the beach; we then had a swim, with a moon nearly full already up above the sea...

The Pressure is always with me and there are no words to say the gratitude and the security it gives...

19-7-1989, Auroville:

"I want no ego"...! But to say that, is to think that, and ego is there...!
 Yet Your Pressure is Your Grace, and its is active; how to be honest at all times, how to be so honest that ego has no longer any room, and the One may begin to fill life and body...? However difficult it may sometimes be, it is only fair and necessary that Your Pressure must act to the maximum one can bear; there is no other way...

20-7-1989, Auroville:

We are told that the members of the Council will join our Saturday meeting at Matrimandir, supposedly so as to "help raise the level"...!
 I can't understand this obtuseness, this lack of response and commitment to Your Gift. What people here call "the process", and enjoy so much it seems, is so uninteresting and uncreative; it is such a tamasic waste...

21-7-1989, Auroville:

It is a small but efficient torture: to be with Selvam is to be happy and fulfilled in a way I have never been; to part from him without the assurance that we both want to be together again as soon as possible, is absurdly and terribly painful...!

22-7-1989, Auroville:

We went through this meeting in the presence of the Council, 9 members, and at the end of it, there was the sense of a possible step we would all be willing to take. I have been feeling a change towards people, as if I could meet more substance, by Your Grace, and it makes one grateful and willing to let go and make room and let That be...

... Selvam was waiting for me at the beach, open and straight and very gentle; I told him very simply how I felt; later I needed to explain to him, with the help of a drawing, what Your work is about... Time went so fast; there are moments I could cry, and others when we laugh, or talk, or hold each other quietly; he is trusting and he also has a kind of maturity about him: sometimes I find that he is more centred about the integrity of our relationship than I am...

23-7-1989, Auroville:

Another episode in N's drama: his wife came, in tears, a moment ago, telling me such a confused story - and I could only understand half of it - that I sent for Janah to come and help translate; it appears that the police came to arrest N again yesterday; whether it was because he didn't show up in time for his trial, or because the judgement has been passed and a sentence given, is not clear; but he's been taken to the Gorimedu Station, where he surely must have been beaten up, which on top of the filarial is bound to hurt a lot...

I don't know which way to go: to give up on him, or to just keep quiet and wait it out, or else to try again and pull him out of it; the problem is that I can't say his life has improved in any marked way since he is with me...

... This evening Su gave way finally to her resentment at my relationship with Selvam, when she already finds me an unwilling companion... Later when she realised how affected I'd been by our talk, she understood that she'd been driven by her own ego and that there was in fact no call to worry or fear any loss and there need be no change in the relationship we have...

24-7-1989, Auroville:

This morning I felt sullied, and quite uneasy with Su; I had to tell her that, through her reactions, I had felt exposed to small ignorant values and, for the first time, felt a little wary of her... She said that she'd been feeling very sorry and only asked me to give her the time she needed to adjust. But there was sadness in me, because I had not wanted to speak of Selvam with anyone, or to expose "us" to anyone else's mind...

26-7-1989, Auroville:

Last night, between many awakenings, I had a rare kind of experience: I had gone through the process of dying, united with D.M; and, before reaching "there" we, as one, made our way back through another process of concentrated healing, out of which we were two again and she was no longer crippled, and we escaped that prison cell where we had been taken in and killed – our throats had been cut, after a powerful drug had been administered to each of us: and it also felt like it had been a sort of initiation... Then we were free and running and I was crying tears of joy and tenderness at seeing her whole, every limb awake and released, and she was so lovely... At one point, though, she was no more the same physical person, but a tall, eccentric, wonderful negro woman, very close to me...

27-7-1989, Auroville:

Right now I could almost say that I am ready to go anywhere as long as I am with Selvam... It is like saying, "what is the use of striving, of learning to open, of trying to pass into a truer condition, if one is companionless, if one has no friend and no 'love'... And so I go through the stages and motions of this tyranny, and it's alright because the Pressure remains with me, and my need of it perhaps grows even more alive: That will make the way and find its true place for this "love"; I only have to endure...

This evening, listening to Your Agenda while doing the asanas, I relaxed into this inner ecstasy of willingly opening and yearning, and I saw that perhaps what is particularly relevant in this exercise I am being put through, with Selvam, is that it has unlocked and released an emotional degree which only now may learn too to unite and to join in the flow... But there are many aspects to this meeting, and they all matter, they all are right, and part of the way...

28-7-1989, Auroville:

Shano came while I was weaving. Later I made dinner for Selvam and I and he came in, bruised and beaming and spent from his game of "kabbadi"; and then Pnina and Avi came and Selvam left... I have nothing to say, nothing to show, but I was glad to see both of them, and I like Avi; and later Su joined in, and it was altogether different again... Pnina and Avi left and, in the dark outside the house, while hugging each other farewell, Avi slipped something in my hand: "for you", he said; a small snake ring which he'd been wearing... It touched me...

29-7-1989, Auroville:

We have had increasing trouble with this Mukunder who has cracked. Today, after the meeting, which was fastidious but came out alright, I saw that Dhanapal and Raman were still bent on sending him, under Selvam's escort, to an asylum, quite far away from here. I had to argue with them that we must do it another way, all the while wondering about my motivations: was it for Mukund's sake or for Selvam's! But I know what is done in those asylums, and it is horrible and brutal. But I couldn't change their minds and I left.

Then Selvam came to find me here, and I explained to him; I offered to try another way, with him, saying that it would be better to hand him over to the police, as it would leave him another chance to correct his ways, rather than bringing him to such an infernal place where he would only get truly damaged; Selvam agreed, and he was relieved.

We tried a first time, but the Inspector was away; we decided to try again later. Selvam drove me back to Matrimandir for me to attend a meeting with the engineers who have been studying the structures of the Petals. Catherine and I made our proposal, and the chief engineer, Santhakumar, readily went along with it... Now we'll make a full model of a petal at a 1/50 scale...

As I was returning, I passed by the Kitchen to fetch the bread and found Mukund there, in one of his states; I stayed with him and tried to let him see the options; but soon others gathered and it became oppressive and fruitless; and then Selvam came looking for me and we decided there and then to take Mukund between us two on the bike and took off, to everyone's relief – people have become a little fearful of him after last night's violence...

But at the Station the Inspector was still away and the man on-duty wouldn't budge. So there was one option left to us: we drove away, quite some distance, and reached the Gingee area, about 70 kilometres away, and we left him there; I thought and felt that, this way, he still had a chance... We returned before midnight, very tired...

30-7-1989, Auroville:

Around noon, Dhanapal and Raman came to find out how it had gone with Mukund; this gave me a chance to tell them my "preventive" plan, in case Mukund would find his way back here; mainly I want to try and avoid that he is put into such a place as an "asylum"; it seems to me that somewhere along the way this man had a genuine inner experience, but lacked the development, strength and balance required to live on according to its revelation; I tend to feel that it is better to die, than to fall prey to, and be for ever scarred by, the formations of madness...

31-7-1989, Auroville:

This opening to Selvam is shattering. It is like a constant explosion at the core of my nature...

The Pressure is there, strong, very strong; and yet I do not seem to respond. There's something wrong with me... Sometimes I grow a little scared... Selvam is often so scattered that, by opening to him, I open to a whole world of confusion; there are moments when I feel very lost!

And at Matrimandir, both Narayana and Bhavani are again flipping out, every day... There is such pain...

I don't know... The Force is there, holding me; I want to cry much of the time; it is crazy, it is silly, it is terrible; it is also very sweet, and I have to learn everything again... But is it possible at all...?

... The atmosphere at work was difficult; I became so tense when Narayana again started yelling... perhaps this Matrimandir is just too much for the present human composition of Auroville... I don't know...

1-8-1989, Auroville:

Selvam and I worked happily. But the atmosphere is bad. Piero and Andy came to talk to me about the conflict around "Blossoming" (a "unit" formed at the Nursery to try and earn some funds for its maintenance and upkeep, under Stuart and Arjun), and of their morning session at Bharat Nivas with Stuart, Karel and Judith... What strikes me most, though, is the seeming absence of individual discipline in people here: the "wrongs" get merely carried over in another form; it is endless... ... Every day the afternoon hours, 2 to 4 pm, are very heavy and uneasy; I don't understand why it is so. Perhaps this explains the old custom of getting up before dawn and taking a longer afternoon nap; but practically it isn't convenient...

2-8-1989, Auroville:

I got myself deeply, awfully upset this morning. I lost all sense of perspective. What happened was that, yesterday, Selvam and I hadn't been able to finish the new platform, and so there were still all the planks to move up first thing today, before we could start another row. I expected him to come at least a little earlier - he keeps saying he wants to discipline his life -, but instead he came even later than usual, and very carelessly. I snapped at him, with a little anger, that it wasn't interesting to go on this way, that this wasn't even a team... He was of course very sorry, but I was too upset to continue working; I wanted to cry for having talked that way to him, and I felt quite lost, as if the basis for our togetherness wasn't there, and I can't build it by myself, it must come from him as well... I also realised that the Chamber acts as an amplifier and what Narayana and Bhavani have been letting out in the past several days is lying in wait, ready to provoke an explosion at the least opportunity; it is nasty, and very strong... So I went out, and calmed myself. Selvam joined me and we could talk quietly, and we resumed our work after the tea-break...

4-8-1989, Auroville:

Last night, around midnight, I had a bad experience: an energy suddenly clamped itself on me from behind, adapting itself like a skin slammed onto my back, and once more I was only able to come awake by shouting in my sleep... It is quite discouraging...

5-8-1989, Auroville:

I am extremely confused, as if I had lost every bit of awareness that had slowly and tediously built up over the years... I am lost in a whirl of emotions, of the shallowest and narrowest type: wanting, jealousy, possessiveness... It blurs and supersedes everything else. But we can't be shrunk beyond a certain point and I find humour in all this as well...! So one can smile and laugh and override these primeval currents... ... This morning Selvam was at work in time and we did our work in the Chamber, and attended the meeting afterwards, without parting an inch from each other, and later we had lunch together here... ... I suppose I had to experience what comes now to me, the whole alphabet of it, thoroughly, and I am aware that it is given me in the best possible conditions: this very old wound in me must be healed, and its elements permeated and transformed... It is at once a wonderful dream and a torment. I could "die" of it, or I could approach all life anew... I know that I must, I must trust, and offer...

... When one opens so completely to another being and its realities, perhaps the hardest thing is to remain able not to obscure the perception and understanding of the other's needs and rhythms with one's own... In this case, Selvam's development and mine – the conscious sums of his and of my experiences – are so far apart, that of a necessity it leads me to base our relationship on a level that is not mental at all... In a way, because I want to honour the sense of a team-work, I almost resent the capacities I have been given and would give up my own accesses so as to be level with him; yet there is a larger sense to our meeting too, of a joining and fusing of different levels of awareness, through love and trust...

... Please, do not allow me to botch it; keep me balanced and patient, enable me to give what is needed, for what is needed: if out of this world of humanity such a love as I feel is there can become a living reality, then I believe it is profoundly redeeming and meaningful, and dissolves a huge amount of obscurity...

... The meeting today was so dense, and tiring; people go on and on... Words are worn out to the rope! All mental attitudes are bankrupt.

All exclusive attunements are bound to fail as well... There is only one way: to become integrally committed to what can, to what knows, to what loves, to what does, quietly, and egolessly...

6-8-1989, Auroville:

Last night was restful, in the sense that it was taken up by an entirely different set of events and circumstances; when I slowly woke up, I was at a distance, and I surprised myself by feeling relief at not seeing Selvam this morning – being Sunday... I looked at that, and where it came from.

And then, without any warning or transition, I got invaded again by the same longing and worrying...

I am taking those notes as a discipline, because it relates to the part of this being that isn't yet free. In a way I am glad that I am being immersed in it: I wouldn't want to cheat, pretending that from above or from within I could change it... My understanding has for long been that each element is given "free choice", as an absolute condition for a true and lasting change... However distressing it is to be shrunk or narrowed down to these movements and needs, I know it is part of my way, that it is worth it, and that it is guided...

It isn't that I wish to concentrate on the problem itself: that would merely be aggravating. But insofar as it comes and imposes itself, it must be faced and fully experienced...

... Ar. and Ritam have returned in the night; I have yet to see them...

7-8-1989, Auroville:

It's like I am emotionally imploding. I don't know what charge had been locked up in me for so long... I see it in so many ways... Like this morning, at breakfast, I tried the new cassette-player (which Ch.J has sent me through Ar.), and I played short pieces of Vivaldi, very delightful; and it was an almost unbearable array of emotions fusing out, each one distinct, giving way to the other and the next in a constant flow, each intensely itself, a reality onto itself... And then the cassette got stuck and broke...!

I don't know... This morning I found that I have lost my sapphire pendant, which I always wear on a chain on my chest – the sapphire stone that D.M gave me years ago... I looked for it here, but I may have lost it anywhere...

And today Selvam was in the Chamber ahead of me, for one, all sweet and ready; he said he'd worked all day yesterday casting the slabs for the raised platform we have devised together for his room at the beach...

8-8-1989, Auroville:

I was striving hard to control my own demands, and my apprehension that I might well have botched it, yesterday evening, by blurting out to Selvam the very longing that was troubling me... There was a tension in him too, but it was sweet and determined to see everything right and moving... We did good work...

Su had reported to him how Ina and Babu were carrying on about Selvam and I and wanting me to get away from him... Selvam had told me just yesterday that he felt something would try to come between us through other people, but that it would be a test of trust, to make us grow "bigger"... It was so simple and real the way he said it...!

... This afternoon I spent time with Ramalingam and Manavelan to work out how to build the shuttering frames for the pillar extension; Ramalingam was in a mood to tell me all of how he feels about Matrimandir and the people there: there is so much bitterness in him about what Auroville has become...

... A good letter has come from JYL which allowed me to trace this emotional opening in me to that last time he was here and the experience we had together, working in the Chamber, true brothers belonging to You, to the Force, with the ease and perfect, untroubled intimacy we knew then... It was that experience which opened me, and in that opening Selvam came...

9-8-1989, Auroville:

I triggered an explosion this morning at Matrimandir. Bhavani and Narayana have been carrying on for some weeks now, and there hasn't passed one morning in the Chamber, lately, that Narayana, teased by her constant prodding, didn't blow at one person or another, screaming his long tirades with that hurtful energy that fills him at those moments...

For the last few days Bhavani had particularly focussed on me, wanting to find fault with me, or any sign of offence; but generally they have directed their venom at the Tamilians...

So, this morning, they were both intent on detecting any hint of disrespect or misbehaviour... Selvam and I were working on the scaffold to reinforce it; we had of course to be very careful not to drop anything, but we couldn't help some dust flying; at one point we both had to come down to the Chamber floor, and we each jumped the last level; I saw Bhavani's close watch of Selvam's movements; I jumped right behind him, and clapped my hands free of the dust: that did it! Actually it was quite deliberate on my part: it isn't possible to work like that, and in the Chamber of all places; it seems to me that Bhavani shouldn't be allowed to come up when she is cultivating such moods...

But the issue of racism is hanging like a boiling pot of oil, and so everyone tries to keep quiet and ignore it; and as a result the atmosphere only worsens...

They both exploded during the tea-break; Bhavani dipped her hands into cement before coming down and clapped them right in my face; that was alright with me and I told her to go ahead... Beyond a spate of insults in Hindi, that was all... But when Narayana followed suit, it got nasty; he worked himself into a frenzy and spilled all the rubbish he'd heard or thought about me – from Your supposedly forbidding me to be here to my supposed cruelty to Diane – and called me all the names, from mere goonda to asura via rakshasa; when no one responded, he moved into the office and began to harangue others as well... We were all rather shaken...

Selvam's healthy presence was once more soothing – "let them bark, there's nothing to it...!" he says... But the charge directed at me was so raw and heavy that my hands were shaking for several minutes afterwards...

10-8-1989, Auroville:

The Pressure is there, with the experience, and the opening It gives...

I look at the life of this world, and at how our bodies age, and I see how evasive still, and mysterious, almost alien to our humanity, is that thread of awareness that alone may lead us through the actual change...

No words can say this...

But gratitude is the answer that always rises and, with it, a sort of need to accept, and to embrace...

12-8-1989, Auroville:

It seems there is no understanding, or else no willingness to face the challenge and respond... It goes round and round in circles, and it is aggravating; Menaig made the point that one ought not to bring up one's anger or upset in the Chamber, and Bhavani and Narayana saw this as further manoeuvring on my part...

... Al.GC brought the news today that the ECC engineering and building company is unwilling to take up the study of the covering of the sphere. We have got the import license for the steel columns made in Italy...

... Late afternoon after work at Janet's and at Matrimandir, I had to do the payments here, while listening to Ar.'s account of her distressing and rather catastrophic involvement with Krishna; he seems to be carrying on about me – or against me – and wanting her and rejecting her and calling her again, while making similar demonstrations at Su, who has been dissembling towards me...

Then I went running, all the way down to Selvam's beach house, and we spent a happy evening... We swam and ate and talked and played; he is like a treasure to me, to whom I want to pour out the treasure within me... It isn't easy to keep quiet when one knows a little more than the one beloved; and yet I too learn from him, all the time... I had not felt this way since Auragni, and I told him that...

16-8-1989, Auroville:

Some nasty dry fever has taken hold, and my heart has been hurting again, and I have lost weight...

It turns out that Selvam has been very confused lately; he's besieged by the many people he owes money to; he's actually made quite a mess of his life in the past couple of years – went into a stupid business venture with a so-called friend of his,

and that failed, and he also had to help D.P out when he needed it, having already got so much from him in the past; his wife is nagging him every day for not bringing enough money home, etc. And he didn't know how to let me know, he didn't want me to learn about it through others, and he didn't want to lie to me either...

So we had to talk it out and it took a very long time.

I have to try and make him see what is the true nature and the true use of money, and I realise this is bound to be hard work...!

17-8-1989, Auroville:

It isn't improving at Matrimandir. Arjun has received an anonymous letter, made up of magazine cuttings, insulting him in the basest and vilest manner, insulting Stuart as well, in the most facile way. Arjun is convinced that this was done by people who work at Matrimandir; Deepti has written an open letter filled with anger, using such arguments as karma and justice which are somewhat irrelevant. But I am almost certain this has been done by kids, perhaps with some prompting...

What to do, even so...?

... I have given a cheque to Selvam, and this evening he will begin his rounds to pay off what debts are most pressing. I blasted him carefully and laid down some conditions for us to be able to continue together, if he wants. I gave him the choice: either we stop here and now; or, if we go on, he will have to listen when I tell him to quit from one thing or another and, basically, he will have to uphold our team as much as I will... He said that he wanted that.

... This afternoon I had a good, open talk with Arjun, one of those moments that re-actualise the deep inner bond we share, through the years and difficulties and contradictions...

I have written back to C. I want to support her fully. But she will never accept it beyond a certain limit...

19-8-1989, Auroville:

Selvam tells me that, just as he is trying hard to come out of a pattern of superficial involvements, I too must come out of this tendency to despair. He says that soon, even if not as soon as I will it, we shall have time to be together the way we feel; that he wants it and this is what helps him to break out. He says that hope is good, that hope helps things to happen... I don't know much about hope; perhaps he is right... I want to be open, at least...!

Today is, as Selvam puts it, "our day"; in a moment I'll go down to the beach...

I don't understand people here, not the way they relate or the way they live their days, except for John H perhaps... And there is what surrounds us: we are in the midst of this exploding race for survival, a mounting tide of ugliness and garbage; and we are faced with this impossible challenge of trying to create a truer atmosphere, in material terms, with no water, no capital and no borders... It is madness, and yet here we are, because here You called...!

I am in a foul temper, like the weather... I see the tamas, the lack of care, responsibility and commitment, the dishonesty that is now so spread that no one in particular can be found at it anymore... But mostly, I don't know what to do, what position could be the right one, as regards Selvam... I fear that this cannot possibly work. Either he isn't conscious enough, or else I do not have enough to give, to offer to it... I have moved too far out of life, and who would want to be with me in that transitional space...? Not even Su, if I asked for it, could find in it what she needs to live on...

25-8-1989, Auroville:

Selvam has had to sell off his bike as well, in order to pay all his debts; he only told me about it when I pressed him hard and blew at him, and he had to see the choice looking him in the eye... But I also feel his inner being pushing, and I am as if part of it, and I cannot withdraw: I must make it!

... I blew at Su too, today! It was about her dissembling, as regards her renewed involvement with Krishna; today only I had the outward occasion to let her know that I had been aware of it, and to show her that it was not the relationship that was a problem to me, but the duplicity... She cried, but she saw it...

Be it for Matrimandir, or for friendship' sake, given the general conditions, I understand that I must fight; that the time hasn't come yet to let things be; that one's participation is required...

... Tonight Su came back to me, distressed, wanting a hug and comfort... She's been saddened to realise what her attitude has been... I repeated to her that it is alright with me, that what I ask for is simplicity and transparency between us; that I do not mind her involvements... She relaxed...

Selvam had come early morning to have breakfast with us, and was waiting for me here when I returned from work after 1 pm. He still has two debts to pay. I hadn't realised the extent of the mess he was in... I am now making sure that he does tell me everything, and all that was sowed in his past, little by little, comes up...

... It is very odd: there have been floods all over the country, and nearly all the reservoirs of Tamil Nadu are now full; but in our district, almost no rain has come... I suppose it may be interesting to watch these phenomena with a subtle vision, and it is tempting to think that the attitude that prevails in Auroville is causing this depletion and isolation... but I never feel at ease with such simplistic conclusions...

... Su's friend Shera is due to arrive on Wednesday, the day of the All India Bandh called by most of the opposition parties, and Su worries: the tension is building up and, as the politicians are fond to say, especially those who want Rajeev out, "the battle lines are drawn"... There isn't much loyalty expressed towards Rajeev Gandhi at this point, or towards his party, the Congress I... And many of these opposition leaders are such pigs! The true people of India are nowhere to be seen; their time hasn't yet come, perhaps, but... when will that be?

Selvam is nearly done. I want to help him out, but I have to be more cautious. I don't quite know how to go about it; there is my attachment to him, and there is a deeper movement between us, and there is too the obvious necessity to check him and hold him and be very firm with him, and there is the need to develop a balanced and free-growing relationship as well...

I need this to be part of the central movement of concentration, rather than a pull away from it; at times it feels like it is possible, that it is happening; at other times, I find that it has gone off and gaps appear that are too enormous to be bridged or resolved... There is a question of time, too; being tied to him, can I afford going through relapses and slips in his own progress as well as mine? Yet, somehow, it feels right...

The country seems to be heading toward a confrontation between Centre and States. I reasoned Su out of trying to go to Madras a day earlier to receive Shera at the airport on Wednesday. We are trying to arrange for a message to be given Shera when she lands, and a room to be booked for her at the nearby hotel, so that Su can go there the day after... I had considered going there on the bike in the evening of Wednesday, but it may not be such a wise move, given the expectation of violence in the air...

What can I say? Who am I to pull anyone into an area of experience that, if I am to judge by the consequences it has on me, is no progress and no essential discovery...? But more than that weighs on me: there is this conditioning that acts on him, in him, this craving for status, to get to a higher standard than the one he came from... How can I let him go on indulging in this farce? I keep trying to let him see that it is what he IS and can BECOME that matters, provided that he cares enough...

It is like wave after wave of unconscious denial, contradiction, or a dense absence of response... I do not want to fall into the trap of trying to change anyone's nature, or even mine, at that! And it isn't the point. The thing that I trust and believe in is the sharing that can happen between two people, through that quality of friendship; but, is it always so difficult?

31-8-1989, Auroville:

Su had left before dawn and she returned with Shera at 2 pm and brought her straight to me: a robust woman, with a deep-seated heart, very sensitive and very direct...

... Sometimes it amazes me how steadily, intensely and completely unhappy I can be! I have never heard of anything like that! It is a pain, or a sorrow, or a need that is so desperate that I am, for hours on end, constantly on the edge of suicide; it is only the true awareness in me that keeps me knowing that it is no solution... I must endure; there is no other way... There is nothing in me, otherwise, that clings to life for its own sake...

... I have tried and tried to put my own longings aside and receive the indication of what is best for him... What I want for him is to let go of this social image he has been so attached to, to learn to be himself and to trust that everything needed will come in time; I want him to hold firm on quality and care, in everything... He understands that, but he is still too weak...

There has been much physical work today, pushing and carrying and lifting, and a lot of it in full sun too...! Since a few days I have stopped going to Janet's in the afternoon, so I can work longer at Matrimandir; there is so much to do there! I realise, through work, that it is a simple matter of orienting the energies; if I initiate more work – tasks which must be done anyway but have been left pending, or supposedly awaiting agreement -, then it just passes on, it gets moving... So I slowly begin again to open to all the aspects of the completion of Matrimandir. What I need most is a good psychological balance. With John H it is wonderful, and he is happy not to be alone anymore to sustain the full day rhythm, as everybody else comes in the mornings only...

... Ar. came by, in a state, because of her difficulties with Ritam, who needs a man in the house and misses Namas too much and is getting impossible with her, with this weird, uncontrolled and unchannelled energy of the first stage of puberty; she feels quite helpless before it and doesn't know at all how to respond to it; sometimes they even hit each other...

Shera had dinner with us. She had almost decided to leave right away, discouraged by the heat and the insects and the fatigue and harshness of it all, and feeling also the pull of her dying mother at home in Canada; but at ease with us, she relaxed and became less apprehensive; she has deep-rooted barriers, though, and has made an assessment of her relationship to the world that will not give way easily... We like one another, though...

... I hope, I pray that I have touched bottom; this condition I have been in is such a negation of the Presence, this constant wanting, narrow, obsessive and relentless, this stifling smallness of being...

On my way back in the dark, I crashed, in slow motion, into a large pit by the roadside (I have no light on my cycle!): I didn't hurt myself, and I had the sense to see the humour of it...! But the evening at the beach was happy, Selvam was relaxed and very sweet; he had done a lot of good work on his house and it begins to look a little beautiful; I chipped a wall while he cooked our dinner, we talked and read for his class; he said he was now ready to work in the evenings at Matrimandir with me, making the steel armature for the pillars...

At Matrimandir today I met with Angad, about making glazed tiles here in Auroville, for the amphitheatre, or the Petals or even the sphere cladding. We quickly calculated that the cost would be prohibitive for the cladding of both the amphitheatre and the Petals; the surfaces are very large; it would be easier there to use natural stone. But we discovered that we'd had exactly the same wish, or dream, or vision, and hope, for the sphere: to have it entirely covered with small glazed tiles of light, varying shades and tones, blues and greens and golds and pinks and ambers; he has himself experimented with titanium dioxide which, according to the degree at which the clay is fired and to the natural chemical reactions, produces all these tints; he said he would send us samples in a week or two; this was a happy surprise for me: he had seen exactly the same thing, with a pattern of interspersed golden glass, translucent tiles so as to let light in and out... With this sort of cladding, Matrimandir would appear different at every moment, depending on the light and the time of day and the seasonal changes... I don't know, but when Roger A comes next, I should need all Your help to work towards an agreement that will at last allow the structure to be covered with a noble and substantial material rather than with this fancy golden stuff...

There's still that longing that hasn't found its answer. But there are these moments of a happiness, of a delight in being close to, united to someone else, which I hadn't known before. I had sort of summoned N's brother-in-law, M, to explain to him that I do not wish to support N's wife and kids if she makes no effort at finding a job and look after the kids properly; M isn't very bright; he stayed a very long time, telling me all he knows; according to him the case is coming up for trial in a few days, and the relatives of the victim would rather accept money and withdraw their charges; he, M, is to meet them tomorrow, and N's mother is ready to sell off some of her land; if this works, N may be released for good; otherwise he may get sentenced to several years imprisonment... I made it clear that I will have nothing to do with such transactions...

13-9-1989, Auroville:

I'm getting depressed, or depression is getting me...! John H mentioned to me that Myrtle is planning to leave Auroville; and Su says that Barbara is also thinking of going... these are two of the very few people in Auroville whom I trust, and consider as friends, and sharers of the way... Who will be left here? Who will hold on and stick to the purpose, despite all the contradictions? I don't know why I get so tired... and the weather is surely no help, and to hear Shera complaining she'd never experienced such a low level of energy doesn't help either...

But I go through the motions, and cling to work; by 10.30 this morning Selvam had not yet come and I was struggling alone to place the marble slabs on the last wall – the twelfth – which is more difficult, as it is the one where the work of two different teams is meeting, and there are slight differences in the levels of the rows...

He came to find me at home around 2 pm, already some place else in his mind; I held him up and talked to him and asked him not to play, and to be honest and go by his real feelings; I told him that I'd rather we split than try to go on and keep it together in spite of his near-permanent confusion... It pulls me down too much; it has to be a progressive thing; otherwise it isn't worth the trouble... He was arrested by this reaction of mine, and he said he would really look at it today and let me know tomorrow what he finds...

Today I first asked Selvam not to hold me into his life, mixed up with it, if he wasn't going to care truly for it... But later, I felt I was being too proud and demanding; that this couldn't do... I had to make a move.

In the evening, then, I bathed and changed and drove down to the beach; he was there, alone, and he was happy I'd come. We both were.

Then he explained to me that, ever since he'd sold his bike, he'd been obsessed, literally obsessed every minute of the day with the wanting of a bike of his own, for all it expressed in his own life...

Selvam came early to work so we could finish one row of slabs before he went to Vanur. He had to help his friend Mani, who is to leave with Aurassi to Australia, to get Aurassi's birth-certificate; through Mani and Aurassi Selvam learned that Diane is now living in Australia with Auragni, working as a secretary for Cow John and finding an apartment and generally getting settled, with Auragni starting school (is it Sidney or Melbourne, I don't know)...

I suppose I needed to have, at least once, the experience of being so thoroughly entangled with another person... I don't know...

Now there are two simultaneous "needs" in me: one is to be united again, as You had shown me, and let That do the work, in complete surrender and adhesion... The other is to reach with Selvam a place of realisation, a place of secure, mutual giving and sharing.

These are two intense, absorbing needs.

Around that, or between, there is a range of perceptions or impressions and questions, about ageing, about time, and about my ability to last, to endure until the way clears...

I worked alone this morning, and attended the meeting after tea-break, another explosive meeting, with Edzart, Lorenzo and Karel on one side and Arjun and Stuart on the other, over issues of payments for research, of quorum, etc, and they nearly came to a physical fight.

This afternoon, in retaliation, Arjun and Stuart sent off a telegram to Piero in Italy telling him not to spend the money there, or it would be at his own risks, as there had been no quorum at the meeting to take the decision. This was quite close to lying, and I felt a sense of loss...

... I joined Selvam at the beach house in the evening; we washed out the walls and ceilings; he made us some dinner and we had a quiet time till after 10 pm, and I felt that he was opening on his own to the possibility of a physical expression of our bond; but, however tempted I was, I also felt this wasn't the time yet; there isn't enough stability yet to make it beautiful and part of us... What is the hardest for me to bear is his confusion, his lack of direction, his wanting everything at the same time and making no consistent choices...

A sort of peace came over me today. At first it was mixed with sadness; then it was peace, only peace, deepening.

There was all the ugly disharmony between people at Matrimandir; there was Su's upset at parting from Shera; there was Selvam's personal mess... His wife, as was to be expected, has now found out about Mary, his girl-friend from Pondy, and has made a huge scene and is now bent on involving as many people as she can; meanwhile, their little son is sick... It looked to me that was it, there would be no room for "us" in this confusion: what he wants is to take Mary with him to the beach house, even though he is a little scared of what people, goaded by his wife, might do to her; so it seems I had better withdraw. He wants me to stay around, as he never had a friend like this, but... I don't know!

And at Matrimandir it is very tight; Karel has written a formal letter to everyone around, to the Council and to the Task Force and to people at work, down on Arjun, a letter that pretends to be "objective" but strikingly, and conveniently, omits a number of facts; I tried to let Arjun see that his sending of that telegram had been a mistake; he reacted poorly at first; but this afternoon we had a long and quiet talk, and he paid more attention. I think he has also begun to see that the issue of the design is causing division and must indeed be reconsidered. However, in the matter of ethics and basic principles, his stand has been consistent, except for these two recent "mistakes": trying to get Karel alone to sign a cheque for the study of the design for the "skin" and, later, sending off that telegram to Piero in the name of the meeting...

I am thinking of writing to the Council to rectify or correct the version of the facts as provided by Karel, to restore some balance; but will it help?

19-9-1989, Auroville:

At the end of the morning work Selvam asked me whether I would come down to the beach this evening; I said there wasn't much point anymore, and I was trying to withdraw enough so he could have all the time he needed to make his life the way he wants it without any pressure from me; he didn't like it and said he didn't want me to move away... It is all rather silly of me; I have to accept that nothing will be resolved by a mere mental effort, and that I must work through the very life of my attachment to him...

A while later, of his own decision, he came to find me here; I was resting... We had lunch together, then; he doesn't really know what he wants; he is starving for love, mostly, for support and affection and closeness... And he has no idea how to cope with the conflicts that rise up in his life... But who does? Not me!

I am learning everything from scratch; it is crazy!

... We had a wonderful evening at the beach, once the drama with his wife - who first brought him the kids, then came back to retrieve them, not daring to make too much of a scene in my presence - was over. Around 8 pm we went for a swim and something beautiful and mysterious happened: the sea behaved in a way I had never seen; there was a milk-white light in the water; as we moved in it, each of our movement would give rise to that wonderful light, so deep and vivid and rich and, from it, fused golden sparks like tiny stars all over us; we were just rich with it all and so grateful and we couldn't stop playing with it, and felt freer than we've ever felt to be close to one another...

I cycled back well after 10 pm...

21-9-1989, Auroville:

Selvam told me again that he intends to meet with Mary's parents and bring her to live with him at the beach. He also wants to have a German shepherd dog to guard the place there! I know well where he is heading; he will soon recreate a situation around him that will stifle him anew, with the addition of double the worries and double the charges. I tell him that, but it is of no use...

22-9-1989, Auroville:

I made one last attempt to let Selvam see the choice in front of him. To go and bury himself into more cares and more worries, or to strive to establish his own individual space and atmosphere and from that basis develop the relationships that will matter to him most...

He had already arranged that we would have lunch in town with Mary, whom I had not met as yet. So I watched and I saw what was between them; she is sweet and quiet and very pretty and mannered and she thrives on him; but she isn't awake! I don't know why I have to go on with all this, except that Selvam has somehow become like a part of me; we both seem to know that we are bound together in a way that can't be "managed" or decided upon... But I also know that it needs to make sense on the way...!

I see that, with me, he grows and develops, emerges and becomes; but these pulls and these conditionings are so ingrained, and he has no formed mind to deal with it all; it is left to his heart alone, to something deep in him that cares and yearns and seeks...

23-9-1989, Auroville:

Last night was terrible. I woke just after 3 am to find myself on the edge of a huge grey hole, with no body, and nowhere to be. It lasted hours. I struggled to chase off the thoughts; but it is relentless; it is binding; there is no way out; I must stick by him... I cannot step away! It is only when I accepted it, and that I should have to go back to him in the morning, and give in, that it quietened and I could rest a while...

... I spent only two hours with him at work, and the rest of the time today was calm, with a sort of inner distance... I stayed on to attend the meeting at Matrimandir: the Council has proposed to take over the decision-making for some time, starting immediately; on that basis we went through all the pending matters. At the end I spoke out what I had written to correct Karel's version of things and to affirm support and solidarity. Judith's presence as member of the Council, her strength and rooted good sense, is very useful at this point, and she embodies the very energy I was asking for in the months past, and most people now see what I had meant...

... I cooked dinner here for Selvam and me. He is well cornered. His wife is on a dramatic track, threatening to kill herself; Mary, prodded by her mother, demands to see him every day... He asks me now to help him to go away – to find some work for him abroad, to help him "disappear" for a couple of years...!

I couldn't hide from Su some of my distress. She's been very good to me. Increasingly, over the past weeks, I have quietly opened to the gift of her being and sincerity. Perhaps it is this explosion with Selvam that is opening me, at what is called a "personal level"; with Su it is calm, and secure and steady; while with Selvam it is a turmoil and a struggle and a series of precipices and narrow passes and terrible longings and moments of happiness such as I have never known, with a sense of extension, of infinite tenderness...

... I went down to the beach this morning, to try and make Selvam understand what he must do to defuse and neutralize the drama now: that he must explain to Mary that they cannot see each other for some time...

30-9-1989, Auroville:

I spent nearly two full days lying down at home, helpless. I considered leaving Auroville, admitting to not enough sincerity and to a full halt in the possibility of progress... I went through the scale: I felt deep revolt at this narrow reality of man that divides the being and its movements and teases suppression and conflict within oneself, instead of seeking, and trusting the unity that alone will heal and create... I couldn't see any way, or any sense, other than shutting myself away, and shutting back in what I have let open through Selvam... Then I hit at my own self-pity...

4-10-1989, Auroville:

This morning when I woke up, got up and started the day, I felt enormously relieved. It wasn't a dramatic change, but a remarkable clearing-up: I was back in my own consciousness, and lid-less, free from the confinement under that lid, the suffocation I have been experiencing ever since I got bound to Selvam... I was free again to move within my own awareness, to reach up, to reach out, to stay quiet, to look at anything... And there was the sweet and discreet tingle and tinkle, nearby, of gratitude returned...

... This last wall in the Chamber is very difficult: nothing matches and I can't get it right; of course it probably doesn't show, and I only know that it is much less perfect than the other 5 walls I have done, but it worries me...

7-10-1989, Auroville:

This was a proper, decent, "nice" meeting: I just wanted to scream! All reasonable and polished, I don't know, it's like being in the midst of sleep-walkers!

And this afternoon wasn't much easier: this heavy and clumsy inadequacy, this separateness, like a weight, to be a lump of substance that cannot give...!

There was a strange incident: as I walked up the earth ramp at the end of the day at Matrimandir, a woman on a cycle called out to me, asking whether I knew "Divakar" and could I give him a letter... When I said I was Divakar, she looked surprised, then happy; she is visiting India and has known about You and Auroville for about 10 years; she is a drug-addict, in that loving, gaping, folk way; she is very damaged physically, but has these most wonderful big deep liquid eyes; she has been a close friend of A.F and O both, two women who have been important in my "early life"; she says that A.F killed herself 10 years ago, but that O is still alive... I invited her to visit with me tomorrow...

I feel a little withdrawn from what goes on at Matrimandir, like I don't want to be involved... But I feel too removed from too many things, while not being able to align to That either...

10-10-1989, Auroville:

After checking the work both at Janet's and at Matrimandir, early morning, I returned here, and Selvam came to find me; I explained, as clearly and simply as I could, that for the first time in my life I had opened to a life-energy in trust, and found an emotional home, a place from which I could offer that personal part; but that, finding no support from him, I kept falling into a pit and losing all interest; that it was most probably only "my problem", as they say; that I didn't know what was the next step, but that he should go on doing whatever he felt like doing and not bother about me and, for his own good, keep coming to me whenever he felt the need for it...

... I spent much of today in a sort of aching stupor, reading the last novel by Le Carré; it is like a cruel mass that keeps rolling back on me, and I remain just as vulnerable and helpless, and I don't feel what grace it may conceal... This has never happened to me: whatever the difficulty I always knew, somehow, that the Grace was using it; this time I don't. And no amount of self-questioning does any good...

11-10-1989, Auroville:

The garden is better, coursing and singing again with the sweetness of the light. But I am not even ready to start cleaning the dead wood; I have to force myself to do the smallest thing... I am waiting to feel the next step, or the impulse to move on it, whatever it may be. I don't want to feel guilty of doing nothing, for once; I have worked just about every day of my life in Auroville, it ought to be alright to take a break; I don't want to carry forward the unresolved pain...

Su has been respecting my silence; I am lucky to have her here by my side...

... I managed to check the work at Janet's, and see the carpenters at Matrimandir, who are finishing the shed for the work of the floor marble; I have thus given myself one more day respite... And tonight I'll do my watch-duty, and that will be my miserly contribution for the day...

One way or another, this last pocket of personal need must be resolved. I cannot do it. It has to be done.

My faith is that I cannot have been given the state I was given earlier just as a whim of the Force: this was Home, true Home, and the beginning of a yet unknown world... The only separateness lay in that unfulfilled need buried in me – a need for a living yes, so it could be offered... In this life, one cannot just deny or quit, there has to happen something that will turn the regret and the longing into a willing adhesion...

12-10-1989, Auroville:

Selvam was determined that I must go back to work with him; he wouldn't go alone. He keeps saying that I must be patient and trust that what has to come will come, that "the flower will bloom" between us, as he puts it, and that he will grow conscious. He keeps saying he doesn't want me to move away, or to be sad...

But I am not ready to trust again. It is like with Matrimandir, I am wary of all the games, of the separation, of the lack of care; something has felt too much pain and is now like a beaten child, cringing, anticipating the next blow...

But we went to see the work, around noon. And actually I haven't missed anything really: Hans isn't finished with the drilling for the last row of slabs, others have been missing too, and Catherine hasn't made any progress on the drawings... Still I haven't contributed any energy there, and it doesn't feel good!

Somehow, in order to go on, I wish there would be some kind of ritual commitment between Selvam and me, something like marriage, or a pact and pledge of brotherhood as among the American Indians, something binding; because I need to know how to work from now on, whether to resume a solitary progress and push away all bonds, or to work from the condition arising out of this relationship and take up everything it touches and carry it along...

13-10-1989, Auroville:

Late afternoon, Selvam and I went to attend the special meeting on Matrimandir that had been called at Aster's in Auromodel. Gupi had been invited, it seems, and he delivered a long lecture on the right attitude – which I received as some sort of moral violence, however true the contents were; I felt like bursting; all my revolt and sense of suffocation were compounded... Again I thought of leaving Auroville... But, it is unreal: these are the conditions; I must accept them, and concentrate... Nonetheless, I do miss the kind of break-neck, free and uncalculating life I used to know with all kinds of people, long ago, before I ever came here; it was free of morals, there was a thirst and a need, a burning movement. I can't stand any morals, from any direction; and yet I am facing this dark line again and I have made no progress in answering it: I just want to blow it up!

14-10-1989, Auroville:

This issue of bisexuality is a tough one. I have no guide there, no reference, and no one to share it with; I don't know of anybody here who has had to work through it. This society is so terribly small... Or else, this condition perhaps is just a mistake, an oddity, a freak, and... what? Should I kill myself? There is this need of an acceptance, somewhere, somehow, in life. Everyone else is "normal" and can work through their impulses openly, "naturally": life is set for them! But I can't! I can sublimate it; I can relate to it spiritually and find from there the potentials of this condition, its power and unique capacities. But in terms of transformation, if I am not given the opportunities others are naturally given to make their offering in life, through experience and through learning of the reality of love, how can I actually grow out of it, how can it actually meet its secret truth? I do not find the answer, and it is a torture...

15-10-1989, Auroville:

I still do not know where this sexual trend comes from, or what it is meant to achieve, in terms of transformation. I have often seen the reality of these low energies that feed on the obsession for release, and the release itself (as in that experience, just the other night, of being held by some disincarnated being and accepting the contact at first, and then realising something was wrong and waking up out of an embrace that was perfectly unholy...). And I look at the way. At how I may, and must, open to the true contact, to the true delight and the true intimacy of the Presence, its richness, its pure and intense jubilation... I have had glimpses, and felt fleeting touches of it, enough to remember it exists, and will come. ... This morning I attended the meeting with Santhakumar and his juniors over the structural model of the Petals, along with Catherine. I like the man, and we communicate well; the study is getting quite clear, and we'll be able to present it to Roger A when he comes; but I still feel exactly the same about the whole idea of it: an unnecessary and irrelevant expense of monumental decoration, with no essential purpose behind it...

... I know I must get myself together, as regards the work at Matrimandir. By letting myself fall apart, I have allowed for neglect and mistakes, and I have felt so bad about it. Now there is this difficult last row of marble to complete with Selvam, and there is the shuttering work for the pillar extension, and it is imperative that I clear my own atmosphere for it to go well. Otherwise I'd better hand it over to someone who is more sincere and more capable of serving the work...

16-10-1989, Auroville:

Dhanapal woke me up at midnight, looking for Selvam. Two youth have run away and he thought Selvam would know where to find them. It was odd to see that Dhanapal thought nothing of looking for Selvam here, in the dead of night, with all lights off – it would have meant that Selvam sleeps here... While Selvam would cringe away from such a thought!

Yesterday I have seen more clearly what has happened; my emotional vital being, that had been kept sort of prisoner, was called out, let out, and experienced, for the first time, what it is to be simply happy with someone else, to be interested in it, to feel young in it; it felt accepted, and that it could love and be used and have a place... The energy of it was alight in the body as well. And then it appeared that in fact it wasn't so: it could not be accepted as it is. And the pain of this realisation, of having to return inside the prison, of being denied again, after having tasted the possibility of freedom, was quite unbearable...

... John H said to me this morning that the past week has been so difficult for him at all levels that it was all he could do to just hold himself together... Perhaps then we have all been under some heavier wave?

... Selvam came with the story: his friend Ayanar who has run away with Bhooma's daughter Tushita, was trying to get a marriage done, because she is already some five months pregnant; and my dear Selvam, always ready to help and be responsible for others, without checking it out with me, got so involved that he decided to take the girl to the hospital for an abortion, rather than letting them marry so young... His intentions were right, but what of the risks? I reacted strongly and blasted him, but...

Part of me wants to split, to move away from him. Part of me feels the deep call in him, like the truth of him, resounding in me all the time, saying to me that I cannot leave him... There is also something in him of an olden times' knight...

He called me urgently from Pondy; the girl was in some critical condition and the doctor and the staff had to be paid... When I reached there, the girl had finally aborted, and was resting; everything was more or less alright. Selvam was satisfied! But I fought him for two hours, over every issue between us... I asked him what he really wanted from me. Friendship, he says; not to be alone; to be shown another way, he says; to go on together, he says...

And his sweetness, and a kind of integrity in him, his statement of himself, do me in again...

... I went then to visit with N in the Central prison. He was obviously very moved and very relieved to see me. He seems to be quieter, and clearer in himself.

According to him the witnesses haven't said anything against him at the last appearance in Court...

19-10-1989, Auroville:

Selvam and I had another session. This was more serious. I can't go on; it feels too much like a waste. I put the choice before him: either he makes a commitment to change his ways and to put some order into his life and gives it an orientation, and I'll put energy into it and we'll go through anything; or he doesn't feel ready or willing or able, and we part; I'll keep supporting him as much as I can but we won't see each other more than occasionally; he asked for a couple of days to come up with a clear answer...

21-10-1989, Auroville:

I need to move back into awareness and surrender, to feel again "what Thou wilt", to let That be...

... I antagonised a few people at today's meeting, by raising first the issue of SSJ's cheque to Matrimandir, and then the issue of each one's commitment to a minimum of 5 hours of daily work, as a precondition for organising the work; it didn't make me more popular...

22-10-1989, Auroville:

The weight of being – or of being human? – is crushing...!

23-10-1989, Auroville:

The only thing I know to be real is the Force. And it acts from within the reality of everything and every being... Earlier this year I had felt there might be the possibility of collaborating, simply by growing more aware, where I am, of the Force; that this awareness constituted the only action one could truly contribute...

But then I slipped and went "down", or away from it, into separateness; I became again, and worse than ever, caught up in the mesh of my own needs and longings for human fulfilment and response, for a home in life...

... I have to accept that, psychologically, there is no clear-cut solution to this relationship with Selvam; I have somehow let him wield a power over me, over my own state and condition, and I have to work from that now...

... I brought fruit and biddies to N in the jail and left a little money with a guard for his needs...

24-10-1989, Auroville:

I worked all afternoon till evening in the Model room on the calculations for the steel-reinforcement of the Pillars extensions, while Catherine worked on drawings for the bottom Pond and walkways, and John H came and went, and I liked the concentration and the feeling of it... But walking back home I also walked back into the pain, the sorrow of being denied...

25-10-1989, Auroville:

This morning Selvam and I finished our section of the marble walls in the Chamber. Then what? He said he wanted to stick by me, to continue as a team; so we began to carry over to the workshop the slabs of marble that are meant for the floor of the Chamber, and we'll set up the cutting work near there, at ground-level, and both Menaig and Yan intend to join us...

... Ar. left with me a transcript of a conversation Satprem had a few years ago regarding Auroville; I have always resisted seeing the way as Truth versus the Enemy or vice-versa, and this is where I am unable to adhere to his expression of the Necessity, so far, even though he very often says exactly what I feel in many regards... But now I then I do wonder; I have, indeed, to wonder what actually happened for instance when I felt so concretely that I was being taught by the Force the very first steps into the Real, when I felt exactly like a baby led by the Hand, and then I slipped into these months of hell: what does it actually say, or show?

But words are treacherous, and I must be more trusting of the perceiving that is given me, of its evolutive power, just as I must be more courageous and given...

26-10-1989, Auroville:

Seeing the general atmosphere of tamas and dishonesty, I am faced with this imperative priority: either I basically work by myself and accept help when it is given but do not depend on it, or I find someone who is willing to commit to full-day work; there is so much to do, and so much dead weight to push out of the way, and so much to clarify and establish, at Matrimandir and all around it... I have to be well!

27-10-1989, Auroville:

A nasty day for me... First off when I reached Matrimandir I fought with Selvam and made him leave me alone; I know I'm being unfair to him, but I need more clarity... And then Andy's whole bunch, in their eagerness to find fault with me, found gleefully that one of the last rows of marble I had fixed had slightly fissured at the joints, the adhesive having somewhat loosened; they went at me then with an animosity and an intent quite poisonous that were completely out of proportion with the fact itself – which I actually cannot explain! I am certain I did nothing wrong, and Selvam and I applied the correct amount of glue, as we have done all along; the only explanation I can figure is that the drilling work Hans did may have caused the wall to vibrate and the adhesive to crack...

28-10-1989, Auroville:

It was mentioned by Andy today that he'd talked to "the boys" and they – Dhanapal, Selvam and others – were planning to start a digging team; this came to me like a knife in the plexus: I saw that my upset with Selvam had merely pushed him in the wrong direction, to form another group, "the Tamil boys"...! So, he hadn't understood anything...! And I saw too that the split between Selvam and me was food for the beast; the pain was too much...

29-10-1989, Auroville:

I had looked for Selvam since yesterday morning. Finally he came to me, at noon. I have been more aware in the last two days of a certain dimension to this relationship, which is like a work of Auroville, and I feared very much that I had botched it, by my impatience, or my self-interest, my own limited longings... We talked long. He can only say that he is struggling, that part of him wants to grow and part of him refuses, on and on all the time, but that he wants us to continue together...

... Yesterday Su received Krishna's visit; he came to tell her, and through her to let me know, that he has decided to leave – the outer reason being that he hasn't been able to have his passport renewed...

30-10-1989, Auroville:

This morning at 6 Selvam, Gajendran, Kanyappan and Dhanapal started digging for the foundations of the South Pillar extension. They went on till tea-break and, later, we all carried the last of the Italian marble from the amphitheatre underground storage to the Chamber. Selvam came here for lunch, and again in the afternoon, tired but happy... I am trying to make them see the need for balance – not just a rush, a blaze, and a collapse...!

31-10-1989, Auroville:

Most of today I have been cutting marble. I tried to arrange a small work-meeting this afternoon, regarding Visitors' regulation – access to the Gardens, Information, infrastructure, etc – and I got agreement to my proposals from Bhaga, John H, Ramalingam and Surya, but Luigi didn't come, even though we had fixed the time to suit him...

5-11-1989, Auroville:

A distance, and an element of distrust on my part, has been growing over the past week, between Selvam and me. He appears not to care much, and he's been trying to act as a leader of this new team, but was so clumsy about it that John H had to ask him yesterday to cool off, and I said nothing... He hasn't been straight with me on anything lately, and I wonder, and blame myself for having perhaps indulged into the projection of my own dream. Yet the pain and the sorrow remain and I miss the friendship, the melting of barriers; it makes me most unhappy to be forced back into "the white race": it is stifling me...

6-11-1989, Auroville:

Nothing to say; I am just relying on work, physical work, all day.

There is no progress in "me", no progress in Selvam, no progress that I can see at Matrimandir either, or in Auroville... But I feel a little more able to stand away from the pain; I guess I have loved, and failed...

... I don't know where it is that I come from – where it is profoundly natural to be the way I am... But for sure it isn't here! Here everything seems to be upside down, artificial and rigid, and so awfully dumb...!

8-11-1989, Auroville:

This evening Champaklal, in a wheel-chair, very emaciated, surrounded with Your atmosphere, visited Matrimandir, and came to see us at the workshop, handing out flowers...

9-11-1989, Auroville:

I have got more involved in setting up a basic organisation for the reception of visitors and the general access to Matrimandir. I had called for another meeting this afternoon. I was a little apprehensive about exposing myself as, even though most people agree on the necessity, the initiative still rests on me. But I try to trust the sense I have been following since I returned to work at Matrimandir and, so far, it appears to have positive and creative effects on the situation, despite the animosity or hostility I still encounter (from Andy's group mostly); it is a rather delicate balance...

11-11-1989, Auroville:

It's been raining all day, monsoon rain, but it's been busy.

We had a long meeting, from 11 am to 2 pm; in a roundabout way most everybody is tentatively recognising the necessity for substantial commitment to the completion of Matrimandir "as soon as possible", even if there has to be the old recourse to "management" and authority to make it happen. Much of it all is cerebral... But beneath it there seems to be the resurgence of a "yes"...

Both Piero and Roger A are going to be present in this coming period, and somehow some clear agreement must be reached...

I presented the proposal for "Visitors Regulation", and it was accepted. This is a confirmation that one simply has to do, to move ahead materially, responding to the evidence of the needs...

... N has come out of jail; the final trial is due at the end of the month, but he is back and expects me to give him work and to look after him. First priority is for him to be treated for filarial: one of his testicles is now very swollen and hurting. There is still this unexplained tenderness, this feeling of being at home with him... Su too had missed him...

... With Selvam there is a return of ease and affection; probably because I now accept to adapt and adjust to his actual feelings, instead of wanting him to adapt and adjust to mine; we attended the entire meeting together, holding each other as before...

Note. Written on 12-11-1989.

"It seems to me that Auroville will not begin to manifest until individuals freely and willingly, out of conscious need, will commit themselves.

It seems to me that the very basis for it to happen is freedom of choice, and this is the challenge of Auroville: when freedom is given – relative as it may be –, what do we do with it, or out of it? We have absolutely nothing to show to the world unless we make it work.

To borrow from a famous saying, it seems to me it is better, in the long run, to begin with ten committed ones than with a hundred of make-believes; and only then can a simple evaluation be made of the requirements – labour, instruments and machines - in order to fulfil the task at hand.

In short it seems to me that no committees, sub or sup, no managements, triple or multi-tiered, will ever produce the quality of commitment that must come from us – and that commitment alone will free us from the need of the old structures and their accompanying shadows.

This isn't to say we must not even try, out of the present inertia, to reach for some sort of dynamism by means of organisation; but we must remember that when we lay emphasis on a frame-work rather than on commitment, we choose to remain crippled a while longer. Yet, surely, it must be better to limp on than not to move at all...?!"

Roger A arrived this afternoon, accompanied by Jacq and his usual, though diminished, entourage. Catherine wasn't there, so I took him around to see all the work, and up into the Chamber. It is obvious that he has gone through some change and physical hardship and he seems to be in a precarious balance, but willing to work. I don't know how to help best. I like him, the man, perhaps because I feel that he loves You; but his ideas are still so... Let us see...

I insisted that he must come regularly to see the work and all the questions and details of it, with Catherine, and he agreed.

14-11-1989, Auroville:

This afternoon we had about two hours of discussion with Roger A in the Model room – Catherine, Jacq, and Luigi part-time – listing all the questions that need to be answered now. I feel affection for Roger A, but I am helpless to change his orientations and make him try for simplicity in the overall design; I don't know what has to be done, what can be done...

15-11-1989, Auroville:

Today I felt moved again to awareness – like a magnet that has been cleaned and can again operate...

16-11-1989, Auroville:

Days are much too short to attend to all that needs to be done, and calls for attention; one can so easily be pulled into a maze of organising and moving things, and it all takes so much talk and circulation of energies and then there needs to be cleansing... I observe again that as soon as one opens to exchange and communication for the sake of arranging work details one gets exposed to all kinds of things that come right in: it is an intricate discipline one must evolve in order not to be flooded...

... John H is the one who is constantly at the mercy of every call and enquiry, with the present increase of momentum, and I don't know how he makes it; but I'm happy with him...

... With Roger A we seem to be on the right track; but the enormity of all that has to be finalised, and what it implies in terms of actual construction work, is overwhelming. I keep quiet whenever I cannot agree, but I now feel some possibility of change, and of reaching a simpler solution, by calling for it; I find in Roger A some new receptivity; Catherine too is relieved to find him more willing and much simpler...

17-11-1989, Auroville:

I am grateful I have a work I can do all day, even if it rains, even if I am alone. It isn't easy to do something creative at Matrimandir, with this sick "collective" – people' moods and brittleness, their half-conscious habit of interfering, of being cynical, or righteous, or negative... These days I feel much energy and willingness, readiness, openness, but I must constantly put a brake on it and wait for others to be accommodated...

18-11-1989, Auroville:

This morning Catherine and I worked with Roger A alone for over two hours, on details of the pillars, of the first level and the central staircase, and we made some nice progress. There is a still fragile thread, with Roger A's new willingness, and I wish nothing heavy comes to interfere at this early stage...

But the general "process" goes on, and we had another long meeting, later – perhaps the last of this series – to finalise the layers of organisation required so that Matrimandir can be completed harmoniously; there was more squabbling and pecking, but the format seems to be more evident: a Planning group, to study all the interrelated parts in detail and issue clear projects, ready for execution; a Management group responsible for the distribution of funds, labour and equipment and the coordination of the works; the Teams executing the projects. These three layers are to be interacting constantly.

Thanks to Judith's firm determination, this was finally accepted in principle, but has yet to be put into practice; and there are pitfalls on the way, depending on the attitude of each person concerned...

I was listed as a member of the Planning group, despite Andy's obvious reluctance – although he never said anything openly; I offered to withdraw, but the others insisted I must be on it.

There's a lot of work ahead of us. I don't know. I tend to be impatient and to want to move on and get things manifested, without enough consideration for feelings; but there has been so much tamas and immobilism and petty warfare for so long... Still, I need to be very centred and watchful...

... N sent me his wife, this evening, to ask for money and help; besides the filarial, he's been bitten by a snake, and has got a cold and fever...! But what can I do?

19-11-1989, Auroville:

Mathé, her daughter Elsa (a beautiful half-Arab girl of 13) and her friend, a young, sweet French fellow, came to visit; Elsa felt so familiar, I knew I would grow very fond of her if she were to stay; but all three of them are like three wonderful kids, still on a verge, happy with their way of life...

21-11-1989, Auroville:

I am getting scattered and confused. I feel I have let myself take on too many responsibilities which I cannot fulfil well enough; or else I haven't been demanding the quality needed in the instruments. There's only Ramalingam I can count upon, really, and he was the one to find out that the carpenters had botched up their job on the pillar. It is nothing disastrous, but it is a waste of time and energy;

And it gives me the sense, very concretely, that if we are serious about completing the entire structure and its surroundings, we must shift scale – we cannot go on with the basis we now have, or it will take decades...

There are too few people willing to share the load.

I don't know how to move forward.

This afternoon Catherine, LN and I had another session with Roger A on the central staircase, and things became a little simpler, a little freer of details, and easier to materialise. But there is such a huge amount of details that are generated by Roger A's approach to decoration that to me it is like looking at an endless servitude to artefacts and complications; and yet there is no doubt that he has evolved towards simplicity...!

I doubt very much the usefulness of my participation in these sessions; I wish actually that both Roger A and Piero would listen to each other and work together: their respective blocks have thrown us all into such a deep pit for so long...

... This evening I wanted so much to clean it all out and to centre, to go to the ocean, or somewhere where Matter is One, IS... But the days have become even shorter, dusk falls at 6 pm... I did some pruning work around the house instead, till I could no longer see the branches...!

... Selvam is pulling at me again, wanting me to give him some directions out of his personal troubles (between his wife, and Mary, and his own family...), but I do not wish to get that involved again...

22-11-1989, Auroville:

A good working day today, with less talk. And there is now a clear understanding with Ramalingam that he needs to be there full-time, so I may proceed with opening or initiating more areas of work...

23-11-1989, Auroville:

This afternoon we first had a small session on Information and Access, to make sure there are enough of us to take up all the shifts and duties, and to prepare the ground for the new organisation, with proper gates and control, watchmen and guides and an active Information service.

Then there was a session with Catherine and Roger A; the work we are doing together is quite interesting; we are now studying the four main doors to the sphere... It is like pulling the magic thread of a complete Matrimandir... So far the contact between the three of us is good, simple and easy...

25-11-1989, Auroville:

Selvam called me to come and meet him. He had to have more steel fragments removed from his eye – tiny splinters – and he was very confused too with his personal scene; his wife had discovered where Mary lives; he was worried about his kids and wanted me to take him so he could see them; and then his friends have got involved, and we had to meet with Selvraj and Janah and Narayanswamy, and sit all together trying to see how to best resolve this situation... I am only there out of a sort of faithfulness to Selvam; I do not expect anything anymore from this friendship; but he still counts on me and sometimes needs me, as he has only me really to whom he can open, with whom he can share all his questions...

27-11-1989, Auroville:

The Congress I Party is barely winning the elections.

There is nothing glorious: the country is wounded everywhere...

... We had our first formal "Planning" session this afternoon: Piero, Janet, Mathias, Toine, Walter, Catherine and me; Roger A and Luigi didn't come. There seems to be the possibility of opening together to a working space and an energy of service; but the sheer amount of practical questions to take to their material solution is awesome...

Su has committed to look after an exhibition of paintings from Auroville in Madras for several days, and she is now apprehensive about the distance...

4-12-1989, Auroville:

I don't see there is any progress in "me"...

Sometimes I so much miss a different quality of atmosphere, and particularly a different quality of interaction, of sharing between people; it is as if a memory, from some far-off country that is home; it doesn't come from some ideal; it exists, some place, and I long to return to it, or to bring it here...

6-12-1989, Auroville:

Nowadays I am always active. I used to resent this constant movement as a servitude, and to fear that there could be no pure rest ever in the manifestation; but now perhaps there is the beginning of another perception; it is in the measure of one's adhesion to the Lord in the World: one begins to know that, eventually, it will be the very concreteness of the Presence that will be the rest one seeks... It will be the cessation of separate responsibility...

.... It is twenty years today since I first came to Auroville; it will be twenty years on the 9th since I saw You for the first time in this life...

It seems that it should perhaps take a hundred more years for this physical existence to, actually and in fact, become a pure drop of That, united to You...

7-12-1989, Auroville:

One positive outcome of Selvam's confused personal choices is that he'd rather spend the entire day at work than face his domestic chaos...!

I hadn't finished the laundry yet when G.G and Suhasini came by, in a surprise visit. They stayed till after 7 pm; and then I made dinner for Su, who is back from Madras; she had piles of things to tell me, and I couldn't take it all in a rush; she was like a child who has hoarded her treasures for the moment she could show them all...

11-12-1989, Auroville:

Catherine came back to work today, still very tense and fragile...

I find there is in "me" the predominance of a need, which is also a will, to unite with the energy of manifestation as regards Matrimandir; it is, in itself, a clear and steady and determined flow, and that makes me grateful... Sometimes I am tangibly aware of You within – the centre of "me": there You are, permanently, and very concretely, as in Your room...

18-12-1989, Auroville:

For the first time we had a Planning session where both Piero and Roger A participated...! It was short, but it happened...!

23-12-1989, Auroville:

Ceausescu has at last been ousted: the last stronghold of this ugly, ugly one...!
... We are preparing for the concreting of the North Pillar extension, the Pillar of Mahakali, next Tuesday...

24-12-1989, Auroville:

I cried again when I finished reading "I Heard the Owl Call my Name", as I cried yesterday when I heard more about how the Romanian people took a stand and threw off the dictator...

25-12-1989, Auroville:

I have a bit of stage-fright before the concreting tomorrow. It hasn't been easy to reach a good quality in the work, and the pouring and vibrating of the concrete will demand great care and vigilance; but it feels like we have done our best, especially Ramalingam, who has been wonderful.

This morning I had a tough moment: Andy came to "chat", and he was most unpleasant and unhelpful, and I would have lost all confidence, but I clung to the thread I hold from You: it is Yours! I see very well my own imperfections, but I am not covering them, they are there before You...

... I am very moved by the insurrection in Romania; more so, in a way, than by what has recently happened in East Germany; I don't know why, mentally...

26-12-1989, Auroville:

I had tried to make room for the Auroville people to come and join in the concreting. I had hoped they would. It had been announced in advance.

But by 9 am, still no one had come. John H, Selvam, Ramalingam, Catherine, Su and our new friend Frank were the only ones present apart from our regular team of "workers". So I just started with them. And they were all happy.

It went well, as far as one could tell until one opens the shuttering. Gopal didn't come either, though he'd said he would, and I sensed Krishna's condemn and judgement behind his absence; of the rest of the Matrimandir people, only Yan came and helped; the others arrived on the site as usual around 10 am and left around 1 pm, talking away, going up to the Chamber and generally making a show of being unconcerned...!

But so what! Between us present there was much tenderness; I am relying more and more on "the boys" and feeling more and more at home with them. And I am glad of the coming of this whole "tribe" (from Corsica, all friends of Catherine); Frank particularly feels very familiar, and the children are lovely, very present and wakeful and trusting and unspoilt...

I am cooking dinner for Selvam, who has again left his wife... There's a bit of my responsibility there, since I had pressured him to be always truthful, whatever the consequences...! But he is learning to value deeper things, and becoming more able to face what comes to him...

... I am not sure how to adjust, at Matrimandir. I tend to be too impatient, and perhaps too exacting. With a couple of exceptions, individual commitment to the work hasn't improved, while the amount of work ready to be executed has much increased...

And so once more there is the question: can Matrimandir be built with mostly "paid-labour", or must one accept that it can only be built by freely committed individuals...?

I haven't yet found a clear answer to that...

28-12-1989, Auroville:

I got mixed up with Selvam's life again and invaded by its confusion... His wife is pursuing the high drama of it and Mary is applying pressure in her own clever ways, by falling seriously ill, and had to be hospitalised... I spent part of the day with him in Pondy... He'd been doing so well the past several weeks, learning through experience the joy of self-giving, and he knows it and now he is so unhappy again... I try simply to be an agent of his own true growth, but it isn't easy; it takes time and it necessarily implies an amount of disharmony...

31-12-1989, Auroville:

Dinner is cooking for Su and me. She will move in here with me in a week or so, before Ch.J and F.J arrive; and C will join us a few days after that...

I don't know whether I shall continue writing these daily notes; for one thing I haven't got another diary; but perhaps I want to give it a break, and wait for a more adequate expression of the little signs on the way... I don't know...
You are my roots and my future; You are my core and my axis.
You are the Lord's magnet...

Je n'ai retrouvé aucune trace de cette année 1990, aucun document, aucun texte, aucune notation. Il semble que j'ai cessé d'écrire mon journal jusqu'en Février de l'année 1991.

Je ne me souviens d'aucun évènement qui m'aurait affecté personnellement.

Mais il est certain que ce fut une année déterminante pour le travail du Matrimandir, surtout dans le sens de la mise en place d'une base d'organisation qui a duré jusqu'en Octobre 2003.

- 1991 -

28-2-1991, Auroville :

Le 23^{ème} anniversaire d'Auroville.

A l'aube, à l'amphithéâtre, un grand feu clair, une assemblée silencieuse et concentrée pour la première fois en de nombreuses années ; j'y suis allé seul ; j'y ai marché longtemps, tout autour, à mon rythme...

... L'équipe de Madras est arrivée pour commencer de poser les prototypes des panneaux de la coque intérieure : installer des plateformes et des échafaudages pour eux...

A 10 heures trente ce matin, le cesser le feu au Moyen Orient...

... Karan Singh a prononcé, il semble, un beau discours au Bharat Nivas ; je n'y suis pas allé ; je l'ai rencontré hier, ainsi que Kapila Vyatsavan, au Matrimandir.

Dans la matinée, ouverture soudaine d'un villageois qui possède des terres dans l'aire des Jardins et souhaite maintenant les vendre à Auroville, pour un prix raisonnable...

Et, à 17 heures, la visite de Champaklal, jusqu'à la nuit : poignant, vrai, si transparent, mais comme entouré de cette contradiction qui règne encore à l'Ashram. Ramalingam, Dharman, John H et moi portons sa chaise ; avant de partir il a obligé son entourage à donner de l'argent ; Madanlal était présent, heureux aussi comme un enfant...

1-3-1991, Auroville :

Journée de travail entrecoupée d'incidents très chargés émotionnellement.

Edzart, sans nous consulter, maltraite l'un de nos ouvriers qu'il surprend à dissimuler de l'herbe fraîchement coupée ; tous les ouvriers se réunissent autour de Ramalingam et m'appellent ; nous faisons chercher Edzart ; j'insiste pour qu'il vienne s'excuser ; Ramalingam éclate en sanglots...

Le soir Asha (Catherine a reçu ce nom de Champaklal) et moi rendons visite à Roger A à Auromodèle pour essayer de lui communiquer ce que nous ressentons face à tout le travail à faire et ce que nous souhaitons qu'il regarde et comprenne mieux...

2-3-1991, Auroville :

Madanlal accepte de rassembler l'argent nécessaire pour l'achat des terrains.

Incident avec Ritam, Sukrit et l'un de nos gardes ; longue entrevue avec Ritam.

Entrevue avec Edzart ; je lui demande de s'excuser personnellement auprès de l'ouvrier qu'il a maltraité et il accepte de le faire.

5 tonnes de fer sont délivrées pour le grand Réservoir...

4-3-1991, Auroville :

Très tôt ce matin je me fais mal au dos en soulevant, avec Ramalingam, l'une des colonnes – 400 kilos !

Le reste de la journée comme au ralenti, avec cette douleur, et cette fatigue qui se confond dans une tristesse de ne pas toucher le levier actif qui dénouerait la situation au Matrimandir, qui ouvrirait le chemin matériel de son achèvement...

... Selvam me donne un massage, ce soir...

5-3-1991, Auroville :

De 11 heures à 17 heures, rencontre avec les ingénieurs de SERC, Madras, à propos du revêtement de la sphère, avec Asha, Toine et Roger A ; ils sont trois, l'un plus vif et ouvert que les autres. Mais leurs idées et leurs propositions refont le chemin que nous avons déjà suivi sans l'éclairer... Je ne sais pas où est la solution, tant que l'on tente de servir la formation de Roger A ; la seule proposition alternative qui reste claire et vivante en moi implique le rejet ou l'abandon de cette formation, et cela n'est possible que par Ton intervention, du dedans, en Roger A.

Alors, quoi ?

C'est la fête de Somu ; j'aimerais lui offrir quelque chose, mais ne sais comment m'y prendre...

C'est un tâtonnement qui n'en finit pas...

6-3-1991, Auroville :

Ce matin, d'étouffement, j'ai éclaté : je ressens tellement le manque de la clarté, de l'évidence nécessaire pour achever Matrimandir, d'une respiration enfin libérée de ce processus si laborieux, de ces jeux si pénibles de polarisation et d'influence...

D.D, qui est très proche de Roger A, nous a rejoints aux bureaux ce matin ; Asha, Toine et moi, avons alors tenté de lui faire saisir la nature des questions qui continuent de se poser...

Je ne sais pas ce qui est vraiment demandé...

Et il y a Selvam, et cette tendresse croissante comme un miel douloureux : douloureux à cause du manque de liberté, ou de plénitude...

... Chandrasekhar démissionne du Gouvernement Central ; des élections générales doivent être appelées, une fois le Parlement dissous...

7-3-1991, Auroville :

Une journée épuisante, avec deux réunions de travail...

Je touche une limite, en ce qui concerne Roger A ; il y a là toute une grossièreté d'être et de conscience, malgré une sorte de sensibilité touchante et l'affection que je lui porte... C'est comme un poison absorbé pendant trop longtemps ; je sens se produire un rejet massif de toute l'histoire, qui n'évolue qu'en surface, qu'en petites concessions apparemment plastiques, mais qui ne se donne pas...

... Je ne vois pas, ne sens pas l'issue de ce jeu. Là où je touche le chemin, c'est soit dans l'action – se donner à l'énergie qui fait -, soit dans le regard silencieux qui aime et éprouve la Présence. Toutes les autres positions sont comme autant de pièges et de repaires...

8-3-1991, Auroville :

Dégoût, saturation, impuissance, incapacité à débusquer le chemin clair, libre d'influences, créatif et matériellement puissant. C'est comme un labyrinthe dont toutes les parois sont déformantes et toutes les perspectives tronquées...

Il faudrait trouver ce ressort central, actif sur tous les plans, qui puisse laisser couler l'énergie pour construire Matrimandir ; c'est analogue à cet effort, ce besoin impérieux, extra humain, lorsque l'on frappe à la porte de l'être psychique – mais c'est d'une autre manière et, d'abord, ce n'est plus individuel : ce devrait être collectif ; mais la conscience de cet état n'est pas suffisamment formée...

Ce Matrimandir, il sera la demeure d'une Présence qui ne pourra que croître ; il lui faut un corps cohérent, un revêtement aussi matériellement vrai que possible...

Je ne sais pas comment me tourner, comment attraper le sillon du vrai qui doit s'ouvrir dans cet infime arrangement de matière, pour quelque chose d'infiniment grand...

9-3-1991, Auroville :

Je n'ai toujours pas de proposition suffisamment claire et précise, et je ne sais pas comment aborder la situation à présent ; alors je me tiens un peu à l'écart, et quelque chose s'est un peu brouillé avec Asha aussi, une sorte d'interférence, ou ombre projetée ; l'effet en est presque douloureux, au plexus solaire... Je ne suis pas capable ces jours-ci de me donner à une énergie qui embrasse et agit...

Toine me dit que Roger A est en train de préparer un plan d'action avec Aurofuture et Pierre E – cela ressemble tant à toutes les vagues précédentes, qui n'aboutissent pas et laissent un goût de cendres...

11-3-1991, Auroville :

J'ai préparé un autre texte demandant la contribution consciente de chaque Aurovilien pour dégager la solution pratique dont a besoin Matrimandir. Mais je voulais d'abord vérifier l'attitude de Roger A aujourd'hui, quand nous parlerions de tous les manques de cohérence : il demeure convaincu de son orientation ; mais, pour la première fois il accepte de faire face à la difficulté avec nous, soit pour lui tordre le cou, soit pour en apprendre ; Jacq et lui retardent leur départ, et demandent à l'équipe d'Aurofuture et à quelques autres d'interrompre tout autre projet et de se concentrer sur Matrimandir : ce sont donc les signes d'un pas en avant... Mais la perspective d'avoir à traiter avec toute la confusion que ces gens vont inévitablement ajouter au moment de s'engager, est un peu effrayante – et c'est là que la qualité de notre équipe va être mise à l'épreuve...

... Une réunion à propos d'une nouvelle brochure, pour nous aider à informer des besoins et trouver les fonds nécessaires ; et ce soir je suis descendu à Pondy avec tout l'or que nous avons – des bijoux et des barres qui ont été données à Matrimandir - pour le faire peser et évaluer : cet or doit être fondu pour le revêtement des 4 symboles de Sri Aurobindo qui soutiendront le Cristal...

12-3-1991, Auroville :

Une scène bien vilaine m'a pris au dépourvu ce matin : LN, exacerbé dans une sorte de haine, envoyé par Piero, est monté au deuxième niveau de la structure pour tenter de prouver que l'agencement de l'armature de fer que Jérôme et Svar m'aident à préparer pour les dalles amovibles est faux, incorrect et inacceptable et que c'est seulement ma peau blanche qui m'autorise à faire ce que je veux ici (LN est ingénieur de formation, je crois) ; une tirade complètement injustifiée, sans un seul instant s'enquérir de la méthode que j'ai suivie ; c'était quelque chose de non fondé, de mauvais, de malhonnête et de laid, et plus tard, en déjeunant avec Selvam, encore sous le choc, les larmes sont montées...

... Et ce soir il y a eu un autre incident de violence, entre Jacky et Babushwar cette fois, au portail...

... Je viens de recevoir une autre lettre de JYL, où il me raconte un rêve qu'il a eu, très exact, de la situation avec les architectes et ingénieurs, pour décider de la coque de Matrimandir ; dans ce rêve il me voit d'abord comme décharné, très désemparé, et rejeté parce qu'intraitable ; puis il me voit revenir, et abaisser les bras d'un geste impératif qui communique la solution – comme la venue du corps vrai, du revêtement de vérité – et c'est accepté... Et par la suite il m'aide à faire des copies des plans à l'aide d'une machine très perfectionnée qu'il a appris à utiliser... Si seulement je pouvais ainsi servir cette vérité... !

14-3-1991, Auroville :

Quel terrible, terrible lieu.

Le jeu des forces aux racines de toutes les misères ;

Souvent ce qui est demandé est à la limite de la capacité de persévérance et de don de soi.

Et pourtant parfois, une minute, Ta Force : la vraie, la seule Force...

15-3-1991, Auroville :

Jacky accepte en principe de venir faire la paix avec notre gardien (qui ne faisait que son travail), mais il arrive en force, accompagné de Babu et Perumal, et de son nouvel ami J.L ; s'ensuit une longue scène, si laide et fautive et pénible, à la conclusion de laquelle les vertueux, les justifiés, les clairs, ceux qui incarnent le « vrai Auroville », s'adressent à moi comme au responsable de toute la situation, celui qui enfonce aux lois de leur liberté – celui à qui on peut jeter son poison vertueux et justifié puisque, d'une part, je n'ai pas « le droit » d'être là, je ne suis que toléré, ne m'as-tu pas refusé, n'est-ce pas, et, d'autre part parce qu'une fois de plus, quand les choses deviennent tranchées, il n'y a plus personne, l'équipe est défaite et chacun a pris du large, pour rester « populaire »... Seul Selvam est demeuré à mon côté...

... Nous avons démonté le coffrage et l'échafaudage du dernier bétonnage de l'escalier central : un beau béton, pas un défaut, et les formes sont bien venues ; c'est réconfortant.

Devadatta (Frank a reçu ce nom de Champaklal) chez, lui, ce soir...

17-3-1991, Auroville :

J'ai passé une partie de la journée d'hier, dimanche, à rédiger un document de communication au sujet de l'utilisation future de Matrimandir et de son accès ; je suis sûr que ce texte est juste et qu'il porte une compréhension vivante et ouverte ; mais Toine et Arjun bloquent, sans me dire pourquoi...

Réunion l'après-midi avec Pierre E et l'équipe d'Aurofuture, pour partager les travaux.

19-3-1991, Auroville :

Ramalingam, quelques-uns de nos ouvriers, et moi, commençons de marquer les points de référence pour le grand réservoir et son bassin ouvert, au-dessous de la sphère.

L'après-midi, comme chaque mardi, réunion de Coordination ; mais je sens, avant même d'y aller, qu'Arjun a tout démoli et qu'il ne reste rien du document. Je vois que toute réaction de ma part sera interprétée comme l'expression de mon « ego d'auteur », et qu'il n'acceptera pas de regarder la teneur de son action ; je suis prêt pourtant à apprendre quelque chose si ce qu'il a fait à la place est supérieur, plus vrai, ou plus simple... Quand vient le sujet, Arjun, sans explication, lit son propre texte ; il ne reste rien de ce que j'avais préparé, et c'est un langage pontifiant, institutionnel, prude, qui ne donne pas... Je quitte tranquillement la pièce.

Je suis conscient que nous sommes à un moment où il est particulièrement important qu'une équipe cohérente soit en fonction, et que l'habitude de la résistance est de s'intensifier et de détruire autant qu'elle peut en utilisant n'importe quel moyen. Mais je ne peux pas prendre toute la responsabilité de ne pas donner prise... Il doit aussi y avoir une vérité suffisante dans les relations, dans l'équilibre...

20-3-1991, Auroville :

C'est la fête de Devadatta ; il veut repartir, pour ses enfants...

Aucun signe d'Arjun... Je ne sais pas le procédé...

Souvent, ici, il faut trouver un courage que l'on n'est pas conscient d'avoir. Il faut vraiment le trouver. Pas un courage devant un obstacle, ou un ennemi, ou un saut : un courage qui est tout à la fois persévérance et confiance et intégrité, fidélité, droiture, et ouverture – qui n'est pas une addition de toutes ces choses, mais les contient en un instant, en un souffle, ou un appel, physique...

Il est presque plus facile d'être inhumain, que d'être humain consciemment et de continuer à marcher, et à se donner à la transition...

21-3-1991, Auroville :

Commencé avec « mon » équipe d'ouvriers de placer l'armature de fer pour le Réservoir...

P.V est impatient de commencer l'excavation des 12 Pétales...

Arjun, sans conviction apparente, me demande si j'ai le temps de le voir pour « quelques minutes »... Pourquoi ? Il ne dit pas, et nous en restons là...

Bétonnage, avec Jérôme et Svar, au deuxième niveau...

22-3-1991, Auroville :

Ce sont des journées laborieuses ; il y a un mauvais climat de fragmentation, qui fait obstacle : je+je+je+je... on n'est pas portés... Il faut lutter pour rester ensemble – rester ensemble pour les individus, rester ensemble pour le corps...

... Il y a peut-être quelque chose, comme un équivalent conscient de l'autre côté de la spirale, de cette insouciance naturelle d'un vital peu développé : une sorte d'acceptation consciente et lucide de tout, ancrée dans une orientation imperturbable, et libre de toute autre dépendance qui n'est pas la dépendance de Toi...

Mais il faut pour y atteindre, il me semble, un héroïsme d'une qualité pratiquement inconnue...

... Su est encore fatiguée, en lutte.

Notre cercle humain est un cauchemar effrayant, si l'on est amoureux du Vrai...

24-3-1991, Auroville :

En fin de matinée je suis allé au village donner à chacun des trois enfants de Jaïmurthy son symbole d'or – je n'irai pas à la cérémonie demain, ce qui est enfin accepté...

Su est effrayée par le degré de fatigue ou d'épuisement nerveux dans lequel elle se trouve...

26-3-1991, Auroville :

Cet après-midi j'ai participé à la réunion de Coordination – Toine m'avait assuré que mon absence causerait plus de tension encore et qu'Arjun apprenait sa leçon (!) ; mais je n'ai jamais eu l'intention de lui donner une leçon, et je regrette que nous n'ayons pas été capables de regarder ensemble les éléments qui ont contribué à cette distance.

Cette Auroville est une entreprise qui cumule les impossibilités.

Aucune des questions qui s'y posent, aucune des situations qui s'y créent, n'ont de réponse ni de solution connue, déjà expérimentée. L'expérience humaine mentalisée est incapable de la fournir.

Si l'on donne son attention avec son cœur à l'un de ces problèmes qui se présentent à tout moment, on se sent douloureusement impuissant. Il y a bien, en arrière, le sens de lignes, ou de vérités simples, qui demandent pourtant un engagement, face à une Présence ; mais si l'on tente de les porter en avant, elles deviennent autant d'ombres, nivelées dans la cohue des notions et des valeurs et des idées colportées ; et on ne peut pas se battre pour ces vérités, car alors elles deviennent exclusives...

S'il y avait une sorte de hiérarchie acceptée, l'on pourrait tenter de laisser l'individu qui s'en trouverait à la pointe développer une capacité d'intuition directe, sans règles ; mais sans un changement général, sans le progrès général d'une compréhension beaucoup plus libre et éveillée, l'action serait constamment brouillée...

Et l'autre solution, de tenter une anarchie ouverte, n'est pas viable tant que notre perception les uns des autres demeure prisonnière de l'ego et du mental.

Alors, rien n'est jamais satisfaisant ; aucun choix n'est vrai ni entier ; aucun mouvement ne peut être le véhicule d'une action directe...

29-3-1991, Auroville :

L'anniversaire de Votre rencontre, cette fois-ci...

Et tout le temps de ce jour, une coulée de Force...

Et ce mystère de plus en plus aigu, presque intolérable : Ca coule, Ca pénètre, « descend », et c'est la seule chose tangible – et pourtant, horizontalement, dans la relation aux autres et aux mouvements de la vie, cela semble aggraver la difficulté...

J'ai emmené Devadatta à Pondy cet après-midi ; plus d'une heure au Samadhi, qui aurait pu continuer indéfiniment – il m'a fallu intervenir par une volonté mécanique arbitraire pour interrompre, parce que c'était trop pour Devadatta : les deux choses, là, s'unissaient, devenaient une – la coulée de la Force, et l'expérience physique intime, complète, d'avoir la tête posée sur Tes genoux, dans Ton atmosphère matérielle.

30-3-1991, Auroville :

Avec Su vient la nécessité d'une distance physique ; il est le temps qu'elle se détache de moi et apprenne à faire ses propres choix ici, en Auroville ; il faut qu'elle ait un champ de vie à explorer par elle-même, à l'écart de ce centre d'intensité particulier. Elle le sent bien et propose de trouver un autre lieu où habiter, dès que possible, et pour quelques temps au moins...

La Pression est là. Et les autres aussi. Et cela me rend difficile.

Je ne rencontre pas chez les êtres que je côtoie ce qui peut éclairer d'un feu, créer un espace de partage comme une fête, avec les corps ; je mendie de l'un ou de l'autre l'ombre d'une tendresse, d'une reconnaissance ou d'un appel ; et quand la Coulée est plus dense, rien ne suffit plus...

... Hier j'ai acheté des livres de Vous traduits en Tamil pour la fête de Selvam, le 3 Avril ; je voudrais trouver quelque chose qui le rende vraiment heureux, dedans. Quoi ? Si je pouvais au moins être utile à ce qu'il parvienne quelque part de vrai, à une réalisation solide – lui, dans tout ce monde, alors ma vie, du point de vue personnel, serait justifiée... !

De 9 heures à 20 heures, bétonnage de la base octogonale du mur du Réservoir ; 145 sacs de ciment : John H et moi avions sous estimé et la quantité et la durée ! Mais pour une fois quelques Auroviliens se sont joints à nos ouvriers, et tout s'est bien passé.

2-4-1991, Auroville :

Ce soir avec mon Selvam, en ville, pour acheter les gâteaux à distribuer demain pour sa fête ; nous dînons avec E.B qui vient d'arriver de France, pour un mois, après 5 ans.

4-4-1991, Auroville :

Du point de vue de cette conscience matérielle qui se développe lentement, l'expérience qui m'est donnée ici depuis toutes ces années est une Grâce constante : construire, être constamment engagé dans des transformations matérielles, travailler à laisser une Force ronde se manifester de substance à substance – nos corps, les matériaux, les outils, comme un continuum qui apprend à recevoir, et à devenir conscient de l'Unité...

5-4-1991, Auroville :

De passage au « Planning », j'obtiens un accord pour l'emplacement d'une colline, au Nord Est de Matrimandir, au bord des Jardins, en utilisant la terre que nous retirerons en ouvrant les accès à la sphère et en creusant pour les fondations des Pétales...

6-4-1991, Auroville :

Réunion de travail en fin de journée, à propos des Pétales, avec un ingénieur d'Hyderabad invité par Pierre E ; une seconde réunion est prévue pour demain...

7-4-1991, Auroville :

Deuxième réunion, cet après-midi, avec l'ingénieur d'Hyderabad ; il me faudra ajouter du fer dans la structure du Réservoir, le long de la paroi octogonale, pour recevoir ponctuellement la charge latérale des Pétales...

10-4-1991, Auroville :

J'ai effectivement l'expérience d'être repassé, hier, le jour de ma fête, comme à ma source particulière d'énergie intérieure, cette source qui choisit de se manifester ici et d'y nourrir le labeur d'exister, et communique, par le psychique, cet enthousiasme pur et calme et confiant.

Mais dans la conscience physique et l'atmosphère générale, ce n'est pas facile de contribuer cette énergie avec constance...

... Cet après-midi Ramalingam a pu enfin exprimer, tranquillement, ce qu'il ressent depuis quelques temps, et ce qui l'empêche de s'ouvrir à l'énergie de travail : il ressent un manque de confiance de la part de Toine et d'Arjun envers lui et moi. Il semble aussi qu'un certain nombre de gens, à distance, ont l'impression que lui et moi cherchons à contrôler tout le travail à faire, et il en est triste.

Tout cela n'est pas clair. D'un côté ces grandes déclarations qu'il faut finir Matrimandir en deux ans et de l'autre, lorsque lui et moi nous rendons disponibles et proposons quelque chose pour faciliter ou hâter le travail, il nous faut le justifier et presque le défendre...

... Demain, John H et Piero partent à Bombay, avec les symboles en acier inoxydable et l'or dûment pesé...

... Message de Paris pour E.B : son père est parti...

11-4-1991, Auroville :

Une soirée très douce et apaisante avec Devadatta, à l'océan d'abord, puis ici pour dîner : un réconfort après une journée fatigante...

Nous avons eu ce matin une longue mise au point, demandée par Ramalingam, avec Toine et Arjun, qui s'est ouverte sur une meilleure compréhension entre nous. Mais il me semble que nous abordons une zone de grande confusion...

12-4-1991, Auroville :

L'énergie ne circule pas bien, la concentration n'est pas partagée – et la chaleur aggrave la condition générale... Comment aider à ce que les mouvements soient droits ? C'est une tâche impossible... Ce pays droit, qui manque tant...

Dans une situation aussi exceptionnelle, et aussi exposée, que celle où Matrimandir se construit, on ne peut pas se contenter de travailler sur soi-même. Que faire ?

Comment s'unir à une Action centrale à tout et à tous, dans le petit détail et le petit geste de l'instant, dans la nécessité physique ?

Le pays droit ! Le Vaste, le Vrai, le Droit : Brihàt, Satyam, Ritam... !

13-4-1991, Auroville :

Ce sont des journées fastidieuses.

Je n'ai pas de perception claire de ce qui se passe.

Il y a des moments de Pression presque impérative ; mais l'effet le plus proche dans ma conscience physique oscille entre l'évanouissement ou une sorte de transe, et la suffocation, ou même presque comme un mouvement de colère qui voudrait écarter toute cette confusion, cette constante imposition du mental et de son « droit » à présenter ses idées, ses trucs, sa panacée...

La chaleur aussi est lourde ; une grande partie de l'énergie physique est mobilisée pour simplement rester debout et continuer de s'occuper des choses et du travail à faire...

14-4-1991, Auroville :

Tamil New Year...

Je commande à Velu une broderie très élaborée sur un châle que je veux envoyer à C pour sa fête le 6 Mai.

15-4-1991, Auroville :

John H rentre de Bombay ; le travail de dorure des symboles prendra à peu près 6 semaines ; son impression, dit-il, est que l'on peut faire toute confiance à Wadia ; Arjun est très en colère...

... Le relevé pour l'excavation des 12 Pétales doit commencer demain ; restent plusieurs questions de logistique, qui devront se résoudre dans le mouvement...

16-4-1991, Auroville :

Je me suis fâché avec Ramalingam ce matin, pour qu'il mette son attention dans l'équipe ; puis c'était doux, et actif...

... Nous avons dû nous rendre à la Nursery cet après-midi où un autre incident violent venait de se produire : Gnanivel a violemment poussé le contremaître, Sundarmurthy, hors de sa maison... Tous les ouvriers nous attendaient pour « rendre justice »... Les facteurs qui contribuent à de tels conflits sont ici exceptionnellement situés et éclairés ; il n'y a jamais de solution à toute épreuve ni de méthode vérifiée. Et s'ajoute à cela la difficulté d'agir en groupe, de servir en groupe une action un peu vraie, et exacte. Chacun apprend finalement à suivre ses propres perceptions tout en acceptant et respectant la complémentarité de l'autre, et la tension se dissipe, et quelque chose d'un peu nouveau affleure dans le cœur... Mais c'est dans la multitude des gestes quotidiens qu'il faut apprendre à préserver cette possibilité, à la nourrir et lui donner toujours plus de place...

En Auroville s'est ajouté aux castes, aux classes et aux distinctions ataviques et culturelles un « nouveau » statut, celui d' « Aurovilien » : et, potentiellement, c'est à la fois un piège effrayant, et le passage le plus direct peut-être à une compréhension plus vraie du monde, de l'humain, et de l'identité véritable de chaque individu au sein du Tout...

Mais trop, trop souvent, c'est le piège qui tend à se refermer ; il faut une vigilance et une exigence de tous les instants...

17-4-1991, Auroville :

Gnanivel a fait de l'agitation depuis hier – malhonnêtement, mais il n'y a personne à ses côtés pour le lui rappeler. Une délégation est venue trouver Toine.

Le groupisme est une chose qui doit absolument disparaître de nos consciences, si l'on veut faire un pas dans le vrai Auroville – dans la vraie vie.

Autant le soutien spontané d'un ensemble d'individus peut porter une vague de lumière et de reconnaissance, autant toute formation de groupe est régressive, mensongère, déformante et obstructive.

Et nous sommes dans un pays dont la misère morale et politique est si activement réductrice que tout effort dans le sens du progrès doit être arraché et maintenu avec une sorte d'héroïsme... !

18-4-1991, Auroville :

Une longue réunion cet après-midi avec les nouveaux « équipiers », qui m'a laissé dans un intense besoin de trouver un chemin matériel sans encombres, possédé de son propre rythme juste.... Encore plus d' « idées », encore plus d'attitudes... je ne sais pas ! J'ai eu un accrochage avec Luigi, qui m'a envoyé ce soir un mot pour s'excuser et me demander d'oublier...

Et j'ai dû me fâcher un peu avec Arjun à propos de papiers : nous n'avons encore aucune réponse claire pour les travaux qui attendent, et cela dure depuis des années, tant qu'il s'agit du concept de Roger A ; les ingénieurs que nous consultons, tous, les uns après les autres, se retirent, ou bien nous remettent des études bâclées, ou nous demandent des sommes astronomiques sans aucune garantie de résultats... Et le collectif, tel que nous le vivons, est comme un piège qui opère à l'encontre du chemin...

... Ramalingam vient passer une heure ici ce soir, tranquille, et nous essayons ensemble de démêler les fils et de discerner un chemin pratique que nous puissions proposer pour le travail à faire...

21-4-1991, Auroville :

Dimanche de nettoyage. Et une réunion de deux heures avec Arjun, Toine, John H et Ramalingam, pour décider de quelques urgences, et s'ajuster ensemble à un processus pratique pour accomplir les travaux à venir en intégrant la contribution de Pierre E et de son unité de construction, « Atmarati »...

22-4-1991, Auroville :

Journée de travail continu au Réservoir ; mais Ramalingam n'est pas heureux, et cela m'affecte. Les contradictions se rangent de tous côtés, comme une complétude à l'envers ; au sein de cette masse, la possibilité d'agir utilement semble se tenir sur un passage si étroit qu'il est presque imperceptible...

... Une bonne et douce lettre de Myrtle – elle y joint une magnifique carte pour ma fête : c'est un tableau représentant une jeune femme, Indienne d'Amérique, dans un champ de fleurs, avec des collines au loin ; et il y a là cette note profonde de cette jeune femme que j'ai moi-même peinte, cette femme que je pourrais tenir et chérir...

23-4-1991, Auroville :

Le Cristal est arrivé à Bombay ; mais une série de malentendus et trop d'intermédiaires font qu'il doit rester en transit, probablement jusqu'à vendredi quand le prochain vol cargo vient à Madras...

... L'après-midi et jusqu'à la nuit une réunion de Coordination difficile pour tenter de défaire les conséquences de l'incident qui s'est produit à la Nursery la semaine passée, maintenant qu'A est rétabli. Alors que nous approchons d'un accord sur les mesures à adopter, Arjun insiste que le nom de Gnanivel soit mentionné dans le paragraphe indiquant notre désapprobation « officielle » ; je fais objection ; il suffit à mon avis d'écrire « l'Aurovilien concerné » ou quelque chose de similaire ; Arjun entre alors dans une colère qui m'étonne et m'appelle « devious ». Pourtant c'est un point sur lequel je n'éprouve aucun doute ; nous cherchons à changer les attitudes et à offrir les déformations, non à cristalliser des blâmes personnels qui restent attachés aux individus...

La réunion cesse dans une impasse, me laissant assez confondu...

Peut-être devrais-je mieux me retirer ?

Tout cela n'aide pas à constituer un corps d'action à Ton service.

En même temps toute cette histoire est en rapport direct avec la notion locale de statut social qu'implique le terme « Aurovilien ». Or non seulement j'ai été moi-même rejeté par certains porteurs du « titre » dans le passé mais, par une grâce qui se présente encore parfois comme une malédiction, je ne me sens pas du tout identifié à lui ; et puisqu'il en est ainsi, je me demande parfois s'il est juste pour moi de participer à quoi que ce soit d'« officiel »... ?

Toine nous téléphone de Madras à 18 heures 30 pour nous informer que le Cristal est enfin installé dans la camionnette de CSR, et qu'ils devraient arriver vers 22 heures.

Ils arrivent à 22 heures 20 exactement ; nous le déchargeons pour le poser sur le petit chariot que nous avons fabriqué à cet effet : 672 kilos avec sa boîte de protection...

27-4-1991, Auroville :

Peu après 9 heures ce matin, nous amenons le cristal sur son chariot jusqu'à la structure, et le montons dans la Chambre à l'aide de la grue, guidé par des cordes ; c'est toute une cérémonie : les caméras tournent...

La boîte est alors ouverte, au milieu d'une petite cohue : une perfection matérielle est révélée, pour Te servir ; l'émotion est profonde.

... Bétonnage de 4 piliers dans le Réservoir.

... E.B repart en France... Devadatta aussi est parti, sans un signe.

... Toine vient insister auprès de moi pour que je participe à une autre réunion, demain, avec Pierre E et les gens d'Aurofuture, où Arjun sera également présent – qui est parvenu à produire au passage une sorte de grimace à titre de sourire...

Les relations sont difficiles, au pied de l'œuvre !

C'est une tâche bien formidable, dans ces conditions, que d'établir un corps d'engagement collectif solide : c'est encore l'histoire des châteaux de sable...

28-4-1991, Auroville :

J'ai donc participé à la réunion cet après-midi. Mais tous les paramètres ne sont pas encore établis, et trop de détails manquent encore pour planifier les travaux ou distribuer les responsabilités ; et nous sommes toujours dans cet esclavage au concept de Roger A...

Aux ateliers, deux des douze colonnes destinées à la Chambre –des fûts d'acier sans joint que Piero et Paolo ont fait venir d'Italie et font maintenant enduire de plusieurs couches de laque blanche très coûteuse – ont réagi et de nouvelles cloques se sont formées. A cause de la chaleur, cette fois ci ? C'est une histoire de fous... Cela vaut-il vraiment la peine, ou est ce seulement l'orgueil de Piero qui s'obstine ? Qui peut réellement se prononcer, quand tant d'énergie a déjà été investie et dépensée ? Il y a d'autres matériaux, plus stables et plus durables, pour matérialiser ces 12 colonnes que Tu as vues dans la Chambre : mais là encore c'est la conception de la perfection particulière à Piero qui détermine les choix...

Alors il faut dès ce soir former une équipe de nuit qui va gratter la peinture, une fois de plus...

Réunion de Coordination cet après-midi.

Assez d'argent est arrivé pour acheter un tracteur et sa remorque.

Madanlal a donné l'argent nécessaire pour le marbre blanc (Makrana) des niveaux 1 et 2, ainsi que pour les pierres roses (Agra) qui doivent revêtir l'amphithéâtre...

... Il semble que beaucoup d'Auroviliens – aucun de nous ici pourtant – ont voté pour désigner leurs « élus », au nombre de 6 : Yoke et Karel, Guy, Jothi, Ananda et Sanjeev...

1-5-1991, Auroville :

Visite de Madanlal cet après-midi, avec l'homme qui doit acquérir le marbre et la pierre rose au Rajasthan – Shivkumar, un homme doux et simple -, accompagnés de Safal, que je n'avais plus vu depuis 10 ans peut-être ; Toine et moi les amenons à la Chambre. Puis, Toine et moi avons avec Madanlal seul un long entretien, à propos des priorités de Matrimandir ; cet homme est en train de tout donner, sans réserves, avec cet abandon conscient devant Toi, et nous sommes si confus, et si mal habités : saurons-nous tenir notre part de responsabilité ?

Ce soir Ramalingam m'emmène visiter, dans le village voisin de Bharatipuram, son nouvel atelier (que j'ai nommé « Satyakarma ») ; nous restons un long moment, tranquilles, assis au bord du grand bassin rectangulaire qu'il vient d'y construire, orienté exactement sur le soleil couchant...

6-5-1991, Auroville :

La chaleur est très inconfortable.

Je me trouve de plus en plus plonge dans le mental physique général et mélangé à cette substance ou cet état que partagent nos ouvriers – c'est comme une substance lourde et réductrice, qui est habitée pourtant d'un tel Sourire, un sourire qui va droit au cœur de tout, sans errer...

9-5-1991, Auroville :

Su emménage aujourd'hui à « Certitude » dans la maison de R et M qui sont absents ; son effort d'honnêteté et de droiture, sa fidélité et son courage, sont un grand cadeau...

... Selvam a décidé de s'occuper de nettoyer et sceller tous les réservoirs à « Sincérité » ; son cœur est un joyau unique, et merveilleux, et je suis seulement aux prises avec les gangues... !

11-5-1991, Auroville :

Toute la soirée un bétonnage dans le Réservoir avec nos ouvriers, qui sont heureux et excités comme des enfants qui jouent...

Ramalingam s'en va demain à Berijam dans les montagnes, pour deux semaines, avec les enfants d'Auroville ; je devrai m'occuper de tout ici, et ce n'est pas le moment d'attraper la fièvre... !

Je cherche le chemin...

Arjun s'est un peu dénoué, et m'a rappelé que je dois venir ce lundi pour la fête de Deepti...

13-5-1991, Auroville :

Selvam et moi avons passé la matinée avec une petite équipe d'ouvriers à décharger 15 tonnes de marbre blanc...

15-5-1991, Auroville :

Plusieurs ouvriers manquent aujourd'hui.

Dharman se blesse à la tête.

En fin de journée j'aborde avec Stuart la question délicate d'un nouveau signataire et de l'unité « Blossoming » ; mission accomplie, je retrouve Arjun : nous avons convenu de parler un moment. Il s'est détendu, mais demeure incapable d'une perspective que j'appellerai circulaire, et cela m'inquiète un peu pour lui... Deepti et lui s'en vont pour une dizaine de jours à Bangalore...

16-5-1991, Auroville :

Ce soir, bétonnage des derniers piliers dans le Réservoir ; seulement les ouvriers, Selvam et moi ; c'est doux : l'humanité du cœur, qui donne ses corps à Matrimandir...

... Ce matin, très tôt, visite au Matrimandir d'une femme bien courageuse, venue de Poona avec son fils, un adolescent très handicapé, Arun ; elle obéissait évidemment à un besoin très intérieur, et leur présence à tous les deux m'a beaucoup touché ; lui, derrière cette grimace absurde de l'infirme, est très conscient et, comme il arrive souvent dans ces cas, avec une grande affinité mentale pour l'étude de la matière, la physique contemporaine...

18-5-1991, Auroville :

Déchargement de 6 tonnes de fer ce matin.

Karel m'appelle pour me faire part de son inquiétude à propos de Su, qu'il a trouvée très désespérée. Je fais parvenir un message à Su. Je ressens ce vieux malaise : son attachement, le déséquilibre dû à l'absence de réponse en moi...

Plus tard elle passe à Matrimandir me demander que nous prenions le petit-déjeuner ensemble demain ; elle semble un peu rétablie...

Ce soir, vers 22 heures 30, non loin de Madras, Rajiv Gandhi est assassiné : une bombe explose qui tue une dizaine de personnes de son entourage et de deux femmes qui, semble-t-il, transportaient l'explosif dans des paniers de fleurs. Sonia n'était pas avec lui ce soir. Les rumeurs attribuent la responsabilité au LTTE et indirectement au parti de Karunanidhi, le DMK...

22-5-1991, Auroville :

Des violences partout dans le pays ; dans les villages alentour, les partisans du Congress I s'en prennent à ceux du DMK, et brûlent et démolissent les lieux d'élections, qui sont remises officiellement à la mi-Juin...

Les funérailles de Rajiv sont prévues pour vendredi.

Dans la plupart des Etats, l'Armée est appelée à l'aide.

Il me semble que le Président devrait aller plus loin et remplacer, le temps qu'il faudra, la police par l'armée ; sinon le pays risque de s'enfoncer encore...

... Selvam a dû se rendre au village à la rescousse de son frère aîné (employé par le Congress I, alors que son plus jeune frère s'est joint au DMK), qui s'est fait, avec trois de ses amis et un enfant, rouer de coups et taillader méchamment par une meute de 50 personnes ; il le ramène sur une civière à travers la campagne ; plus tard la police arrive au village déserté et transporte les autres blessés à Jipmer.

Tristement, plusieurs témoignages concourent, Somu semble bien avoir prêté main forte à cette meute...

23-5-1991, Auroville :

Je n'ai pu garder les ouvriers que pour trois heures de la matinée ; la bande de voyous d'Edayachavadi a obtenu l'arrêt du travail dans la plupart des unités d'Auroville et même au Secrétariat ; Ojha s'est dérobé, et il n'y a personne d'autorité, aucun groupe de substance, qui soit prêt à agir...

C'est la misère dans sa nudité grouillante... Et aucun de ceux qui sont nés ici ne peut entièrement y échapper : les liens sont trop immédiats et trop multiples.

On ne peut tenter d'ouvrir cette trame que par un travail lent, très persistant et très ingrat, à travers quelques individus...

24-5-1991, Auroville :

Les funérailles de Rajiv sont transmises en direct dans tout le pays.

Une partie de la matinée avec Somu et Selvam, à rétablir un sens d'équipe entre eux...

La chaleur est très lourde, et l'énergie est basse.

J'ai l'impression de m'enfoncer, m'enliser, presque de disparaître dans un état de conscience raréfié, élémentaire – une sorte de lente noyade à laquelle je ne saisis pas d'alternative... C'est à la fois personnel et impersonnel, l'effet d'un choix de se donner physiquement, dans un engagement dont la base se situe peut-être au-delà de l'humain...

26-5-1991, Auroville :

Sonia refuse de prendre la direction du Congress I.

27-5-1991, Auroville :

Cet après-midi, réunion avec Pierre E, J.L, Toine et Aurofuture ; leur prototype de disque ne me convainc pas ; mais parallèlement, au cours des dernières semaines, par touches et bribes, avec Silvio et Pierre E, s'est dégagé un accord sur la méthode d'exécution du revêtement de la sphère, beaucoup plus simple et plus sûre... Alors c'est un pas en avant, hors de la confusion des opinions, qui est dicté par la structure elle-même, par ce qui est déjà matérialisé, et c'est encourageant.

28-5-1991, Auroville :

Ramalingam, au travail, a fait un mouvement brutal et séparé qui m'a graduellement plongé dans un état difficile ; ses motivations étaient d'une nature extérieure : l'opinion des autres quant à la qualité de notre travail. Il exige que nous fassions un travail qui soit le plus visiblement parfait possible, quitte à gaspiller ou à détruire pour recommencer ; Dans ce cas je ne l'avais pas jugé nécessaire, non par indifférence, mais parce que je tenais compte de plusieurs facteurs qui sont à mes yeux complémentaires.

Cela a provoqué en moi une sorte d'étonnement douloureux, et une perte d'intérêt ; et je me suis retrouvé à ce point où, pratiquement, la chose qui me tient, m'oblige à continuer, est la responsabilité que me donne l'absolue confiance de C, et son besoin à elle de progresser, et la qualité de son amour...

... Selvam, à travers tout cela, est tranquille et tendre ; mais il est affecté aussi, et son corps l'a exprimé aujourd'hui, par une douleur aigue au cœur ; sa beauté profonde est un grand cadeau...

30-5-1991, Auroville :

Je me sens vitalemment fatigué et dégoûté. Quelque chose continue de s'interposer entre Ramalingam et moi, et le travail s'en ressent. Je ne vois pas comment sortir de ce piège qui nous a saisis tous les deux... J'ai le sens comme d'une toile solidaire de toutes les torsions, les motivations déformées...

Ce que j'aime, c'est sentir dans l'action que nous sommes plusieurs corps d'un même élan, d'un même engagement et d'une même offrande, et qu'ensemble nous donnons l'impulsion juste à tous ces hommes qui viennent aider, avec leurs cœurs et leurs corps...

A présent, les commandes sont confuses, et les réponses aux petits événements et aux nécessités du moment sont incohérentes...

... Hier, sur mes instructions, l'un des gardiens a finalement arrêté M qui emportait une fois de plus un sac chargé de bonnes pièces de bois ; j'avais souhaité, avec Ramalingam, marquer le coup sans ambiguïté – M est devenu « Aurovilien » grâce aux pressions exercées par Arjun, et il est d'autant plus important de ne pas couvrir le mauvais exemple qu'il donne aux ouvriers... Mais là non plus nous n'avons pu trouver d'accord...

31-5-1991, Auroville :

Ramalingam et moi nous hissons hors du trou et nous rétablissons... Quand les larmes ont jailli dans ses yeux, le courant est revenu directement, pur et profond... Je me sens si petit et limite : ce « moi » qui persiste, dévié et entravé... De cette fatigue, nous sommes passés à une fatigue physique plus réceptive : un long bétonnage, avec les ouvriers, de 17 à 23 heures...

... Deux lettres anonymes, signées « Tamil Tigers », sont parvenues au bureau ; l'une, adressée au Groupe de Coordination, contient des menaces de meurtre à mon égard ; l'autre est adressée à mon nom ; je ne les ai pas encore lues : Toine est venu me prévenir pendant le bétonnage, préoccupé par le venin et la violence qui s'y expriment, et souhaitant faire intervenir les autorités locales... Mais il semble clair que cela vient de Durai...

Au retour d'Arjun ce matin, nous avons découvert que Ta grande photographie avait été enlevée de son bureau, par Bhaga, pour le Service du Free Store, sans que nous nous en soyons aperçus, et nous découvrons que Barbara avait donné son accord, sans nous le dire... : une petite catastrophe psychologique pour Arjun, que j'ai dû m'efforcer de réparer de mon mieux, en faisant la commande auprès d'A d'une nouvelle photographie...

... Visite de N, ambivalente : je ne peux plus l'aider matériellement, sinon peut-être pour lui procurer les livres et cahiers d'école de ses enfants ; il semble calmement désespéré...

Plus je me coule dans ce monde environnant, plus je m'y ouvre et plus j'éprouve, dans son énormité comme dans ses détails, le besoin de tous ces êtres – et la distance qui nous sépare encore d'un changement réel et durable...

3-6-1991, Auroville :

Su est venue me voir deux fois aujourd'hui ; elle est encore très désorientée, et physiquement vulnérable : elle tombe, se cogne, se fait piquer par des insectes. Shano aussi est venu, dans l'après-midi, égoïste comme un enfant peut l'être, voulant « sa » détente...

Il a plu toute une partie de ce dimanche. Toine et Arjun sont venus me chercher ce matin pour se mettre d'accord sur l'action à suivre à propos de la lettre anonyme de Durai... Je demande à ce qu'une pression soit faite par Auroville, avant de songer à s'en remettre à la police. Durai, lui, nie tout ; il nie même avoir prononcé cette harangue l'autre jour, dont la lettre reproduit les termes, bien que plusieurs autres y aient également assisté ; il cherche maintenant à nous convaincre de son innocence par une démonstration d'humilité et de fraternité, accumulant les mensonges...

C'est sans fin et sans issue : cela descend dans un niveau de pourriture qui est installé ici, sous-jacent à tout, toléré, entretenu...
C'est un moment très délicat et exigeant pour nous tous...

4-6-1991, Auroville :

Dans la nuit quelqu'un a pénétré la pièce commune ici et s'est emparé de mon dossier en cuir où je range le courrier récent, mais a laissé la machine à calculer qui se trouvait juste à côté... Tout cela est bizarre ; c'est triste aussi, parce que c'était le dossier que Su m'avait offert pour ma fête...

5-6-1991, Auroville :

Il me semble que c'est le climat ambigu, malhonnête et tamasique de ces dernières années qui a permis que de tels mouvements mûrissent et puissent se produire. Et il y a cette maladie de lâcheté, de « prudence politique »... Notre équipe a rencontré celle du « Working Committee » en fin de matinée ; nous avons présenté le « problème », avec l'aide de Yoke et d'Aster ; devant l'attitude « raisonnable » de Sanjeev, Arjun et Toine sont entrés dans une grande colère ; comme équipe, nous donnons décidément une image plutôt sauvage et intraitable !

Je suis resté comme pris dans un calme, tout du long : c'est pénible, après tant d'années, de voir encore colportées les mêmes formations destructrices à mon égard ; mais le contrecoup ne s'est fait sentir que plus tard, de retour ici, avec une vague de fièvre dont je n'ai pas encore émergé...

Selvam, très tendre et très vrai, est un trésor dans ma vie...

6-6-1991, Auroville :

J'ai essayé ce matin de me joindre à l'énergie du jour, comme si rien ne s'était passé ; mais après un court moment au Matrimandir, le corps a montré le chemin : je suis resté allongé jusqu'à ce soir, dans une fièvre de nettoyage...

Selvam, adorable et profond, a passé une partie de la journée ici à fixer de nouvelles conduites d'eau ; et ce soir Y m'a rendu visite, une visite inattendue mais bienvenue malgré la fièvre...

7-6-1991, Auroville :

C'est une bataille que je ne prétends pas comprendre.

Je sais maintenant que notre atmosphère collective n'est pas bonne ; notre exigence n'est pas à la hauteur de la tâche et, ainsi, les forces les plus grossières ont le jeu facile.

Parfois c'est un peu... redoutable.

L'énergie ne coule pas, et une sorte de désarroi s'empare de ceux qui essaient le plus de se donner...

8-6-1991, Auroville :

C'est une chaîne de réactions, de malentendus et de complications. L'attitude de John H – son manque de discernement émotionnel – m'a beaucoup affecté.

Mais la fièvre est revenue, avec pour moi le sens d'une nécessité impérative : trouver le progrès qu'il me faut faire si je dois continuer ici, au Matrimandir.

11-6-1991, Auroville :

Un terrible jour.

Le mensonge, la corruption des consciences, le tamas et la peur : c'est la solidarité de la résistance et de la déformation – la démonstration inversée de l'état nécessaire !

Durai a appelé une réunion générale, avec le soutien de Piero et de son groupe, qui s'est soldée par un vote à main levée ; j'étais le seul à refuser de participer à ce processus de défaite ; avec John H c'est difficile : quelque chose de vilain, qui ne s'offre pas.

12-6-1991, Auroville :

Une chaleur massive, épaisse, tout le jour, comme le poids d'une eau glauque partout dans le corps. Mais un sourire dans les visages de nos hommes ; et le tracteur et sa remorque sont arrivés, conduits par Ramalingam, flambant neufs, des fraises et des cerises peintes sous le dais...

13-6-1991, Auroville :

Hier soir j'ai découvert que le cadre contenant Ton message original aux travailleurs du Matrimandir avait disparu de la salle commune :

« Goodwill, Harmony, Discipline, Truth: I can work with you only if you do not say a lie and are at the service of Truth. Mother. »

« Bonne volonté, Harmonie, Discipline, Vérité : je ne peux travailler avec vous que si vous ne dites aucun mensonge et êtes au service de la Vérité. Mère. »

Mes nerfs sont à vif et j'ai une expérience difficile : je m'aperçois que si je regarde simplement la présence de tous ces petits mensonges dans notre atmosphère, le malaise devient si intolérable que je veux hurler ; c'est un peu effrayant.

J'essaie de mobiliser tout le monde à la recherche de Ton message – et je rencontre une sorte de grossière indifférence : la plupart ne se souviennent même pas du texte !

Je ne sais pas. J'ai l'impression d'être dans un grand vide, ou dans un milieu contraire parce qu'il ne progresse plus...

14-6-1991, Auroville :

Décoffrage du bétonnage d'hier : le béton est bon mais, une fois de plus, les menuisiers ont négligé la vibration dans les fourches de renfort et le coffrage intérieur s'est décollé – un débord dans la paroi. Inutile de se fâcher : mais c'est un peu ingrat de ne pouvoir compter que sur si peu d'êtres, de corps, pour une telle réalisation...

15-6-1991, Auroville :

Une longue réunion de travail – toute la matinée en fait. Le bruit des paroles, mis une bonne volonté en chacun ; et, presque comme une malédiction, cette formation rigide du concept de Roger A, que tant d'équipes et tant d'années ont vainement tenté d'intégrer...

... Visite de Ramanathan et de sa famille au Matrimandir, avec une offrande de Rs. 10,000/- ; je m'occupe de sa mère, un être conscient. Cette femme me raconte une vision qu'elle a eue juste avant la pose de la première pierre pour Matrimandir, il y a maintenant 20 ans : elle a vu descendre Matrimandir, une substance légère comme une écume, une substance sans poids, et tout était là ; mais, tout autour, il y avait comme des serpents...

Je l'ai perçu comme un ensemble : les énergies qui viendraient en même temps, d'abord pour contredire et tenter d'imposer leur natures, jusqu'à ce qu'elles apprennent à collaborer... ?

... Je sens tout le temps la nécessité de traverser le couvercle, d'être établi ou concentré là ; mais il y a simultanément cette autre nécessité de rester en contact avec les autres, de continuer une sorte de solidarité d'équipe...

C'est le temps linéaire qui règne, avec ses plis et ses routines, ses ajustements séparés, fastidieux : ce n'est pas l'Action, ce n'est pas le Courant...

Les choses se font dans une grande confusion. Il me semble qu'une hiérarchie serait préférable : il y a tant de gaspillage, et de fausses hâtes comme de fausses tranquillités. Et l'état d'incertitude et de mélange à propos de la coque et de son revêtement me soucie beaucoup...

28-6-1991, Auroville :

Voilà une expérience physique inattendue : Selvam, Anand et moi avons été attaqués par un essaim de « rock bees » : ce sont des abeilles volumineuses dont le dard est beaucoup plus venimeux que celui d'abeilles ordinaires ; d'habitude elles construisent leur ruche suspendue au flanc d'une falaise rocheuse, ou en haut d'un grand arbre ; nous avons dû plusieurs fois les capturer au cours des dernières années, depuis qu'elles ont découvert la sphère de Matrimandir et aussi quelques des plus grands arbres dans Auroville ; jusqu'à présent nous avons cherché à les emmener loin d'ici, sans les tuer. Nous étions sur l'échafaudage le plus haut, que nous bâtissons pour hisser et poser les éléments de la coque extérieure. Elles sont venues droit sur nous. L'une a d'abord piqué Selvam, et lui et les autres ont commencé de redescendre l'échafaudage ; j'ai été lent à réagir et voulais m'assurer que Selvam et Anand et les autres s'en tiraient bien. Quand j'ai commencé de descendre à mon tour, c'était trop tard ; tout le monde s'était réfugié dans des abris et toutes les abeilles s'en sont prises à moi. Arrivé en bas j'ai essayé de courir ; Anand m'a appelé de sous un arbuste à proximité de la sphère, mais j'étais déjà truffé de dards, et au bord de l'évanouissement ; je ne pouvais plus respirer et le cœur était tout à fait chaotique, quand Selvam est venu me prendre sur sa moto et me ramener à la maison. Il a mis longtemps à retirer tous les dards. Je me suis allongé et j'ai bu plusieurs litres d'eau en me concentrant pour essayer de faire passer la Force. Il a fallu plusieurs heures d'immobilité complète, dans une sorte de fièvre sèche et de brûlure générale ; puis le poison s'est rassemblé dans les mains et les pieds. Selvam, qui n'avait eu que quelques piqûres, a été très choqué par mon état... Le soir venu j'ai pu me lever.

29-6-1991, Auroville :

Ce matin il ne restait qu'une enflure dans les extrémités. On a repris le travail sur l'échafaudage.

Avant 10 heures les abeilles sont revenues, et m'ont choisi !

Je n'ai eu que trois piqûres cette fois-ci, et j'ai cru que ce serait sans conséquence. Mais une heure après tout le visage était en feu, et j'ai dû rentrer ici. La peau de tout le corps s'est mise à brûler, avec des démangeaisons affolantes, depuis le cuir chevelu jusqu'à la plante des pieds, et des boursouflures sur les flancs. Le visage s'est gonflé, déformé...

J'ai pu observer des choses intéressantes : les différents domaines du corps, et ceux où la Force rencontre le plus de résistance...

2-7-1991, Auroville :

Ce soir, Ramalingam, Shivan, Kalidas, L et moi délogeons le dernier nid de ces abeilles féroces ; nous terminons vers 21 heures. L reste près de moi pour opérer la grue sur la plateforme, et il y a entre nous un moment d'abandon si gentil et joyeux...

Levée et mise en place de la 8^{ème} colonne dans la Chambre ce matin.

Découvert une erreur que j'ai faite dans les mesures de la poutre octogonale du réservoir ; le mystère : comment ai-je pu faire cette erreur dans ma lecture des plans ? Ce n'est ni de la négligence ni de la hâte, car j'ai soigneusement reporté l'erreur en tous points ! C'est autre chose, et c'est préoccupant... Il me semble que récemment encore j'aurais eu à lutter contre un mélange de dépression, de culpabilité, d'instinct de fuite et de dissimulation ; mais à présent je ne sais pas : je veux voir clairement le phénomène, sa source et son intention, tout comme ce qui, en moi, le permet, pas seulement d'un point de vue psychologique, mais d'un point de vue concret, presque chimique – avoir prise sur le processus de déformation ou de mensonge...

Ce n'est pas une erreur qui a de graves conséquences ; ce n'est pas nécessaire de la rectifier, en fait, mais simplement d'ajuster de légères différences, et la poutre sera seulement un peu plus haute que prévue. Mais c'est un peu impressionnant.

7-7-1991, Auroville :

Ma condition physique est déconcertante. Extérieurement, je me blesse souvent ces jours-ci, et deux des piqûres d'abeille se sont curieusement enflammées ; mais c'est organiquement que cela devient spectaculaire : cela fait plus d'un an maintenant que, chaque soir, au moment de passer dans l'état de sommeil, le cœur et la respiration sont saisis de désordre aigu. Chaque soir c'est la même chose. Et, depuis quelques jours, cela s'aggrave ; hier soir il m'a fallu plusieurs heures pour passer le seuil, des heures fatigantes. Il y a soit une sorte de décharge électrique, soit une panique respiratoire soudaine, suivie de douleurs dans le cœur et l'aorte...

Ce matin encore, le pouls demeure tout à fait irrégulier... Je ne sais pas ; il me semble que c'est un problème de ventilation dans une partie du cœur, mais je n'en suis pas sûr... Ce qui me préoccupe, c'est que je n'ai pas d'indication intérieure, soit qu'il faut se préparer à partir, soit qu'il s'agit d'un travail de la Force. Il n'y a, étrangement, pas d'inquiétude dans le corps...

Est-ce que je dois écrire mes « dernières volontés » ?

... Depuis l'adolescence de ce corps j'ai eu à travailler pour contrôler, maîtriser ou harmoniser cette sorte de désordre, et peut-être s'agit-il d'une malformation de naissance ; je soupçonne que, si je m'en étais ouvert à la science médicale, j'aurais dû suivre un chemin différent ; mais c'est celui de la conscience que je veux poursuivre...

Où est, quel est le vrai sens ?

... Ce soir Dharman, Shivan et moi devons détruire une autre ruche d'abeilles ; elles sont revenues exactement au même endroit : pas les mêmes, puisque nous les avons détruites, mais d'autres – ce sont les charmes de la communication directe dans l'espèce... !

Ce soir, nouvelle réunion de coordination de tous les travaux, avec Toine, Asha, Arjun, Pierre E et A, suivie d'une séance d'asanas, bien nécessaire. L'expérience avec L me libère beaucoup ; c'est une réponse concrète, simple et douce... Merci !

J'éprouve une saturation à l'égard de l'influence de Roger A et de cet état d'indécision collective où chaque choix est noyé dans un labour d'opinions et de propositions dépourvues de centre...

Depuis que j'ai repris cette sorte de discipline de rédiger des notes quotidiennes, j'essaie de la faire en Français, mais cela me semble lointain et plat ; à vrai dire, ni le Français ni l'Anglais ne me permettent de mettre en contact la qualité ou le niveau de l'expérience avec une expression satisfaisante...

... Réunion de coordination cet après-midi ; à un certain niveau d'énergie et d'engagement, je me sens bien avec cette équipe ; mais en termes de direction et d'utilisation de cette énergie, ce n'est pas pareil : je ne suis pas en accord avec les choix et les orientations qui dominent, et je ne vois pas encore comment l'exprimer utilement...

... Plus tard dans la soirée, réunion appelée par plusieurs des ouvriers avec Dharman et Gajendran, à laquelle ils m'ont demandé d'assister : il s'agit de cet ouvrier que Dharman nous a demandé d'embaucher, pour un salaire assez élevé ; Ramalingam et moi n'avons pas eu le temps de bien regarder le problème...

C'est une situation sans pareille, nulle part, avec ce terme d'« Aurovilien » et toutes ses implications, au sein de ces structures ordinaires, autour d'un objet et d'un but qui nous dépassent entièrement...

A propos du Matrimandir, texte pour « Auroville Aujourd'hui » :

« Quand Yanne est venue me trouver sur le chantier pour m'inviter à écrire à propos du Matrimandir, nous avons d'abord échangé quelques paroles sur l'étape présente des travaux ; puis elle a introduit la notion de subjectivité, en exprimant le souhait que je me sente libre de rendre mon propre témoignage.

Justement, l'existence même du Matrimandir implique de tendre par-delà cette dualité inhérente à notre condition : où est l'objectivité réelle – est-elle accessible ? La présence du Matrimandir, les demandes et les besoins de sa construction, jusque dans les détails les plus infimes, nous obligent à franchir des frontières, à contempler l'impossible, à se laisser saisir.

Mère un jour, dans une intensité de question, l'a formulé ainsi :

'La seule objectivité, c'est le Suprême...'

Comme le Soleil, symbole du Divin, Matrimandir se tient au-delà de ces frontières ; et pourtant ce sont des corps et de la matière mentalisée qui le rendent tangible...

Comme le Soleil, Matrimandir est un Fait gratuit – non mérité : un don pur, un présent de Présence pour tous et pour tout, sans distinction, sans préférence, un rayonnement qui jaillit d'une source inépuisable, exempte de jugement ; une Présence à la fois inaltérable, incontournable, et génératrice du Possible...

Nous disons : 'l'unité' ; nous disons : 'la vérité'...

Mais l'unité ne se fabrique pas, la vérité ne se fait pas. Elles SONT.

C'est à nous d'apprendre à disparaître dans le Sens, pour que se manifeste l'Etat qui est leur demeure naturelle.

Ce n'est pas un stade 'supérieur' ; ce n'est pas un perfectionnement de notre condition.

C'est un passage dans, ou de, la Présence.

Nous nous accrochons à des symboles comme à des références sûres dans un paysage fragmenté.

Mais Matrimandir a choisi d'être une sphère ; une plénitude à venir : une Force consciente, sans nom...

Quand l'être du dedans – celui qui nous porte plus que nous le portons – m'a ramené à Mère et que par Sa Grâce je suis rentré en contact avec cette Vibration, ce degré de Présence qui est l'eau, l'air, le feu et la terre de l'âme, le Pays, la certitude et le Sens ; quand, physiquement à Ses pieds, conscient de ce Don qui est Elle, j'ai eu 20 ans, je ne savais presque rien d'Auroville, et rien du tout d'un Matrimandir qui venait d'être conçu dans Sa Conscience.

Mais je savais désormais qu'il y a un Possible, Quelque Chose qui peut, qui répond, qui rend vrai et plein ; à Ses pieds, le corps et l'être psychique deviennent un et le chemin s'ouvre : on comprend.

Quand j'ai pu enfin me défaire des contrats antérieurs et revenir physiquement vers Elle, j'ai été dirigé vers Matrimandir.

Ce premier instant s'est inscrit profondément : rencontre, et retrouvaille, en un temps où le futur et l'attente immémoriale se fondent.

Ce jour-là commençait le bétonnage de la première dalle joignant les 4 piliers.

Gérard se tenait accoudé près de la bétonnière. Il a levé les yeux, et j'y ai trouvé cette même joie de reconnaissance qui venait de monter du dedans.

C'est ça : ce que nous avons à faire cette fois-ci.

Ni un bâtiment, ni une cathédrale, ni une pyramide, mais le corps d'un Etre qui est venu pour Son Travail.

Un Etre qui demandera nos énergies, et nous donnera la sécurité du Contact.

Un Etre qui nous mènera à l'unité en nous concentrant sur la vraie Force – ce 'nous' sans visages et sans noms, ce 'nous' entier et sans limites auquel, par moments, nous appartenons...

Depuis ce jour, jamais je n'ai pu m'éloigner.

Même durant ces quelques périodes où il m'était clairement donné un autre travail, le lien demeurait implicite, jamais remis en question.

Cet Etre qu'Elle a nommé Matrimandir, qui vient pour recevoir et canaliser la Force qu'Elle incarne, cet imperturbable Ami, est la première ancre qu'Elle a jetée, dans la matière.

La deuxième ancre Elle la jeta plus tard dans nos consciences, pour qu'elles soient tenues d'apprendre, par ouvertures successives, la matière vraie, libre de la mort et de la dualité : Son Agenda.

Et pourtant, autour de ces deux ancres, comme le jeu des forces exclusives s'est déchaîné !

Un déchaînement souvent si banal et si 'normal' qu'on ne sait plus parfois si le chemin ne s'est pas refermé : parce que ce jeu est évidemment sans scrupules, et utilise tout.

Près de 20 années se sont écoulées. On y a affronté beaucoup de monstres, accumulé les défaites et les pauvretés ; on s'y est blessé, parfois fatalement. Mais toujours une tendresse est demeurée dans le corps et derrière le cœur, et un silence au-dedans.

Sans cette impossible structure qui petit à petit, en dépit de toutes les contradictions, se complète, Auroville n'aurait pu subsister.

Malgré tous les gaspillages, les entraves et les démissions, c'est l'histoire du déroulement d'un Fiat inéluctable.

A ce jour, la Chambre intérieure est presque achevée, dans son apparence.

Pour cette Chambre, nous avons Ses instructions directes : Elle l'a découverte, pénétrée et décrite en détail.

Au-delà des difficultés pratiques, la contradiction ne pouvait plus se loger que dans notre présomption à vouloir modifier ces formes ou les 'améliorer' : une préoccupation si grossière qu'elle a pu être écartée.

Mais pour le reste de la structure – et sûrement il s'agit d'une épreuve voulue et nécessaire – subsistent encore des zones d'ambiguïté, où les opinions, les préférences et les prédilections de chacun peuvent s'exercer.

Il n'y a pas de recette.

Nous devons devenir capables d'aborder l'Inconnu à partir d'un centre de perception fiable et prêt à la transition.

Et ainsi sommes-nous acculés à cette question brûlante de l'objectivité...

La solution juste pour l'achèvement de la sphère se rendra-t-elle perceptible à tous, ou à quelques-uns ? A travers une série d'approximations, ou par une évidence matérielle ? A travers la vision d'une, ou de plusieurs consciences, ou à la faveur d'un 'accident' ? En réponse à un appel collectif, individuel, retiré de l'activité, ou dans le travail même ?

Et s'agit-il de la relation de Matrimandir avec le monde, ou de sa propre plénitude active et inaliénable ?

Pouvons-nous saisir le caractère juste que cette sphère doit projeter pour les siècles à venir ?

Savons-nous ce que nous faisons ?

Ce sont des mots. Mais les gestes de chaque instant sont habités d'une question qui contient toutes ces questions ou les porte en avant, presque aveuglément ; comme la traversée d'une obscurité de lumière...

Oui, d'ici quelques semaines, tel ou tel individu pourra accéder à la Chambre, qui lui semblera achevée, et y faire certainement l'expérience qui lui sera la plus utile.

Mais le corps entier de Matrimandir doit accéder à sa complétude pour délivrer son sens : celui d'une organisation de la conscience de demain, dont le centre conscient ne sera plus le mental, mais ce point de Silence lumineux et vivant, irrévocablement posé dans l'axe de la Force qui délivrera le monde vrai, où tout se réunit dans une seule offrande qui célèbre Sa création libre...

Alors serons-nous guéris des religions, comme des fardeaux de la séparation.

Il nous faut arriver là. C'est notre part de l'effort. Là nous attend. Là a le temps. C'est peut-être nous qui ne l'avons pas ?

Individuellement, la première réalisation est simple et presque physique : après des âges de résistance, d'errance et de marchandage, on se fabrique un centre relatif qui ne servira ultimement que de tremplin : le moment vient et on se tourne Là. Comme un gymnaste on s'accroche à la Force, et on se rétablit Là. On ne veut plus rien que Cela : que Cela soit. Un abandon orienté.

Mais comment atteindre cette première réalisation collectivement, dans l'action ?

Dans le mouvement des énergies il semble y avoir depuis quelques temps une convergence ; c'est ainsi qu'il est devenu possible de reprendre le travail de Matrimandir dans tous ses aspects. L'activité a décuplé au cours des derniers mois et, à mesure que se déblaie le chemin, on avance.

C'est une avance qu'il est difficile de définir avec précision : un tracteur neuf qui remorque un morceau de colline, un chargement de marbre doux comme du lait, deux bétonnages en un jour à deux points différents de la structure, ou l'apaisement d'une querelle entre deux 'ouvriers' (ces hommes qui savent sourire et laisser couler l'énergie dans les corps)...

Je ne sais pas si Matrimandir est une réponse directe à la souffrance de tous ceux qui suffoquent ou sont opprimés, ni aux maux dont la Terre est victime dans cet âge mentalisé jusqu'à l'échec.

Mais c'est un canal de la Réponse à ceux qui savent du dedans et d'en haut que nous sommes au point d'une nouvelle Naissance ; et qu'ainsi seulement un autre Regard révélera les moyens et les chemins d'une harmonie progressive qui englobera tout dans sa réalisation physique.

Alors il faut aider. Aider le monde vrai, la vraie matière.

La vérité du monde ne deviendra pas plus accessible à force de discours et d'idéaux, de méditations et de bonnes intentions.

Il faut que s'établissent des lieux physiques où la Force vraie puisse couler en toute sécurité : des percées de la trame, dont rien de moindre ne puisse s'emparer.

Matrimandir, après le Samadhi de Sri Aurobindo, est un tel, premier lieu.

Un lieu indispensable.

Alors que nous sommes tous nivelés au plus commun dénominateur, ce qui endure et persiste et marche n'a plus rien d'héroïque ni de romantique.

Cela voit, et accepte le pire comme le meilleur et Cela nous apprend à continuer dans la grisaille d'une substance générale qui est à la fois une agonie et un balbutiement...

Divakar. »

Journée de travail physique intensif, et coordination au galop... C'est drôle comme les antagonismes ont tendance à se défaire à mesure que l'énergie trouve des réceptivités, et que chacun se donne un peu plus au travail à faire ; c'est drôle, et c'est triste en même temps, parce que cela montre bien à quel point nous dépendons encore de poussées extérieures pour dissoudre nos formations et nos barrières, combien nous obéissons peu à la Conscience, combien nous lui sommes encore fermés...

... Une étrange situation ce soir : Toine et moi sommes missionnés à une réunion spéciale à « Aurodam » pour informer à propos des recherches et travaux en cours pour le revêtement de la sphère un groupe de gens d'Auroville qui ont écrit et signé une pétition s'y opposant. C'est un curieux milieu social, très mélangé, dans une opacité dense de rumeurs et de formations, avec l'arrogance confortable de ceux qui n'éprouvent pas particulièrement le besoin d'une autre condition, ni de l'aide pour y accéder ; ici et là pourtant, une certaine authenticité, du point de vue d'un processus évolutif qui se doit de respecter et d'honorer la Nature terrestre...

Toine et moi formons probablement une association aussi inattendue qu'illogique ; il ne se passe rien de concluant, mais je sens là des signes avant-coureurs d'un moment de choix collectif, et qu'il nous faut de notre côté être très ouverts et nous placer au maximum de notre conscience...

Toute la journée, avec nos hommes, Ramalingam et moi démontons le grand échafaudage à l'intérieur de la Chambre ; nous finissons juste avant 17 heures sans un heurt, sans faire tomber un seul joint, une seule clef ; cela a demandé de chacun toute la concentration, l'attention et la coordination et tout l'équilibre possibles, et tous sont heureux de s'y être donnés ; de tels moments partagés composent une si belle histoire, si profondément tendre...

11-8-1991, Auroville :

J'ai commencé à l'aube le nettoyage dominical, pour me rendre disponible à la réception des visiteurs au Matrimandir... J'ai aussi retrouvé Arjun au bureau en fin de matinée : il voulait depuis quelques jours que nous parlions tranquillement ; il ressent la montée d'une crise et l'imminence d'un autre conflit avec Piero...

Nos perceptions et nos expériences différent à beaucoup d'égards, et convergent à beaucoup d'autres ; mais toujours nous partageons cette exigence d'une communication directe et droite, aussi vraie que nous en sommes capables...

... Il y a dans la Chambre une effervescence bizarre, et des mouvements individuels qui sont parfois pénibles ; il y a généralement ce besoin de bien faire ; pourtant, je ne sais pas, je ressens comme une insuffisance presque douloureuse, une question difficile à supporter, devant... une certaine pauvreté de conscience...

Et je suis tellement reconnaissant de travailler quotidiennement avec les gens d'ici, qui ne prétendent rien, qui sont complètement ce qu'ils sont : infiniment plus transparents... !

13-8-1991, Auroville :

Réunion de coordination cet après-midi, plutôt créative, dans le sens d'un accord sans concessions ni compromis ; mais nous avons un moment de conflit quand Arjun soulève la question de Ramalingam et moi, ainsi que certains de nos ouvriers, fumant sur la structure, et je répond que je ne ressens aucunement la nécessité de m'abstenir tant que les travaux ne sont pas terminés et que je suis là comme ouvrier...

... Ton symbole de marbre est mis en place, 20 ans, 8 mois et 13 jours après que Tu aies vu cette Chambre (le 1^{er} Janvier 1970) ; le polissage du sol se termine.

... Les « Notes d'Auroville » publient un compte-rendu tout à fait malhonnête et déformé de la réunion à laquelle Toine et moi avons été conviés...

De 5 à 11 heures ce matin et de 14 à 19 heures 30 ce soir j'étais là, l'un des « gardiens »...

Une grande tension, la conscience de toutes sortes de facteurs en jeu, et l'expérience graduelle de la prise de possession du lieu par la Force... comme une mise au diapason très attentive, impossible à décrire...

Et aussi : le sens de l'horreur qui nous attend si nous ne savons pas grandir à la Tâche... !

Ce Matrimandir est Ton terrible cadeau !

Soit il sera ouvert à tout et à tous, et ce sera la destruction d'Auroville ; soit nous deviendrons capables de l'entourer d'une atmosphère vivante, de la sincérité d'une aspiration et d'une exigence véritables, et nous serons suffisamment unis et responsables dans notre discernement et le don actif de nous-mêmes à la Force de changement pour que s'opère un filtrage effectif, et Auroville grandira vraiment...

J'ai pris la mesure de beaucoup de choses, mais ce n'est pas encore mentalisé.

C'était une journée très dure.

Le fait d'avoir cherché à finir la Chambre avant le reste de la structure va nous plonger dans des difficultés redoutables... Je ne sais pas...

Il y a eu plusieurs incidents pénibles ; il va falloir agir, prévenir, établir quelque chose de très clair et de très ferme, à commencer par les « Auroviliens » : car c'est là que la compréhension doit venir le plus vite ; si elle manque, nous serons exposés à des contradictions très dangereuses...

Je me suis senti très seul, aussi...

Au milieu de tout ça, la visite de Karan Singh... !

16-8-1991, Auroville :

Ce matin la police partout, sur la structure, dans les jardins et jusque dans les arbres, pour la venue du Gouverneur du Tamil Nadu ; un homme sec et vif, qui a gravi la rampe au pas de course...

Et cet après-midi la visite officielle du « Governing Board », accompagné des membres du « Working Committee », suivie d'une réunion demandée par Karan Singh pour définir les priorités afin d'achever tous les travaux d'ici deux ans... ! Il s'est maintenant fixé pour but – de prestige ? – de hâter le processus pour que tout soit prêt le 28 Février 1993, date du « Silver Jubilee » d'Auroville...

Piero était présent ; il s'est placé comme au cœur du vrai travail, s'est laissé représenter comme une victime, avec le concours plutôt malhonnête du « Working Committee », et s'est permis d'exposer ses critiques du plan de Roger A... Alors est venue l'explosion : Arjun a plongé comme dans un jeu de quilles, et Toine était paralysé de colère...

A travers tout cela je suis resté impuissant, privé d'impulsion, comme le témoin d'une trappe dans laquelle nous tombons tous, car c'est un jeu de formations qui ne tient aucun compte de la position réelle, intérieure de chacun...

Je vois un peu de vérité de toutes parts ; mais, plus profondément, j'ai perdu toute confiance en Piero – même si je suis souvent d'accord avec ce qu'il dit... Alors que ma confiance dans l'attitude de fond d'Arjun, malgré tous ses excès, ses humeurs et ses colères, se vérifie avec l'expérience...

Je ne me trouve nulle part vraiment, bien qu'inévitablement je sois utilisé par ces jeux de forces, ne serait-ce que par associations. En quelques minutes, comme ce soir, où tout se cristallise à l'envers, c'est tout un travail d'équipe progressif, de partage et d'appel des énergies, qui peut être compromis... si l'on croit à la défaite !
... Je me sens usé et pollué...

17-8-1991, Auroville :

L'atmosphère est encore tout imprégnée de ces flots de visiteurs ; viciée aussi par l'insuffisance de compréhension parmi les Auroviliens... Il faut expliquer, encore et encore, insister pour garder l'orientation...

Et il y a ce début d'évènement, comme une bombe silencieuse derrière tout : l'action de la Force à travers la Chambre... cette blancheur immobile qui s'apprête à recevoir... Et pourtant, il y a encore bien du travail à y faire !

19-8-1991, Auroville :

Gorbatchev est renversé – le KGB et certains militaires ; Yeltsin parvient à regrouper ses troupes et à tenir tête...

... Ce soir nous devons détruire une autre ruche d'abeilles...

20-8-1991, Auroville :

Je ressens une colère qui est comme un appel ; cette confusion est trop pénible.

Ce n'est pas la conscience qui domine dans les êtres ; c'est ce même mélange insensé, sans issue et sans centre ni orientation, avec l'aggravation d'une prétention spirituelle et de la revendication d'un « droit »...

Les remous et les conflits autour de la question de l'accès à la Chambre et de son utilisation sont probablement comiques, mais aussi bien redoutables.

Je ne comprends pas ce règne de l'imbécillité, de la consommation, cette âpre convoitise, cette inepte démocratie spirituelle...

Pour couronner cette série de journées, Champaklal avait décidé de venir ce soir ; j'ai essayé de faire savoir que ce n'était pas un bon moment, mais son entourage, et l'entourage de son entourage, comme une masse de sangsues qui s'accrochent, font de lui quelque chose de si faux et de si contraire : ces photographies et ces rituels, cette complicité et cette pression suffocante, et ces gens maladroits, physiquement inconscients, qui ne sont même pas capables de le porter simplement, qui n'ont plus de honte, toute cette troupe est arrivée, un cortège de voitures, un agglutinement – ce n'était ni paisible ni ouvert, c'était... rien !

Une comédie.

Je suis très fâché. Cela m'est égal si des gens cultivent l'antagonisme ; je suis déterminé à affirmer une certaine orientation.

Il y a trop de bêtise ici.

Pour une fois je ne crains pas de faire le jeu de l'ego : il s'agit d'autre chose ; ce n'est pas ma « petite personne », c'est un chemin...

Je veux servir ce Matrimandir honnêtement, et durablement... sans simagrées.

Il y a tant de beauté, et tant de puissance, là : Cela dont nous avons tant besoin...

Mais qui est ce « nous » ? Où est-il ? Une espèce d'embryon indéfini, sujet à toutes les influences... !

... Les nouvelles de Gorbatchev sont contradictoires : a-t-il été ramené par le KGB, de Crimée à Moscou ? Ceux qui ont pris le pouvoir apparaissent assez incohérents, et il semble que Yeltsin tienne toujours tête...

En Inde, plusieurs des responsables de l'assassinat de Rajiv, dont Subhu et Shivarasan, encerclés par la police à Bangalore, se suicident...

21-8-1991, Auroville :

Mes journées se passent à ouvrir et fermer des serrures, à commander ceci et cela, expliquer, calmer des conflits imbéciles, traiter avec tel ou tel problème de visiteurs, et je n'ai d'autre recours ou référence qu'une certaine orientation et la perception, si insuffisante soit-elle, d'une qualité de vibration ou d'approche – pas des choses dont on puisse « discuter »...

Il m'est arrivé par exemple d'accompagner à la Chambre un homme âgé, qui a eu récemment une crise cardiaque, mais avait demandé à pouvoir s'y rendre avant de repartir au Madhya Pradesh, d'où il ne reviendrait probablement jamais : un homme adorable, un enfant de Toi, tout nettoyé, et l'émotion dans la Chambre était un présent à Tes pieds ; je l'ai tenu par la main tout le temps ; il a dit après qu'il n'avait ressenti aucun malaise, aucune fatigue, aucune tension... Ce sont de ces choses qui arrivent ici quelquefois qui me redonnent toujours le sens d'appartenir directement à ce pays, dans sa profondeur essentielle, comme à une famille...

Et pourtant, cet après-midi, j'ai dû refuser l'accès – c'est-à-dire affirmer la règle de ces deux après midis par semaine que nous avons déterminée – à un autre homme, un « devotee » de Bombay qui a donné de l'argent dans le passé, mais s'arrogeait le « droit » de s'asseoir dans la Chambre et d'y méditer aussi souvent et autant qu'il le souhaitait, son argument étant qu'en Toi il n'y a pas de règles et que Tu es opposée à toutes les lois...

Et ainsi les exemples défilent... Et psychologiquement cela oblige, ou induit, à une constante réévaluation de mes attitudes ; cela touche au cœur du chemin...

... Un long moment avec Arjun cet après-midi : Arjun qui se contrôle de moins en moins, qui blesse les gens, et se contredit en condamnant chez les autres ce qu'il manifeste lui-même, mais Arjun aussi qui, « en privé » - dans un espace de confiance - a une perception fondée, ancrée, et fiable...

Ce soir devait se tenir une réunion de tous ceux qui ont participé à l'accueil des visiteurs, dans l'espoir de pouvoir ensemble dégager quelques directions claires ; mais il y a tant de remous dans l'atmosphère et tel ou tel problème se répercute sur tous les autres : il y a maintenant une vague orchestrée d'opposition à la participation financière de Madanlal et de SSJ et, par association, à l'orientation suivie par notre équipe de Coordination (ce sont pourtant les mêmes gens qui avaient soi-disant choisi d'« oublier le passé »...

... J.L est très affecté par la violence verbale d'Arjun ; cela m'a attristé...

... Ce soir du 22 Août - le jour de l'année où le soleil à son zénith vient exactement à l'aplomb du Matrimandir -, vers 19.15 h, le Cristal est posé sur le modèle temporaire des 4 symboles ; environ 40 personnes se trouvent dans la Chambre, pour aider aux manœuvres et assister à l'« évènement »...

Je ne sais pas clairement pourquoi je n'ai pas aimé ce moment ; humainement j'ai trouvé cela pénible ; mais je vois bien aussi que cela n'a probablement aucune importance, car nous ne sommes que de petites ombres devant une Décision d'en haut...

Mais je vois aussi que le résultat matériel du travail effectué n'est pas encore correct ; le système de réflecteurs que Piero a conçu n'est pas bon, les lampes sont réfléchies dans la surface du cristal et le rayon central n'est pas visible ; trop de lumière traverse le cristal, la Chambre elle-même est dans son ensemble trop éclairée ; la plus grande intensité de lumière se trouve à présent au-dessous du cristal, entre les symboles, alors qu'il ne devrait y avoir là qu'une luminosité douce de teinte orangée, d'après Ta description très précise... D'autre part, nous ne sommes pas encore équipés pour assurer l'entretien adéquat du Cristal ; la température dans la Chambre est trop haute et l'air y est trop humide...

Je ne sais pas ; il y a comme une colère, qui ne s'applique à rien en particulier, mais à une sorte d'indigence, et de grossièreté...

... Ramalingam est revenu juste à temps des carrières de granite...

Après la réunion de travail pour les Jardins ce matin, a eu lieu une autre réunion, sous le Banyan, à propos des visiteurs, et de l'accès à la Chambre en général ; Mallika et moi formons une bonne équipe pour aboutir à des résultats concrets. Une vingtaine de personnes se trouvait là ; Piero et GI étaient présents. Les points d'accord semblent suffisants pour établir le minimum d'organisation nécessaire...

24-8-1991, Auroville :

J'ai dû traiter avec le projet d'un rassemblement prévu pour demain soir, à Matrimandir - une sorte d'appel « musical » pour invoquer l'harmonie dans le collectif, soi-disant : Nadaka et son groupe de musiciens veulent présenter une composition inédite soit à l'amphithéâtre, soit sous le Banyan...

... Au travail jusqu'à 18.30h, et j'ai fermé les portes... Toujours il me faut apprendre une clarté et une fermeté qui ne soit pas une dureté...

... Bhavani est rentrée de l'hôpital ; Narayana est toujours hostile...

25-8-1991, Auroville :

Tout l'après-midi de ce dimanche à aider à recevoir les visiteurs ; puis j'ai dû garder la structure pendant la durée de ce concert imbécile, dans une grande tension ; je me suis aperçu que Piero était non seulement partie prenante mais avait eu l'intention d'inviter tout le monde à monter ensuite dans le Chambre ; notre refus, à Mallika et moi, l'a plus que contrarié ! (Comment ce Lieu que Tu as voulu réservé à une concentration individuelle privilégiée et protégée peut-il être abordé ainsi ?!)

Je crois que, de tous les dangers sur ce chemin, celui qui m'effraye le plus profondément est la bêtise ; parce qu'ici, cela se change en une force active !

Ramalingam est venu me tenir compagnie pendant cette dernière heure difficile ; lui-même est très révolté par toute cette prétentieuse confusion ; nous entendons ainsi, à distance, cette caricature de musique, ce bêlement insipide et... déconcertant ! Et finalement tout s'est dissous...

Mais il y a ces moments clairs où des êtres simples, au cœur vivant, viennent, et reçoivent, et remercient.

La question, comme d'habitude, est de choisir entre un chemin d'engagement, de discernement et de discipline, et celui d'une anarchie générale.

Centralement, c'est l'anarchie qui est le plus proche de l'Etat dont l'âme se souvient ; mais l'anarchie qui se manifesterait ici et maintenant conduirait-elle à Cela ? Il n'y a pas de réponse...

Et pourtant, dès que quelque chose d'un peu vrai commence de s'installer et que l'on tente de le servir, on entre de suite en conflit avec des forces qui se réclament de cette anarchie avec une violence qui en contredit la possibilité même, comme s'il s'agissait du droit d'un ego collectif.

Et on tourne en rond.

Et il semble que l'on continuera de tourner en rond tant que le nombre d'individus devenus suffisamment conscients n'atteindra pas un certain seuil. Jusque là, l'on ne peut que persévérer dans cette ambiguïté profondément insatisfaisante, où les rôles sont distribués selon des valeurs encore ordinaires, où les réactions déforment automatiquement tous les mouvements possibles et où l'énergie se perd dans une inversion de la vraie complémentarité des êtres...

27-8-1991, Auroville :

Le projet que j'ai rédigé pour l'organisation de l'accès à la Chambre est bien reçu et sera distribué dès demain dans la communauté...

28-8-1991, Auroville :

J'ai du mal à rester, à continuer.

Les nuits sont pénibles ; il y a comme un poids sur le corps le matin et je commence mal les journées, sans élan ni confiance, et les choses se compliquent d'heure en heure, c'est un rassemblement de contradictions et une multiplication de petites malhonnêtetés. Les perceptions qui me sont données des uns et des autres sont difficiles à vivre ; comment partager une telle aventure avec des êtres pour lesquels on ne peut plus avoir de respect ?

Enfin il y en a quelques-uns qui commandent l'estime et suscitent beaucoup d'affection...

Autour de la question du revêtement de la sphère, les tensions montent ; ce matin un groupe d'une douzaine d'architectes et de constructeurs sont venus visiter la structure, représentant les 160 personnes qui ont signé une pétition pour arrêter les travaux. Ce qui est réellement en question, c'est le concept de Roger A ; mais aucun n'a l'honnêteté de le dire simplement et directement. Ils se cantonnent tous dans une attitude négative et sarcastique, chargée de petits coups bas. Leurs critiques sont les mêmes que celles que j'ai moi-même souvent exprimées au cours des années, et donc dans ce sens je suis d'accord avec eux. Mais le courant qu'ils choisissent de laisser passer est révoltant. Et Piero... qui se joint à eux, dans une culmination de duplicité...

J'ai dû lutter pour ne pas tomber malade. C'est comme si on s'éloignait de plus en plus d'une pureté d'engagement, d'une transparence offerte, et d'un courage qui ignore consciemment la défaite, la mort et la petitesse...

Je ne sais pas où est le chemin matériel...

J'avais cru qu'en se concentrant dans un rassemblement d'énergies, dans un mouvement en avant, les choses et la matière elle-même nous indiqueraient la pas suivant, et que même quelqu'un comme Roger A serait saisi par le sens d'une évidence matérielle : LA chose à faire, à chaque pas, pour servir Ton Plan...

Mais il semble que ce fut là une forme de romantisme ; que les résistances ne veulent pas céder, et qu'il faille encore et encore traverser ces confusions intérieures, ces monstruosité psychologiques, et ces détours et ces gaspillages, et ces trahisons et ces exclusivismes qui s'annulent dans une même négation...

Arjun m'a demandé une fois de plus de lui dire ce que je voyais, pratiquement, pour le revêtement de la sphère ; je le lui ai décrit à nouveau ; puis Toine nous a rejoint et il a proposé que nous étudions précisément cette alternative... Mais je ne sais pas : sans que ce soit clairement un choix de la Force, cela ne risque-t-il pas d'ajouter à la confusion générale ? Je sais seulement que, profondément et constamment, j'éprouve comme la vérité de la sphère dans sa simplicité puissante et tranquille ; et le concept de Roger A, si séduisant soit-il, n'est qu'une grimace prétentieuse qui cherche à se plaquer sur elle.

Mais suis-je capable de proposer une méthode de travail fiable et sûre ? Sans aide ? Où est le chemin ?

30-8-1991, Auroville :

Avec le secours d'une calme persévérance, cette plongée se rétablit lentement ; mais il est impératif que je me concentre mieux...

... Jacques le dentiste a colmaté ce qu'il a pu, mais m'a déclaré qu'il ne pourrait rien d'autre pour moi ; si ça s'aggrave, je ne sais pas où aller... Il faudrait plusieurs séances de soins, et probablement beaucoup d'argent...

... Mallika et moi avons mis au point l'organisation des « Passes » pour ceux qui demandent à venir à la Chambre ; il nous faut maintenant trouver un lieu dans Pondy...

31-8-1991, Auroville :

Ramalingam et Arjun insistent que cela est nécessaire, et le sera de plus en plus, mais j'ai bien du mal à ne plus rien faire d'autre que de « superviser » et d' « organiser »... Il est plus facile pour moi de diriger une équipe tout en étant l'un de ses membres, partageant un travail physique direct ; mais je vois bien en effet qu'il nous faut, à Ramalingam et à moi, être présents un peu partout à la fois, à mesure que nous prenons plus d'ouvriers pour faire avancer les travaux, même dans les Jardins...

... Piero s'en va en Italie pour ses « vacances » et laisse ses instructions, dont certaines me rendent assez perplexes...

Ce soir je suis allé assister à une représentation d'Anu au Bharat Nivas ; seule, pendant plus d'une heure, elle a dansé sur des pièces de musique difficiles – Stravinsky et Ravel, et aussi une composition de notre Stefano, et un chant Hindi et même une pièce de silence... -, et ce fut un vrai plaisir : la qualité de son travail et de sa concentration, comme de ses progrès...

Mais parmi les Auroviliens, surtout les Occidentaux, je me sens absolument comme un étranger ; je ne trouve rien là que je sois capable de partager ; ce n'est plus un malaise, comme avant : c'est une sorte de distance intraitable...

... Je relis Ton Agenda ; et cela augmente le sens de l'écart effrayant entre ce qui se passe et ce qui devrait se passer dans nos consciences – ces consciences fragmentées qui T'ont réduite et Te réduisent sans cesse à une sorte de support indéterminé qui légitime tout, et procure une dimension éthique relativement confortable, avec çà et là quelques percées tolérables – juste ce qu'il faut pour maintenir le sens d'une aventure spéciale... !

1-9-1991, Auroville :

C'est dimanche : la matinée ici, à nettoyer et laver ; et la visite, assez brève, de Su ; elle est encore incertaine et souhaite garder la possibilité physique de revenir ici ; elle ne semble vraiment ni plus forte ni plus libre, mais c'est un travail intérieur lent et profond qui ne permet pas un changement extérieur spectaculaire ; les habitudes d'être sont inscrites...

... Une tristesse, aussi : L vient me trouver, saoul, demandant de l'argent pour réparer son vélo ; à la demande de Ramalingam il a travaillé toute la nuit au bétonnage du toit de la nouvelle maison du père de Sumathi, au village, et cela ne s'est pas bien passé ; ils ont tous bu beaucoup d'arak et ce matin Ramalingam les a emmenés sur un autre projet, et sont retournés boire ; j'apprends ainsi que L s'est remis à boire régulièrement ces temps derniers... Cela semble sans issue, ici ; je veux pourtant essayer de l'arrêter...

Puis Ramalingam est aussi venu me rejoindre ici un moment, épuisé et déprimé...

Je ne sais pas où me tourner... Je me sens proche des gens d'ici, dans le sentiment comme dans le corps ; mais c'est constamment contredit par les cercles vicieux dans lesquels toute la vie ici est enfermée, où l'individu n'a pratiquement aucune chance d'émerger à la possibilité d'un choix conscient de son orientation, où tout et tous sont liés par un contrat collectif beaucoup plus astreignant et « naturel » qu'en Occident...

2-9-1991, Auroville :

Une sorte de mauvaise humeur permanente, et d'étouffement : le sens de ne plus être capable de tolérer la confusion générale, l'absence de clarté, de concentration, d'efficacité, de sobriété... de qualité ! J'oscille entre une solitude plutôt désespérée, et le besoin de briser, d'exploser, de nettoyer, de tailler dans cette masse semi inerte – ce brouillage qui ne mène à rien, ne va nulle part, se répète et se reproduit sans jamais s'ouvrir à rien d'autre...

... Yanne m'a fait demander de traduire mon article en Anglais, parce que ceux de la Revue « Auroville Today » le voudraient aussi... J'essaye, mais j'aurais préféré écrire autre chose directement en Anglais ; et puis, cela me semble périmé... !

... J'ai besoin d'une activité créative, qui ait son utilité, quelque chose que Tu me donnes à faire, qui m'emploie ; c'est une tristesse constante de ne pas être utilisé selon mes capacités...

Le fait de ne pas être un animal social semble me condamner à une sorte de réclusion stérile et fausse, et cette masse de choses que je pourrais faire, dire, créer, est devenue au cours des années comme un trou noir – au sens astronomique...

3-9-1991, Auroville :

Ce qui est uniquement appréciable dans ce monde physique est qu'une harmonie, quelle qu'elle soit, individuelle ou collective, doive, pour durer, constamment progresser ; au revers de cette loi est l'extrême précarité de toute réalisation physique, sa vulnérabilité...

A en juger par les récits d'Aster, Arjun et Toine, la réunion d'hier a dû être particulièrement pénible, comme une gerbe de poison ; et il semble bien que ce qui est mis en question est l'existence même de notre équipe de Coordination, dont le travail a pourtant permis aux énergies de se rassembler pour tâcher de finir Matrimandir. Reste maintenant à déterminer si nous pouvons trouver une position commune qui soit vraie également pour chacun de nous, dans l'éventualité où ce processus imbécile de démocratie, de vote – foncièrement malhonnête et lâche – produirait un rejet « officiel » de notre équipe ; or ce n'est pas facile d'atteindre à plusieurs à cette clarté... !

4-9-1991, Auroville :

Tout l'abord de la structure est en chantier : un espace boueux, constamment remanié. La participation de la Compagnie de Pierre E a modifié l'atmosphère ; le contrôle, relatif, des énergies est très différent, et différemment motivé : Pierre E est tenu de garder sa Compagnie à flots sur des bases ordinaires de « rentabilité », alors que nous avons toujours travaillé dans la foi et le recours à la Grâce – avec tous les abus et les excès correspondants ! Cela produit un brouillard ; on se déplace dans une sorte d'incohérence, avec des zones d'activité qui ne correspondent pas, ou qu'indirectement...

5-9-1991, Auroville :

Vers 15 h nous avons pu commencer le bétonnage du bassin central, sous la structure, et nous avons terminé à minuit ; plein d'énergie tout le temps, et les hommes étaient contents, cela s'est passé sans incident.

J'avais posté une notice dans Auroville pour informer, car on nous a fait le reproche de ne plus annoncer les bétonnages, mais absolument personne n'est venu aider ! Par contre, il est bien certain que cette réunion générale à propos de Matrimandir – à propos, vraiment, des antagonismes et des jeux de forces générant tant de rumeurs – attirera toute une foule !

Voilà où nous en sommes !

Mais je dois dire que cela me laisse maintenant indifférent ; il y a cette tendresse toujours renouvelée avec tous ces « ouvriers », qui est pour moi comme de l'or – et de les voir grandir un peu, et se donner ainsi, est une joie...

... Plus tard, dans la nuit, L est rentré ici dormir (son village est assez éloigné), et ainsi nous sommes-nous retrouvés une nouvelle fois, cette gentillesse et cette pureté de la tendresse physiquement donnée et partagée, c'est un si beau cadeau ; puis il a dormi comme un enfant... Pas moi : l'énergie de la journée a continué pendant des heures à circuler !

6-9-1991, Auroville :

Tous un peu fatigués de cette nuit de travail intensif... Et aujourd'hui il nous fallait démonter tout l'échafaudage... Selvam a dormi ici une partie de la journée. Ce soir, il nous faut encore déloger un nid d'abeilles...

Mais vient maintenant un énorme orage : des trombes d'eau et de magnifiques éclairs qui sillonnent le ciel à l'horizontale comme de grands serpents de pure énergie...

7-9-1991, Auroville :

Nous avons ouvert les coffrages : un béton impeccable, des formes presque parfaites...

... La question se pose pour notre équipe de Coordination de savoir si nous devons assister à cette réunion générale de lundi, nous abstenir, ou envoyer un message, et de quelle nature... Mais Toine n'attrape pas le sens profond d'une position commune ; il semble donc que chacun fera de son mieux et prendra ses décisions le moment venu... Je le regrette un peu...

9-9-1991, Auroville :

Je ne suis pas allé à cette réunion générale ; Ramalingam et moi, avec un groupe de nos hommes, avons commencé de démonter le grand échafaudage qui a servi à hisser les colonnes dans la Chambre, et nous avons travaillé jusqu'au soir, et c'était paisible, attentif et tendre... Mais il m'a semblé, aux mines satisfaites de ces Auroviliens qui sont venus à la Chambre vers 18 h, que les choses ne s'étaient pas très bien passées : il y avait l'importance vertueuse de la petitesse qui croit avoir le dessus ! Ar. est passée en bas, aussi, en désarroi, pour tout me raconter, mais je ne pouvais pas encore descendre... Et ce soir, Shivan, Ramalingam, Anand et moi devons détruire un autre nid d'abeilles, tout en haut de la structure...

10-9-1991, Auroville :

Les nouvelles de cette réunion ne sont pas entièrement négatives. Arjun et Toine, comme promis, ont su rester silencieux, ne pas répondre aux provocations et insinuations, et laisser d'autres rétablir un peu l'équilibre ; une période d'un mois a été fixée pour ceux qui se déclarent prêts à formuler une alternative à l'étude présente (d'après le concept de Roger A) pour le revêtement de la sphère ; quant à notre équipe, les tentatives destructrices sont pour le moment neutralisées...

... Joël est venu en visite pour quelques jours, calme et ouvert comme un frère qu'il est... Je lui ai demandé d'emmener Ramalingam une fois sur ses « ailes », qu'il ait l'expérience de survoler Auroville, et « sa » terre : la randonnée est prévue pour jeudi.

... Ce soir Ramalingam est venu passer un long moment de tranquillité avec moi ; il tend à m'associer de plus en plus dans ses autres projets, et je veux bien, car j'aime l'équipe que nous formons, et c'est l'occasion d'être un peu créatif...

11-9-1991, Auroville :

Jérôme, qui veut construire sa maison à « Samasti », nous a finalement demandé, à Ramalingam et moi, de s'occuper de tout – plans, études et construction...

13-9-1991, Auroville :

Longue pluie tranquille la nuit dernière et jusqu'au matin, et cet état d'émerveillement dans le jardin ; l'appel d'un temps sans horaires, d'un temps pour regarder, être avec – les plantes, la lumière et les pierres, la voûte des grands arbres... Mais au Matrimandir c'est un champ de boue et les gestes se font au ralenti, chaque manœuvre est compliquée...

14-9-1991, Auroville :

Un incident, qui dégénère en une scène méchamment explosive, l'une de ces percées purement destructives qui peuvent survenir à tout instant si nous ne sommes pas constamment centrés, à propos de la vente, que Selvam organisait, de toute la ferraille inutilisable dont il faut se débarrasser ; Durai s'ouvre à une force obscurément provocatrice et mensongère une fois de plus et, par ses accusations et son langage et l'intention même de cette force, parvient à susciter une série de réactions en Ramalingam qui se laisse entraîner et en vient aux coups... Tous les ouvriers sont présents, et il faut agir immédiatement pour enrayer ce processus ; Vinod et Gajendran s'en mêlent et répandent cette atmosphère maintenant connue, de laideur et de petitesse haineuse qui est devenue au cours des années l'un des traits distinctifs de la situation humaine autour de Matrimandir...

Il faut des heures, ensuite, pour rappeler Ramalingam à un sens et une perspective plus profonds, et à la nécessité d'un vrai courage et d'une vraie réponse – il doit faire une apologie publique - ; Arjun m'aide beaucoup ; il lui parle exactement du même point de vue plus intérieur et depuis la même perception, et les mots sont ceux là mêmes que j'aurais souhaités...

... En fin de journée, un long moment avec Charudatta ; c'est un jeune Indien brahmine de Goa, excellent peintre, que j'avais brièvement rencontré à l'Ashram, il y a quelques mois : un être très sensible, gentil, assez perdu, avec un développement complexe – beaucoup de potentiel, mais aussi les dangers, les faiblesses et l'ouverture passive de ceux qui n'ont pas encore la force intérieure de s'engager et restent à la merci de la confusion des valeurs, dans la rencontre de l'Inde avec l'Occident... Il reste longtemps ici avec moi, et parle librement ; il est honnête dans ses tâtonnements ; puis il chante un Raga pour moi, avec une très belle voix, et une vraie intensité...

... Je passe toute la soirée jusque tard dans la nuit à dessiner les plans et les perspectives de la maison de Jérôme ; ce n'est pas en soi un projet très intéressant, car il doit, ou veut se conformer au style des maisons de « Samasti », et la conception qu'il a de ses besoins est encore assez conventionnelle ; je le fais essentiellement pour Ramalingam, qui souhaite s'occuper de la construction ; et cela m'oblige à être créatif là où on n'espère plus l'être... !

15-9-1991, Auroville :

Je viens de toucher concrètement à certains des dangers qui font pression de manière latente sur l'entreprise d'Auroville, et particulièrement de Matrimandir – et combien effective est la Grâce qui neutralise sans cesse leur déploiement ; cela rend sobre de constater ainsi combien chacun de nous est encore seul devant la nécessité de ne pas répondre, de ne pas céder, et de s'accrocher au Vrai ; combien nous sommes encore loin de la sécurité d'une orientation collective vérifiée... A travers un premier échange infructueux avec Vinod – qui est assez déséquilibré – et le dialogue effrayant qui s'est ensuivi entre lui et Ramalingam, l'ombre des violences collectives propres à ce pays s'est soudain clairement projetée, à la faveur de cet incident d'hier, qui n'est possible que par la juxtaposition de petites malhonnêtetés, de lâchetés et de faiblesses ; le spectre de cette sorte de conséquences s'est soudain inscrit...

... Su est passée ce matin ; elle vient de quitter Kenneth, et cherche encore un signe en moi de son retour ici... Elle est bien adorable, mais il est clair pour moi qu'elle doit trouver son chemin indépendamment de moi ; je reste tranquille, comme une sécurité pour elle, quelque part...

... Selvam a appris que l'incident d'hier avait été prémédité par plusieurs personnes qui avaient préparé une « pétition » et encouragé Durai à nous empêcher de vendre la ferraille ; c'est cette torsion qui fait des gens ici des hypocrites et des lâches, car aucun d'eux n'a même eu l'idée de simplement venir d'abord s'enquérir auprès de nous des raisons de cette vente et de son ampleur (un amas de vieilles armatures de lampes en aluminium tout cabossé, qui n'allait rapporter que 200 ou 300 roupies à réinvestir dans la construction)...

Nous sommes dans un tunnel ; il y a évidemment une pression destructrice, « hostile », qui utilise tout, tous les points faibles, et coalise toutes les ombres ; et certains êtres ici, insuffisamment développés, en deviennent les proies, et les instruments redoutables... La moindre torsion, la moindre prétention, peut avoir des conséquences désastreuses...

Mais il faut sourire : voir sans vaciller.

Il y a pourtant des choses qu'il est difficile d'accepter : cette duplicité obscurément établie, ces courants obscurément nourris, jour après jour, qui attendent les circonstances et les conditions favorables pour se joindre...

On s'en irait ailleurs, si ce n'était Matrimandir, Ton cadeau et Ton travail...

Le pied du mur, ou la porte du prochain devenir...

17-9-1991, Auroville :

Je suis attentif à ce que Selvam et Ramalingam se remettent bien, et en avant, de cette épreuve... Mais ce n'est pas fini ; Durai est très actif dans sa recherche de soutiens politiques...

C'est une farce ; il faut maintenant faire un grand progrès.

Le pourquoi de ces marées d'antagonisme, de cette folie de rumeurs, n'est pas accessible...

Il faut un mouvement vers, en, Sri Aurobindo...

... Réunion malaisée de Coordination cet après-midi : Yoke envoie une étrange lettre de démission ; Toine est à Madras ; Ramalingam préfère rester sur la structure à travailler physiquement ; John H est encore à Bombay ; nous ne sommes donc que 5 et il y a d'abord l'impression d'un voile lourd, qui cherche à défaire, à nous convaincre que c'est fini, que cette équipe doit être dissoute et que le travail ne peut pas continuer à ce rythme, qu'il nous faut « lâcher »... C'est une sorte de sensation superstitieuse très pénible et très fausse...

... Su est revenue habiter dans la maison de C ; je n'ai rien dit...

18-9-1991, Auroville :

Après la journée, fastidieuse, au Matrimandir, j'ai travaillé dans le jardin ici jusqu'à la nuit...

Une bonne lettre de John H : il a une expérience très rigoureuse, seul à Bombay avec les symboles qu'il polit, polit, polit, sans plus rien savoir...

... Par Dharman nous avons découvert que Somu était activement impliqué dans la présente campagne de dénigrement et de fausses rumeurs – ce qui fait de lui, décidément, un remarquable exemple de duplicité...

C'est réellement, ici, cet « ennemi logé dans la poitrine de l'homme »... !

19-9-1991, Auroville :

Je dois de nouveau lutter pour ne pas tomber malade. Tout ce poison dirigé passe par tant d'ouvertures grimaçantes... J'essaie de m'accrocher au sens du progrès, de la Grâce qui utilise toute adversité pour forger le devenir – et aussi, négativement, de voir où il est bon, ou utile, d'abdiquer, de se défaire... Mais c'est une sorte de bombardement : la hargne quasi inhumaine de Narayana, les tricheries satisfaites de l'un ou de l'autre, le revirement de Jérôme qui a maintenant décidé, après que je lui aie remis tout mon travail, de continuer tout seul, la publication dans les « Nouvelles d'Auroville » de la lettre de Durai (malgré le fait que Ramalingam ait donné son apologie publique il y a déjà trois jours), lettre signée par une vingtaine de personnes et pour quoi ? Pour quoi ? N'importe qui d'un peu intelligent peut voir que ce n'est pas sincère, et que c'est un prétexte qui recouvre autre chose...

Mais ce qui m'a le plus touché est un phénomène étrange : une famille de corbeaux, qui a fait son nid dans la structure, s'est mise depuis quelques jours à m'attaquer ; aujourd'hui, c'était sans répit, et j'ai à peine pu travailler : ils plongent de par derrière et, en plein vol, plantent leur bec sur ma tête, et parfois leurs serres ; ils n'attaquent que moi...

Et je ne sais pas, c'est le même mouvement dans ces quelques êtres malades et dans ces corbeaux ; cela me fait de la peine, comme si le Matrimandir me disait physiquement « Va-t-en ! Va-t-en ! »...

Pourtant, d'un point de vue plus général, tous les remous à propos du revêtement de la sphère – si je fais abstraction des facilités, de la petitesse et des mensonges – me sont plutôt sympathiques, dans la mesure où cela indique la possibilité d'une réponse encore à trouver, plus vraie que ce concept de Roger A... Mais cela peut-il se révéler dans ces conditions ? C'est un climat effrayant... !

Ramalingam tient bon ; Selvam aussi ; Arjun aussi ; c'est moi qui me sens las...

... Ce soir L est venu ; j'ai retiré les points de suture ; sa blessure à la tête est guérie ; puis il est resté et nous avons à nouveau partagé cette simplicité physique joyeuse et sans histoires, cette affection mutuellement donnée...

20-9-1991, Auroville :

Tôt ce matin Su est venue me dire qu'elle pensait pouvoir rester ici, dans l'autre maison, sans retomber dans une dépendance envers moi, et qu'elle chercherait un autre endroit quand C viendrait...

... Après le travail, L est venu me retrouver ici ; je voulais faire une séance d'asanas, alors il est monté sur la terrasse avec moi et, tranquillement, a essayé de suivre, avec cette gentillesse heureuse et tendre qui est son cadeau...

21-9-1991, Auroville :

Ramalingam est aux prises avec ses propres réactions à l'incompréhension, aux jugements des autres, aux opinions, aux accusations dictées par la jalousie et la haine ; c'est un moment de choix pour lui, et de progrès intérieur ; il a décidé d'aller à Thirupatti, avec Loganathan, visiter ce dieu qui répond à tous les souhaits... ! Celui qui ainsi met tous les êtres devant les conséquences de leurs demandes, ce dieu sans visage qui attire les millions (de gens, et de roupies !)...

22-9-1991, Auroville :

L'après-midi à aller et venir entre les visiteurs au Matrimandir et la lessive ici, et ce soir un long moment tranquille dans la Chambre : quand ce sera vraiment prêt, quelle aide formidable ce sera ; on pourra faire réellement de grands progrès, marcher réellement sur Ton chemin...

23-9-1991, Auroville :

Une lutte physique de chaque instant contre la dépression, la maladie, le découragement, l'absurdité, l'inertie, l'étouffement ; et le résultat dominant, c'est une mauvaise humeur éprouvante, au bord de la tristesse... Continuer comme ça encore longtemps est une proposition inepte ! Je ne trouve pas la position créative ; je sais bien où elle est, pourtant, alors je n'ai pas d'excuses !

24-9-1991, Auroville :

A a envoyé sa voiture nous chercher, Arjun et moi, pour signer le contrat de location d'une petite maison non loin de l'Ashram où nous pensons établir un Centre d'Information et de coordination des visites ; un petit voyage amusant et loufoque, avec une belle musique d'opéra dans la voiture confortable – cette qualité occidentale que représente A...

... Réunion de Coordination cet après-midi ; il nous faut considérer, dans tout ce mélange, les symptômes de plus en plus explicites d'une intention peu scrupuleuse de « renverser » l'équipe que nous formons et, en arrière, d'arrêter le travail ou, au moins, d'en retarder le progrès... ce ne peut pas être une démarche exclusivement hostile ou destructrice : il y a nécessairement, dans tout groupement, des éléments de bonne volonté, qui se trouvent mêlés ou impliqués par manque de discernement, et c'est d'autant plus redoutable, comme un piège qui tend à se refermer quoique l'on fasse ou ne fasse pas. C'est-à-dire que toute réponse, ou non-réponse de notre part, peut être utilisé de la même manière si l'atmosphère n'est pas déblayée assez vite et profondément...

25-9-1991, Auroville :

Arjun m'apprend que le « Working Committee » a invité Madanlal et SSJ à les rencontrer, et que Madanlal a déjà accepté ; je sens que c'est mauvais et que cela ne peut qu'aggraver la situation. Dès ce soir je prend le risque – d'être idiot, dérangé, ou de susciter une réaction d'amour-propre – et j'envoie un mot à SSJ avec le texte d'une réponse que je leur demande d'adresser en leur nom, afin de se dégager de cette invitation tordue...

26-9-1991, Auroville :

Les jours passent comme des nuages dans le ciel...

Arjun me dit que SSJ et Madanlal ont beaucoup apprécié ma note mais que, si SSJ comprend bien, Madanlal, lui, reste persuadé qu'ils doivent se rendre à cette invitation... on ne peut rien faire de plus, sinon se préparer à la prochaine phase du... « processus » !

Une mauvaise nuit à me battre contre la toux et la fièvre ; c'est venu sans avertissement, alors que je me préoccupais de ne rien avoir au foie !

Tout va de travers : gesticulations aberrantes de Bhavani et Narayana à l'entrée de la Chambre, Durai qui prépare une organisation parallèle pour la réception des visiteurs – l'horreur d'une mauvaise foi qui devient comme une armée de coalition à l'envers, cette haine et ce fiel, et je ne trouve nulle part cette qualité de partage qui soit à toute épreuve ; je vois, et je suis impuissant !

Et cet après-midi Dharman, qui a obstinément refusé de suivre mes instructions pour la mise en forme du coffrage métallique du cylindre de l'escalier central, et la méthode de vibration – persuadé comme à son habitude qu'il sait mieux que tout le monde et que je ne suis pas compétent -, nous met dans une situation difficile, dont je serai évidemment tenu pour responsable : en cours de bétonnage les panneaux se sont déformés en plusieurs endroits... Et il n'a toujours pas compris, et préfère trouver une autre cause et la mettre sur mon dos...

30-9-1991, Auroville :

C'est un état dégoûtant, de déséquilibre et de vulnérabilité dans le corps, qui reflète ce qui se passe autour de Matrimandir : ces vilains jeux d'influence, ces petits coups bas ; et il semble que je sois la cible déclarée... une fois de plus !

... J'ai du mal à absorber la nourriture ; le corps demande une soupe de légumes, mais je n'ai pas de légumes, et je me refuse à demander à Su de s'en occuper...

1-10-1991, Auroville :

Je n'ai pas comme Arjun ce goût de la vie, cette santé vitale qui trouve une joie même dans la bataille (et parfois lui donne substance !) ; au point de vue de la vie, je n'ai rien : c'est désert, c'est fini, c'est un vide qui attend – comme un exilé d'un temps pas encore possible...

Il y a seulement, où et quand c'est suffisamment vrai, une tendresse, et un sourire...

Pourquoi toute cette laideur autour de Matrimandir, ce rassemblement de petites gens ? Pourquoi n'y a-t-il pas plutôt assez d'êtres qui travaillent au-dedans comme au-dehors ?

C'est ainsi parce que le Seigneur le veut ainsi ?

Je sais bien que quoiqu'il arrive, quelles que soient les circonstances, la Nécessité est la même.

Et non seulement il faut que le travail se fasse sur une base offerte de libre choix, mais il faut qu'il implique et embrasse toute la gamme des degrés de développement de l'âme humaine ; c'est ainsi que ce qui peut sembler injuste du point de vue de l'individu est pourtant nécessaire à l'évolution d'une représentation du tout (pour le mentaliser)...

Mais, quelle horreur !

2-10-1991, Auroville :

Ce matin au réveil, pendant quelques minutes, le corps se sentait mieux – un peu de joie dans le monde physique...

Puis, je ne sais pas ce qui se passe, la fièvre revient, et cette faiblesse générale et ce sens de la lutte, et la difficulté d'absorber la nourriture, la nausée, un dégoût ; et pourtant il faut manger, j'ai déjà perdu trop de poids, et ça aussi c'est dégoûtant...

Et l'atmosphère reste la même. Rien ne vient. Rien n'intervient.

Ce qui m'inquiète en ce qui me concerne, c'est cette impression, cette sensation d'être absolument sans ressources...

... Vient une énorme, interminable pluie de mousson ; et à la nuit tombée je suis venu prendre mon tour de garde : le vacarme des grenouilles et les chauve-souris virevoltant à la lumière de l'unique lampe solaire ; je lis Ton Agenda, comme un prisonnier dans un cachot obscur se rassemble endolori contre une fissure de lumière et d'air pur...

L'ombre la plus terrible dans ma vie est cette incapacité à connaître la joie naturelle de l'existence ; c'est comme une infirmité essentielle, qui fait de l'endurance une nécessité beaucoup plus impérative qu'elle ne l'est probablement pour la plupart des gens. J'ai eu pourtant l'expérience de la joie vraie, dans une atmosphère de vérité, et d'un bien-être plus qu'humain, dans un état d'abandon conscient ; et, plus souvent, celle d'une sorte d'extase physique quand les conditions matérielles d'harmonie sont réunies : la beauté de la nature, et de la matière...

Mais jamais je n'ai eu l'expérience de cette joie d'exister qui semble être réellement le dénominateur commun de la majorité des êtres humains, si divers soient-ils...

Et je ne sais toujours pas pourquoi.

Je sais seulement que cela m'aliène ; je ne peux jamais durablement me sentir adapté, intégré, dans quelque situation humaine que ce soit. Avec les choses matérielles, avec les formes de la nature, avec le corps de la Terre, oui, mais jamais, jusqu'à présent, avec les hommes.

Et pourtant il n'y a rien, nulle part, que Tu aies dit, qui me soit étranger ; parfois je sais seulement que telle ou telle expérience m'est encore inaccessible, mais jamais étrangère... Alors ?

3-10-1991, Auroville :

Même du point de vue du travail extérieur, tout est brouillé ; je ne vois rien, qu'une sorte de chaos sillonné d'interférences et de doutes, échappant à toute maîtrise consciente...

C'est comme si quelqu'un était entré dans la demeure, un menteur, un voleur, et s'était emparé du ferment qui rassemble et connecte et anime – et tout n'est plus qu'une juxtaposition d'activités vides de sens... Je n'éprouve ni joie, ni intérêt ; la confiance est partie...

J'ai travaillé pourtant jusqu'à la nuit ; puis Ramalingam est venu ici ; et, comme lui aussi se sent triste et perdu et las de toute cette laideur qui s'expose, je suis resté près de lui pour qu'on retrouve un rythme, un peu...

... Arjun s'en va demain, au Japon, pour quelques semaines ; il est inquiet de notre condition : à nous regarder, Ramalingam et moi, évidemment ce n'est pas prometteur... ! On est comme sans ressort...

4-10-1991, Auroville :

Je vais comme un pantin et une ombre qui crie, en silence... Un cri de douleur qui n'est rien, une douleur sans nom ni forme : la douleur d'un trou, d'un vide obligé d'exister, obligé d'être tel...

Tout est suffoquant ; c'est comme une erreur...

... L'après-midi à Pondy, pour mon visa ; puis à essayer de trouver une nourriture que je puisse absorber ; un moment au Samadhi, mais c'était inutile : rien ne répond ; c'est comme une pierre qui tombe, et tombe, sans cesse, à chaque instant ; c'est sans drame, sans couleur, sans motif ; et si ça brûle, c'est du feu neutre de la destruction...

5-10-1991, Auroville :

Ce qui m'a aidé aujourd'hui, c'est que j'ai pu trouver un travail de menuiserie que je pouvais faire seul, sans être dérangé, tout au long de la journée ; cela a permis à un peu d'énergie de couler à nouveau, et de remettre les choses en perspective...

6-10-1991, Auroville :

N est revenu ce matin me voir ; mais je ne peux pas l'aider, ne le peux plus, ou ne le peux pas encore ; il avait une plaie putréfiée au pied, que j'ai soignée.

Cette misère de notre condition : « sa » misère, la « mienne »... Je ne sais pas...

9-10-1991, Auroville :

Je vois que je me trouve de plus en plus seul ; je n'ai personne qui m'aide à trouver la juste relation au monde, avec qui une alchimie de progrès puisse s'établir. Il y a seulement des êtres, surtout parmi les « ouvriers », dont les yeux, la présence, la tendresse me réconfortent et me soutiennent ; et quelques rares « Auroviliens ». Mais personne n'est là à sa place près de moi à ma place.

Et il me semble que s'il n'y a personne là et maintenant, c'est qu'il n'y aura personne « plus tard » non plus.

Alors la seule ouverture et le seul sens c'est que Tu me mènes à cet état où « mon » existence remplira une fonction vraie, au-delà de la personne, tangiblement, intégralement, une avec tout...

10-10-1991, Auroville :

C'est comme une atmosphère venimeuse, ou un champ de mines.

Les incidents se produisent quotidiennement ; aujourd'hui pendant la pause du déjeuner, il y a eu un échange d'insultes entre l'un des gardiens et un menuisier, un pauvre bougre qui n'a pas toute sa tête, et le gardien, Govindraj, l'a frappé avec un morceau de bois ; Durai me l'a amené, et j'ai dû l'envoyer à Jipmer pour des points de suture ; ce matin aussi Kalidas s'est électrocuté en manipulant la tondeuse à gazon, et j'ai dû l'envoyer au « Health Centre »...

11-10-1991, Auroville :

Tout incident est utilisé ; les petits mensonges se coulent ou se plient les uns dans les autres et l'atmosphère est polluée. Mais c'est la loi d'UNE substance, à laquelle on ne peut échapper : on ne peut qu'appeler, et persévérer, et tâcher de ne pas soi-même manifester la contradiction...

15-10-1991, Auroville :

Toute la matinée à marquer les ouvertures pour l'écoulement des eaux dans le grand Réservoir sous la sphère, avec Asha qui ne cesse de se tromper dans ses calculs – et c'est plein d'humour...

Toine n'est pas bien physiquement.

John H téléphone de Bombay qu'il revient demain avec A : un échec complet ! Les symboles ne sont pas acceptables, malgré ces semaines de polissage, et devront être entièrement refaits, ce qui repousse un certain état de réalisation de la Chambre plusieurs mois en avant ; extérieurement, ce retard est dû à l'entêtement mal inspiré de Piero. Mais il est difficile de ne pas penser que cela reflète assez exactement l'atmosphère présente. Sri Aurobindo demande, exige un certain progrès qualitatif avant que Ses vrais symboles puissent être mis en place.

16-10-1991, Auroville :

Le problème de l'accès à la Chambre – de l'incompréhension de cela pour quoi cette structure est créée, est très aigu, et génère quotidiennement des mouvements de tricherie, de colère ou de rancœur ; la contradiction est si multiple et pernicieuse et persistante que c'est comme une hydre vraiment ; aujourd'hui un incident avec LN à qui beaucoup de gens en rapport avec l'Ashram s'adressent personnellement pour avoir accès à la Chambre quand ils le veulent : une sorte de complicité entre l'ego spirituel et cette voracité, cette convoitise d'un vital qui se prétend tourné vers le Divin mais ne cherche qu'à se nourrir des forces en présence...

17-10-1991, Auroville :

Aujourd'hui c'est la « Saraswati Puja ».

John H est revenu dans la nuit de Bombay, et mon Selvam cet après-midi des Himalaya ; mon beau et doux Selvam, aminci, nettoyé...

Les ouvriers ont passé la journée à tout briquer, et c'était plus simple et plus harmonieux que les autres années...

18-10-1991, Auroville :

Mon Selvam m'a laissé des cadeaux dans la maison : une surprise qui m'a beaucoup touché... C'est drôle, c'est avec lui que je ressens enfin cette vérité que les humains ont appelé « amour »...

... La malhonnêteté est toujours une peine ; mais que des êtres ici, tout près de Matrimandir, puissent intentionnellement, volontairement calculer, arranger, organiser et poursuivre malhonnêtement leurs buts, et que cette petitesse puisse non seulement s'introduire, mais subsister et agir, ici même, est une chose que je ne parviens pas à assimiler... Et pourtant c'est un fait, indéniable : c'est là !

19-10-1991, Auroville :

Aujourd'hui, avec la constatation physique de cette nouvelle trahison, de ces mensonges écrits, institués et justifiés, j'ai éprouvé un ajustement de l'énergie : assez d'être poli et patient, assez de prendre sur soi et d'endurer, de toujours essayer de comprendre, d'accepter, de toujours intérieurement tenter d'absorber les « vérités » qui semblent s'opposer – il y a ici, tout simplement, des êtres vicieux, incapables de se donner ; et je ne sens plus de raison d'accepter...

20-10-1991, Auroville :

Tôt ce matin L est venu pour passer un moment ensemble ; puis il m'a aidé dans les rangements, gentiment... Et l'après-midi, après un doux déjeuner avec Selvam, je suis resté à Matrimandir pour aider à la réception des visiteurs, essayer d'établir un peu de respect et de compréhension : que Ta Chambre ne soit pas déjà trahie. La difficulté la plus aigüe et la plus effrayante est ici même, avec ces déséquilibrés qui s'accrochent au Matrimandir...

Mais chacun de nous n'est-il pas, à sa manière unique, un déséquilibré ?

Il y a pourtant une limite, que Tu as tant désignée : le mensonge !

Et là, c'est horrible...

AUM NAMO BHAGAVATE...

21-10-1991, Auroville :

Hier s'est produit un tremblement de terre assez violent à Nainital – où Aster et Prem séjournent en ce moment, et où Selvam se trouvait...

22-10-1991, Auroville :

J'ai proposé de faire une demande écrite à plusieurs groupes de travail en Auroville pour que l'on hâte la mise en place pratique d'une politique d'accueil et de réception de tous les visiteurs, en insistant sur la nécessité d'un filtrage en ce qui concerne Matrimandir ; il faut que je commence à la rédiger...

23-10-1991, Auroville :

J'ai envoyé Selvam prendre des nouvelles de Deepti, et découvert ainsi qu'elle est alitée depuis trois jours avec une double infection de la gorge et des reins ; je vais la voir ce soir...

26-10-1991, Auroville :

J'ai probablement manqué l'occasion de faire un progrès en réagissant, abruptement et publiquement, à l'interférence de Gajendran, comme au manque de fermeté de Mallika, dans le traitement des visiteurs ; mais c'est trop : la contradiction trouve trop de nourriture dans notre atmosphère, et nous sommes trop peu à éprouver le besoin de trouver ce chemin du Matrimandir... Alors quoi ? Est-ce que ce sera le cirque, la kermesse spirituelle ? Est-ce que c'est encore remis à plus tard ?

Il y a trop d'éléments préoccupés de leur image, de leur statut... Et trop de stupidité, de pauvreté intérieure...

Je vois simplement que je n'ai pas appris à n'être qu'un canal de l'Action ; en partant d'une sorte de tamas général et d'un état collectif de négligence, on a pu, à quelques-uns, redresser la situation et rouvrir l'espace à des énergies constructives et faire avancer le travail sur tous les fronts ; mais, profitant de ces mêmes énergies, ceux qui avaient laissé s'installer l'inertie maintenant interfèrent et veulent tirer à eux... Y a-t-il une position à découvrir qui puisse neutraliser cette interférence ?

... Ca ne sert à rien d'être triste... Mais rien ne sert à rien !

La seule chose : Tu as dit que Matrimandir était « directement sous l'influence du Suprême » ; ceci est ma seule foi, mon seul soutien, mon seul confort : si Tu l'as dit, c'est que c'est vrai, immuable et inaliénable, et la seule Réalité...

Que ce soit le Suprême !
 Rien d'autre, rien de moindre, ne vaut la peine d'être vécu...
 Sans Cela, c'est une farce, et le gaspillage le plus odieux...

27-10-1991, Auroville :

Après mon nettoyage dominical, je me suis rendu au Matrimandir pour y retrouver A.M et Mallika comme d'habitude ; nous découvrons alors que ce petit groupe – Narayana, Somu, Gajendran, Durai, Vinod et Stuart – a décidé de fermer la porte de la Chambre aux visiteurs, la raison extérieure étant que, pendant la mousson, il est préférable de ne laisser entrer qu'un minimum de gens, pour « protéger le marbre »...

En fait je trouve que c'est plutôt une bonne idée ! Car nous ne sommes pas prêts, c'est évident ! La Chambre même n'est pas prête – et, comme je le répète depuis des années, ne sera vraiment prête que lorsque Matrimandir sera entièrement un, accompli...

28-10-1991, Auroville :

Ce matin les ouvriers m'ont fait chercher : malgré la pluie, ils étaient tous venus pour faire connaître leur position à Gajendran et ses « amis ». Et pendant plus de deux heures, ce fut une masse compacte et bruyante, mais comme un même corps, avec cette douceur, cette continuité, et j'étais tranquille, et tout se passait là, dans le hangar, tous ces corps pressés, et pas un moment d'anxiété... Puis les autres, ces « Auroviliens » à la compréhension si, si petite, ont voulu tenir leur propre réunion, et ça a été une exposition de haine et de confusion mentale... principalement dirigée contre moi !

... Les ouvriers eux-mêmes ont décidé d'écrire une lettre au « Working Committee ».

Plus tard, Ramalingam et Selvam sont venus me retrouver ici.

Il y a quelque chose comme une grande tendresse avec tous ces hommes, et une distance croissante envers ceux qui s'appellent « Auroviliens ». Quelquefois je le regrette encore ; et je vois aussi qu'il y a des êtres en Auroville avec lesquels se partage un mouvement de conscience et de progrès ; et, malgré ma petitesse et celle de chacun, et si restreint soit encore ce partage, c'est pourtant la proportion exacte de notre capacité humaine présente à recevoir, à s'ouvrir et à marcher, à laisser Cela construire Son monde encore à venir...

29-10-1991, Auroville :

G.G, qui est à présent un membre du Working Committee, est venu me parler ce matin, assez longtemps ; après avoir clarifié les rumeurs qu'il m'a rapportées, j'ai bien accueilli son « idée » de donner une sorte de soutien formel et officiel à l'équipe chargée de l'accueil à la Chambre de Matrimandir, une équipe peut-être élargie, mais acceptée par l'organe central d'Auroville qui lui conférerait une autorité ; on a alors convenu qu'il viendrait en parler à notre équipe de Coordination...

Nous avons eu notre réunion cet après-midi ; G.G a donc introduit son idée ; Toine était de suite mal à l'aise et a posé des questions ; il s'est avéré que G.G cherchait en fait à parvenir à une proposition qui serait acceptée par tous en retirant de la scène ceux (moi, en l'occurrence) qui sont devenus des sujets de controverse, afin de satisfaire toutes les factions...

Je n'y avais pas pensé parce que, spontanément, je sens que ce qui compte, c'est que le travail soit bien fait, aussi consciemment que possible ; que ce soit avec ma participation ou non ne fait pas de différence. Cependant si, comme l'a montré Toine dans son exigence, on m'écarte par exemple, pour des raisons qui sont finalement purement politiques, et non pour des raisons de travail, alors on perpétue la vieille histoire et ne sert rien de nouveau...

1-11-1991, Auroville :

Yoke, qui est également membre du « Working Committee », a téléphoné ce matin pour inviter des membres de notre équipe de Coordination à rencontrer la leur demain matin. John H est prêt à s'y rendre.

Cet après-midi il a donc fallu que nous réunissions, surtout pour John H qui est décidément confus. De plus, les « Notes d'Auroville » contiennent cette semaine plusieurs pages qui sont tendancieuses, et des notes officielles du « Working Committee » qui impliquent évidemment que les allégations contre nous sont fondées... Le problème est maintenant que, par une sorte de coalition irréfléchie, « naturelle », de diverses malhonnêtetés et déformations, une représentation s'est installée qui n'a plus qu'un rapport très lointain avec les faits, comme avec les réalités intérieures...

... F.J vient de m'envoyer son dernier livre, juste publié, sur l'Algérie d'aujourd'hui...

2-11-1991, Auroville :

L'agitation continue. Ce petit groupe – composé à la majorité de « Tamil Auroviliens » - exige 500/- roupies par personne pour le festival de Deepawali ; nous sommes évidemment obligés de refuser. C'est vilain comme tout.

6-11-1991, Auroville :

Je sens tellement comme on a besoin d'un Matrimandir vivant, entier, habité par Ta Force... pour commencer enfin, chacun de nous, le véritable apprentissage, avec la seule Aide et le seul Pouvoir qui soient vrais et directs...

L'unité humaine ne peut pas être le premier but ; l'unité dans le travail, oui, devrait déjà être possible, si nous étions suffisamment honnêtes ; la première priorité pour chacun, la première Nécessité, est de devenir capable de s'ouvrir consciemment à Cela qui fera le Travail... Et l'unité humaine en sera une conséquence...

7-11-1991, Auroville :

Travail au fer, la plus grande part de la journée ; réunion en fin de matinée avec l'ingénieur de Hyderabad, Satyanarayanan, et Roger A, Jacq, Pierre E, J.L, Asha, Toine et Walter, à propos des Pétales ; la méthode de construction semble arrêtée.

... A l'aube Ramalingam était venu me trouver ; il avait attendu presque toute la nuit pour ne pas me déranger : piqué, dans son lit, par un scorpion, il avait très mal...

8-11-1991, Auroville :

Le « Working Committee » a invité Roger A à les rencontrer, à propos des « difficultés au Matrimandir »... ! Ils ont aussi décidé de convoquer une « Assemblée

Générale » le 18, sur le même sujet... C'est comme un hypnotisme : ils ne font plus rien que de rassembler à l'envers !

C'est à crier. Et tout est trahi.

Les mots les plus sacrés sont utilisés, souillés, vidés.

Le serment de vérité, à Tes pieds, n'a plus de valeur.

Peut-être c'est ainsi pour que nul ne puisse plus rien attendre des autres (leur approbation en particulier !) : c'est à chacun de devenir conscient directement – et le seul Juge désormais sera la capacité de chacun à laisser Cela se manifester...

C'est le seul sens que je parvienne à percevoir ou évoquer, dans cette trahison et cette faillite...

9-11-1991, Auroville :

Encore des remous : le « Working Committee » a eu la brillante inspiration de tirer Roger A dans la mêlée, et se sont mis d'accord avec lui pour inviter une réunion des « partis » : 2 ou 3 représentants de chaque, sous leur égide, avec Roger A contribuant son autorité « divine » ! C'est imbécile, mais c'est habillé de bonne volonté et de « nécessité d'harmonie »...

... Je ne sais rien. Toutes les contradictions sont là. Il faut pourtant marcher sur le chemin...

10-11-1991, Auroville :

C'est comme une bêtise qui demande, qui exige d'être « considérée », et qui est prête à tout empêcher si cette considération n'est pas donnée... Ar. même m'a piégé jusque dans la douche avec toutes ces histoires, insistant qu'il fallait une « ouverture de notre côté »...

11-11-1991, Auroville :

Travail au fer, tout le jour, avec « mes ouvriers »...

J'essaie de tout finir pour que le bétonnage se fasse ce vendredi.

Un moment difficile pour moi, aujourd'hui : j'avais bien vu depuis quelques temps que Mallika et même A.M m'évitaient ; j'ai pourtant dû croiser Mallika dans la structure, et elle a admis qu'elle avait choisi de délibérément m'écarter de l'organisation, et pris le parti de s'opposer, et de travailler plutôt avec ce groupe « parallèle » ; mais cela implique nécessairement qu'elle accepte les mensonges !

Cela m'a mis dans un état pénible ; ma tendance est de me retirer ; mais depuis un an ou deux j'apprends à ne plus le faire et à « tenir bon », non pour moi-même, mais pour la vérité de l'expérience...

J'ai eu une impression presque répugnante ; j'ai vu que dans ce cas, Mallika préfère le drame et un rôle à la droiture et à la solidarité dans l'exigence...

Mais tout est à l'envers ; la solidarité aussi est à l'envers ; c'est la loi du nombre, et de la mise en commun du plus lourd, du plus bas, du plus facile...

... Je ne sais rien. Mais le monde entier pourrait clamer que certains incidents se sont passés comme ils le prétendent, cela ne changerait rien : ils ont menti !

On ne peut pas bâtir Auroville avec des mensonges : c'est une impossibilité !

12-11-1991, Auroville :

Ce soir les ouvriers me disent que L.N, envoyé par Piero, leur a ordonné d'arrêter le travail (sur les arcs verticaux de la sphère) et de démonter les coffrages, et qu'il faudrait même casser d'autres sections déjà bétonnées, parce que Piero veut maintenant pouvoir faire entrer la machinerie de la climatisation par là – alors qu'il savait que nous faisons ce travail tout le temps de son absence, et qu'il avait même donné les tailles et mesures des fers... C'est plus que décourageant, cela devient inacceptable, comme une folie mauvaise...

13-11-1991, Auroville :

La première chose ce matin fut, avec l'aide de Toine, de clarifier au près de L.N cette histoire de machinerie pour la climatisation de la Chambre, et de rétablir le feu vert pour les travaux en cours...

... Roger A cet après-midi a manifesté une bonne volonté très ferme et plutôt droite au cours de cette réunion autrement pénible des « partis » ; leurs allégations et insinuations sont principalement dirigées contre Ramalingam et moi, une campagne tout à fait vicieuse, et j'étais soulagé que Ramalingam se soit désisté et m'ait demandé de le représenter, car je ne crois pas qu'il aurait pu rester calme ; quant à moi, je me suis tu. Roger A a fait, je crois, de son mieux, même s'il ne peut se rendre compte du danger même de certaines de ses paroles, qui ne manqueront pas d'être interprétées ; il a d'instinct reconnu en Stuart le rôle pervers qu'il a joué dans toute cette histoire et lui a asséné une leçon bien conduite...

... Avec ces hommes, cette équipe d'« ouvriers », comme avec Ramalingam, et avec mon Selvam, c'est vraiment une histoire d'amour – c'est le cadeau qui m'est donné chaque jour, humainement...

15-11-1991, Auroville :

Les pluies torrentielles des deux derniers jours se sont changées la nuit dernière en une tempête formidable, qui a renversé et déraciné de nombreux grands arbres ; le jardin est un désastre et un chaos ; les arbres de « Transformation », mes compagnons depuis près de 20 ans, et plusieurs grands eucalyptus, ont été abattus, brisant d'autres arbres dans leur chute...

Plusieurs lignes électriques ont été rompues ; je suis attristé, pas tant par les ravages de la Nature – avec elle, on peut toujours recommencer), mais par cette convergence de poussées destructrices...

... Il y a comme une honte, la honte de ne pas être uni : il y a encore le « je » !

Avant même que la tempête s'apaise, je suis descendu en vélo jusqu'à l'océan... Je vois concrètement que rien ne change, que rien ne peut changer, tant que l'on n'est pas devenu des canaux, des réceptacles, des habitats de la Présence ; jusque là on est, au mieux comme au pire, les instruments des forces ; et au meilleur de la condition humaine présente, dans le sens d'un réel effort conscient vers l'unité intérieure, on est encore qu'une demeure vide ; consciente, peut-être, mais vide...

16-11-1991, Auroville :

J'essaie de recouvrer au moins mon harmonie individuelle... C'est à chacun individuellement qu'il incombe de trouver le courage et l'amour d'appeler l'harmonie et de la manifester, si limité soit le champ de notre action ; et c'est là une tâche que je n'ai pas encore appris à accomplir.

Je deviens démuni, désespéré ; je perd confiance, et tout s'annule ; peut-être parce que je me rend compte de l'insuffisance de tous nos efforts, face au manque de Ta Présence...

Ce soir pourtant, j'éprouve concrètement la pression de Ta Force : tout est différent et je ne suis plus seul, il n'y a plus ce « je » qui est un encombrement permanent parmi les multitudes de manques et d'à-peu-près et de désordres, mais un Sens, et dans ce Sens, par ce Sens, le vrai destin du petit « je » - se fondre et s'unir, être absorbé, résolu et réconcilié, empli et soulevé...

... C'est la fête de Su aujourd'hui et j'ai pu lui remettre son cadeau...

... L.N et ses compères ont refusé de rencontrer Roger A aujourd'hui, comme il en avait été convenu ; ils n'ont même pas communiqué une note d'explication, rien ; autant pour les efforts de bonne volonté de Roger A...

18-11-1991, Auroville :

L'après-midi, Selvam et moi assistons à cette Assemblée Générale ; presque 6 heures d'affilée ; à peu près 80 personnes ; de notre équipe de Coordination, seuls John H, Toine et moi. La majorité de ceux qui sont présents sont clairement venus avec l'intention d'abord de démolir notre équipe, en la rendant responsable de toute la désharmonie actuelle, et ensuite de rejeter Roger A et son concept, et d'amalgamer les deux objectifs...

Cela n'aboutit nulle part ; Toine se fait huer quand il essaye de parler ; je suis resté silencieux presque tout le temps... J'ai regardé et regardé, et il m'a semblé que nous n'étions pas capables ensemble de parvenir à une seule question pure... Je me suis tourné, là, dans la sécurité de Toi, et cela m'a apaisé et tenu...

20-11-1991, Auroville :

Tout l'après-midi en réunion de Coordination (si l'on écoute les clameurs, ce devrait être la dernière !) ; John H, qui a une fois de plus assumé le rôle d'un Judas, a dû écouter chacun de nous, et réaliser, au moins partiellement, la portée de son intervention...

21-11-1991, Auroville :

Les rares Auroviliens qui soutiennent notre équipe disent s'inquiéter et redouter que cette marée détruise notre travail et nous oblige à nous retirer si nous ne trouvons pas le geste qui peut rétablir l'équilibre...

22-11-1991, Auroville :

Grande réunion spéciale au Matrimandir, cet après-midi... Peut-être une trentaine de personnes sont venues, la plupart en amitié, avec de la bonne volonté, et il y avait quelque chose du vrai Auroville, et les signes de Ta Présence dans la conscience et le cœur de chacun ; mais c'est la contribution de P qui a été décisive, dès le début : après bien longtemps, il a fait un mouvement réel au-dedans de lui, un examen clair et lucide, et son offrande ; et tout est redevenu possible...

Même quand, vers la fin, Durai, Narayana et Gajendran ont voulu forcer le poison dans l'atmosphère, c'est l'exigence généralement ferme d'une qualité et d'une orientation, qui a prévalu.

Alors il y a le sens de la gratitude : la signature de Ton Action.

Ca fait du bien !

25-11-1998, Auroville :

Plongé dans le travail physique tout ce jour, avec quelques ouvriers, à planter la barre à mine et pelleter de la terre ; c'est mon refuge, où je peux à la fois me concentrer et m'annuler dans une activité purement physique... Je me sens un peu comme une bête qu'on a rouée de coups, pendant trop longtemps ; et alors, vient une accalmie, et il y a comme un étonnement peiné, qui ne comprend pas...

Et je suis en manque de simple tendresse physique, ces jours-ci, parce que L se prépare au pèlerinage d'Ayappa avec les « austérités » requises, et... je ne vais pas me battre avec les dieux aussi !

27-11-1991, Auroville :

Il y a de nouveau cette douce Pression tranquille, constante, et ça change toutes les proportions : tout tend à se rassembler en un feu profond et paisible...

Je me sens un peu à distance, parce que le vital n'est pas utilisé ; mais l'énergie physique est claire et calme...

Et je regarde tous ces drames et ces grimaces, maintenant que le vent tourne un peu et que certains doivent admettre que leurs campagnes de division n'aboutissent pas au résultat souhaité, et il y a comme une peine et... une étrangeté...

Décoffrage et démontage des échafaudages ; préparations pour la visite du Vice Président de l'Inde demain matin : il y aura des centaines de policiers partout... Les mesures de sécurité sont multipliées, à cause des menaces du LTTE...

... Visite de Yolande Lemoine...

1-12-1991, Auroville :

Nous recevons le Vice Président, Sharma, vers 11 heures ; la police l'empêche de monter à la Chambre ; c'est stupide ! C'est un homme très bon, très doux, et impuissant : une fonction !

L vient ici un moment, très gentiment, et compte avec moi les jours qui... nous séparent encore, avant son retour de pèlerinage !

2-12-1991, Auroville :

J'ai senti le besoin cet après-midi de clarifier certains points, d'abord avec Toine et Arjun, puis avec B et Silvio, à propos de la couverture de la sphère ; nous sommes à ce point critique où les énergies peuvent, soit être invitées, reçues et canalisées dans le travail, soit détournées, repoussées, et annulées, et alors c'est tout l'endroit qui en souffrira...

4-12-1991, Auroville :

Je termine la lecture du dernier ouvrage de Frank Herbert avant sa mort, « Chapter House – Dune » ; c'est un homme qui a réfléchi profondément, en réceptivité...

Nous nous sommes tous mis d'accord cet après-midi pour ne tenir aucune réunion avant 15 jours, où nous ferons le point d'une tentative concrète de travailler ensemble au quotidien...

Subramani (notre conducteur de char à bœufs) est mort ce matin... Que sa douceur aille vers Toi, dans Tes Jardins...

12-12-1991, Auroville :

Toute une gamme, aujourd'hui, d'états et d'expériences : l'évidence du seul mouvement nécessaire ; des énergies de bataille assez remarquables ; le silence du travail physique ; les retrouvailles, tendres et libératrices, avec L, que le dieu d'Ayappa m'a rendu !

Il y a eu une longue réunion orageuse au nouveau Centre d'Information, où Arjun, Toine et Selvam ont voulu m'accompagner : Toine et Arjun y ont dégagé une énergie assez formidable pour contrer, dépasser, transpercer cette torsion, ce mensonge et cette noirceur que même Mallika avait choisi de servir...

14-12-1991, Auroville :

Mallika essaye de rétablir un contact acceptable, mais la mise au point n'est pas très concluante...

15-12-1991, Auroville :

N un moment ce matin, en larmes ; il vient régulièrement me trouver maintenant, parce que j'ai accepté de lui donner un peu d'argent pour sa nourriture ; mais il ne s'en sort pas ; il est comme un maudit...

Ma vie « personnelle » est pareille à un désert qui grandit... Il faudrait plutôt que cela devienne un espace offert et vivant d'union et d'aspiration ! Mais je me trouve démuné devant le phénomène... Ce n'est que lorsque la Pression transperce tout de sa coulée tranquille et impérieuse, de sa colonne de Présence, que tout devient juste, à sa place, sur le chemin...

Dans le quotidien ce qui me manque, je crois, est un travail, un service que je puisse faire le soir, quand le travail physique n'est plus possible ; mais ça ne se présente pas. Je voudrais que Tu me le donnes, que Tu m'utilises plus... !

16-12-1991, Auroville :

Encore des remous causés par Durai ; on est venu me demander d'accepter que le groupe d'organisation pour les visites et l'accès à la Chambre inclue non seulement L.N mais aussi Durai : j'ai dit « d'accord, si le travail de chacun est clair et si Durai cesse d'interférer auprès des ouvriers et des gardiens, dont je suis responsable » ; ce sera confirmé ce vendredi...

17-12-1991, Auroville :

Réunion de Coordination cet après-midi, en l'absence d'Arjun ; en insistant sur la nécessité de terminer au moins un prototype hexagonal complet (pour la coque) dans tous ses détails, incluant les joints, les cadres des ouvertures et l'étanchéité, j'ai blessé Toine, qui l'a pris comme une critique négative de ses efforts ; et je suis resté attristé d'avoir causé cette réaction...

20-12-1991, Auroville :

Réunion générale tout l'après-midi ; c'est encore opaque et laborieux ; mais petit à petit les uns et les autres réalisent combien Narayana et Durai peuvent être porteurs de poison, et dans quelle impasse nous nous projetons lorsque nous soutenons, pour d'autres raisons plus « évoluées » mais tout aussi vilaines, ces êtres malades... En ce qui concerne l'accès à la Chambre, il semble bien pourtant que je doive faire l'effort de rendre viable une équipe de 5 personnes : A.M, Mallika, L.N, Durai et moi... Durai, qui a tout de même trouvé le moyen de traiter Ramalingam de voleur – cette misère venimeuse... et il m'a fallu toute la soirée pour apaiser Ramalingam...

L'un des nouveaux ouvriers employés aux Jardins, un homme assez âgé, est venu au Réservoir pour s'abriter d'une averse et a glissé dans l'un des trous d'évacuation : une grande blessure à la jambe ; j'ai dû l'emmener avec la jeep faire recoudre la plaie...

... On rouvre la Chambre chaque jour de 16 à 17 heures...

23-12-1991, Auroville :

Réunion plutôt tranquille et positive pour l'accès à la Chambre, et distribution des tâches : Selvam s'occupe maintenant des « Passes ».

D'après les journaux, Gorbatchev doit remettre sa démission officiellement ce soir...

27-12-1991, Auroville :

Cet après-midi s'est tenue une réunion générale pour informer de l'organisation des visites au Matrimandir, et il y avait beaucoup moins de monde ! L'harmonie possible est tellement moins intéressante et motivante que les crises, les conflits et les antagonismes !

Voilà la tristesse de notre condition !

31-12-1991, Auroville :

Sukrit et Ramalingam préparent le bûcher avant la nuit ; puis Selvam et moi, alors que nous commençons de marquer l'emplacement des symboles à fleurir, devons décharger deux camions de ciment... Puis toute une petite équipe vient aider à poser les fleurs, jusqu'au milieu de la nuit ; il y a Sumathi, et Grace, et L et Nagappan et Cori, John H et Juanita, et Bhoomadevi et Aurasylle et Indrasen... Nous préparons vos deux symboles accompagnés de deux kolams sur a grande plateforme, et une longue bande de fleurs montant vers l'urne...

La musique de Sunil pour cette année m'a fait du bien, avec la marche autour du Feu.

Puis j'étais de garde, de 6 à 9 heures, pour la visite de la Chambre ; et, plus tard, il y eut une belle averse.

L'atmosphère était bonne, le Feu robuste et uni, un silence général. Il y a eu des milliers de visiteurs dans la Chambre, et aucun incident.

Madanlal a apporté des roses de Ta chambre, et des « bénédictions », pour le bureau...

Je ne sais pas ; en alternance, je vois l'énormité du chemin à parcourir, et j'ai l'expérience qu'il n'y a qu'un très simple mouvement à faire pour que tout devienne, concrètement et maintenant, Ton Chemin... !

3-1-1992, Auroville :

Joël est là pour quelques jours et il m'aide un peu, le matin, au Réservoir...

Il y a le problème de Grace : Nagappan est trop étroit et jaloux pour la tenir, et il la frappe souvent ; cela s'est récemment aggravé, à cause de son amitié avec Selvam et, je crois aussi, les possibilités de liberté dans les relations que Nagappan a pu observer en ma présence, durant les préparatifs de la nouvelle année ; il est dépassé par le potentiel de Grace et son énergie ; elle a essayé de se suicider le lendemain soir. Ca se calme maintenant...

4-1-1992, Auroville :

Travail au Réservoir, en partie avec Joël ; il repart demain.

Les problèmes « domestiques » continuent ; c'est maintenant entre Sarala et Mary, les deux « épouses » de Selvam : Mary a trouvé un travail au Bharat Nivas ; Sarala, en caricature de harpie, l'arrête sur la route et l'attaque...

Puis nous nous sommes aperçus que quelqu'un a volé Rs 500/- du coffre de l'Information...

Puis, à 14 heures, Grace vient nous trouver, Selvam et moi : Nagappan a menacé de la brûler vive si elle parlait de nouveau à Selvam... J'essaie de montrer à Grace le chemin qui peut s'ouvrir devant elle, et le soutien qu'elle peut recevoir de nous tous, si elle se centre mieux et se donne à son propre progrès ; Selvam clarifie sa position...

10-1-1992, Auroville :

Réunion générale, appelée par L.N et Somu cet après-midi, à propos d'une augmentation de la Maintenance des Auroviliens ; ce sont des heures chaotiques : ces antagonismes, jalousies, tricheries, ces habitudes de réagir, si ridicules ou pénibles ou même malfaisantes soient-elles, deviennent finalement profondément ennuyeuses et stériles...

Je ressens de plus en plus, avec le temps qui passe, le besoin de cette qualité d'être qui résulte d'une évolution individuelle, d'une exigence intégrale de progrès s'appliquant, par une nécessité intérieure impérative, à tous les aspects de la vie...

Et c'est le seul reproche que je ferais à Arjun : il y a des domaines de relation et d'expression où son exigence est trop insuffisante...

Mais on apprend à n'attendre rien de personne ; c'est à chacun d'apprendre, selon ses besoins...

15-1-1992, Auroville :

17-1-1992, Auroville :

Longue réunion fatigante – Roger A, Toine, Silvio, Pierre E, J.L, B, Arjun, Asha, Luigi : comme c'est laborieux, comme il faut persister, persévérer, s'obstiner pour parvenir à la clarté nécessaire pour le travail physique direct dans la matière ; et toujours il faut trouver la force effective qui doit prendre la place de l'impatience...

18-1-1992, Auroville :

Depuis mercredi, je réfléchis à l'organisation optimale des travaux, et comment le mieux placer les équipes dans les prochaines semaines ; c'est un peu difficile, à cause du manque de concentration de Roger A ; et il y a encore toutes ces décisions d'ordre esthétique, qui sont presque douloureuses... !

20-1-1992, Auroville :

Des journées confuses : il me faut aussi coordonner le travail de Roger A, car Asha se trouve vite débordée, et il y a trop de paroles et pas assez d'attention soutenue ; je suis tout le temps en train de courir après les détails manquants ! Une sadhana collective est une entreprise de fous !

23-1-1992, Auroville :

Arjun est venu me réveiller dans la nuit : C a téléphoné ; je suis allé la rappeler du bureau ; Air India a annulé tous ses vols jusqu'à la mi-février...

Longue réunion de travail avec Roger A : on parvient à finaliser la plupart des détails pour commencer le travail de la coque... Je les raccompagne, lui et Jacq, à « Auromodèle », avec la jeep ; puis je vais récupérer Bhaga à « Forecomers » pour la ramener chez elle à « Repos », convalescente, après une attaque sévère de fièvre typhoïde compliquée d'arthrite soudaine...

... C n'a obtenu une place que le 6 février, sur British Airways ; ce qui est intéressant, c'est que je lui avais demandé d'être ici pour la semaine du 21 au 28 février, et qu'elle n'avait pas pu l'organiser par elle-même, et maintenant ce sont les circonstances qui l'y obligent... !

26-1-1992, Auroville :

Mauvaises nouvelles de Bhaga : elle glisse dans un délire...

Il y a cette étrange inclination au sommeil...

En fait, du point de vue du mental, il ne se passe rien, de plus en plus rien... ! Ma vie se réduit, ne cesse de se réduire... Mais là où le mental n'intervient pas, quelque chose se fait, que je n'ai pas les moyens de décrire, ni même vraiment d'appréhender...

C'est-à-dire que de ce point de vue de l'honnêteté mentale, je peux simplement dire que ma vie est sans intérêt, autre que celui d'un outil plus ou moins efficace pour un travail très localisé...

30-1-1992, Auroville :

Aujourd'hui les 3 derniers chargements de marbre blanc ; Ramalingam et moi devons faire venir plusieurs de nos équipes, pour tout décharger et ranger par tailles ; il y a une bonne énergie, mais pourtant un accident se produit : l'une des grandes dalles avait fêlé pendant le voyage et, en la soulevant, une partie s'est brusquement détachée, tombant sur les pieds de Shano et de Munuswamy ; les bords acérés ont causé des blessures impressionnantes, propres, mais nécessitant plusieurs points de suture...

Je n'aime pas ça. Ces incidents se produisent trop souvent, et je ne suis pas capable de toucher le point de contrôle ; je ne sais pas où c'est...

... Après le travail, L est venu ici avec moi ; c'est un si gentil cadeau, cette amitié physique libre, simple et pleine de tendresse ; j'en suis très reconnaissant. Cela libère tout un bloc d'énergie, que je peux mieux offrir dans le travail ; c'est une sécurité...

Ce soir Ramalingam est venu se reposer près de moi ; il a de longues journées de travail, et tout ce parasitage autour de lui...

31-1-1992, Auroville :

J'ai passé une partie de la journée à Pondy ; Madanlal m'a gardé chez lui à déjeuner ; j'ai vu avec lui pour l'impression de cette carte spéciale que je prépare pour le 29 février, à son Imprimerie – c'est Safal qui s'en occupera ; c'était doux et simple ; sa relation avec Toi semble pure et vivante...

... Après l'heure des visites un moment avec A, qui semble souhaiter explorer la possibilité d'une amitié plus intime entre nous...

Il y a une quantité de détails à préciser et introduire matériellement, et aussi toutes sortes de dessins d'exécution à faire, puisque Asha a tant de mal à suivre le rythme ; mais il y a généralement une énergie plus heureuse qui circule, avec beaucoup de gentillesse...

1-2-1992, Auroville :

Qui peut raconter l'histoire de ce chemin, même dans son apparence la plus extérieure et la plus perceptible, comme la construction de Matrimandir ? Je crois que c'est impossible de le faire.

Il y a tous ces courants et ces origines, ces aspects, ces dimensions et ces portées, ces implications et ces besoins et ces orientations, dans un même champ de force et d'évolution – c'est comme une ouverture presque infinie qui demande une concentration formidable... !

... J'essaie, cahin-caha, de faire avancer le travail sur plusieurs fronts, et c'est comme un débroussaillage constant...

2-2-1992, Auroville :

Ce soir A est venu, jusque tard. C'est à plusieurs niveaux à la fois, et je ne sais pas comment ça va se placer ou s'intégrer ; il y a une bonne communication, au point de vue du chemin d'Auroville ; il m'a parlé longtemps de ces années difficiles, telles qu'il les a vécues, alors qu'il appartenait au groupe des « Neutres » ; et puis il y a l'aspect émotionnel et sexuel, qui s'est manifesté avec une certaine simplicité... Mais A, bien qu'oriental – japonais – d'origine, est né aux Etats-Unis et son conditionnement est occidental ; et j'ai développé une sorte d'intolérance à la substance mentalisée à l'occidentale : cela me met en tension, ou en réaction, ou cela m'ennuie... Je ne trouve vraiment une sorte de bonheur, la joie d'une tendresse qui coule, qu'avec les gens d'ici, et je l'apprécie de plus en plus, avec amour et gratitude...

... D.D et Klara sont à Auroville ; je dois dîner avec elles ce mercredi...

3-2-1992, Auroville :

Après le travail Toine est venu me trouver pour me parler des dernières complications : Roger A, stupidement, a donné son accord pour que William N prépare un prototype alternatif d'une coque en verre, ce qui pourrait, étant donné le jeu des forces et des ego, compromettre tout le travail en cours et précipiter encore une autre masse de confusion... Mais on ne peut que s'accrocher à la paix, dans le flot de l'énergie...

4-2-1992, Auroville :

Après le travail, et les visiteurs, L a finalement pu me retrouver ici ; je vois combien cette relation, si partielle ou limitée puisse t elle apparaître, comble en moi un besoin et libère une disponibilité, et comme j'en suis reconnaissant...

Et toute la soirée Ramalingam est resté ici avec moi. Et nous regardons ensemble, comme nous le faisons régulièrement, les nécessités de l'organisation du travail, mais aussi, un peu, un tout petit peu du formidable problème de la misère qui environne Auroville – cette misère dont il est lui-même venu, celle que nous côtoyons chaque jour à chaque instant à travers tous ces êtres qui nous aident à faire le travail ; et comment pouvoir les aider à atteindre aussi, dans leur vie, ce minimum nécessaire pour pouvoir devenir capables de choisir et de s'orienter...

Il est impossible de dire tout ce qui est touché par le seul point de cette Action qui consiste à servir Ton Matrimandir...

L'intensité de la question que Ramalingam pose, et du regard que nous avons partagé, nous a laissés un peu éprouvés – avec un sourire...

5-2-1992, Auroville :

Une partie de la matinée avec Roger A ; il y a une autre pétition, de 72 personnes, demandant la pose de ce prototype en verre !

... Je suis allé à « Fraternité » rencontrer Franz et lui demander de faire le travail graphique pour la carte spéciale que j'ai préparée ; il a accepté. Puis j'ai dîné avec Klara et D.D chez elles à « Auromodèle » : comme deux petites sœurs... !

6-2-1992, Auroville :

L'avion de C est arrivé peu après 8 h. Nous sommes rentrés ici vers midi.

Il y avait quelque chose de gris, qui m'a pris par surprise ; au cours de la journée, j'ai eu l'explication : il y a quelques jours René a appris qu'il avait développé un cancer de la prostate – et toute la logique séparatrice infernale, la perte de sens...

Dans la soirée j'ai emmené C à la Chambre, et elle a vécu là, déjà, un apaisement...

7-2-1992, Auroville :

Dans les « Nouvelles d'Auroville » Piero a écrit une lettre ouverte à propos du revêtement du Matrimandir, dont le niveau et la tenue sont misérables – il est devenu un pantin, comme s'il avait perdu toute intégrité...

8-2-1992, Auroville :

Ce mal de tête persiste, comme une obstruction...

Il y a une ombre dans l'atmosphère, un courant de division dont Piero s'est fait l'instrument...

J'essaie de ne pas réagir, de ne pas être affecté, de percevoir l'action juste dans l'état juste... Mais il y a comme quelque chose qui dit « non, pas déjà une autre vague, c'était juste en train de devenir simplement progressif... ! ».

Il y aussi le problème, devenu aigu, de Stuart à la Nursery...

C'est une sorte d'équivalence du point de vue moral d'une perte ou d'un manque d'intégrité ou de probité dans la conduite individuelle de tel ou tel d'entre nous ; dans le courant des énergies cela introduit l'intention tacite d'empêcher, sinon de détruire – c'est par là, il me semble, que ça passe...

10-2-1992, Auroville :

Alors ce sont à nouveau des journées difficiles ; de tous côtés, la vague remonte ! Ce sont tous ces degrés de torsion, depuis un simple manque de lucidité, par une sorte de lâcheté, jusqu'à la malhonnêteté, qui ne peut subsister ici que par le maniement intéressé des notions ou des termes de l'idéal... Et je crois que je suis probablement encore bien naïf dans mon évaluation... !

Ramalingam et moi nous sentons bien mal : quelque chose d'heureux commençait juste à percer, et voilà toute cette laideur qui ré afflue...

Je me suis mis « en colère » plusieurs fois aujourd'hui, avec Roger A puis avec B d'abord, puis j'ai appelé William N pour le mettre en face de son action, et parlé sans détours à Basu et Karthik, de l'Ashram, qui se sont prêtés à l'entreprise...
 Quant l'atmosphère est relativement harmonieuse il y a déjà tant d'interférences et de confusions à dissoudre ou traverser : on n'a pas besoin de cette laideur !
 Mais il n'y a que Toi qui puisses agir en chacun.
 Je ne sais pas. Il faut un nettoyage du dedans, il faut une Action... !

11-2-1992, Auroville :

Une rage de dents à calmer, aujourd'hui...
 L s'est battu avec ses voisins...

 Deepti me raconte, encore bouleversée, les tourmentes de « Last School »...

14-2-1992, Auroville :

Réunion cet après-midi, en principe pour confirmer l'augmentation des Maintenances, en gardant les deux catégories – mi-temps = 5 heures de travail quotidien et plein-temps = 8 heures et plus selon les responsabilités ; ça se passe relativement bien jusqu'à ce que Narayana, poussé par ses démons, insiste pour aborder une question de « charité », introduisant la situation de la veuve de Kannan, mort l'an passé, et exigeant que nous lui donnions un travail ; il se fait provocant et nous reproche d'employer de plus en plus d'ouvriers au lieu de laisser les « Auroviliens » faire le travail ; Ramalingam réagit et ça tourne au drame et à l'hystérie, ramenant dans l'atmosphère cette énergie venimeuse qui s'était relativement dissipée ces temps derniers...

16-2-1992, Auroville :

Visite de Champaklal à la Chambre ce matin ; Durai et moi aidons à le porter...
 En sa présence, par deux fois, j'ai pris la mesure du résidu d'inconscience, en ce qui me concerne...
 Mais aussi, de l'agitation et de l'épaisseur de ceux qui l'entourent ! Ils n'ont su établir qu'une harmonie très partielle et superficielle avec son état réel...
 ... Ramalingam s'est blessé, pendant son travail à « Samasti » : 2 points de suture à la lèvre supérieure, et il n'a plus de moustache !

18-2-1992, Auroville :

Journée de congé pour les ouvriers : c'est le jour où on jette tous les dieux à la mer ! (Une manière de dire !)...

22-2-1992, Auroville :

Des centaines et des centaines de visiteurs chaque jour, qui sont venus de tous côtés de l'Inde, pour cette semaine...

23-2-1992, Auroville :

Plus de 1000 visiteurs en 2 heures, cet après-midi...

Et un besoin de sommeil que je ne comprends pas...

Dans cet ouvrage, intelligemment composé, de Chet B.Snow, « Dreams of the Future », il cite des études sur les origines « extra terrestres » d'une certaine catégorie d'individus (« semée par les étoiles ») aux origines génétiquement transmises à travers les âges, qui ont en commun certains caractères ou traits ou particularités physiques et psychologiques : des côtes ou des vertèbres supplémentaires, une tension et une température basses, une tendance à la sinusite, et un sens prononcé de la responsabilité... Cela ne peut manquer de me frapper, car j'ai tous ces signes – y compris la cote supplémentaire, juste au-dessus du cœur ! Et c'est la première fois que je les vois réunis ensemble !

Aujourd'hui, avec Ramalingam, j'ai pu commencer l'armature du symbole pour le fût de l'escalier central (Roger A a voulu installer là une variation sur Ton symbole, à la verticale du rayon, au-dessous de la Chambre)...

Une réunion élargie avec Roger A pour faire le point des travaux et évaluer les lacunes de l'organisation pratique ; la qualité de la communication entre nous tous est plutôt bonne maintenant, et en progrès ; mais Toine doit partir en Hollande pour un mois, à la demande de sa mère, et J.L a besoin de repos : je vais avoir plus de travail...

27-2-1992, Auroville :

Dans l'après-midi j'ai dessiné, au bas de l'Urne, le symbole d'Auroville, pendant que Ramalingam, Shivan et Rajaram construisent le bûcher ; une quinzaine d'entre nous préparons les fleurs, toute la soirée jusque vers minuit ; C vient nous aider un moment ; c'est un très beau symbole, très puissant...

28-2-1992, Auroville :

J'ai réveillé C avant 5 h pour l'emmener au Feu ; puis je monte à la Chambre pour y recevoir et guider les visiteurs, jusque vers 9 h ; plus de 3000 personnes ... Mais ce qui m'a demandé le plus, c'est cette folie en Narayana, cette énergie qui l'habite...

... Karan Singh, en tant que Chairman du « Governing Board » a réuni au bureau les membres du « Working Committee », ceux de notre équipe de Coordination et Piero et Roger A ; Arjun s'est désisté, ne voulant pas provoquer une autre explosion... Une réunion malaisée, et peu concluante ; l'équipe de William N a terminé la pose du prototype de verre sur la coque, pendant la nuit dernière, et le « Working Committee » empêche Karan Singh de trancher en faveur de Roger A ; quant à Karan Singh lui-même, il est identifié à la poursuite de son propre prestige, et n'est motivé que par son ambition d'obtenir une réussite visible, un Matrimandir fini et ouvert au public par son grand geste d'inaugurateur, l'an prochain, pour le 25^{ème} anniversaire d'Auroville, et c'est assez pitoyable...

2-3-1992, Auroville :

Une lettre anonyme, faussement attribuée à Ramalingam, circule dans Auroville, qui est pleine d'allégations contre Mani, du Land Service...

... C et moi descendons en ville et dînons près de l'océan ; le moment de son départ approche à nouveau, et il faut apaiser, situer, placer...

3-3-1992, Auroville :

Réunion de Coordination mouvementée : Aster et Arjun s'affrontent à propos de l'attitude de Karan Singh – et c'est moi, avec peut-être un manque de tact, qui ai souhaité aborder le sujet !

Puis nous avons la visite de Nandalal Patel, qui s'apprête à rassembler l'or nécessaire pour la dorure des disques, selon le concept de Roger A (révisé par Jacq)...

... Nous aidons Anil Mukherjee à monter à la Chambre...

4-3-1992, Auroville :

Durai monte encore une histoire, sur le fonds habituel de ses jalousies, mais il y a un progrès: il vient s'en excuser auprès de moi plus tard... !

... Roger A m'a demandé de traduire en anglais le rapport qu'il a rédigé pour le « Working Committee »...

5-3-1992, Auroville :

C, Klara et moi sommes partis à Madras en fin d'après-midi ; D.D nous avait réservé une voiture confortable et nous sommes arrivés assez tôt pour dîner ensemble à l'hôtel près de l'aéroport, où je trouve mon cadeau pour C, pour l'accompagner physiquement dans les mois qui viennent : deux statuettes de bronze, l'une de Hanuman et l'autre de Garuda, impérieuses et douces à la fois...

Je suis resté avec elles à l'aéroport jusqu'à ce qu'elles aient passé tous les contrôles...

Retour dans la brume, avec Sunrita...

7-3-1992, Auroville :

C'est un tâtonnement de chaque instant, avec pour seule force perceptible une attention calme à ne pas se compromettre ; mais certains êtres ici semblent décidément n'être que les agents de poussées destructrices ou corruptrices, ainsi Durai, qui est possédé par un tel désir d'avoir un rôle, un statut et une position, si retors et pervers dans ses mouvements... C'est un monde de torsions et de petites animosités, prêtes à cracher leur venin...

9-3-1992, Auroville :

Ramalingam me déclare ce matin qu'il a réfléchi, et que nous devons choisir entre Durai et lui, que l'un des deux doit s'en aller...

Alors, tout le jour, il y a un travail dans le cœur, pour le chemin.

Et ce soir il est venu ici, apaisé, résolu...

Ca ne coule pas bien dans le travail : J.L est épuisé, Roger A est incapable de saisir l'ensemble des mouvements nécessaires à l'exécution, Asha est toujours en retard, Pierre E n'est pas assez présent...

10-3-1992, Auroville :

Le nouveau Secrétaire de la Fondation, nommé par le Gouvernement Central, Shri Tripathy, vient nous rencontrer, accompagné par Ojha ; nous lui expliquons notre position quant à l'exécution des travaux et notre attitude envers la polémique entretenue au sujet du revêtement de la sphère : dans l'absence d'une proposition alternative cohérente, réfléchie, qui réponde à tous les paramètres et toutes les nécessités de Matrimandir et soit évidemment supérieure à celle de Roger A, nous devons travailler à la réalisation matérielle du concept de Roger A, et notre responsabilité est de veiller à ce que les critères de sécurité, de solidité, d'harmonie et de durée soient respectés... Il semble bien comprendre...

11-3-1992, Auroville :

Réunion de travail à propos des Pétales ; j'avais réalisé que personne n'était content du dernier travail de Roger A, et proposé qu'ensemble nous lui communiquions clairement nos réserves... Je suis donc allé le chercher en jeep et j'ai pu « préparer le terrain » pendant le trajet ; pendant la réunion, il fait une proposition de circulation à l'intérieur des pétales qui est beaucoup plus simple et harmonieuse et structurellement cohérente, et nous respirons tous un peu mieux... Mais l'agitation à propos de la coque n'est pas dissoute ; Roger A vient d'accepter de répondre à toutes les questions « de bonne volonté », à « Aurofuture », ce lundi prochain ; il nous demande d'être présents...

12-3-1992, Auroville :

C a téléphoné dans la matinée : l'opération de R s'est bien passée, mais on ne saura son effet qu'après quelques semaines ; la communication était si claire que le trouble de C était palpable, sa difficulté à vivre l'éloignement physique ; mais elle est consciente, et je crois reconnaissante, du progrès à faire et du chemin qui s'est ouvert en elle cette fois-ci...

... Madanlal me fait dire de l'attendre après le travail, et il vient avec Nandalal Patel...

13-3-1992, Auroville :

Il y a cette gratitude pour tout ce qui est donné, pour ce rassemblement des conditions optimales d'un progrès intégral ; c'est quelque chose qu'il faudrait célébrer chaque jour... ! Mais le fait est que c'est un « exercice » si absorbant qu'on « oublie » cette simple gratitude qui reconnaît la main du Vrai, du Divin...

Ce matin Asha, qui s'est laissée influencer par Piero, m'a écarté de la réunion de travail que nous avons choisi d'appeler, avec Roger A et Piero à la fois, à propos du système de climatisation ; Piero a aussi invité Karel en renfort...

Mais plus tard, et ce sont ces mouvements que je trouve encourageants, Asha est venue s'excuser – elle a vu... !

... La visite, à 12 h 30, du Gouverneur de l'Etat de Pondichéry...

14-3-1992, Auroville :

Une autre invasion de police, pour la visite de Jacob, le Ministre de l'Intérieur du Gouvernement Central, accompagné par le Premier Ministre et le Gouverneur du Tamil Nadu – et c'est à nous de garder les lieux... de la police ! Il n'arrive en fait qu'à 17 h 30 ; cela semble être un homme de qualité, très sobre...

... Une scène presque violente, dans la Chambre, entre Cori et Gajendran, qui se saisit de la moindre occasion d'être vu en compagnie de gens « importants », et avait réussi à accompagner des gens de l'Ambassade Américaine sans nous en informer ; c'est toujours cette ambition sociale, cette convoitise... Chacun est venu me parler plus tard : c'est tout un chemin de patience, et il n'est jamais sûr que ça en vaille la peine...

16-3-1992, Auroville :

J'ai dû participer à deux réunions cet après-midi ! La première, inévitable, à « Aurofuture » avec tous ceux qui souhaitaient poser des questions à Roger A sur son choix pour le revêtement de la coque ; mais c'est la même histoire qui se perpétue, avec le même aveuglement, avec les mêmes courants de violence, et rien de créatif, aucun progrès partagé n'en émerge jamais... H a giflé Al.B ; Arjun et Nadaka en sont presque venus aux coups...

Puis la seconde réunion, de 17 à 19 h, sous le Banyan, à propos de l'accès à la Chambre ; nous sommes trop peu nombreux encore pour ce travail, mais une bonne volonté du cœur est là, et c'est encourageant ; sont venus Asha, Juanita, Geneviève, Mallika, Tina, Shradhavan, L.N, Durai, F, Sunrita, Peter, et même Jocelyn... !

Première lettre de C ; lettre de JYL, qui s'apprête à venir vivre ici avec Patricia et Aurevan, leur fille, et me demande de « tout préparer »...

19-3-1992, Auroville :

J'ai été surpris aujourd'hui par une dépression soudaine, et une lutte ; puis il m'a semblé que c'était dû au fait que Ramalingam n'est pas heureux ces jours-ci, et qu'il ne partage pas encore son trouble avec moi ; et combien il m'est nécessaire de marcher ensemble avec lui, d'aborder la tâche avec deux corps et deux cœurs unis – tout comme, bien qu'autrement, Selvam participe directement à ma capacité de me rendre disponible jour après jour... Ramalingam me dit plus tard que, sans moi, il ne resterait pas, et qu'il ne tient que parce que je suis là ; je lui répond que ce n'est pas ainsi, que c'est quelque chose de tellement plus grand qui tient chacun de nous ici...

... J'ai parlé à Madanlal de mon « idée » d'ouvrir une sorte de fonds de soutien pour aider ceux de nos hommes dont les conditions de vie sont par trop misérables : il n'a rien répondu, mais j'ai senti qu'il aurait préféré que je ne m'occupe pas de ça... ! C'est une attitude bien ancienne !

21-3-1992, Auroville :

J'ai de la peine ces jours-ci à me sortir du sommeil ; c'est comme un besoin accru... Et il y a de nouveau ces hémorroïdes, comme une fuite d'énergie, ou une capture par le bas ; mais je n'ai pas de raisons personnelles, et je ne sens même pas vraiment de fatigue ; l'énergie est là et je voudrais bien travailler plus, ce n'est pas un effort. Ce qui est un effort, c'est de neutraliser cette sorte de masse qui interfère, ou cette béance qui s'impose en bas.

La seule cause que je puisse trouver est ce déséquilibre dans l'unité active, parce que Ramalingam est dérangé, et ne se donne pas ; et ce soir il le reconnaît, quand je le lui montre... ! C'est comme un langage qui de force code la réalité à son aune, et c'est tout ce qui ne va pas qui devient prédominant... !

22-3-1992, Auroville :

La matinée à ranger, nettoyer et laver, et un moment avec L qui m'apporte des cacahuètes toutes fraîches de ses champs, et sa tendresse contente... !
L'après-midi à recevoir les visiteurs ; Tina commence à remplacer Mallika qui souhaite se retirer graduellement avant son voyage en France...

23-3-1992, Auroville :

Il y a une dépression massive qui pénètre le corps sans passer par le mental ni même le subconscient ; c'est à un niveau auquel je n'ai pas consciemment accès, même en me concentrant ; c'est comme si l'énergie s'échappait par une béance mal orientée...

24-3-1992, Auroville :

Les nouvelles de l'Assemblée Générale d'hier ne sont pas « bonnes »... Piero semble avoir pris le rôle de meneur ; à peu près 70 personnes se sont réunies, et ont décidé par majorité d'organiser un référendum ayant pour buts : a) de remettre en question la responsabilité et le rôle de Roger A ; b) de demander la dissolution de notre équipe de Coordination ; c) d'arrêter la production des panneaux de ferrociment pour la couverture de la sphère ; d) d'interrompre les donations canalisées par Madanlal. Les membres du « Working Committee » se sont divisés, certains exprimant leur opposition à toute tentative de vote. Il est aussi question, pour certains, de recourir à une intervention physique pour arrêter les travaux...
Piero a donc attendu le départ de Roger A pour venir en avant et déclarer ouvertement ses intentions...

25-3-1992, Auroville :

Après le travail, Rajaram insiste pour venir avec moi ; depuis des semaines il me demande de lui trouver une chambre quelque part en Auroville ; il ne veut plus rester au village ; il est comme un petit enfant qui cherche sa place et serait tout à fait content si je le prenais avec moi... Je ne sais pas quel est le chemin pour « aider » tous ces êtres... !
... Je lis ce livre merveilleux de Richard Llewellyn, « How green was my valley », qui est un temple à l'humanité profonde...

26-3-1992, Auroville :

Je suis affreusement fatigué ; ce n'est pas un manque d'énergie ni une paresse, mais c'est comme si il arrivait quelque chose à l'énergie au passage, et je ne tiens qu'en m'accrochant...
... L'ordre donné par l'Assemblée Générale (80 personnes, écrivent-ils) est que nous devons arrêter les travaux pour le revêtement de la sphère, et attendre les directives de la « Communauté ». Il y a quelques réponses assez claires dans les « Nouvelles d'Auroville », mais comme tout cela est loin de l'âme... !
... Ce soir Ramalingam est venu me retrouver, longtemps, paisible et profond...

27-2-1992, Auroville :

Cette fuite d'énergie est comme un viol, ou un vol obscur ; une impression de faiblesse absurde...

28-3-1992, Auroville :

Après de longs débats, le « Working Committee », ou plutôt 5 de ses membres, sont parvenus à formuler une déclaration droite, sobre et bien centrée, dont ils nous ont immédiatement envoyé une copie ; quelque chose s'est fait ; il y a là un mouvement réel, une action vraie...

... Toine envoie d'Europe des nouvelles intéressantes pour nous ; le patron de la petite entreprise qui a réalisé la dorure des dômes des Invalides à Paris a accepté de venir ici en Septembre avec son fils pour nous enseigner la technique et réaliser avec notre aide la dorure des 21 premiers disques...

Le jour anniversaire de Votre rencontre !

J'ai récemment suggéré que ce jour devienne l'un de nos jours « auroviliens » pour Matrimandir, et ce fut bien accueilli... Alors, ce matin, on a ouvert la Chambre plus tôt !

Que ce soit Ton champ de Force et notre ancre...

30-3-1992, Auroville :

Sunilda m'a envoyé, par Giuseppe, sans que j'aie rien demandé, la dernière musique qu'il a composé pour « Savitri », avec toute sa douceur et son affection... Ce la m'a beaucoup ému...

... Rajaram est venu pour que je lui refasse son bandage, après le travail, avec Anand et L, et L est resté près de moi...

1-4-1992, Auroville :

Selvam est tout absorbé dans la finition de son espace privé, que nous avons enfin pu terminer cette année, pour que tout soit prêt le jour de sa fête ; mais il ne m'a pas appelé pour l'aider...

... L'achat des terrains pour les Jardins de Matrimandir est pratiquement confirmé.

... De l'argent doit venir pour la coque et pour l'or...

2-4-1992, Auroville :

Selvam me dit, à déjeuner, que quoiqu'il fasse il sent toujours que je suis avec lui, et qu'il ne m'avait pas demandé de venir l'aider parce qu'il trouve que j'ai déjà bien à faire... Ce qui est idiot : je ne fais rien !

3-4-1992, Auroville :

Cette crise « énergétique » ou physique commence à obstruer le chemin ; rien n'y fait ; les hémorroïdes continuent, les yeux sont injectés et brûlants, le pouls est erratique, et le sens de faiblesse est ridicule... Et aujourd'hui, une migraine, juste au centre du front... !

Tout cela me ralentit dans le travail ; je devrais insuffler, animer, mais je me traîne... Heureusement, il y a ces êtres qui sont comme des trésors, ainsi Anand : démonter un échafaudage en équipe avec lui est une telle douceur... !

7-4-1992, Auroville :

Je m'efforce chaque jour d'amener Pierre E à observer un minimum d'organisation et de permanence ; sa gentillesse et son engagement sont pourtant tangibles...

... Nous préparons le bétonnage de la grande ceinture qui va séparer la base des 12 Pétales du Réservoir central...

... Réunion de Coordination un peu accidentée : Durai vient nous voir avec une requête personnelle – il dit avoir emménagé à « Existence » dans la maison que Somu a réparée, et demande que nous lui donnions une connexion à la Pompe du Banyan ; Somu avant lui avait déjà fait cette demande, que nous ne pouvions satisfaire : les besoins des Jardins l'interdisent, et de plus il y a 3 autres puits beaucoup plus proches, qui n'ont simplement pas été entretenus... Nous essayons donc, vainement, de faire comprendre ceci à Durai, pour nous apercevoir que son intention est en fait de provoquer un drame, quand il déclare alors qu'il veut devenir membre de notre équipe et ne bougera pas tant que ce ne sera pas accepté... C'est Aster qui finalement le persuade de se retirer... !

Puis Karel est venu représenter la position de Piero en ce qui concerne le choix du système de climatisation... ! Tout cela est pénible, et demande le sens de l'humour ! Et en plus, aujourd'hui, cette bande de petits voyous désœuvrés d'Edayachavadi, que leur village même désavoue, est revenue à la charge autour des Jardins, cherchant à provoquer les ouvriers...

Et le climat s'y prête ! C'est une chaleur soudaine et brutale, avec une sorte de succion dans l'air qui brûle les yeux et la peau...

8-4-1992, Auroville :

Tout est prêt pour le bétonnage demain et, si ça tombe ainsi le jour de ma fête, c'est un peu gentil et normal, je crois, puisque c'est la ceinture qui boucle tout le travail de l'année écoulée...

9-4-1992, Auroville :

AUM NAMO BHAGAVATE MAA

Bétonnage de la poutre ceinture, de 8 à 16 h 30.

Ca se passe bien, sans interruption.

Puis L m'accompagne ici, pour se nettoyer de tout le ciment et se reposer avec moi, librement...

Je passe ensuite un moment dans la Chambre, « pour moi » !

... Deepti et Arjun avaient insisté pour me faire à dîner chez eux, et je les y retrouve vers 19 h ; mais Arjun, après une journée de tension (à la fois Madanlal et le Secrétaire, Tripathy, sont entrés dans le jeu des influences, et ça devient compliqué !) est pris de malaise et de vertige et doit s'étendre immobile toute la soirée, que Deepti et moi passons tranquillement, à partager nos expériences – Deepti est dans l'humeur de se livrer...

... Tôt ce matin, Su m'a remis, comme une enfant, un merveilleux coussin qu'elle a préparé et brodé elle-même d'un motif solaire, et Anand, mon adorable Anand est timidement venu m'apporter son cadeau, un « t-shirt » tout neuf...

10-4-1992, Auroville :

J'ai dû participer à cette réunion avec Piero à propos de la climatisation – où j'ai eu à représenter tout ce à quoi il s'oppose ! Mais Karel semble s'être éclairci et Sylvie est une femme posée, amicale ; les études doivent se poursuivre, pauvre Piero... !

12-4-1992, Auroville :

Visite impromptue d'Arjun pendant mon ménage dominical, ce matin ; il se trouve très préoccupé à propos des 4 symboles de Sri Aurobindo – qui, se joignant debout, soutiennent le globe de cristal, et que Piero essaye de réaliser en acier doré -, depuis que j'ai incidemment rappelé que Tu avais employé les mots « taillés dans la pierre » pour les décrire ; il y a ainsi d'autres éléments de Ta description qui ne semblent pas avoir été bien compris, ou obéis... Or, par « coïncidence », SSJ sans rien savoir de notre discussion récente est tombé hier sur ces mêmes paroles de Toi et il lui est alors apparu que c'était pour cette raison que ces symboles d'acier ne se faisaient pas...

... J'ai commencé à décoller et découper de mes albums toutes les plus belles photographies de Toi qui, malgré toutes les protections, s'abîment : Shyama, la secrétaire de Madanlal, m'a proposé de les laminer toutes ; cela m'oblige à détruire mes compositions de couleurs, de textes et de fleurs séchées, mais ce sont Tes photographies qui comptent... !

13-4-1992, Auroville :

C'est le jour du Nouvel An Tamil, et nos travailleurs ont congé.

A l'aube, Ramalingam inaugure son nouvel atelier, « Satyakarma », à Bharati Puram ; plusieurs de nos hommes, qui ont aidé aux préparatifs, sont présents, ainsi qu'Arjun, F.Gr, Jérôme et John H...

Visites de L, à midi ; de Selvam ; de Jaimurthy et ses enfants, de Ramalingam et Sumathi...

14-4-1992, Auroville :

D'autres personnes ont ces jours-ci observé ou remarqué la différence entre les symboles qui sont à l'étude et la description que Tu en as donnée – taillés dans une pierre d'une couleur indéfinissable, orange doré ; et maintenant que nous savons comment Piero et Paolo ont décidé seuls de suivre l'option de symboles en métal doré pour soutenir la masse d'un globe de cristal de verre, il semble assez impératif que nous nous lancions dans la recherche active du matériau qui correspondrait à Ta vision... Il semble parfois que tout ce qui vient de la seule initiative de Piero soit empreint ou affligé d'un même mélange d'orgueil et d'indigence, bien que son souci de perfection soit plus que remarquable...

16-4-1992, Auroville :

Madanlal me rapporte lui-même, très gentiment, toutes les photos de Toi, laminées par Shyama...

18-4-1992, Auroville :

Arjun et moi avons un long entretien, pour voir tous les travaux des mois prochains ; devons-nous continuer d'essayer de faire tout avancer à la fois, tous les aspects de Matrimandir en un seul mouvement de progrès matériel ? Avec tout ce que cela implique en termes d'énergie, et dans quelle mesure peut-on employer plus d'ouvriers ? Jusqu'à quel point Ramalingam et moi pouvons-nous être efficaces ? Comment s'orienter pour que les fonds viennent à temps ?

Cela nous a permis de faire une sorte de révision générale et de reprise de conscience partagée, entre Arjun, Ramalingam et moi ; et il y a désormais toute l'activité de la compagnie de Pierre E, « Atmarati », sur le site... Pierre E et moi communiquons assez bien, mais nous aurions besoin d'être plus nombreux, disponibles et engagés...

20-4-1992, Auroville :

Le monde entier est là, sur ce chantier minuscule au centre d'une graine infime, Auroville, qui n'est encore qu'une promesse...

21-4-1992, Auroville :

La question des symboles est maintenant l'objet des habituels conflits, et le Secrétaire s'en mêle, sous la pression de Piero... J'ai pourtant commencé de recueillir des informations sur les sources de « pierre du soleil » dans le pays, et Madanlal est très intéressé... Il nous semble qu'il nous faut honnêtement faire l'effort de suivre toutes Tes indications, même si Piero pense avoir raisonnablement écarté la possibilité de symboles en pierre...

22-4-1992, Auroville :

Lettre de Myrtle, après plusieurs mois... On aimerait souvent mieux s'être trompé ! Voilà une démonstration attristante de ce que je lui ai toujours dit qu'il arriverait si elle retournait là-bas (l'esclavage à sa mère et ses filles, la solitude et l'incompréhension) ; et elle donne un tableau bien sombre de l'état du monde occidental...

23-4-1992, Auroville :

Une partie de la matinée avec Arjun à voir les comptes d'Atmarati ; ce ne devrait pas être mon travail de vérifier les rapports et les factures que Pierre E fait établir, mais son approche est aux antipodes de ces qualités de précision, de transparence et d'exactitude que nous avons essayé de développer, et cela cause une grande confusion...

Puis je suis allé rencontrer Vijay : il a parcouru tout le pays ces 15 dernières années, à la recherche de cristaux et de pierres, semi-précieuses et précieuses ; d'après lui, la « pierre de soleil » est trop tendre, tandis que la cornaline, si elle est plus dure, n'existe pas en de telles dimensions ; il va réfléchir et consulter des géologues et prendre des contacts ; il faudrait peut-être faire des recherches au Brésil et en Afrique ; il n'y a qu'une pierre, le jade orange de Chine, qui correspondrait assez parfaitement à Ta description, mais si elle existe dans un bloc de cette taille, il faudrait probablement une fortune colossale pour l'acquérir...

Quel est Ton chemin ?

Je suis troublé par l'omniprésence de l'antagonisme entre Piero et Arjun...

... Ce soir, Shivan, Anand, Rajaram, Ayanar et moi retournons sur la structure pour détruire une énorme ruche de ces abeilles de rocher, et je ne rentre ici, fatigué, que vers 23 h...

25-4-1992, Auroville :

Cette question des symboles rend plus aigue encore celle de savoir ou percevoir si Tu es satisfaite de la direction que Piero a prise au cours des années, décidant seul, ou avec Paolo, de tout ce qui concerne Ta Chambre, quand le résultat présent ne correspond pas réellement à Tes descriptions, ou si Tu souhaites que se fassent de nouvelles recherches qui auraient pour seul objectif d'intégrer tous les éléments contenus dans Ta vision, tout en bénéficiant de l'expérience déjà faite...

Je ne sens de réponse ni dans un sens ni dans l'autre...

Il me semble seulement qu'il nous faut à la fois terminer ce qui est commencé selon la logique déjà inscrite, et chercher aussi une alternative supérieure qui soit libre de la formation présente, quitte même à revoir le matériau du globe (Tu avais parlé d'un globe en matière synthétique !), qui est à présent beaucoup trop lourd pour être supporté par de la pierre sculptée translucide...

... Ramalingam est venu se reposer ici ce soir et, en sa présence, je dessine une étude structurelle pour l'atelier de manufacture des disques...

27-4-1992, Auroville :

Une grande partie de la journée mobilisée par la tentative de remédier à la confusion prévalente entre Atmarati (les méthodes et habitudes de Pierre E) et nous ; Arjun et moi lui avons demandé de tout regarder avec nous, et j'ai proposé quelques changements qui demanderont un effort de sa part, mais qui peuvent, je crois, rééquilibrer la situation et la rendre plus transparente...

Le lundi matin est souvent un moment difficile : je vois plus précisément tout ce qui ne va pas, tout ce qui contredit, tout ce qui est inerte ou se refuse ou se dérobe, tout ce qui trompe...

29-4-1992, Auroville :

Pour faire ce travail il faut être capable de constamment harmoniser une gamme de rythmes différents – différemment déterminés, différemment orientés et différemment vécus... Il y a par exemple, parallèlement au rythme des « Auroviliens », celui des « ouvriers », c'est-à-dire d'hommes et de femmes qui, pour gagner leur vie, doivent fournir un certain nombre d'heures de travail, et qui ont besoin de l'information et de la supervision nécessaires. Il y a également le rythme de l'argent ; il y a celui des décisions à prendre, des choix à faire, en consultation ; il y a le rythme d'une coordination réaliste de tous les aspects du travail physique (matériaux, équipement, outils, entretien, etc.) ; et il y a celui des conflits, difficultés, défis et progrès que nous rencontrons collectivement et qui influent constamment ; il y a enfin celui de nos réceptivités individuelles à l'énergie, et celui de nos corps...

... Une réunion bizarre aujourd'hui, entre notre équipe et celle de CSR, à propos de la « commission » qu'ils avaient l'intention de prélever sur toutes les donations destinées au travail du Matrimandir : une si profonde et grave absurdité, si parfaitement justifiée et confortable... !

30-4-1992, Auroville :

Disharmonie prononcée avec Silvio, dont l'attitude avec les ouvriers est un peu... difficile à intégrer – et pas seulement pour moi ! C'est pourtant moi qui me suis fâché !

... La nuit dernière Hannah, l'amie d'Ulli B, s'est suicidée, en prenant une dose de drogue excessive...

... La nuit dernière aussi, quelqu'un a volé tous les robinets de cuivre partout dans les Jardins et autour de Matrimandir...

1-5-1992, Auroville :

Voilà une journée idiote ! Les travailleurs sont en congé ; la plupart d'entre eux sont incapables de bien utiliser ce moment de « liberté », et mon L rentre saoul, la chemise en lambeaux et plus pauvre de Rs 500/-, de sa randonnée à Pondy, et je dois m'occuper de lui tout l'après-midi...

... Ce matin Ramalingam et moi avons décidé d'emmener tous les petits chiots (la dernière portée) loin d'ici, car c'est une ménagerie autour de Matrimandir, et d'essayer de les laisser dans la nature ; j'aurais préféré emmener leur mère avec eux pour qu'elle chasse leur nourriture, mais tous ont insisté qu'elle était notre meilleure gardienne... ! On a pris la jeep et roulé vers le Sud ; à près de 50 Kms d'ici, on a dû rebrousser chemin : un embouteillage de plusieurs Kms à cause d'un énorme accident ; alors on a abandonné les petits à proximité d'un village ; ils n'auraient pas survécu seuls dans la forêt...

J'éprouve ce besoin de Te servir, de Te faire plaisir... Et l'action la plus claire, le travail qui est donné, c'est Matrimandir ! Mais alors, je ne peux rien tout seul ! Et maintenant John H va partir, et Ramalingam se laisse absorber par d'autres travaux et d'autres énergies, et sans lui j'ai du mal...

Je fais de nouveau des erreurs dans le travail : soit je ne communique pas les instructions assez attentivement, soit j'oublie tout simplement des données importantes... Ce matin j'ai dû faire recommencer par deux fois un travail... Il y a comme un besoin physique de se retirer un peu des mouvements grossiers de la surface, de couler autrement...

... Ce soir A est venu me voir avec son ami Rajesh, et ils restent jusque tard ; c'est intéressant, et Rajesh (qui est un jeune médecin de psychiatrie) me touche beaucoup...

20-5-1992, Auroville :

Je n'aurais probablement pas dû laisser Ramalingam s'impliquer ainsi dans d'autres projets et d'autres travaux en Auroville (il est déterminé à se prouver et à prouver aux autres de quoi il est capable) ; il n'est plus assez disponible pour canaliser les énergies, bien que nous ayons tous deux tant à organiser et de nouveaux travaux à commencer pour Matrimandir, et c'est un peu affolant...

Pourtant, quand je n'ai pas à traiter avec une certaine « présence » que je ne sais pas qualifier mais qui est directement liée au mental occidental, je ne ressens ni effort ni tension, et il y a le sens de s'en remettre à Ce qui peut, à Ce qui fait, et d'être, même pas un instrument, mais plutôt comme la forme relative d'un courant ; et il y a cette tendresse constante avec les gens d'ici, avec « nos gars »...

Mais dès que je dois avoir à faire avec des occidentaux, presque sans exception, je me trouve soit fatigué, soit révolté et impatient, soit étranger, aliéné par des notions, des définitions et un mode de compréhension qui sont devenus presque répugnants – et ce sont pourtant des frères et des sœurs (je l'espère), mais le fait est que... ce n'est plus mon élément, si ce l'a jamais été !

21-5-1992, Auroville :

Il y a toutes sortes d'instants qui viennent montrer à quel point on est vulnérable : de notre point de vue, l'extrême fragilité ou précarité de l'équilibre ; c'est-à-dire que ça ne tient que par la Grâce et, pour nous, dans notre condition, c'est encore synonyme de précarité, parce que nous ne sommes pas encore unis, nous ne savons pas encore, avec nos corps, que c'est là même, dans la Grâce, que se trouve la seule Réalité solide...

22-5-1992, Auroville :

La violence de Narayana encore, une explosion de plus, aux portes de Ta Chambre : cette haine hurlée, cette lumière jaune sale qui attaque, venimeuse, toute la structure résonant de ses cris pendant une heure, ce torrent d'insultes et de laideur... Et cela m'a affecté beaucoup plus que je l'ai cru sur le moment, et s'est ajouté à une difficulté que j'éprouve de plus en plus avec le temps ; je ne sais pas exactement de quoi il s'agit : je crois que c'est la présence du mental qui me devient pénible, presque physiquement pénible... C'est peut-être aussi pourquoi je tend de plus en plus à ne m'ouvrir et à partager qu'avec ces êtres qui travaillent avec moi, qui sont dénués de toute formation mentale autre que la formation collective dans laquelle ils sont nés...

L'orage éclate entre Toine, Pierre E et moi, ce matin... Et je passe les heures suivantes dans une sorte d'état second ; puis Arjun vient me trouver – pour s'excuser de m'avoir mis dans une situation difficile et me communiquer son accord profond ; puis Toine vient aussi me trouver, avec sa tendresse et son regret, pour résoudre ce passage... Ce sont des moments surprenants...

Un incident dangereux, apaisé de justesse, entre des ouvriers ; il faut alors s'adresser à eux patiemment, clairement et fermement, et trouver avec eux le sens de l'harmonie...
... En fin de journée L, qui est enrhumé depuis des semaines maintenant (c'est un virus qui se promène entre nous tous), devient très fiévreux et agité, et je pars avec lui à la recherche d'un docteur ; cela nous conduit à Pondy ; il est comme un gosse s'accrochant à moi sur la moto... On lui fait deux injections qui le calment et le rassurent, et on revient ce soir avec une enveloppe pleine de gélules, capsules et pilules, tout un armement... ! Il dort ici...

Encore une explosion de Narayana ce matin ; pour une fois c'est après Durai qu'il en avait... Alors, ces hurlements dans la sphère, cette énergie de haine et de provocation malicieuse : tout le monde s'arrête de travailler, paralysé. Les ouvriers ne comprennent pas pourquoi nous ne faisons rien... J'extirpe Durai, et ça se calme un moment... jusqu'à ce que Bhavani s'en prenne à moi ! Il leur faut tout le drame, ils veulent y arriver : alors elle me frappe plusieurs fois de son balai, avec une violence remarquable (dans cette culture, voici un acte extrême, l'insulte et l'offense impardonnable...)...

Plus tard, je demande à L.N que nous nous mettions d'accord sur les mesures à prendre ; mais, comme d'habitude, il se défile...

C'est cette inertie ambivalente qui est solidaire de tout ce qui résiste ou cherche à détruire...

... Je suis surpris, plus tard, de voir combien Selvam, qui a appris la « nouvelle » par Kanta, est bouleversé...

Rita est revenue de Calcutta pour assister notre équipe en s'occupant des recherches de matériaux et de fournisseurs et des commandes ; jour après jour il faut éclaircir une confusion qui est comme une broussaille qui se reforme sans cesse à travers les insuffisances de chacun de nous...

... Réunion ce soir de notre petite équipe pour l'accès à la Chambre ; Mallika s'en va pour 3 mois ; L.N reconnaît enfin qu'il est devenu nécessaire de neutraliser Bhavani et Narayana...

Chaque jour la jungle a repoussé, chaque jour il faut chercher l'ordre...

On n'est plus ici, et on n'est pas encore là ; nos cerveaux ne fonctionnent plus au service des vieux maîtres, mais on n'a pas encore appris à soumettre et offrir l'action, le choix, le mouvement à une Vision Présente qui consciemment contient tout et habite tout...

... L, qui est bien guéri, demande à venir ici avec moi après le travail : cette tendresse sans histoires, que j'apprécie profondément...

Un autre vol a eu lieu dans l'aire des Jardins la nuit dernière... Comment faire progresser la qualité d'une manifestation matérielle dans ces conditions... ?

... Ramalingam et moi sommes allés au village d'Edayachavadi. Nous n'avons eu jusqu'à présent que des ennuis avec ce village ; récemment, nous avons eu la permission de déterrer d'énormes rochers sur un arpent des terres du temple, pour les Jardins de Matrimandir ; maintenant les « chefs » nous demandent de les aider à bâtir un échafaudage autour du temple rénové, pour leur festival qui s'approche ; c'est donc sur la base d'une sorte de collaboration tacite que nous ferons ce travail...

7-6-1992, Auroville :

Souvent je demande si il y aurait de nouveau quelque chose à passer, à communiquer, à écrire, un nouveau « témoignage », ou une histoire qui serait comme un canal... Mais c'est le silence ! Rien ne vient. Rien ne semble même se préparer.

C'est comme si, vraiment, du point de vue individuel, j'avais cessé de progresser.

Et c'est ainsi, je crois.

Le choix s'est formé de me rendre disponible, comme un outil, en acceptant la condition générale la plus élémentaire et en laissant toute aspiration « personnelle » de côté...

8-6-1992, Auroville :

Cette journée a cristallisé les doutes et les questions, et le sens d'insuffisance, de ces derniers temps...

Ramalingam, qui tend à prendre les circonstances comme un défi personnel à dépasser ses propres limites, avait eu beaucoup de mal à organiser la location d'un équipement de levage et de transport de ces rochers que l'une de nos équipes a passé des semaines à dégager du sol, au village d'Edayachavadi... Les gens qui sont venus, avec leur camion, remorque et grue, sont des gens ordinaires, tout à fait extérieurs à Auroville, et l'atmosphère d'Edayachavadi est plutôt mauvaise... Il y a eu 2 accidents !

Et ainsi je passe plusieurs heures à Jipmer, dans un état d'impatience proche de la suffocation, à essayer d'obtenir que Ranganathan soit recousu (il s'est ouvert le menton en tombant de l'arrière de la grue) : le personnel de l'hôpital, aux urgences, s'obstine à vouloir rassembler, sinon même à suggérer, les informations qui pourraient constituer un dossier légal contre nous, les « employeurs », et c'est dégoûtant... Rajesh, qui est Interne à Jipmer, vient à ma rescousse... Nous sommes encore là quand Mannathan m'amène Devaraj, blessé à la tête (c'est Ramalingam, cette fois, qui a laissé glisser sa barre à mine) ; alors je l'envoie directement à une clinique privée, fâché déjà de ma propre sottise d'être venu à Jipmer pour Ranganathan – que je dois accepter de laisser en observation pour 24 heures...

Est-ce une aveugle témérité de notre part d'initier tous ces travaux pour Matrimandir ?

Et aujourd'hui il n'y a plus d'argent à la Banque et nous ne pouvons même pas payer Atmarati...

Je m'en veux : j'étais là, j'étais présent, j'étais calme, et je n'ai rien pu empêcher ! Je n'avais pas la responsabilité directe de l'équipe, j'étais là plutôt comme un observateur, pour accompagner Ramalingam, mais j'aurais dû sentir, et prévenir, et je n'ai même pas vu Ranganathan tomber (il se trouvait de l'autre côté de la grue)...

9-6-1992, Auroville :

Après le travail, Ramalingam et moi avons emmené une dizaine de nos gars, avec le tracteur, à Edayachavadi, pour ériger cet échafaudage autour de la partie centrale du temple qu'ils sont en train de rénover en préparation du festival, le 18. Nous travaillons sans une pause jusqu'à 21 h 30 et tout se passe bien ; les chefs du village sont contents ; le retour est doux et paisible.

10-6-1992, Auroville :

Je renonce à seconder Toine dans cette réunion à propos de la climatisation : je n'y comprend rien, et cette artificialité me déprime...

... La pluie est enfin venue, dense, trouée de longs éclairs, abondante ; à la fin de l'orage, Usha vient me tenir compagnie – c'est ma garde de nuit à Matrimandir ; elle a fait bien du chemin ces derniers mois...

11-6-1992, Auroville :

J'accompagne Dadu à Jipmer pour son traitement de radiations...

12-6-1992, Auroville :

Ramalingam est mal fichu : des vomissements et une attaque d'amibiase ; je lui apporte des remèdes et doit m'occuper seul des équipes des Jardins ; il y a tellement à « superviser » qu'il s'établit une sorte de distance interne, qui me donne l'impression que je ne « fais » absolument rien, autre qu'officier comme une référence visible...

13-6-1992, Auroville :

L'absence prolongée d'Arjun me pèse...

... Après le travail je retrouve Toine et Madanlal : comment aider à ce que l'argent arrive en quantités suffisantes ? On va au jour le jour, et ce n'est pas économique : on gaspille finalement plus, en démarches et en matériaux, lorsqu'on n'a que juste assez à chaque moment, que lorsqu'on peut disposer d'un capital...

... Anand et Ayanar me rendent visite ici avec leurs familles...

15-6-1992, Auroville :

Longue séance de dentiste...

Un malentendu avec Selvam...

Je ne sais pas ; je suis désemparé devant la lenteur, et aussi une sorte d'indignité, du processus ; l'individu est en démolition, par fragments, par niveaux, et par pans entiers ; mais le passage, la transition à la Personne, à Cela qui devient unique par et en chaque âme vivante – la musique et la plénitude et la solidité libre de Cela... c'est encore bien loin... !

Il n'y a plus rien à « comprendre » ; on n'est plus qui que ce soit de reconnaissable et de fiable, on n'est plus rien de mesurable ou de comparable, et Cela n'est pas encore manifeste, parce que tout n'est pas encore prêt à abdiquer consciemment, en avant, pour la vraie Vie...

C'est l'habitude de la défaite : de se dé faire pour se refaire, encore et encore...

Et l'horreur de cette mort : de toute cette expérience de gâchis, de gaspillage, de fausseté, de laideur, l'horreur physique – avoir encore une fois à supporter ça ?...

Préparations et marquages, coordination ici et là, en haut, en bas...

Visite du « Planning Commission Deputy Chairman », l'un des hommes les plus puissants du pays... !

17-6-1992, Auroville :

Une attaque de fatigue : comme ce vent qui souffle depuis 3 jours, une bourrasque continue qui soulève des tourbillons de poussière où que l'on se trouve, brûlante, affligeante ; on a les yeux rougis, et le jardin ici est jonché de débris...

On prépare pour le bétonnage, demain, de l'extension du 4^{ème} pilier, à l'Est, celui de Mahalakshmi ; il nous aura fallu des mois, car nous avons dû refaire presque tous les coffrages, trop usés après trois bétonnages ; j'ai le trac !

... Une lettre de JYL ce matin, qui m'a un peu secoué, bien que, comme il l'écrit, je ne puisse guère être surpris ! Patricia se sépare de lui et garde Aurevan avec elle ; il doit quitter leur lieu de vie et se prépare à s'installer ici, seul ; il semble en fait être en partie soulagé (il oblige souvent les autres à déblayer le chemin pour lui, en lui fermant les portes !). Mais je ne puis m'empêcher de voir là comme une répétition de ma propre histoire, quand Diane avait pris Auragni avec elle et s'était arrangée pour que je ne puisse même plus la voir ; et des années ont passé et rien ne s'est ouvert ni résolu, et pour cette enfant de 10 ans maintenant, qui est ma fille, je ne suis qu'un étranger... Alors, faut-il que la même dureté, la même séparation pèse sur JYL ? Et je vois bien que j'ai peut-être agi comme un détonateur en lui demandant de venir d'abord seul (pour voir plus facilement comment arranger leur habitation ici) ; mais c'était un mouvement impersonnel, de cela je suis certain... Il ne faut pas qu'une fois de plus une enfant soit privée, par nos ego, de la réponse et de la disponibilité de l'un de ses compagnons choisis... Ce serait un échec de la vraie conscience, il me semble...

Bétonnage de l'extension du pilier de Mahalakshmi, de 8 h 30 à 14 h... Je crois que ça s'est bien passé, mais on ne le saura qu'après le démoulage ; Selvam et moi avons vibré, chacun d'un côté...

L est venu ici avec moi après le travail, pour un long nettoyage de tout le ciment, et l'un de nos moments de détente ; il y a là une telle gentillesse et un tel sourire... !

19-6-1992, Auroville :

Trois heures chez le dentiste... Pas de douleur, mais il reste comme du découragement : il faudrait beaucoup de ces heures pour rétablir une harmonie, par ces moyens extérieurs mécaniques ; tandis que l'on traite d'un côté, une autre partie des gencives s'est enflammée et il y a de nouveaux dégâts ! D'après Ton expérience, la Force ne semblait pas agir sur les dents, comme si cela doit disparaître (?)... En attendant, c'est dégoûtant !

... L'envie de ne rien faire du tout ; ou de lire, de flotter...

... Lettre de Su : elle et John H sont tranquilles, absorbant la beauté de leur île (au large de Vancouver) et partageant une période d'assimilation avec Helen, leur mère...

20-6-1992, Auroville :

Ce soir, Durai arrange avec Joss pour que je voie la vidéo que Joss et Anita ont prise de Matrimandir et de sa Chambre, car je dois faire mes critiques ! C'est un sujet difficile : le film montre précisément tous les défauts, les contradictions et les manques, tout ce qui sépare la réalité physique présente de la Chambre de ce qu'elle devrait être...

Il y a trop de points sur lesquels ceux qui devraient mettre l'attention nécessaire ne le font pas, et il s'ensuit une sorte de confusion permanente, de frustration des mouvements...

Je vois bien que l'anarchie véritable ne sera possible que lorsque chacun sera mû par un dévouement complet, actif et inconditionnel ; jusque là – et on ne peut pas tricher, il s'agit d'un fait énergétique concret – il est indispensable de s'en tenir à la discipline que l'on choisit, ouvertement et honnêtement...

... Ce matin JYL m'a téléphoné au bureau, de France : je n'entendais qu'à peine ce qu'il voulait me dire et c'était plutôt pénible ; j'ai compris qu'il venait le 1^{er} Août, et que Patricia, son fils Christophe et Aurevan, viendraient le 8, et qu'il me fallait leur trouver une maison...

30-6-1992, Auroville :

Arjun sera de retour demain, et j'en suis bien soulagé ; c'est un peu juste sans lui et, aujourd'hui encore, j'ai été surpris par le comportement de Toine... Il y a tant d'éléments qui tirent, au lieu de donner ; et Ramalingam, lui, est obnubilé par les buts personnels qu'il s'est fixé dans sa vie...

... L est venu après le travail : ce sont des moments d'heureuse et simple douceur, sans déguisements ni prétentions...

1-7-1992, Auroville :

Passé la journée, avec Rajaram et son équipe, à bâtir un échafaudage suspendu, un peu difficile à réaliser... J'apprécie toujours beaucoup ce travail particulier, qui tire en avant, physiquement, le meilleur de chacun - attention, solidarité, équilibre, rapidité de réflexes, agilité, endurance...

C'est mon tour de garde ce soir, et je dois rédiger un rapport de travail pour le Governing Board et Monsieur... Karan Singh !

3-7-1992, Auroville :

Ramalingam est à un moment de choix ; il me semble qu'il me faut l'y laisser en face, sans interférer, et attendre qu'il revienne partager... Mais c'est un peu déprimant ; je ressens toujours que, tous les deux ensemble il est possible de maintenir un rythme progressif et relativement harmonieux dans le travail, et que notre complémentarité, dans ce sens, est utile ; et dès que l'un de nous est troublé, c'est comme un trou dans l'atmosphère...

... Ayanar a demandé à me parler seul : il souhaite apprendre la menuiserie, et Matrimandir ne lui offre que du gros œuvre ; il veut ma permission pour s'en aller !

5-7-1992, Auroville :

C'est un peu triste avec L ce matin quand il vient me retrouver ici : je me rend compte qu'il est retourné boire hier soir au « toddy shop », malgré ses promesses, et il réalise lui-même que cela abîme la qualité de notre contact...

... Subrayan vient demander de l'aide... Jaïmurthy vient avec ses enfants...

Puis la réception des visiteurs tout l'après-midi ; je demande à Selvam de réduire à nouveau le nombre de « Passes » qu'il donne à l'heure des visites à la Chambre, et de refuser les simples « touristes » ; nous avons essayé de laisser entrer tous ceux qui le demandaient, sans insister trop sur les motivations, mais c'est devenu impraticable... C'est un problème difficile, et on ne peut guère que tâtonner...

6-7-1992, Auroville :

Une partie de la journée à mettre en place l'armature de Ton symbole en haut du cylindre central ; j'ai pu vérifier ainsi que j'avais effectivement fait une erreur, une de plus ! J'ai oublié de compter l'épaisseur du marbre sur le bandeau extérieur, et tout est donc un peu plus large que sur le plan ; mais je vais le laisser là jusqu'au retour de Roger A, car cela peut nous mener à une solution plus simple que son projet de bombures alternées, très compliqué et n'exprimant rien qu'une recherche décorative ou ornementale sans signification...

... Il y a du tirant avec Pierre E et sa compagnie ; ils ne font aucun effort de précision dans leur travail, et il n'y a aucune exactitude dans leurs comptes...

... Ramalingam est négatif, divisé en lui-même, alourdi et brouillé...

... Giuseppe me demande de l'aider à faire les plans de sa maison...

8-7-1992, Auroville :

J'ai du mal à traiter avec une forme de malhonnêteté en Pierre E ; ce n'est pas une malhonnêteté habituelle, mais quelque chose de tenace qui déforme un peu tout ce que ça touche et produit de la confusion physique et matérielle...

... Mon tour de garde, ce soir ; Ramalingam vient m'y retrouver avec sa famille un long moment, tranquille...

10-7-1992, Auroville :

Dans la nuit Durai vient me chercher : Angamma a commencé son labeur d'enfantement, les eaux ont rompu, et il demande à ce que je les emmène, avec la mère de Durai, à Jipmer (Angamma a déjà perdu deux bébés avant terme). S'ensuit un long, pénible processus, comme une farce affreuse qui moque l'existence, dans ce bâtiment monstrueux qui semble générer l'attitude la plus contraire à la vérité ; l'on découvre que l'enfant est très faible et malingre et souffre d'une difficulté respiratoire, et le labeur est trop lent, les contractions trop superficielles ; il y a un danger pour l'enfant et pour Angamma ; la doctoresse recommande une césarienne, sans attendre ; mais il me faut tout expliquer à Durai à mesure, et intervenir pour écarter le drame et la confusion. L'opération se passe bien. L'enfant naît à 1 h 35, une petite fille, très faible et très menue ; Angamma est hors de danger.

... Une dispute un peu douloureuse entre Arjun et Ramalingam, à cause du tour que Ramalingam et Loganathan ont accepté d'organiser pour une vingtaine de nos gars qui le souhaitent ; je leur avais assuré que je me débrouillerais sans eux pendant les trois jours de leur périple ; mais Arjun a soulevé de violentes objections (objections que j'avais moi-même évoquées, quoique d'un point de vue un peu différent), et toute la journée s'en ressent...

11-7-1992, Auroville :

La tempête entre Arjun et Ramalingam s'apaise ; Arjun s'est excusé, je crois, auprès de Ramalingam. Mais Shivan et Ramalingam ont tous les deux décidé de ne pas accompagner nos gars dans leur voyage, et de rester travailler...

12-7-1992, Auroville :

15-7-1992, Auroville :

Shyama a pris rendez-vous pour moi avec Anurakta à l'Ashram, pour qu'il nous aide à identifier la position d'un ou deux nouveaux puits dans les Jardins de Matrimandir ; il procède selon une méthode que Tu lui as enseignée, avec une aiguille d'or tenue comme un pendulier au-dessus d'une carte topographique, en se référant à Ta Présence ; j'ai assez confiance dans sa relation avec Toi, et j'ai pu vérifier déjà dans le passé l'exactitude de son travail, et sentir l'action de la Force dans son atmosphère...

Avant de descendre à Pondy je suis allé avec Ramalingam à « Certitude », dans la maison de SSJ, pour voir ce qu'il faut faire : il a été cambriolé de façon bizarre, il y a deux jours...

16-7-1992, Auroville :

C'est la fête de Madanlal ; j'ai préparé un grand bouquet d'orchidées et de fougères.

20-7-1992, Auroville :

Depuis hier matin, à plusieurs reprises, un sanglot très profond, qui monte et prend tout : une peine si profonde qu'elle porte sûrement sa propre délivrance... Mais ce qui l'évoque... hier ce fut d'abord Ta voix, lisant ces lignes de « Savitri » :
« My father, my heart has chosen, it is done... ».

Et aujourd'hui, c'est plutôt une association de causes extérieures, rien de particulier en soi: une distance avec Selvam; la découverte que c'est Munuswamy qui a commis ces vols récents à Matrimandir et, l'autre soir, à « Vérité » ; une autre attaque de Narayana, ce matin, soudaine et surprenante, ce rictus jaune, cette violence manique...

Je ne sais pas : quelque chose pousse du dedans...

Après le travail j'ai dû m'allonger et me concentrer longtemps pour ne pas tomber malade, avec Ton Agenda posé à plat sur le ventre, en écoutant la musique de Sunil...

Maintenant, ce n'est pas encore passé, mais un peu de confiance est revenu...

Dans la nuit, j'ai eu aussi d'étranges cauchemars ; l'impression générale est d'être pressé dans un passage étroit... Ce n'est pas « personnel », au sens de « ma difficulté » ou de « mon passé », mais ce n'en est pas moins intense...

Il n'y a qu'un chemin, c'est le progrès de la conscience – et l'incarnation de la Conscience vraie...

21-7-1992, Auroville :

J'ai encore parlé franchement à Selvam ; une fois de plus, au lieu d'être « habile », j'ai été candide ; et il n'est pas revenu, incapable, comme d'habitude, de faire face. Mais qu'est-ce que cela veut dire, « faire face » ? Il y a un attachement, là, que je ne comprend pas entièrement : il y a, simultanément, une très belle vérité, et quelque chose de très insuffisant, ou de faux, quelque chose qui trompe ou qui ne se donne pas, je ne sais pas bien...

Cette peine qui est là me montre, crûment et presque brutalement, l'absence en moi d'un simple amour de la vie – ou, d'un point de vue supérieur, tout ce qui sépare encore de la capacité à recevoir la Présence, à La laisser emplir cette parcelle de Son existence...

... Dadu demande, avec insistance et détermination, à quitter le Camp ; il souhaiterait que nous lui construisions une petite maison ici, à « Sincérité ». Il faut que j'y réfléchisse, que je fasse une étude...

22-7-1992, Auroville :

Shivan est venu se reposer ici : il est beau et tendre et droit, c'est une joie...

Avec Selvam, ça s'est un peu rétabli ; de tous côtés lui vient la même pression impérative pour qu'il consente à se discipliner, et apprenne à se concentrer...

23-7-1992, Auroville :

Après le travail, réunion plutôt paisible et utile sous le Banyan, avec Tina, Durai, L.N et... Narayana ! Narayana qui a demandé à se joindre à l'équipe pour l'accès à la Chambre et, dans ce contexte, s'en est tenu à la personne que nous sommes tous prêts à retrouver, au lieu de cette grimace destructrice qui le voile et le possède si fréquemment...

Deux coups de téléphone de JYL : Patricia a été hospitalisée ; cancer du sein, et peut-être de la lymphe. Leur voyage est annulé.

Que ce soit Ta Force qui agisse, que ce soit entre Tes mains...

Comme nous sommes tamasiques, comme nous rechignons à nous en remettre positivement, activement à Cela... ! Et pourtant ce n'est qu'alors que l'existence prend son sens...

Nous disons « prend tout ça... ! », mais nous le disons comme depuis une acquiescence inerte, un abandon confortable, qui est une démission – alors qu'il faut se lever, se donner, dans un mouvement d'éveil et d'énergie, fidèle et honnête...

On ne vit vraiment que quand on vit là...

Une journée de fièvre... et les méandres et sables mouvants, et la brousse d'épineux... des diverses transactions et relations humaines...

De petits bétonnages ; les visiteurs ; et, ce soir, nous dînons tous chez Janet – Su m'y accompagne – avant d'aller assister à un spectacle de danse très annoncé, une prière dansée sur « Savitri », par une troupe de Bombay : c'est une caricature creuse et grandiloquente, sombre et pompeuse, presque comique... On finit tous, avec Selvam qui nous a rejoints là, par attendre dehors que Guy, qui a la clé de la maison, veuille bien ressortir... !

C'est plus que de la discipline qu'il faut pour ne pas adhérer à cette confusion qui cherche constamment à dominer les circonstances et les relations, dans cette situation qui est la nôtre : c'est un apprentissage de tous les instants...

Plusieurs petits bétonnages...

Un incident pénible provoqué par Mauna, qui joue un rôle assez malsain avec les « visiteurs importants » ; on ne peut pas condamner un être pour la petitesse humaine qu'il porte ou représente, mais il faut bien traiter avec les effets de cette perversion – tout en étant amalgamés pêle-mêle sous l'étendard de l'« unité humaine » en cours de réalisation... ! Ces incidents sont souvent comme la lie du vin au fond du verre : le goût, l'odeur et l'effet sont... différents !

Les tâches dominicales... et la visite de L...

C'est le mariage de Vijaya et Dhanapal ce soir : la tradition ! Une contradiction sans issue ?

... Patricia a décidé d'entrer dans son ordinateur et d'imprimer toute ma traduction de « Savitri »...

31-8-1992, Auroville :

Ma « famille » est repartie ce matin ; juste avant leur départ, j'ai eu le temps de montrer à Patricia quelques simples asanas qui peuvent l'aider...

Pas d'ouvriers aujourd'hui : c'est la fête de Ganapati !

2-9-1992, Auroville :

Apologie de Mauna...

Beaucoup de nos gars sont absents aujourd'hui... Il a fallu retourner au village ce soir pour démonter et récupérer les échafaudages...

J'ai fait à dîner pour Ramalingam ce soir, et lui et John H sont venus me tenir compagnie pendant mon tout de garde ; ces moments aident beaucoup à s'ajuster notre contact aux différents aspects du travail...

4-9-1992, Auroville :

Je vais de ci, de là comme une toupie : un manque d'attention sur un point, et c'est tout qui se déséquilibre...

La fièvre, que j'avais tenue pendant le séjour de JYL et les siens en prenant de l'aspirine a maintenant la main haute, et s'est compliquée d'une toux qui n'en finit pas et d'un nouvel accès d'hémorroïdes ; alors il y a cette tentation idiote de « prendre du repos » : idiote, parce que je sens très bien que la seule chose nécessaire est une qualité de concentration tout à fait abordable... !

5-9-1992, Auroville :

L'énergie passe mieux.

Mais dans l'ensemble, la tendance inscrite dans les choses, dans les mouvements et les circonstances, est de se tordre, de résister et d'aller de travers... ! Dans ce microcosme qui s'est aggloméré autour de Matrimandir, il y a trop de points faibles ouverts au désordre et à la déformation...

Il faut bien constater que, dans cet extraordinaire luxe de liberté qui nous est donné ici, l'on doit développer une forme de fidélité constante et active qui semble demander beaucoup plus que ce que la plupart sont prêts à donner... !

7-9-1992, Auroville :

Ce sont des jours ingrats : tout l'effort semble être absorbé par la nécessité d'écarter la confusion ; c'est comme un marécage sans fin...

... La femme de l'un de nos gardiens s'est pendue, la nuit dernière ; tous nos gars ont quitté le travail plus tôt...

8-9-1992, Auroville :

Asha est « en crise » et se déclare incapable d'assumer aucune tâche et aucune responsabilité... La démission de l'un ou l'autre d'entre nous peut multiplier la confusion, au point où l'on déplore presque la notion de « libre choix » : dans le physique, dans la matière, il semble impossible d'accomplir, ou de laisser s'accomplir quoi que ce soit sans un minimum de discipline, de constance et de fidélité...

10-9-1992, Auroville :

Toine, Walter et moi avons passé plusieurs heures dans les Jardins à marquer l'emplacement d'un nouveau bâtiment, qui sera intégré dans le flanc d'une colline, pour abriter les nouveaux générateurs et relais électriques pour toute l'aire de Matrimandir...

... Une bien douce visite : à ma suggestion, Madanlal a finalement conduit Millie et Minnie, ces deux merveilleuses, adorables enfants et compagnes de Toi : l'une est presque aveugle et l'autre marche à peine, mais... quelle profonde, quelle évidente reconnaissance ! C'est le confort des âmes vivantes !

... Nous travaillons tous jusque tard, ces jours-ci : il faut se hâter un peu avant la mousson !

14-9-1992, Auroville :

Dans les conditions qui règnent ici, ce travail de coordination est parfois affolant : chacun a le « droit » d'intervenir, d'interférer, d'imposer son opinion, de changer d'avis selon son plaisir, sans la moindre concentration, sans jamais tenir compte de l'ensemble, ni même de ce qui est adjacent... Mais probablement la manière que j'ai de procéder est aussi déconcertante pour d'autres ? Je n'en sais rien...

Chacun de nous contribue à la confusion, ne serait-ce qu'en réagissant – ce que je fais encore ! Il me faudrait être... étale !

... Quelques équipes travaillent la nuit... Moi aussi, jusque tard : je finis de rédiger ce texte que Ratna m'a demandé pour l'Allemagne, à propos de Matrimandir, et de l'accès à sa Chambre...

15-9-1992, Auroville :

J'ai accepté de refaire toute la partie centrale d' « Eco House », où habitent Deepti et Arjun ; et il faut aussi s'occuper maintenant de la construction de la petite maison de Dadu ; alors, avec les nouveaux travaux au Matrimandir – la centrale de climatisation sous l'amphithéâtre, le bassin de l'Unité près du Banyan, etc. -, c'est un peu la course de haies...

... Piero, qui est extrêmement aimable et presque fraternel avec moi ces jours-ci (peut-être depuis qu'il a besoin de moi pour son travail ?), me demande aussi de commencer dès demain les fondations pour la machinerie du système de climatisation...

... Je ne me plains pas ! Il y a une grande reconnaissance pour cet exercice qui est donné : mais aussi, une sorte de crainte : il faudrait qu'on soit tout à fait sincère !

Car, sans cette sincérité, on court le risque d'un monumental gaspillage, et d'une trahison !

Et ça, ce n'est pas amusant !

16-9-1992, Auroville :

O discipline individuelle !

Cette nécessité impérative que chacun donne, à chaque instant et progressivement, à la vérité, honnêtement...

Sans cette participation de chacun, il n'y a pas de chemin viable, ni partageable, et il n'y a pas d'unité possible, ni même souhaitable... !

... Une explosion ce matin, entre Toine et B, à propos des disques et de l'attitude de Silvio... Une autre ce soir, entre Toine et L.N et Narayana, à propos des visiteurs et d'un homme un peu trouble à qui L.N a donné un « Passe » très spécial, de son propre chef et selon sa propre inspiration...

17-9-1992, Auroville :

Encore une réunion difficile à propos des disques ; je me trouve un peu seul face à une sorte d'absence générale de perception directe de l'intégrité matérielle de Matrimandir, et à une action corrosive, confondante, du mental : il est maintenant question de revoir entièrement la disposition des disques, avec l'intention soit d'ignorer, soit de camoufler le travail déjà exécuté... Et ça tourne et tourne autour d'un petit axe séparé : qu'est ce qui progresse dans tout ça ? J'ai trouvé Arjun vain et gravement stupide, ce matin... !

18-9-1992, Auroville :

Je m'efforce d'identifier la réponse intérieure la plus vraie, la plus vraiment vraie, à un certain état de choses – quelque chose qui vienne de plus haut et de plus profond que la tristesse, et qui écarte de la conscience les vieux sentiments de solitude, en attelant la responsabilité du petit être à la Tienne... Au-delà, et libre de toutes les réactions...

C'est une leçon continue ; et on ne peut répondre à l'appel de la conscience qu'en soi, que par le contact individuel donné : là est la priorité, quelle que soit la condition de l'autre et des autres...

... Réunion générale, dans la « Cuisine », à propos des Maintenances des Auroviliens ; Arjun et L.N sont comme deux coqs !

... Trois bétonnages aujourd'hui...

19-9-1992, Auroville :

Le dernier bétonnage du « rib » (une section de l'un des 4 arcs structurels) n'a pas été bon du tout ; Shivan n'a pas donné l'attention nécessaire et, de mon côté, je lui ai fait trop confiance. Les autres bétonnages sont bien venus ; mais la qualité du ciment est très médiocre, ces temps-ci : l'arnaque est plus répandue que jamais !

... Ce soir, Ramalingam est venu me retrouver ici, comme souvent, et nous faisons ensemble les comptes pour les maisons de Dadu et d'Arjun et Deepti...

20-9-1992, Auroville :

Rajaram vient prendre le petit-déjeuner avec moi : il s'entête à ce que je lui construisse une « capsule » ici (une petite hutte sur pilotis), malgré tous les obstacles – il n'est pas « Aurovilien », et on n'a pas le droit (!) de construire ici...

21-9-1992, Auroville :

Roger A et Jacq sont de retour pour un mois ; je leur donne « le tour des travaux » et, demain, ce sera le « tour des questions »...

23-9-1992, Auroville :

Pour la réunion de travail avec Roger A ce matin, j'ai rassemblé les études complètes des disques que nous avons faites avec Jeet, où il est clairement montré que, pour réaliser le modèle présent (le concept de Roger A révisé par Jacq), il est nécessaire de faire 3 tailles différentes de disques – ce que Silvio et B, en toute mauvaise foi, nient avoir jamais entendu, et ce que Jacq a tout simplement négligé, par une sorte de présomption anxieuse... Tout cela est peu encourageant...

Tout le monde nettoie : la structure, les lieux, les outils, les machines, les véhicules ; puis, avec Vos photographies et une image de Saraswati, et les fleurs et l'encens et la flamme et le son de la cloche, on se réunit... C'est un progrès par rapport aux années précédentes...

Mais j'ai dû passer tout le matin avec Vijayakumari, qui me demandait de l'aider à revoir des comptes et des estimatifs...

Les notions des uns et des autres sont encore très disparates ; Tina veut se retirer de l'équipe, et le petit F est en train de craquer... Comment obtenir que suffisamment d'entre nous se rendent disponibles au service de ce qui croît ici, au Matrimandir ?

Une longue réunion de travail, avec Roger A, Jacq et B et Asha, et Arjun, Toine et Walter ; Il est longtemps question des touristes et visiteurs, et de ce qu'il est possible et nécessaire de faire dès maintenant dans Auroville pour endiguer et canaliser la marée ; puis, en réponse à mon insistance, Roger A accepte de simplifier la coque intérieure et, de lui-même, propose la solution que j'avais tenté de communiquer auparavant : une coque intérieure translucide, plus facile à réaliser et plus harmonieuse dans l'expression...

Anurakta m'a envoyé ses réponses, pour les sources d'eau dans les Jardins et pour les clés géométriques des 4 Aspects de la Mère (le carré pour Mahakali, le cercle pour Mahalakshmi, le losange ou l'hexagone pour Maheshwari et le triangle pour Mahasaraswati)...

11-10-1992, Auroville :

Rajaram revient à la charge une fois de plus, avec la confiance entêtée d'un enfant ; je « dois » lui faire une place ici ! Il y a quelque chose comme un désespoir en lui, qui m'inquiète un peu ; mais je n'ai pas de solution, et je ne vois pas qu'il soit souhaitable de le prendre ici avec moi...

14-10-1992, Auroville :

Ce sont des journées de fou ; je ne sais pas, il semble que les gens n'entendent pas ; les choses se répètent, se répètent, et les cerveaux sont barricadés et les énergies sont égoïstes... Quelquefois, c'est à crier !

Et, ce matin, une réunion très difficile, à propos des disques et du programme des travaux ; j'ai éclaté à la figure de Roger A : il y a une sorte de malhonnêteté en lui, ou de facilité, qui ne peut plus être tolérée quand l'enjeu est si grand...

Comment rester à la fois calme et persévérant, activement engagé sans tension ni impatience, sans être affecté ni tenté par un retrait – c'est encore le plus difficile à résister pour moi, cette tentation de tout laisser, de m'écarter : un désistement...

Et puis, il manque dans tout ça comme une sorte d'intelligence ; je ne sais pas comment le dire, cela participe d'une intégralité dans l'approche et le besoin, et d'une compréhension plus directe et progressive, mais libre de doutes... Cela manque ! Il y a comme une pauvreté...

... Le petit F s'est retiré de l'équipe des gardiens, et cela fait un trou que personne ne se propose de combler...

15-10-1992, Auroville :

De plus en plus je dois constater cette réalité du monde présent : le fait de voir juste ne rend ni efficace ni content ; ce qu'on voit n'est accepté que trop tard, après beaucoup de gaspillage et, quand l'acceptation vient enfin, la vérité de ce qui avait été perçu doit alors se compromettre pour intégrer autant que possible, dans l'ignorance générale, ce que les retards et les déformations ont manifesté... Et ce phénomène se reproduit à toutes les échelles...

Tant que la conscience n'est pas devenue entièrement une et limpide, on ne cesse, par nos ombres, de nourrir la nécessité du temps et de la mort...

Long bétonnage de la dalle du centre de climatisation, de 11 à 20 h ; malgré la fatigue, je suis très touché par la qualité de don de tous nos gars, et je suis très fier d'eux ; ils travaillent sans compter, avec adhésion, et c'est magnifique et c'est adorable... Je me sens submergé...

Et il y a ce perpétuel problème : à mesure que l'on prend conscience d'un ensemble donné, on devient en même temps conscient comme de la direction ou de la vérité de chaque mouvement, de chacune des situations dans cet ensemble. Et si l'on est centré dans l'action, alors on touche concrètement à tous ces points et l'on cherche spontanément à manifester ce que l'on en perçoit ; mais le temps physique ne suffit pas, et nous sommes encore trop peu à être ainsi orientés : les chaînons manquent de tous côtés...

Ainsi il faut s'en remettre à une Action directe de la Force dans les êtres et les circonstances, et trouver à chaque instant comment le mieux la servir, sans attacher à, ni même vouloir vérifier, aucun résultat.

Je ne sais pas bien expliquer les termes du problème, qui pourtant se pose de plus en plus...

Puisqu'il est indispensable que chacun ait le temps et l'espace de parvenir à un état de perception vraie, selon ses données individuelles, et puisque chacun progresse de manière différente et à des rythmes différents, il est impossible de communiquer consciemment à un niveau qui soit à la fois commun et fidèle ; le seul niveau commun abordable est toujours très inférieur aux possibilités que l'on perçoit...

Alors on est condamné à la fois à s'efforcer constamment d'être fidèle dans l'action, et à accepter un formidable gaspillage et d'innombrables détours et complications, sans en être affecté...

C'est tellement plus confortable de recevoir un travail défini et limité avec l'assurance qu'en s'y donnant, on reçoit aussi l'action de la Force pour le changement de la conscience... !

... Un long moment avec Toine ce soir, pour chercher ensemble le chemin matériel de ces disques – leurs positions et leurs tailles ; tout est irrésolu ; ni Roger A, ni Silvio, malgré leurs prétentions initiales, n'ont été capables de trouver la solution, et nous nous trouvons dans une situation intenable...

29-10-1992, Auroville :

Un éclat de colère ce matin, provoqué soudainement par cette force en L.N qui tord et abîme ; c'est quelque chose qui ment tout en prétendant à la vérité, quelque chose de grossier ; et je me suis laissé prendre, et Ramalingam aussi... Cherchant à rejeter sur moi la responsabilité de ses propres retards et de son inertie, L.N a voulu me faire passer pour un menteur, et je n'ai pas été capable de laisser couler... La colère n'est jamais justifiable ; c'est dégoûtant ! Et après, il faut offrir !

Et toute la journée, sur la structure, je dois de justesse me rattraper, au bord de l'accident ; et ce soir, la moto tombe plusieurs fois en panne, et je dois rentrer de Pondy sans lumière...

Plusieurs bétonnages dans la journée, à des endroits différents...

Une autre réunion de travail dans la soirée, à propos de la position des disques sur les portions singulières de la sphère (la sphère de Matrimandir n'est pas une sphère géométrique parfaite, mais une sphère aplatie aux pôles), et, pour la première fois dans toute cette confusion redoutable, il y a un peu de joie et le sens d'une ouverture et d'un chemin possible, d'une solution harmonieuse et puissante...

Hier soir L, saoul, dans son village, décide de grimper tout seul en haut du pylône voisin pour réparer un fusible, et s'électrocute : il tombe de 4 mètres.

Nous n'apprenons la nouvelle que ce matin ; il a été transporté à Jipmer.

Ce soir je vais le voir. C'est plus que de la chance : il a été protégé !

La plupart des brûlures ne sont pas trop profondes, et devraient guérir assez vite, et il n'y a pas d'autres conséquences. Il n'y a pas de fièvre. Il est bien traité et on lui administre du glucose par IV, avec les médicaments. Cet imbécile de L... !

Il pleut, il pleut ; Rajaram ce soir m'accompagne rendre visite à L à Jipmer, sous les trombes...

13-11-1992, Auroville :

Il pleut... Une rixe entre Angad et l'un de nos gardiens... Je cherche dans le fouillis et le fatras de cristaux chez Vijay un cadeau pour la fête de Su, qui approche...

Sous la pluie, je plante un arbre de « l'Amour Divin Gouvernant le Monde »... Raju vient avec moi voir L, à la nuit tombante...

14-11-1992, Auroville :

La pluie, la pluie... C'est un champ, une marée de boue autour de Matrimandir ; il faut bien pourtant organiser le travail possible...

Puis je vais à l'atelier de Prema pour vérifier la commande d'un tapis circulaire pour les visiteurs dans la Chambre ; puis je retourne chez Vijay pour confirmer le choix d'un cristal pour Su ; pour y arriver, je passe devant l'entrée d'une hutte ; deux petits chiots s'amuse à se débattre dans la boue ; leur mère endormie près d'eux, à mon approche, sursaute et se dresse et bondit sur moi et me mord à la jambe droite ; Ann accourt et je dois alors la calmer et calmer la chienne en même temps !

C'est un curieux épisode ; je n'ai eu aucun mouvement de peur ni d'agression ; tout est resté complètement calme ; et pourtant, cela s'est bien produit !

Maintenant, le muscle de la jambe est gonflé et douloureux ; Ann m'a affirmé que la chienne avait été vaccinée contre la rage... Mais il y a la formation de tétanos dans le mental physique... IL faut que le Force s'en occupe !

16-11-1992, Auroville :

Dans la nuit j'ai été réveillé par la fièvre, et un ganglion soudain à l'aîne droite ; j'ai ajouté une couverture et essayé de me concentrer...

Au Matrimandir, sous le déluge, la boue a dévalé toutes les pentes et les bords des excavations se sont écroulés – évidemment... !

20-11-1992, Auroville :

En fin de journée, je descend à Jipmer ; L vient juste de sortir, et m'attend déjà ; il avait décidé de toutes manières qu'il resterait avec moi ; je dois donc l'emmener à Pondy avec moi, où j'ai des courses à faire, mais il est vite fatigué et nous rentrons le plus tôt possible ; il veut rester ici jusqu'à ce que tout soit guéri et cicatrisé ; il est tendre et confiant. Après le dîner, je lui fais un nettoyage attentif, pour effacer un peu les traces de toute cette expérience ; il a perdu du poids, et devra faire de l'exercice pour recouvrer l'usage normal de ses bras... Certaines des brûlures ont été profondes ; je ne m'attendais pas à ce que les docteurs le fassent sortir aussi tôt, mais ils ont certainement besoin de lits dans l'hôpital ! Je crois que je peux faire ce qu'il faut...

22-11-1992, Auroville :

Dimanche de pluie... Anand vient se reposer tout l'après-midi ; cette tendresse qu'il évoque en moi est comme un amour et aussi le sentiment envers un tout petit enfant...

Je dois donner l'instruction de fermer la Chambre aux visiteurs, parce que les chemins sont trop boueux, et je rentre tôt, et fais la cuisine, pour que L reprenne du poids !

Ramalingam vient plus tard et nous faisons les comptes...

24-11-1992, Auroville :

Bétonnage du bassin de l'Unité : 270 sacs de ciment, 12 heures de travail ininterrompu ; nous terminons à 20 h ; l'air est limpide et frais. Nos gars sont efficaces, et contents.

Au début, il y a une lourdeur : Asha se plaint et me fait des reproches qui ne sont ni fondés ni de bonne foi, et je refuse d'absorber ce poison et lui demande de le reprendre, et ça tourne en une scène plutôt spectaculaire ; plus tard, dans l'après-midi, la dernière section de coffrage du muret circulaire s'ouvre sous la pression, et il faut la vider d'urgence et ré étayer, réajuster et remplir...

... L se remet doucement ; graduellement, les brûlures les plus profondes se cicatrisent ; je lui refais ses bandages chaque soir...

27-11-1992, Auroville :

Nous ouvrons les coffrages du bassin de l'Unité : c'est plutôt bon.

Walter a préparé plusieurs esquisses pour les formes des dalles de granit qui viendront couvrir le béton : l'une d'elles m'a ému ; il m'a semblé qu'elle représentait parfaitement Ton unité, la vraie, celle qui porte le Suprême en son centre, consciemment dynamisé...

Nous faisons les préparatifs pour le forage des deux puits...

... L est curieusement content et tranquille ici : curieusement, parce qu'il ne semble pas s'ennuyer du tout, ni se sentir dépaycé...

28-11-1992, Auroville :

Il y a comme une errance : les questions sont trop grandes, dans un silence qui attend sans rien savoir...

4-12-1992, Auroville :

N, tôt ce matin, est venu me demander de l'argent, prétendant une fois de plus qu'il ne trouvait aucun travail ; peut-être est- le fait de découvrir que L séjourne ici avec moi qui l'a provoqué, mais son attitude était bien différente, presque vicieuse, mauvaise, et il a fini par me menacer de... chantage ! (la relation physique et affective que nous avons eue dans le passé, quand il était plus droit et que je lui faisais toute confiance) ; je l'ai renvoyé presque brutalement, mais ça m'a laissé un peu bouleversé : ce tableau de toute une laideur d'être, d'une horreur de conscience...

... Madanlal voulait m'emmenner sur ses terres près de « Lake Estate », sous le prétexte de voir le tas de briques qu'il souhaite donner au Matrimandir pour la construction des Pétales ; je suis arrivé un peu en retard, à cause d'une panne et du déluge sur la route ; puis nous avons fait une grande randonnée dans sa voiture, et marché au bord du lac, et visité « Gloria Farm » ; il m'a raconté toutes ces choses qui lui reviennent de Toi, de ses expériences avec Toi ; il m'a récité de longs passages de « Savitri »... Je suis reconnaissant de sa confiance...

5-12-1992, Auroville :

Quelque chose d'idiot, de comique, de désolant m'est arrivé dans la nuit, vers 5 h : sortant d'un rêve détaillé avec Sujata, Satprem, une jeune fille et une histoire de courrier, je descend l'escalier de bois, fraîchement ciré par L, avec des chaussettes de laine aux pieds, dans l'obscurité, et je glisse et dévale toutes les marches sur le dos, cassant l'une d'elles, et décrochant une peinture au passage, et j'atterris en brisant une lampe et écrasant un scorpion en même temps !

Le coccyx est très douloureux ! C'est comme la suite de ce moment vilain avec N le matin, quelque chose qu'il faut nettoyer tout à fait, maintenant, avec le vrai mouvement...

Et il pleut, sans cesse !

Je suis furieux de ma négligence, de cette veulerie, cette faiblesse en moi qui ont permis cet accident... Furieux aussi de céder à cette misère égoïste, petitement centrée sur sa propre irréalité séparée, qui veut s'installer dans la douleur physique et stigmatiser les « dégâts »... !

Il y a comme une déchirure près de la colonne vertébrale, à l'attache d'une côte...

... Selvam est revenu de Madras ; il a passé ici un moment réparateur ; il a une belle et profonde présence, et je crois qu'il progresse...

... L va rentrer chez lui demain ; il n'a plus besoin de mes soins...

... Ce matin, après un peu de travail au Matrimandir, j'ai trouvé Anand endormi ici, les yeux bandés : il s'était brûlé avec la soudure hier soir ! Ca faisait une drôle de maisonnée, gentille et très douce...

6-12-1992, Auroville :

Anand et L m'ont aidé à nettoyer et ranger la maison ce matin, et Su s'est offerte à faire la lessive !

... Les événements d'Ayodhya... (Une foule menée par des fundamentalistes « hindous » - et des politiciens qui font un usage sans scrupules du « sentiment religieux » - a démolé la mosquée de Babri Masjid qui avait été érigée, semble-t-il, sur l'emplacement d'un ancien temple dédié à Rama)

Avec l'accord et la contribution de l'équipe, je termine de préparer la carte d'invitation pour le 28-2-1993, le 25^{ème} anniversaire d'Auroville...

9-12-1992, Auroville :

Je suis descendu rencontrer Tara chez elle, avant son retour à Delhi ; je regarde des centaines de ses photographies de Toi et j'en choisis plus de 150, et lui demande d'y ajouter, à Delhi, celles de Tes Darshans au balcon, dont elle n'a pas les copies ici...

De retour ici, je trouve Selvam à la maison : Madras est paralysée par les grèves et les diverses réactions à la scène d'Ayodhya, et il a préféré rester ici... Il y a beaucoup de violences dans tout le pays... Demain doit se tenir un Bandh général, sanctionné par les gouvernements du Tamil Nadu et de Pondichéry, et il n'y aura pas de travail possible...

... En fin de journée, réunion sous le banyan, à ma demande, avec ceux qui aident régulièrement au service de la Chambre, pour présenter les possibilités d'organisation pour le 1^{er} Janvier et le 28 Février... Il y a un malaise croissant : parmi nous R, Juanita et Geneviève représentent maintenant cette attitude exclusive qui attribue aux « Auroviliens » un droit presque sacré d'accès, en toute circonstance...

Bandh. Pas de travail.

Un peu de temps au bureau ; puis à élaguer les arbustes près des bâtiments ; puis L vient ici me retrouver...

Je commence à étudier les formes et les volumes pour cette extension de la maison de C...

... Elagage à « Eco House »...

14-12-1992, Auroville :

Les travaux à « Eco House » sont laborieux – des délais, des négligences, et l'impatience d'Arjun et, tout comme pour la maison de Dadu, le manque de fonds...

Ramalingam est à Madras pour la journée, et je dois courir à doubles foulées... !

Il y a ces jours-ci toute une comédie dangereuse entre le Secrétaire de la Fondation et une partie de la communauté autour de la question des visas et des « pouvoirs » ; Toine m'indique la nécessité d'agir, pour calmer et situer les choses, et cela me tire tout l'après-midi, jusqu'à ce que je rédige un texte court, pour publication dans les « Auroville News » ; Toine et Arjun en sont très heureux !

19-12-1992, Auroville :

Le petit garçon de Raman et de Kamala, Arasu, se noie dans l'étang d' « Aurodam »... (A Auroville, les très jeunes enfants, quand ils veulent « partir », se noient... comme Auroson, le premier, et Aurolouis, dans des puits, il y déjà des années...)

20-12-1992, Auroville :

Janet, à qui j'avais demandé de communiquer ma note à l'Assemblée et aux « Auroville News », puisqu'elle voulait s'y présenter comme la proue de l'opposition au Secrétaire, me renvoie les 2 copies avec une note très dure et rigide, me situant dans le camp du... fascisme ! Elle n'a rien compris au texte, tant elle est déterminée à ne voir et n'entendre rien d'autre que sa propre démarche... ! Cela m'a un peu choqué, mais il faut en rire aussi ! Le fait est que la plupart des gens ici souhaitent plutôt demeurer au niveau du jeu des forces ; ils y trouvent la satisfaction d'une identité et ils craindraient de se perdre, de disparaître en se tournant au-delà, ou au dessus...

23-12-1992, Auroville :

J'ai découvert encore des erreurs dans le travail des Pétales : un manque d'attention et de supervision, et de temps, de ma part, et l'imbécillité du maçon que je ne me résous pas à renvoyer, malgré le nombre de bêtises inexcusables qu'il a déjà faites. Cela me met très mal à l'aise. Je ne suis pas certain de la marche à suivre : arrêter certains travaux pour mieux me concentrer avec les ouvriers ? Je me tournerais volontiers vers J.L et lui laisserais plus de responsabilités, mais il a déjà bien à faire, et n'avait pas supporté la charge auparavant... Il y a cette tristesse d'un travail mal fait, à refaire, quand il est déjà si difficile de faire venir l'énergie dans ce chemin...

... Longue réunion de travail avec toute l'équipe et Roger A et Jacq, principalement à propos de la position des disques : « on » a vraiment choisi le concept, la méthode et le processus les plus compliqués et les plus difficiles à réaliser !

Pourquoi n'y a t il jamais eu le soutien d'en haut à la proposition que j'avais faite, qui était dictée par la simplicité inhérente à la structure même de Matrimandir ? Cela, je ne le comprends pas, d'aucune manière...

Avec J.L j'ai pu vérifier que l' « erreur » que j'avais découverte n'est pas en fait une erreur de négligence, mais un problème de mesures – de volumétrie : les mesures dans l'espace ne correspondent pas aux mesures sur les plans ; et que les pentes déjà matérialisées, sous ma responsabilité, sont correctes. Un formidable besoin de sommeil : je peux dormir jusqu'à 9 heures d'affilée ! J'ai depuis longtemps abandonné la discipline de noter mes activités de « rêve », parce qu'il ne semblait pas que, dans mon cas, ce soit fructueux ou réellement utile ; il me semble que ce qui est vraiment nécessaire, c'est la frayée d'un passage direct dans les énergies pour le courant de la Force...

C'est la Fête de la République Indienne : pas de travail !

Ce n'est qu'hier soir que Rajesh a pu venir me retrouver ; il est resté la nuit. Et ce soir il repart à Bangalore... Le rapport qui s'est établi est très tranquille, comme envahi de tranquillité et d'une attention très douce l'un à l'autre...

... C'est dimanche et, dès l'aube, l'équipe de Kr vient creuser les tranchées des fondations pour la nouvelle unité ici...

Bien que nous n'ayons pas encore reçu d'autorisation « officielle », Arunasalam a commencé ce matin le travail de construction de la nouvelle unité ici...

Un accident si stupide et si triste : l'un des deux bœufs tirant la charrette chargée du réservoir d'eau que Tency nous a prêté (avec réticence) pour arroser la nouvelle haie de bougainvillées au Nord des Jardins, est blessé : par l'imbécillité du conducteur et de l'un de nos gars qui lui indique un raccourci, la charrette se renverse le long d'un talus, et le bœuf a une corne arrachée...

2-2-1993, Auroville :

L'agitation continue à propos du livre de SSJ, que nous avons refusé de retirer de la vente...

... Avec Selvam, c'est un tel effort de garder une discipline d'organisation ; il se laisse constamment déborder par l'énergie, qu'il ne sait pas canaliser...

... Luigi joue, semble-t-il, un petit jeu ambigu, et ne cesse de retarder l'émission de ce « permis de construire »...

... Lettre de Ruthy Patel à Barbara et moi, décrivant les récentes émeutes, infernales, à Bombay...

... C m'a envoyé le dernier livre de Roger Garaudy, « Les Fossoyeurs » : il y a une ardente sincérité, là !

3-2-1993, Auroville :

Du temps et de l'énergie détournés par ces mouvements irresponsables d'exclusion, autour de la question du livre de SSJ ; F.G s'est hier emparé physiquement de toutes les copies encore disponibles dans le kiosque d'Information, en notre absence, et refuse de les rendre ; Selvam doit aller chez lui pour les récupérer ; puis, cet après-midi, c'est Al.B, Chr et Pat qui cherchent à se saisir d'une autre copie... ! Tout cela serait parfaitement ridicule, si cela ne nous ouvrait au jeu des petites forces qui refusent... Et ainsi, parallèlement, quelqu'un est allé, dans la nuit, briser tous les piliers de granite des nouvelles clôtures de « Samasti » et à l'arrière des Jardins ; des dizaines de piliers ! D'après les traces de pieds, il ne s'agirait que d'une seule personne, plutôt de petite taille... C'est comme une folie !

... Ce soir j'ai rencontré SSJ et lui ai livré, pour ce qu'il vaut, mon sentiment sur toute l'affaire, en privé – je crois que le petit texte qu'il a mis en exergue, au dos de la couverture, où il se présente comme l' « élu », ainsi que toute la rancœur qu'il a introduite dans ces paries du livre qu'il a récemment écrites, ont contribué négativement...

4-2-1993, Auroville :

Un autre moment de violence à peine contenue, avec un F.G blanc de rage...

... Une sorte de compromis technique s'est dégagé, à travers le travail combiné de Jacq et de Viktor, pour une méthode d'attachement des disques sur la coque ; mais il faudra doubler le nombre des boulons dans les barres de jointure entre les triangles... Tout ce gaspillage est plutôt désolant... !

5-2-1993, Auroville :

C'est Su qui affronte les vagues de refus, en ce qui concerne la nouvelle construction ici, qui représente beaucoup pour elle ; alors que j'essaie de la soutenir, c'est à mon tour de passer la crise : c'est toute cette petitesse mentalisée qui se réclame de Toi, c'est cet Auroville étouffant parce les compréhensions ne s'y rassemblent qu'au niveau d'un mental qui aplanit et aplatit tout, où il n'y a plus la place d'être, nu, en Ta Grâce...

8-2-1993, Auroville :

Le processus est toujours le même face à ces jeux d'influences qui cherchent à saper la confiance lentement acquise : on cherche à rectifier et à éclaircir, et l'on est obligé de faire scrupuleusement le tour des points de vue en présence ; ce faisant, un certain nombre d'assomptions sont remises en question ; il semble alors tout à fait vain d'accorder une confiance inconditionnelle à quelque « côté » que ce soit, et l'on se demande donc s'il ne faudrait pas mieux se retirer, et s'abstenir ; et vient enfin le sens de la nécessité, non plus de se retirer ou de se méfier, mais d'approfondir la perception vraie, et sa qualité, oui..., d'amour... !

9-2-1993, Auroville :

L'avion de C est arrivé à 14 h.

Le retour ici est très tranquille.

Su, très affectée, me transmet la nouvelle : ils ont refusé de nous laisser construire la double extension (deux ailes symétriques, en forme de L, aux deux coins Nord Est et Nord Ouest de la maison de C et en hauteur) mais ils nous offrent en compromis, accompagné d'une série de commentaires négatifs, la permission de construire une aile seulement... Cela suffira pour Su, mais pas pour JYL et sa famille ! En attendant, Su est allée habiter chez Menaig...

10-2-1993, Auroville :

C'est la saison, cette période qui précède Ta fête et celle d'Auroville, durant laquelle les conflits redoublent d'intensité et les « histoires » resurgissent. Nous sommes maintenant attaqués pour notre responsabilité dans la participation et l'« influence » (sic) croissantes de Madanlal et SSJ... Ce qui est le plus absurde, c'est que l'opportunisme de ces forces, qui feront n'importe quoi pour retarder, empêcher, entraver, repoussant, éclaire si crûment nos limites et la précarité de toutes ces « positions » dont nous nous targuons si volontiers... !

... J'ai envoyé mes notes au « Development Group » et à Tripathy, après les avoir montrées à Su, qui les a aimées. Pour le moment je continue... Mais il faut que j'écrive dès ce soir à JYL car, d'après C, il se repose sur la confiance que j'aurai construit une habitation pour eux d'ici le mois de Juin... !

... La durée d'une vie, dans les conditions actuelles de la conscience physique... les choix de création, comme les choix de devenir... tout est si absorbant ; et il y a les perceptions qui affleurent du dedans et que les moyens de la nature ne peuvent pas servir, aussi longtemps qu'un degré de transformation générale n'est pas réalisé...

C'est difficile pourtant de ne pas s'attacher au monde matériel, à la beauté, à la poignante innocence de la matière terrestre, de la nature de la terre ; difficile de rester toujours conscient de l'infinie possibilité de création... Dans sa précarité même et jusque dans sa misère, cette terre, ce corps matériel de la terre, est comme un Suprême plus réel et plus vrai que l'Origine, dont le but se voudrait encore l'image...

... C'est une crise encore ; l'humilité est indispensable, mais aussi le courage, et l'écoute d'un futur de plénitude – un futur non tronqué, un futur qui ait tout embrassé...

11-2-1993, Auroville :

Il nous faut trouver un autre logement pour Narayana et Bhavani ; c'est d'autant plus urgent maintenant qu'Alok est de retour à Auroville...

... Al.B et A.A viennent au pavillon d'Information alors que je donne les passes (aux visiteurs qui font la demande d'entrer dans la Chambre du Matrimandir pour se concentrer), et cette ancienne et presque reptilienne puissance de formation négative, épaisse, qui passait à travers Al.B il y a des années, dirigée contre moi, est de nouveau là, identique : ça entre par le plexus solaire et affecte tout le corps et les nerfs, et il me faut toute la capacité d'attirer le calme et la liberté pour ne pas céder... Ils doivent pourtant attendre que s'espacent les groupes de visiteurs ; puis ils demandent à acheter toutes les copies du livre de SSJ que nous avons en réserve ; Ayanar et moi leur faisons une facture, et il devient alors possible de traiter toute l'affaire avec un peu d'ironie amicale... Mais comme tout cela est vieux, et si confortable encore dans sa barbarie... ! Comme ce processus d'évolution est lent !

... Plus tard, Selvam et moi retrouvons Yves, des sports, et Mallika et Asha, près de l'Urne, pour tâcher de coordonner les tâches des différentes équipes le matin du 28 Février ; ça promet d'être laborieux, étant données les tensions et revendications diverses...

Nous essayons de mettre au point une lettre ouverte en soutien de Madanlal et SSJ, en réponse aux commentaires insultants qui ont été publiés dans les « Auroville News »... Et ce soir, P vient me voir pour nier ce caractère offensif : mais il finit par admettre que la moindre des choses, pour tous ceux qui prétendent redouter l'« influence » de SSJ, serait de clarifier décemment leurs propres questions, afin que nous puissions y répondre, dans la mesure du possible...

18-2-1993, Auroville :

Mise en place des 4 symboles de Sri Aurobindo, à 16 h 30.

Il y a toute la journée un flot d'énergie, et, en même temps, comme une grande suction. Un certain nombre d'Auroviliens sont présents uniquement pour empêcher la participation éventuelle de SSJ, nous « avoir à l'œil » et « nettoyer les vibrations » des symboles qui ont été réalisés dans « le camp de l'ennemi », portant ainsi jusque dans la Chambre et jusqu'à ce point les données de notre condition collective...

Mais j'ai eu par deux fois l'expérience, fugace, mais claire, de la réponse de Sri Aurobindo : une fois, presque incidemment ce matin, alors que je me trouvais seul dans la Chambre ; puis au moment même de la pose des quatre symboles joints, comme si Son regard plaçait notre condition en relation à Sa Présence...

Et il m'a semblé que Piero a su, au-delà de sa faiblesse naturelle, rester intègre dans ses mouvements... Il faut une vigilance de chaque instant, ces jours-ci, pour ne pas entrer dans le jeu des forces, pour ne pas y prêter le moindre concours conscient... Hélas, il reste bien sûr tout ce dont on n'est pas conscient !

John H, Toine, Arjun – qui doit vite se retirer, malade et fiévreux – et moi tentons de participer à ce séminaire d' « introspection » ; je croyais avoir des choses utiles à dire, mais ni l'occasion ni le signe ne sont venus, et nous ne pouvions rester longtemps ; mais pendant que nous étions là quelques-uns de ceux qui ont parlé, parce qu'ils portaient en eux le souvenir intérieur de leur contact physique avec Toi, ont apporté cette dimension et un peu de cet état de vérité vivante – qui est Toi... !

... Selvam prend le déjeuner avec C et moi...

... Nous recevons de grandes quantités de visiteurs et, aujourd'hui, nous avons eu la visite d'une centaine de recteurs d'universités de l'Inde, ainsi que celle du Général Bakshi, grand chef militaire, accompagné de quelques-uns de ses Commandants...

... Toine aussi est fiévreux, maintenant, et Arjun est au lit !

Mallika, dans la foulée du travail, a négligé de faire participer Narayana aux choix d'organisation pour le 28 Février ; il l'assaille aujourd'hui de ses violentes récriminations et, comme à son habitude, finit par s'en prendre à moi... Mallika, déjà fatiguée, est un peu secouée ; puis, tout semble s'être apaisé...

Plus tard, Mallika et moi rencontrons Monique, qui avait interféré dans la visite de SSJ à la Chambre la semaine dernière et à qui Mallika s'adresse pour lui reprocher d'avoir agi sans essayer de comprendre d'abord la situation présente... Monique aussi tient le langage du passé...

Une effervescence générale dans Auroville, et toutes ces « personnalités importantes » à recevoir... Ce matin, nous avons eu une réunion avec le Governing Board ; Il y a cette étrange affection avec Karan Singh...

Puis, JRD Tata doit venir et son arrivée est plusieurs fois reportée ; finalement, Yolande et Fred l'accompagnent, peu après 17 h ; c'est un homme maintenant très âgé, péremptoire, grincheux et sceptique, qui peut soudain devenir doux et attentif comme un enfant : un bien curieux être, et une sorte de tyran, certainement...

Il y a aussi eu la visite, par deux fois, ambiguë et bien compliquée, de Carlo Schuller... Et celle des membres de l' « International Advisory Council »...

Cette fois Karan Singh a proposé, pour l'achèvement complet de Matrimandir et de ses Jardins, la date du 17 Novembre 1998... il y a peut-être quelque chose de vrai, là ; son attitude cette fois a été d'une qualité très appréciable...

... Arjun a toujours la fièvre ; Ramalingam et moi sommes allés le retrouver chez lui ce matin...

... Ce soir Selvam et moi faisons répéter à tous les enfants du groupe de sports mené par Yves et Rama leurs positions et leurs fonctions à l'aube du 28... C et R ont dû se rendre sans moi au spectacle de danse au Bharat Nivas...

27-12-1993, Auroville :

Il semble qu'Arjun ait attrapé la typhoïde...

28-2-1993, Auroville :

Je suis à l'amphithéâtre dès 4 h, et de garde à la Chambre jusqu'après 8 h.

Miraculeusement, tout se déroule harmonieusement, et les flammes sont belles ; ce sont des milliers de gens qui sont venus !

... Selvam a une journée difficile : Mary s'est faite attaquer physiquement par Sarala, en public, et en reste si secouée qu'elle a plus tard une crise de suffocation et doit être emmenée à l'hôpital en urgence...

... Anand et L passent la matinée ici, tranquillement, à m'aider...

... L'hélicoptère de Yolande et JRD Tata, s'en allant d'Auroville, survole toute l'aire au ras des arbres...

... Ramalingam vient ce soir, pour que nous terminions tous nos comptes et regardions ensemble la reprise des travaux au Matrimandir sur une base plus calme, maintenant que les « fêtes » sont finies...

2-3-1993, Auroville :

Il est temps de remanier tous les échafaudages autour de la sphère, et je me dispute avec tout le monde, parce que la logique du travail dicte que nous retirions de la coque les disques « prototypes », alors que l'avis général est qu'ils remplissent un rôle encore nécessaire ; je n'ai pas vraiment raison, mais j'ai du mal avec ce genre d'attitude, qui me semble uniquement politique...

... Je passe un long moment chez Arjun à lui montrer comment respirer et se détendre ; Kamal T a diagnostiqué une combinaison de pneumonie et de typhoïde, et Deepti est assaillie par cette sorte de pression vorace exercée par la famille ; ils souhaitent tous les eux que je vienne souvent...

3-3-1993, Auroville :

Devaraj fait une erreur pour le premier bétonnage du réservoir dans les Jardins ; Ramalingam lui parle très durement, et il faut ensuite le consoler...

Krishnaprasad, saoul, se bat avec un conducteur de rickshaw et un de ces magiciens qui se promènent avec un cobra dans leur sac, devant tous les visiteurs, et cela déclenche une petite émeute...

Au cours de la journée, nous sommes menés à la conclusion qu'I a volé une grosse somme d'argent de la boîte à offrandes (le « hundi », ou « tronc » !) ; s'ensuit tout un processus très délicat, avec un appel très profond, quand Toine et Ramalingam décident de me laisser seul m'occuper de lui ; je l'emmène passer un long moment, crucial pour lui, au Banyan ; puis, le soir venu, je descend avec lui à Pondy récupérer l'argent, et lui fait promettre qu'il viendra bien travailler demain – que le courage qu'il lui a fallu pour reconnaître sa faute, sans la déguiser d'aucune manière, annule en quelque sorte ses conséquences, en ce qui nous concerne...

C et R tiennent la garde jusqu'à ce que je revienne et, plus tard, John H et Ramalingam nous rejoignent...

4-3-1993, Auroville :

I est venu travailler ce matin, après avoir demandé à s'asseoir seul un moment dans la Chambre...

Ramalingam et Arjun se disputent à propos du gardien et de la scène publique d'hier ; Krishnaprasad a décidé de s'en aller...

5-3-1993, Auroville :

Il nous faut donc démonter toute une partie de l'échafaudage extérieur sans même effleurer les disques dorés, et cela cause une tension physique considérable...

... Toine et moi allons rencontrer Aster au Bharat Nivas, à propos de l'attitude très ambivalente et négative de Tripathy concernant ces visiteurs officiels qui demandent à entrer dans le Matrimandir...

... Dans la soirée se réunissent sous le banyan ceux qui ont accepté de partager une évaluation de l'évènement du 28 Février, et c'est plutôt tranquille, gentil et posé...

6-3-1993, Auroville :

C, R, Su et moi dînons à Pondy près de l'océan, après avoir fait nos courses ; de retour ici, L vient bientôt me retrouver, assez ivre : d'après lui, c'est parce que je n'ai pas eu de temps pour lui cette semaine qu'il a dû aller ce soir se saouler... !

9-3-1993, Auroville :

Il est temps d'informer Arjun de ce qui s'est passé avec I, ce que I redoute beaucoup, ainsi que VK ; elle et Toine souhaitent que je sois le premier à lui en parler...

C, R et moi partons à Madras vers 16 h.

C'est une pagaïe à l'aéroport, et leur avion est plus que complet ; je les accompagne jusqu'aux douanes, et C est très brave !

10-3-1993, Auroville :

J'ai encore de la fièvre, et le soleil tape très dur !

Et je reçois une lettre de F.G, jointe à la copie d'une lettre ouverte – qu'il a renoncé à publier dans les « Auroville News » par une sorte d'égard tardif envers le travail qui se fait au Matrimandir -, à mon sujet.

C'est un réquisitoire qui me présente comme un asura assoiffé de pouvoir, qu'il a bâti sur des déformations et interprétations de faits et de paroles reçues : Tu m'aurais ainsi interdit à jamais d'être ici ; j'aurais attendu Ton départ physique pour revenir quand même et exercer mon influence ; Satprem lui-même m'aurait décrit comme un « petit serpent », etc.

Cela m'a fait comprendre que F.G a probablement été à l'origine d'un certain nombre de rumeurs qui m'ont harcelé au cours des années, se réclamant pour cela d'une courte période d'amitié que nous avons connue à Pondy en 1970... Je suis si lent, ou idiot, ou naïf, ou si préoccupé de distinguer en moi-même ce qui contribue à tout ce drame, que je n'y avais jamais réfléchi...

Alors, en fin de journée, j'ai rédigé à la machine à écrire une réponse assez brève, relatant particulièrement ce moment où Tu as choisi de me donner l'ordre de partir ; comme si le temps était venu de défaire cette formation...

11-3-1993, Auroville :

La fièvre a augmenté, et ce n'est guère pratique : j'oublie les choses, et me trouve embarrassé...

La nouvelle équipe de tailleurs de pierre est arrivée ce matin et s'est installée sur le site, avec outils, matériaux et batterie de cuisine...

Aujourd'hui j'ai un peu regretté d'avoir mis dans les « Auroville News » ce texte sur la perspective de notre travail à Auroville : n'est-ce pas prétentieux ? Probablement, après cette attaque de F.G, c'est le souhait de passer plutôt « inaperçu » et de n'attirer aucune attention qui me fait sentir ainsi... ?

14-3-1993, Auroville :

Cette fièvre ne me lâche pas, et ça devient pénible et nerveusement fatigant...

... Madhav Pandit quitte son corps, à Madras...

15-3-1993, Auroville :

Hier soir, pendant que Su était sortie, un voleur est entré dans la maison de C et prit son argent, sa caméra, et une machine à faire des jus de fruits ; puis il est allé à la maison de Myriam et, à l'aide d'un long crochet au bout d'un bâton, s'est emparé de son sac...

... Je me sens comme pris dans un étau, à la dérive : il y a une dépression physique, et la fièvre continue ; c'est le même vieil adversaire, cet abandon négatif dans le rien ; mais je vois maintenant que c'est vraiment la mort, la mort de la conscience : ce mensonge...

Tout est comme lointain, et sans rapport ; il n'y a plus d'impulsion, ni de don, ni de confiance ; l'énergie ne coule plus et rien n'a de sens, c'est l'incapacité sans issue et aucun espoir que cela change, et tout cela est cristallisé dans le corps...

Alors, ce soir, j'ai avalé des antibiotiques et des vitamines, et j'ai passé plusieurs heures à ranger, trier et tailler dans des tas de papiers, de notes et de lettres : le début d'une remise en ordre qui est bien nécessaire...

16-3-1993, Auroville :

Toine est aussi démuni par le même « rhume », et cela nous fait réfléchir : est-il juste de chercher ainsi à aller plus vite, quand nous sommes si peu nombreux à assurer ?

17-3-1993, Auroville :

Ramalingam pense souvent à partir, tous les deux, pour quelques jours, n'importe où : faire le vide et laisser aller ; mais nous ne voyons pas comment l'arranger : du point de vue du travail, c'est un peu risqué, car il n'y a personne pour nous remplacer...

18-3-1993, Auroville :

Beaucoup de rosée ce matin encore : ce sont des moments si jolis, comme une caresse ou un sourire secret de la terre, de sa nature...

Toine me fait avaler une « pilule spéciale » pour assécher le marasme du rhume, et cela semble avoir plus d'effet que les antibiotiques n'en ont eu...

... Le « Development Group » a finalement donné à Su la permission de construire une extension de 30 m², si elle signe une liste de plusieurs conditions (guère acceptables et exprimant surtout le manque d'autorité réelle de ce groupe), alors que nous sommes prêts à signer encore et encore le document de « non propriété »... Ils n'ont rien répondu à ma lettre. Alors il me semble que le mieux désormais est de garder le silence ; s'ils veulent servir la vérité, il faut que ce soit son propre pouvoir de conviction qui agisse : ce ne peut plus être une question d'opinions...

19-3-1993, Auroville :

Un des nouveaux ouvriers aux Jardins se blesse au pied et le tendon d'Achille est coupé ; il faut lui faire subir une opération...

... Madanlal est revenu, après deux semaines de retraite silencieuse...

Arjun est de retour à son poste...

23-3-1993, Auroville :

Toine et moi préparons une série d'estimatifs pour les 2 années à venir...

... Ca ne va pas avec Selvam ; il se refuse à établir une discipline ; on n'arrive à rien partager, et je n'ai plus d'inspiration pour le tirer ou l'accompagner : il faut qu'il choisisse...

24-3-1993, Auroville :

Réunion générale en fin de matinée, à propos de la Maintenance d'Angamma, de la transition éventuelle du statut d'ouvriers à celui de « nouveaux venus » pour quelques-uns de nos gars, et de la formation d'une équipe monitrice de tous ceux qui sont sur la liste des Maintenances...

25-3-1993, Auroville :

Une vague de chaleur a déferlé, et tous les corps font un effort d'adaptation ; il y a des moments de creux, où nos gars sont comme arrêtés, et je n'ai pas le cœur de les secouer !

27-3-1993, Auroville :

L vient dîner avec moi, avant son tour de garde : c'est sans complications, sans poids, et si plein de gentillesse... !

... Plus tard dans la nuit, un voleur pénètre chez Ar. et Ritam et Ar. siffle l'alarme – nous avons distribué des sifflets dans chaque maison -, mais nous arrivons trop tard...

29-3-1993, Auroville :

L, et un autre de nos gars, Manipal, sont impliqués dans une rixe et un meurtre qui ont eu lieu hier soir, près du « Toddy Shop » dans le village, où tant de nos hommes vont boire... La police est venue ce matin les arrêter, au travail. Il y a deux autres suspects.

Rien que nous puissions faire. L a eu tous les avertissements possibles...

Je ne sais pas...

... Avec l'équipe de la Chambre, nous nous mettons d'accord sur le texte d'une réponse à F.G...

... VK doit terminer les comptes de l'année financière et je dois à nouveau la raccompagner chez elle, tard chaque soir...

30-3-1993, Auroville :

Ni Ramalingam ni moi n'avons d'enthousiasme... ! Cette dernière histoire – de L – est comme une faille de déperdition, un ressort à l'envers... Il faut presque une lutte pour persévérer dans le quotidien...

... Arjun me reconforte, avec son désir de partager la belle expérience qu'il vient d'avoir, en la compagnie de Sonal Mansingh...

... Visite d'Amal Kiran, sa première expérience du Matrimandir : nous le montons en chaise jusqu'à la Chambre, et c'est un doux moment, bienfaisant...

Visite, aussi, et presque en même temps, de Ruthy Patel, qu'il faut aussi accompagner...

... Et en fin de journée je décide de descendre seul à Pondy, pour essayer d'obtenir des nouvelles précises de L, et aussi pour chercher un cadeau pour la fête de Selvam, et acheter... un piège à rats ! Au poste de police de Kottakuppam, je contacte les 2 Inspecteurs, que je connais un peu ; assez gentiment, ils me reçoivent dans une pièce séparée, et m'offrent du thé ; après une conversation plutôt fraternelle, ils font chercher L et me l'amènent ; il a avoué, ainsi que Manipal et un autre gars de leur village ; et devant les Inspecteurs il me raconte toute la scène : il est comme un enfant, pas vicieux, ni honteux, ni dramatique ; il est simple et direct, un tout petit enfant qui s'est trompé, gravement trompé, mais ne ment pas... J'ai bien du mal à ne pas le prendre dans mes bras... Peut-être toute sa vie est à présent en échec, une impasse, et il n'y a rien que je puisse faire, vraiment...

Jaïvel, dont c'est le cousin qui a été tué, se tient à l'entrée du poste quand j'en ressors, et je passe un moment avec lui aussi...

31-3-1993, Auroville :

L'action de L et de Manipal, ainsi probablement que ma visite hier au poste de police, ont provoqué bien des remous... Un certain nombre de villageois qui ne me connaissent pas se sont saisis de la formation selon laquelle je soutiendrais de mon amitié et de mes « ressources » les pires éléments – ainsi N dans le passé, et Rajaram et L maintenant – et toutes sortes de mensonges dans ce sens se sont mis à circuler ; tout cela soucie beaucoup mon Selvam, qui m'a interdit de faire quoique ce soit pour venir en aide à L, et je dois lui parler longtemps pour le rassurer et le convaincre que je n'ai pas la moindre intention d'intervenir à ce niveau et que je ne l'ai jamais fait pour personne... Le problème est que ces remous sont particulièrement dirigés vers la police locale (que j'ai pourtant rencontrée hier, sans ambiguïté), et cela se complique de toutes sortes de motivations intéressées parmi les ouvriers...

Toute cette histoire fait de la peine ; il y aussi ma tristesse égoïste d'être séparé de L pour longtemps peut-être, comme une fin obscure qui nie et défigure toute la tendresse et la gentillesse partagée...

Cette sauvagerie qui prend le dessus, sans que rien dans l'être ne vienne l'équilibrer ou la neutraliser, quand l'effet de l'alcool a dissous les inhibitions de l'état ordinaire, cette sauvagerie est comme une ignorance foncière, une simple absence de la conscience. Ce n'est pas la cruauté, ni même la violence au sens que le développement mental a donné à ces termes ; c'est plutôt une virginité, une béance, une « informité », l'illustration d'une absence de développement due à une sorte de très longue stagnation de la réalité individuelle dans cette société et cette culture...

Réunion à propos du soutien économique qu'Auroville pourrait tenter d'instaurer pour le travail du Matrimandir (la « communauté » n'a en fait jamais participé activement au financement de Matrimandir) ; nous rassemblons nos suggestions...

... La femme de L est venue me trouver ici à l'heure du repas, désespérée, espérant que je choisirais d'aider légalement ou financièrement, comme c'est la coutume de le faire dans ce pays, pour que L soit libéré ; il n'en est pas question, mais je lui donne le nécessaire pour la nourriture de leurs enfants, car elle semble n'avoir aucun autre soutien...

3-4-1993, Auroville :

Ce soir Luca, avec une très gentille insistance, nous a invités à dîner, Toine et Meenakshi, Arjun et Deepti, et Su et moi, dans sa maison à « Gaïa » où il vit avec Martina, Simon et Angelo : une belle demeure, harmonieuse et tranquille, bien équilibrée ; après le dîner, il nous montre 3 films vidéo de Toi : un délice intense, de Te voir... !

Toine, John H, Arjun et moi assistons, pour une partie de la journée, à un séminaire interne sur l'économie d'Auroville ; c'est Toine et moi qui avons la tâche de communiquer nos suggestions et notre approche... Le climat d'Auroville se reflète dans ce petit groupe de participants ; c'est encore très mélangé et traversé de contradictions et d'attitudes très partielles, mais il y a quelques moments de réflexion profonde, d'élan et d'ouverture...

13-4-1993, Auroville :

Nar est venu me trouver ce matin, avant que je parte travailler ; puis il est revenu en début d'après-midi, d'abord ici, puis au Matrimandir, et s'est conduit très bizarrement : un mélange de violence et de déséquilibre, de méchanceté et de désespoir, quelque chose de très tordu et primaire, mais aussi un besoin, étouffé dans le tamas... Il semble présumer que c'est mon devoir de l'aider, puisqu'il a été un assistant personnel pour D.M et Janaka, sous ma direction, à la fin de leur vie...

Arjun m'emmène à Pondy pour retrouver Toine chez Madanlal ; ils avaient arrangé cette réunion sans m'en informer, me gardant en réserve comme leur « arme secrète » ; la situation financière de Matrimandir est au plus bas, et il faut absolument constituer une nouvelle base d'énergie ; et il semble alors que l'affection qui existe entre Madanlal et moi puisse aider. Mais l'élément calculateur qui a contribué à l'arrangement de cette réunion m'a gêné... Pourtant je crois que, chacun à sa manière, on fait de son mieux...

Nous avons une autre réunion, sans SSJ cette fois ; c'est un moment important, parce que Ta Présence est très tangible : le temps s'efface et il n'y a plus que Toi, Ton travail et Ton chemin, et cette conscience derrière le cœur qui T'offre tout...

1-5-1993, Auroville :

Jour de congé universel !

Je vais et viens entre Matrimandir et le jardin ici, et les dessins que je termine pour la fête de Deepti ; une longue sieste dans la journée ; puis une ruée de « vacanciers » que Selvam, dont c'est le tour au pavillon, ne parvient pas endiguer, et nous nous disputons, sur un malentendu, devant un homme qui s'est fait le porte-parole d'un groupe d'une centaine de touristes, et cela nous rend tous les deux bien tristes... Cette question du tourisme, et du droit du public, est très délicate et très laborieuse : il y a là un jeu de forces qui a le pouvoir de retarder tout le vrai travail à Auroville, et notre tamas et notre manque de flamme favorisent de dangereuses ambiguïtés...

... Je lis un roman remarquablement écrit, un témoignage merveilleusement lucide de la substance et de la condition humaine, « Disturbances in the Field », par Lynne Sharon Schwartz...

4-5-1993, Auroville :

Deepti s'est rendue disponible pour nous aider à préparer et composer une nouvelle brochure pour Matrimandir...

J.L est de nouveau malade, une sorte d'épuisement nerveux soudain, et il faut aller doucement pour les travaux des Pétales...

... Madanlal passe tout l'après-midi et la soirée avec moi ; je l'emmène d'abord tout en haut de la structure, puis voir tous les travaux ; puis il vient et reste ici avec moi jusqu'à 20 h ; il y a toute son affection ; il y a ce sens d'une appartenance inconditionnelle à Ta Volonté, à Ta Force ; il est calme et détendu, et il me récite, ou m'énonce une longue prière à Toi, bien précieuse...

Je ne sais pas... C'est quand il m'est demandé d'être le plus disponible et le plus transparent que je me sens le plus mélangé et le plus résistant... !

C'est comme ça !

Une autre réunion avec Madanlal et SSJ, dont c'est la fête aujourd'hui...

Une explosion entre Toine et Arjun à propos de certaines mesures administratives qu'Arjun a encouragé VK à prendre – un peu excessives peut-être...

... Deepti et moi commençons à travailler sur cette nouvelle brochure...

11-5-1993, Auroville :

Deepti a formulé une proposition bien claire et centrée pour un programme de publications nécessaires concernant Matrimandir...
... Ramalingam est très perturbé affectivement ces temps ci dans sa vie personnelle, et cela affecte constamment les relations qui se situent dans notre champ de travail...

12-5-1993, Auroville :

Il est certainement possible de s'établir dans une sorte d'espace solitaire de compréhension de chacun ; mais il me semble qu'ici il nous faut surtout atteindre à une qualité de partage conscient et dynamique, progressif, et cela demande une vigilance constante et un souci constant de l'équilibre, ainsi qu'une honnêteté rigoureuse...
... Deux jeunes voyous d'Edayachavadi viennent à nouveau provoquer physiquement trois de nos ouvriers dans les Jardins, misant probablement sur un potentiel de soutien de la part des ouvriers qui viennent du même village ; et plus tard Ramalingam me reproche à nouveau d'avoir engagé deux maçons d'Edayachavadi ; mais c'est un reproche que je ne puis accepter : nous ne pouvons pas favoriser un village plutôt qu'un autre...
... Le Secrétaire, Tripathy, a reçu une pétition signée par, me dit-on, une cinquantaine de villageois, qui m'accuse d'avoir soutenu les « criminels » et donne une version des faits plus que fantaisiste (ainsi, par exemple, ils auraient été découverts dans la maison ici !)... Et c'est Toine et Arjun, une fois de plus, qui doivent me défendre... !

13-5-1993, Auroville :

Hier il a été décidé que toutes les unités commerciales d'Auroville contribueraient à la construction de Matrimandir la somme totale de toutes les taxes qui seraient collectées par le Gouvernement si Auroville n'en était pas exempté... C'est un pas !

14-5-1993, Auroville :

Que ce soit dans la relation avec le public et les visiteurs, ou dans nos travaux et tâches collectifs, il y a en permanence le problème de l'équilibre entre, d'une part, la confiance et le respect, et d'autre part la nécessité de servir une volonté d'exactitude et de vérité dans l'action... La nature humaine ne permet pas que l'on se repose dans une attitude définitive : il faut une attention et une exigence de chaque instant, une disponibilité à l'action, et une adaptabilité à de nouvelles évaluations et à des réponses qui n'ont pas de précédents... C'est un peu vertigineux, et les autres yogas semblent presque simples en comparaison...

15-5-1993, Auroville :

... Ce contrat pour la taille des pierres nous cause du souci ; c'est comme un nœud qui se serre plus on s'agite ; Arjun est convaincu que Ramalingam et moi n'avons pas été assez stricts et que Ramalingam particulièrement n'a pas examiné d'assez près les termes initiaux du contrat...

... Il y a depuis hier un conflit plutôt féroce entre Hero et Tripathy et Tripathy a fait intervenir la police qui est venue arrêter Hero ; tout un groupe d'Auroviliens s'est alors rassemblé pour demander à ce que Tripathy revienne sur sa décision... Bien que de manières différentes, c'est assez vilain des deux côtés : du côté d'Auroville, c'est injustifiable, et du côté de Tripathy, c'est très ordinaire ; j'avais prévenu Auroson que ses actions ne pourraient qu'aboutir à cette sorte de petit drame, et réalisé en lui parlant qu'il était en fait motivé, précisément, par cette volonté de conflit...

Nous avons fermé la Réception aujourd'hui : pas de visiteurs...

... Su, tôt ce matin, est venue me raconter « son Japon » comme une enfant ramenant son butin...

... Lettre de JYL : ils ont réservé leurs billets pour le 16 Septembre...

C'est une course d'obstacles... ! Javier, très tôt, pour que je refasse son bandage ; Arunasalam et le travail ici ; puis Andy me fait parvenir le message que la police s'apprête à m'arrêter, parce que j'aurais refusé de me rendre à leur convocation trois fois de suite ; l'une des charges est que j'aurais, de façon menaçante, touché l'épaule du Gouverneur lors de sa dernière visite... Puis, une réunion générale très pénible, appelée une fois de plus par L.N, à propos des « Maintenances » et de l'addition d'Arundati sur la liste : la même scène qui se répète, presque mot pour mot, depuis des années...

Et puis, Ramalingam est pris dans son problème personnel affectif et ne saisit ni le sens ni la nécessité d'être « plus grand que l'expérience » et d'apprendre à se donner ; il est si troublé que je ne puis plus guère compter sur lui dans le travail...

Et d'autres malentendus s'égrènent tout au long de la journée...

Plusieurs des membres de l'équipe de la Chambre seront absents dans les semaines qui viennent, et on ne voit pas comment organiser le service...

Peut-être tout cela se présente parce qu'on doit apprendre à s'en remettre directement à la Force et Sa loi, alors que nous faisons tous écran avec nos bonnes comme avec nos mauvaises volontés... Emotionnellement, c'est bien et utile de voir cela ; mais est-ce la vraie vérité ? Je ne sais pas...

... Jaïraman vient me trouver, pour se défaire près de moi de cette violence désespérée qui le mine, attisée cette fois par une remarque publique de Silvio qui l'a intensément blessé...

... Et puis c'est la visite inattendue d'Himal : il vient avec un profond besoin de comprendre, après qu'il ait fondu en larmes près de Matrimandir ; il me parle de tout ce que les Auroviliens qu'il fréquente, avec lesquels il vit et grandit, sentent et disent de ce qui se passe à Matrimandir – que ça va trop vite, que ce n'est plus « leur » Matrimandir, que nous avons pris le pouvoir sur le processus qui leur est dû et que nous ne respectons pas la loi de la communauté en allant ainsi de l'avant « coûte que coûte »... Nous parlons longtemps... C'est un bel être, mais il a été soumis à des influences lourdes et sans flamme...

Je ne sais pas si je Te sers, si nous Te servons. Seule Tu peux le dire...

D'un point de vue simplement ordinaire et humain, il me semble que notre orientation est beaucoup plus inconfortable qu'un choix qui serait dicté par l'ambition ou l'intérêt égoïste – de l'ego... Mais il y a évidemment beaucoup de nettoyage à faire... !

Les malentendus repoussent comme de mauvaises herbes...

Par deux fois aujourd'hui Arjun et moi devons nous rendre au poste de police ; Arjun se met en avant pour me garantir.

A la seconde fois, la plus longue, John H, Su et Subramaniam sont également présents, pour le vol qui a eu lieu dans la maison de Su...

Tous les ressentiments sont en jeu, avec vengeance, pour avoir ma tête : il y a le fait que j'essaie d'établir une éthique pour l'accès à la Chambre qui soit libre de ces « privilèges » sociaux, alors que la « coutume » exige l'opposé ; il y a le fait que je donne mon amitié et mon affection à nos gars sans me soucier des conséquences ; et l'influence des divers conflits en Auroville...

Arjun fait un beau travail d'amadouement, et John H impétueusement prend ma défense, et j'éprouve tant d'affection pour eux, et d'émotion envers cette solidarité qui nous lie...

En même temps, j'ai cette tristesse : j'ai beau me réduire et me limiter, j'ai beau renoncer et laisser se dissoudre, mes mouvements continuent de déranger et de provoquer des remous... Je ne le souhaite pas : je ne souhaite pas attirer l'attention, ni déranger ; je ne crois pas que j'ai quoi que ce soit à montrer... Et pourtant, même si, intellectuellement, je deviens de plus en plus « idiot » et incapable, même si je me laisse, du point de vue de la conscience, annuler ou disparaître pour simplement pouvoir assurer une continuité dans un quotidien de travail auprès d'êtres qui sont mentalement peu développés, chacun de mes gestes semble porter malgré tout une charge qui dérange...

... Il est tard quand je rentre pour mon tour de garde et Sumathi et Ramalingam m'ont remplacé en attendant mon retour ; Javier vient alors pour son bandage ; j'ai commencé de lui donner des antibiotiques (il a une longue histoire de blessures qui ne guérissent pas et de sang mal équilibré, une faiblesse congénitale qu'il ne me décrit que ce soir, quand je commençais à douter du traitement que je lui administre : c'est une étrange histoire, car il est né en retard, à 10 mois, par césarienne, et trois de ses frères sont morts enfants et sa mère est constamment en difficulté)...

... Cette question revient : est-ce juste pour moi de persévérer ici ?

Oui, il y a de merveilleuses amitiés, et de précieux encouragements ; et cela en soi me donnerait la responsabilité de continuer. Mais ce n'est pas isolé : c'est constamment en rapport avec une opposition si multiple et tentaculaire... Je ne sais pas...

... Si seulement L avait pu ou su choisir le pouvoir harmonisateur de notre amitié, avait su garder ses mouvements transparents et offerts et ne pas trahir la confiance donnée... A travers lui, c'est comme si une rencontre très profonde avait failli...

J'ai demandé ce soir à Ramalingam de me dire honnêtement ce qu'il sentait et voyait, si mon attitude en général constituait un danger, et devait changer...

Il m'a répondu, très justement et simplement : de l'intérieur tout est bien et tout est à sa place et tout a un sens et il comprend toujours ; de l'extérieur cela apparaît comme des erreurs de jugement, prêtant à toutes les interprétations...

Arjun est sur le sentier de guerre ! Il est désormais assez clair que Tripathy a joué un rôle destructeur dans cette affaire de pétition, et que nous avons à traiter avec une certaine orchestration de mauvaises volontés envers Matrimandir, et que les termes particuliers de cette attaque ne sont qu'une incidence...

Il y a de ces jours où je ressens comme une fierté dans le cœur, une fierté de la qualité d'engagement et de réponse de ces quelques êtres avec qui il m'est donné de partager un peu ce chemin...

21-5-1993, Auroville :

Comment, pratiquement et dans le geste physique de chaque instant, apprendre à s'en remettre à l'action concrète de la Force ?

Le cerveau est en faillite, et ne le remplace qu'une sorte de confiance vague en la Présence qui habite les circonstances, permée les mouvements des uns et des autres ou se fraye un chemin entre ou malgré eux... Même si l'on est déterminé à ne pas juger du point de vue étroit de la construction mentale, et même si l'on a le besoin de laisser couler en soi et dans le corps et la vie un courant du Vrai et du Direct, on demeure tout de même une imposition de limites, ne serait-ce que par le regard et l'interprétation d'autrui...

23-5-1993, Auroville :

Ce soir encore, tard, tout un petit drame se déroule entre le Camp et les bureaux avec Jaïraman, Dhanapal, Ayanar, et les gardiens qui s'en mêlent, et c'est John H qui finit par m'amener un Jaïraman tout à fait ivre et désespéré, et je dois le tirer à nouveau, jusqu'après minuit, pour qu'il retrouve une perspective et un mouvement du cœur...

C'est donc cette idiotie de « vacances », et Selvam est obligé, à l'Information, de faire le travail de 3 personnes...

... La chaleur est accablante, mais il y a un moment bien tranquille, à prendre des photos dans le Banyan ; Anand m'accompagne, et nous nous reposons ensuite, sur l'herbe, dans la fraîcheur de la brise qui circule toujours sous les branches...

... Cette hargne des petits officiels contre moi ne lâche pas, contre la position que j'ai adoptée et représenté, plutôt : l'accès à la Chambre de Matrimandir exclut les privilèges de la société ordinaire, et chacun vient à Toi comme une âme devant le Suprême...

... Le Gouverneur, victime des pressions antagonistes entre le Centre et l'Etat du Tamil Nadu, a dû remettre sa démission...

25-5-1993, Auroville :

Il faut étudier tous les détails de toute l'infrastructure pour la sphère et les Jardins, et c'est comme un deuxième corps vu par le mental... Presque un cauchemar !

... Réunion de Coordination, jusque tard... Il nous faut choisir ensemble, soit de ne plus du tout s'occuper de cette affaire de Maintenance pour les Auroviliens qui censément travaillent au Matrimandir, soit de partager les responsabilités et traverser ensemble les orages... et c'est ce que, finalement, nous décidons... !

... J'écris à D.D ce soir, pour lui demander quelques photographies pour la brochure...

27-5-1993, Auroville :

Ce soir I vient ici se délivrer des tensions qu'il rencontre au bureau ; mais il lui faut choisir aussi ; je dois lui parler longtemps...

Puis Su, qui est très troublée par la visite de Subramaniam : il est venu lui demander de l'argent, pour les démarches qu'il a faites auprès de la police afin de recouvrer les objets volés (il reçoit sa Maintenance d'Auroville pour faire précisément ce travail)...

28-5-1993, Auroville :

L arrive ! Il est sorti de prison, sous conditions...

Je ne l'avais plus revu depuis cette dernière fois au poste de police...

Après le choc du premier regard, c'est comme une réalisation, et il est pris dans une longue crise de sanglots, les sanglots profonds d'un condamné...

J'ai le cœur si serré...

Puis, petit à petit, ça se mélange et s'apaise en même temps...

Je le laisse alors revenir à cette tendresse que nous avons si longtemps partagée...

Mais je sais que je ne pourrai pas l'aider extérieurement, tant que le procès n'a pas abouti et la peine n'est pas purgée, car cela compromettrait trop de choses et irait à l'encontre de mes responsabilités présentes...

1-6-1993, Auroville :

Nous devons tout préparer pour la visite annoncée du nouveau Gouverneur du Tamil Nadu, demain matin...

2-6-1993, Auroville :

Radhakrishna, le plus âgé de mes deux jardiniers, celui qui travaille ici depuis le premier jour, s'est pendu à un arbre, ce matin à l'aube, du côté de la route ; je ne le découvre là, au bout de la corde, qu'au moment où j'allais partir au travail (il a l'habitude de rester dormir dans l'appentis)...

Je savais qu'il avait du mal à vivre depuis quelques temps, des disputes continuelles avec sa famille, une santé mauvaise – opéré d'une hernie -, et l'âge... mais je ne puis comprendre pourquoi il a fait ça ici, comme une attaque.

Je le gardais ici bien que depuis déjà plusieurs années il ne puisse plus faire grand-chose, mais c'est comme s'il avait voulu me porter tort aussi ; ou bien il a été, dans son désarroi, l'instrument d'autre chose qui s'en prend à moi et à notre travail au Matrimandir, comme on a pu le vérifier assez vite dans l'attitude hostile et insidieuse de la police à mon égard...

C'est l'exemple dramatique de toute une corruption des mœurs, d'une pléthore de problèmes typiques de cette culture : Radhakrishna devait marier sa fille dans 10 jours, et pour cela il lui faudrait s'endetter pour couvrir la dot et tous les frais...

... Il faut tout organiser pour qu'enfin, des heures plus tard, le corps soit emmené ; toute notre équipe est mobilisée et solidaire, et il faut rassembler l'argent pour le transport, les frais d'autopsie (obligatoire selon la loi) et les funérailles...

La visite attendue du Gouverneur est finalement annulée...

... Une grande fatigue, et une tristesse et une colère et une question, et un appel...

Je dois me rendre demain à la police, qui menace sourdement de m'arrêter...

K.T vient nous retrouver au bureau dans l'après-midi... : je suis très ému de la solidarité de ces quelques êtres ici...

... Ce soir, je passe mon tour de garde allongé sur le tas de sable devant la structure, la lune haut dans le ciel, une brise rafraîchissante et John H pour compagnie... Su a passé longtemps à balayer soigneusement tout le jardin, après que tous ces gens soient partis...

3-6-1993, Auroville :

Ce matin, après la distribution du travail, Toine m'a accompagné au poste de police, et c'était une bonne aide, je crois ; c'est devenu un peu difficile de traiter avec cette formation active dirigée sur moi, et je n'ai pas encore assimilé le fait du suicide de Radhakrishna, ni de sa manière ; alors, même si je sais bien que ce n'est là qu'un prétexte pour atteindre et contredire ou empêcher la réalité nouvelle que Matrimandir représente, d'entendre encore ces insinuations et accusations, et d'être harassé ainsi et désigné comme suspect d'un meurtre déguisé... demandait tout le calme et toute la patience et l'offrande dont j'étais capable...

... Une longue pluie est venue dans l'après-midi : pas de visiteurs, et peu de travail accompli aujourd'hui...

4-6-1993, Auroville :

J'ai dormi dix heures d'affilée la nuit dernière, après une pluie violente ; et aujourd'hui l'air est calme et le ciel est couvert, et c'est un repos...

Arjun est rentré de Bangalore, et Toine lui conte nos dernières aventures...

... Gajendran vient me voir à propos de la réduction de sa Maintenance (il est devenu beaucoup trop paresseux) : il semble essayer honnêtement d'attraper un mouvement plus vrai en lui, et cela m'inspire un peu d'amitié...

... La situation n'est pas encore éclaircie avec la police – qui représente en ce moment l'affirmation de tous ces petits pouvoirs de la grande farce qui doit abdiquer, en nous et dans le monde... Et il semble que nous soyons devant un choix, au pied de Matrimandir : ou bien nous acceptons un compromis, par « réalisme » - mais en vérité par manque de confiance, de sincérité et d'équilibre intérieur -, ou nous tenons bon et nous déclarons prêts à lutter ensemble, quelles que soient les conséquences, pour qu'un lieu au moins sur cette terre humaine soit dédié à la vérité vivante dans les êtres et à son seul pouvoir...

... Pour la petite histoire, je remplis une fois de plus le rôle de « celui par qui le scandale arrive » ; j'essaie d'écarter tout recul ou repli sur moi-même ; dans un sens, c'est relativement aisé, puisque je suis pas du tout concerné « personnellement » ; mais je suis à ce point où je ne peux plus accepter ces formations qui se précipitent et dont je suis, aux yeux des autres, la « cible »...

... Selvam, dans ces moments, est adorable : il est clair alors que son cœur est grand ouvert et sa loyauté sans ombre...

5-6-1993, Auroville :

Variation sur la même scène, ce matin, au poste de police : un Subramaniam fuyant et vicieux, au service de quelque chose de très malveillant ; l'Inspecteur satisfait de sa pose, déclarant que je reste à leurs yeux le suspect principal, puis indiquant la possibilité d'un paiement ; Toine s'accrochant à la position qu'il juge la plus efficace, avec toute sa solidarité...

Puis une rencontre avec K.T, qui est maintenant déterminé à partir en bataille, en vrai soldat qu'il est, aux prises pourtant avec une opposition infiniment plus complexe et retorse...

Plus tard, une longue discussion, malaisée, avec Arjun, qui tend à croire que je devrais m'écarter et me rendre invisible pour quelques temps, et me faire remplacer à la réception des visiteurs... Mais par qui ?

Si assez d'entre nous ne sont pas capables d'affirmer l'orientation, alors ces mêmes difficultés que nous affrontons aujourd'hui – les revendications des petits pouvoirs du faux – deviendront réellement insurmontables, et quelque grande brisure devra alors se produire pour ouvrir à nouveau l'aventure, à d'autres et dans d'autres conditions...

Tout cela est assez absorbant, et déconcertant...

Je ne sais ni comment ni pourquoi les récentes circonstances se sont arrangées ainsi... Je vois bien, dans une petite mesure, la solidarité obscure de tout ce qui ment, comme un tissu qui constamment cherche à se reformer, un peu en deçà des apparences, et comment les mouvements des uns et des autres y contribuent à plusieurs niveaux... Et qu'un être comme Subramaniam, par exemple, au sein même d'Auroville, puisse fonctionner confortablement et enrouler ainsi, quotidiennement, la même pourriture... Et, bien sûr, toutes ces histoires colportées à mon sujet, qui circulent maintenant dans ce milieu de corruption...

Alors, la question qui revient : est ce que mon existence ici n'apporte pas plus de trouble que de service véritable ? Ne devrais-je pas me plier enfin, céder à la pression négative, d'où qu'elle vienne, et renoncer, partir ?

Voilà.

Et, ce soir, la douceur de ce jardin régénéré, nourri, cette tendresse, la présence de Ton amour en ce lieu qui a été mon refuge, ma protection et mon havre depuis près de 20 ans...

Veux Tu me garder ici ?

8-6-1993, Auroville :

La famille de Radhakrishna est venue me trouver ici, tôt ce matin, et me demander l'argent de ses années de service ; j'ai accepté de leur remettre demain la somme que j'estime raisonnable : Rs 6,000/-, en plus des Rs 3,000/- déjà versées pour les funérailles...

... Travail de coffrage et d'échafaudage ; travail avec Deepti sur la brochure...

... Selvam a un moment difficile avec Arjun, et il se met à sangloter, ce qui me tord le cœur ; Arjun est si inconscient de son effet sur les autres !

Puis je dois tenter de ramener A à une perspective viable, à propos de deux « Auroviliennes » qui travaillent à la Nursery (et, puisqu'elles ont le statut, ont le droit supérieur par conséquent d'en faire moins que les autres), qui lui ont donné bien du mal récemment...

... Tout est tellement mélangé : dans les mêmes consciences, un germe de vérité, qui émerge d'un marasme persistant, et pas le pouvoir de changement ; mais, parce que ce germe de vérité est là, cela impose ou oblige à de la tolérance, à une acceptation patiente, et ainsi on avale en même temps une masse de fausseté, de drame et d'intensité obscure...

Le pari « impossible » de continuer les travaux partout à la fois, pour que Matrimandir soit entier – malgré tout et sans la moindre garantie extérieure : la pratique consciente de ce pari, dans le détail et la psychologie multiple du quotidien, doit porter, certainement, son enseignement et son action transformatrice... ? Mais je ne sais rien : il n'y a rien dans la tête que ces mille détails du moment ; au-dessus, c'est le calme et le silence...

Il y a ces temps-ci, dans Auroville, une crise grave, agencée par l'association des réactions du Secrétaire et des visées d'un certain nombre d'Auroviliens... Cet homme est épris de vengeance et a soif de reconnaissance, et il est déjà parfois un instrument pour ce qui contredit l'existence même d'Auroville, bien qu'il soit aussi, parfois, celui du devenir d'Auroville ; il y a encore le passage de la ligne dans les deux sens, et rien n'est arrêté... Ce qui est critique, comme toujours, c'est le manque de la qualité nécessaire en « nous »... !

A chaque fois il me faut des heures pour retrouver un équilibre et une confiance dans les énergies... Et, ce soir, visite fulminante d'Arundati, incitée par Narayana... et tous ces petits mensonges... Puis, I, qui m'a cherché depuis deux jours, et j'essaie d'accompagner, là, une possibilité d'ouverture...

Une secousse inattendue : je me laisse déborder par ma propre réaction à l'attitude d'Arjun, à propos de détails administratifs que je ne parviens pas à comprendre clairement, tant ils sont mêlés à toutes sortes de mouvements psychologiques, d'assomptions et de jugements ; peut-être se montre-t-il plus qu'à l'habitude excessif, outrecuidant et injuste, je ne sais pas, mais, malgré un avertissement concret de la Force, je me laisse emporter par une réponse plutôt bruyante et démonstrative – je suis en colère ! Et je m'en vais ! Mais c'est évident pour tout le monde, y compris pour lui, que ce n'est pas vraiment de la colère, mais plutôt une tristesse, une perte de confiance et un retrait ; et je suis affecté par une accumulation de petites complicités et partialités entre lui et Ramalingam, dans ces tourbillons qu'il ne cesse de nourrir et provoquer...

Je ne lui en veux pas ; mais je regrette de n'avoir pas su trouver une réponse vivante plus haute et plus vraie, même s'il est clair qu'il y a quelque chose à redresser, urgemment, de son côté...

C'est un labeur que de persévérer et se maintenir à flots, dans le travail...

Je m'abstiens de la réunion, cet après-midi, et Toine vient me trouver après, anxieux d'aider à rétablir l'harmonie...

Il y a dans le corps une fatigue et le sens d'une accélération du processus négatif du « temps »...

Il y a une masse de « choses » éprouvées ou perçues dans la conscience - et une capacité infime, absurdement insignifiante, de tenir la charge, de laisser être et s'incarner...

21-7-1993, Auroville :

Tenir, persévérer, endurer... sans rien durcir, et sans rien ignorer non plus... tenir, les yeux ouverts et la conscience offerte...

Toute l'énergie est absorbée par la nécessité d'endurer, et je n'ai rien à donner, qu'une sorte de sens de la responsabilité, ou du devoir, ou de la solidarité... je ne sais pas...

22-7-1993, Auroville :

Réunion au crépuscule, à l'amphithéâtre, avec Asha, Selvam et Aryamani, pour chercher ensemble les formes et l'arrangement de la cérémonie du 15 Août prochain...

Après le travail, Anand m'aide à sélectionner, parmi les dalles de marbre au rebut, celles que je vais utiliser pour l'intérieur du temple de Ganesh...

Et ce soir, Arunasalam reste dîner et dormir, gentil, comme un enfant...

25-7-1993, Auroville :

Il y a des moments qui sont comme des béances...

Pourtant, et c'est sur quoi il me faut me concentrer, tout, tout est donné pour inscrire dans la substance même la réalité d'un vrai pas en avant, d'un vrai progrès de conscience... Alors, oui, je veux, je dis, oui !

26-7-1993, Auroville :

J'ai dû me rendre à cette réunion pour la préparation et le programme de la journée du 15 Août : une atmosphère de fous... de folles ! Ganga, Paulette, Jocelyn... que faire ! Il y a tous les courants, toutes les formations, toutes les chaînes de réactions, là, prêtes... !

Réunion de Coordination après le travail : d'assez mauvais gré, Arjun a fini par accepter de changer l'heure et la place de nos réunions - ce sera désormais en fin de journée, afin de ne pas désertier le chantier, et ce ne sera plus dans le bureau d'Arjun, pour plus de neutralité... Mais ça ne coule toujours pas bien ; il y a un pas que chacun doit faire, chacun directement, pour pouvoir le faire ensemble...

28-7-1993, Auroville :

Arjun s'est enfin décidé à venir me trouver, nous retrouver l'un et l'autre ; puis il rentre chez lui, fiévreux...

30-7-1993, Auroville :

Mary A est à Auroville ; aux Etats-Unis elle travaille maintenant pour informer à propos d'Auroville et rassembler des fonds ; nous avons déjà commencé de sélectionner des photographies que j'ai prises récemment, pour une présentation qu'elle fera à son retour ; en fin de journée, je l'emmène partout sur la structure, et lui explique tout le travail...

... Arunasalam m'attend, et reste la nuit ici : il appelle ça ses « vacances » !

... Les finances sont désastreuses ; Toine parlait hier de réduire notre « force ouvrière » et de concentrer les efforts sur les priorités : c'est rationnel et raisonnable, mais je ne trouve aucun écho intérieur...

Il me semble que ce sur quoi nous devons travailler avant tout, c'est notre unité, notre adhésion, collaboration, réceptivité... c'est cela qui est contredit, dans nos propres mouvements !

Je ne sais rien... La tête est un poids de confusion... !

31-7-1993, Auroville :

Le désaccord persiste entre Toine, Arjun, et moi ; ce matin, cela s'est cristallisé autour de la question de la réception des visiteurs, et de l'arrangement projeté pour le 15 Août ; je me trouve incapable d'accepter leurs jugements qui me semblent injustes et partiaux, et influencés par les pressions sociales dominantes...

La vieille tendance en moi à me retirer, à laisser la place libre, revient en force ces jours-ci... Quand il n'y a pas assez de confiance qui coule, tout devient un poids et perd son sens...

... Ce soir, j'emmène Samuel à Pondy en moto, et nous y dînons avec Soaz, Su et Gwen...

1-8-1993, Auroville :

Je me traite pour une infestation de vermines dans les intestins ; le corps a beaucoup maigri...

C'est le fête d'Arjun ; je lui apporte des guirlandes et une série de photographies de Toi, dans Ta chambre ; mais je n'ai pas l'énergie de rester longtemps...

2-8-1993, Auroville :

Réunion au Bharat Nivas à propos du 15 Août : après les batailles d'exclusivismes entre ces dames, il ne reste pratiquement plus rien du « programme », et la tâche nous revient encore d'assurer un minimum d'organisation et, par un travail de préparation physique, d'inviter et servir l'atmosphère la plus vraie possible...

... La réunion de Coordination est très pénible. Pourquoi est-ce que j'attire cette intensité de réaction, parfois cette violence, simplement en allant un pas après l'autre ? Arjun tient un langage inacceptable, tandis que, derrière Aster, se tient l'influence de Prem qui espère toujours être « reconnu » ; et Toine est saisi par une espèce d'exclusivisme étrange, à la fois noble et dangereux...

Cella me fait réfléchir toute la nuit...

Je veux seulement que ce soit Toi, et Toi seule, qui établisses ma conscience...

Il y a tant de choses que je vois, sens, éprouve, au-dedans...

Mais quand il n'y a plus assez de confiance, je deviens comme un infirme : il n'y a plus d'énergie, il n'y a plus la force de se soucier de rien, ni de passer la tendresse, il n'y a plus le courage de continuer à vivre...

J'ai observé, toutes ces années, que la confiance est pour moi, et pour le corps – et, il me semble, pour Matrimandir aussi –, comme l'eau de la vie : quand elle est suffisamment présente, les choses se font, le progrès devient concret et les circonstances s'arrangent. Quand elle est niée ou trop contredite, alors tout, immédiatement, devient un poids insupportable...

3-8-1993, Auroville :

Avec l'accord de Mallika, Durai et L.N, je modifie la note d'information pour les horaires de visite du 15 Août, en intégrant le plus vrai du mouvement négatif d'Arjun, Toine et Aster, sans que ce soit un abandon lâche de l'orientation essentielle : il faut continuer de s'efforcer de travailler ensemble. Mais une distance s'est créée, que je T'offre...

4-8-1993, Auroville :

Il faut rester au point de silence, dans cette grande vague de disharmonie...

Les ouvriers d'Atmarati sont en grève : c'est la répétition d'une vieille histoire qui est surtout celle de Pierre E, de sa relation au travail, à l'argent, à Auroville et aux gens d'ici ; nous ne pouvons pas intervenir. Mais dans ce cas je sens et j'éprouve – j'ai regardé cela dans la nuit – aussi le début d'une sorte de débandade sous la pression exclusive et limitée qu'exerce Madanlal afin que nous nous engagions à ne réaliser qu'un premier Pétale ; mais les choses ne se passent pas ainsi et l'élan véritable est de vouloir tout accomplir et que l'intégralité de Matrimandir soit matérialisée ; au lieu de mesurer et de compter selon des projections mentales, il faut laisser passer l'énergie et l'accompagner selon les possibilités du moment, et la servir sans lui imposer de trajectoire rigide. Il me semble que Toine et Arjun se sont laissés influencer, parce qu'ils sont moins directement en contact avec la matière ; et ils ont alors imposé à Pierre E de réduire sa force ouvrière, puisqu'il n'y a plus d'argent... ! Il y a là un tissu complexe, dont les parasites ne peuvent être combattus sur leur propre terrain : il faut plutôt les emporter dans un mouvement d'avance irrésistible, par lequel ils perdront leur milieu...

Tout cela, dans l'expérience de l'instant, se traduit par une fatigue intolérable, si intense qu'on a envie de hurler...

Et s'inscrivant dans cette crise une autre crise personnelle s'est déclarée : l'oncle d'Arjun, en voyage en Californie (pour un séminaire, je crois) vient d'être soudainement hospitalisé et diagnostiqué d'un cancer des os de la pire espèce ; il vient d'exprimer la volonté que ce soit Arjun seul qui vienne le retrouver et tenter de le ramener en Inde... Alors nous passons une partie de la journée à organiser pour le départ d'Arjun – réservations, visa, emprunt, etc.

Et Toine aussi doit s'en aller, ce lundi...

Il y a un aspect de débâcle ; et pourtant, tout continue, autrement...

Et l'absence de la main d'œuvre d'Atmarati laisse les lieux, pourtant animés et occupés par nos équipes, dans un calme soudain et une sorte d'intimité... Nos gars sont pourtant 150 !

6-8-1993, Auroville :

Arjun part aux Etats-Unis.

Curieusement, un filet d'énergie se remet à couler, et je me sens moins accablé...

La majorité des ouvriers d'Atmarati sont revenus travailler, mais Parasuraman a dû « démissionner », ce qui complique les choses...

8-8-1993, Auroville :

Cette fatigue est corrosive !

Le corps a envie de dormir pour un siècle ! Je ne comprends pas !

L'impression est de ne pas avoir le courage de continuer, de s'accrocher aveuglément à l'endurance.

Il y a un abcès dans la bouche aussi ; et ce fait, incontrôlable, insaisissable, d'un phénomène de vieillissement accéléré, qui ne correspond à rien dans la conscience... Je ne sais rien : c'est une misère !

9-8-1993, Auroville :

Aujourd'hui j'ai eu le temps de travailler sur l'échafaudage avec l'équipe d'Anand, et ça coule un peu mieux... Mais toutes sortes de détails tirent sans cesse, avec la charge supplémentaire de responsabilités, en l'absence d'Arjun, et de Toine qui est parti ce matin...

... Arundati a écrit une lettre d'accusations folles contre moi, au Secrétaire – probablement dictée par Narayana -, et le Secrétaire demande maintenant nos commentaires ! Pourquoi est-ce que je suis toujours la cible de prédilection ? C'est comme une folie obscure qui cherche constamment à... me détruire !

Est-ce que c'est dû à une attitude essentiellement mauvaise de ma part ? Mais pourquoi, si tel est le cas, n'en suis-je pas du tout conscient ? C'est pénible !

Et les fonds sont pratiquement à zéro – Madanlal ferme la valve ! -, et nous ne savons pas quoi faire, dans le sens où nous ne sommes pas capables, ensemble, d'être sûrs qu'il soit vrai de continuer au même rythme, dans une confiance aveugle ; devons-nous alors accepter de réduire, de ralentir et de remettre à plus tard une grande partie du travail ? Il n'y a pas d'indication intérieure claire...

12-8-1993, Auroville :

Arunasalam, qui fait un très bon travail avec la construction de la nouvelle unité ici, reste dormir dans la maison, comme un petit enfant heureux...

14-8-1993, Auroville :

Des centaines et des centaines de visiteurs...

Et toute la soirée jusque tard, à l'amphithéâtre, à préparer le bois pour le Feu, à disposer les lampes à huile, et arranger les fleurs...

15-8-1993, Auroville :

De retour à l'amphithéâtre à 4 heures, pour les derniers préparatifs avec l'équipe d'hier soir et les enfants d'Ilangarkal... Et le redoutable tension, avec l'arrivée sur les lieux de notre glorieuse jeunesse Aurovilienne, provocante, agressive et vicieuse et destructrice, et... pitoyable ! Alors il faut essayer de les écarter, d'apaiser, de contrôler, de trouver un contact avec l'harmonie du cœur... Puis, Ta musique et Ton message, la flambée d'un Feu magnifique, et la nouvelle lune avec son étoile juste à l'aplomb du Matrimandir dans la naissance du jour...

Et, quand le jour se lève, notre jeunesse qui détruit les guirlandes et piétine les flammes... !

Alors, je regarde, et regarde...

16-8-1993, Auroville :

Depuis plusieurs jours, nous avons une nouvelle source d'agitation parmi nous ! Il s'agit de l'intrusion d'un jeune singe robuste, un mâle, qui s'en prend à tout le monde, particulièrement à l'heure des visites, et manifeste une curieuse détermination à semer la panique, renversant les outils, abîmant ou démolissant les choses, tirant sur le sari des femmes et sautant sur ceux qui réagissent ; il se produit un phénomène de peur très insolite, et ce serait intéressant de travailler dessus : mais dans ces conditions cela implique trop de risques ; je ne suis pas sûr de ce qu'il faut faire pour se débarrasser de ce singe...

... Arjun a téléphoné de San Francisco : il espère être de retour le 29...

17-8-1993, Auroville :

J'ai préparé un texte pour les « Auroville News » à propos de nos rassemblements à l'amphithéâtre, des visiteurs, de la relation entre Matrimandir et le monde ; Mallika a voulu le co-signer... Il y avait bien sûr la possibilité de se taire, pour ne rien cristalliser (après la démonstration destructrice de la jeunesse Aurovilienne, rejetant et ruinant tout le travail d'offrande qui avait été fait par une équipe d'enfants et d'adultes principalement tamil sous notre responsabilité) ; mais il faut sortir de cette ornière absolument, et quelque chose doit être dit, sans ambiguïté...

... Il y a une quantité de détails d'organisation qui demandent mon attention ces jours-ci, qui auraient dû être traités par Arjun ou par Toine, et je ne suis pas certain de la marche à suivre – surtout dans l'organisation financière, dont je ne m'occupe jamais, et où je trouve un manque de simplicité et d'utilité : tout est excessivement laborieux, sans raison apparente !

18-8-1993, Auroville :

La nouvelle unité à « Sincérité » est de plus en plus belle, profondément, comme s'offrant à un âge de contemplation matérielle ; c'est à la fois très discret, presque ordinaire, et tout à fait magique...

... En fin de journée, à sa demande, je passe un moment avec SSJ pour regarder ensemble la situation financière...

20-8-1993, Auroville :

Toutes ces contradictions qui cherchent à empêcher, à interférer, se servent avec le plus grand art de la complexité humaine !

... Une scène assez mauvaise avec B ; mais heureusement John H et J.L sont tous deux présents et gardent une perception claire ; sinon ce serait encore tombé sur mon dos !

... Ce soir j'emmène Soaz, Gwen, Samuel et Su dîner près de l'océan...

21-8-1993, Auroville :

J'ai la crève, et Selvam aussi...

Une longue réunion dans le bureau, à propos des factures d'Atmarati – et des erreurs commises dans leurs comptes ; c'est un exercice exigeant pour chacun, car c'est une situation potentiellement destructive, et la qualité ou le degré d'aspiration et de don de soi, en chaque être concerné, ont des effets immédiats... Rien n'est encore résolu, mais une certaine intégrité a été préservée de part et d'autre...

En l'absence d'Arjun et de Toine, John H et moi devons assumer des responsabilités supplémentaires, en tant que signataires, et il nous faut être doublement vigilants...

... La confusion de Selvam dans son travail a des conséquences pour tous, et je dois voir tout cela avec VK assez longtemps...

... Soaz m'a appelé pour dîner ce soir, au Guest House ; elle repart dans deux jours avec les enfants, et Samuel est malade... !

22-8-1993, Auroville :

La routine du dimanche, et les visiteurs et le passage à « Promesse », dans une brume, abruti par la fièvre... Et, ce soir, la surprise bienvenue, après des semaines de silence, de la visite de L : cette simple tendresse qui me manquait...

23-8-1993, Auroville :

Une séance orageuse à propos des disques dorés, que B et Silvio déclarent maintenant « expérimentaux »... Ce qui me rend fou, c'est cette avec laquelle certains ici consomment et gaspillent, au nom de la perfection... Ces différences d'attitude envers le travail, envers la responsabilité, se présentent parfois comme des abîmes, irréconciliables – et pourtant, il faut marcher !

24-8-1993, Auroville :

De nouveaux épisodes bien délicats, avec successivement Pierre E, J.L et C.E., à propos des paiements d'Atmarati ; les frustrations de chacun s'en mêlent, y compris celles de VK qui se trouve depuis le début dans la position ingrate d'avoir à présenter des comptes clairs... L'attitude de Pierre E serait intenable s'il n'avait ce contact vivant avec Ta Grâce ; Ramalingam se montre presque hargneux d'impatience ; il y a ainsi toute la gamme de ce que nous sommes, à Tes pieds... John H et moi avons pour fonction de dégager le chemin et d'assurer un équilibre, et John H me laisse en avant, me donnant son soutien... Tout cela est retors ; on pourrait crier, ou claquer la porte et rejeter toute la charge, ou bien fermer les yeux, compromettre, « faire confiance » - mais l'exigence est vive, et la pression est concrète...

... Puis il y a Madanlal... Et aussi, les pressions de Piero...

Ce nœud de formations et d'approches, cette coalescence de résistances diverses, de déformations et de limitations individuelles, et tout, tout le travail simplement physique à accomplir, avec ces petits corps insuffisamment habités, ces différences de développements intérieurs, et cette foule de motivations presque malades... c'est là qu'il faut marcher... !

25-8-1993, Auroville :

Ce sont des cargaisons de problèmes, auxquels nous sommes incapables de trouver des solutions satisfaisantes, vraies et progressives...

La situation avec Atmarati est critique : Pierre E qui, par négligence, manque d'organisation et de discipline, a porté le destin de sa compagnie (des centaines d'ouvriers) à un point de débâcle que Matrimandir ne peut assumer ; non seulement Atmarati est en dettes et ne peut payer ses salaires, mais Matrimandir ne sera pas en position de verser de nouveaux paiements (paiements d'avance) pour quelques semaines, à moins de compromettre une intégrité essentielle à la poursuite du travail ; dans les termes d'Auroville, c'est une situation intenable, puisque Pierre E est l'un d'entre nous, et qu'il est également impossible d'ignorer les besoins évidents de tant d'ouvriers...

27-8-1993, Auroville :

Après des préparations intensives, les derniers soirs, avec VK, nous avons une réunion marathon aujourd'hui, pour clarifier toutes les questions, de construction comme de finances, entre Atmarati et Matrimandir ; aucun de nous ne se sentait prêt à affronter cette séance, potentiellement désastreuse ; mais chacun a donné de son meilleur, et un accord sur tous les points importants s'est établi, et John H et moi avons accepté de signer un chèque, sur des conditions reconnues fraternellement de part et d'autre... A la fin, il n'y avait plus de malaise ; et il y avait peut-être même une sorte de rapprochement...

Mais il est certain que, de notre côté, notre équipe doit dorénavant être beaucoup plus attentive et ferme : plus de travail pour nous, car nous avons trop délégué...

... Arrivée d'E.B, qui revient vivre à Auroville...

30-8-1993, Auroville :

La fièvre persiste et les sinus sont enflammés ; Selvam aussi a toujours du mal : il a eu une attaque de migraine et de vomissements violents cet après-midi...

... J'ai été convoqué par le FRRO (Le Bureau d'Enregistrement des Résidents Etrangers) à Pondy ; j'apprends que Tripathy a refusé de recommander mon visa de 5 ans, bien que j'y aie droit, après 20 ans de séjour continu ; il m'est posé une série de questions bizarres, personnelles et générales, sur ma fille, sur les jeunes d'Auroville (à propos de l'incident du 15 Août), et sur les règles que nous avons instaurées pour les visites au Matrimandir ; et je vois qu'il y a une lettre de Tripathy dans mon dossier, mais l'officier refuse de me laisser la lire... Ca me donne un coup de tristesse : j'attendais bien ce signe extérieur comme une forme d'acceptation : être enfin autre chose qu'un « étranger », qu'un « blanc »... Et la conduite de Tripathy est un peu révoltante... Alors, de retour ici, je rédige une lettre pour lui, avec copies pour le Working Committee et le Governing Board...

... Une autre masse d'abeilles de roc est arrivée : une chose après l'autre ! De là et de là et de là aussi, la résistance et l'opposition... Quelquefois, c'est comme un enfant qui dit « c'est trop difficile, je n'y arrive pas !... »

31-8-1993, Auroville :

Mallika m'aide à finaliser le texte de présentation sur l'accès au Matrimandir...

... Un beau voyage aujourd'hui : Anand et Saravanam m'aident à capturer le singe et nous l'emmenons dans la jeep, après le travail, jusque dans l'arrière-pays : un lieu magnifique, près de Maïlam, tout à côté d'un beau temple à Ganesh dans les collines rocheuses ; c'est un moment heureux pour tous les trois ; et nous rentrons sous un déluge !

Et ce soir, nous détruisons le nouvel essaim d'abeilles !

... J'écris à Karan Singh...

1-9-1993, Auroville :

JYL a écrit : il confirme leur arrivée le 17 de ce mois...

2-9-1993, Auroville :

Comment persévérer, s'efforcer, parfois lutter, pour la vérité et pour la conscience, sans se trouver « contre », en opposition à d'autres êtres, à cause des mouvements, attitudes ou tendances qu'ils expriment, véhiculent ou soutiennent ?

Nous sommes tous mélangés : aucun ne peut affirmer avec certitude qu'il ne collabore plus avec ce qui se refuse, ou plutôt qu'il collabore intégralement à la création de vérité...

Pendant deux heures ce matin, une autre réunion avec Atmarati : les mêmes personnes que la dernière fois, mais Pierre E a cette fois choisi une position qu'il prétend être « large » et « confiante », dans « l'esprit d'Auroville », mais qui effectivement empêche ou paralyse toute tentative de clarté et de vérité dans les détails ; et tout cela est motivé par l'argent, bien qu'il s'en défende ! Son langage, pourtant « louable », est comme une imposture, et je me trouve incapable de tolérance : je ne ressens que de la tristesse, un malaise et un rejet...

Ainsi, rien n'est éclairci ! Et c'est comme un choix du drame.

Tout est remis au retour d'Arjun, qui sera naturellement plus dur et inflexible, et cela pourra provoquer une autre rupture ou même l'arrêt d'une grande partie des travaux...

... Le problème de Kalidas, et cette impossible question de l'argent, avec les besoins immédiats, absolus, de tous ces êtres qui n'ont aucune marge de sécurité matérielle et sont encore au-dessous d'un minimum de qualité de vie ; il n'y a pas de critère ni de position tenable ! Kalidas menace maintenant de se suicider si nous ne l'aïdons pas tout de suite, car il lui faut trouver la somme nécessaire au mariage de sa sœur, dont il est le seul responsable, d'ici deux jours...

3-9-1993, Auroville :

A accepte de m'aider à « prêter » de l'argent à Kalidas...

... Un long moment seul avec J.L, en qui j'ai beaucoup confiance ; il ne comprend pas encore bien le problème que pose l'attitude de Pierre E, ni l'impossibilité à laquelle sa résistance risque de conduire le travail...

4-9-1993, Auroville :

Deepti est ennuyée qu'Arjun ne revienne pas plus vite – il est resté à Delhi depuis son retour des Etats-Unis avec son oncle – et me demande de lui téléphoner : il m'explique longuement pourquoi il doit y rester encore une semaine...

... Il pleut beaucoup... et il y a aussi le sens d'une inertie qui remonte comme de l'eau souterraine, se traduisant par toutes sortes d'oublis et de démissions, dans les individus comme dans les circonstances...

J'ai l'envie de tout nettoyer, au dedans comme au dehors, et de recréer un environnement et une atmosphère sur des bases neuves...

Tout moisit ! Je voudrais bien reconstruire une maison qui soit surélevée, et impeccable, comme sacrée ; et je voudrais plonger le corps dans un état purifiant et balayer toutes les habitudes des autres... !

6-9-1993, Auroville :

L'humidité est alourdissante ; on se déplace comme dans une buée subtile, et les énergies sont lentes... Des retards, des malentendus, et ce sentiment physique de désordre, de boue, d'opacité, et d'une pesanteur générale : une sorte de noyade continue dans le marasme d'une condition humano matérielle où seules des bribes de tendresse gratuite, et la beauté physique de la terre et de ses substances préservent le sens d'un éternel possible...

... Fax, puis téléphone de JYL : il n'a rien prévu pour leur arrivée et s'attendait vaguement à ce que tout soit prêt ici... Alors j'essaie de leur réserver une chambre au Guest House, au moins pour les premiers temps...

8-9-1993, Auroville :

Arjun a encore repoussé son retour... John H, en attendant, remplit calmement et sans remous plusieurs fonctions simultanées, et je continue, maladroitement, de faire acte de présence ; beaucoup de travaux sont ralentis, sujets à des décisions qui ne seront donc prises que... plus tard !

... Je me suis réfugié ce matin dans le ciselage d'une poutre, seul sur la structure...

... Le tracteur est immobilisé à la barrière d'octroi sur la grand-route, depuis deux jours : par-dessus ces histoires de droit coutumier, il y a toute la corruption de l'administration locale... John H et moi devons y retourner et palabrer une fois de plus pour récupérer enfin le tracteur, la remorque et son chargement de chaux ; mais demain nous devons payer l'amende (dont le montant est à « discuter ») !

9-9-1993, Auroville :

La fièvre et le rhume sont revenus à la charge, comme une entreprise de démolition ! Ca reste dans notre atmosphère et se ballade de l'un à l'autre, continûment...

14-9-1993, Auroville :

C'est comme si il n'y a rien que je doive « faire », mais que je ne l'accepte pas : il y a ce vieux besoin moral d'être « utile » et de participer physiquement – c'est idiot probablement ! Cette fonction de « superviseur » est éprouvée comme un poids inerte, alors que j'y trouverais peut-être, avec un peu de concentration dans le bon sens, le chemin qui me manque tant... Au lieu de cela, il me semble qu'il n'y a de progrès réel nulle part, ni en soi ni autour de soi, ni dans les circonstances...

15-9-1993, Auroville :

Dans la nuit, deux heures entières d'une trombe d'une puissance formidable : des dégâts considérables, un chaos sous la structure, les réservoirs ont débordé, la boue est entrée partout : il nous faudra des journées de travail pour rétablir l'ordre...

... Je passe un long moment avec Kusum à élaguer les arbustes dans le petit jardin du temple de Ganesh...

... Arjun rentre de Delhi...

16-9-1993, Auroville :

Arjun et moi passons la matinée ensemble, et je le mets « à jour »... !

J'éprouve la nécessité d'un grand progrès en moi-même, le sens d'un pas concret qui m'attend, très tangible...

... Je dois partir dans la nuit, pour aller chercher JYL et les siens, qui arrivent à l'aube en provenance de... Ryadh !

17-9-1993, Auroville :

Il faut des heures à JYL, Patricia et Aurevan pour récupérer tous leurs nombreux bagages et sortir enfin de l'aéroport, et nous ne rentrons que vers midi...

... Ce soir, je dîne avec eux, et E.B et deux nouveaux arrivants, au Guest House : c'est une atmosphère amicale et tranquille, mais grise, et creuse, et j'en ressens de comme de la détresse !

... Sunil m'a écrit une réponse très affectueuse à ma lettre au sujet de la distribution de sa musique...

18-9-1993, Auroville :

Le frère de Ponnu meurt d'alcoolisme...

... Il y a une sorte de veulerie dans la conscience physique, qui s'est installée dans une posture de noyade, de non recours et de non appel, alors que la Présence est parfaitement tangible dès que la décision de se tourner est prise... Il me faut une discipline, pour trouver l'équilibre juste entre le chemin et la nécessité de demeurer disponible aux énergies qui participent à la construction extérieure de Matrimandir...

19-9-1993, Auroville :

C'est la fête de Sri Ganesh – Vinayagam !

Anand et moi, tôt le matin, portons les fleurs à Kusum, au petit temple rénové.

Jaïraman y passe la journée, dans la fonction de gardien...

C'est aussi dimanche, et jour de ménage ! Et L vient me retrouver, doux, tendre et patient... Il n'a toujours pas de travail et ne pourra pas en retrouver avec nous tant que son procès ne sera pas conclu...

JYL, Patricia et Aurevan m'apportent tout un lot d'outils et d'instruments de mesure pour Matrimandir, et pour moi une magnifique rose des sables que Ch.J m'envoie...

21-9-1993, Auroville :

Longue réunion de Coordination ; Arjun ne fait pas d'effort réel pour changer certaines attitudes faciles, qui deviennent des plis ; mais il y a toujours avec lui cette énergie expansive et ce besoin d'affection et de rire...

Un incident avec Ireno, qui veut prendre Matrimandir comme sujet principal pour son entreprise commerciale privée de photographie... Auroville est bien mal servie ! Sa vérité est trompée de tous côtés ! On ne sait rien et ne peut rien : on ne peut que persévérer dans une orientation qui ne rencontre que peu d'échos !

... Reçu une carte de D.D, enfin : comme les êtres ont peur de se donner sans condition ! (Je lui avais demandé de nous donner quelques photographies pour la Brochure)

22-9-1993, Auroville :

Les choses ne coulent pas : les attitudes de chacun de nous, les interférences et, autour de nous, la corruption qui se généralise dans le pays, les grèves et les chantages – la bureaucratie, et le tissu de mensonges si serré, si serré, de tous côtés...

Depuis quelques temps, je crois que j'éprouve quelque chose comme de la résignation : j'accepte d'être simplement débordé, impuissant à servir ne serait ce que le redressement d'une seule torsion « locale »...

Mais il y aussi, dans cette résignation, le caractère d'un appel, ou d'une réceptivité à l'autre Etat : comme s'il fallait accepter que rien ne va s' « arranger » ; que non seulement l'harmonie que l'on souhaitait - et que l'on avait pu croire abordable avec un peu de bonne volonté, d'engagement et de don de soi – n'est pas dans le programme, mais que les choses vont plutôt probablement empirer ; que le processus de « défaite » n'est qu'à mi chemin...

Et qu'il est juste qu'il en soit ainsi...

Car la « réussite », le « succès » d'un pari, si éthique soit il, et si remarquable sa qualité de foi puisse nous sembler, retarderaient en fait plus encore le passage à ce qui EST vraiment...

Car nous devons apprendre à lui faire toute la place : à disparaître, sans cesser d'être !

Je vois à chaque instant, dans chaque circonstance et à la faveur de chaque contact et chaque échange, que l'adhésion nécessaire diminue...

Quelquefois c'est terrible, comme une pauvreté si énorme qu'on n'a plus le cœur de se soucier de quoi que ce soit, ni de qui que ce soit... On est réduit à un seul effort d'endurance !

Et c'est également faux !

Car l'âme vivante ne peut cesser d'aimer !

Ainsi, on trébuche de piège en piège, et de négation en contradiction...

Et tout se mesure encore à l'échelle de la durée d'une vie humaine : comme c'est absurde !

Dans la situation où nous nous trouvons tous, il n'est plus possible de suivre une seule perception vraie sans verser dans l'affirmation exclusive pour écarter les interférences... Alors il y a encore l'envie, ou l'instinct, de partir en courant, de se retirer de cette arène impossible et de se concentrer dans un mouvement moins exposé et une atmosphère plus contrôlée : rester à « Sincérité », peindre ou jardiner, et fermer la porte à toutes ces pressions, ces tractions et ces demandes et ces opinions et positions et ces soifs ; puisqu'on n'y peut rien changer de toutes manières, laisser les autres, ceux qui aiment encore la comédie des énergies, s'user à l'inanité...

C'est la même association de plusieurs facteurs qui toujours me convainc de continuer : la tendresse pour les gens d'ici ; un pacte d'amour avec l'être ou la réalité de Matrimandir, et celle de son corps en gestation ; le besoin, l'aspiration, la prière à être utile, à servir un peu de Ton travail ; le sens de la solidarité et de la responsabilité...

Mais tout est si inextricablement mélangé...

Il y a le besoin de centrer, de creuser, d'amincir ce voile, de dissoudre cette opacité de la séparation : de respirer le Vrai et d'y reposer physiquement...

27-9-1993, Auroville :

C'est le sens d'opérer simultanément à deux niveaux, ou sur deux voies parallèles.

A un niveau, la conscience reçoit des informations de haute qualité – des perceptions, des saisies d'expérience.

A l'autre niveau, l'être est aux prises avec ses propres limitations comme avec celles de tous ceux qu'il rencontre, les courants dominants et les plis et les inerties ou les trahisons de chaque instant...

C'est la juxtaposition d'un sens très concret du progrès qui appelle, presque impérieux, et d'une expérience pénible et laborieuse et presque désespérée parmi les influences, les attitudes et les jeux de forces.

Et il y a le manque terrible d'un minimum vital des manifestations de la vérité...

Alors, tout ça fait un ensemble impossible à dire...

Il y a une chose qui est certaine, dans toute cette vie jusqu'à présent : la présence de la vérité me rend heureux !

Je n'ai jamais connu d'autre bonheur : c'est un bonheur que le corps éprouve directement.

Et c'est si extrêmement rare !

Au degré en dessous, l'aspiration à la vérité est ce qui m'a jusqu'à présent toujours permis de persévérer dans une situation donnée ; et, quand c'est suffisamment vivant dans les autres aussi, alors il y a ce sens de partager une aventure qui vaut la peine...

Mais il y a un seuil, en deçà duquel cela n'est plus qu'un exercice absurde... ! Et ces temps ci, c'est cette dernière impression qui tend à dominer...

Alors, il y a toujours ce choix possible : on assume sa responsabilité individuelle et, même en l'absence d'un partage intérieur de l'orientation, et du soutien qu'il peut donner, on se concentre, peut-être d'autant plus... ?

Je me trouve là, comme au bord : un choix pour lequel l'ego doit se taire...

... Les journées s'écoulaient dans une sorte d'errance ; il y a les tâches inhérentes à ce travail de présence, de coordination et de supervision, assez réduits à cause de tous les obstacles et les retards dus à la situation générale – manque de fonds, grève des transports -, et la nécessité de neutraliser ou combattre la tendance à l'inertie, à la négligence, au désordre lâche ; mais il manque une cohérence, celle d'un continuum entre les êtres... La communication est difficile avec Ramalingam, avec Arjun, avec d'autres : ce sont les petits manques d'intégrité et d'exigence qui s'ajoutent dans l'atmosphère...

Et, plus « personnellement », il y a la difficulté pratique pour JYL, Patricia et Aurevan : l'Auroville d'aujourd'hui est gouvernée par l'argent, et je ne vois pas clairement comment aider...

28-9-1993, Auroville :

Roger A et Jacq sont revenus il y a quelques jours, et nous faisons aujourd'hui une longue visite du « chantier » avec eux...

29-9-1993, Auroville :

Encore une scène avec Silvio, aujourd'hui ; c'est une sorte d'escalade ! Je ne sais pas ce que les gens veulent, ici, à Auroville, mais c'est rarement la vérité... !

... Et c'est la saison des « vacanciers » ; la foule des visiteurs est souvent mauvaise : des gens sans respect ni tenue, qui poussent et réclament et n'expriment qu'une sorte de hargne avide...

1-10-1993, Auroville :

Hier soir il y a eu un grand tremblement de terre à la frontière de l'Etat du Maharastra, qui a été ressenti jusque dans la région de Madras : peut-être plus de 10,000 victimes...

Ce matin, nous devons tâcher de conclure le contentieux avec Atmarati ; et le scénario négatif s'est surimposé : Pierre E incapable de faire un pas ; J.L incapable de tenir la charge ; Arjun incapable de se contrôler ; John H et moi incapables d'y rien changer...

Cela m'a donné une névralgie aigue au centre du front ! C'est la débâcle, et rien de nouveau !

Tout, tout est gouverné par cette force qui est encore en possession de l'argent.

Que ce soit à un niveau ou un autre, à celui des jalousies et des calculs, ou des conditionnements et de la misère de nos gars, ou à celui des compromis des Auroviliens, c'est le gouvernement de la conscience physique par l'argent, par cette force qui tient l'argent...

... Et puis il y a toujours cette sorte de maladie venimeuse et tragique de Narayana, cette possession en lui qui persiste ; et Alok, son fils, en est happé ; il y perd son intégrité... Ainsi ils ont maintenant décidé de couper tous les arbres, menés par cette obsession qui me prend pour cible, cherchant à provoquer quelque réaction... C'est la circulation incessante d'un poison actif, qui trouve des ouvertures même parmi les ouvriers, qui crée des malentendus quotidiens entre Ramalingam et moi ; et, d'un certain point de vue de l'action, ces petites forces n'ont qu'un but, de retarder, d'empêcher, d'arrêter, de paralyser : que Matrimandir ne soit pas, qu'Auroville ne soit pas... Que rien ne dérange le mélange et le statu quo confortables où toutes ces forces moindres et séparées ont libre jeu, le jeu « démocratique »... !

Si elles ne peuvent briser tout à fait, elles ont au moins le pouvoir de salir, de calomnier, d'abîmer et d'user...

Et pourtant, tout, tout, en fait, ne peut que Te servir... !

Mais il vaut mieux, en soi-même, ne pas insister sur le décor ou le paysage ! Car, si le processus n'est ni « élégant », ni « harmonieux », cela ne peut pourtant pas justifier la démission...

J'essaie d'apprendre à libérer ma conscience de la tristesse et de la dépression, de ce regard sur soi qui devient une victoire pour tout ce qui se refuse...

... Ramalingam vient passer un long moment ici avec moi, ce soir, pour regarder ensemble tout ça ; essayer ensemble de percevoir comment agir pour libérer la situation de ces lourdeurs et ces obscurités accumulées...

3-10-1993, Auroville :

C'est dimanche et, dans la soirée, après les visiteurs, je vais au bureau pour travailler à l'ordinateur et imprimer mon texte pour les « Auroville News » ; soudain, Narayana surgit, comme une entité de ce monde vital hostile, avec ses yeux jaunes et sa haine et son langage vicieux... Je suis pris par surprise, là, et j'ai un mouvement de peur ! Peur, je crois, autant de mes propres réactions : et cela me montre clairement, dans le fait, combien je suis peu ou mal centré ; rien n'arrive, je reste quand même assez tranquille pour neutraliser l'attaque...

5-10-1993, Auroville :

Tout est si mélangé, et les « problèmes » sont de toutes tailles et viennent de tous côtés !

Le temps de la confiance n'est pas venu, aussi triste cela soit : ce qui est demandé est une vigilance orientée et constante, mais qui ne condamne pas, qui soit libre de l'égo !

6-10-1993, Auroville :

Ramalingam n'est pas bien ; il est très fiévreux et désorienté, incapable de participer, mais réticent à toute assistance... Anand est toujours distant, après l'épisode du bois coupé, dont il me rend responsable par association, puisque Ramalingam et moi sommes supposés décider de tout ensemble ! Mais en fait il s'avère que, non seulement dans ce cas mais dans beaucoup d'autres, Ramalingam n'a pas été clair avec moi... Et rien n'est vraiment droit, ni désintéressé, dans cette atmosphère...

... C'est comme si chacun se dérobaît juste au moment et au point où quelque chose de plus est requis... Qu'est ce qu'un petit être peut y changer ? J'ai la tête prise à garder la trace de tous ces mouvements séparés, qui se fichent tout à fait d'une collaboration véritable et compréhensive – qui ait le courage d'intégrer tous les aspects et toutes les contraintes...

... J'apprends ce soir que Narayana a invité Somu et Vinod à s'organiser pour m'attaquer physiquement... !

7-10-1993, Auroville :

Ce matin j'installe Ramalingam ici, fiévreux, pour qu'il se repose, et demande à Sumathi de lui préparer une nourriture qui enfin lui convienne...

... Rencontre avec le Brigadier Mahadevan, à propos de son projet d'installer une centrale solaire au Matrimandir...

... Anand, qui est dans un état très contraire, comme pris par la résistance, déclenche une situation pénible... Après une série de plaintes et de rapports de vols divers sur le site, j'avais demandé aux gardiens d'être plus attentifs et plus stricts, et de vérifier parfois, sans prévenir, les affaires de chacun au moment de quitter le travail ; mes raisons étaient évidentes pour tout le monde ; mais Anand, monté par l'interprétation qui lui en a été donnée, le prend comme une insulte... Cela me rend bien triste, car il a tort et il choisit le petit, et c'est comme une négation de cette merveille que j'ai si souvent éprouvée avec lui... C'est l'influence de cette résistance, de sa griffe qui salit, qui touche si grossièrement, et si habilement, à tout ce qui est encore pur et fragile, qui démolit les derniers repères de beauté, de douceur et de confiance...

Et pourtant il y a, à travers cette obscure persévérance maligne, le message d'un être plus grand ; et il faut lâcher, et lâcher encore, quand on croyait déjà avoir tout offert... !

Alors, je regarde, et j'essaie de ne pas être le jouet...

Mais je ne sais pas ! Je ne crois pas qu'il soit possible, ni vrai, de travailler sans un minimum de confiance et de reconnaissance entre les êtres, même s'il faut se battre pour obtenir que la base soit au moins honnête – et, dans la bataille, offrir le résultat, quel qu'il soit... A l'issue de la bataille il faut tout de même qu'au moins quelques êtres, et non pas un seul, puissent se reconnaître, et suivrent ensemble le sens du chemin !

... Comme d'habitude, je suis toujours trop prêt à me retirer... !
Mais je suis fatigué, comme d'un grand piège qui utilise tout !

8-10-1993, Auroville :

Il a plu une partie de la nuit... Ramalingam est un peu mieux, et j'essaie de l'amener à une résolution envers les ouvriers : il est clair que la situation a besoin d'un redressement en profondeur, et ce n'est possible que si lui et moi le voyons et l'éprouvons ensemble, et le communiquons ensemble à nos gars...

10-10-1993, Auroville :

Dans mes activités dominicales solitaires, j'ai le temps de réfléchir calmement à la crise qu'Auroville traverse à présent, et de regarder à nouveau ces notions de « droit », de « choix » et de « responsabilité »... Il y a tous ces remous avec Tripathy, et SSJ et toutes les perpétuelles influences et le « Working Committee » a appelé une réunion générale d'urgence ce lundi...

Comme pour tant d'autres situations sur ce chemin collectif, il y a le choix entre une inertie qui s'ajuste aux petits changements inévitables, et une détermination commune à accompagner un mouvement en avant, vers l'inconnu ; entre un mouvement de maintien et un mouvement d'avance et de création...

Mais la moyenne générale de ce que nous sommes tire toujours vers le premier choix : et tout s'enfoncé !

12-10-1993, Auroville :

Encore un moment de tension avec Arjun, qui se refuse à regarder le simple fait qu'il manifeste lui-même exactement ce dont il se plaint si activement chez les autres... et les difficultés d'organisation qui s'ensuivent... !

13-10-1993, Auroville :

J'ai eu une sorte d'accident dans la nuit. J'ai fait l'erreur de manger trop vite et trop tard hier soir. Je venais de m'endormir quand une contraction de l'estomac a soudainement produit un blocage des voies respiratoires, et j'étouffe complètement pendant plusieurs minutes : c'est tout à fait spectaculaire et sans issue ; et, dans ce moment d'extrême détresse du corps, en tous les cas de la partie concernée de l'organisme, cette détresse qui, par sa soudaineté et son acuité accapare toute la conscience physique, je me demande seulement, comme un dépit et une peine, comment une telle stupidité peut être le dernier instant de la vie... partir comme ça, juste parce qu'on a trop mangé avant de dormir, comme c'est dommage et disharmonieux... ! Puis, je ne sais comment, au fond et au bout de cette panique, un conduit à l'arrière d'une narine se débouche et se libère – et c'est le retour au rivage, secoué, trempé de sueur, et perplexe !

15-10-1993, Auroville :

JYL a modelé, avec de l'argile, la tête magnifique et bouleversante d'un être de l'Egypte ancienne, sans savoir ce qu'il faisait, sans avoir jamais touché d'argile : comme une résurrection immobile et directe d'une époque que nous avons sûrement partagée...

16-10-1993, Auroville :

Dadu est emmené à la clinique à Pondy...

24-10-1993, Auroville :

Je ne trouve pas le levier de contrôle du phénomène de vieillissement du corps ; et cela semble s'accélérer : dans les dernières quelques semaines, le visage s'est considérablement altéré et creusé, raviné ; c'est impressionnant, et cela ne correspond à rien de conscient, quand la conscience physique même cherche à progresser et se sent la même qu'il y a vingt ans, sinon mieux ou plus « informée »...

26-10-1993, Auroville :

Depuis quelques temps, il n'est presque pas un jour où je ne me trouve en désaccord avec Arjun ; aujourd'hui encore il a interféré dans la réception des visiteurs à la Chambre de telle manière que tout est devenu instantanément compliqué et presque douloureux, et il a fallu tout réorganiser sur la champ pour absorber le désordre...

Je ne sais pas... A quoi tient réellement la qualité d'un partage ?

Si l'on est libéré des attaches émotionnelles et des échanges vitaux habituels, si l'on n'a plus besoin de l'autre pour sa propre satisfaction égoïste, je ne suis pas sûr de ce qu'il reste...

Dans la mesure où chacun de nous est nécessairement engagé dans un mouvement de progrès, de changement en avant et de refonte continue, il me semble que seul le psychique peut reconnaître les siens !

Mais alors, nous sommes généralement encore bien loin d'être continûment conscients, là...

... La réunion de Coordination, cet après-midi, est ardue ; et il y a en plus le sujet de la bataille actuelle à propos de SSJ et de son statut dans Auroville, et du rôle que joue le Secrétaire...

Plus tard, je rencontre SSJ un moment, pour lui faire part directement de mes sentiments, afin qu'il n'y ait pas de malentendu entre nous...

... Selvam souhaite récupérer la maison de la plage pour la louer ; Anand et Indira ne s'y adaptent pas ; c'est-à-dire qu'Indira, en fait, n'est pas intéressée de vivre en Auroville, cela ne correspond à rien en elle et elle préfère retourner au village...

Alors je parle longtemps avec Anand ce soir, qui est de nouveau tout tendre et ouvert, comme avant...

27-10-1993, Auroville :

L'énergie dégagée par cette succession de petits conflits avec Arjun, et leurs conséquences dans la relation avec Ramalingam, est revenue, ou ressortie, brute, dans la nuit, comme une petite tornade intrusive et oppressante, et il m'a fallu attendre bien tranquillement pour que ça s'écarte... L'exercice pour moi étant de ne pas me laisser affecter, de ne pas m'attrister : un exercice que je dois encore souvent refaire... !

... L'atmosphère créée par cette pétition de soutien à SSJ, circulée par Lucas et Mani, n'est pas bonne ; SSJ m'a montré ce matin la lettre qu'il avait envoyée à Tripathy, ainsi que les clauses légales de l'Acte de Parlement de la Fondation qui ont trait à la responsabilité du Secrétaire envers la liste officielle des résidents d'Auroville ; mais cela ne me convainc pas, au contraire !

... Narayana est occupé à semer la confusion et la mauvaise volonté, et s'attaque même à Durai, maintenant !

Dans quelles mesure les lois qui prévalent pour le progrès individuel face aux pressions hostiles, sont elles applicables, ou même identifiables, lorsqu'il s'agit du progrès collectif à Auroville ? Et où est alors la conscience qui peut percevoir l'hostilité comme le signe et l'indice du changement nécessaire ?

Dans le cas de cette possession si tenace (en Narayana), je ne parviens ni à comprendre ni à sentir ce qui est demandé, en soi, au-delà de ce qui me concerne personnellement, c'est-à-dire d'apprendre à ne pas réagir en retour, et à en rire sans effort, d'un rire vrai, étranger à la haine, d'un rire qui peut aimer...

... C'est encore une période de « vacances », et nous voyons défiler des centaines de gens qui sont bien mal informés et n'ont en fait pas la moindre idée de ce qu'est ce lieu auquel ils ont été menés (par les guides touristiques et autres vendeurs de pittoresque) ; il y tout ce travail à faire, avec patience et persévérance, sans jamais perdre l'orientation, pour, petit à petit, petit à petit, communiquer le sens d'une approche, d'une autre approche, et d'une réalité... différente !

... Chaque jour il me faut traiter avec mon propre mouvement de démission : je ne veux pas travailler en conflit, je veux me retirer puisqu'il n'y a plus assez de confiance, je ne veux pas imposer « ma » volonté contre celle d'un autre, etc.

C'est tout de la même nature : c'est encore « je veux » et « je ne veux pas »... !

La seule solution est de respirer au-dedans de Ca, et de laisser Ca me mouvoir dans telle ou telle position ou direction, à tel ou tel moment, sans tout ce gaspillage de réactions à l'autre, à sa partialité ou son ignorance...

28-10-1993, Auroville :

Les effets subtils du désaccord avec Arjun se font sentir ici et là ; c'est difficile pour Selvam, qui travaille avec moi, car la nature d'Arjun est vengeresse, et Selvam est incapable d'y répondre librement... Il me faut moi-même un gros effort, malgré l'apprentissage de beaucoup d'années, pour ne pas me laisser décourager !

VK est intervenue aujourd'hui, très belle et perceptive et dynamique, auprès de Selvam et de moi, pour affirmer la nécessité de persévérer et de laisser la vérité intérieure de notre équipe faire le nécessaire...

... Ce soir, Mallika a offert de laisser sa maison à JYL et les siens pendant son voyage de deux semaines, et nous y passons un long moment ensemble, pour qu'elle explique tout...

31-10-1993, Auroville :

Un dimanche bien paisible : pas de visiteurs, à cause de la pluie !

Ce soir, Madanlal arrange une voiture pour nous amener dîner chez lui, JYL, Patricia, Aurevan et moi, avec deux membres de sa famille, Bharat et son épouse ; c'est calme, et il y a beaucoup de douceur, et nous avons le temps d'être un peu au Samadhi ; cela faisait longtemps que je ne m'y étais pas retrouvé, et c'est, sans question, la sécurité complète !

2-11-1993, Auroville :

La mousson : l'air est doux, les averses sont sans violence, et c'est un repos pour le corps et les nerfs...

... Encore une série de séances de dentiste...

3-11-1993, Auroville :

Une femme qui a récemment séjourné à Auroville et semble n'avoir pas eu de « chance » dans ses visites à la Chambre de Matrimandir – elle a peut-être été mal induite, sinon manipulée par A.T par exemple – vient d'écrire une longue lettre de plaintes à propos des règlements que nous avons instaurés autour de Matrimandir et du « climat de peur » dont nous sommes soi-disant responsables ; c'est donc un « témoignage direct », plutôt caractériel, qui a dû satisfaire un bon nombre de gens et montre à quel point nous sommes tous encore les instruments de la confusion et de la résistance...

8-11-1993, Auroville :

Arjun a été fiévreux et « malade » tous ces jours-ci ; ce matin, Ramalingam et moi lui rendons une longue visite...

Visite de Sandro – mon ami que je n'avais plus vu depuis peut-être 25 ans !

11-11-1993, Auroville :

Cela fait 20 ans aujourd'hui que je suis revenu dans l'Inde, pour rester à Auroville...

... Ramalingam s'est mis dans la tête de nettoyer la boue qui est tombée sur l'acier de renforcement des fondations d'un nouveau Pétale, pour que le bétonnage puisse se faire demain, avant que plus de terre ne s'affaisse ; alors nous travaillons ensemble sous la pluie, jusqu'à la nuit...

... Arjun est de retour dans l'activité, et c'est comme un enfant tyrannique dans un corps et une conscience plus développés ; c'est une énergie qui absorbe et qui donne à la fois, mais... il me semble qu'il y a constamment, jour après jour, des dégâts... !

... L me manque... C'est comme une sécheresse, l'imposition d'un arbitraire, de n'avoir aucun prolongement physique de l'émotion, aucun autre corps confortable... Ca fait presque mal !

12-11-1993, Auroville :

Mallika revient après-demain et JYL et P et A ne savent pas où aller ; Patricia insiste pour qu'ils viennent habiter ici avec moi ; mais je ne crois pas que ce soit une bonne chose : il n'y a rien en moi qui souhaite cette vie de famille, et cette promiscuité ne pourrait que causer des tensions que chacun de nous regretterait beaucoup... C'est comme une prière : que le chemin matériel s'ouvre pour eux ici, sans compromis ni mélange...

13-11-1993, Auroville :

Réunion ce matin pour la nouvelle brochure ; ça se développe utilement, mais il y a encore à faire...

... Cet après-midi JYL et moi allons chez Vijay à la recherche de cristaux pour lui et d'un cadeau pour la fête de Su, le 16 ; j'explique à JYL pourquoi il me semble que ce ne sera pas possible de vivre tous ensemble dans la maison ; mais pour quelques jours au moins, étant données les crispations de Patricia, il n'y a pas d'autre solution...

14-11-1993, Auroville :

Mes trois ont donc emménagé... JYL ne se rend pas bien compte encore de sa responsabilité dans le choix qu'ils ont fait de venir vivre à Auroville sans avoir rien organisé au préalable... Mais il faut durer, pour le moment, et j'ai sûrement aussi quelque chose à apprendre avec cette expérience de vie commune...

Longue réunion, à CSR, avec le FAMC, l' « Economy Group » et des représentants de plusieurs unités commerciales ; quand vient le sujet de Matrimandir John H, Toine, Arjun et moi nous concentrons pour communiquer ce que nous ressentons comme essentiel, et quelque chose se passe, que chacun ressent ; c'est créatif...
... Ce soir Rajesh est venu dîner, et il reste la nuit... Ca fait une maison de 5 !

19-11-1993, Auroville :

Cet après-midi Toine et Arjun insistent pour que je les accompagne à Pondy rencontrer Madanlal chez lui, dans sa nouvelle fonction de Chairman du « Matrimandir Fund-Raising Committee » (une entité légale dont il a initié la formation avec le soutien de Karan Singh, pour avoir le contrôle formel et effectif à la fois de la canalisation des fonds) ; son ami L, de Delhi, est présent ; c'est assez amical, pour le moment... Puis Madanlal insiste pour nous montrer le désastre architectural et financier que Pierre E a commis – Madanlal s'était adressé à lui pour refaire une grande partie du bâtiment, malgré l'avis de tous... C'est triste ; Pierre E a manqué à tous les principes de rigueur...

4-12-1993, Auroville :

Le cyclone est passé.

Nous n'avons pas eu le centre, qui a frappé à Karikal, mais seulement les « franges » : c'est un désastre !

Après ces jours de pluie presque ininterrompue, les racines des grands arbres les plus exposés aux rafales ont lâché ; un peu partout les arbres les plus hauts ont été abattus, brisant ou écrasant sous leur poids les arbustes et les plantes autour d'eux ; c'est un carnage dans le jardin ici ; les lignes d'électricité sont rompues, les conduites d'eau éclatées par la terre soulevée ; beaucoup d'arbres rares, qui ont reçu la masse des plus grands eucalyptus, sont abîmés et mutilés...

C'est cette violence qui m'a rendu triste ; c'est idiot, car la matière est éternelle et on peut toujours retrouver une harmonie plus consciente, et c'est ce qui se passera ; mais c'est cette habitude de la nature de détruire pour avancer... la violence, la force aveugle, la démolition, la brutalité de l'interférence...

Je ne sais pas ; je ne crois pas qu'il soit possible d'établir seul, ou même à quelques-uns, une atmosphère suffisamment pure, offerte et consciente : il faut que ce soit assez répandu pour habiter un espace relativement étendu, qui ne puisse plus être contredit (c'est pourquoi, par exemple, il faut un, ou des « Auroville »)...

Il va nous falloir maintenant beaucoup de journées de travail pour rétablir un peu d'ordre et de paix...

J'aimerais bien, j'aurais bien envie qu'il y ait vraiment assez d'argent disponible à la fois pour établir quelque chose qui soit matériellement mieux fondé et mieux développé dans l'espace et le temps, ici, à « Sincérité »...

... Dans une étrange concurrence, JYL, P et A ont de nouveau emménagé ici, et le bruit, le désordre et le brouillage sont entrés dans la maison une fois encore...

Nous passons tous la journée, dans la tempête qui dure encore, à scier, déblayer, balayer...

5-12-1993, Auroville :

On se sent plutôt débordé par l'énormité du travail à faire...

On est constamment condamné à abandonner une priorité pour une autre, et ce n'est pas satisfaisant, et ce ne peut être vrai...

Qu'est-ce vraiment que cette force de destruction ?

... John H, Durai et moi décidons de ne pas ouvrir la Chambre aux visiteurs – les chemins d'accès sont encore boueux et nous n'avons pas eu le temps de nettoyer toute la structure – malgré le fait qu'une centaine de dévots et de donateurs ont insisté pour faire une marche symbolique autour de Matrimandir avant de monter dans la Chambre... Je ne puis croire que Matrimandir soit fait pour ce type de démonstration et, en tous cas, il ne me semble pas que nous devions faire exception pour eux, le lendemain d'un cyclone et seulement quelques heures après la pluie... mais cela crée des remous et d'intenses malentendus...

6-12-1993, Auroville :

Ce matin je dois encaisser la colère de Toine et d'Arjun, et à travers eux de ces forces qui réclament leur « droit » au Matrimandir – ces gens de Singapore, ces « dévots », et le lien de l'argent « offert au Divin »... Et cela me plonge dans un malaise aigu... Puis, les autres soucis et les circonstances s'enchaînent, et le sens de l'humour aidant, petit à petit Arjun se calme... Il pleut encore plusieurs fois dans la journée et nous gardons la Chambre fermée...

... Ce soir Patricia et JYL veulent parler longtemps, et je me sens fatigué et vulnérable, avec un besoin impérieux de silence et d'isolement... Le moindre bruit le soir me fait chavirer, dans ce passage toujours délicat au sommeil, quand chaque soir depuis des années il me faut franchir un même seuil sans une sorte d'attaque cardiaque et respiratoire... Il faut vraiment qu'ils trouvent vite un logement !

7-12-1993, Auroville :

Bhaskar et Selvam m'aident un peu chaque jour à scier les arbres abattus et élaguer les autres...

... Visite de Nandalal Patel et de sa femme, accompagnés de leur fille Anjana, qui sont venus remettre leur offrande d'or et de monnaie au Matrimandir, et nous les accompagnons dans la Chambre, encore fermée aux visiteurs...

... Tous les soirs maintenant, nous nous réunissons pour étudier et préparer la révision des salaires pour l'an prochain ; ce soir nous travaillons jusqu'à minuit... ! C'est affectueux et drôle et attentif...

10-12-1993, Auroville :

Elagage dans le jardin ici jusqu'à la nuit...

Madanlal est dans une curieuse position...

Il faut s'unir à un mouvement plus profond...

23-12-1993, Auroville :

Le Dalaï Lama arrive, avec son entourage, un peu avant 17 heures.

Sous la pluie, il marche toute la droite distance au pilier de Mahasaraswati : un être conscient. Ça se passe bien.

Mais je dois me battre un peu, ici et là, avec Madanlal, avec les photographes et avec la police, pour essayer de neutraliser cette avidité si laide et réductrice, cette grossièreté en nous qui veut prendre, qui s'impose, qui veut « avoir »... et ne reçoit rien : un gaspillage misérable de l'opportunité d'un progrès... Et le contraste des deux expériences simultanées me met dans un drôle d'état : Madanlal me semble tout à coup tout petit, et aussi comme un enfant qui cherche à s'excuser...

25-12-1993, Auroville :

Roger A et Jacq sont de retour, et nous faisons le tour des travaux...

... Longue réunion avec Piero, Asha et Toine pour coordonner et planifier tout ce qui reste à faire dans la Chambre ; Piero se montre de bonne volonté, et cela fait une grande différence !

... Nous recevons les deux creusets pour la fonte du verre, et le grand réservoir d'huile...

... Arjun s'en va à Delhi demain, pour deux semaines...

28-12-1993, Auroville :

Ramalingam est venu ce soir ; il m'explique que, pour assurer la bonne marche de tous les travaux de construction qu'il a pris en contrat dans Auroville, il doit absolument passer chaque jour plusieurs heures à visiter les chantiers et ne peut s'en remettre à ses superviseurs comme il essayait de la faire jusqu'à présent... Il me demande si je le « permets »... !

Du point de vue d'Auroville, c'est probablement une bonne chose, car il y a le risque réel que les gens fassent appel à des entrepreneurs de Pondichéry, alors que nous essayons toujours, en priorité et pour toutes les activités, de fournir de l'emploi aux villageois qui sont voisins d'Auroville et partagent sa destinée... Mais évidemment, ça me laisse plutôt démuni !

29-12-1993, Auroville :

Madanlal ne semble pas capable de canaliser les fonds nécessaires, et il y a déjà des paiements que nous ne pouvons pas effectuer... Dans ce domaine j'ai encore bien du chemin à faire pour seulement apprendre à ne pas réagir, à être un instrument libre : la situation de tous nos gens qui ont absolument besoin de leurs salaires me préoccupe tout le temps, et le sens aigu du gaspillage qu'une interruption dans la marche des travaux causerait inévitablement...

31-12-1993, Auroville :

C'est la cohue des visiteurs et des hôtes de toutes sortes...

Et il faut tout organiser à la fois, et il n'y a plus d'argent... !

Et puis je me mets en colère avec Asha ; c'est la deuxième fois que cela se produit, pour la même raison : elle me reproche de commencer de nouveaux travaux sans la prévenir, et ce n'est pas vrai ; mais ce qui déclenche la colère surtout, c'est le sens de toute une construction mentale en elle, fondée sur son interprétation erronée à laquelle elle tient plus qu'aux faits et selon laquelle elle me juge ; et ce n'est pas vrai, je le sais : je me souviens très bien de l'avoir prévenue plus d'une fois, de lui avoir demandé les plans et d'avoir commencé avec son accord... Ce sont des moments où on ne sait plus où sont les autres, ni de quel état ils participent...

Enfin, c'est une manière plutôt triste de terminer une année de collaboration, et ma colère est une grimace pénible et fausse...

Voilà une chose de plus à offrir !

PART FIVE

- 1994 -

1-1-1994, Auroville :

A mon poste dès 5 heures 30, jusqu'à 9 heures...

Il y a le sens que ce sera une année difficile, et que les passages seront étroits...

...Selvam, sans rien me dire, est allé au Samadhi avant l'aube et m'a rapporté une gerbe de roses...

... A mon poste de nouveau, de 15 heures 30 à 18 heures 30... alors que toute cette humanité défile, l'ombre haineuse et obsessionnelle de Narayana se tient là...

... Madanlal est plus optimiste ; il dit avoir rassemblé quelques fonds en ouvrant ce matin son nouveau bureau...

4-1-1994, Auroville :

La soirée à Pondy avec Madanlal : il veut maintenant que j'aménage et décoore un local en sous-sol pour y recevoir les visiteurs intéressés par Matrimandir, et que je choisisse les photographies et l'arrangement des panneaux d'information...

5-1-1994, Auroville :

La mise en page de la nouvelle Brochure est presque prête...

... JYL reste habiter seul avec moi ces jours ci, car Patricia a demandé à se « débrouiller seule avec Aurevan » dans la maisonnette de Dadu...

6-1-1994, Auroville :

Je me trouve souvent ces temps ci dans un état de réaction, d'impatience et d'intolérance – devant la justification facile de certains mouvements, ou la place excessive que prennent les exigences de chacun (ainsi celle de Barbara, qui ne supporte la présence de personne dans le bureau !), ou l'action insidieusement diviseuse de certains (de VK par exemple !)... Mais cette impatience même est un symptôme, aussi bien, d'une même vague de négation qui cherche à empêcher ou à faire dévier...

... Cet après-midi, la situation avec la foule croissante des visiteurs est devenue franchement vilaine, et une scène s'est développée qui m'a permis de comprendre physiquement comment un « Ayodhya » arrive... ! Perumal, qui a voulu venir à mon aide, s'est fait agresser par une trentaine de créatures, et je n'ai rien pu faire d'autre qu'appeler le calme et l'annulation de cette atmosphère démente, jusqu'à ce qu'ils soient tous repartis...

7-1-1994, Auroville :

Après l'expérience d'hier, j'ai adapté notre méthode d'admission : nous portons maintenant à l'avance au « Visitors Centre » une note indiquant clairement le nombre de Passes encore disponibles pour le jour même...

... Quand je rentre ce soir, JYL a déjà commencé à préparer le dîner... C'est presque comme si on avait toujours vécu comme ça, tous les deux...

10-1-1994, Auroville :

JYL est retourné dans la maison de Dadu, mais il est comme alourdi et vague, obstrué...

... Madanlal a tenté d'utiliser Tripathy à ses fins, pour obtenir la liste complète de tous les donateurs au Matrimandir, et c'est quelque chose que nous ne pouvons pas accepter...

11-1-1994, Auroville :

Joël repart ce matin...

... Je retrouve Madanlal à Pondy en fin de journée... J'essaie de communiquer utilement avec lui à propos de cette histoire de liste des donateurs et de ses efforts pour l'obtenir par l'intermédiaire de Tripathy après que Barbara s'y soit opposée... Tout cela est un peu triste. Il me semble toucher là une différence assez centrale entre notre approche et la sienne, et j'ai besoin de regarder ça attentivement... Mais l'attitude de Barbara a été excessive : elle s'est méfiée de lui et l'a exclu, au lieu de lui dire simplement et fraternellement ce à quoi elle croit et s'efforce de servir...

14-1-1994, Auroville :

Le festival de Pongal : nous sommes en vacance forcée !

A midi, L vient me voir, après des semaines de silence ! Sa femme a eu un deuxième enfant ; il a été malade... Il m'avait bien manqué !

20-1-1994, Auroville :

Dans une autre réunion à CSR sur l'économie d'Auroville, Toine et moi nous opposons farouchement à certaines des directions proposées – ainsi le projet d'attirer l'argent par des offres d'investissements dans Auroville - ; nous nous montrons si intraitables – et fidèles à notre réputation – que cela cause quelques remous...

... C'est la fête d'Anand et je lui fais à dîner...

22-1-1994, Auroville :

Sous l'égide de Fred et d'un F.G vengeur, une autre vague de confusion est sur nous, à propos des Jardins...

24-1-1994, Auroville :

Ce matin j'ai pris Roger A à partie : je lui ai demandé de considérer franchement la profonde différence d'approche pour la réalisation des Jardins de Matrimandir entre son concept de représentation symbolique et structurelle et le sentiment d'un rêve – le rêve de Mère – qu’il nous faut devenir capables de matérialiser, et qui serait l’offrande de la Nature et de l’Homme ensemble...

Sa réaction a été violente, autoritaire, dictatoriale, et il m’a accusé d’être le fauteur de troubles qui vient miner l’atmosphère... Je lui ai répondu qu’il n’était pas honnête...

Son attitude révèle tout un ensemble de manipulations qui s’expriment ces jours-ci de plusieurs manières... Ainsi il a demandé à Walter de préparer un questionnaire pour circulation dans la communauté, invitant à réfléchir aux qualités, attributs, caractères, substances, expressions, de chacun des douze Jardins intérieurs, sans avoir aucune intention d’en tenir compte autrement qu’en récupérant les réponses dans son propre concept minimaliste et spectaculaire qui est plus celui d’un décorateur...

Cela a été un moment très pénible...

25-1-1994, Auroville :

Réunion de Coordination dans l’après-midi ; beaucoup de rire partagé : cela aide, car la situation est plutôt mauvaise ! Et en ce qui me concerne, je suis de nouveau la cible reconnue, l’agent de la disharmonie perçu comme un obstacle... !

26-1-1994, Auroville :

Journée de congé national !

Tout est tranquille, mais il y a une tension sur mon chemin...

Arjun est en campagne pour contrer l’attention négative, et activement chargée, qui me prend perversément pour cible, afin d’éviter ainsi de faire face à d’autres questions – celle des Jardins, par exemple.

Mais le fait même qu’il sente cette nécessité de lutter ainsi me rend plus vulnérable à une attaque dont je pourrais autrement m’isoler, si ses termes ne m’étaient pas sans cesse rapportés...

La position d’Asha, une fois de plus, me laisse avec l’impression d’être sali, souillé : c’est curieux comme tout ce jeu de forces persiste, jusqu’à ce que nous soyons entièrement donnés...

... Ce matin, tôt, Patricia est venue me confier son « mal d’amour » : elle s’est entichée de John H... !

... Dans la journée, Arjun est venu me raconter son entretien avec Jacq ; cela me cloue dans un malaise tendu : pourquoi faut-il qu’il s’agisse de « moi », alors que c’est une question de travail et de direction, du vrai travail et de l’engagement de chacun... ?

Alors je retombe dans cette fosse : si réellement ce que je suis est l’instrument de ce qui empêche, alors que je me retire, tout de suite, à l’abri de tout ça !

La pression des autres, surtout quand ils se croient investis du droit de juger, est une fausseté qui déforme tout et manque à tout...

... Je rédige un texte en réponse à la lettre ouverte de Karel sur la question du financement du développement d’Auroville (l’exposé « rationnel et sensé, réaliste et de bonne volonté » des mêmes vieilles méthodes !)...

27-1-1994, Auroville :

Je vais au ralenti, en lutte pour offrir ce qui en moi est lié encore à toute cette obscurité que les gens jettent sur moi... Je me sens physiquement vulnérable : le corps se heurte plusieurs fois dans le travail... Il y a la tristesse, et le mouvement de se retirer, de ne plus avoir à traiter avec tous ces subconscients, cette jungle opaque qui parasite les mouvements... Comment peut-on percevoir l'autre ainsi ? C'est si faux et ignorant et pénible !

28-1-1994, Auroville :

Arjun me raconte la réunion désastreuse que Toine et lui ont eue hier avec Roger A, Jacq et B, où il est devenu évident que, au-delà de l'attaque concertée qui me prend pour cible, c'est bien d'une campagne de démolition de notre équipe qu'il s'agit, et que Roger A s'y est bien volontiers prêté...

... Envie de rester à l'écart, à l'abri de cette jungle ; mais ce n'est pas ça !

Il y a tant de progrès à faire pour ne plus répondre, ne plus adhérer, en soi-même, à ce qui ment, à ce qui veut prendre... Et il faut apprendre à vraiment sourire, à ne pas en vouloir à ceux qui sont trop petits encore, à continuer de marcher en T'offrant tout, libre...

29-1-1994, Auroville :

Ramalingam, hier, s'est fait mal au dos...

... Ca suffit comme ça avec cette clique de « frères » qui ne se situe que contre d'autres, cette volonté de démolir tout en prétendant vouloir rétablir la « vérité collective », alors qu'il s'agit en fait de ne pas être dérangé, de ne pas s'ouvrir à l'inconnu...

... Je fais faire, par des menuisiers de Kuillapalayam, en bois de rose, un nouveau « hundi » pour le bureau de Madanlal à Pondy...

31-1-1994, Auroville :

Je ne sais pas ce qu'il se passe ; Arjun est plus que déraisonnable : il exige de participer à la moindre décision, et m'accuse de toujours aller de l'avant et de n'en faire qu'à ma tête, et il utilise les gens sur lesquels il a une autorité directe pour exercer ses repréailles...

... Je découvre une autre « négligence » de Selvam, qui aurait pu avoir des conséquences bien fâcheuses pour lui, et cela me rend un peu... navré !

... La tentation de me retirer est très forte ; en même temps, l'autre chemin reste présent : tranquillité, ne pas abriter le moindre ressentiment, mais regarder et voir, sans retirer la tendresse ou l'affection, et sans compromis non plus...

1-2-1994, Auroville :

Arjun me cherche pour se réconcilier, et me faire savoir et sentir que rien ne peut vraiment affecter la nature de ce qui nous unit...

L'équilibre est très fragile, très exposé, et il faut être attentif à chaque pas...

Les forces sont très actives, et nul ne peut prétendre n'être l'instrument que de LA Force vraie !

Il faut apprendre à regarder lucidement ses propres mouvements et ses propres complicités d'un point de vue impersonnel, pour pouvoir se corriger, s'offrir, se dégager, et s'engager toujours plus au service de la Conscience...

3-2-1994, Auroville :

Un moment – assez neutre – avec Roger A, Jacq et Asha, pour confirmer certains travaux ; c'est, après tout, un exercice utile, pour trouver la distance juste, sans passion, prêt à servir...

La confiance qui naît d'un partage profond n'est ni possible ni souhaitable, finalement, tant qu'une base consciente n'est pas établie, éprouvée par toutes sortes de circonstances et d'épreuves...

5-2-1994, Auroville :

Je suis parti dans la nuit pour chercher C à l'aéroport, et nous sommes revenus à 10 h 30...

... Bhaskar m'accompagne ce soir à Kuillapalayam pour transporter le « hundi »...

7-2-1994, Auroville :

Il a commencé de pleuvoir, doucement, tranquillement ; puis, ça s'est intensifié ; puis, c'est devenu torrentiel, sur le sol craquelé par le soleil de ces dernières semaines, et ça s'est infiltré dans toutes les fissures : tout un pan de l'excavation du premier grand réservoir dans les Jardins intérieurs s'écroule soudainement ! L'équipe est sauvée, de justesse ! C'est une petite catastrophe qui va coûter cher, bien sûr ; mais je n'ai pu m'empêcher de la ressentir comme une sorte de purge de cette vague d'intention négative à l'égard de notre travail...

... Asha, de son côté, a peut-être touché le piège : elle a choisi de se retirer à l'écart, et de passer une semaine à Golconde !

Avec Roger A et son entourage, c'est une sorte de statu quo malaisé...

Et Toine est au lit, avec une forte fièvre...

8-2-1994, Auroville :

Nous avons tant d'imbroglios à démêler ces jours-ci ! Faut-il s'enfuir, se fermer, passer ailleurs, tenir ?

... J'emmène C, ce soir, à Pondy, chez Madanlal : du travail avec lui ; puis il nous garde à dîner, et nous abordons le sujet délicat des comptes, et de nos relations à tous...

9-2-1994, Auroville :

Arjun me retient pendant presque deux heures, après le travail, et c'est plutôt créatif ; nous revoyons ensemble, directement et profondément, un certain nombre de points qui sont restés, ou devenus, chargés entre nous... Matrimandir suscite des situations qui sont uniques par leur complexité représentative, et toutes sont prises dans un même creuset d'évolution ; un livre ne suffirait pas à explorer, et tenter de décrire une seule de ces lignes de force... !

14-2-1994, Auroville :

Il semble que je ne trouve plus le temps d'écrire... Tout est très absorbant...

Notre équipe est menacée du dedans comme du dehors... Et l'attitude de Madanlal, son ambition personnelle et... « spirituelle » ?

15-2-1994, Auroville :

C'est parfois comme une implosion, parfois comme une débandade... Des torsions de tous les côtés, des écarts qui se durcissent...

... Toine et moi passons la soirée avec Madanlal...

... J'essaie d'aider Anand à acheter un tout petit bout de terrain dans le village de Kottakarai, où il pourrait éventuellement se construire une hutte...

16-2-1994, Auroville :

Encore une réunion bien exigeante entre Arjun, Toine, John H et moi d'une part et Madanlal et SSJ de l'autre, durant laquelle nous abordons directement les questions difficiles, après la récidive du Secrétaire, Tripathy, exigeant la liste complète des donateurs... L'affection pourtant demeure, et peut-être même la possibilité de continuer de marcher ensemble... Mais il faut voir : les prochains jours seront déterminants...

... Mon tour de garde ce soir, avec C ; et bientôt, JYL et John H nous rejoignent...

17-2-1994, Auroville :

Etude sur le chantier, avec Roger A, Jacq et Asha, des nouveaux travaux que nous pouvons en principe commencer... Le climat entre nous est encore pour le moins réservé, mais il reste toujours ce fait inaltérable, avec certains êtres, de l'engagement envers Toi, qui endure tout, et constitue peut-être peu à peu la seule base durable et solide de l'unité humaine...

... Madanlal est secoué, mais affectueux ; il demande à ce que nous poursuivions ensemble...

19-2-1994, Auroville :

C et moi sommes partis dans la nuit pour retrouver R à l'aéroport, et sommes rentrés vers 9 h 30 ce matin...

... Le tapis de laine de la Chambre est arrivé... Mittel et son équipe, qui ont mis 6 mois pour le tisser, vont rester ici le temps de l'installer ; nous les aidons à dérouler les énormes rouleaux, que Mittel devra couper sur place en douze triangles...

20-2-1994, Auroville :

Narayana me donne beaucoup de mal, sa haine qui me poursuit jusque dans la Chambre, comme une sangsue dont l'action s'amplifie dans cet espace... Il me faut trouver la leçon de cette incroyable persistance, au-delà de ce qu'elle reflète de son propre déséquilibre ; cela crée en moi une sorte de dépression douloureuse, et un peu dangereuse pour le corps, et j'ai dû lutter toute la nuit jusqu'à l'aube pour identifier l'utilité de la pression qui agit au travers de cette grimace : il y a, évidemment, cette semence d'ambition en moi, qui trouve encore la place de se terrer et de se nourrir, quelle que soit la « bonne volonté » des mouvements choisis ; et c'est cela qu'il faut extirper, et c'est pour cette action que je dois être capable de remercier cette hostilité si laide... Mais tout de même, ce n'est plus possible d'accepter, de légitimer la présence de ce rictus venimeux, jour après jour, sans relâche...

21-2-1994, Auroville :

Le jour de Ta fête...

Je suis à mon poste dès 5 heures, et bientôt JYL vient me rejoindre...

... Madanlal fait porter un ananas et des fraises fraîches, venus de Bangalore, à chacun de nous... !

... Des masses de visiteurs...

23-2-1994, Auroville :

Les fourneaux sont en marche depuis hier soir, pour un premier essai (pour la fonte des hublots de verre de couleur orangée qui devront être placés dans la coque extérieure, derrière les disques d'or)...

... Ce soir, le tapis est enfin en place : c'est une merveille !

24-2-1994, Auroville :

Il y a tellement à faire, et l'on travaille en courant, sur un champ... d'obstacles et de mines !

Mais il y a cet immense cadeau de douceur et de pure beauté entière qu'est la Chambre enfin révélée, après la pose du tapis : the Mother's lap !

Et pourtant, les confusions et les démissions et les mauvaises humeurs fusent et Asha se retire du travail et John H est mal fichu...

... Madanlal a organisé un déjeuner spécial chez lui à Pondy, où il a convié comme les veines et les artères profondes de toute une réalité de ce pays devant Toi, en relation avec Toi : Karan Singh et les membres du Governing Board, plusieurs donateurs, plusieurs membres de l'Ashram et tous les Trustees... Toine, Arjun et moi nous y rendons en compagnie de Kamala et K.T, et en revenons vers 15 heures, et c'est de nouveau la course...

... Un vilain épisode avec un groupe de visiteurs particulièrement grossiers et revendicateurs se termine par une autre dispute avec L.N ; pour lui, mon orientation qui consiste à tenter d'établir la nécessité du choix et d'une certaine préparation individuels dans l'approche de l'expérience que la Chambre peut donner à chacun, est une aberration ; selon lui, quiconque se présente doit pouvoir entrer... Cela serait peut-être valide, dans un autre âge – du passé lointain ou de l'avenir – mais certainement pas dans ce présent : nous serions inondés !

Quoiqu'il en soit, c'est l'un de ces moments, assez fréquents désormais, où je suis mené à me poser la question : faut-il laisser chacun faire l'expérience de ses propres inclinations, quelles que soient les conséquences pour l'ensemble et à long terme, à ce stade crucial de l'émergence de Matrimandir dans la conscience collective du monde ?

Faut-il laisser faire, ou persévérer ?

Où est le vrai chemin ?

Jusqu'à présent, chaque fois que la question se pose ainsi et que la suit le temps de la décantation, le sens demeure que, oui, cette orientation qui me détermine est souhaitée, et soutenue, du dedans et d'en haut...

9-3-1994, Auroville :

Tous ces jours ci, je ne trouvais plus le temps d'écrire ; les moments de la soirée où j'avais l'habitude de prendre ces quelques notes, étaient réservés à C et R ; C, qui marche et progresse et grandit, et R... qui suit !

Ils sont repartis dimanche...

... Et puis, c'est une foison de crises simultanées – avec Atmarati, avec l'équipe de l'atelier des disques, Silvio et B surtout, et avec A d' « Auroform » (en fait avec tous ces éléments rapportés par Roger A pour la réalisation de son concept), ainsi qu'avec Madanlal, et le train d'attitudes et d'approches malencontreuses dont il pourrait aisément devenir l'instrument si nous ne sommes pas suffisamment unis et centrés...

... Et puis, encore un abcès dentaire, et la fièvre...

... Le temps peut être un glaive, qui sans cesse transperce, défait et refait en avant...

Il y a tant à regarder, et tant de silence est nécessaire pour simplement, entièrement et vraiment, devenir... une goutte de Toi !

18-3-1994, Auroville :

La chaleur de l'été est arrivée, soudainement...

Les « Auroville News » sont pleines d'accusations terribles à notre égard...

... G.M me téléphone du Yémen...

... L est venu me retrouver ici...

... Shivan vient partager une séance d'exercices et d'asanas...

Note.

J'ai cessé, à partir de cette date, de tenir un journal.

Texts and documents written in 1994.

- On the issue of "Personal Maintenance" at Matrimandir; May 1st, 1994.

"For quite some time now there has been in Auroville a generalised attempt to discern the means to implement a change or a reversal of our economy towards a truer circulation of energies – money, food, goods and assets.

There seems to be a consensus on 3 points:

- 1- That everyone who has chosen and been accepted to stay in Auroville provided – with obvious exceptions – they contribute to the collective a minimum of 5 hours of daily work, ought to be given a minimum Maintenance. One study group has even evaluated this minimum Maintenance at Rs 1,500/- a month.
- 2- That the issuing of this Maintenance ought to be independent of the context of one's daily work.
- 3- That every effort ought to be made to reduce the circulation of cash and to increase and develop the capacities of all the collective services so that eventually every person's needs will be provided for in kind.

Where the work of Matrimandir is concerned, a first small step towards Point 2 was finally taken when, at the end of last year, a representative meeting of Economy Task Group, Central Fund, FAMC and the productive Units agreed by consensus to the inclusion of a monthly budget for both the physical maintenance of the completed parts and the Personal Maintenance of an average number of volunteer Aurovilians.

One recommendation was however that our team at Matrimandir would continue to monitor the list of the Aurovilians actually working there regularly, according to the two categories already established: "half-time" meaning 5 hours a day, 6 days a week, and "full-time" meaning a minimum of 7 hours a day for 6 days a week and a commitment to one's responsibilities.

This decision was important in another respect: it was the first time that the collective body of Auroville was able to formally take charge of at least one aspect of Matrimandir from its collective resources.

Recently the Economy Task Group had to acknowledge the necessity of raising the general level of the Maintenance of the Aurovilians working in Services, SAIIER, Forest and Matrimandir particularly. These "units" had so far been unable or unwilling to do so, but a large donation, specified for Personal Maintenance, had just been made directly to the Central Fund, allowing for this improvement.

In consultation with the Economy Task Group our team agreed that the level could be raised, which meant an augmented budget for recurring expenditures, and that this raise ought to be done "in kind", that is, in the form of services, material goods, rather than "in cash".

This decision was felt to be in support of Points 1 and 3.

We did not know at the time that the Financial Service was not yet equipped, accounting wise, to function with the simultaneous disbursement of "cash" and "kind"; We had assumed that this tiny step forward could easily be implemented, and had agreed on May 1st as the starting line.

The raise we had considered as appropriate in the present context was as follows: for "half-time", from Rs 1,000/- to 1,200/- in kind; for "full-time", from Rs 1,400/- to Rs 2,000/- in kind.

This is exclusive of the individual contribution to Central Fund, of a minimum of Rs 300/-.

There are several reasons why we felt that any increase ought to be done through services and not in cash. To appreciate these reasons, we must go back a little ways.

- 1- Over the years the term "Aurovilian", from being charged with the unique challenge of adventure, progress and change; has gradually come to represent a status, almost a caste, with its own "sub-castes". As is always the case naturally with any status, those who enjoy it will tend to make sure that it is inviolable.
- 2- It is a fact of Auroville that, by and large, very few of its residents are available for full-time physical work.
- 3- Since the time our team took up the coordination of the work at Matrimandir, it has been our perception that our mandate and our task were to see the whole of Matrimandir completed as soon as possible, within the guidelines of Auroville.
- 4- It is another fact of Auroville that, being situated in contemporary South India, it is not in position to make use of sophisticated machinery and equipment for any construction purposes, while virtually every adult person living near to Auroville must earn daily wages in order to survive.
- 5- There was always a "labour force" at Matrimandir, even through the lean years when only one main work was in progress, such as the erection of the space frame or, later, the laying of the marble in the Inner Chamber. But when the time came to look at the completion of the whole of Matrimandir – the two shells of the sphere, the Air Conditioning System, the entire interior, the underground areas, the whole infrastructure, the 12 large Petals and the 12 small petals, the Inner Gardens, the amphitheatre and the Park or Outer Gardens and its water bodies – it became obvious that we had to organise ourselves so as to receive the help of many more "workers".
- 6- At present there are more than 400 people working at Matrimandir, who hail from the neighbouring villages. They work for their livelihood, but they also work for Matrimandir itself and a number of them are manifesting a degree of commitment and care truly remarkable by all standards.
- 7- On the other hand several individuals who hail from the same background, who are sometimes even blood relatives to these men and women, have at various times become "Aurovilians"; among those, some were "workers" earlier and continued working at Matrimandir, albeit at a different pace and with somewhat different implications, while others have joined the work at Matrimandir after becoming "Aurovilians".
- 8- Given the complex and diverse nature of the work and the centrality of its purpose at all levels, given also that at the best of times there can only be a tentative planning, as its progress depends entirely on the flow of donations, the daily context of activity is naturally more loosely structured than in any specifically oriented service unit or any productive unit where it is generally accepted that a hierarchy and a strict discipline are a necessity.
- 9- It has thus been one of the most blatant contradictions surrounding the emergence of Matrimandir that, too often, on the part of those who being "Aurovilians" are expected to manifest the clearest sense of responsibility and dedication, it is in fact the most casual show of participation that has been achieved.

- 10-In consideration of all these points or given conditions of growth, and out of respect for the contributions of these men and women who make it possible with their bodies and their energies for Matrimandir to become a material reality, we have consistently refused to allow more of a discrepancy between the wages or salaries they receive and the standards of living enjoyed by those Aurovilians who work alongside them.
- 11-It is not within our field of action to significantly help raise or improve the living standards of the Matrimandir workers alone, in isolation from the workers elsewhere in Auroville, as this would have negative consequences all round.
- 12-The labour situation at Matrimandir is actually faithful to the instructions given by the Mother in the early years of the construction, according to which Aurovilians were to constitute guiding frames for the labour of large teams of workers. (Alas, the Mother also wanted it built in 5 years!)

What Matrimandir needs is a steady and motivated team of Aurovilians sufficiently dedicated to give unreservedly all of their time to the demands of the work, so that the coordination of all activities is effective and harmonious.

And in terms of individual capacities what is required from the collective body of Auroville is an organ which will bring together the most suited individuals and the tasks at hand in all areas of its progress.

These individuals ought to be taken care of by Auroville in an organic way expressing the fact of their belonging, by conscious choice, to a larger adventure than is to be found in ordinary life elsewhere.

Such a thing as an "Aurovilian" clamouring to get Rs 2,000/- a month for doing, not any better, the work that a hired worker is doing day after day for a salary of less than half of this amount, ought not to happen.

Yet it does.

Therefore not only do we ask that at least a beginning is made in the direction of a saner economy, but we ask also for a deep and all-inclusive review of all the values we have given way to.

We feel that every single one of us all is responsible for the conditions we find Auroville in and that courage is required from each of us to face these and to seek the living truth that will open the way."

- On the "Auroville Sangha".

Note: The proposal for an "Auroville Sangha" had been floated for some time in the community by some of the remaining members of the "French Group", others having left Auroville in the wake of L.V's letter stating that Auroville was "finished". Their intent was to recapture the "true spirit of Auroville".

The following text was my personal response to it.

"Having read the report circulated under the title "Auroville Sangha" and given myself the time to assimilate its contents and its implications:

Apart from the excerpts of texts written by Sri Aurobindo, which always throw open the doors to a truer world, no matter the context in which they are referred to, I found that this report, beyond the claim to freedom of development it expresses, is most vague, ambiguous and misleading.

The attitude it reveals is known to each of us: it is easier to invest some formal entity with all the shadows one has not been able to offer and transform than to own them nakedly and present them in the light of honest effort.

It seems to me that it would have been more effective, had it been possible to truthfully do so, to point out specifically all the ways and manners by which this formation called "the Auroville Foundation" prevented any one resident of Auroville to follow the path of its Charter.

Yes, we do know for certain that that a particular individual, having been entrusted with a degree of legal and social power, has indeed taken a number of actions which were mainly oriented by spite and resentment; but that they have succeeded in producing unfortunate results only gives a measure of our inertia and absence of dedication.

We have been given all the conditions necessary for the birth and growth of more than a Sangha.

It is we alone who are to blame for not making right use of the gift.

The dedication required from each of us is the missing element; nothing else!

And it would be a vain and futilely dangerous illusion to now incite to a parallel attempt at realising the truth of Auroville, when all around us the consequences of our own carelessness are gaping.

No Sangha will ever be manifest without the individual and collective discipline freely chosen by each of those who will be its parts.

Therefore no arbitrary imposition of this discipline needs to be made.

This is the logic of the matter.

If such arbitrariness does try to enter, it only shows that the free choice has not been made: it can only enter through the weakness of our pretences.

And Auroville, Their Auroville, the Mother's and Sri Aurobindo's Auroville, is more than a Sangha.

It is a bomb of Truth, if only we could let it be, by adhering actively and directing all the energies we are able to muster.

Please, just look around you: Auroville is asking for true life.

Every activity asks for an impetus and a fire, every bit of its matter asks for care, every one of its movements asks for creativity.

There is not a single area in Auroville today where one may feel it is the way it is meant to be.

Is that the "Auroville Foundation's" fault?"

- Unfinished draft of an Introduction to Matrimandir, for the public.

"Introduction to the Matrimandir of Auroville.

You are going to the Matrimandir, the Abode of the Divine Mother, Her Shrine.

This is not a temple in the traditional or religious sense of the word, but a privileged space built for Her conscious Force to act and help us human beings to find our true consciousness, one with the divine, and let it transform our nature.

Founded by the Mother of the Sri Aurobindo Ashram as one more step in the realisation of Sri Aurobindo's teachings and action, it stands, in the words of the Mother, as:

'The symbol of the Divine's answer to man's aspiration for perfection. Union with the Divine manifesting through a progressive human unity.'

At the centre of Auroville – the 'city the earth needs' -, the Matrimandir heralds the age of equilibrium, when all opposites join in a creative harmony, surrendered to the reality of the true Consciousness and centred in its power of manifestation.

Symbol form of plenitude, a simple sphere lightly flattened at its poles like our earth - our earth that opens up in a twelve petals bloom to receive it or let it rise -, it rests on four pillars, the four aspects of the Divine Mother:

Mahakali at the North, Mahalakshmi at the East, Maheshwari at the South and Mahasaraswati at the West.

Clad in shimmering golden discs, the twelve petals around it overlaid with soft red sand stone, it is first surrounded by twelve inner Gardens, each expressing a state of being – Progress, Utility, Wealth, Power, Life, Light, Bliss, Consciousness, Existence, Perfection, Harmony and Youth.

Together these twelve Gardens spread over an area that is ten times that of the sphere in section, thus forming a large oval island which is in turn bordered by a wide and deep channel of water within a large contoured park land.

Around this park gathering many hundreds of species of tall and noble trees from all over the world, the city of Auroville will grow.

At present, in the year of 1994, the Matrimandir is still under construction.

The work began in 1971 and has never stopped, although over the years it has proceeded at various paces, according to the hardships, difficulties and progresses Auroville has experienced in its growth.

At the service of no religion and no movement, it is dedicated to Her only.

Its progress has met with numerous resistances, contradictions and oppositions.

Built exclusively with the donations of those individuals throughout the world who kept alive their trust in the Mother's vision and action, it carries Her seal and energies as a unique centre for the forging of a truer future upon earth.

The Matrimandir is not isolated.

The nucleus of a galaxy, it is the core of a laboratory in humanity, where consciousness is experimenting in accelerated evolution.

Auroville, meant by the Mother to shelter up to 50,000 volunteers who choose to try and serve, in life and matter, the advent of a new species, is the anvil where a willing representation of our humanity is to be put to the test of change.

Its Charter, issued by the Mother, contains its guiding principles and determines its orientations.

Distributed over some 4,000 acres of land, its settlements and activities relate to all of the human reality, attempting to unite with all aspects of the divine nature: wisdom and knowledge in the mind, love and ananda in the heart, unified power of manifestation in the vital, and beauty and perfection in the physical.

The conditions today:

To reach the Matrimandir you will turn off the main highway and follow first a winding asphalted road through green fields and simple villages, then pass on to a rammed earth road to the formal entrance to Auroville, a large building of pressed mud bricks and wide terraces, all ochre and white: the Visitors Centre.

Under its shaded arches and cooling arcades you will find a large range of information on Auroville, and exhibitions and sales of many of the Auroville products, crafts and art work; a cafeteria will also welcome you.

From that entry point, you will then be given directions to travel into Auroville, past the Bharat Nivas – the Pavilion of India, which is the first pavilion of the International Zone of Auroville. You will follow on an avenue of trees until you reach a large Banyan tree sheltering a group of stone benches: nearby the small Reception Kiosk of Matrimandir awaits you.

If you have made no prior arrangements, or if you have come on an impulse and if, besides, you have arrived after the viewing hours – 8.30 am to 3.45 pm -, you may find only one option left to you: to make reservations for the following day.

Indeed, access to the Inner Chamber of Matrimandir is necessarily restricted.

While the construction work is still in progress, there can only be one hour – 4 pm to 5 pm - reserved for the interested visitors and during that hour only 100 to 200 visitors can be allowed to sit in silent concentration.

On Sundays, more visitors are allowed to file in and out, without sitting.

However if you have taken the step of booking in advance, you simply have to confirm your name, read the recommendations and receive your Pass.

You will then walk through the gate and down a path across the Park area, until it meets the West Pathway pointing like an arrow to the sphere of Matrimandir.

On this wider path you will continue past the amphitheatre on your right, at the centre of which a small elevated white Urn contains the soil of all the nations which had sent a young representative to the Foundation Ceremony of Auroville on February 28, 1968.

On your left, you will meet the King Banyan, the first resident of Auroville and its exact geographical centre, a friend to all and the living symbol of inner life and unity.

You will then walk down the ramp between two of the twelve Petals to the Pillar of Mahasaraswati.

Concealed within its volume, each of these Petals is to house a room of colour, expressing a state of consciousness: luminous blue for Sincerity, deep blue for Peace, blue-violet for Equality, pure violet for Generosity, magenta for Goodness, vermilion red for Courage, deep orange for Progress, pale orange for Receptivity, golden yellow for Aspiration, pale yellow for Perseverance, light green for Gratitude, and emerald green for Humility..."

- Points for the receiving of visitors and the regulation of their movements to and into Auroville, to be approved by: the Working Committee, the Development Group and the Secretary of the Auroville Foundation:

- 1- Note of Information to be widely distributed – see the draft presented to the Working Committee and the list of addresses of various private and public tourism agencies and corporations.
- 2- Upgrading of the existing facilities at the Visitors Centre: a) enlarging the Parking area; b) shaded walk over to Bharat Nivas and, past Bharat Nivas to the Matrimandir Reception area; c) updated information materials translated in Indian languages (Hindi, Tamil, Gujarati, Bengali, Urdu, Oriya and Kannada); d) full-time video service with updated presentations on various aspects of Auroville, including Matrimandir (for a fee); e) formation of personnel to receive visitors and answers their questions according to the level and quality of their interest; f) organisation of exhibitions and demonstrations (crafts, alternative technologies, art work, ecological gardening, etc.
- 3- Creation of a proper Visitors Pass: a) use of the Pass in coordination with traffic regulation inside Auroville; b) all watchmen and guards in Auroville to use the same colour uniform and a badge, so as to be easily recognised, and to be trained in checking Passes and giving directions to visitors; c) The Auroville Patrol to request any visitors to show either their Visitor Pass or their Guest Pass.
- 4- Traffic Regulation: a) a new board to be placed at the turn to "Certitude", with a large map of the area positioned underneath a small shelter manned by a guardian, who is trained to answer basic questions and to direct visitors to the Visitors Centre; b) clear sign boards to be placed at all entrances to the Auroville area, indicating the way to the Visitors Centre and requesting quiet, cleanliness and slow speed; c) extra watchmen on duty at the parking areas of the Visitors Centre and the Matrimandir Reception.
- 5- Relationships with the villagers: a) to clearly explain to representatives of all the villages our policies regarding visitors and tourists, and access to Auroville in general; b) to introduce them practically to the system in place and seek their suggestions.
- 6- Budgets: a) additional budget to be allotted to the Visitors Centre; b) hundis to be placed at the Visitors Centre, with a simple notice explaining our guidelines and policies.

- 7- Visitors Park: creation of a fairly large Park area to cater for visitors, expressing the sense of beauty, cleanliness, harmony and collaboration with Nature; this Park to be situated near to the Visitors Centre, up to and around the water body there and along the road to Edayachavadi; eventually this area could be enclosed, and the right of entry be charged a token amount, for its maintenance and upkeep."

(Note: as of summer 2005, only Point 1, Point 2a, parts of 2b, c, d, e and f, a small beginning of Point 3a, b and c, parts of Point 4a, b and c, and parts of Point 6a and b have been implemented.)

- On society and governance in Auroville:

"We are not here to make classes and castes and categories.
We are here to make, to let her make, Aurovilians.

We are not here to make producers, bureaucrats, artists, servants, missionaries.
We are here to become men and women with living souls, incarnating the same need into every activity, every area of existence and every movement.

It is discovery. It is adventure. It is work, serious work!

We do not need committees and groups ad perpetuum.
We need dedicated people and the courage to serve the truth of the Charter in all its implications.

The less committed we are to that truth and the more fearful we grow of control: and the further away we push from us the opportunity to truly grow.

Auroville is a field of action, change, transformation and becoming, that rests on a solid ground of Truth: it is a Gift.
If we are unwilling to serve it, we must be made to leave.

The Working Committee as a function is indispensable: a part of the organism of Auroville.

But the way it is presently manifested only adds to the pervading confusion.
For it cannot and must not be an instrument of the "collective will", unless that particular collective has reached a Gnostic stage. An unenlightened collective will can only lead to disaster and betrayal.
Instead the Working Committee must be, must learn to be, an instrument of the Truth of Auroville.

The Working Committee is meant to be the central channel for administering Auroville: its resources, its needs and its means of action.
Therefore what is termed as FAMC (Funds and Assets Management Committee) is simply one of the activities of the Working Committee, as are ABC (Auroville Board of Commerce), or the Visa and Entry Services and the Economy Group.

In order to do its work it must fulfil its first mandate, which is to actively seek to serve the Charter of Auroville: it must in that sense act as the steward and guardian of the integrity of Auroville, and be held accountable for it.

The more we postpone this essential duty and the more we play into the hands of all the forces that endeavour to slow, or block and prevent the process which Auroville has been created to initiate.

Our first allegiance is not to our "fellow Aurovilians": it is to the Mother and Sri Aurobindo or, if that is shocking, to the highest consciousness we are able to identify; it is anyway to the truth of Auroville.

What we are to one another is of a different nature and will progressively materialise as we grow out of the ego.

So the Working Committee must be established on a sound basis; and it is an urgent necessity.

Through its members it must be related to the various organic working groups – Development Group, Services, Productive Units, Education and Research...

It must coordinate directly the administration of all assets and resources – Land Service, FAMC, ABC and Finances – and be accountable for all the policies and procedures relating to residence in Auroville.

It must have a substantial nucleus of full-time members and a defined space for secretariat; around that it must have a larger number of members articulating the various areas of activities in Auroville, who have part-time involvement and/or specific tasks.

The full team must meet regularly, perhaps twice a week, with clear, prepared agendas, and a strict discipline in the furtherance of any given task..."

- Communication on the Access to the Chamber in Matrimandir:

"Why do we find it indispensable to request residents of Auroville not to bring their guests inside Matrimandir outside of the visiting hours?

First and foremost, it is simply in accordance with the Mother's instructions – "a time in the day or a day in the week for visitors, to show them around, but no mixture..."

There is the sense inwardly that this part of an individual and collective discipline which the future of Auroville and of its Soul demands from each and all.

It is not easy to try and break down this inner sense into "reasons".

But for the sake of mental communication, here are some of the reasons, which are reinforced and confirmed by daily observation:

- 1- There is an ingrained habit and expectation, almost a custom in this culture and environment: besides "rules" there are always other ways around them, such as little favours and privileges accorded to status and social position. For instance when one knows a person within a given organisation, one will try and obtain a favour and this will in turn enhance one's position. We have in Auroville today a multitude of contacts through suppliers, business transactions, technical and scientific exchanges, work relationships, and relatives and friends and personal acquaintances, out of which would "naturally" spawn a multitude of "favours". There is no end to that trend, and it is bound to eventually corrupt the very approach to Matrimandir.

- 2- There are physical and practical reasons as well, particularly in the present conditions of a working site, with little achieved of the basic infrastructure and reception facilities. Moreover people are seldom prepared for the unique experience of the Inner Chamber, and there is need for a team of volunteers on duty to guide or assist whoever comes in for the first time. This cannot as yet be arranged on a full-time basis.
- 3- People coming to Matrimandir ought to feel, even now with all the work activities in progress, that the access to the Inner Chamber is something truly special, and that certain steps must be taken for one to be given that opportunity. The Mother spoke of a sense of "initiation". Later on, as the Park and Gardens and Petals become materialised, people will be helped and concretely prepared by gradually entering a favourable atmosphere, mood or state.
- 4- Ever since the time the Inner Chamber has been deemed to be sufficiently ready to begin fulfilling its role and to receive individuals for the purpose of concentration, we have felt that we must learn, each and all, to regard its access as the access to the Mother Herself, to Her own living Presence. The Mother has specifically said that everyone would have to obtain permission to enter; it wouldn't be "just like that", and any doubtful case must be referred to Her...

We are not here to discriminate.

But we must act as stewards and in our service we must make sure that a certain quality of approach is respected by all."

- On "Personal Maintenance":

"When in consultation with the then Economy Group we had opted for an increase of the Personal Maintenances in kind rather than in cash and requested the Financial Service to open accounts "in kind" besides the current cash accounts, we were under the impression that this step would go in support of the general effort towards an internal economy that would free itself from the circulation of money.

However, progress is slow and as of today, but for clothes through the newly reformed "Nandini" Service, it remains impossible to receive the materials needed for one's livelihood.

Yet the possibilities are there. And we do feel that what is actually lacking is an effective, well-oriented coordination between the various productive units (including farms) and the services, based on unity of purpose.

The challenge is not merely to support a community of so many individuals: it is to evolve the attitude and the means of an economy based on truth, at the service of the Divine in Matter.

These are big words indeed, and the reality they point at may still be distant from us if one is to judge by our many failings.

But Auroville exists by the very quality and intensity of an aspiration, a striving and perseverance in orientation, thrust and progress.

We have to link.

Services such as "Nandini", "Pour Tous", "Prosperity", "Housing Group", "Development Group", "Economy Group", "Bridging Fund", "Maintenance Fund", Water, Electricity and Telephone Services, etc. must all redefine their present functions and reassess their motivations in the light of a common coordination towards the material expression of Auroville's raison d'être.

We are so wary of centralisation and the misuse of power that we keep breeding more groups and committees, which only aggravate the confusion and waste the energies.

No diffusion can take place without a centre.

This centre we must find, and discipline ourselves around it.

There needs to be a central awareness in the form of a core group of coordination acting as a living channel at the service of Auroville's truth and purpose.

This core group must be presented with a transparent and comprehensive picture of all the resources available as well as of all the needs, and inform the various services accordingly.

This is not going to realise itself, nor anything we truly wish, without dedication and hard work.

It will not do to sit weekly or bi-weekly and talk.

It will not do to open a service three afternoons a week.

It will not do to multiply attempts that merely undermine each other.

If we are loaded today with almost a hundred units and delude ourselves that these complications are the expression of diversity, we have only ourselves to blame, that is, the forces that in us resist the multiple manifestation of Truth's simplicity!"

- Letter to the Financial Service:

"Greetings. This is to request you to release the amounts kept in the individual "in kind" accounts for all those who are listed as Matrimandir Workers, as and when they will ask for it in cash.

We had wished earlier this year to support practical steps towards the shift to an economy more open to the inner dynamics of Auroville.

We had hoped that the various services would be sufficiently motivated to take up the task and begin to create channels for the provision of individual needs "in kind"; that a coordination would be activated between these services and the Financial service so that, even when goods are not produced in Auroville as yet, they could be acquired; that this effort at collective organisation would trigger a development more faithful to Auroville's essential thrust.

However, this progress seems to be hampered in many ways and more time seems to be needed.

Meanwhile the present situation is confusing and causes practical problems for many of the persons concerned.

We would like to collaborate with the different services so as to establish a clearer basis for this practical orientation.

At the service of Truth,
For Matrimandir"

- On volunteer duties at Matrimandir:

“To each of us who chooses to take up a duty at Matrimandir.

It is imperative, if we are to progress towards a more conscious effective implementation of the Mother’s guidelines regarding access to Matrimandir and its Chamber, that we truly regard our respective duties as an actual service and learn to develop the qualities it demands.

We must be at once guardians and servitors.

Not arrogance, but strict vigilance; not passivity, but instant evaluation; not imposition of one’s will, but firm observance of the required discipline: these are some of the abilities we must cultivate.

No matter what improvement we wish to make to the existing organisation, the first condition is our own individual and collective discipline.

It is necessary to repeat:

- 1- Auroville residents are not to bring in visitors outside of the visiting hours; exceptionally one Auroville resident may bring one friend along.
- 2- All guests and non-residents must present their individual White Passes (for concentration) and may only enter at the appointed time (as specified on the Pass).
- 3- Constant awareness must be kept of all movements inside the Chamber, with the readiness to gently intervene whenever necessary.
- 4- The cleanliness of clothes and of hands and feet must be carefully and unobtrusively ascertained for every person about to enter the Chamber, and there must be no hesitation in asking someone to return later if need be.
- 5- Bags cannot be taken in, and cameras are not allowed.
- 6- Auroville residents who happen to be in the Chamber during visiting hours must respect and observe the rules which the visitors are requested to follow.

An integral part of the necessary improvements to be made in the existing organisation is an increased commitment on the part of volunteer Aurovilians.

So far we have only been able to fulfil some of the basic duties; others are kept pending or must be attended by our hired watchmen.”

- 1995 -

Note: Sometimes during the previous year, JYL and I had eventually obtained the permission to build a fairly large house for him, Patricia and Aurevan, in "Sincerity". The construction of this house took me nearly 3 years, mainly due to lack of funds, but also because, working full-time at Matrimandir, I could not hire more than a few workers whom I trusted well enough; Arunasalam did most of the work with a couple of helpers, from the foundations to the last finishing touches, including the plumbing.

Of the year 1995, I have somehow kept almost no traces, but for a couple of texts.

Commentary on Matrimandir, March 1995:

(Note: in March of 1995, two French people, Paulette and Philippe, were sent by "Auroville International France" to make a video on Matrimandir; they asked me to speak as a running commentary. The following is the English translation of that commentary.)

"The first thing to be said is that, according to the Mother's instructions, the approach to the Matrimandir is essentially individual and one must make a request. It is not a place one enters automatically just because one wishes to. It is a place one must prepare oneself to enter.

For the first visit there will probably always be an appointed hour in the day, which will serve as an introduction.

But one ought to approach the Matrimandir not only as a privileged point of concentrated spiritual energy, but as an integral experience.

It is not only the Inner Chamber of the Matrimandir that matters: its whole environment matters equally.

An integral experience... that means... it is a whole... an organisation of the truth. It is, it manifests the true consciousness.

So, each person will first make their request.

Then one enters Auroville and comes towards its centre, which is a park.

At the entrance of this Park, one has to show a sort of Pass.

One enters the Park, which is the protection of the Gardens of Matrimandir; thus one is already in an environment of peace, of calm.

Through the Park one reaches the edges of the Gardens.

The Gardens... It is an area that is 10 times the dimensions of the sphere of Matrimandir (360 meters by 290 meters).

One crosses a bridge over a water channel into the Gardens area, which has thus an oval form.

One enters by the longest of the main pathways.

There are 4 main pathways.

One will enter by the one which is West of Matrimandir; that is, one will face the East. It is the longest perspective.

Each of these pathways gives a perspective onto the sphere that emerges from among the 12 Petals.

One enters a field of experience composed of 12 individual Gardens, plus the Garden of Unity which is around the Banyan Tree.

Each of these Gardens – the material realisation of these Gardens must be such that one enters a specific atmosphere, unique: the atmosphere of a state of being.

The Mother has given names to these Gardens, such as Perfection, Power, Life, Light, Youth, Progress, Bliss... and She has insisted that the experience must be so concrete that, as one moves from one Garden to another, one passes from one state of being to another.

That is to say that the presence – from the collaboration between a deliberate arrangement and the energy and consciousness of Nature –, the presence of the flowers, of the plants, must manifest this state.

So, it is a process that is a preparation.

One can follow the path all the way to the Matrimandir, or one can move through the Gardens, stay there awhile...

Then one comes near to the sphere and around the sphere there are the 12 large Petals.

If one continues, the path becomes a ramp descending towards the start of the stairway that reaches up into the sphere.

Half-way down the ramp, one can enter one of the Petals; instead of moving directly to the sphere, one can go left or right into one of the 12 chambers.

Each Petal has its chamber of... one may call it a chamber of meditation.

It is a space that has the shape of an egg lying on its side; and each of these is a coloured light, of a specific colour – according to the colours Sri Aurobindo has given to the twelve Powers of the Mother.

And each of these eggs has a name given by the Mother: it is more like a state of the consciousness, such as Aspiration, Humility, Courage, Perseverance...

According to the necessity at the time, one can remain in one of these spaces, which may help one to get ready. It is like a bath of energy, of a particular energy one may need.

From there one can also descend all the way under the sphere.

There is an open area, with a pond that will receive the ray piercing through the whole sphere from above. There is a promenade around it. One may also remain there.

Insofar as one feels ready to ascend to the Mother's Chamber – which is truly Her Chamber, a space exclusively reserved for Her Force –, insofar as one feels ready to go up, one may choose one of the 4 entrances.

Each entrance is situated in one of the 4 pillars, named after the four Aspects of the Mother: Mahasaraswati to the West, Mahakali to the North, Mahalakshmi to the East and Maheshwari to the South.

One reaches there.

One climbs up to the first level; there, it is planned that one will put on socks.

One can rest a moment there.

This level is rather narrow; there are just benches to sit on, put on the socks, make a pause.

From there one enters a cone that contains a double helicoidal stairway.

This cone is narrow at the bottom and widens at the top and one reaches the second level, which yields the whole amplitude of the sphere.

There is suddenly a widening-up, contained in an orange light.

One bathes in a space that is a space of silence.

From there one will go up a ramp, one of the two spiral ramps that lead either to the eastern or the western door of the Chamber.

One climbs up the ramp and one comes to the marble doors.

Then, one enters the experience that the Mother's Chamber can give.

At the centre of the Mother's Chamber are the 4 upright symbols of Sri Aurobindo that support the crystal globe.

The 4 symbols rest in the middle of the Mother's symbol.

It means that there are the Two, the Presence of the Two in One, the complete incarnation of the Divine."

Matrimandir – Auroville:

Note: later that year, on September 21, 1995, I wrote the following text:

"A subjective note.

One keeps floundering into a mass of details, a multi-layered complexity, as one tries to serve in Matter or, simply, as one tries to remain aware of the central reality one's inner experience has, at some points I time, unveiled.

There are moments – those endless moments – when one drowns altogether: overwhelmed by the relentless weight of the contradicting coalition of things, suffocated by the pull and pressure of all the innumerable wants and twists of humanness and of our mentalised and subconscious relationship to physical and material existence, one turns blind and deaf to the inner radiance; one, mutely screaming, lets go and falls.

As a deep-diver, there one discovers the true solidity of the Matrimandir: way down where the mire and the rock should be, there it is, a friend, a Pulse, invincible, an unalterable Fact.

A tenderness where the darkness meant to hold undisputed reign, a potent immobility of concentrated wholeness, without a gap, without a fold, the sheer purity of oneness.

All along the spiritual history of mankind there seems to have always been, attached to the will or the aspiration to reach the Lord, an element of ambition and selfishness.

But the Mother and Sri Aurobindo have done something else entirely.

They have loved the Lord so much that they have known the whole world must be His, Matter must be His field and all experience must at last vindicate His Trust and Thrust into the unknown.

They have opened the gate of illusion and division towards manifest Truth, not away from It.

This Force that now flows into the world needs to annul all our conditionings, all our habits of separatedness, millions of years of habits encrusted and hardened as bent energies.

Together the Two of Them have delved ceaselessly down, held the certitude in Themselves and borne it forth into its sleeping awaiting form until it responded and a continuous flow of consciousness could know the Lord within the very cells of the body.

The Mother then, standing to all appearances alone and exposed at the crest of the fore wave, the Mother who could at last securely manifest the truest will, Herself shows that even that realisation is still a separation.

Matter itself will bear the Supreme.

In the Matrimandir, as in the Mother's hand, one touches the body of the Lord.

Yet it is far from certain that we want to touch It, that we want to be aware of It, that we are willing to undergo the changes this awareness will effectuate.

So, until we are ready and willing, the Matrimandir has its levels of approach, poised in the complete safety of itself: it is always where we seek it, albeit a little higher and deeper, to magnetise our precarious flame.

Here in Auroville we did not come to an ashram to try and discipline our natures on a given path; we came to the most exacting challenge: to make true, in freedom of choice, our aspirations and ideals, with the only sure promise that, insofar as we would remain sincere and willing to progress, the Help would be there.

This was not to be an island; we were not to be spared.

On the contrary, we were to become able to see things as they are, once the trappings and the coverings and the professed intents have, under the merciless Grace at work, ceased to appeal.

To "build" the Matrimandir, we have tried different ways and none brings any satisfaction: each is lacking, each is incomplete, and each is largely dictated or determined, sooner or later, by the predominant ignorance in our condition.

There is no glory in being poor instruments!

No matter how much the fire may be burning in us, we remain powerless before the amount of pressure the general average status of earth-consciousness inescapably applies at every point of the material grid.

The "inner being", the consciousness, can only be an agent of contact.

We learn to offer and to remain oriented so that true use is actually made of all this seeming denial, however well-meaning it may seek to appear.

Beneath the clamour and the disorder is a quietness of purpose.

Even though it is in our nature to betray, what is actually silently incarnating stands through the very mechanism of betrayal, until enough of us will have let those identities be consumed and will have risen as so many unique channels for the Real.

The Matrimandir has come to stay.

In many hearths today a glimpse, a ray of the Presence has collected, created a nexus and a hold.

The Matrimandir stands for That completeness: it will keep reminding us that the work to be done is of necessity integral.

It tells of the perfection, of the entirety of the true aspiration, without which any discovery will cancel itself by its opposite.

It makes use today of all the means available – bound as we are yet, in our understanding of Matter – towards a lasting physical representation of this perfection.

Yet its true shape is minimal and contained and free: when we cease our tinkering, even for a moment, and listen and feel, it simply and directly calls for our care, unconditional.

Human infants are totally, unreservedly, absolutely trusting.

To be aware of that is to know the Lord's Gift of responsibility and evolution.

The Matrimandir is that infant too, even though it is the matrix of limitless experience in conscious becoming.

Trustingly it makes that Gift and thus brings each of us before the choice.

When we enter the haven of the Matrimandir's material structure, its concrete sphere in the likeness of our earth, supported by the four main powers at play in the true ordering of the inner nature; when we ascend within it to its upheld chamber of silence and pass into its whiteness, we are entering a space for which there is no precedent and no equal in the whole of the material universe.

There, are no gods to propitiate, no image to adore, no intermediaries to beseech, no favours to be begged.

There, is an open, direct, uncluttered, safe channel all the way through and through to goodness, divineness, the only reality.

Any gradation in one's experience is only due to one's readiness or development.

One's receptivity is only measured in terms of unity in one's being and nature: for the true consciousness manifests in unity and through unity.

One will not reap the fruits of any exclusive tapasya; one will find no gratifying echo to one's pretences; one will obtain no solution to one's faults.

Rather, like another air, another density, it will permeate any area of our nature which, by the genuineness and honesty of its need, has opened a little the net that enslaves.

It does not seek converts.
No one and nothing can influence it.

God men will often say that to speak of God is an act of vanity.
But this is no patriarch and no tyrant and no jealous master claiming dominion.

This is truly and only oneself, at last, coming.”

Note: During that same year I studied and prepared the designs and drawings for a fairly large building in the shape of the Mother’s symbol, which I planned to house all the many thousands of photographs of the Mother and all of the books and records of the Mother and Sri Aurobindo, as well as of all Their disciples, as a centre of learning and meditation entirely devoted to Them and Their avatar hood. But I couldn’t find an opening in Auroville for it, or else I didn’t have sufficient determination or trust in myself as an instrument.

- 1996 -

Note: In 1996, in the face of mounting opposition to our work at Matrimandir as a team and to an increasing level of controversy regarding such issues as control, decision-making, design and access, we formulated the proposal to open a permanent Forum, the "Matrimandir Forum", where every point and every matter of concern regarding Matrimandir could be discussed openly and every choice of direction could be processed by the community.

Foremost among the issues at the time was that of the "rights of control" over the organisation of the work and the allotment of priorities to be exercised by donors, in particular by Madanlal who had succeeded in legally establishing the entity called "Matrimandir Fund-Raising Committee" and was seeking to dictate the scope and the pace of the work as well as the manner in which it must be executed.

Another prominent issue that divided our team from Roger A's team on site was one of quality and standards; despite high claims to the contrary, the results of their manufacturing coloured glass or subsequently polyester fibre reinforced translucent coloured panels were far short off the mark and involved tremendous waste, for which we, rather than them, would be held responsible.

This collective exercise lasted through 1996-97.

I have kept some of the documents that I had drafted on behalf of our team and which were used as materials for the on-going discussions of the Forum which, after a series of stormy, well-attended "Residents Assemblies", met for many months on a bi-weekly or even weekly basis.

Proposal for a "Matrimandir Forum", 6-6-1996:

"What could be a truly collaborative, constructive work that we could do together as an Offering to Her?"

Appreciating and recognising the concern expressed by most of the Community, we would like to propose the following:

Let's create a Matrimandir Forum where the team coordinating the work will present at the beginning of every month:

- a. A Financial Statement.
- b. A Work Report.

- c. Any of the current or major issues that are of vital importance to the Matrimandir.

For example:

- 1- Design – related questions.
- 2- Access to Matrimandir.
- 3- VIP Reception.
- 4- Maintenance of Aurovilians.
- 5- Maintenance of the Structure.
- 6- Fund-raising.
- 7- Information regarding Matrimandir within Auroville and without.
- 8- Gardens.

Needless to say that these topics don't necessarily have to be brought up by the Coordinating Team but can and should be raised by any Aurovilian."

- Amrit, Arjun, Divakar, John, Ramalingam, Walter.

Working note on the formation of an Auroville Reception/Protocol team, its mandate and method of functioning, October 25, 1996.

- Perspective.

The absence of such a team on the one hand and the increasing public awareness of the Matrimandir on the other hand, have led to the current situation wherein the majority of Government officials and other VIPs tend to view Auroville as merely the locale of the Matrimandir and to exert various kinds of pressure in order to visit it, while we have generally remained unready and unwilling to respond favourably.

Promotion of the Matrimandir as a tourist site has also intensified, both from tourism industries and Government concerned agencies.

This has caused innumerable misunderstandings and has been a major factor in the negative relationship to Auroville among official circles.

- Proposal.

It is proposed that, with the Working Committee as a base and with the active collaboration of the office of the Secretary to the Auroville Foundation, an Auroville Reception/Protocol team is formed, with the following mandate.

- 1 - To ensure a proper welcome to all visiting officials and VIPs.

A: A permanent Reception room is required at the Visitors Centre, so that all VIPs may be given an introduction to Auroville, its activities, aims and ideals, with the help of the exhibition room, video coverage and a cordial set-up.

B: Depending on the time available to the VIPs and on their areas of interest, a program is established either on the spot or by prior arrangement, in coordination with the various units and project holders in Auroville.

2 – To help all such visitors to become aware of the scope of the work of Auroville as a living experiment.

3 – To present the role and function of the Matrimandir in the context of Auroville, with adequate emphasis on the Mother's guidelines as to its utilisation and access and the essential quality of silence and concentration attached to it.

The composition of this team is envisaged as follows:

- The Working Committee members act as a core team with the constant participation of a designated person in the Auroville Foundation Secretariat.
- Representatives and contact persons are designated in each work area of Auroville as committed to help receive the visiting VIPs according to their special interests.

In the case of Matrimandir it is understood that:

- 2- Visiting hours must be respected and never compromised.
- 3- Exceptional arrangements are to be implemented in the case of VIPs who require security measures.
- 4- Direct coordination of each visit is to be implemented by contacting any one member of the MMCG (Matrimandir Management and Coordination Group).
- 5- When the VIPs are not able to visit at the appointed time of 4pm to 5pm and in the event that they express a genuine interest in the Matrimandir, they may then be shown the site and, in coordination with at least one member of the MMCG, be introduced to the works in progress.

To ensure the progress of the functioning of this team, it is proposed that the entire team, including its contact persons, meets regularly – once a month initially and, later on, quarterly.

Working note on design-related issues, November 22, 1996.

"The MMCG was constituted, end of 1989, by the then Auroville Council, with the mandate to manage and coordinate the completion of the whole of Matrimandir at the earliest, on the basis of the design presented by Roger A.

We have had, individually and as a team, to lay aside our personal opinions and to try and answer the challenge of identifying the practical terms of execution.

Along with the MMCG a Planning Group was also formed which was meant to prepare the ground for the execution of any part of the work and to support it.

To this group Piero had been asked to actively participate, in a spirit of collaboration.

This participation however did not last very long, or confined itself to specific areas such as the Air Conditioning System for the Inner Chamber.

Later on several others joined in and contributed to a number of decisions, the responsibility for which not all are now willing to share.

Essentially what enabled us to continue with the work was the fact that Roger A's design or vision for the whole of Matrimandir did carry a power of realisation and generated the necessary energies.

This however has not been an easy task; the play of forces has been intense and every one of us has gone through the mill.

The lack of real unity in Auroville at large has allowed, through various sets of reactions, for a certain amount of partiality and hastiness to blind the process and resulted in a corresponding amount of waste and imperfection.

When, early this year, we saw that it had become necessary for us to refuse, in spirit and in action, a definite trend which sought to impose its momentum on the destiny of Matrimandir, we found ourselves quite suddenly exposed to an all-round surge of resentment and animosity.

All this together clearly expressed one singular need for review and reassessment and for a shift to a higher, wider and truer degree of awareness and unity for the sake of the Matrimandir's work.

It was then also that, very unpolitically, we realised that the execution of the FRP inner skin was flawed and had become unacceptable (the translucent panels already placed had already begun to fade and warp).

We called for a halt so that new and more extensive studies may be conducted.

We felt that, no matter what the cost, Matrimandir's demand for perfection was a higher priority.

We also took the decision, along with M.B, to interrupt the production and gilding of the discs, so as to give him the time to test and perfect another method of gilding that would ensure durability and easy maintenance.

(Note: the gilding method introduced by the French specialists and recommended by Roger A was proving unstable and far too vulnerable in our climatic and physical conditions: birds scratched it the thin layer of gold every day, hard sandy dust was blown into it and damaged it rapidly and it was also impossible to clean it. Our further research eventually led us to the new technique of melting small glass tiles around gold leaf, assembling these glass and gold tiles onto the discs and gluing them in position.)

There followed the arduous process of questioning as enacted by a series of Residents Assemblies, until we were able to propose the creation of this Forum, which we felt would provide a space for the necessary conscious unity, without which the work of materialising the Matrimandir could not proceed.

We do not perceive this space as a license to question for the mere sake of questioning and settling scores, nor do we wish to be puppets in the hands of energies that seek only to obstruct, delay or destroy.

We perceive it as a grace and a great possibility, with its imperative call for honesty, integrity, humility and readiness to collaborate in the face of a stupendous challenge: how to live and grow together in the presence of the implosion of consciousness the Matrimandir increasingly manifests.

We do not see that, where design matters are concerned, the vision that has come through Roger A is necessarily to be questioned.

What we see and feel is that the Matrimandir has to be whole and that each of us is requested to make the necessary effort to contribute to this wholeness.

From the Forum the request was issued, by consensus, a few months ago, to also interrupt the work of casting additional platforms on the Level II of the sphere.

This request expressed the sense, widely shared, that there is no need for contrived interior designs – such as these introduced recently by Roger A -, and that the entire inner space of the sphere should keep to its structural simplicity.

This said, however, we find that one must also make the effort of offering precise and concrete proposals in answer to specific questions of details having a bearing on the harmony of the space, such as the attachment of the hand-rails of the inclined spiral ramps.

At present it is our view that exhaustive studies of alternative materials for the inner skin, and possibly for the outer coating of the ferro cement shell, require immediate attention.

And we consider that this constitutes a test for the validity of the Forum in terms of constructive and truly helpful support for the completion of the Matrimandir: it must prove that it is able, by its spirit, to mobilise and motivate enough of us to work together.”

Working note on access to the Matrimandir, December 9, 1996.

“- Introduction.

What do we have to guide us towards an organisation the implementation of which will not tend to betray the very truth and purpose of the Matrimandir?

We have a few specific excerpts of conversations recorded by Satprem with the Mother, in Her Agenda, which relate to the Inner Chamber.

We have a small number of messages and statements by the Mother regarding the Matrimandir as a whole.

We have a vast body of written work on the Integral Yoga and the individual and collective Yoga of Transformation and evolution, by Sri Aurobindo and the Mother.

We have a comprehensive array of notes, statements, letters, messages, recorded talks and comments by the Mother on a whole range of questions of practical behaviour in relation to the goals.

What certainties do we derive from the above as regards the Matrimandir, its role, its raison d’être, its function and its action?

- . That the need of the hour puts us past religions and the traditional belief and assumption in a divinity perceives as separate from the manifested world.
- . That it is the manifestation itself which must become consciously the house of the Lord, and that the tension of this work lays within the consciousness of man.
- . That the Divine owns the essential part of man – the psychic being -, which develops from within all experience and is the only safe, incorruptible, infallible and authentic formation of the Divine.
- . That every other part of the human being, born from successive stages of evolution, the physical, the vital, the mental, has its own spiritual truth and that the psychic being is the centre of creation around which these inner parts must unite so as to permeate and transform the outer being.
- . That for this to happen, two things are indispensable: the consent of the ego, and the grace, force and consciousness of the Mother.
- . That only a united being is in a condition to receive and to hold the flow of consciousness that will bring humanity to the next step of evolution upon earth.
- . That the Matrimandir is representing this unification of the being as the core of a new creation upon earth.
- . That the Matrimandir is the Divine's answer to the call of man for concrete guidance towards the necessary change of consciousness.
- . That the Matrimandir is for us "Aurovilians" insofar as, without it, there can be no real Auroville.
- . That the Matrimandir is for the world insofar as Auroville remains meaningful to the world as a place reserved for accelerated evolution, through the conscious commitment of its members.
- . That the Matrimandir is for all individual human beings who, from near and far, realise the imperative need to find their consciousness and open to the change.
- . That the Matrimandir is a material rendering of the Mother's body and presence, dedicated to Her action and under the direct influence of the Supreme.

- Part I.

How do these certainties translate in practical terms of organisation, considering the many factors at play?

Here comes in the quality of interpretation and the responsibility of it. There seem to be three main approaches.

- 1- One tends to be radical and somewhat extreme and will express itself either in:
 - a) very stringent conditions, equivalent to the initiation rites of past traditions, must be laid for every person to approach and enter the Inner Room of the Matrimandir, or:
 - b) the Matrimandir must be open to all, as it is meant for humanity as a whole, and the Mother will organise it directly after Her own fashion.
- 2- The second, which is presently trying to find its balance, rests on a literal faithfulness to a few words of the Mother, recorded in a more general conversation held in January, 1970, with Satprem. (See the attached quotes)
- 3- The third tries to ground itself on a comprehension of the spirit of all of the Mother's available comments on the Matrimandir, and of Her practical wisdom and expansive action of progress and change towards all.

The first one of these approaches, which is more of a tendency or attitude – nonetheless very much active –, meets at once with innumerable problems which it is not equipped to face.

Let us then look at some of the implications and consequences, in short and long terms, of the second and third approaches.

- Part II.

The second approach has been applied since May, 1995, and has since undergone a few modifications and refined itself.

The third approach was actually applied first, gradually and gropingly, from 1992 till April, 1995; it was not well understood, and therefore was not given the necessary practical means to develop.

In the second approach, currently applied, the emphasis is on the quote earlier referred to and, in particular, on the points underlined below:

"... Those who want to see... can be shown around... at a fixed time in the day or a fixed day in the week... but no mixture... the rest of the time for those who are serious..."

The intent here is to discourage the public at large from exerting pressure on the physical organisation by insisting on "its rights" to enter the Inner Chamber.

It assumes that the majority of the people will be content with the satisfaction of a superficial interest or curiosity, and that few will be who will ask for more. Those few can then be directed to have access for an introductory experience of the Inner Room for the purpose of concentration, which is set during the hour following the official visiting hour.

People are thus allowed, with no other restriction than the time limit of one hour (and any obvious misbehaviour), to view the Inner Room from its threshold for a few seconds.

The impression they will retain and communicate thereafter will depend on their further interest in, for instance, asking more questions at another occasion.

Tourism industry and its agencies have no problems in institutionalising tours that include the viewing of the Inner Room of the Matrimandir as one of the worthwhile sights in the area and in the country; they are only limited by the rule of one hour a day, which they cannot, hopefully, question, as it comes directly from the Mother (although She has added "but, for the internal organisation, we will see later...").

In the third approach, which was initially applied almost from the time of the completion of the Inner Room, and evolved through the first actual experience of the relationship between the public and the Matrimandir, with little of administrative facilities, rests on the complementarity of the following points, all quotes:

. "Not everyone will be allowed in... one will not enter just like that..."

. "First, one has to ask..."

. "A fixed time in the day or a fixed day in the week for the visitors..."

. "For silence... silence and concentration. One will not come for regular meditations, or anything like that..."

. "The whole area must be silent..."

. "To find one's consciousness..."

- . "No religion, for heaven's sake..!"
- . "Individual concentration..."
- . "Research..."
- . "The symbol... of future realisations..."
- . "In the gardens, one will move from consciousness to consciousness..."
- . "To enter the Park of Unity, one will have to get permission..."
- . "The symbol of the Universal Mother according to Sri Aurobindo's teachings..."

A central basis of reference arises from the experience which was given when the Mother was available in Her physical body.

In order to see the Mother one had sometimes to wait for days, even weeks, and the experience of being in Her physical presence was valued as supreme and had maximum impact and lasting effects on one's life and consciousness. (This does not necessarily apply to those who had been accepted by Her as disciples or Ashramites.)

General public access to the Mother was only possible on Darshan days, when large masses of people could gather on the street and the surrounding rooftops to see Her appear and stand at Her balcony for up to 10 minutes.

These were events of Her spreading action which, in the later period, occurred only 4 times a year.

The Mother attached great importance to the building of the Matrimandir and, up to the very last moment of the apparent life of Her body, was asking about its progress.

The Inner Chamber of the Matrimandir is the material abode which She Herself has brought forth from Her consciousness for Her work upon earth, and She has instructed clearly on every one of its details and measurements.

This third approach considers that access to the Matrimandir must be established on a basis that, for the sake of Her action, will correspond to the experience of Her incarnation.

The Inner Chamber must be kept at all times to its privileged atmosphere and purpose of silent concentration.

This is the gift of the Matrimandir to humanity, and the essence of its message, near and far.

The more faithful and transparent we grow to it, the more its action will spread unaltered.

The practical basis of this, the third approach, is then as follows:

- . One enters the Inner Chamber exclusively for the purpose of concentration – "to learn to concentrate, to find one's consciousness..."
- . One must ask permission to enter.
- . The request must be made individually. (This is not to say that one is judged worthy of entering according to some esoteric or arbitrary criteria. It is simply that one must express one's genuine interest and motivation, one's valuing of the experience or the event, by preparing for it, by asking for it.)
- . The first visit, or visits, must be made during a set hour of introduction. (This being an unprecedented and unparalleled experience, people must be monitored and guided.)
- . When this experience is conclusive to the individual, it becomes possible to apply for a different hour for the next visits and this can be granted accordingly without passing any judgement, other than the obvious in case of unbalanced or untoward conduct.

- . Records are kept meticulously of each person's visits, so that the direct relationship with the Matrimandir, once established, is not burdened or affected by duplication of procedures.

- . Later on, the same process is to be applied for access to the Inner Gardens area.

- Part III.

The two approaches share naturally several concerns:

- . There must be no distinction of class / caste / religion / financial power / education: the Matrimandir is for whoever in their heart is attracted to its gift.

- . For all, regardless of their status, the same procedures apply.

- . Ideally, the "Aurovilians" are those who have committed their all to the task of Auroville, and the Matrimandir is naturally the core and soul and generating power of their endeavour: they ought to be able to enter it at any time, according to their need, in a self-disciplined way. This, however, is not yet the reality, and "Aurovilians" are often the cause of confusion and of the misuse of "privileges". (The Mother is also reported to have said to Roger A that not every Aurovillian would be allowed to enter and that doubtful cases should be referred to Her.) Meanwhile, the population of Auroville is increasing, and it will eventually become necessary for every Aurovillian to comply with the need to fix a time in advance.

- . The Matrimandir must be approached within the context of Auroville, and not separately from it. A very considerable effort must be made by Auroville to receive the interested public in a way that will convey the nature and spirit of its work, aims and import. (This applies as well to VIPs, and special arrangements can only be sought when security requirements are attached to their visits.)

- . There must be an increased Aurovillian presence in all the duties relating to the access to the Matrimandir.

- . There must be a proper Reception Pavilion at the entrance to the Gardens, well-equipped, spacious and quiet, with a constant staff and simple monitoring facilities.

- . We, as "Aurovilians", are stewards and not judges. Within basic guidelines and regulations, people must be left to the experience itself and we are not to interfere.

(Later note, on July 10, 2005: The issue of the access to the Matrimandir and to Its Inner Chamber was one closest to my heart. To my understanding, it was crucial to the development of Auroville, and the way we approach it and understand it would determine, or reflect the way we approach and understand the raison d'être of Auroville. In 1995, Arjun and some others had forced me to abandon the approach referred to as the third approach, in order to apply the second approach. I had been extremely distressed at the time, and had even wanted to leave Auroville, as I could not reconcile myself to the prospect of seeing multiplying hordes of tourists and visitors flocking to the doors of the Inner Chamber to have one peek at it and leave without any understanding of it. I kept trying to warn everybody of the way it was bound to grow and overwhelm us, in the long run, and of how it would eventually tend to nullify the very meaning and significance of the Matrimandir. But I only met blank walls. Over the years, this system developed on its own lines, involving an increasing number of regulations, while compromising ever more with the pressure from "important people", to the extent that two systems began to operate side by side on a daily basis, one for the general public and one for "special guests". Traffic inside Auroville became something of a disaster, as more and more tour operators brought their flocks to the "viewing" of the Inner Chamber. To me this was institutionalised violation; but for all these years I remained unable to communicate the value of what it was that I felt so deeply, perhaps precisely because it was so intense in me. And, despite the solidarity we experienced in many a battle in the years that followed 1995, up until we were both "dismissed" by Governmental orders instigated by the then Chairman of the Auroville Foundation, Kireet Joshi, and the "Chief Architect" Roger A over the issue of the Park and Gardens, in October, 2003, Arjun and I never could reconcile our difference over this issue of the access to the Inner Chamber. This working Note, written by me for the Matrimandir Forum in 1996, was just one of my attempts to get the terms of the issue across to everybody interested.)

- Part IV.

Where the two approaches differ, both in terms of the quality of the contact with visitors and in terms of perspective and development:

With the second approach, currently applied, the contact with visitors is not established on the basis of the purpose of the Matrimandir, but on a more superficial one. Thus one is not actively serving this purpose in one's work here: one is merely being instrumental in coping with the growing influx of public interest on outward terms.

This can be rectified to some extent by means of an increased effort of information at the Visitors Centre; but most of energy will perforce go into deflecting the pressure rather than in communicating some of the essence of what Auroville and its Soul, the Matrimandir, have to offer – namely, a profoundly revolutionary change of attitude towards the divine, as towards human existence.

The mere fact that people are given access to the inner space of the Matrimandir out of curiosity alone, or because they have been sold this visit as part of a package by tourism agents, inevitably brings, not only in the general atmosphere but in our own, a lowering and a loss of quality and aspiration on the day-to-day practical level of experience.

Instead of regarding the Matrimandir as an increasingly powerful source of transforming energy, one becomes conditioned to merely cope with its outward impact on the public.

One does not unite with its purpose.

At present the daily inflow of visitors is still manageable. The number of visitors allowed in during the viewing period of one hour can go up to 1000 without too much of a logistical difficulty on the site, although it does create a very complicated and disharmonious situation on the roads of Auroville and at the Visitors Centre.

However, given the facts that, no matter what organisation is selected, the Matrimandir cannot possibly receive all and every one of the mobile adult population of the country, let alone of the world, in a hundred years; and that, nonetheless, the public interest is bound to increase, while the number of residents in Auroville itself is bound to grow; there will come a time when even the casual "viewers" will have to ask permission in advance and a whole administrative apparatus will have to be installed to this end.

Therefore the point of whether 200 or 800 visitors can be allowed during that one hour is basically a moot point.

What is essential is the quality of the approach, as the nature of the experience, which ought not to be compromised, as it has immense consequences.

The third approach was gradually perceived and attempted during the first period, from 1992 to 1995, within a general confusion of conflicting ideas and opinions, notions and claims, with no previous experience or precedent to draw from. Yet the sense of direction was deep and clear, and the results, at the level of experience and contact, were significant.

As regards the involvement of the tourism industry, it had been reduced to one single quota for the Government Tourism Organisation and another quota for the guests of the Ashram.

The next step, which was just beginning to take shape, was to set up a richer, more varied and more effective organisation at the Visitors Centre.

There were problems however: one difficulty was the lack of understanding and support in our midst; another was the lack of proper administrative facilities; and another yet, perhaps the deciding factor in the shift to the second approach, was the virulence and intensity of the complaints and grievances on the part of those persons who considered themselves more important and deserving than the rest.

- Part V. Proposal.

If a new shift would be found acceptable to the third approach, on a new basis and with the support and participation of all concerned, the following steps are proposed:

- . In order to establish practically this new basis, a period of concentrated preparation would definitely be required. This period would allow for a concerted effort at informing the public in advance of the guidelines for all visits to Auroville, in general, and to the Matrimandir, in particular.

This period could be provided simply by using the opportunity that ongoing work at Levels I and II of the structure is giving us and announcing a break of up to 3 months time in all visits to the Inner Chamber.

- . A system of guided visits in the Matrimandir area could be elaborated as both an alternative and a means of preparing the ground for a qualitatively different access in future.

- . During this period one could conduct an intensive search into the modalities of access to the entire area – the Park and Gardens - of the Matrimandir in future, so that the permanent Reception Pavilion, the permanent entry-points to the Inner Gardens, the permanent facilities for all individual visitors, Aurovilians and others, preparing to go in to the Inner Chamber, can be designed and the ground laid for their material realisation.

- . It is not an untenable requirement for us to have the time to concentrate more consciously on the elaboration of an organisation which will have such lasting consequences, without the daily pressure of many hundreds of visitors. We have a chance now, which we may not find again in such an organic and natural way.

. Since the Inner Chamber must continue to be serviced by the AC system at all times (for the wool carpet as well as for the lacquered columns), Aurovilians may not accept easily to be barred from entering, during this period of time; this inevitably will cause resentments and legitimate questioning, all the more as some of the Aurovilians will also want to bring in some of their special guests, and thus create a situation that will be unfair all-round.

It is therefore proposed that all Aurovilians will be requested to comply, and that those among them who feel a great urge to remain in contact with the Inner Chamber will instead be invited to closely participate to its daily upkeep and/or to the elaboration of the new organisation.

. During this same period, the necessary teams should be formed, with firm commitments on every one's part, including a permanent team to monitor and coordinate all the relevant duties.

. This period could be set from January through to April of this coming year.

. During the Auroville's birthday week in February, a daily time could be set aside for either viewing the Inner Chamber, or taking a walk inside it, as we used to arrange on special days such as Darshan days.

. Through this period of three months, with everyone's collaboration, all past experience, with its lessons and pointers, should be carefully assessed and considered, so we may be best equipped to provide an organisation that will be as conscious as possible, in a spirit of caring service.

This is admittedly a lengthy presentation; but, having observed over many months that verbal discussions seldom allow for the attention and concentration required, and on my team's request, I have opted tentatively for this method of communication, hoping that everyone will take the time to read this presentation carefully and reflect upon it, before this topic comes up for debate and direction at the Forum.

- Attached document: various quotes of the Mother on access to the Matrimandir.

. October, 1965, hand-written by the Mother on a report submitted by Roger A:
"The park of Unity must be surrounded by a kind of isolating zone so that it is solitary and quiet. One has access to it only with permission."

. January 3, 1970, voice-recorded in the Agenda by Satprem:
"... And then, people will not come for a 'regular meditation' or anything of that kind (but the inner organisation will be made afterwards); it will be a place for concentration. Not everyone will be allowed to come: there will be a time in the week or a time (hour) in the day (I don't know) when visitors will be allowed to come, but anyway, no mixture. A fixed time or a fixed day to show people around, and the rest of the time only for those who are... serious - serious, sincere -, who really want to learn to concentrate..."

. January 10, 1970, voice-recorded in the Agenda by Satprem:
"... So perhaps we should simply put a great wall all around, and then the Gardens: between the surrounding wall and the building we are going to build now, we could have the Gardens and the Urn. And that wall will have one entrance (one, or several, ordinary doors): people will be able to walk around the Gardens. And then one should fulfil certain conditions to have the right to go down into that underground passage and come out into the temple... That must be something like an initiation, not 'just like that', no matter how..."

. August, 1972: after having met the Mother, Roger A noted down from memory what She had said (these notes were not checked by Her):

- On the subject of Matrimandir, the quality of silence:

"I would like people to keep silent. It must be written there (in the Matrimandir area) that one keeps silent, in French, English and Tamil. And no music."

- Matrimandir:

"In principle not for visitors; reserved for Aurovilians; but not everyone will be admitted. The first condition for those who want to go there is to ask. Those who have contributed to the construction will be admitted in the first place. If there are doubtful cases, they should be referred to me. All those who have a doubtful presence should not go. If there is the slightest doubt, the case should be presented to me. People must be known for their qualifications."

- Matrimandir door:

"One cannot have it (the building) open. Then voluntary guardians will be needed, day and night. I think it is simplest with doors."

Note: At the end of that year, this letter, written by Satprem to Yolande, was somehow circulated in Auroville:

"Chère Yolande. Je pense souvent à vous, ou votre pensée me vient (je ne sais pas dans quel sens ça fonctionne!) et puis cette année s'achève, pustulante, comme si la terre des hommes était un énorme abcès. Mais symétriquement ou simultanément, je sens, je vois quelque chose qui est de plus en plus... je ne sais quoi dire... extraordinaire, nouveau comme il n'y a rien eu de nouveau depuis... peut-être, notre sortie des eaux. C'est maintenant que je comprends Mère, si terriblement, comme si je ne comprenais rien, ou si peu, autrefois. Le Travail gigantesque, divin, qu'ils ont fait pour que nous puissions, un peu, passer le nez hors de nos eaux fétides. Tout ce que je puis dire, avec une évidence corporelle, c'est que tout va changer, est en train de changer – justement ça éclate pour Ca. Les hommes sont fous, électronisés et 'démoralisés' comme disait Mère, et leur conscience est plus polluée que leurs cités, alors quoi dire là-dedans ? Je travaille avec mon corps, je prie avec mon corps, je fais devenir ce qui semble l'Impossible, ou le prochain Possible – si leurs virus sont contagieux, la Contagion de Mère est encore plus puissante et radicale. C'est un grand Nettoyage pour le Nouveau. Il faut seulement avoir le courage de traverser les dernières convulsions et perversions des vieux Primates. Comment les hommes ne voient-ils pas ?! Est-ce qu'il y a encore des consciences qui voient – ils voient, peut-être le Négatif, mais pas le formidable Positif. Comme j'aimerais le leur dire ! (Comme une démonstration de laboratoire !) Mais je dois me condamner au silence, tristement parce que j'ai une vieille fibre sympathique avec toute cette Misère humaine. Les faits parleront d'eux-mêmes. Qu'est-ce que l'on fourre dans la tête des étudiants qui, comme moi, déambulent sur le Boul'Mich avec une fièvre et tant de questions dans le cœur – je rêvais de partir aussi loin que possible (!) et Mère m'a précipité dans les étoiles nouvelles et des longitudes immenses, c'est fabuleux et c'est vivant – notre humanité présente est fantomatique, mais très vilainement. Alors, que dirais-je à ces 'étudiants-moi' du Boul'Mich ?? Et pourtant je suis plein, plein à craquer (mais la tête solidement sur mes épaules... fragiles !).

Voilà, je voulais vous dire que l'on marche et je ne sais quel genre d'année je dois souhaiter, mais ça va très vite. Et surtout je voulais vous embrasser très affectueusement, sans oublier nos amis et amies. Satprem »

Working Note on Security measures at Matrimandir.

There have been over the recent times an escalation of incidents occurring at and around the Matrimandir.

Whether these were caused by carelessness, negligence and ill-will or, as in the most recent case, a definite and dangerous imbalance in one or two individuals, the necessity we are facing is clear: there must be a better and more conscious organisation.

(Later note: among others there was the case of two young French fellows, one of them suffering a kind of slow crippling disease of the muscles, who had been helping and working at Matrimandir for some time, had got into their heads that, in order to save the world, they must absolutely rectify the terrible mistakes we had made and shift the Urn, from its location at the amphitheatre, to the pond directly below the sphere of the Matrimandir; in planning their move – and almost succeeding – they had somehow complemented their 'understanding' of the situation by attributing to me, as an asura, the responsibility for most of the wrong...!)

These are some of the measures we propose to take, either immediately or in sequence.

1- Regarding the individuals who join voluntarily the work at Matrimandir:

- . We will from now on first ascertain their contribution is welcome and actually useful and that their relationship with Auroville is clear.
- . We will request them to carry with them a recommendation from the Entry Group, if they are guests or newcomers.
- . We will request the Entry Group and any other working group concerned to give us their views directly, whether the individual is a guest, a newcomer or a resident.
- . We will ask any individual whose conduct at Matrimandir proves to be unacceptable to leave their work at once and we will inform the Entry Group and any working group concerned of the same.

2- Regarding the service to the Inner Chamber and the duties related to it:

- . From now on the Inner Chamber will only be open when a minimum of 3 volunteers are on duty: 1 inside the Chamber, 1 at the vestibule and 1 at the Pillar entrance.
- . The Forum is to constitute immediately a core group for access to the Matrimandir, with the following tasks as priorities:
 - a) To formulate simple guidelines for the screening and monitoring of all volunteers for service.
 - b) To determine at which hours the minimum required of 3 volunteers will be available and to inform accordingly.

- c) To appoint a team of 4 people who will monitor and coordinate all duties through the week and act as a reference point.
- d) To study practical proposals for means of identification of all newcomers and residents in Auroville and to present these to the Forum at the earliest.
- e) To study practical proposals for all – guests, newcomers and residents in Auroville – to seek and obtain permission for access to the Inner Chamber every time, and to present these to the Forum at the earliest, as part of a comprehensive introduction to overall policies and practical requirements.

Note: I have not found any other written materials for that year.

Update on the completion of the Matrimandir.

(Note: this document was presented to the Matrimandir Forum sometimes in April of 1997. This is an example of the numerous documents and reports we had to write and present in the years to come, at various fora!)

"It is certainly time that we share with all those who are concerned with the Matrimandir a clear summary of the situation and a sense of direction.

We hope that with the help of this sharing most rumours, if not all, will be dispelled and the atmosphere will be energised again with a call and a welcome for everyone's contribution, for which there is urgent need.

If we have waited so long, it is because we did not want to induce vain expectations which the results of our researches might have later contradicted, in such major areas as the gilding of the discs and the realisation of the translucent inner shell.

Yet it would have helped matters had we communicated and had everyone been aware of the work in progress in all the other areas of the completion of the Matrimandir.

For, as we have seen and experienced again during this year most people, whether in Auroville or elsewhere, tend to focus selectively, or even exclusively on matters which to them are symbolic or representative and to ignore, relegate or neglect all the other parts of the whole.

We on the site cannot do this. Our commitment is to the whole body and expression of the Matrimandir, and thus to a path of realisation which is not linear or exclusive, but integral and comprehensive.

The outward appearance of the sphere of the Matrimandir, its "design", to use the fashionable term, has been since the beginning, and remains a controversial and dramatic issue which distorts the concern of most people, deflects the necessary energies from their course and reduces the terms of the adventure of the Matrimandir to conflicts of opinions, to the detriment of our essential receptivity.

What would the Matrimandir signify without its approach, the structural movements at once embracing and offering its sphere, the rich gardens laying fields of conscious energy around it, the body of water protecting it, the parkland girding it with the earthly strength of its tall trees, the city alive as a wheel of search ever expanding from its hub of permanence and transforming power?

The more we argue and persist in the worded rhetorics of the separate mind with its train of judgements and preferences, the longer we remain lazily the willing arms of plays that rob us of the capacity to serve, the more difficult it will be to turn the tide of ordinariness that seeks to engulf the new birth.

Sri Aurobindo and the Mother have told us all how the sunlit path is possible, its harmonious transition to the next condition, provided we contribute the aspiration and the courage of progress.

The Mother has often referred to Her choice for harmony, a living harmony within the Grace: but this requires of us to let go of our exclusivism and to commit to an evolving integrality.

At the school of the Matrimandir we fail many of our tests.

There is no doubt now that collectively we have failed a few of those tests given by Mahasaraswati, the technician of perfection.

We had to take, early last year, 1996, the rather unpopular decision to halt the production of both the gilded discs and the FRP panels of the inner shell.

There were simply too many problems.

For those who had always disapproved of a design which they felt was too complicated and ostensive, this decision was taken as an admission.

For others who had taken the stand that everything would eventually be solved as we pushed along, the same decision was taken as a betrayal.

Yet to us it was neither.

We just knew that we had to review the technical problems thoroughly, reassess the validity of the technical advice which had been issued and offer it all in a more conscious manner, with more calm and dedication, whatever the consequences.

A time of reflection and search was indispensable, a break from the relentless pressures to achieve.

Now one full year has elapsed and some of the questions have met answers which definitely constitute a progress and a vast improvement.

The method which we have now chosen for the lasting gilding of the discs is tested and proved, with enormous relief. The gold leaf is held between two thin square tiles of pure window glass fused together in a vacuum oven, filed and grooved and affixed mechanically to the surface of the disc, providing a durable shield, easy to maintain and weather-resistant.

As for the inner shell translucent panels help has now come with the method known as fused glass developed by a German artist who has recently visited and has committed to supervise and personally guide the entire work. On 6mm float glass sheets, available in the country, glass nodules of the right colouring are fused in a specially-designed oven to the right degree of translucency; the safety of the finished glass is given by a coat of special varnish over the finely sand-blasted back surface.

Some of the questions however are still unanswered, such as the effective method for the sealing and protection of the grooves between the prefabricated outer shell ferro cement panels, as well as for the anchoring bolts jutting out from them on which the SS rods supporting the discs are fastened.

As we have vividly realised in this recent period of harsh and intense examination, any material progress in the midst of conflicts and denials is bound to be fragmented and uncertain.

Seeking for a truer base of collaboration beyond all opinions and preferences, we have thus felt it necessary to help create a space where all views, however diverging, could be honestly expressed and listened to, so that we could together open to the right answers for the Matrimandir.

This space has been called the Matrimandir Forum, where all policy issues regarding the Matrimandir are now presented and delved into until a basic consensus is reached.

From this Forum a concentrated exercise has been initiated to define as simply, as objectively and as exactly as possible the practical and technical problems encountered, so as to have at hand a complete document with drawings and photographs, which can be used as a tool for consultancy.

This document is now available, a statement as quiet and transparent as we could make it of the difficulties encountered, and a call for the right help, whatever route it will take to reach us.

We have also commissioned from a Government-sponsored research centre on corrosion in South India a thorough assessment of the condition of the RCC structure of the Matrimandir as well as of the ferro cement panels of its sphere.

All the tests have now been run and records and samples are now being studied in their laboratories. Along with the results, this centre will also list the measures to be taken in future.

All of the above does not mean that we have accomplished nothing on the site in this year' time.

During the financial year 1996/1997, we have been able to proceed with the following works:

- . The cladding of the large Petals on their outer slopes as well as inside their passageways;
- . The structural work of the 12 meditation rooms and their marble cladding;
- . The laying of all the permanent electricity and water-distribution conduits in all the Petals;
- . The marble cladding of the central staircase and of the 4 ribs at Level II;
- . The completion of the prototype of the 4 main automatic sliding entrance doors to the sphere;
- . The completion of the SS frames for all of the 1,200 discs;
- . The completion of the 3 underground water-storage tanks located under one of the small Petals, each with a capacity of 750m³;
- . The detailed finalisation of the cladding and grass patterns of the small Petals;
- . The contouring of the inner Gardens;
- . The completion of the cladding of the amphitheatre, but for the 16 stairways which are presently in progress;
- . The installation of the permanent electrical panels in the command centre which is located in the Eastern underground area of the amphitheatre;

. The procurement of all the red Agra sand-stone slabs for the cladding of the large and small Petals, and of some of the granite slabs and blocks required for the cladding of all the pathways;

. The relocation of the Camp residents, the dismantling of the entire complex and the clearing of a large area now reclaimed for the oval road and water-channel and the part of the outer Gardens where the permanent Reception Pavilion will be built. And in the process of clearing this area we have found revealed, in their full growth, several magnificent trees that were hidden by the high old thatch roofs of the rambling Camp structure: these majesties, now uncluttered and freed, provide already some of the atmosphere one has been dreaming of establishing all around the Matrimandir... To be able one day to move in the cleansing aura of these noble natural beings, sentinels of a most privilege space one will enter by stages, towards the experience of the pure white, calm safety of the Inner Chamber...

And this takes us to the emphasis we wish to lay on the remaining work and the imperative need for everyone's participation, support and collaboration.

For it is not, once again, just a building, however unique and spectacular, nor even a temple, however incomparable and powerful, that one is trying to complete, but the material basis of a new creation, reaching to all and at all levels of existence.

Financially the situation is as follows:

- 1- In order to proceed with all the work, a minimum monthly budget of 15 lakhs will remain necessary for the next 2 or 3 years: this budget covers all the works till completion, including the outer Gardens.
- 2- To complete the outer cover, using the new gilding method for the discs – a work which will take up to 3 years depending on our logistics on the site, an amount of 2 crores will be required.
- 3- To complete the interior of the sphere, including the translucent inner shell, another 30 to 40 lakhs will be required.

If we have been able to maintain the pace of the work throughout the past year, it is entirely due to the special effort many of the contributors have made at the time of the last severe crisis we encountered late 1995, in response to our call.

But now these contributions have dwindled to less than half as the required monthly budget, and we are experiencing another crisis.

Regarding the outer skin and discs, the prospects are brighter, as one of the main donors to the Matrimandir since the beginning has been able to channel already 1.5 crores into a specified account for the purpose. As for the interior of the sphere, we are naturally hesitant and more than a little embarrassed towards the two donors who had funded the manufacture of the FRP panels, even though they have shown much understanding of the reasons for a change of materials. But this change had to be, as the FRP material was found to belie the standards set by the Mother, of "strength, safety, durability and harmonious balance".

Well-wishers who have experience of large construction sites assure us that, particularly in the case of such a complex structure, losses and waste are bound to incur and that, considering the difficulties inherent to the building of the Matrimandir, we have not done too badly.

Yet the embarrassment will not be relieved until our present search for a more perfect solution is vindicated by a superior realisation, visible to all. We are also concerned with finding alternative uses for the finished FRP panels.

Therefore only when we shall be certain of all the parameters of the project of fused glass panels, shall we inform about it and seek the necessary financial support. (Later note: that method of fused glass also proved unreliable, eventually, and had to be abandoned; this was followed by several other attempts, as Roger A adamantly refused to even consider any simplification of his design. As of now, in 2005, a new synthetic textile of a neutral translucent quality is being fitted on rigid frames and the colouring is to be provided by filters placed on the inside of the clear glass portholes.)

To conclude, we now invite unspecified contributions towards sustaining the pace of the work and ensuring the monthly budget, while any additional amounts will be used in priority for the following works:

- . The erection of the permanent Reception-cum-Guard Pavilion at the west, main entrance to the Inner Gardens;
- . The landscaping and infrastructure of the whole of the outer Gardens or Park;
- . The procurement of all the granite slabs and rocks and other stones required for all of the Gardens.

As you see, this summary is also a call for funds, and it is bound to be so, for the realisation of the Matrimandir in its entirety and integrality is also the expression of the conscious conversion and orientation of all the necessary energies, among which the financial power is large and most determining to the establishing of a material base for the transformation of our human nature and condition.

And we here must pray not to be obstacles on the way!"

Note: Auroville has been in brewing turmoil much, if not most of the time; and perhaps this is as it should be: a living laboratory cannot be expected to provide the amenities of a peaceful meditative retreat, and there are necessarily many failures and "mistakes" in any laboratory that seeks a new formula.

And so there have always been in Auroville, besides its own peculiar and particular issues, the issues that confront any contemporary society, although filtered and apprehended in relation to Auroville's professed aims and ideals.

In 1997, it was still possible to debate openly on any of those issues, as the winds and incidental movements of the collective brought them into sharper focus, or specific circumstances lent them more urgency.

The issue of drugs was such an issue.

Some time during that year, I wrote this paper, the draft of which I had kept, undated.

On drugs.

"As with most issues that come up in Auroville, so it has been for me with the issue of 'drugs': through some deep, quiet thinking, one refers to a flow of clear perception – a combination of feeling and sense and vision and need – till one reaches a kind of confirmation of awareness, and leaves it at that. For, what is one to 'do' with it? Write about it in the Auroville News? Go out of one's way to talk about it, and try to convince?

One tends to conclude that surely there must be others who have reached that same understanding – for it must be sufficiently objective if it is sufficiently true! – and that this awareness, circulating, will do its work. And I think to myself then, 'let me not add to the ambient noise!'... And so, I desisted again!

But I do still read the Auroville News, and I do hear this or that comment, fragmented report or rumour. And I am struck by the absence of perspective!

Every issue is a valid issue: it bears a living question and a challenge; it points to an evolutionary necessity.

Yet we generally tend to blur it, to confuse and confound it so thoroughly that it loses almost entirely its power of progress.

This time around, I would like to try and put into words the significance of this particular issue, as I understand it.

There are three related questions here: one, why does one ever turn to alcohol or drugs; second, why here in Auroville; and third, why is it necessary, in the adventure of Auroville, not to remain or become subject to any addiction to drugs.

1- No matter where one lives, or in which circumstances, there are times when one is threatened by an excess of conditioning. There seems to be no living situation anywhere in which, sooner or later, the amount of conditioning does not exceed the capacity one has to extract from the experience of life enough meaning and motivation.

Conditioning actually is most of manifest life. Whether biological, genetic, hereditary, karmic, social, racial, cultural, contextual, or merely circumstantial, conditioning surrounds, fills, animates and supports most of what we are at every moment.

Any spiritual endeavour always stressed the crucial importance of will, personal will, as the one agent that could break through the mass of this multi-headed and multi-limbed beast, at least until some decisive and irreversible merging was accomplished with the higher consciousness.

But even then the danger remained that, since human will is a manifestation of the separate ego, this very separateness would seek to usurp and appropriate the realisation to its own ends.

One way out was, for many and for long, to declare the whole thing as a snare and an illusion, and thereafter to let the disappearance of any sense of existence become the goal.

Now, alcohol and drugs are definitely closer at hand; and they do provide a break, quite immediate and effective, from conditioning.

Alcohol as a means to relieve oneself from the chafing bounds of conditioning, has been honoured by a number of social and cultural traditions, an acknowledged prescription given by the collective ego to its members, insofar as certain limiting rules, timings and manners would be observed.

Some drugs too have been universally prescribed, generally with a view to let or help individuals discover more levels of experience, yet again within certain boundaries, defined by rituals and rhythms.

Nowadays industrialisation, urbanisation, commercialisation, information and consumerism have spread everywhere and more and more individuals have been uprooted from cultural and social beds only to be plunged in fiercer tides of conditioning.

Humanity is torn and split and pulled apart and forcefully exposed to more than any of its members can actually assimilate.

The mass of subconscious storage of conditioning is burst open to the conflict of vast forces that seek to install themselves.

And drugs have now themselves become, particularly since World War II, a tool of perverse conditioning, destabilising entire societies to bring them more surely under the sway of some of these self-serving forces and interests.

In the process the very usage of drugs has grown into a conditioned response to the sheer weight of the question each and every individual is increasingly faced with.

2- But why is it also happening in Auroville?

I do not presume to explain that: there are too many angles to it.

But a good part of the reason is obvious to me: the very basis of experience, adventure and progress set for Auroville by the Mother, is so high and integral that, as she said, one needs to be a hero to sustain its demands. Not heroism in the sense of a magnified ego, but in the more conscious sense aware of and one with the truth of one's being at every moment and in every circumstance.

Each of us has initially felt that call and our joining Auroville has been our response to it.

But today there seems to be, under the guise of tolerance and wide-mindedness, a comfortable trend of consideration that takes shelter in some quotes of the Mother's, such as 'to be in Auroville, it is enough to have goodwill towards human unity...'

But there is a catch!

There is simply no way, no way at all, to truly serve human unity without actually doing the Mother's and Sri Aurobindo's yoga!

Auroville has been conceived in such a way, and on such a pure and divine foundation, that we are bound to meet all the contradictions at their very roots.

The only means given to us are: the psychic being within oneself, and the Mother's Force above.

And there comes the daily grind, with its hundreds of opportunities for a truer response, a fire, a call and a need to serve, and to gradually change the very fabric of life.

That aspiration and that flame, the presence of that living need in us of the Help from above, is the only security Auroville has; for Auroville is only protected from collapse into ordinariness in proportion to the activity of that flame.

In the absence of it we fall back on the bare facts of a situation which is still unique and challenging – the commingling on a small patch of un-owned land, of a rather variegated sampling of human diversity; but we are also thrown back to the habitual mechanisms of conditioning: a jumble or competing conditionings!

We all wear cumbersome shells, battling within some monstrous assemblage of master-shells, and we are only that when we disconnect ourselves from the sweeping energy of the new birth.

Our many failures to sustain the inner exigency of Auroville are well spread in our days: cynicism and corrosive boredom and callousness.

There is a vacuum of experience: we have only made a virtual jump, we have not actually leapt.

There is no shame in being momentarily arrested in one's progress, in being temporarily defeated by the resistance in one's nature, no shame in taking falls and getting one's nose ground into one's own refusals.

There is no shame for the community of Auroville on any day to crash headlong into unexpected difficulties and opportunities on the way of its honest attempt.

But there is a great wrong, as far as we are concerned, in institutionalising defeat and providing to our own deficiency a social cover and countenance.

It seems to me sometimes that in principle it would be more honest for each of us to leave Auroville awhile, when one is unable to nourish the flame of aspiration.

3- Why is it necessary not to have drugs in Auroville?

There is a key to this question given by the Mother in one of Her conversations: the usage of drugs damages the consciousness.

This may be of little import or value to most people today, for whom the significance of the term 'consciousness' is vague and confused with that of the mental condition. For them perhaps the risk of 'damage to the consciousness' is understood as damage to the mind or to the brain, and thus if one is bent on using drugs, this is just one of the risks, and one has nothing more to loose.

But for us here, consciousness is the reality.

In and through and beyond all experience, in and through and beyond life and death, there is only consciousness: consciousness is the way; consciousness is the means; consciousness is the goal.

Therefore these words of the Mother are no mere warning on grounds of morals or ethics: it is the statement of a fact.

And we very well know, vividly, how we need all the consciousness we can summon in ourselves at every moment and for every choice of our lives in Auroville.

We very well know how inadequate is our mental knowledge or our vital energy in trying to answer in truth the many questions that come our way in the adventure of Auroville.

We know how large, how deep and how urgent the need for the manifestation of the true consciousness is!

Without it, Auroville may yet grow rich and successful for a time, but in our hearts we know the taste of ashes: without it there will be no door opening onto the Real.

And so it is clear that whatever prevents us from becoming receptive to the flow of consciousness must be rejected.

Certain drugs do induce exposure to levels of reality that are usually veiled or unperceived by the ordinary physical consciousness.

But the Mother's Force and action can make us conscious there as well and bridge those gaps directly and safely, without any exterior artificial aid.

And on the actual growth of consciousness will the future depend, not only the future of Auroville, but the future of humanity.

One can individually disregard it and postpone one's own progress: that is one's own affair. But why should one drag Auroville along? One ought to carry one that choice elsewhere, it seems to me!

Auroville is an action, which leaves no one, no agency and no force indifferent; when we fail Auroville individually, we expose Auroville to an invasion of denial.

Children grown in Auroville have experienced the gaps and discrepancies between our posturing of the professed ideals and our actual movements and expressions.

It is not a matter of external results: it is a matter of the spirit in which one acts.

A child, or an uneducated adult here, cannot be cheated by mere posturing: the energy that ought to flow and manifest is not there!

We must not do the cowardly thing.

We must not let the old social tissue of our dark complicity re form itself and obstruct the action of the Grace...."

Note: the Matrimandir Forum continued to exist and to meet regularly throughout that year, 1997. But it was not yielding more unity among us all. The "sides" remained, and were not getting what they wanted out of the exercise. Madanlal and his associates were not getting the control they had aimed at; Piero and his group were not getting revenge or vindication of their stand; Roger A and his entourage were not obtaining a free, unquestioned authority over the Matrimandir; the self-appointed spokesmen for the "community" were not succeeding in reclaiming "their" Matrimandir out of our jurisdiction. What they all shared was a strong drive to see our team disbanded and made irrelevant.

In September of 1997, seeing the signs gathering, our team confirmed its resolve, and I wrote the following draft on its behalf:

Communication on the position of the Matrimandir Management and Coordination Group.

"To all.

This is to clarify our position as a team.

Pressures to conform are exerted on us from a number of quarters with contradictory and, at times, diametrically opposed intents.

Our actions, or non-actions, are variously misinterpreted and, as a result, a general sense of frustration prevails.

Perhaps it will help ease the tensions that we state again our stand on the current issues.

1- On the matter of the "design".

Regardless of opinions and preferences, we are determined to follow through the only process which was born out of consensus:

a) To ascertain the technical and practical feasibility of the design which Roger A is proposing for the completed sphere of the Matrimandir, on the basis of the criteria given by the Mother of "safety, solidity, durability and harmonious balance".

b) To execute the work as per these findings at the earliest in synchronicity with the rest of the work (the Petals, the Gardens, etc.)

In order to achieve these two tasks, we welcome and invite all genuine contributions, which include all criticism motivated by the aspiration and will to serve the Matrimandir with the best.

We do not accept questioning for its own sake or for the sake of trying to prove that the proposed design is unacceptable, as this only damages the integrity of the process.

We consider this process as the best offering we can all together make for the Mother to show the way, as She is the only judge.

2- On the Inner Skin.

This is a case of a "good idea" falling short of the Mother's criteria. It is a lesson for us all, and an expression of the need for progress and perfection.

And it is precisely due to the very transparency of our processes that vested interests have been able to capitalise on this "mistake".

Too much trust had been granted to self-declared expertise, and not enough critical assessment.

It is now over, with the minimum loss and waste: not 30 lakhs, as is being complacently advertised, but about 6 lakhs worth of labour and over 400 panels of FRP which have not yet found an alternative use; about 15 lakhs worth of materials, such as wood and metal fittings, are on site, to be used in the construction.

Meanwhile, the research on fused coloured glass is further on its way; samples are being displayed, and production may soon resume.

3- On the Governing Board' arbitrary decision to constitute a sub-committee for the Matrimandir:

We have stated our objections directly to the Chairman, shared them with the Matrimandir Forum and other working groups, and we will maintain our stand.

This is not motivated by a fear in us to be displaced, misplaced or replaced, but by the conviction that the Matrimandir must remain free of all legal claims as a means of eventual external control. Besides, we consider that the Governing Board can very well help and support the Matrimandir without any such means.

4- On the formation of a "client body".

This is to us utter nonsense.

The Mother is the client. She alone knows what She needs for the vehicle of Her action.

We, as Aurovilians and representatives of humanity, are the beneficiaries.

As Aurovilians, we are only more privileged to serve and to grow in a more direct and material contact.

As there are no representatives of the Mother's interests – none of us having reached an unquestionable degree of realisation on the path of Sri Aurobindo's yoga – we can only rely on the process which our existing unity can provide.

When everyone who is truly concerned contributes their best, in whatever capacity, then this process has all the more chances to lead us to more truth and more unity.

5- On the premature convening of a Residents Assembly:

The present situation on site is as follows:

- a) The German Consultant is finalising his report and list of recommendations on the basis of, on the one hand, the document that was prepared with H's help and, on the other hand, his own direct assessment of the condition of the structure and of all the practical problems.
- b) The Institute of Karaikudi has submitted a full technical report on the conditions of both the RCC and the ferro cement parts of the structure and rated them as above satisfactory, and advised on how to protect them in future.

Until the German Consultant's report is shared by all concerned and further testing is conducted with the waterproofing compound (Kemperol) which the Consultant advises us is the only viable and lasting solution for the sphere, we can only proceed with one the production of the gold and glass tiles.

Financially, the situation is grim.

Even though there are 1.5 crores specified for the Outer Skin and Discs, the cost of the waterproofing of the sphere – which would have to be incurred whatever the design and the materials – will consume 1/3 of that amount.

Further additional expenditures will be incurred if we opt for stainless steel supports for the discs shields and supports.

And thanks to the various antagonistic campaigns, a rather effective blockade has interrupted the flow of funds for the rest of the works, such as the Petals, the infrastructure and the Gardens.

Our stand however remains, that the Matrimandir needs more than just a finished cover for its sphere: it needs a complete environment.

We consider that the call for a Residents Assembly before the research that was initiated through the Matrimandir Forum is finalised, is unjustified and would only invite vain arguments.

We cannot help it if there are people who wish this research to be still-born and the proposed design to be fully rejected.

The debate over the character and expression of the completed sphere of the Matrimandir has gone on for 25 years and has been the occasion of endless rifts and antagonisms between us all, but it has remained sterile and uncreative.

The fact is, to date, that no comprehensive alternative proposal, which could be examined as critically and relentlessly as the current design, has been made.

And to argue that the Matrimandir is too costly and will require too much work in future is rather like saying that the whole idea of Auroville is unsound, its scope too vast and its aims beyond reach, and to recommend a down-grading of the entire adventure to some kind of exotic communal experiment.

The point here being that the more we delay and the more costly it will all become, and not only in terms of finance!

Thank you."

Note: I was always "in love" with the photographs of Her. Every single photograph of Her has always been to me an incomparable treasure. Every one of Her gestures, of Her expressions, is a mine of consciousness, of presence, more eloquent than all the books and treatises.

Over the years I have collected all the different photographs of Her I could find.

To my sense they bear a testimony to the incarnation of Her, to the avatar hood, that has never been possible before and will never happen again in that way.

Every photograph taken of Her ought to be cherished and preserved over and above almost everything else, apart from Her and Sri Aurobindo's words.

In 1969-1970, Tara Jauhar was still in-charge of keeping, classifying and storing all known and available photographs; herself a good photographer, she had had the Mother's permission to click her camera at Her in Her room many times. But they were a number of other photographers who were given a chance at one time or another, and all the photographs taken during the Balcony Darshans by various people were also sometimes made available.

Later on, Tara had to leave the Ashram and move to Delhi to look after the Delhi branch of the Ashram and the School her father had been instructed by the Mother to start there. She took with her the negatives of her own photographs, but had to leave all the others unattended.

Over the years I realised that it was not easy to preserve photographs in our climate. I became concerned about the fate of these many thousands of different photographs of the Mother, many of them never seen by the public, which were supposedly in the care of the Ashram, and learnt that perhaps not everything was done that could be done and should be done.

I had been thinking more and more often of trying to have them all printed in the form of albums, composing a unique, unprecedented testimony to the avatar hood of the Mother and a direct and physical means for Her consciousness to reach for numberless souls and deliver the new birth in them.

In September of that year, 1997, I decided to write to the Trustees of the Ashram, in the care of Manoj, one of the Trustees, a person who had always been to me a beacon of safety and simple, direct affection.

On the Mother's photographs.

"September 24, 1997.

Greetings,

Since long I have this dream, and now I must share it with you.

For all these years, this dream being so obvious and simple, I assumed that naturally other people, better placed than me, would not only have it also, but realise it.

It has not happened, and time passes.

Here it is:

To collect, in one beautiful, high quality, very simple book, bare of text, all the photographs of the Mother.

This is the biggest, deepest, richest treasure.

It has never come in the whole of history; it will never come again in this form.

This book would be a complete gift, testimony, and infinite source of realisation.

It could be called simply: "One Incarnation of the Mother".

Dedicated to Her, the Divine Adventuress, Sweet Mother, She who opens the way.

It would be an occasion too for many of us, children of Hers, to combine happily our dedications and our gratitude for Her Love and Action.

With this book, more directly and intimately than with any text, numberless souls will be opened to Her, to the fullness of Her Presence and the concreteness of Her Guidance.

Since it will cover many years, it will convey the sense of Her Consciousness working through life and Matter, beyond any particular image or form.

The book could be presented in several parts or sections, for instance:

- Chronological, till 1962, with only Her;
- In Her room upstairs, from 1962 to 1973; with only Her;
- Chronologically, with people (children, disciples, visitors, etc.);
- Chronologically, all the Balcony Darshans.

I see the lay-out clearly; it has to be beautiful all through.

I have a sense of how to proceed, if you all agree unreservedly.

I am ready to give myself wholly to the task, and am also ready to merely stand by for any service required.

The initial thrust and the basic support are yours to give.

Then, there are those, here and abroad, who are holding photographs and should be invited to participate.

I believe that, once the spirit of the project is alive, there ought to be no problems and everyone concerned can feel good to contribute.

I also believe it could be realised and ready during the 25th year following Her withdrawal, if the work begins now.

To me there is unquestionably a divine purpose in Mother's willingness to let all these photographs be taken, which goes beyond the need of the moment.

I worry very much that I am unable to convey to you how evident I feel this necessity to be. The conscious charge of this book will be so tremendous, it is beyond words.

Please, I have never known how to end a letter, so I end this with a silent prayer.

Divakar"

Note: I had not realised how much influence Pranab was still wielding and how much control he still exerted over the matter of Her photographs. Manoj knew that, of course; he did not want me to get insulted or hurt, and he alone or the trustees together, could not or would not even try to persuade Pranab of the validity of my proposal. Manoj, thus, just tried to let me have a chance at conveying the essence of my "dream" to a man who was then a close associate of Pranab and worked with him on some publications, Kittu Reddy. I met Kittu Reddy in the Ashram. He listened well and seemed to be moved by the possibility. But he could not give me any answer on his own: he had to refer to Pranab. A few days later, Kittu Reddy let me know that some publication was already underway, that would display a number of photographs of the Mother, not many but interesting and never before published ones, in the line of a booklet that had already been published by the Ashram on Sri Aurobindo; and that it ought to be sufficient. That was it.

I did not feel any inner support in trying to approach Pranab directly; I offered the whole thing up. Somehow, sooner or later, such a work must be and would be done, by someone.

As of today, though, in 2005, it has yet to be done.

Note: At about the same time, that year of 1997, the review "Ahana", dedicated to Sri Aurobindo's work and published in Delhi, decided to bring out an issue on various subjects – ranging from ecology and agriculture to social work - collecting written contributions from Aurovilians; I was asked to write a paper on Sri Aurobindo...!

On Sri Aurobindo, for the review "Ahana".

"Particularly now when India's children, at this striking notch in the wheel of time, muster some of the courage required to assess honestly their condition, the condition of their people, their land, and the quality of the service that has been rendered to their Mother, in 50 years of independence from one form of adversity, many are those who are dedicated and competent authorities to represent Sri Aurobindo's message, views and thoughts on a variety of specific issues.

It is surely a good and dutiful contribution that is thus being made.

Yet I find it irksome, and sadly symptomatic that for this the 125th anniversary of Sri Aurobindo's birth, as on any other year, day and moment, one continues to distribute fragments of Sri Aurobindo's presence as if one was begging the world's consumerism to accept a few choice bits of a meals prepared within too dim a temple.

Sri Aurobindo the philosopher, Sri Aurobindo the freedom fighter, Sri Aurobindo the yogi, Sri Aurobindo the poet... would you please be kind enough to be properly awed and dumbstruck by the glimpses we are offering, oh so humbly!

I, like so many others, am no authority, and have no wish to become one in any field; but I have some understanding and some experience of Sri Aurobindo's presence and I can tell with certainty that Sri Aurobindo, if He is all of that and infinitely more, is also none of that, for none of these definitions can ever begin to contain Him.

Which philosopher could ever have written effortlessly, in less than 4 years, "The Synthesis of Yoga", "The Human Cycle", "The Ideal of Human Unity" and "The Life Divine"?

The greatest human poets are celebrated through the centuries for a few verse only, that could channel some of the beauty, the mantric power and the force of knowledge of which all of the 12,000 verse of Sri Aurobindo's "Savitri" are continually suffused!

The significance of Sri Aurobindo's incarnation is ahead of us all.

He is waiting for us.

He is the builder of the Way.

To approach Him where He stands, to open to Him, one must first have the courage to simply absorb one basic fact:

"Without Him I exist not, without me He is Unmanifest", said the Mother.

From that moment, unprecedented in the whole of the earth's history, on March 29, 1914, when the Mother ascended the stairs towards Him who was standing ready for Her, the Evolution has entered a new phase.

The Two Who are One have incarnated, in Matter, for the Work.

They, who together are the One consciousness that has founded and supported the entire adventure of mankind, have stepped into Matter, have assumed the human condition entirely, and called upon the Supreme to open the passage to the next step of the world's becoming.

No more religions, but the Truth of the Divine integrally manifest.

No more opposites, no more contradictions, but a progress from harmony to greater harmony.

No more separation, but the emergence of a being who, with each one, embraces all truly and unreservedly, for it is one with the Source of all, unalterably.

No more death, but the permeation through and through of all levels of being by the unbroken flow of conscious Existence.

Together They have raised the entirety of the manifestation in one call of utter surrender and brought down the self-revealing Answer that validates the struggle of the ages.

It is no popular magic They have done, and earth today is perhaps more riddled with contradictions and seething with more unbearable pressures than it has ever been since it burst forth from its origins: for the travails are decisive, there will be no other trial, the times have come for the new birth.

But all those who thirst, who are inhabited by a living need, of Sense, of Reality, of Love, are eventually touched by Their presence and Action and become aware of Their guidance, Their enveloping security in the midst of this universal collapse.

Sri Aurobindo and the Mother are not the last known greatest authentic gurus.

They are not this age's Avatars at whose feet we can rest for the next hundred lives.

They are the living Guides to the Future; they are the Ushers of the world that seeks its birth.

Once we choose to walk forward, They are there.

They give us the energy we need, They nurture and sustain the true flame in us and grow it into a being, They remind us at every moment that, no matter how excellent our intentions, how sincere our efforts, nothing will do but an integral progress and change.

They carry to the light of the true Power all our parts, ceaselessly; for, until we offer ourselves integrally to the Change, we are bound to continue creating havoc and reproducing the very conditions that cause all the pain and all the ugliness of humanity.

They are not here to issue new recipes for relief and escape, or to maintain, under new garbs, the old status quo between Matter and Spirit.

They have come to claim the world for its only true Inhabitant.

They have come now because now the child we have all been carrying through countless lives and experiences is ready to walk the earth, one with the Truth of all, and filled with It.

They have wanted India to be its first earthly base, for India is the one, among all nations of the world, who has never so far been able to forget the Divine, to live without Him.

They have wanted India's children to stand up in the service of the Divine Mother, naked to Her knowledge, true to Her, heralds of the creative power of Truth, without Whom Love can never reign.

They expect those who aspire to hold the charge, to give themselves, beyond concern for their own "spiritual salvation", to the action of change that is reaching everywhere, so that it can do its work with our conscious and willing participation; for humanity is at once a bridge, a concentrate and a representative of all universal possibilities, and the single evolutionary pathway for All.

Total is Their comprehending Love; They will neglect no part, no element, leave no darkness alone and separate.

All this is inevitably another jumble of words, and can justifiably be seen as arrogant pronouncement. The instrument will take the blame.

Sri Aurobindo and the Mother prescribe equality – not impatience.

I only wish to say, since the opportunity is given me to, that the earth is crying, the consciousness trapped in its ignorance is crying – time is passing and the monsters, transitory as they are, of selfish increase, are feeding on their last chance.

Let us not be diplomats wavering between our gratitude to Them and the dictates of the titans that seek to consolidate their last giant hold.

Let us speak Their names wholeheartedly, fearlessly, uncompromisingly, for it is the name of a reconciled world we speak, and of a future of conscious peace.

Sri Aurobindo excused Himself from the public and political stage by stating He was aiming at a far deeper revolution.

Is that revolution to be merely spoken of by scholars and devotees?

Note: In 1997, Selvam had the opportunity to be part of the Entry Group and gain experience from it; the task of that strategic working group is very complex and demanding and rather unrewarding in terms of satisfaction, as it is beset by the internal contradictions of the community and its conflicting intents.

Selvam would often share with me the questions and problems encountered in his work and would ask me to help bring up the main point in clear formulations. Periodically over the years, various people and groups of people have discussed and thrashed at the vexing matter of admission into Auroville and the conditions for it, in relation to the actual behaviour and standards of those already in.

The following is a paper I had put together for their group to use as a basis for further proposals, on Selvam's request; it is a fairly good example and indicator of the numerous papers and formulations that have been produced and are still, to date, being produced.

Draft on Admission to Auroville.

1- Auroville wants to be a self-supporting township.

Auroville seeks to organise itself so that the needs of its residents are provided for without any internal circulation of money.

In order to achieve this aim, it is essential that:

- All those who reside in Auroville actively participate in its life and development.
- Each one contributes to the maximum of one's capacities to the welfare of all, in work, in kind, and financially.
- Industries and productive units contribute their profits to Auroville.

2- Conditions for admission.

- Commitment to the aims and ideals of Auroville as expressed in the "Charter of Auroville", in the document titled "To be a true Aurovilian" and in relevant messages and conversations of the Mother.
- Commitment to the actual realisation of human unity.
- Commitment to respect the laws of the country.

3- The process of admission.

The process of admission is the responsibility of the Entry Group, an organ formed by the Residents Assembly for the purpose.

The admission may only take place at the end of a probation period, which is usually of one year but may extend up to two years or, in the case of individuals who, being of local origins, are subjected to immediate cultural and family pressures, even longer.

- After up to three months of stay in Auroville, one makes the request of being accepted as a "newcomer" for the probation period.
- For acceptance as a "newcomer" one must state clearly one's financial situation and determine, with the Entry Group, one's requirements, abilities and financial contribution to Auroville. Auroville will generally not maintain a "newcomer".
- During the probation period one is expected to identify one's area of work and participation and to make one's assessment as conscious as possible of one's commitment, given the present conditions of life in Auroville.
- One ought to develop sufficient practice of the English language and, optimally, of the Tamil language as well.

- It is advisable to choose, at the earliest, a willing contact person among the residents of Auroville, and a member of the Entry Group may also be assigned to follow one's probation period.
- One is welcome to make directly one's comments, observations and suggestions.

4- Guidelines for residence in Auroville.

These guidelines are born from experience and are implied by the Charter of Auroville.

- In Auroville, everything is collective property and every resident is a steward and a trustee of all material goods and assets.
- No claim of ownership may be made over any asset, whether one is a user or a donor.
- Any financial investment in the creation of any unit, asset or building must be made in coordination with the working groups concerned.
- One is expected to leave behind any religious practice or political activity as one may have had prior to joining Auroville.
- Drugs are not allowed in Auroville, as:
 - a) Their usage is forbidden by the laws of the country;
 - b) They are contrary to the conditions required for the development of the true consciousness which Auroville is here to serve.
- Any dispute or conflict is to be resolved within Auroville, by means of goodwill and fraternity.
- Any liabilities attached to oneself must be made known to the Entry Group (such as legal or family liabilities).

It is understood that these guidelines are evolutive and will become obsolete as the true consciousness will govern more and more of our movements, whether inner or outer.

5- Relationship with the Entry Group during the probation period.

- The Entry Group is there to monitor one's probation period with one's help and the help of the residents one is in contact with.
- "Welcoming programs", seminars, fora and study groups are available means to help one during this period.
- Information on the various existing possibilities for housing, as for work and for participation in creative activities will be communicated.
- If the probation period ends with a negative assessment on the part of the Entry Group as representative of the Residents Assembly, one is asked to leave at once. There has to be a minimum period of two years before one tries again.
- Elderly people must be aware that Auroville is not yet equipped to look after them if they would become physically dependent.

6- Functioning, mandate and membership of the Entry Group.

- To be a member implies that one is entrusted with a responsibility which demands strict discipline in attendance and a strong commitment to work as a team on a consensus basis.
- To be a member, one must have lived for a minimum of five years continuously in Auroville and be firmly dedicated.
- Transparency, fairness, an ability to listen and to communicate, a detachment from personal judgements, are some of the qualities required by the task.

- Membership is for a minimum of one full year.
- The work of the Entry Group requires mobility, so as to assess the physical situations directly; an effective secretariat, to minimise all chances of confusion, delays and misunderstandings; an active coordination with other working groups and with the Residents Assembly.
- The Entry Group is there to serve actively the spirit and truth of the Charter of Auroville. It must enable itself to establish an atmosphere as conscious as possible, so that the process of admission to Auroville is governed increasingly by the true spirit of Auroville, rather than be the realm of human inadequacies. It must never hesitate to point out whatever contradictions may be prevailing at the time in the collective life of Auroville.

Note: The drive to corner and hang our team was relentless, and despite our statements and expressions of a call for genuine collaboration, the planned Residents Assembly loomed closer, which would surely kill the possibility represented by the Matrimandir Forum. I drafted the following statement, as a last attempt to save it. I have not kept the exact date.

Communication to all from the MMCG.

"We do not feel that this Assembly is being called on a sound basis, but mainly as a result of a build-up of frustrations and tensions, battling of wills and influences.

Yet, as it is anyway happening, we wish to communicate to each one present the following, attempting to express in a general way our understanding of the situation and our position as a team.

We deeply understand how difficult and challenging a proposition is the Matrimandir; how difficult and challenging a proposition is human unity. And we feel that it is mostly due to the fact that as individuals and as a group we have not attained the commensurate level of consciousness, that we are all repeatedly swept and manipulated by forces which seek to destroy, prevent or at least postpone.

All through these past years, notwithstanding the endorsement by many of the view that we have become a separate body, we feel that we have each of us remained and grown as "Aurovilian" as the next one, and as representative of the community as the next one. With as many shortcomings and as much capacity to serve as the next one.

There is not a single issue being raised at present that we have not debated at length in the context of our duties at Matrimandir.

We seem to have made in the process a lot of "enemies" on all sides, mainly because we have not adhered blindly to the exclusivism of any "side".

We could not do so, being so close to the needs of the Matrimandir and all the aspects of the work to be done.

This perspective we have tried to convey during the many Forum gatherings that have taken place. But we have found that the good possibility of deeper and quieter collaboration the Forum was meant to provide was taken over but this continuing battle over the issue of design.

Now it appears that every side would agree with the others on one point only: to dismiss our team.
And this would be done with no objective reason.

We do not see how such a move could lead the present Auroville community any closer to the progressive human unity it is meant to realise.

We are open to dialogue, to the sharing of concerns for the good of the Matrimandir and at its service.

We are open to participation from all those who find in themselves the urge to contribute, to help strengthen, consolidate and complete.

We need it, and we are very much aware of our personal shortcomings.

But we need it truly, not as another wave that will fall back on itself.

We do not believe in the formation of a "client body", or in any such body, apart from the Matrimandir Forum, which has a real potential to help.

As it was said at least once, the Mother is The client.

For, without Her, the Matrimandir would just be an empty shell, a vain statement on the wayside.

Thank you."

Note: Our dismissal was finally achieved on October, 2003. It was obtained through the political use of legal power – as provided in the loopholes of the "Auroville Foundation Act" - and of democracy – by means of heavily manipulated campaigns and petitions, slander and calumny.

- 1998 -

Note: I think it was in 1998 that one of the issues uppermost in the community's atmosphere was that of the International Zone of Auroville, in which the Mother had planned to have pavilions representing the spirit and soul of each nation of the world. Since 1968, thirty years earlier, many countries had changed their names, and even sometimes their boundaries; large alliances or dominions had ceased, while new groupings had become geopolitical realities. The strong emergence of Europe as a unified power made it inevitable to wonder about the continuing validity of representing, say, the soul of Yugoslavia. Entire cultures were seen as trans-border, migrating phenomena, and the lessons of the past, such as, for instance, had to be assimilated by the people of Germany, brought about new scepticism towards the very notion of a country's soul.

I had felt very much interested in trying to "see" and design, for example, a model for the pavilion of France: it was a large cube, with a solid and very cohesive appearance from the outside; but inside, it was developed in tiers descending onto a central arcaded atrium.

About that time, I think I must have drafted the following paper.

On France and Nation Souls.

"While searching for a definition which may be faithful enough to the inner reality, the psychic reality, of a country, of a nation's soul, it may be interesting to have the notation of someone who has left that country a long time ago and yet retains a measure of identification.

Here I offer my notation, as regards France, for whatever it is worth.

In my case, from the moment of leaving France as a country and a home, there has been no sense of need, no nostalgia, and no wish to maintain any ties.

Perhaps, this was due to the inner fact that both the Mother and Sri Aurobindo have together integrated, purified and manifested, from Their unique poise, the very essence of France.

The chivalry and honour, the generosity of heart and the elegance of refinement and the rich and lucid precision of thought and a certain universality of ethics and codes of conduct: They have brought these to living perfection.

There was in me for some years a voluntary movement of distancing myself from a set of negative expressions and stances which were also, and still are, typically French: each nation, as each person, carries its own contradiction.

I was particularly sensitive to a specific mix of vulgarity and exclusivism, the arrogance of a people which thinks itself to be entitled to every earthly domain and which, priding itself of its clear-mindedness, has no qualms in passing judgements wherever it turns its eye – like a scornful herd trampling entire sanctuaries.

But the soul of a nation is also the soul of its land, the pure reality where merge in oneness the land and its creatures, in unique creativity.

And the land of France is a treasure of diversity concentrated, as if it contained and offered representations of all of the earth's landscapes: from its glorious alps to its dark swamps, its ancient forests and its vast plains of golden crops, its rocky tormented shores and its sandy beaches of infinity, its secret coves and its high cliffs, its fields of poppies and wild briar, its white barren hills of stone, its groves and magic clearings, its proud rivers and sweeping estuaries, its waterfalls and profound caves where aeons live, its sunny pathways and its wild gales blowing, its immense sea tides, its silent hidden valleys, its sparkling glaciers and its sun-stunned immobile creaks.

And the land of France is alive in clear detail through man's industry and love of her, its hedges and channels, its mansards and castles and its wholesomeness of villages, its river boats and high towers, its aspiring cathedrals of carved stone and shimmering rainbow glass and its cloisters of peace and the fog-horn sounding when the ship comes home into the muffled quiet of the bay.

It is only once one has become aware of the Divine – in oneself, in any other person, in any country - that what contradicts its presence becomes painful torment.

In France the presence of the Divine manifests thus:

Spiritually in a high tradition of realisation and occult knowledge which has known itself to be free from religious dogma and limitations, yet one with the source of their emergence, preserving its living wisdom with a veil of esoterism;

Mentally, in a clarity and directness of ideas, a synthesis of boldness and solidity and a stimulating openness to diversity; vitally, in a great refinement of habits and customs, a code of loyalty, a reverence of the feminine presence and the culture of a beauty at once deep-reaching and detailed;

Physically, in a durable need for harmony and the cultivated response to the challenges of Nature, with a remarkable adaptability and coherence.

The soul of France is very feminine, yet with the strength and courage and determination of purified faith: it is Joan of Arc as well as the Knights of the Round Table, the sacred search for freedom and the live crystal purity of existence founded on the true equality of all souls.

It is the conquest of a fraternity which can only truly manifest at the term of a journey of initiation, through the tests and ordeals life offers.

Out of the common pool of inner resources that have accumulated through the centuries, from the joining of many paths and traditions and the meeting of the biblical tribes with the people of the northern lights, the pulse of the divine presence has developed its singular note: France.

And it has rung far and wide in the hearts and minds, as it came to be known as a shelter and a home to all those who sought the way out of oppression, subjugation, or annihilation..."

(Note: I had left this draft incomplete.)

Note: About that time, the Economy Group had made a general proposal for the alignment of the community to its professed ideals.

As for our collective treatment of most issues I felt that our thinking was far too linear and loaded and heavy and uninteresting. I kept wanting to communicate, but hesitating to do it, and annoyed at my own formulations I usually abandoned my drafts.

The following text has perhaps not been shared, I am not sure now – I cannot recollect exactly whether I have actually shared it with the members of the Economy Group, as it is quite long.

To the Economy Group, a response to its proposal.

"- Note of introduction:

The following contribution contains objections to the proposal – which I have tried to substantiate -, and suggestions as to the direction I feel we should go – for which I have tried to give examples.

As you have insisted on written communication, rather than pursuing a direct exchange and sharing of views in a series of sessions devoted to the issue, I have debated, as I am sure others have too, whether to remain silent – as no written statement can be of much help in and by itself -, or to try and put it down as comprehensively as possible.

As you see, I have gone for the second option, which is still, to me in any case, very unsatisfactory.

Let it be proof at least that I take this issue at heart!

1- Objection on principle – process.

It is true that the present organisational arrangement in Auroville, wherein the many working groups, although each of them is abundantly criticised, are more or less left to their own devices, is dangerous, insofar as it is quite possible for any of them, in their respective areas, to ignore, dismiss, underestimate or even collude with active contradictions to the true purposes of Auroville or its essential laws.

Yet this can also be a creative and progressive arrangement, provided that:

- A. Each working group, and each individual in it, has these purposes and laws as a living and constant guide and priority, and never hesitates to give it the necessary emphasis, by growing more and more aware of it as of what contradicts it, with a fighting spirit.

- B. All the working groups are represented and participating in an overall forum of responsibility where all the facets and fields of progress are seen together in a common perspective.

In this sense I was in agreement with the parallel proposal put out recently by your team for an Auroville Representatives Group. Out of this, I felt, one would eventually become able to define the task and methods of work of such a necessary organ as the Working Committee.

Now as regards your first proposal I find that, instead of calling everyone's attention on the contradictions you have directly experienced and see develop in Auroville in the context of your work, instead of naming these contradictions precisely and perhaps even outlining courses of action which could at least neutralise them, instead of fulfilling that duty, you have proceeded on a line of least resistance and elaborated a proposal that merely tries to give a coherent frame to contain these prevailing contradictions.

And you have justified this with the formal acceptance of a very misleading assumption: that Auroville has now reached a stage where its outward development will move faster than the growth of its consciousness.

When this assumption is left unchallenged, the use of logic will be very effective in making it unassailable.

But I feel that this assumption is false, and that it betrays Auroville.

2- Objection on contents.

Your work naturally makes you very aware of those individuals and areas of activity in Auroville most in need of economical health. And no one will doubt that you have persistently endeavoured to improve this situation, within the boundaries allotted to you.

But you ought not to use this real need for pushing your proposal through.

Instead, you ought first to deliver a complete report of your findings, describing as accurately as possible the injustices and the contradictions.

Your knowledge of facts should be shared without bias.

We are not here to succeed in "managing" an international community.

We are here to change, and to become truer.

Experience is to be shared.

Contradictions are to be seen.

Stock is to be repeatedly taken.

3- On Development.

If in visible and measurable terms the growth of the physical Auroville is no longer commensurate with the growth of the collective consciousness that inhabits it, then it means that it has taken off on its own: and that is only possible by a return to the values and compulsions of the ordinary world.

Therefore we are left with a nonsensical choice: either we continue with the pretence of calling it Auroville and we adjust and adapt, inwardly dying; or we go "underground", like stunned fools, seeking initiates and the select few. Either way, the gift of possibility that Auroville is, stands betrayed.

So, we must take stock.

Our law of development is that it must be integral: that its forms must correspond to its consciousness.

This means that any development must either be the expression of a new awareness, of a new comprehension that has emerged, or been gained through actual experience, or be an experiment which is backed by actual commitment and deemed worthwhile.

Yet it would appear that quite a range of other motivations are already determining a number of outward developments in Auroville.

What do we do about it?

How do we resolve our view on the real priorities?

The Ideal has been fragmented.

Perhaps it is because it was not initially secured by an active inner realisation, but was merely apprehended by the outer being and subjected to its exclusivism and limitations.

But this fragmentation should not now become an excuse for not trying any more.

On the contrary, we should see it, as a result and not as a guide, and we should seek to shift the entire process of our choices.

Through the years of Auroville we have progressed and we have learnt lessons and developed a unique experience.

We have also yielded to falsities.

Can we assess the ones and the others?

Physically Auroville is increasingly surrounded by the constant and multitudinous pressure of the very type of development which, as willing servitors, we cannot condone.

We cannot block off the world.

But we can, and we must, affirm our true priorities.

For too long now we have been sending out the wrong messages, thus inviting through weak affinity into Auroville motives and interests which, by their gradual establishment, are bound to alienate us more and more from the very purpose of our coming to Auroville in the first place.

Yet it is our responsibility alone to first develop in ourselves the attitude that will attract the right energies for Auroville, with the right motivations and in the right manner.

This is our dharma.

Any representation of Auroville in the world should be charged with that quality of need and awareness.

4- On Economy.

Economy cannot be reduced to finances.

Economy is a field that embraces all of our attitudes towards matter and towards life' relationships and activities, as towards all the means at our disposal, beginning with thought.

In the ordinary contemporary trends of development emphasis has shifted to consumerism: it is the shifting of value on "to have" rather than on "to be".

Whatever the focus that prevails at any stage of the history of mankind, it selects, within the infinite range of possibilities, the tools and means most pliable to its intent.

When we in Auroville find that we are in a mess of conflicting values, and that all the mind ever does is to supply references and justifications for every single attitude at play; when we are so confused and crippled that we believe no longer in the possibility of a self-evident collectively acceptable direction; should we not try then, rather than be cosmetically clever, to take the time to reflect more deeply on every one of our assumptions and practices?

We do have the time: Auroville is that time!

The world clamours that there is no time, there is never time; and beneath that clamour is the cry that some catastrophe will have to happen!

But the time is wherever there is consciousness.

To want the time to see is to want to be more conscious: it is to want for consciousness to govern.

It is a trick of the mind to convince us that, if we do take the time, life will unravel and go to pieces, unattended.

While, disengaged, consciousness tells us of infinite possibilities, takes us to immediate discoveries, releases the capacity of choice and guides us onto a fresh path to find new means and evolve new tools of manifestation.

Precisely what Auroville is for!

And so there are needs and there are needs, with their respective economies.

There are those needs or cravings that invade and colonise, eat and absorb.

And there are those needs that consciousness alone can fulfil, in its own true time.

What do I, for instance, need?

I need to discern, I need to feel and know that the tree under whose shade I rest is as happy as I am of this sharing, that the soil I tread is a little of my larger body of love, that the centre of my city is a throbbing of Her Presence, in powerful peace and the quiet glory of beauty achieved by the joining of matter, nature and humanity, within an embrace divine; that the eyes my eyes meet are open directly from within; to feel and know that my body is whole and one with my soul and partakes of a true plenitude that grows; that every moment is increasingly meaningful and alive within the One; that the food I still taste is the form of the nurturing of a larger identity; that the violence of nature teaches widening, and the sleep that receives me still is the welcoming embrace of the Guide across an infinity of worlds and states; I need to feel and know that the stones assembled to shelter me are at peace, in harmony, and the sound of my voice is as pleasant to them as the sight and touch of them is comforting to me; that the colours in the sky that make me silently grateful are thrilled and justified as thus delight is born again and again.

I need to feel and know that when I meet an opacity, an obscurity, here or there, it is a gift of growth, it is a travail with its own pure sense of becoming.

I need to discover the material ways that will foster and celebrate a continuum of consciousness.

What are your needs?

Where do they lead us?

What are the choices they will reveal as we go?

Living trust in the Grace that alone can guide Auroville is of the inner being: the only one who, after all, being immortal, possesses maturity!

5- Practical suggestions.

(Corrigendum: these are bound to be off the mark, since no one can singly identify the practical ways of conscious growth!)

We have made a confusion between maintenance and development.

Seen from another angle, it is the same confusion that has prevailed between a community-type of organisation with its needs of survival and its own agenda of achievements, and a vaster concept of laboratory-city-representation at the service of Truth and of the future of humanity, which is an experiment of universal import and concern.

These two avenues of growth have for years conflicted in all of our attitudes.

In themselves, though, these are not conflicting notions, for the former is part of the latter; it must only find its true place and relation.

In effect, Auroville is indeed meant to be a community of stewards, servitors and willing subjects of an experiment in accelerated change.

With all the responsibilities this entails for everyone present and the essential relatedness it promotes with the whole world.

The effort to support the basic necessities of the people who have chosen to give their lives is a duty with us, and particularly with those of us who have the inclination and the sort of nature to serve in this area.

The effort to develop, to create new forms, to reach towards an integrality and completeness of realisation in life and matter, if it must be consciously monitored and sometimes even initiated by us in Auroville, must necessarily, and meaningfully so, draw the contribution of all those who are motivated to work for Auroville without themselves living there.

It is so that every Aurovilian must first work for the basic priorities of Auroville; and only when those are ensured, may we turn towards an augmentation of Auroville's possibilities.

An example: if the motivations for the creation and running of commercial units were, in terms of Auroville's needs, truly clear, there would be no such dissensions as we are having now.

Together, all the energies creating objects of commercial interest would have as a constant and unquestioned aim to support the material upkeep of Auroville and its permanent residents, while they would, by the quality and integrity of their endeavour, provide a material vibration to the relationship with the world at large.

All Auroville products, channelled through one organ (call it "Aurocreations" or any thing similar), with a strict quality control, would be contributed within one coherent framework which would integrate and make good use of all the creativity available.

This framework would directly benefit and be directly concerned with the provision of harmonious and efficient services to Auroville.

Within the same perspective, each service unit would organically evolve two branches of activity – maintenance and development.

The first would be entirely funded from the earnings of Auroville, while the second would be entirely funded by the contributions channelled towards each further development.

6- On the necessity for active discernment towards all new participations.

The Entry Group has, for several years, in the fulfilment of its duties, called for everyone's attention on the increase of discrepancies and contradictions in our general attitude towards the laws of Auroville and its Charter. So far, in vain.

In the absence of a coherent response they have also, to some extent, yielded to the pull of accommodating whatever is the prevailing situation, and have gone so far as to propose an institutionalisation of the discrepancies! (When they proposed the creation of a whole range of "new" statuses)

The fact is that the contradictions to Auroville, finding room in ourselves first, affect all areas at once, and no single group can respond to them adequately.

The indispensable effort demanded of all of us now is on two fronts simultaneously: to screen our motivations and operate a qualitative shift in our practices and organisation on the basis of renewed commitment to the Charter of Auroville; and to apply much more conscious criteria to the acceptance of new participation to Auroville.

7- On an Auroville organisation collaborating to Change.

I have read with interest the proposal recently contributed by Gilles. It seems to be genuine and disinterested, and worth considering.

However there is, I think, a lesson we have learnt in Auroville; it has to do with karma yoga, in the sense that it is in action and in life that we must develop the qualities of discernment and conscious synthesis.

It is therefore in the field of action that we must become capable of identifying amongst us all those who are most open to intuitive powers in any given situation.

It thus seems to me that Gilles's proposal could be integrated into your second proposal, of a truly representative group: representative of all the angles of experience and perspectives held in Auroville.

For we do not want a parochial representativity; we want a representativity from the point of view of the actual experience of Auroville as it translates in any of the areas of its expression.

In this way we might have the guiding elements of a more collectively conscious search into the future, into the unknown, into the adventure.

8- When basic contradictions have become accepted practices.

The laws of Auroville are very clear; but the way to their effectiveness, in us as well as around us, has to be found step by step.

For ages the world has been plagued by the division between the spiritual life and the physical life, until Sri Aurobindo and the Mother came to incarnate a Divine who claims the whole of the manifest world.

Auroville was created so that collective humanity could begin to learn this truth and experience it.

We are not to allow this old division to be resurrected in another form, between the "ideal" and "the facts of life"!

Our dharma is to serve the laws of Auroville come what may.

Perhaps we do not as yet have the strength to truly offer the contradictions so that they are either changed or dissolved.

But we must not ever condone them.

And for this as for every part of the discovery of Auroville we need one another's complementary effort and flame and perception.

Yet there are too many instances when we seem to attach more value to appearing mature and "realistic" than to nurture the call for a truer and fuller existence.

One instance: the FAMC, which had so far been a rather fluid entity not having yet found its organic identity, yielding to the same normative compulsion, is now proposing (I suppose, as a sort of damage-control measure) to sanction the practice of renting, professing its ability to exert control over all such operations, for the welfare of the community.

But isn't this, in terms of Auroville, a plain imposture?

For whoever in Auroville is able to rent out must also naturally feel proprietorship!

For several years now the practice of selling assets has been quite open and increasingly regarded as "normal".

Yes, normal indeed it is, almost everywhere.

But it is not right, and therefore ought not to be normal, in Auroville.
Not on moral grounds, but simply because it can never be the expression of the spirit of Auroville.

When one has given oneself to Auroville, whatever material one needs no longer or is no longer able to use properly must be automatically released to those who may need it and may use it well.

All one is capable of producing, acquiring, attracting, procuring and creating belongs naturally to Auroville.

To then expect a return of one's investments, on the same level and according to one's limited terms, is definitely not an expression of the spirit of Auroville.

9- We do have real problems.

One of the real evolutionary problems we face in Auroville is that we have not yet realised the level of consciousness required to ascertain without any judgement the true needs of every person.

We are still prone to the confusion between an arbitrary equality and the perception of the infinite diversity of experience within the divinity of all souls.

10- What to do?

The first thing we need, provided we are able to confirm our commitment, is to become capable of identifying with any other person's genuine point of view and conviction.

The only true communication lies therein.

I feel that your second proposal could help towards that realisation; for, the distance between all present in Auroville, this distance in which innumerable misunderstandings are thriving, is basically due to the absence of a conscious recognition and integration of the others' experience in action."

Note: During that year and the year that followed, I was a member of the newly formed "Representatives Group", representing in its forum the experience and perspective of our team and our work at Matrimandir. I felt all along that this was an excellent route if more of us would give it their heart and effort and discipline.

However it was discredited and petered out in the wake of Kireet Joshi's glorious return to Auroville in the guise of the new Chairman of the Auroville Foundation Governing Board.

Note: Early on, C had taken subscriptions in my name to two leading French newspapers, "Le Nouvel Observateur", a weekly, and "Le Monde Diplomatique", a monthly; these are two out of the many French newspapers that, to my knowledge, have so far remained loyal to a certain ethics and orientation, and their regular reading has provided me, and some others here in Auroville, with a fairly accurate and comprehensive sense of the currents, trends and events seen from the French and European point of view. In June of that year, 1998, "Le Monde Diplomatique" published a questionnaire to its readers. I tried to respond to it in my way, in spite of the high risk to sound merely pretentious or simply too odd and "out of it"! This is the text that I had sent.

Au Monde Diplomatique, en réponse à votre questionnaire: le 4 Juillet, 1998.

« Vous voudrez bien lire attentivement ce qui suit, car je ne vois pas comment l'exprimer en trois ou quatre lignes de définition.

Mon impression générale de votre travail est que vous avez à cœur d'être véridiques dans les présentations que vous faites des situations, des tendances, orientations, des jeux de forces et de pouvoirs qui animent et sillonnent la réalité terrestre actuelle, et que vous vous êtes donnés pour but d'alerter l'individu à ce qui menace son intégrité humaine comme à ce qui peut la servir.

Cependant, vous ne semblez pas avoir encore fait le constat de l'évidence la plus significative de notre époque : à savoir que ni le mental – l'intellect, la raison, la connaissance -, ni la vie – l'émotion, le sentiment, l'impulsion, l'instinct – ne sont en mesure de trouver les réponses nécessaires, ni de résoudre les contradictions essentielles qui maintenant déchirent l'humanité.

Seul un pas évolutif de la conscience, un changement qualitatif du regard intérieur, peuvent permettre la découverte du chemin à suivre, à frayer.

La nature humaine est à présent à son point évolutif d'éclosion, selon les lois qui l'ont déterminée : la loi de la séparation, celle du développement de l'ego.

Le regard que l'humanité porte sur elle-même et ses œuvres, à ce seuil évolutif, est nouveau historiquement – elle peut aujourd'hui se percevoir dans son entière multiplicité à la fois -, mais n'a pas changé intérieurement.

Ce n'est que par une conclusion logique de son intelligence que l'humain en vient aujourd'hui à reconnaître la réalité de l'unité.

Mais la capacité de réaliser, et de vivre cette unité, ne lui est pas encore donnée. L'unité ne peut pas se manifester dans l'état encore inchangé de l'homme.

Il faut pour cela d'abord que la conscience dans l'homme se libère de ses instruments et se prépare à recevoir et être organisée par la loi et la force d'un autre état évolutif, qui pousse de tous côtés, de toutes parts, et dans toutes les dimensions.

Il existe deux contrées de la psyché humaine où nous savons parfois, d'un autre savoir, trouver la conscience – libre des limites, déterminismes et déformations de ses instruments évolutifs - : l'une est derrière le cœur, l'autre par-delà la pensée.

A la première nous sommes parfois réunis, à la faveur de certains actes héroïques, ou de simples gestes d'amour et de don, par ce qu'ils suscitent directement en nous : un élan de gratitude, de reconnaissance, un sens de pureté et de gratuité absolue.

A la seconde nous sommes parfois réunis à la faveur de certains mouvements créateurs qui tirent ici une beauté, une ampleur, une harmonie, un sens de l'éternel et de l'absolu.

Il est un autre domaine d'expérience directe de la conscience, qui ne s'ouvre encore qu'à la faveur de circonstances extrêmes ; et ce domaine a son accès dans le corps, une fois que les limites ordinaires de la vie physique sont franchies.

Tels sont les contacts privilégiés que nous avons tous, à des instants de notre vie, avec la conscience.

Certains d'entre nous un peu partout sur la terre ont perçu la nécessité impérieuse de laisser les bases et les références de la formation mentale et vitale, et d'apprendre les premiers rudiments d'une plongée ou d'une émergence dans un autre, nouveau milieu, celui de la conscience et de sa puissance de manifestation directe.

Leurs recherches sont pratiques ; elles reposent exclusivement sur l'expérience.

Ainsi, ce que je souhaiterais voir advenir dans vos colonnes est une ouverture à la recherche de la conscience, une acceptation reconnaissante d'un seuil à franchir au-delà des instruments connus et des dimensions en lesquelles ils opèrent, pour aider à l'émergence et l'expansion d'un nouveau regard et d'une nouvelle présence au monde.

Ne voyez là rien de théorique ni d'abstrait.

Tous ceux qui ont vraiment, honnêtement, courageusement essayé de trouver des réponses concrètes et praticables aux contradictions de l'état humain et aux souffrances qu'elles engendrent, savent qu'il est impossible de les atteindre durablement tels que nous sommes.

Nous devons changer.

A titre d'exemple, je prendrai deux de ces contradictions majeures qui sont la cause d'innombrables, et irrémédiables conflits.

Le racisme, et la quête du pouvoir.

Quiconque a vraiment travaillé en soi-même, étant exposé à une situation extérieure correspondante, sur l'ensemble des mouvements que recouvre le terme « racisme », dans le but d'en venir réellement à bout, sait ceci : qu'il n'existe pas de solution mentale, morale ni pratique à cette contradiction, tant que l'on ne devient pas l'autre, à part entière ; et que cela n'est possible que par la conscience.

Aucun individu, et aucune race, ne sont exempts ni exclus de cette contradiction, car elle est simplement le résultat naturel de notre condition évolutive.

On peut prétendre et s'agiter ; la chose ressurgira à un moment ou un autre, intacte et inchangée, aussi longtemps que l'on n'apprend pas la leçon évolutive.

Quant à la quête du pouvoir : quiconque s'est trouvé, par un effort persistant ou une grâce particulière, dans les circonstances les plus favorables à la liberté de choix, avec le but et l'intention sincère de se défaire de toute ambition et de toute convoitise pour l'exercice arbitraire du pouvoir, sait ceci : qu'il est impossible de maintenir intégralement à la fois un vrai détachement et une vraie maîtrise de l'exercice du pouvoir, tant que notre nature même n'est pas transformée, c'est-à-dire entièrement et de fond en comble convertie à la réalité souveraine de la conscience.

Pour conclure, je dirai donc ceci : si vous souhaitez vraiment collaborer au changement nécessaire et servir une transformation réelle et durable de l'état du monde, vous vous devez d'ouvrir vos pages et le champ de votre travail aux contributions de tous ceux qui sont maintenant convaincus que le seul chemin vivant est à trouver dans l'aventure de la conscience.

Je n'aurai pas la présomption de vouloir vous indiquer où vous tourner, ni où vous adresser.

Je souhaite seulement vous communiquer la certitude que, du moment où vous le voudrez, les données utiles vous parviendront.

A vous d'exercer le discernement nécessaire pour ne pas verser dans un genre d'excès et de surenchère dont vous êtes sûrement prévenus.

Fraternellement,

Divakar »

Note: In Auroville's entire history so far, one could attribute a kind of "permanent status" to certain issues, as they keep recurring or resurfacing, only more loaded and more complex, as if they had never been addressed.

One of these permanent issues is that of land.

Land had and still has to be purchased from local land-owners, to be placed under Auroville's name – now it is the Auroville Foundation's name.

In effect Auroville becomes the "owner", even though both the Charter of Auroville and the Auroville Foundation Act state that there is no ownership in Auroville and Auroville itself belongs to "humanity as a whole", making of the residents and their organisation the stewards of the land on behalf of humanity rather than their proprietors.

But this distinction between owners and stewards is a very fine line in the minds of most people. For the villagers of the area, who were initially very deeply moved by the Mother's dream and action and responsive to Her and very hopeful and generally trusting, later experience has often been the cause of scepticism, disillusion and sometimes deep hurt and intense resentment.

To date, in 2005, thousands of acres still need to be purchased in order to consolidate the Auroville area.

During the past 10 or 15 years prices have soared and escalated, partly through the exponential development on the adjacent Pondichéry territory, partly through the promoting campaigns of various private developers making use of Auroville's name and fame, and partly through the sometimes bizarre policies applied by the Aurovilians concerned with the purchase of land and the relations with the villagers.

And so far there has not been much clarity of intent on the part of the community of Auroville as regards the joint development of both Auroville and the villages that surround it and share its general area.

Aurovilians have done and continue to do excellent substantial work in the bio-area, particularly in the fields of forestation and water conservation, but also of education, social progress and health care.

But up until now, in 2005, such a simple, basic idea as sharing equally whatever funds are made available to Auroville for development – a principle which would ensure the channelling of many sources of funding as yet untapped and would go a long way in making of Auroville an experiment of actual import and concern to India and to the world -, is still not even considered.

In the year 1998, this “permanent” issue had its time in the collective awareness; I do not recall the exact circumstances or events that triggered the general attention, but I had drafted the following text, along with a proposed plan of action to re-orient the activity and intent of the Land Service.

Written Request on Land.

“To all our neighbours, Tamil brothers and sisters who live in the vicinity of Auroville,

From all of us Aurovilians, who have chosen to live in Auroville and for Auroville at the service of the new consciousness that the Mother and Sri Aurobindo have manifested,

Our greetings to all.

We appeal to you and humbly request you to help us make of this area that we all inhabit as fellow human beings an area of consecration to a more harmonious future for the earth.

We appeal to you and humbly request you to join us in a cooperative effort to preserve all the lands in this area from the forces of blind profit and destructive development, and to work with us towards the realisation of a collective harmony, amongst us all, with earth and with nature, so as to offer, all together, an example of hope and unity, of a living future open to continuous progress.

We appeal to you and humbly request you to work with us step by step, with open hearts, at the service of this common goal.”

Proposal for the structuring and functioning of the Land Service.

- Structure.

- 1- For all contacts with local authorities, such as surveyors, panchayat, district officers, tax officers, etc.: a minimum of 2 Aurovilians, one of them at least fluent in Tamil.
- 2- For the coordination of land use and stewardship: a minimum of 3 Aurovilians, actively involved, two of them fluent in Tamil.
- 3- For the management of funds: a minimum of 2 Aurovilians.

Therefore, a team of minimum 7 Aurovilians, not including secretarial work.

- Functioning.

The team should meet formally once a week, and maintain contact on a daily basis with the Secretary of the Auroville Foundation.

It should be represented on the Development Group, on the FAMC and on the Representatives Group.

All policies should be clarified, confirmed and agreed upon by consensus.

The team should meet once a month with those who are involved in fund-raising.

A formal report of all on-going transactions must be presented monthly to the FAMC, where priorities must be worked out.

The team must make sure that at least 2 of its members are constantly available at its office to meet with villagers, one of them at least being fluent in Tamil.

The office must have a proper welcoming space to receive these people, and files must be available containing all information regarding each Auroville land. (The Land Service must not exclusively depend either on its computer or on any one person to store all information.)

Part of the job is to oversee the entirety of Auroville lands and to ensure that they are properly looked after, maintained and kept free from any encroachment and misuse.

The Land Service can initiate no legal proceedings without the prior agreement of the FAMC and of the Secretary.

Whenever necessary the Land Service may seek the Secretary's help, or anyone's help in Auroville, for negotiations, and advice in cases of litigations.

Before any new development takes place on Auroville land, the Land Service must be informed and it must make its own assessment and recommendations.

If the Land Service finds the new development objectionable, it must be heard at the FAMC, and an agreement must be reached before the new development takes place. (By "new development" is meant, besides constructions, any new planting, new passageway, sport activity or excavation for the mining of soil, etc)

The Land Service must be given an overall direction, with targets for its work on a long-term basis.

In the case of land owners who wish to transfer or sell their land to Auroville on certain conditions, such as the obtaining of the "Friend of Auroville" status or the right of usage, these conditions must be clearly agreed upon by all parties and be binding.

The Land Service must speak the voice of Auroville, not its own separate voice."

Note: I have kept no other texts or documents from that year of 1998.

But it was in September of that same year, 1998, that I began writing my last book, "Chemins Entiers".

After a long period of silent gestation, deep within me, I now felt impelled to focus in an attentive receptivity and let the words come, a few sentences at a time, day after day.

At tea-time or in the few idle moments my responsibilities on the site of Matrimandir left me, I would sit on a tools chest next to a planning table in the carpentry shed, or make myself a square foot of clear table between the wages and attendance books, amid the clatter and clamour of voices and activity, and let it percolate, or distillate itself into clear drops of meaning and the rhythm and dance of a slow creative rivulet of experience offered; there was nothing to organise, no thinking to do, no plan to follow; there was only that tranquil, but imperative compulsion, like an act of bearing fruit, that joined the deepest and most silent source within to a sort of living and active synthesis of all assimilated experience – not just life-experience, but the experience of consciousness – of the past ten years or so.

It came in French; even though I had not been speaking French for many years, but for the short periods of C's visits, and not reading much French either, but for the Agenda now and then, I did not have to search for words: the right words were picked up on the way down, or rather, on the way out, from the storage area of the physical mind.

I did not have to make any corrections later on, but for a couple of words which I had not gotten right, and a few mix-ups of English and French usage or spelling.

PART SIX

- 1999 -

Note: I think it was at the beginning of 1999, the last year of that millennium, that I wrote this prayer.

Prayer :

- 1- Je demande à la Présence
 Au-dedans et au dessus
 D'établir
 La Paix
 Et la Protection.

- 2- Je demande à la Présence
 Au-dedans et au dessus
 De garder
 Ma conscience.

- 3- Dans une confiance tranquille
 Je m'en remets
 A la Présence,
 A Cela qui sait,
 Qui comprend,
 Qui peut,
 Qui aime.

Note: On the 8th of March, 1999, I completed the writing of the book "Chemins Entiers". It ran to nearly 200 tightly type-written pages; its form was a continuous flow of a sort of poetic prose, but it articulated itself into sequences that moved like a river, swelling with tributaries as it runs to the sea.

The manuscript was later sent to 2 or 3 Publishing Houses in France and to friends in Quebec; Robert Laffont, for instance, wrote to me his full appreciation, along with his regrets, saying that he was already taking all the risks he could afford to take by publishing Satprem's books, which hardly sold. All responses had in common their stated inability to fit this text into any of their categories, while recognising its quality.

Finally, with both C's and F.J's help, and thanks to the openness and boldness of a friend publisher in the South of France, who had already published a few texts of F.J's, my father's, my book was published in early 2001. DEB, the publisher, and me, one day when we sat together in F.J's house in France, found the perfect picture for the cover: a photograph of lava flowing, all deep orange tones of Agni against an intense blue, the exact rendering of what I felt, and still feel is truly happening .

This book was put into some libraries throughout the country; but DEB did not have the means to advertise or promote, nor even to merely inform about it – its spirit and contents – more than a few lines on his web-site.

The competition is such in the publishing and distributing markets nowadays that very few books stay in the same libraries for more than weeks; one year time is the very maximum for the majority of published books.

"Chemins Entiers" during that one year of library life has perhaps sold to 400 copies. I have not got a single response or comment, except from a few very close friends. As for nearly everything that I "do", there is resounding, stunning silence!

India had to go back to war, in 1999, with part of itself, Pakistan, over control of Kashmir. This was the "Kargil" war. It was fought over the most inhospitable terrain. It was short. The deaths of many hundreds of young men and exemplary Army officers, children of Bharat Mata, served at least one purpose: to make it clear that no resolution would ever be reached by either devious treachery or by the threatening of terrible force.

In Auroville, through K.T, a highly respected retired Major General, and his family – my friends – I was privileged to be in close contact with some of the finest emotion and aspiration Mother India inspires and draws in Her children.

In homage and deference to this experience, I tried to write something.

Living on the land of India for many years, I have become aware of the many divergent pulls that tear at Her children. The policies and politics of the country have not so far been worthy of the vastness, profundity and immeasurable richness of Her being.

Sri Aurobindo and the Mother have all along maintained that India must somehow recover the integrality of her physical being before it can truly fulfil its role as the guru of the world; the partition that occurred in the wake of the British Raj's withdrawal, and created Pakistan on the basis of religion alone, is a lie and can never become other than a lie.

India must find the means and ways – whether through the forming of a federation or some other arrangement – to undo this division and resolve it within a greater vision.

I gave this text the title of:

An offering to Mother India, July 13, 1999, Auroville.

"Today more than ever India must play its true role, as a mother among the nations, and as a guide in the bosom of our confused and wounded race.

It must play its role for its own sake and for the sake of the entire world; it must become one with Her, the Mother.

It must centre itself around its soul, offer itself to its spirit, and receive from soul and spirit the real strength that is Hers alone.

India today is weak, it is a chaos of contradictions: its very own, and also those it has inherited, imported or yielded to.

Yet India alone can lay the foundation for the coming age.

India is ancient beyond memory.

Yet it is hardly born as a nation.

It holds the supreme keys to the only condition that will redeem humanity and save the earth: the life of spirit in matter.

India has yet to gather its children, and its powers, into Her true puissance of unity.

For how many millennia its people, throughout the width and breadth of its land and the many dimensions of its culture, have freely met the spirit.

And yet what selfishness has ensued, what blindness, what denial of the body of the Lord!

It is time for India to make its true offering, the one every human being needs: the offering of a physical and material home to the divinity.

Let India become Herself, the Mother, and show the way, for each human being to unite with the divinity within, for each human body to serve the divine manifest, for each human action to express the divine's inexhaustible riches.

Let India gather Her land and Her people, teach them the living love of the One and become the haven and the beacon She is meant to be for all nations and all peoples and all beings.

Let each Indian at heart drop the pretence and the falsity and stand by the very breath of the Lord throughout the land of India and become worthy of that blessing.

Today every individual, every grouping, every people, every nation, has but one choice: to work for the true sense of evolution and to serve the advent of a terrestrial life ruled by the spirit and the soul, or to join the forces that resist and deny.

These forces are active everywhere, in every one of us.

This is the battle.

There is no other.

These are the forces that misguide those who deny the beauty of life and the truth of unity and would rather become terrorists than to accept their own evolving humanity.

These are the forces that feed exclusivism and self-serving hatred.

These are the forces that would reduce human beings to mere numbers under the false rule of greedy gods or treacherous ideals or for the sake of a destructive material prosperity that is empty and devoid of spirit.

India has yet to claim its body as a living nation, and show the example of an entire people whose free members choose the law of the spirit and exist by the truth of the soul.

Let India move forward secure in the clarity of its purpose, calling the Mother to unite all its children into Her embrace and lead them by Her Will and Her Grace for all of mankind and the love of one earth.

In gratitude to Sri Aurobindo and the Mother."

Note: The issue of self-governance in Auroville had also, of course, the "permanent" status!

All kinds of combinations and variations on known themes were broadcast every now and then; old and new models were looked at in relation to the Charter of Auroville, and not a few techniques tried in the West and intended to facilitate and promote cooperative awareness in large groupings were somehow finding their way into Auroville.

In 1999, while the Representatives Group, of which I was a member, was still functioning, a few Aurovilians floated the "concept" of a "Town Council", trying to answer the gaping paradoxes of Auroville's organisation, or lack of it.

I wrote the following text, undated (it must have been around the middle of that year):

About the Town Council idea, to K and the Executive Council.

"This is just a contribution, not to be circulated, unless it would be found by you as sufficiently representative.

.The need.

1- From the Development Group's perspective:

a) An overview, decision-making body, with recognised authority, to instruct both the Planning and the Development Groups as to the priorities, and to sanction the main lines of specific projects.

- b) Clear and recognised guidelines and policies as working tools for the Development Group, so as to be able to monitor effectively every single physical development.
- c) Clear and recognised guidelines and parameters to define and orient the work of the Planning Group and its relationships with both the Development Group and the Overview Body.
- d) Adequate facilities and financial support for the work of these groups.

2- From the larger perspective:

- a) A "hub": a coordinating body that receives information and impetus from all the "spokes" (working groups and areas of activity), dynamically dedicated and committed to the Charter of Auroville and the directions provided by the Mother, and transmitting back to each and all working groups and areas the necessary inspiration and support and cohesiveness, so that every activity in Auroville is conducted in accordance with its spirit, in a progressive awareness of unity.
- b) An internal reference body able to effectively process all issues that arise in Auroville, holding in trust the ideals and inner laws of Auroville and seeing to it that these are not ever compromised or betrayed through any of our practices, methods, pursuits and policies.
- c) A voice that can speak for Auroville.
- d) A centrally positioned instrument that can stimulate, support, encourage and help formulate the priorities, orientations and choices of the community of Auroville at any time.

.The proposal as coming from the Development Group, Planning Group and Land Usage Group.

1- Basic questions that first need to be answered:

- a) How do the members of these 3 groups see the process for arriving at a common approach of the physical development of Auroville?
- b) What are the parameters that need to be defined and generally acknowledged in order for the Development and Planning Groups to function effectively?
- c) Apart from the need of a clear vision of the external forms, what are the steps to be gone through for a well-shared sense of the priorities to arise?
- d) What degree of control is wanted?
- e) What are the guidelines or measuring tools wanted to assess the limits beyond which a physical development is to be prevented or stopped?

2- On the organic function and identity of this Overview Body.

- a) Provided a degree of consensus would be reached on a comprehensive approach to the physical development of Auroville, those key-people who still hold today conflicting views, ought then to be able to collaborate in their respective capacities to the planning and development of Auroville. Should they, or not, be members of an Overview Body?
- b) Provided a mechanism or process is identified and accepted by which priorities can be defined and confirmed, would there still be need of a permanent Overview Body?

.The proposal from the larger perspective.

An Auroville Council is designated, with the following mandate:

- a) To act as a coordinator among all the working groups and areas of Auroville with the help of the Representatives Group.
- b) To monitor and process all matters and issues of policies, with the help of the Representatives Group.
- c) To liaise with the Government and other authorities via its Working Committee, and to select individuals or teams of individuals to assist them in the various tasks generated by Auroville's relationships, as and when the need arises.
- d) To help formulate the priorities, choices and orientations of Auroville in terms of development – whether physical, environmental, economical, educational or social.
- e) To initiate, facilitate, stimulate, encourage and inspire the contributions of individual Aurovilians or the formation, for short or long terms, of working groups with clear mandates, in order to fulfil any tasks seen as meaningful for Auroville.
- f) To commit to the cohesiveness of the whole community through its own primary commitment to the Charter of Auroville.

It would ensue from the above that, where the work of the Development and Planning Groups is concerned, the Auroville Council would, as and when required, constitute ad-hoc boards of architects, builders, engineers and others to help assess and confirm the priorities for a given period of time, and ascertain that the conclusions reached are generally accepted and endorsed in the community. This specific exercise could actually be conducted right away by the present Executive Council, in collaboration with the Development and Planning Groups; their conclusions could then be processed with the help of the Representatives Group, and possibly a lot would be learnt in the process for future coordination and definition.

To begin with, both the Development and the Planning Groups could prepare a description of:

- Those guidelines and policies which they have found over the years to be sensible and meaningful.
- Those guidelines that need to be reviewed.
- Those guidelines that have been lacking and need to be defined.

.Observation.

The present Executive Council and Working Committee do fulfil some of the functions already.

Until a more comprehensive and cohesive way of functioning and relating is identified, however unsatisfactory the present conditions may be it would be sheer irresponsibility for the existing groups to discontinue or to merge into some new body that would not be more but less comprehensive.

This is the end of the contribution!"

Note: It was always my understanding that the separation and division between the official, legal and formal work of representing Auroville, and the internal, multi-dimensional work of realising a cohesive and diverse unity of purpose and orientation, was extremely detrimental; it was like a snare that kept snapping at us and damaging the very integrity of the experience, and it seemed that whoever got titled a member of the "Working Committee" was eventually trapped and alienated and that every "Working Committee" ended up functioning "in camera" and deluded into thinking itself more "responsible" than the rest.

I kept saying, whenever I had a chance, that we were responsible for our freedom only: we could conform to the expectations of the world by providing them with our own device for a spokesman and call it "Working Committee" as required, but we did not have to believe in it; in fact we must NOT believe in it, and it must have no existence between us: it must simply disappear and merge back into our own chosen way of functioning internally. It must be our protective shield, our totem and our visiting card, but it must not rule or determine our choices.

But with time, political motivations became more and more active, while a general disaffection led the majority of people in Auroville to desist from any involvement in the search for a collectively chosen organisation.

Note: The "permanent" issue of the Matrimandir's direct environment – basically whether Matrimandir was to be surrounded with the richness and abundance of natural beauty, as the Mother had initially described Her dream of it, a vast area of silent experiencing at the centre of the city, or merely adorned with some minimalist and symbolic array of decorative arrangements as Roger A wanted it, with the inner ring of the city overlooking the direct, almost barren approach to the golden sphere – had been troubling many of us almost since the birth of Auroville.

To some of us it was clear that the Mother had placed apparently divergent views at the service of the Matrimandir precisely because through their respective surrender to Her Action would be revealed their complementary creativity.

To others among us, it was certain that there had to be a hierarchical order and that Roger A had been given final authority by the Mother.

In 1999 this issue escalated.

The appointment of Kireet Joshi as the new Chairman, replacing MS Swaminathan at the helm of Auroville's affairs, brought about the re-appointment of Roger A as a quasi permanent member of the Governing Board and his official anointment as the Chief Architect and the Mother's spokesman, where the Matrimandir was concerned.

Our position and approach as a team had been since the beginning that we would go by what the Mother had expressly communicated.

Insofar as the very controversial design for the golden sphere and its 12 surrounding petals, authored by Roger A, was concerned, we had found that there was a sufficient evidence of the Mother eventually agreeing to it. It was not overwhelming evidence, but there was enough to hold on to and to at least honestly try to realise this concept.

But where the park and gardens were concerned, all the written and recorded statements by the Mother were abundantly clear, as She had talked at great length of these, and Her vision of the central park as a sanctuary with its Pavilion of Truth and Love sheltered within it, was the actual beginning of Auroville.

There was also recorded evidence of the Mother commenting on Roger A as "not listening to Her".

This orientation towards realising this sanctuary of natural beauty at the centre of Her city was not ours alone, far from it. Over the years, many were those who actually worked hard to realise this dream, and the actual physical reality bore witness to their efforts, with its landscaped hills and already mature trees in a large part of the area around the Matrimandir.

Throughout our years as a coordinating team we had endeavoured to direct as much energy as could be spared into the furthering of that realisation; we felt deeply that the very comprehension of the Matrimandir's significance depended on the completeness of its symbol, and that included and fully honoured the presence of Nature's beauty and living harmony.

We knew of course that this approach was not pleasing to Roger A, but he had so far seemed to reconcile himself to it as a dimension that could not be suppressed.

However, in 1999, he was given more political standing and began to seek and gather active supporters who provided him with various plans and proposals with the aim to do away with the park and gardens and return to his original concept of a barren, sculptured setting for the Matrimandir's golden sphere.

One of these proposals, elaborated by H.K, a German engineer who had earlier sojourned in Auroville, claimed to address primarily the issue of water-resources for the future city of Auroville, and to offer the ideal solution for it. It envisaged the creation of a huge lake around the Matrimandir, taking up the entire area of the Park.

This proposal was unfairly and rather deviously entered as part of the Master Plan which was to be passed by the Governing Board at the end of that year, without any consultation in the community. We learnt about the move just a few days before the formal meeting was to take place and we submitted our formal objection, requesting that this feature be excluded from the official document of the Master-Plan. Our objection was heard and an amendment was officially entered to the effect that the main features of the central area of the city of Auroville were still under research.

That year I began earnestly to collect and collate every single available statement by the Mother on the Matrimandir and its environment, indicating for each statement whether it was written, or voice-recorded, or noted from memory and by whom and in which circumstances. This formed a document which was made available in Auroville, for everyone to reflect on the issue and its implications in terms of spirit and orientation.

This was taken by some Aurovilians as a challenge for them to prove the point that in the course of the years – from 1965, when the Mother first described Her dream, to 1973, the Mother had "evolved" and worked through Her chosen instrument, Roger A, and eventually confirmed his concept as final

Thus various "documents" and brochures were subsequently brought out, and endless squabbling ruled the next several years over which "interpretation" was correct.

At the beginning of 1999, in the context of our information and fund-raising effort we had prepared our annual report to the many donors and other well-wishers and potential donors. In this report we meant to consolidate the understanding of the Matrimandir as a complete sanctuary and we had included a separate paper of presentation on the Gardens and Park.

I had drafted it with the contributions and help of the team.

On the Matrimandir Gardens, January 1999.

"The completion of the Matrimandir includes and implies, besides the completion of its sphere and of its twelve surrounding Petals clad in red Agra stone, other equally important parts and aspects, which are as necessary to the Matrimandir's function and action, namely its Gardens and the infrastructure of its whole immediate environment.

It is now time to present these aspects and works, as they involve a very considerable amount of labour, creativity, financial input and time, and they are essential to the wholeness of the Matrimandir as a symbol and as a site and source of inspiration for the times to come.

The whole thrust and spirit behind the creation of these Gardens is one of collaboration with Nature and plenitude of experience.

The Mother has shown us how Beauty is the sign and expression of the Divine's Presence in Matter.

She has Herself established such a conscious contact with flowers and plants that She could give to any particular flower its true unique name and significance; She thus confirmed the experience of the ages as, for instance, in the naming of Tulsi, which is always presented as an offering to the Lord, alternately "Devotion" and "New Birth".

The very idea of the Matrimandir actually issued from Her dream of one day creating the most beautiful gardens in the world, as a site for the sanctuary of Love and Truth.

When, at the birth of Auroville, this idea came closer to the field of manifestation, as the centre and living soul of the adventure, and the plans were drawn, She named each of the 12 Inner Gardens according to states of consciousness and explained how they would be living atmospheres actively conveying each of these states; She then added a 13th garden, the garden of Unity, to centre around the Banyan Tree which acts as the geographical centre of the city of Auroville, in which the significance of the other 12 would be represented.

She described the environing park as expressing the central aspiration of Nature towards Light and Fullness of being.

She wanted the presence of water, and a great simplicity; and She insisted on the whole area being silent, truly quiet; She called it "Peace".

Since the beginning of Auroville, much research has been done and a lot of experience has been gained, from land reclamation, reforestation, ecological balance, water conservation, to developing new plants, particularly orchids and hibiscuses, and introducing a large number of non-indigenous species.

Before going into detailed plans, a brief description of the physical conditions prevailing in Auroville may be helpful.

Auroville is situated on a plateau of laterite, about 40 to 60 metres above sea level, starting from the sea shore of the Bay of Bengal and extending inland some 12 kilometres.

The climate is semi-tropical with a short summer monsoon in June and a larger monsoon period starting mid-October to the end of November; mild temperatures hold till February or so, followed by hot dry weather with land winds up to June. August and September usually bring lots of thunderstorms. Cyclones are not infrequent.

There are no rivers in the vicinity; but, to the North, a large semi-natural tank, Kaliveli, is a high point for migratory birds.

The land is not fit for agriculture, except for dry crops such as raggi and varagu (varieties of millet) which the local farmers have long abandoned for such cash crops as cashew-trees and casuarinas.

When Auroville was started, the whole area was entirely barren, thanks to the careless exploitation of timber at the turn of the century, and major erosion, most of the rain-water running through deepening canyons towards the sea.

The water resources are minimal, and the Mother had early on advised to explore the possibility of desalination plants.

We tap mostly from the two higher water-tables, which have been replenished enormously as a result of intensive bunding and erosion control.

However, due to the wild industrial growth in the Pondichéry area on the one hand, and to the policy of Government subsidies for farmers aiming at quick profits on the other hand, the water-tables are rapidly being polluted and alarming degrees of salinity are presently being recorded.

Auroville is naturally, given its Charter, very concerned with drawing the maximum benefits from scientific discoveries towards a more conscious, sustainable, wholesome and harmonious development, not only for its own sake but for the entire region.

Over the 30 years of its existence Auroville has been able to demonstrate the changes that can be wrought by persistent care for the land, with creativity, inventiveness and trust.

We have seen how, after initial struggles and the need for a sometimes grim perseverance on the part of people, Nature eventually responds beyond all expectations.

However there are yet limits to what can be asked of her, and the most crucial challenges that still face Auroville are: energy and water.

In the creation of the Matrimandir Gardens, utmost attention and care must go to the use of both energy and water, with the combined help of practical common sense and sophisticated scientifically monitored equipment and devices.

The Matrimandir being a high focus of expectation, whatever realisation will be achieved in its Gardens will have considerable effects.

It is therefore extremely important that all helps are contributed unstintingly to make this opportunity the means of a realisation that will have lasting validity.

The Inner Gardens are enclosed in an area of oval shape, 360 metres at its longest axis East to West and 290 metres at its shorter axis North to South, which is to be circumscribed by a continuous channel of water dug in a V section of 5 to 6 metres deep and 10 to 12 metres wide, overflowing into several ponds and percolation pits.

We plan to make maximal use of sprinklers monitored by an automated system, combined with a drip-irrigation system for deep-rooting plants and shrubs. We find this solution to be optimal in terms of waste control, provided all its parts are sturdy, easy to maintain and the central monitoring is fairly safe and simple to operate.

Around the oval area of the Inner Gardens, with its encircling water-channel, are the Outer Gardens.

Their outward limit is fixed at a radius of 290 metres from a centre equidistant to the Matrimandir, the Amphitheatre and the Banyan Tree.

These Outer Gardens, or Park, will act as a buffer and a transitional space between the city and the area of silence around the Matrimandir and protect the more elaborate Inner Gardens with a denser belt of high trees.

About a quarter of the area has already been landscaped and planted over the last 20 years, experimenting with hundreds of species.

The intent here is to manifest a representation as wide as possible of the earth's trees, letting them establish their symbiosis by choosing carefully the position of each in relation to the others, according to their typical shapes, natural needs and behaviour, density of foliage, the colour of their blooms, their seasonal rhythms, etc.

An important role will be given to all the varieties of palm trees, along with many different creepers, a large range of which we have already introduced and developed in the Matrimandir Nursery, as well as a large number of acclimated orchids."

...

(Note: this text was followed by a detailed cost and time estimate, running several pages.

We had included a section regarding H.K's proposal of a huge lake as the main feature of a very large-scale project aiming at, basically, turning the higher aquifer below Auroville as Auroville's water-storage. We had not had the time as yet to really examine that proposal for its own merits, but we had serious doubts regarding its soundness, not to mention the impacts such a massive interference would have on the actual physical reality of the underground. And of course we could see how this project would allow Roger A to be rid of the entire Park area and gain unobstructed view of the Matrimandir from the city, while claiming that this would have to be done for the sake of Auroville's very survival, not for the sake of his design!)

Note: Later in the year we had occasions to meet with H.K and discuss his proposal in more detail. The following paper is our assessment of it at the time.

Regarding H.K's proposal for a water conservation and distribution system for the city of Auroville.

"This proposal rests on a premise which, in and by itself, is valid and attractive: it is that, given Auroville's geographical situation on the one hand, and the increasing risks of contamination of the deep underground water tables through pollution or saline intrusion on the other hand, the ideal solution for Auroville in future would be to gain control of the higher aquifer which lies directly under its territory and use it as its permanent water storage.

To achieve this aim, the following means and methods are proposed:

- To percolate into the higher aquifer basically all the rain-water, of which the yearly average recorded fall on the Auroville area is more than sufficient to ensure the welfare of a city of 50,000 residents.
- To collect the run-offs into reservoirs strategically placed in natural gullies on the outer edge of Auroville's territory.
- To create a main reservoir, properly sealed, of about 1.5 million cubic metres capacity, the overflow of which will, through a filtering plant, constitute the main feeder to the higher aquifer.
- To connect all the side reservoirs to the main one by means of solar pumps in order to keep the main reservoir filled throughout the year.

The purpose of this proposal is to guarantee a self-generating and self-sustaining, independent and safe water storage for Auroville.

However, on close scrutiny, this proposal turns out to be more of a gamble, with extremely high stakes.

To begin with, much of its validity is based on assumptions, not on knowledge of verified facts. (There has so far been no feasibility study made)

- Assumption No 1: The proposal states that the higher aquifer runs towards the sea on a gentle incline, moving away from Auroville within a period of 1 to 5 years. But this is no way an ascertained fact.

- Assumption No 2: The proposal states that the best strategic location for the main reservoir is at the highest point of the Auroville plateau, that is, at a height of 52 metres above sea-level, near the Matrimandir, exactly at the geographical centre of the Auroville territory – and therefore half-way closer to the seaside -, the rationale here being that the percolation plant will infiltrate the entire underground aquifer, even though this aquifer is supposed to be flowing down towards the sea. The water thus infiltrated would then have to move upstream and inland in order to replenish the aquifer under the western part of Auroville. There has been no study or enquiry as to other and perhaps better suited locations upstream for this main reservoir.

- Assumption No 3: In a worst case situation, the proposal states that the entire amount of water necessary to replenish the higher aquifer for one full year could be infiltrated during the monsoon season if, for example, the side reservoirs are found insufficient. There is no saying, however, the effects such an unnatural event – an enormous amount of water being directed in one spot of the underground at a time when the entire area is water-logged – would have on the configuration and behaviour of the sub-layers and of the aquifer, as no study has been made.

- Assumption No 4: The proposal assumes that there is going to be no question raised as to the water rights. Yet not all the gullies and canyons run towards the sea: a number of them run inland and have for generations served to fill the village shallow tanks. The proposal nonetheless assumes that Auroville is in a position to catch and collect all the run-offs near the heads of all the gullies that are situated on its territory, thereby depriving the neighbouring villages of an important source of water. The proposal claims the villagers can be made to appreciate that the entire water-table will be replenished for everyone's good, contradicting one of its own assumptions that the aquifer flows seaward and away from them.

There are other assumptions implied, in essential terms as well as in technical terms.

Essentially, for instance, this proposal assumes that there is simply no other way to ensure Auroville's existence: no other option is deemed worthy of study.

Technically, this proposal also assumes that:

- a) All the existing wells that reach deeper than the higher aquifer can and will be sealed.
- b) All the side reservoirs can be built and sealed simultaneously and equipped with appropriate pumping systems connecting them to the main reservoir uphill.
- c) The main reservoir, a ring-shaped lake more than 100 metres wide and 10 metres deep, with an outer circumference of 1,800 metres, can be sealed with pre-moulded plates of clay (to be imported) in one go, and immediately filled up (how?), since the clay plates must be kept wet if they are to remain waterproof.

We are not broaching here the topics of other, social and financial, assumptions.

But we have discussed with the author of the proposal, H.K, the appropriateness of locating this main reservoir all around the Inner Gardens of the Matrimandir and thus preventing the full manifestation of the Park around them and destroying its existing parts.

Our objection in this regard is simply that it does not reflect the Mother's stated and recorded wishes, made most explicit in Her own sketch dated 1965, which shows: a vast area of large trees, as a transition from the city to its centre; a circular lake; an oval area enclosing the Matrimandir and its inner gardens.

The proposal thus ignores and dismisses the fact of all the work done during the last 30 years, which was based on that understanding and vision: a Park or Outer Gardens as an isolating zone, leading to a circular body of water that marks the passage into the inner area of the silent inner gardens around the Matrimandir.

Another area of concern was also discussed with H.K, that of the status and feasibility of desalination plants.

The Mother has spoken, as early as 1965, of this option; She is also recorded as having spoken of a vision She had of such a plant, as a kind of kidney system.

We definitely agree that a most essential task of a sensible planning for the city of Auroville is to identify the future methods of water collection, conservation and consumption. For all of Auroville's successful efforts at regenerating the land and its natural resources through erosion control and forestation will be compromised or negated if more than half of Auroville's territory is paved and built without having first designed and created new methods of harvesting the rain-water and directing its run-off, in a consciously controlled environment.

And in this task, in our opinion, Auroville must be equally concerned with the harmonious future of its neighbours and companions.

H.K, in our conversations, acknowledged that, if worse comes to worse with the growing unpredictability of climate changes, a desalination plant might anyway become necessary, if only to keep the main reservoir filled and functional.

We could only point out to him that if this was indeed the case, there was in fact no need to force such a big water-body on the immediate environment of the Matrimandir; it could then remain proportionate to the other essential features seen and described by the Mother.

In our opinion, the realistic and useful conclusion is as follows:

- 1- No further building of the city of Auroville should be done without having elaborated first a practical and comprehensive system to harvest all the rain-water and direct all the run-offs to catchment areas that will in turn contribute to replenish the higher aquifer for the entire area, inclusive of Auroville's immediate bio-region.
- 2- A number of methods recommended by H.K, either aside from or as part of his main proposal, for water conservation, pollution-free filtering plants and devices, sewage recycling, etc., ought to be integrated as a rule in any further planning.
- 3- A concerted effort ought to be made to assess the feasibility and viability of a desalination plant to be provided for the needs of Auroville and the adjacent villages."

Note: It was becoming increasingly difficult for C to make her yearly journeys to Auroville. Although she continued her work as a psychoanalyst every day – and she had long days -, her health was not as robust, and age began to tell. R too was getting weaker, and in his case it was compounded by idleness, having retired earlier, and a very obsessive nature which led him to exert heavy pulls on C's energies.

I saw that I had to resolve myself to the necessity to relieve C and to myself do the journey.

This would be the first time that I would leave Auroville and India together, after 26 years.

It was not easy for me. As a little help, I decided to try and start writing a journal again. I used French.

Journal. Déplacements : nullité ou naissance.

17-9-1999, Chennai:

Voici le commencement de notes dont j'ignore presque tout du contenu. Depuis Novembre 1973 je n'avais plus quitté l'Inde, je n'avais plus quitté Auroville. Et Bhaskar vient de me laisser à la porte de l'aéroport, une étreinte si pleine et si brève.

Il a plu sur la route.

Par le physique, un passage dimensionnel, je regarde ; rien dans la tête ; quelque reste d'anxiété, oui...

C'est un processus trop délicat : toute réflexion serait un encombrement.

Une chose m'attire, d'un point de vue énergétique : cette possibilité qui s'offre d'un quotidien « irresponsable », pour quelques semaines, et d'une certaine mesure de disponibilité.

19-9-1999, Weymouth :

C'est une sorte d'angoisse, que je n'ai pas éprouvée depuis beaucoup d'années.

Des perceptions d'ordre différent, les unes sur les autres.

Physiquement, c'est difficile.

J'ai froid, et l'impression qu'ici je ne pourrai jamais ne pas avoir froid, et d'être nu, exposé, très vulnérable.

Comme d'être tombé en dehors de toute harmonie.

J'ai envie de crier, ou bien de fondre en larmes, et je me tiens pour ne pas être happé par une sorte de défaite physique.

Pourtant il y a ici ces éléments qui m'avaient parfois manqué : l'océan, le vent, l'air chargé d'embruns, les fougères, la bruyère, la lumière.

Il y a quelque chose dans l'atmosphère collective de l'Angleterre (je ne crois pas que ce sera ainsi en France), quelque chose qui me frappe profondément. Une sorte de tristesse, de peine : tout est propre, tout est organisé selon la pratique d'une éthique exclusive ; une politesse qui s'avance avec persistance jusqu'à une certaine mesure de fraternité, mais s'arrête et se fige ; il y a ce sens d'un respect de chacun envers l'autre, et d'un engagement collectif pour l'honnêteté, et une proportion de confiance. Mais la frontière est juste là.

C'est comme une agglomération de solitudes.

Pas la solitude des uns parmi les autres, mais la solitude due à l'absence.

L'absence du Divin.

Quitter l'Inde - le bruit, les détritrus, la saleté, la confusion, l'insoutenable marée humaine - et déjà, à Colombo, le sens d'une organisation collective qui n'est plus contredite par le nombre : un aéroport propre, une élégance, et une jeune femme qui, vêtue d'un uniforme « service de nettoyage », douce et courageuse, vient gentiment pousser son balai serpillière autour de mon siège, dans la salle de transit, pour effacer la trace des cendres de mon beedie.

L'avion de Colombo à Londres comme une prison où s'inflige la loi de la consommation : cette musique constante, médiocre à hurler, le sourire professionnel des hôtesses.

J'ai pris un siège côté hublot, et une jeune femme cinghalaise, qui vit au Danemark, a été ma compagne de voyage. En silence, comme une tendresse s'est révélée au cours de ces heures d'inconfort partagé.

Puis, voilà. Londres. Dès que le jour s'était levé, j'avais regardé par le hublot : ces étendues de notre Terre les plus belles, au Moyen Orient, et les plateaux et les monts de l'Europe centrale... Puis, le Nord de l'Europe, la Belgique, la Manche, et l'Angleterre : des sociétés mesurées, une affluence organisée, les routes impeccables, les champs et les villes ordonnés, presque pas d'animaux, aucun désordre.

A l'aéroport je suis fouillé et interrogé par une policière aimable et franche.

Puis, un autobus ; c'est comme une autre planète, une autre civilisation ; le prix d'un trajet de 45 minutes, jusqu'à Woking, est l'équivalent d'une semaine de salaire pour un ouvrier au Matrimandir ; le conducteur est poli, l'hôtesse contrôleuse est polie, ils ne sont pas pressés et font le tour des terminaux pour récolter des passagers, ils offrent du café, du thé ; le véhicule est silencieux, la route est lisse, les sièges sont plus confortables que ceux de l'avion.

Puis, deux trains, l'un omnibus, l'autre plus rapide : à chaque petite gare un homme ou une femme en uniforme s'enquiert auprès de chacun, prévenants, avec cette triste fraternité courtoise à la fois choisie, nécessaire et sans joie.

Chaque être est distinct.

Mais tous sont inscrits dans une sorte d'identité commune donnée par la loi du travail et de la consommation ; presque tous portent ces énormes chaussures de sport qui sont à la mode ces dernières années. Beaucoup des plus jeunes écoutent leur « walkman » constamment et en tous lieux ; ceux qui sont établis dans leurs activités d'adultes ont leur téléphone portable, qu'ils utilisent fréquemment.

Je suis assis dans ces compartiments confortables, dans ces petits trains silencieux, et mes yeux brûlent du manque de sommeil, j'ai froid, mes pieds sont douloureux parce que, gonflés par le voyage en avion, ils ne rentrent plus dans ces sandales que j'ai ressorties de l'armoire avant de partir, et je vois ces mouvements normaux et quotidiens de cette société, de la naissance à la mort...

Le train doit s'arrêter quelques minutes sur la voie et l'hôtesse nous explique que ce délai est dû à une réparation locale et nous prie de bien vouloir pardonner ce retard ; un homme d'une quarantaine d'années, un peu sombre, qui lisait le journal, sort alors de son sac un téléphone portable et appelle je ne sais qui pour informer de ce retard de quelques minutes seulement : il ne me semble pas que ce soit là une nécessité de travail, mais plutôt l'expression d'un besoin d'habiter la vie quotidienne d'une importance personnelle, d'une valeur.

Enfin j'arrive à Weymouth, et marche jusqu'au bord de mer, où se trouve l'Office de Tourisme : l'océan est agité, il bruine. Le ciel est sombre, et les rafales de vent font tanguer les marcheurs sur la promenade. Les employés m'apprennent que le bateau ne partira pas à Saint-Malo demain matin (c'était hier) à cause de la tempête.

Alors il me faut trouver une chambre pour deux nuits, et je m'aperçois qu'il me faut changer tout l'argent qui me reste... De Londres à Weymouth j'ai déjà dépensé l'équivalent d'un mois de Maintenance pour un Aurovilien !

Weymouth est un petit port bien bâti, bien entretenu, qui visiblement fait ses affaires du tourisme : chaque maison du front de mer est un hôtel, affichant « comble ».

Finalement je trouve une chambre tout à fait à l'autre bout de la petite ville, dans l'une de ces maisons converties.

C'est une ville harmonieuse, aucun bâtiment n'y est vilain. Briques, ardoises et tuiles.

Toutes les automobiles semblent récentes. Pas de vélos. Un quartier central réservé aux piétons ; des boutiques de luxe.

Et le petit port à l'arrière où s'ancrent les chalutiers des pêcheurs locaux : les marques d'une vie dure, physiquement âpre.

Après plusieurs essais, la propriétaire de l'hôtel parvient à obtenir la connexion téléphonique avec C et R, et je ne suis pas capable de présenter la situation sans causer un peu d'inquiétude, parce que je suis pris par une sorte de crainte ou d'appréhension d'être bloqué dans ce monde étranger sans argent, si la tempête ne se calme pas. Alors nous décidons que, si le voyage en bateau est encore annulé ce lundi matin, il faudra qu'ils achètent de Bretagne un billet d'avion Londres Dinard, et je retournerai à Londres par le train.

Le soir, il pleut si fort que je ne peux pas sortir pour aller manger quelque chose ; la chambre est minuscule, habitée par une télévision, sans chauffage, et il y a une fuite dans le plafond.

C'est une demeure calfeutrée, tapissée de toile fleurie, avec un chauffe-eau que je ne sais pas faire marcher. La propriétaire est installée dans le salon au rez-de-chaussée avec ses deux petits enfants, devant une grande télévision.

Il y a deux portes d'entrée successives avec des verrous de sécurité ; les lumières s'allument quand on presse, en marchant, un système placé sous le tapis.

Il y a une couverture supplémentaire dans la penderie et je me couche avec deux tricotés, mon châte et toute la literie entassée, sans manger.

Ce matin je suis sorti vers 6 h 30 et j'ai marché dans le vent jusqu'à l'embarcadère, pour découvrir que le bateau allait tout de même partir, mais que je n'avais plus le temps de retourner chercher mes affaires...

Mon billet pour demain matin est confirmé.

C'est dimanche et les boutiques sont, pour la plupart, fermées.

Une paire de chaussures dans laquelle je pourrais peut-être loger mes pieds, qui n'ont connu que la liberté depuis 30 ans, coûte au moins 30 ou 40 Livres : un autre mois de Maintenance !

J'ai presque fini mon paquet de beedies, et cherche des cigarettes sans filtre : 2 Livres ! Le prix d'une tasse de café est 1 Livre, un salaire journalier.

Ici on peut trouver du travail à l'heure dans un supermarché ou un centre de « fast food » et toucher de 3 à 4 Livres, assez pour le repas le moins cher, un filet de morue avec des frites.

Le gonflement de mon annulaire droit a empiré avec les changements de pression atmosphérique et parfois j'y perds la sensation, ou bien un simple mouvement déclenche comme une décharge électrique.

J'ai besoin d'une plage de temps libre, pour me concentrer amplement, rassembler les énergies, m'orienter.

J'ai coupé mes cheveux, devant le miroir au-dessus du lavabo.

Cette année qui vient de s'écouler, j'ai lutté contre le cauchemar de cette trahison installée dans le corps, qui cause le vieillissement. Pas seulement cette année :

c'est une lutte qui vit dans ma conscience depuis beaucoup d'années. Mais cette année particulièrement, la lutte s'est située de plus en plus dans la conscience même du corps, concrètement et directement.

Je pourrais dire à la fois, et avec la même intensité : je ne veux pas vivre dans ces conditions, et : je ne veux pas de cette mort.

En venant ici je sentais comme un besoin de donner, de rayonner : qu'il fallait relier tous ces êtres à la réalité de la Présence. Non pas que je « me » sentais en mesure de le faire, ne serait-ce même que dans une proportion infime, mais plutôt que la condition de tous ces êtres évoquait le besoin d'appeler, de mettre en contact.

Puis, une fois que je me suis trouvé physiquement dans cette atmosphère et que je l'ai perçue depuis le même plan, j'ai été plus sensible à un ensemble de faits humains ; ni la pensée ni les mots correspondants ne viennent ; c'est le sentiment que toute intervention, quelle qu'elle soit, et que tout progrès de conscience même, ne peuvent qu'inévitablement produire des ruptures d'équilibre et des souffrances.

Ce matin, de retour à l'hôtel, après m'être coupé les cheveux, je suis descendu dans la salle à manger ; le propriétaire, un homme grand, un peu empâté, d'une trentaine d'années, m'a servi un petit-déjeuner ; c'est lui qui s'occupe de la cuisine, une grande pièce équipée de toutes les machines modernes à l'arrière de la maison. Même courtoisie, même assumption positive de l'honnêteté de tout être humain civilisé.

Si j'avais de meilleures chaussures, j'irais marcher et marcher.

La photo de Sri Aurobindo est sur la table de nuit.

R et C m'ont rappelé ce matin, après avoir appris que le bateau était tout de même parti. Il faut espérer qu'il n'y aura pas d'aggravation de la tempête.

Pourquoi les choses se sont-elles arrangées pour que je sois obligé de rester ici une journée entière et deux nuits ? Pour que je me repose ?

Le fait est que j'observe ce phénomène : c'est que je ne suis encore que partiellement ici, physiquement partiellement : il y a un réalignement qui est en cours, c'est une chose pénible, mais à laquelle je dois être attentif, qui peut être fructueuse.

Je ne me sens pas tout à fait protégé.

Mais il me faut être prêt et disponible pour C. Il y a du travail à faire avec elle, et aussi avec F.J et Ch.J, et peut-être Olivier, plus tard.

Je sens que C s'en veut déjà un peu de m'avoir demandé de venir et qu'elle aussi prend la mesure concrète de la difficulté que cela implique et représente dans mon expérience physique.

Au moins cette crise et cette « maladie » que j'ai traversée il y a maintenant 3 mois (un étrange « accident » énergétique, entre les centres en haut de la tête et en bas de la colonne, qui a résulté rapidement en une infection urinaire sérieuse, et m'a immobilisé quelques semaines), m'ont amené à décider de ne plus permettre à aucune forme de « désespoir » ou de « dépression » de s'emparer de la conscience physique.

Mais je ne peux pas encore surmonter cet intense dégoût que j'éprouve envers ces « lois » qui gouvernent encore nos corps. Comme le sentiment que l'on éprouve devant le fait prouvé, l'évidence de la trahison la plus vile, la plus misérable, commise par un ami.

Le monde humain a l'expérience aujourd'hui d'une menace – la menace de sa destruction, de sa faillite, d'un chaos, et d'une perte irrémédiable de sens ; c'est une menace dans la mesure où l'être physique de chacun est attaché à sa survie dans les termes qui lui sont familiers.

Dans ce monde humain, ici et là, vibre une autre expérience, une prescience de la vie qui attend, de la vie consciente ; mais pour s'y donner il faut une réalisation qui est d'un ordre encore tout à fait exceptionnel.

Un état de préparation, de réceptivité, d'égalité, d'unité DANS LE PHYSIQUE qui ne puisse plus être contredit.

Il faudrait pourtant que cette réalisation même soit assez répandue pour que la transition générale ne soit pas livrée à des forces d'autant plus violentes qu'elles n'auront plus d'autre choix que de tout miser pour continuer d'exister et de régner.

Je peux percevoir, dans ma condition présente, combien je suis loin encore de cette réalisation, qui est pourtant LA nécessité impérative.

Aujourd'hui je suis ici comme un étranger. J'ai froid.

Froid physiquement, froid humainement. Mais au moins je ne devrais pas avoir froid divinement !

Mais je ne suis pas sûr : puis-je appeler, tirer, concentrer ?

Ou faut-il endurer et attendre d'autres ajustements ?

... Le soir : le temps s'éclaircit.

C et R viennent de me rappeler ; les nouvelles météorologiques sont encourageantes, et ils sont tous les deux si anxieux de me voir enfin arriver.

Je suis resté dans la chambre à regarder la télévision ; il va falloir que j'aie manger un peu solidement...

Simplement en regardant les programmes, il y a tout un travail qui se produit ; l'interview d'un ministre du Gouvernement britannique sur les mesures élues pour combattre la pauvreté - cette solitude effrayante qui ne s'apaise que superficiellement par le pouvoir que donne l'argent de se fabriquer une image et une vie ; un film documentaire sur la situation des propriétaires terriens en Argentine ; une série sur l'existence ordinaire de gens ordinaires à East End de Londres, aujourd'hui ; un vieux film américain avec Steve Mac Queen, situé en Chine... Et je constate la densité de mes réponses émotionnelles ; il y a quelque chose là qui se manifeste en soi, qui n'est ni personnel ni impersonnel, et qui est hors de proportions avec ce qu'il me reste de besoins séparés.

20-9-1999, Weymouth :

Le ciel est une grande masse grise, lumineuse, et l'océan est étale ; l'air est un pointillé de bruine.

Un moment sur le petit pont aménagé dans un coin de la surface supérieure de ce curieux vaisseau, qui ressemble à un grand hôtel flottant, un cube oblong à plusieurs niveaux – et cette étendue vivante d'océan, le parfum du goémon : alors j'éprouve cette gratitude de recevoir encore cette possibilité, ce contact physique.

Humainement, je me sens comme amputé : ce n'est pas naturel, ce n'est pas normal, que mes autres corps ne soient pas dans ce moment et cet espace, que Bhaskar, Anand, Shiva, Selvam, Ramalingam et d'autres ne soient pas ici même, sur le pont, à respirer et voir à pleines goulées, percevoir, regarder, sourire, découvrir et rire.

Ce bateau, je ne sais pas comment il marche, ni même si c'est un bateau : je crois qu'il glisse. Au niveau de l'eau, il y a toutes les voitures, et au dessus, sur deux étages, il y a tous les gens, des gens partout, et des comptoirs chargés de friandises, et des machines à sous ; tout est propre, c'est comme un grand salon.

Je crois qu'on va passer par les îles de Chausey et Guernesey.

Mon organisme a toutes sortes de réponses, qui demandent une attention tranquille.

Maintenant je comprends mieux la raison ou la nécessité de ce retard, de cette journée comme ajoutée au voyage.

Ce n'est pas facile de retourner physiquement à des atmosphères quittées depuis si longtemps, tant de cycles en arrière, ou en avant...

21-9-1999, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Attablé sous la lucarne du grand grenier, que C a fait tapisser de laie écrue et de toile orange, et meublé de paille et de bois clair, avec une baie centrale donnant sur un balcon en plein Sud, ouvert au ciel et à l'étendue des champs ; dans un vase tout près de moi, une branche de lys blancs énormes, aux pistils rouille, trois grands ouverts et quatre en boutons ; plus loin, en face du lit recouvert de laine naturelle brune et blanche, une autre grande table basse et un vase de larges roses thé tout épanouies.

Le ciel est couvert, l'air est froid, mordant, embaumé.

Un grand silence partout, dedans et dehors.

Hier, dès l'arrivée, je suis parti en vélo à travers la campagne et, sans reconnaître grand-chose, par un instinct tranquille, je me suis dirigé jusqu'à une petite chapelle qui, je l'ai compris, avait toujours dans mon enfance porté dans son atmosphère quelque chose de Toi ; dominant la pente des champs vers l'entrée immobile de l'océan dans les terres, dans le silence du ciel et des prés, cette contrée où les sons portent loin et l'écho d'une cloche peut dire toute l'attente du marin encore au large, toute la poignance de ces destins qui, de la terre à la mer et de la mer à la terre se frayaient un chemin d'humanité, doux et rude : la tendresse et l'âpreté, le poids des tâches, la force du vent, la chaleur des animaux, les giclées de l'embrun, la cousue des voiles et le crottin des chevaux et la parfum du cidre et de l'eau de vie pour réchauffer les corps transis et faire oublier la peine et le labeur sans fin.

Ce matin, c'est vers ma falaise que je me suis orienté, jusqu'à retrouver son sentier d'odeurs, d'ajoncs et de bruyère, à flanc de rocher, jusqu'à cette anfractuosité à l'abri des grands vents, face au large, où j'ai vécu tant et tant d'heures de cette contemplation qui ne savait pas encore.

C est bien rétablie, en harmonie ; R endure ces phénomènes débilissants de l'âge dans la protection de cette relation privilégiée que lui procure son attachement à elle, au-delà de tout.

Cette douceur qui s'établit toujours lorsque nous sommes trois, ensemble.

Les voisins, Madeleine et Guy, les mêmes, sensibles, le cœur vivant.

Des promenades, en voiture, à pied ; les rivières, les étangs, les bois, les collines, et ces villages tout de pierre brute, balcons fleuris, porches un peu de travers, escaliers semés de fougères et de lavande, abbayes gardées par des chênes, des palmiers, et d'incroyables cyprès – des variétés de conifères dont je n'ai peut-être jamais su les noms -, et des roses, et des aubépines.

Et les mûriers sauvages le long des sentiers, l'air est propre, la terre est propre, et les gens veulent saluer et reconnaître, sans effusion ni recul.

Ce ne sont plus comme dans mon enfance seulement les « gens d'ici » : il y a des maisons et des maisons comme une autre sorte de vie qui s'installe, ni la ville ni la vie rurale ; chacun a sa voiture, son chien, son cheval peut-être, son bateau, sa canne à pêche, sa boîte aux lettres, son téléphone et sa télévision, mais tous les habitats respectent une harmonie, un caractère commun s'y exprime, comme une autre forme de l'entité des lieux.

Chacun gagne sa vie et son droit à la vivre « bien » : un certain confort indépendant, une certaine paix, une certaine mobilité, un certain degré de relation au monde.

Je me donne cette période qui s'ouvre pour vraiment faire des progrès physiques, pour vraiment accrocher et installer une harmonie effective.

22-9-1999, La Ville aux Prévôts :

L'air et le vent, et le soleil : c'est ici, étrangement, que le corps aime à s'ouvrir au soleil, à sentir ses rayons comme à les boire ; notre soleil de l'Inde est trop fort, trop dominant ; le soleil d'ici se présente comme un baume.

L'océan est calme.

Je vais et viens en vélo, la falaise, les collines environnantes, les tertres – ce tertre planté d'une croix qui domine la montée de la marée dans les terres, où j'allais souvent, petit.

Ce qui a manqué à toute la chrétienté, c'est le renouveau spirituel : le renouvellement constant, en des formes toujours uniques, vivantes et rayonnantes, de l'expérience spirituelle.

Et ainsi, ce qui a manqué aux êtres, c'est de pouvoir célébrer, approcher, recevoir la présence incarnée dans sa multiplicité d'aspects et de visages.

Mon organisme ne s'est pas encore adapté – ni à la nourriture, ni aux rythmes du jour et de la nuit, ni à l'absence de tâches particulières ; mais il y a une sorte de bonheur physique, de gratitude envers cette abondance de douceurs et de beautés : les mûres dans les haies, les pâquerettes, les senteurs, la richesse de la lumière, la vivacité de l'air, le silence, la propreté.

Parfois la solitude de ces vies humaines, cet attelage à la nécessité de « faire sa vie », pèse comme une masse – quelle est la solution progressive pour l'humanité ?

Tous les trois, puis C et moi, avons longtemps marché sur la grande digue de Paramé, à marée basse, et sommes revenus sous une pluie aussi forte que soudaine.

Saint-Malo encore, à déjeuner.

Les soirées sont longues : il est plus de 20 h et le soleil se couche à peine ; mais le jour se lève tard, c'est encore l'aube à 7 h le matin. Et la lune est sur le côté !

Ce matin, téléphoné à Ch.J, puis à Paul.

23-9-1999, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Une grande randonnée tous les trois.

Cette contrée est un trésor de beautés et d'atmosphères uniques – de petits ports tout bâtis de granite rose et gris, de grandes grèves où des rivières rejoignent la marée montante, des bois anciens qui descendent jusqu'au sable de criques abritées, des étendues de landes sauvages, des bouquets de pins rassemblés dans le vent, et la côte de Fréhel, ses falaises comme une symphonie d'espace et de roc et d'ailes et de vent, la bruyère et l'ajonc encore doré, le genêt et la menthe, des sentiers où il faut lutter contre la bourrasque pour ne pas plonger dans un gouffre de roche orangée, les formes magiques que les vagues ont taillées dans les flancs du roc exposé, ici et là un butin de grands galets blancs lissés par tant d'âges, et le bleu et l'émeraude et le violet et le gris, des gris qui chantent l'espace et le vent. Il a plu ; puis le soleil nous a donné un grand arc-en-ciel.

Et partout, depuis mon arrivée, je ressens combien les gens en général, et les organisateurs en particulier, font l'effort de recouvrer un équilibre aimant avec la nature et l'environnement ; partout s'exprime cette volonté de réaliser une relation harmonieuse et respectueuse : les petits panneaux indiquant les sentiers, les fûts pour recueillir les déchets, l'entretien des routes, l'abondance de fleurs, le silence ; il est évident, dans l'atmosphère, que les choses ont d'abord beaucoup empiré vers le chaos et la destruction égoïste, et qu'il y a alors eu une reprise de conscience collective. C'est une chose émouvante.

C et R sont si heureux de m'introduire à tous ces lieux privilégiés qu'ils ont découverts ensemble au cours des années, et de voir et sentir combien je les apprécie.

Je voudrais montrer tout cela – non, pas montrer, mais rendre accessible – à tous les miens : qu'au moins ils puissent, de mon cœur, se trouver ici et avoir l'expérience physique de cette vivante harmonie, de cette beauté vive et paisible.

Comment faire pour que l'Inde se ressaisisse, se défasse de cette hypnose exercée par les démons de la consommation, dont le pouvoir est d'autant plus grand que l'individu est embryonnaire ?

25-9-1999, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Ce matin longtemps C a commencé de me raconter son expérience de l'opération (elle a subi une intervention chirurgicale importante, pour retirer une tumeur cancéreuse dans le colon) et des jours qui ont suivi ; elle m'attendait pour se sentir en mesure de défricher tout cela, pour y regarder ensemble.

Plus tôt j'ai téléphoné au Matrimandir ; cela fait déjà une semaine que je suis « parti » ; Kamalam m'a répondu (Arjun était sorti vers la structure) et j'ai parlé quelques instants avec Shiva ; ces contacts téléphoniques me nouent.

Une partie de la journée à faire quelques travaux, à encaustiquer la cheminée, nettoyer un peu du jardin et, ce faisant, entrer en relation avec les formations de chacun, les zones – à propos des clôtures et des haies, du rôle du jardinier qui vient deux fois l'an, des voisins, du notaire, du chemin communal.

Cela nous a conduits à parler, à la demande de C, de toutes les dispositions nécessaires à la mort de l'un ou de l'autre. Il y a de l'humour, de la tendresse, une volonté de clarté tranquille et le sens de ce qui est vraiment utile et fructueux pour chacun.

Une autre ballade dans la région. Un long moment au soleil.

Et le soir C et moi sommes allés écouter, dans l'abbaye restaurée d'un adorable petit village juché sur une colline au-dessus de la mer, tout de pierres moussues et de lumière, un récital de guitare celtique : un homme nostalgique souffrant de sa solitude, un virtuose remarquable, qui a joué non seulement de deux guitares mais de la somptueuse harpe celtique et du tympanon. Une atmosphère doucement chaleureuse.

Et j'éprouve partout cette émotion devant, ou en présence de, la solitude de chacun : cette solitude qui provient de la croyance que seuls les autres peuvent la combler et de la douleur qu'ils ne la combleront pas, alors qu'il suffirait que chacun se tourne un peu, tourne « l'aiguille de la conscience » - la déplace un petit peu -, pour recevoir et s'ouvrir à l'expérience du divin.

L'organisme commence à s'adapter et le corps à jouir de cette légèreté - de l'absence de la pesanteur et de l'accablement causés par la chaleur permanente, de ce poids sur les énergies physiques qui, dans une certaine mesure, les trahit.

Ce matin, six des grands lys blancs sont épanouis dans le vase ; il ne reste qu'un bouton à éclore.

27-9-1999, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Il bruine ; je viens de terminer une séance d'asanas, devant la porte ouverte du balcon, dans ce grand grenier aménagé qui est bien doux comme un nid.

Aujourd'hui nous avons fait une grande randonnée, au Mont Saint Michel et à la Pointe du Groin - le vent, la marée, les pierres, le parfum des cierges, le silence des cloîtres, l'archange Michel qui vainc le dragon.

Nous sommes bien ensemble, tous les trois, comme toujours.

Je récolte un peu : des cartes, et des galets.

Avec C, ces deux derniers jours, nous sommes allés voir deux films à Dinard, deux études magistrales, remarquables de talent et de transmission ; l'un sur l'amour qui lia Georges Sand et Alfred de Musset, cet amour comme un séisme insoluble, habité d'un besoin d'honnêteté et de complétude ; et l'autre, le dernier de Kubrick avant sa mort toute récente, un portrait lucide et très respectueux de l'enjeu qui se joue dans l'humanité contemporaine des Etats-Unis.

Dans un coffre ici j'ai retrouvé l'ensemble des lettres que m'avait envoyées Nata lorsqu'il était mon intermédiaire auprès de Toi, dans ma période d' « exil ».

J'ai du mal à comprendre, à me souvenir même, de ce qui m'arrivait alors ; ou bien, comme je n'ai pas les copies de mes propres lettres auxquelles Nata répondait, je suis troublé par les contradictions qu'elles semblent refléter.

Dans mes promenades seul, ici, surtout à « ma » falaise, j'ai été rassuré : un alignement se produit, m'est donné, avec la pression de la Grâce.

29-9-1999, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Une autre randonnée sur les falaises et les grèves de Fréhel ; dans une crique, une double anfractuosité au pied du roc sculpté par la mer, déposée dans le silence des vagues comme par le grand artisan lui-même, une blancheur puissante de pierres polies et arrondie par l'action incessante dans le temps, formes pleines, une fécondation sereine : perlés, rosés, violines, pâles, habités de vert, des sphères et des oblongues et des oeufs de toutes tailles et ensemble ; et, de l'autre côté d'une ligne à peine visible, une frange de rocher ancrée, un autre groupe : à peine équarries, les roches attendent, encore brutes, la persistance toujours renouvelée de l'ouvrier imperturbable.

Ce matin, avec Madeleine, l'entretien de la maison.

Hier, deux appels téléphoniques qui m'indiquent un peu de la teneur des jours à venir : l'un de G.F qui souhaite vraiment qu'on se revoie, et m'a donné son adresse près de Fontainebleau ; et l'autre de Ch.J : Francis doit probablement subir une opération du cœur, le plus vite possible semble-t-il, mais il est catégorique dans sa décision de passer d'abord quelques temps avec moi ; ils ont donc pris rendez-vous à l'hôpital de la Pitié à Paris pour le 2 Novembre et souhaitent que je vienne les rejoindre dès le 7 ou 8 Octobre.

Je ne peux pas définir l'état de suspension dans lequel je me trouve : à la fois comme une extension ou presque une émanation – mais c'est avec le corps -, comme un membre étendu jusqu'à un certain point visé, et solidaire, là, de toutes les parties ; et comme une action de présence, pour C, et pour C et R ensemble. Je m'étais beaucoup demandé, sans y penser, comment je ressentirais l'existence physique de tous ces corps de l'amour qui peuplent ma vie à Auroville, avec la distance matérielle et la submersion dans un contexte, un climat et des circonstances si autres, si différents ; en fait, je ne sais pas encore : c'est comme un choc amorti, un blanc, une sorte d'anesthésie provisoire ; mais, curieusement, c'est Bhaskar qui est le plus aigu, et Selvam le plus dense.

2-10-1999, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Deux semaines déjà depuis mon départ.

J'ai essayé de téléphoner au Matrimandir ce matin ; j'avais oublié qu'aujourd'hui est la fête de Gandhi ; il n'y avait personne au bureau.

Dans deux jours nous allons à Paris, et j'en éprouve un peu d'appréhension ; puis je descendrai dans le Sud rejoindre Ch.J et F.J.

Les deux derniers jours se sont écoulés en randonnées ; c'est la meilleure saison pour s'ouvrir à toute la beauté d'ici : les grandes marées, le vent, la pluie et le soleil, une constante mouvance de l'air et de la lumière.

Et des heures à travailler dans le jardin, et briquer la maison ; ce lieu est réellement, grâce à la fidélité et l'amour imperturbablement orientés de C, une extension de « Sincérité », et tous les miens s'y trouveraient bien.

Hier, une rencontre avec le notaire : et tout semble se simplifier, et chacun est soulagé.

J'observe silencieusement ce qui se passe en « moi », attentivement. Il faut que tout cela aide le corps à s'aligner sur les forces nécessaires et à s'unifier autour du chemin en avant.

4-10-1999, Auroville :

La tempête dans la nuit, et dans ce grand grenier je suis comme dans un nid.

Ce matin, téléphoné au Matrimandir : Siva, Arjun, A, John H, Barbara ; ils m'assurent que tout le monde est bien ; et de l'argent est arrivé pour les Jardins.

Puis, G.M m'a appelé depuis Bangui, en Centre Afrique ; il va essayer de revenir en France avant mon retour en Inde, pour que nous ayons au moins une journée ensemble, après beaucoup d'années.

Demain nous quittons les Prévôts pour Paris ; c'est la plongée dans un monde où je ne serai qu'un visiteur passager.

Hier, un long moment seul avec C ; nous sommes allés nous attabler dans un petit café donnant sur le port de Dinard, pour parler de son expérience de l'opération, de l'anesthésie, de la convalescence et, à travers cela, du mental physique, de l'unification, du rôle du corps.

6-10-1999, Paris, Hôtel du Progrès :

Il y a des arbres devant ma fenêtre, de l'autre côté de la rue Gay-Lussac ; chambre avec balcon, douches et toilettes à l'étage ; le plancher craque et ploie sous le tapis élimé, le chauffage ne marche pas ; le monsieur propriétaire, ou gérant, m'a demandé de payer d'avance, 230 FF la nuit.

C'est après avoir sillonné en vain tout le quartier que j'ai trouvé cette caricature de l'anonymat, tout près de la rue du Val de Grâce où Tu as vécu, au fond de cette cour jardin dont l'espace paraît encore intact.

Mes rêves cette nuit ont été pénibles.

Ici, dans Paris, est peut-être la seconde partie de ce qui m'avait manqué : les êtres, la diversité des êtres, et leur nombre, qui permet les rencontres gratuites, souvent plus humaines, plus profondément et simplement et vraiment humaines que la plupart des rapports qui s'installent dans la vie ; rencontres physiques aussi.

La première partie, je l'ai trouvée au centuple, avec toute l'harmonie souhaitable : la mer, le vent, l'espace, la lumière, les rochers, l'air nourri d'embruns et de goémon, la mer, la mer, et la chaleur ample d'un nid qui ne prend pas mais se donne.

Le voyage en voiture a été très tranquille et simple. Ce n'est qu'en arrivant aux abords de Paris que j'ai ressenti la tension ambiante ; je n'ai reconnu ni les avenues ni les rues ; j'ai reconnu l'appartement de C et R, mais pas personnellement, et il y a encore plus de lumière par les grandes baies de l'atelier, car un immeuble entier a été démoli juste en face et c'est un grand courant de ciel qui domine. Et R, plutôt que d'allumer la télévision comme il le ferait normalement, a joué le disque de la Gîta.

8-10-1999, Hôtel du Progrès :

Marcher dans la ville, marcher, des heures et des heures de marche, et les pieds endoloris, et il me faut percer une à une les ampoules qui se forment, ces pieds qui sont un organe de perception pour moi, et que voilà enfermés !

J'absorbe, je reçois, j'éprouve, je vois, et je ne saurais rien dire.

Il y a dans beaucoup de regards un besoin de contact, une tendresse sans illusion : pas dans la surface du regard, qui est prévenue, ou neutre, avertie, ou parfois défensive ou prête à la riposte, mais dans le fond du regard, quelque chose qui survit à tout ce nivellement colossal, à toute cette affluence qui prétend récupérer même la misère.

Je découvre des traits et des lieux comme pour la toute première fois : vraiment je ne les ai jamais vus ; et pourtant je sais historiquement les avoir connus, dans ce corps et dans cette vie ; mais je ne reconnais pas ces lieux qui, historiquement, et même émotionnellement, m'ont été pourtant familiers.

Avec C, un très beau film, comme un appel incantatoire, très sobre : « Rosetta » ; et, avec C et R, de bons moments dans leur appartement ou bien, comme cet après-midi, à se promener ensemble, doucement. C a repris ce matin son travail, et son rythme d'ici.

Mes corps, mes cœurs me manquent ; ce n'est pas normal qu'ils ne soient pas avec moi, ici, ne partagent pas cette expérience.

9-10-1999, Hôtel du Progrès :

Téléphoné au Matrimandir ce matin ; Arjun, puis Selvam ; j'apprends que Shiva est malade, bronchite et typhoïde.

Hier a été une journée forte, que je n'ai pas encore bien assimilée ; deux êtres vrais, que je n'avais pas vus depuis plus de trente ans, mais avec qui, chacun très différemment, un contact réel et solide a toujours continué de vivre et de croître : Paul, deux heures à déjeuner, mon adorable Paul, si direct et peu encombré, dont la figure ronde et ridée est devenue presque asiatique à 83 ans d'âge ; et G.F, que son amour et sa lucidité ont gardé en vie, après et malgré tant de dérives, de vadrouilles, de déboires et de douleurs et de voyages et de rencontres. G.F, que j'ai finalement retrouvé dans ce village au large de Montereau, après m'être magistralement perdu entre les banlieues qui n'en finissent plus et les autoroutes dont je ne connais pas les numéros ; G.F qui, étrangement, par cette intuition sûre que donne l'amour qui a survécu au temps et aux épreuves, a su, entre les récits de mille anecdotes de la vie mondaine et politique ici et là, souligner sans errer les termes de ce moment de transition où je me trouve et la nécessité de publier mon livre.

Dans deux jours je descendrai seul dans le Sud retrouver F.J, Ch.J, Olivier, et ne reviendrai probablement que début Novembre à Paris ; j'ai ce besoin de rencontrer de la tendresse physique gratuite, sans inhibition ni interdits, libre de tous ces poids et toutes ces ombres qui pèsent sur la petite société d'Auroville – mais il faut que cela se présente harmonieusement et à son propre rythme.

11-10-1999, Auroville, Estuaire de la Gironde :

Ocre, grise et bleue sous un soleil feutré par une onde pommelée de nuées, une vaste étendue d'eau calme.

Le bac où j'ai rangé la voiture s'éloigne de La Blaye, avec son immense citadelle.

Des forêts de part et d'autre de l'estuaire, une île à mi-chemin.

Le repos du soleil. Je n'ai plus froid cet après-midi.

Roulé presque sans arrêt depuis 9 h ce matin ; d'abord je me suis encore perdu dans la banlieue et je n'ai trouvé la bonne sortie que vers 10 h ; de la pluie battante jusqu'à Orléans ; puis, peu à peu, le soleil, les bois ; et, depuis Saintes, les landes, les belles landes qui sentent bon.

Encore peut-être une heure de route pour retrouver Ch.J et F.J, sur le bassin d'Arcachon, tout près de l'océan.

14-12-1999, Auroville, « Sincérité » :

Pourquoi ai je renoncé à prendre des notes à mesure que l'expérience se développait ?

Je ne suis pas sûr de bien le comprendre.

Il y avait à la fois un sens de futilité, et le souhait ou le besoin d'être complètement disponible et donnée à l'ensemble de perceptions qui se manifestaient à chaque contact et chaque instant.

J'ai vécu une grâce, j'ai vécu avec la Grâce, et chacun de ceux avec qui je me suis trouvé en relation a éprouvé cette Grâce.

Pour quoi ? Vers quoi ? Je n'en sais rien.

Je me suis trouvé sur l'autre versant d'une situation essentiellement privilégiée, que les données « karmiques » ne suffisent pas à expliquer.

Là, dans l'atmosphère de cette France d'aujourd'hui, j'ai compris et éprouvé concrètement le sens même, et le fait intérieur, d'une expérience qui m'avait semblé jusque là ne pouvoir appartenir qu'à Toi : celle de cette prière, de ce mouvement de conscience que Tu décrivis au début du siècle lorsque, depuis la ville où Tu habitais physiquement, Ton cœur s'élargissait pour accueillir et soulager la multitude des êtres.

Dans son ampleur et sa puissance et sa pureté certes, cette expérience ne peut être que la Tienne. Mais j'ai vécu tangiblement, à mon petit degré et à ma place, identique toutefois dans son essence, ce mouvement de conscience et d'être qui embrasse et connaît et comprend et aime à la fois tous les êtres quels qu'ils soient. Aucun sens de supériorité ne s'y trouve : bien plutôt c'est une vérité qui participe à la fois de la fraternité, la tendresse, la responsabilité, et la divinité de tout. C'est la présence de l'UN – de l'unique Habitant.

Je peux distinguer des périodes à mon séjour, que je tenterai peut-être, maintenant que je suis de retour, de retracer.

Mais il n'y aura probablement pas d'ordre logique à cette distillation ; car l'incident ou l'anecdote n'ont que peu compté en regard des courants de perception et d'émotion qui se sont mobilisés, à des rythmes souvent surprenants.

Et en fait, l'anecdote s'est trouvée constamment sous le contrôle de la Protection, qui a tout orienté selon sa propre volonté positive.

« Je » se composait de deux niveaux ou réalités. L'une, celle de ce qui est effectivement réalisé, unifié, ce qui existe vraiment, et qui s'est révélée dans l'éloignement physique et énergétique du laboratoire d'Auroville ; et l'autre, celle de mon bagage personnel encore relativement complexe et tourmenté, bien que maintenu dans une paix active – ces besoins et ces désirs et ces aspirations clairement distincts, à la fois par leurs origines respectives et leurs activités.

Ce bagage personnel - commençons par le plus lourd et le plus lié (la morale dirait « le plus bas ») : le désir d'une sensualité et d'une sexualité contentes, d'une célébration de tendresse avec les moyens du bord, c'est-à-dire en acceptant, sans en devenir l'objet abruti, l'énergie sexuelle et en y versant un peu de fraternité.

Près de 30 années d'Auroville, d'une sécheresse qui n'est qu'exceptionnellement et partiellement convertie et n'offre dans l'ensemble qu'une résistance masquée à l'avènement d'une liberté où pourrait enfin se goûter le nectar d'une intimité physique consciente émanant de l'unité ; d'une pauvreté d'harmonie, d'une pénurie des sens, accablée par des conditions matérielles plus brutales qu'intenses ; d'une aridité toute pétrie de désapprobation morale et « spirituelle » ; près de 30 années, donc, d'un climat de négation laborieuse et d'inhibition physique et psychologique et d'une sourde et stérile violence sous la chape environnante d'une hypocrisie collective dont le système de valeurs exclut sans recours la nature même qui est mienne depuis ma petite enfance ; près de 30 années, enfin, d'une expérience sociale où les femmes sont soit gouvernées jusque dans leur chair par un modèle culturel tyrannique qui leur interdit toute indépendance et toute recherche de plénitude, soit confrontées à un idéal qui leur apparaît instinctivement si contraire à la joie et l'harmonie qu'elles croient devoir rejeter tout ce qui pourrait être interprété comme une attitude de séduction ; où il est inacceptable, sinon inconcevable, que des hommes puissent se désirer mutuellement et souhaiter vivre l'amitié avec leur corps et leur sexe ; et où, comble cumulatif et simultané de tous les torts et de tous les signes d'adversité et de danger, le fait même d'être si profondément bisexuel que je le suis représente tous les spectres réunis d'un passé évolutif dont il faut pouvoir prétendre se vouloir « sincèrement » libéré pour entrer dans les grâces d'un nouveau Jéhovah dont le glaive blanchi pourfend impitoyable toute lourdeur grossière et rejette à la fange évolutive tout ce qui n'a pas choisi, le sourire aux lèvres et la main sur le cœur, de rejoindre les rangs glorieux de ceux qui ne veulent plus rien pour eux-mêmes et ne veulent plus ensemble que le Bien ultime d'être tous le Même ; près de 30 années ainsi d'une progression trop souvent stérile parmi des données de laboratoire, des symptômes échantillonnaires, une cohue microcosmique, sinon microscopique, de jugements et de formations au service plus passif que volontaire d'une ombre dernière qui change notre aspiration en ambition et notre besoin de présence en volonté de reproduire et d'imiter ; près de 30 années finalement d'un manque qui ne semblait guère s'approcher d'une conversion effective et d'une création nouvelle, me laissaient là, aux abords d'une société plus multiple et plus anonyme, avec une envie tenace...

L'envie de donner un peu de tendresse à quelqu'un ou quelqu'une qui l'apprécierait sans réserves, pour qui ce serait peut-être un baume, dans cet univers froid et calculateur de consommation et d'échange.

Mais il y avait, sans effort ni contrainte, uni à cette envie, le souhait très simple et très clair de ne causer de peine à personne, de ne générer aucun attachement douloureux, de ne déranger aucune existence, car je ne pouvais être que de passage : je ne voulais rien prendre.

Ainsi je me serais plutôt tourné vers des prostitués, hommes ou femmes dont l'expérience de vie a déjà percé l'illusion sous-jacente à la plupart des relations humaines.

Et des prostituées j'en ai vues ! - mais j'ai été comme empêché, avec fermeté et humour, de trouver les prostitués hommes : des femmes-splendeurs, des femmes somptueuses, des créatures physiques bouleversantes ; des mécaniques de femmes tristes et défaites et usées, aussi ; mais des corps pleins de sève, des trouvailles d'harmonie, des perfections si vulnérables de beauté et de rythme, des élans de femme, des déclarations de femme, des chants de femme, des cris de femme, des offrandes de femme, des forces de femme.

Jusqu'à ce soir vers la fin de mon séjour où, la nuit tombée, j'ai traversé en voiture, seul au volant, le Bois de Boulogne obscur : il faisait à peine 2° au-dessus de 0 et là, au bord d'une allée encore éclairée de lampadaires, se détachant à peine de l'ombre massive de la forêt - croyant à peine ce dont mes yeux pourtant témoignaient, saisi par une sorte de douleur qui prie et admire et vénère et chérit à la fois - j'ai vu s'avancer au-devant des automobiles, péremptoires et fortes, prévenues et courageuses, ouvrant grand leurs manteaux de fourrure, ces prodiges de femme, le sexe nu, la taille à peine enveloppée de transparence, les seins à peine soutenus, les jambes gainées, les yeux figés dans une expression voulue, maintenue : sans frémir dans l'air glacé ces êtres, ces personnes, ces vérités vivantes, dont les corps de femme rassemblaient pour quelques années de fidélité matérielle les supports de tous les fantasmes et de tous les rêves, sculptures de chair prêtes à s'ouvrir pour survivre, selon les codes et règlements du contrat social.

Alors j'ai traversé la ville vers mon logis temporaire et j'étais, seul et inconnu d'elles, comme tout entier un hommage, tout d'affection et de respect, comme un cœur qui voulait les contenir au sein de l'éternité.

Cet acte, le geste de ces femmes, me touchait entièrement ; c'était pour moi, dans ma conscience, aussi vrai, aussi important et aussi nécessaire sinon plus que l'est peut-être l'affection directe d'une mère Térésa soulageant le corps démuné et pustulant d'un paria mourant à Calcutta.

Il n'y avait pas de différence. Le même réalisme générait le même courage, la même lucidité et la même dignité.

Oui, j'aurais aimé donner à l'une de ces femmes une nuit entière de repos et de tendresse, et déposer là mon offrande : à elle, droite dans l'encoignure d'une porte cochère rue Saint Denis, plus blonde et plus parfaite que ces actrices tant célébrées, parce que plus exactement sûre de ce degré de la perfection dont elle est l'héritière provisoire ; à elle, improbable harmonie de formidable volupté, les traits de la Chine, la stature d'une reine africaine à la bruneur rougeoyante, cet appel sans histoire, cette invite aussi ancienne que la terre...

Je ne l'ai pas fait.

D'abord, je n'avais sûrement pas la somme nécessaire ; puis peut-être que pour le faire, pour décider de le faire et se mobiliser dans l'acte, dans le premier acte déterminant, le premier geste qui enclenche, il faut être resté encore un peu plus égoïste que je ne le suis devenu ; ou bien ce serait peut-être une tromperie plus grande, et une trahison, puisque je ne partage pas en fait ce destin collectif à l'intérieur duquel ces femmes ont dû faire leur choix de vie.

Et l'un de ces soirs où je marchais des heures, c'est au bout de la rue, ayant passé toutes les portes et toutes les allées où résonnaient leurs talons aiguilles et les mares d'ombres où se mêlaient en silence les silhouettes nonchalantes des souteneurs et des veilleurs et celles, hésitantes, fuyantes, intimidées, durcies ou réduites des hommes en quête, que j'ai remis un peu d'argent, là dans les mains d'une clocharde assise, au visage carré par l'alcool et la maladie, épaissie dans ses manteaux mités, qui ne me demandait pourtant qu'une cigarette.

Chaque jour dans la ville je marchais.

Des heures je marchais.

Vite, contre le froid ; plus rythmiquement, dès que j'étais réchauffé ; dans tous les sens, d'un bout à l'autre et d'un quartier à l'autre, d'une atmosphère et d'un milieu à l'autre, comme des états distincts de la multiplicité humaine distancés par autant de frontières subtiles.

Partout, puissamment, la mainmise sur le pouvoir de l'argent, et les déterminismes générés par cette emprise.

Mais là où les foules sont les plus denses et les plus hétéroclites, là où les races sont le plus mêlées et livrées ensemble au quotidien, c'est là que survit le mieux l'humanité vraie, celle qu'aucune force exclusive ne pourra corrompre, celle qu'habite une victoire permanente, la plus simple et la plus endurente des victoires, aussi vieille que le monde et aussi neuve que le bourgeon qui éclot.

Ce qui m'a touché plus que tout, c'est, au fond des regards, derrière toutes les gardes apprises ou acquises, tous les stratagèmes de la débrouille terrestre, ce sourire et cette tendresse qui vibre instantanément, grosse d'un tel savoir qui ne se dit pas, ne se pense pas, ne se regarde pas, qui est.

La seule évidence.

C'est l'oiseau de feu qui invincible toujours renaît.

Cela que rien ne peut défaire et que tout contribue à nourrir, la finalité qui emportera tout, et l'unique issue de l'asphyxie.

C'est là que se grave la vraie histoire ; c'est par là que s'incarne l'évolution.

Celle qui compte ; pas celle de nos instruments qui se perfectionnent d'heure en heure et nous réduisent aux fins d'une insatiable possession ; mais celle d'un être direct et conscient, sans plus ni moins, sans dehors ni dedans, sans moi ni l'autre, sans bien ni mal, un noyau d'infinie douceur à travers tout, comme le chariot minuscule, inestimé, d'une souveraineté qui se prépare.

Par la part, considérable, qu'a jouée la bisexualité dans ma vie, et depuis le degré d'aliénation dans lequel elle m'a plongé, j'étais anxieux d'être mis en présence de signes tangibles d'une ouverture collective qui n'avait pu manquer de se produire, si je me fiais aux messages véhiculés par la presse et la littérature contemporaines, fruits d'un progrès de la morale et de la tolérance du groupe et d'une acceptation généralisée, en Occident du moins, de l'identité active en chacun du sexe opposé ; je me fiais à une sorte de moyenne de toutes les analyses et de tous les témoignages que j'avais lus au fil des ans : l'évolution des mentalités, le droit à la différence, et toute cette terminologie qui ne pouvait - me semblait-il depuis mon isolement dans une société qui méprise, ignore, rejette ou condamne ces données comme autant de perversions d'un obstacle qu'il faut de toutes manières et en bloc éliminer, la sexualité tout entière sommée de disparaître, par la négation, l'arraché, la déperdition ou l'usure -, qui ne pouvait donc, me semblait-il dans mon propre manque d'une liberté partagée d'expression, que refléter dans ce domaine au moins les avantages d'une société multi raciale et multi culturelle brassée sans alternative et dans toute sa diversité par les forces et les membres d'une entreprise dominée par le matérialisme : une société qui se devait de reconnaître les droits de chacun de ses membres pour mieux les absorber dans son mouvement de conquête et sa poursuite invétérée d'une plénitude instrumentale.

Et j'avais bien sûr, pour substantifier cette croyance et lui donner une réalité émotionnelle, mes propres souvenirs d'une adolescence peu soucieuse de la morale et de rencontres qui m'apparaissaient toujours plus libres et gratuites avec le recul du temps ; la nostalgie et l'espoir se rejoignant avec, pour les porter ensemble, tout le travail d'élagage et de défrichage que j'avais subi.

Bien sûr, je savais aussi que le cataclysme du sida, émotionnel et physique, avait inévitablement produit une quantité d'effets, réactionnaires pour une grande part, que je n'aurais pu, à distance, mesurer.

Ce qui s'est passé en fait, c'est que je me suis trouvé là comme une sorte de martien.

Tous les sentiers étaient minés, chargés d'un historique réducteur que je ne pouvais que deviner, tissés de codes et de modes d'identification vibratoires envers lesquels j'étais perçu, sinon comme suspect, du moins comme étranger.

Ce sont des clans, des ghettos, des codes de conduite ou de comportement, des gestuelles élaborées, des acquis culturels que j'ai trouvés - pas des êtres dont l'identité se serait libérée en avant et harmonieusement, mais les membres d'un groupement de plus.

Oui, dans la foule au hasard des pas et des regards, ou dans les lieux les plus anodins, une densité disponible et offerte, l'immédiateté d'une amitié, à la fois nue et exigeante, une nouvelle sorte d'intégrité qui s'accepte et se construit ; des instants, ici et là, de rencontre qui sourit vraiment et sans réserve, qui se donne dans un silence plein de tous les gestes et de la somme réelle de cela qui pourrait être.

20-12-1999, Auroville, Matrimandir :

Avec le passage des jours et des nuits dans la trame renouvelée de ce quotidien absorbant dont ce voyage m'avait extrait, la netteté et la précision de l'expérience s'estompe et son acquis se rassemble et se convertit en une capacité, que mesurent l'instant et la moindre circonstance, d'être simplement un peu, un tout petit peu plus conscient.

Je serais ainsi tenté de renoncer à formuler d'aucune manière instrumentale ce que j'ai perçu alors et éprouvé ; mais il me semble avoir rencontré objectivement, avoir été mis en présence d'un fait réel, important, dont j'aimerais pouvoir ne serait-ce que très partiellement témoigner.

Les pressions qui jouent sur la Terre sont trop immenses et trop formidables pour une humanité seulement mentalisée.

Cette humanité-là n'est plus viable. Elle est invivable, infernale. Condamnée à l'explosion, au chaos, à la destruction, ou à la possession totalitaire, exclusive et réductrice.

Il vaudrait mieux, si la joie de la création doit subsister, qu'elle soit réabsorbée par le règne animal, dont l'harmonie est plus certaine.

Miser sur l'émergence immédiate d'une humanité spiritualisée semble relever, en regard de l'urgence terrestre, d'une gageure infantile ou du luxe précaire de conversations de salon.

Car, dans l'ensemble, que savons-nous de la vie spirituelle ?

Nous la confondons le plus souvent avec des principes de morale ou d'éthique, ou nous la situons dans l'espace ambigu, indéterminé qui succède à une cessation de la pensée ; ou bien encore nous l'assimilons à quelque pratique thérapeutique exotique ou quelque maniement obscur de phénomènes occultes.

Mais en vérité ne savent quoi que ce soit de la vie spirituelle que ceux qui sont réellement nés à l'esprit, concrètement et irréversiblement ; rares sont-ils, et plus rares encore sont, parmi eux, ceux qui se trouvent associés à une œuvre d'expression qui les démarque visiblement du reste de l'humanité.

C'est autre chose qui commence à être, qui existe déjà.

Autre chose, qu'aucun « mouvement » ne pourra enfermer, qui se déjoue de toutes les appellations, qui ne se plie à aucun éventail de vertus – qu'elles soient chrétiennes, bouddhistes, athéistes ou communistes ou humanitaires ; autre chose, libre de l'autorité de la corruption, du sentiment comme de la loi, des idéaux et des intérêts, des drapeaux et des dogmes.

Autre chose, qui porte sa propre émotion et son propre discernement, son propre regard et sa propre loi de reconnaissance, son propre rythme et sa propre respiration.

Il y a plusieurs millénaires les Rishis des temps Védiques invoquaient déjà, de la flamme de leur prière orientée, cet être profond dont ils définissaient l'existence par trois mots : Satyam, Ritam, Brihàt – le Vrai, le Droit, le Vaste.

Cette conscience, qu'abrite secrètement notre humanité, grandit invisible, imperçue mais invincible, car en elle sont unis notre origine et notre but et le sens même de notre trajectoire.

Quand j'ai quitté l'Inde cette fois-ci et que l'avion survolait et franchissait cette distance géographique qui m'avait si longtemps séparé de l'Europe, je regardais par le hublot ces étendues de la Terre – l'avion se dirigeait dans le même sens que le soleil, un soleil levant qui dura ainsi des milliers de kilomètres depuis les monts ocre et chargés de silence du Moyen Orient à travers ceux du Caucase, roux et bronzes verdés semés de lacs solitaires, jusqu'aux chaînes vigoureuses des Alpes, la Terre était encore couverte de mystère, de ce mystère qui évoque dans le cœur et le corps une vénération.

Puis les versants des montagnes, les vallées, les coteaux des collines et les plaines s'organisaient de plus en plus en une mosaïque de parcelles où aucun espace ne demeurait vierge.

21-12-1999, Auroville :

Aujourd'hui, après une pluie matinale, il a bruiné pendant des heures, l'une de ces bruines de fin de mousson qui rappellent justement ces climats tempérés de l'Europe – mais l'air est généralement si humide ici, si constamment humide, que le corps a froid alors qu'il fait encore plus de 20° - et le souvenir de ces froids secs des jours d'automne, où les mêmes vêtements pourtant me suffisaient alors qu'il ne faisait que 7 ou 8°, devient comme un songe.

La conséquence la plus remarquable de cette altérité climatique est une considérable différence de préhension de l'énergie physique ; et il me semble que la proportion entre l'eau du corps et l'eau de l'air est très déterminante de la qualité de cette énergie : ici, il faut à tout instant tirer ou pousser pour obtenir un flot à peu près égal de l'énergie physique, et se hisser au-delà d'une tendance à l'inertie, tout en se gardant de toute perte de mesure, de toute amplification et de tout extrême ; alors que dans ces contrées plus clémentes de l'Europe et de l'Occident, l'énergie est immédiate, immédiatement disponible.

Quand l'avion avait commencé sa descente et que les champs, les routes, les rivières, les ponts, les bourgs et les petites villes devenaient plus distincts, le corps sentait déjà que la fraîcheur climatisée de la cabine cessait d'être le contraste habituel – que cette fraîcheur était aussi une préparation au froid.

Alors que se précisaient sur les rubans des routes les véhicules bien propres et que l'agencement des lieux exhalait sa propre logique, c'est un autre froid qui émanait : le froid d'un ordre exclusif, d'un ordre qui anéantit le désordre ou le juggle si bien qu'il s'enfouit, se cache ou se retourne.

La netteté, la propreté et l'ordre.

Et le froid.

Je ne me souviens pas de l'aéroport de Londres ; je m'étais attendu à un nuage de pollution : il n'y en avait pas. Presque pas de bruit non plus : les machines, les transports, les gens, tous les sons étaient feutrés, contenus, ordonnés aussi.

Des matériaux et des espaces harmonieux, d'une luminosité entretenue, étudiée, de confort pour tous : une élégance mesurée.

Au passage des Douanes, une officière m'a demandé d'ouvrir mon sac et mon premier dialogue s'est engagé – courtois, amical et franc, avec un brin d'humour : la décision d'ouvrir mon sac n'était pas due à mon apparence ; il s'agissait d'un exercice surprise comme son équipe avait l'ordre d'en faire de temps à autre à l'arrivée de certains vols, et le mien venait de Colombo (=terrorisme). Questions et réponses changèrent de caractère et une autre sorte d'intérêt ne tarda pas à se manifester à mesure qu'elle s'apercevait de la différence : que je venais d'une tout autre expérience. Un premier échange, sans profondeur particulière, mais simple et droit.

Puis, voilà : j'étais « libre », j'avais « atterri ».

Et depuis cet instant jusqu'à mon retour ici on ne m'a plus une fois posé de questions, plus une fois demandé mes papiers - ni à l'arrivée en France, ni à l'hôtel, ni dans la rue, ni sur les routes.

Et j'étais largué dans le froid.

Comme j'ai eu froid ces premières heures, ces premiers jours ; froid de corps et froid de cœur : la solitude de chacun, cette courtoisie qui rend la vie supportable, qui civilise l'absence.

22-12-1999, Auroville :

Comme ces premières images sont frappantes. Des individus, comme exactement dessinés, reliés par une politesse délibérée, serviables, dont la fraternité est précisément mesurée, et si profondément seuls.

Des solitudes reliées par un contrat d'humanité qu'il faut bien rendre au moins tolérable, comme si chacun portait sa niche sur son dos – distincte et poliment démarquée, essentielle dans un monde sans merci.

Et partout, comme en bloc, l'absence : une absence incompréhensible, comme une erreur énorme devenue réalité.

Ces petites gares impeccables, ces rangées de maisonnettes propres, ces autobus luxueux presque silencieux et aux trois quarts vides, la gentillesse exacte comme une monnaie bien comptée des hôtesses et des chauffeurs et des gardiens et des guichetiers, et l'instrumentation de la vie qui, comme en un jeu de miroirs, se répète identique à chaque reflet ajouté, et cet objet qu'on investit maintenant d'une proximité recouverte, le téléphone portable : la bouée de secours dans la marée de l'anonymat dévorant qui dicte à tous et chacun les lois, les règles et les valeurs d'un quotidien rongé par l'absence.

L'absence, comme un couvercle tiré, un ciel trop bas, plombé.

J'étais comme abasourdi, effaré par le pouvoir de l'argent, son absoluté ; parachuté là brutalement, je ne pouvais m'empêcher de comparer ce qu'on appelle délicatement « le coût de la vie », là d'où je venais, comme de l'autre côté de l'air dans ce grand chaos irrésistible et chaud de vie, de mort, de pourriture et de naissance où mes corps triment et sourient et dorment et endurent et débordent et dansent et s'appellent et se trouvent et se trompent et se mêlent et s'abîment et recommencent. J'étais là, pas en très bon état, une sorte d'anomalie déposée sur l'asphalte lissée, comme un faisceau d'aiguilles en quête fragile, paralysée, d'une réponse magnétique quelque part dans ce tissu bien ordonné.

Et d'abord c'est ce qui dépassait des rangs que je remarquais : les voix trop fortes, juste un peu abandonnées, juste un peu récalcitrantes d'adolescents marchant sur la route, leurs gros tennis de règlement scandant le rythme inaudible de leur walkman vissé sous la casquette, ou bien cet idiot paraplégique qu'accompagnait vertueusement un monsieur bien mis le long du quai désert, cet idiot dont les quelques gestes saccadés et la salive dégoulinante semblait dénoncer toute la somme des non-dits, de l'inavoué, de cette entière société en vitrine.

C'est plus tard que j'ai commencé de respirer, comme à une profondeur tue dans les regards, ou un peu en amont du courant qui anime les gestes habituels, comme un besoin... une luminosité potentielle encore neutre, parsemée, imprévisible, étrangère à toutes nos logiques, qui se met, ici et là, à vibrer ; rien de spectaculaire, rien qui s'impose, rien qui veuille, quelque chose d'essentiellement libre, libre de tout caractère comme de toute forme et pourtant purement besoin.

Un besoin qui donne et se donne, qui est don autant qu'il est appel, qui est conscience.

J'ai commencé de le percevoir non seulement dans les yeux et les gestes, mais dans la vie même...

24-12-1999, Auroville :

Je suis repris par les vagues de confusion et de contradiction qui ne cessent de se mouvoir ici... et ce retour sur soi de l'ego qui altère les réponses et les réduit à des « réactions »... Avec une touche de romantisme et un brin d'idéalisme on parvient encore habituellement à couvrir la crudité de ce retour égoïste – nous serions les victimes héroïques d'un étouffement par le vieux monde... !

... Cet ego... est tel à ces pieuvres qui secrètent une encre obscurcissant tout le milieu environnant dès l'approche d'une présence...

Le fait demeure pourtant que la transition est une expérience pénible, et que cela ne peut être autrement ; c'est plus qu'une mue, et plus complexe et plus inconnu qu'une métamorphose, car toute métamorphose est guidée, orientée et déterminée par un modèle déjà inscrit.

Dans cette transition nous n'avons pas de modèle : les modèles, si tant est que la biologie continue d'opérer selon les mêmes grands principes, n'émergeront que beaucoup plus tard, car ils ne peuvent être issus qu'au travers des premières réalisations accomplies.

Nous n'avons pour nous guider qu'un sens embryonnaire, qui devient conscient goutte à goutte, un sens qui n'a pas de nom et n'appartient ni à la vie, ni à la pensée, ni au corps, et cependant s'y exprime, un sens par lequel nous savons que nous sommes au bout du fonctionnement mental et au bout de la viabilité de l'ego, et même de la fiabilité de nos instincts de créature.

28-12-1999, Auroville :

Je me sens comme suspendu par un fil, direct mais bien ténu, de confiance et de prière et de réponse, dans un milieu informe où domine le sens de l'inutilité ; mes efforts pour retracer ce séjour, cette « parenthèse », sont ainsi frappés de vanité...

Pourtant s'exerce de plus en plus cette question : comment soulever, embrasser tous les êtres dans le progrès de conscience nécessaire ?

Une destruction au moins partielle sera-t-elle indispensable ? Qu'en sera-t-il de ces millions, de ces milliards qui s'accrochent à la vie physique parce qu'ils ne sont conscients d'aucune autre réalité d'existence ?

La substance est une : comment quiconque, si évolué soit-il, pourrait ignorer ne serait-ce qu'un moment le désarroi, la souffrance ou le besoin brut de tant et tant de corps et de formes individuels ?

N'en resterait-il qu'un, comment pourrait-on l'abstraire ?

Comment trouver et canaliser cet Acte vraiment suprême qui puisse porter dans toute la substance assez d'harmonie et de sens pour que chaque être puisse en éprouver le soutien et l'énergie bienfaisante ?

Tant qu'un seul être crie encore de la solitude et de l'absence, c'est soi-même qui ne s'est pas encore réalisé !

Tant qu'un seul être éprouve le viol d'une souffrance incomprise, c'est soi-même qui demeure obstrué, empêché de s'ouvrir à l'avenir, dans la paix solide et unifiée qui seule peut l'accueillir.

Il semble que nous soyons prisonniers d'un cercle vicieux : le temps matériel nous est compté, car la Terre ne peut plus longtemps supporter les ravages de notre ignorance égoïste, dont la multiplication s'accélère ; ceux qui sont, centralement et jusque dans le corps, les plus conscients du besoin comme de la force et la vérité d'un Etat autre et d'une manifestation nouvelle, sont aussi automatiquement les plus conscients de l'unité de la substance ; ils ne peuvent faire la pas décisif, et franchir physiquement le seuil évolutif sans le soutien d'une résonance suffisante dans la substance humaine générale à cet instant ; or, pour que cette résonance se produise, il faut qu'un certain soulèvement de l'humanité dans son ensemble se soit déjà effectué ; pourtant il ne semble pas que ce soulèvement collectif puisse s'accomplir bientôt sans que la Force consciente du prochain Etat n'intervienne librement dans le jeu des forces connues ; mais cette Force, comment pourrait-Elle entrer dans notre conscience collective, comment le voile qui nous en sépare peut-il être déchiré pour tous sans que, par le pas décisif de quelques-uns, soit ouverte la brèche évolutive ? Tel semble être le tour du cercle !

Ou bien la seule solution se trouve-t-elle dans un certain nombre critique d'individualités qui, simultanément, parviennent à ce point de rupture et de franchissement à la fois, comme la culmination d'un certain nombre de cris incarnés en un certain nombre de points à la fois, pour que se verse d'un coup, d'en-dehors du temps dans le temps de tous les corps à la fois le grand flot cohérent qui sera la base consciente de la marche à venir ?

Que par l'acte, conjugué sans le chercher, d'un certain nombre simultanément d'appels et d'abandons entiers, sans plus aucunes réserves ni craintes, sans plus aucuns calculs, la réponse puisse envahir tout le champ de l'humanité ?

Y éveiller dans tous les corps une perception nouvelle, dont l'objet serait aussi concret que l'air, aussi fondamental que la vie cellulaire, aussi évident que le sens même d'exister ?

Une perception qui permettrait à chaque être de trouver le geste à faire, la pensée à accueillir, l'émotion à célébrer, qui nourrirait d'un sens nouveau et plein l'opération de chaque instant de la vie, de chaque pulsion de matière ?

C'est comme un reflet ou un balbutiement de cela que j'ai perçu au cours de ces semaines passées dans le large des foules et l'étendue multiple des villes et l'atmosphère même de tout un pays, et il y avait à cette présence, à laquelle aucune source ne pouvait être attribuée, comme des caractéristiques constantes.

Un peu comme, à la rencontre d'un peuple ou d'une race, se dégagent des traits qui ensemble composent son unicité.

Et le plus évident de ces traits se résumait pour moi dans le mot « gentillesse ». Mais une gentillesse positive comme une énergie, un regard permanent et plein, lucide, libre de toute illusion comme de tout calcul, affranchie de toute sentimentalité mais d'autant plus profonde et sûre, discernante comme un œil voyant que rien ne peut tromper mais au-delà de tout jugement, à la fois impersonnelle et directement intime, proche sans errer.

Infiniment prudente aussi, c'est-à-dire que l'on ne peut ni capturer, ni récupérer, ni utiliser.

Procédant en même temps d'une acceptation totale de notre condition et d'un refus total, sans aucun appel ni compromis possibles, de tout ce qui voudrait la prolonger ou en justifier la persistance pour des fins intéressées.

Il s'y trouvait de l'humour aussi.

Comme la légèreté d'un sourire qui est revenu de toutes les négations, les plus brutales soient-elles, de tous les abîmes, les plus définitifs aient-ils semblé à l'expérience, de toutes les trahisons et, oui, de toutes les morts.

Il m'a paru aussi que cette présence, cette manifestation ne pouvait affleurer, se révéler et se produire qu'à la faveur d'un certain brassage et d'un certain ferment – justement, une sorte de soulèvement collectif suffisamment intégral ou incluant suffisamment de données et d'éléments terrestres.

Et alors il y avait là comme une ironie car, de tous les pays de la Terre, la France n'est certainement pas le plus spirituellement éveillé ; et pourtant ce n'est pas dans l'Inde où la dimension spirituelle est la plus tangible que s'embrase cette sève silencieuse comme une poignante aurore. C'est en France !

Peut-être dans d'autres espaces de l'Europe, je n'en sais rien ; peut-être aux Etats-Unis, je ne puis le dire. Mais il y a en France un concours de facteurs déterminants qui rend son terrain propice, une association que l'on pourrait croire circonstancielle au sens historique ou sociologique, mais qui, je crois, est aussi l'expression d'un destin et d'un rôle particulier dans l'évolution.

Et d'abord le phénomène d'un désarroi de plus en plus pressant parce que de plus en plus partagé, répandu, immédiat : c'est la faillite des institutions mentales et des principes d'action érigés en morale universelle, en face de la marée de ces contradictions humaines qu'ils ne peuvent ni contrôler, ni endiguer, ni même apaiser. Encore moins résoudre.

C'est le sentiment croissant, de plus en plus évident, qu'aucun système ne pourra créer pour nous les conditions du bonheur ; ni ici ni ailleurs.

C'est la mise en présence les unes des autres, dans un même contexte de débrouille relativement contenue ou surveillée, de beaucoup de races, de cultures et de fréquences mentales et émotionnelles ; et de beaucoup d'histoires, de réservoirs d'expérience collective.

Et c'est l'omniprésence, dans le plus anodin comme dans le plus sophistiqué des détails, d'une influence froidement délibérée dont l'intention est d' enrôler les individus comme les masses au service d'une uniformité de conduite et de réponse.

C'est l'emprise de plus en plus perfectionnée du pouvoir de l'argent, de l' « avoir ».

La lumière est cette somptueuse clarté de notre hiver : l'air est doux, le ciel est lavé par les pluies récentes, le soleil rayonne obliquement, sans violence, et chaque couleur est sertie exactement dans l'espace d'une paisible luminescence.

Et en France ce sont des tempêtes d'une brutalité formidable : des dizaines de milliers d'arbres ont été abattus près de Paris et à Versailles ; un vaisseau pétrolier s'est naufragé dans l'Atlantique il y a plusieurs jours et des tonnes et des tonnes d'huile noire et visqueuse affluent sans cesse vers les rochers de la côte bretonne, asphyxiant les poissons et collant au plumage des mouettes et des cormorans ; des milliers de volontaires sont sur les grèves et les plages et les rocs pour nettoyer à mesure que chaque vague dépose un peu plus de cette glu noire et puante, et il fait froid et les pêcheurs sont désespérés. Et le capitaine du navire brisé est un Indien d'Ajmer ! Il est en liberté surveillée ; il naviguait au compte d'une multinationale basée en France.

C'est curieux : tous les jours sauf un, je crois, que j'ai passés dans Paris en marches et vadrouilles, j'ai eu la grâce de la lumière la plus belle, la plus limpide dont on puisse rêver ; c'est précisément ainsi qu'il faut rencontrer cette ville et sa magie, dans l'air sec et mordant de l'automne, quand les ors et les rouges des arbres se mettent à danser contre le vert bronze des conifères et que se dégagent un peu déjà, vers une nudité qui appellera bientôt le manteau blanc de la neige, les membres bruns et noirs de leurs branches.

Et le spectacle qui m'avait de suite ému, déjà à Weymouth sur le rivage anglais de la Manche, mais de plus en plus à chaque promenade et à chaque déplacement, comme la surprise reconnaissante pour un baume actif auquel on avait cru devoir renoncer, fut celui de tous ces signes concrets d'un effort, d'une volonté réfléchie, engagée, concertée, ordonnée de rétablir une relation harmonieuse avec l'environnement : ces mille détails ordinaires qui sont à nouveau dédiés, les petites marques blanches sur les sentiers de randonnée, les pousses de bruyère avec tant de soin protégées, ces rond points composés, entretenus, chacun une offrande, un chant de fleurs et de pierres et de plantes, l'attention à la propreté, les ramassages des feuilles, les rondins encastrés dans la falaise pour y définir une volée de marches tapissées de mousse entre les mûriers et les ajoncs en cascade, les poubelles municipales déposées chacune à sa place, le nettoyage quotidien des rues, des routes et des plages, le souci général d'éviter le bruit, le désordre et la négligence – comme si toute une société, presque une civilisation entière, s'était soudain récemment ressaisie au bord d'un gouffre, réveillée juste avant qu'un piège obscur se referme, et s'était tacitement mise à l'œuvre d'une réparation persévérante et tranquille, plus humble de l'épreuve.

Et j'ai rencontré cette expression dans les villes autant que dans les hameaux et les campagnes et les landes et les bois – côtoyant pourtant tous les symptômes de la victoire de l'adversaire, du voleur de sens, ce rapace insatiable, le monstre que nous avons épousé : ces vaches aux pis démesurément gonflées, aux oreilles affublées de cartes plastiques orange, ces champs et ces champs sans fin soumis à la monoculture, la multiplication quotidienne de ces maisons secondaires préfabriquées envahissant les campagnes, inscrivant partout l'absurdité d'un mode de vie où les solitudes s'additionnent indéfiniment, chacun de plus en plus aliéné de toute possibilité de rencontre, lié par nécessité à sa voiture, son jardin, sa télévision, son ordinateur, sa tondeuse, sa carte bancaire et sa cotisation à la caisse de retraite et sa concession au cimetière et ses médicaments et sa portion de vice acceptable.

Alors, ici, dans l'Inde, que se passe-t-il ?

Ici où chaque instant semble générer plus d'immondices, de crasse et de déchets ?

30-12-1999, Auroville :

Il faut que bientôt – peut-être ici dans ce journal – je m'adresse, dans la présence, sans artifice ni embellissement, ni prétention, mais non plus sans dégoût ni désapprobation, à la question de la sexualité.

J'ai ramené de France un ouvrage intelligent, attentif, rigoureux, respectueux, humain au sens intègre et généreux du terme, écrit par Edmund White, sur Jean Genet.

Jean Genet qui a joué un rôle si puissant dans ma petite enfance, dont j'ai pu retracer l'empreinte ici même, des années après qu'il soit mort, vieillard usé dans une chambre d'hôtel.

Son rôle, involontaire, auprès de moi enfant fut-il une malédiction, ou simplement l'instrument d'une reconstitution dans cette vie des éléments d'un problème qu'il m'échoit de porter en avant jusqu'à sa véritable résolution, sa révélation consciente ?

Mais les deux, malédiction et instrumentation, ne sont pas incompatibles dans la perspective du travail à faire : l'obstacle à vaincre, la transformation à accomplir, oui, mais plus encore et surtout et finalement, le dénouement – dé nouer, libérer, délivrer dans le vrai, le Réel, dans le souffle de ce qui est vraiment, et Tout Réconciliant.

Jean Genet, je ne l'ai revu qu'une fois je crois, par hasard, dans un ascenseur de l'hôtel Lutétia, alors qu'adolescent j'y venais rencontrer clandestinement F.J, mon père, qui était encore recherché par le Gouvernement.

Mais les images de sa présence – ces quelques secondes dans l'ascenseur quand j'avais peut-être 12 ou 13 ans, et ces heures et ces plages d'atmosphère, ces modulations de l'énergie, cette sorte d'exigence qui émanait de lui, lorsqu'il venait dans le petit appartement où nous habitions rue Henri Monnier, une rue qui monte en pente raide jusqu'à Pigalle, et que je n'avais alors que 4 ou 5 ans, sont toujours restées avec moi ; tout comme j'ai gardé à travers toutes les déambulations de cette vie le grand livre de dessins de Steinberg que j'adorais regarder, livre qu'il m'avait soigneusement dédicacé avec toute sa tendresse.

Et ce n'est que maintenant, lisant l'étude d'Edmund White, que j'apprends que vers la fin de sa vie il est passé dans l'Inde, et qu'il en a été profondément touché : que, simplement, il a su y reconnaître la dimension spirituelle, qu'il en a été conscient.

Je suis reconnaissant de cela, pour lui, et en soi. Je n'aurais pu l'espérer.

Mais c'était évidemment indispensable qu'il y puise à son tour, dans le corps, car sans cela il n'aurait eu pour comprendre sa vie et son parcours que le regard, combien insuffisant, de tous ceux qu'il avait côtoyés.

De sa présence, ce n'était pas une charge sexuelle qui émanait vers moi, ni même une charge émotionnelle ; c'étaient plutôt comme des fondements, ceux de toute une position relationnelle.

Alors qu'à la même époque et dans le même appartement, c'était d'un autre ami – ami de F.J et de C mais aussi mon ami, si petit je fusse, car il y avait toujours le sens d'une unité que nous formions lorsque nous étions ensemble, et l'appartement était si petit aussi, tout s'y déroulait en ma présence et l'incluant -, un Algérien, Salah, c'était de lui que je recevais, me tournant vers lui et lui m'accueillant, seul avec moi, la charge sexuelle et émotionnelle, le goût sensuel et l'expérience animée, sinon animale. Sans drame, tout simplement, sans même le sens d'un conflit moral, des gestes d'une intimité qui pour moi reste toujours associée et liée à l'amitié : il s'asseyait tranquillement sur une chaise et me laissait m'approcher debout devant lui, entre ses jambes, et ouvrir sa braguette et le regarder là, cette richesse soyeuse et vivante, pleine de force secrète ; peut-être je le touchais, mais ce n'était pas un acte sexuel au sens où cela ne l'excitait pas ; il ne faisait pas abus de mon innocence ou de ma curiosité pour son propre plaisir, c'était plus doux, plus profond et plus déterminant.

Ce qui liait C et F.J, mes deux parents, à leurs amis algériens, que ce fut en Algérie même ou en France, était justement et simplement cela : l'amitié ; et la richesse de l'émotion, cette sorte de complétude qu'ils avaient chacun et ensemble éprouvées lors de leurs séjours en Algérie – une rencontre d'où s'était progressivement tissée une solidarité librement choisie. L'engagement pour la cause de l'Indépendance Algérienne ne fut, je crois, qu'une conséquence naturelle et une expression de cette complétude première.

C était très belle, d'une beauté centrée, comme la densité de la mer, qui ne s'exhibait pas et n'avait nul besoin de se proclamer : une féminité qui s'accomplissait sans réserves ni excès.

Et Salah, comme nos autres amis algériens, l'admirait et la célébrait, avec la même discrétion, la même sensualité contenue, et le respect de l'amitié : s'ils lui offraient des fleurs, un présent, ce n'était pas par devers F.J, mais en hommage transparent. Il y avait dans notre atmosphère, par tous ces liens divers et fluides, dans les 6 premières années de ma vie quand nous habitions à Pigalle, la présence tangible d'une sensualité qui était à la fois intelligente, considérée et tranquille comme l'est un milieu dans lequel chacun se meut.

Plus tard, C et moi, son père et ma fidèle compagne bretonne, qui m'était entièrement dévouée depuis ma première année où elle s'était attachée à nous, habitâmes pendant plus de 4 ans dans un pavillon délabré, situé dans un parc à demi abandonné à l'orée du bois de Clamart. Ce pavillon et quelques autres pavillons voisins abritaient plusieurs familles pauvres.

Notre richesse était celle de nos amis, des liens que C et F.J avaient formés parmi les intellectuels, les artistes, les engagés ; F.J était devenu l'absent renommé, le combattant clandestin, le chef de réseau, l'intellectuel d'action.

Mes amis les plus proches, dont l'existence avait un sens affectif privé et intime, étaient deux. Elle, c'était Laurence, dont le père était Indochinois à la beauté austère, et la mère Belge, je crois, une rousse flamboyante ; Laurence avait les traits asiatiques et la chevelure d'ébène de son père, tandis que sa sœur ressemblait à sa mère. Lui, c'était Jean-Guy, dont l'un des parents était Arabe – je ne me souviens plus duquel car, pour quelque raison, je n'allais que rarement chez eux.

Ils étaient tous deux plus âgés que moi ; ainsi ils n'étaient pas mes compagnons d'école. A l'école je ne rencontrais rien qu'une routine apparemment inévitable, à l'exception d'une maîtresse que j'adorais comme on adore une déesse – les effluves du drame de sa vie comme d'un mythe, sa silhouette ceinte d'un manteau de léopard s'avancant vers l'automobile où l'attendait un homme, son automobile et son homme et son mystère.

Ils étaient mes compagnons de vie : des heures libres, des bois, des cabanes et des escapades et des déguisements, des émotions soudain débusquées.

Dans la frange encore multidimensionnelle du monde adulte, ils étaient près de moi un peu plus définis que je ne l'étais encore. Les jeux d'enfant ne m'attiraient pas.

Les adultes, les amis de C et F.J, les femmes du réseau plus ou moins toutes éprises de lui, trouvaient en moi une écoute inattendue et me traitaient avec une sorte de déférence affectueuse mais intimidée qui leur permettait, quand le besoin s'en faisait sentir, de me faire aussi leurs confidences.

J'aimais les voitures, j'aimais conduire, et je n'avais pas 10 ans que C me laissait déjà m'installer au volant de sa vieille 2 CV Citroën et la déplacer dans les allées du parc.

Des jeux de poupées que jouaient les filles, je retenais l'attrait du déguisement et m'identifiais facilement à ce mouvement d'émulation féminine où l'on se revêt des attraits que l'on ne mérite pas encore ; je faisais là l'apprentissage de ma propre féminité, et pourtant la relation intérieure entre Laurence et moi était d'un autre ordre : elle aurait pu devenir ma compagne, et l'aurait sûrement souhaité, si les circonstances l'avaient favorisé. Elle était seulement, dans ces moments de frénésie ramassée, inarticulée, qu prélude à l'éveil d'une sexualité individuelle, une complice avec sa sœur d'un émoi partagé, incertain, à peine déterminé.

Jean-Guy recevait de moi les premières expressions retenues d'une émotion qui ne me quittera plus, quelles que soient ses formes et ses incidences successives : l'émotion envers sa beauté, sa vulnérabilité fière et masculine, le sens d'un corps tout entier, dans sa solitude, animé, parcouru, nourri d'une sexualité latente qui est elle-même émotion, une émotion incarnée, devenue physique, matérielle, devenue visage et nom et caractère uniques, le détail bouleversant d'un geste, d'un seul geste, le pli d'un vêtement sur le corps, la courbe tendre du cou, le bord d'une lèvre, une présence comme une onde faite forme précise, condensée.

Laurence était l'énigme tranquille, aux étendues recélées, le noir éclatant de sa chevelure sur la pâleur cendrée de son visage comme une immensité en un point, le regard plus secret qui coulait de ses yeux d'amandes ; alors que sa sœur était son ombre, son contraire, une excitation pénible, le ferment de la fille qui provoque et trahit.

Le dernier jour de l'année et, selon les opinions, le dernier jour du siècle, du millénaire, et d'une ère dominée par la chrétienté.

Nous préparons les lieux pour le grand feu de l'aube.

Les journaux rivalisent de rétrospectives et d'historiques signifiants. Ni à l'Est, ni à l'Ouest ne mentionnent-ils Sri Aurobindo, et c'est probablement juste : puisque nos sommets de conscience collective ne sont encore que moraux, c'est-à-dire inévitablement et irrémédiablement fragmentés, minés du dedans, impuissants et cosmétiques, si le nom de Sri Aurobindo y était brandi, il faudrait presque s'en inquiéter !

C'est la justice naturelle de l'évolution dans la pensée et le mental qui Le préserve invisible de tout amalgame et de tout absurde nivellement.

Car Sri Aurobindo ne peut fournir ni drapeaux ni caution spirituelle au perfectionnement d'une humanité qui ne s'est pas encore trouvée – qui commence à peine, en fait, à chercher sa vivante divinité.

Pourtant, combien l'Inde souffre de L'ignorer, dans quelle imbécillité corrompue s'est elle plongée de ne L'avoir encore reconnu, de Lui avoir préféré Gandhi, de Lui préférer ses gnomes d'aujourd'hui sur le modèle d'Advani.

C'est bien sûr avec ambivalence que je poursuis cet exercice de formulation ; il y a tant de tâches qui demandent service et attention, tâches autrement plus « importantes » selon un certain code de valeurs, que mes réminiscences et considérations personnelles à propos de la sexualité.

Au tribunal des hommes, inscrit et logé d'office dans chaque cerveau, les rôles sont pour toujours distribués et toutes les voix sont entendues et enregistrées. Malheur à celui qui les croirait toutes également, car elles s'annulent mutuellement, et ne reste que le néant.

La seule voix qui sauve n'est pas une voix que l'on peut entendre, à laquelle on peut obéir : c'est celle qu'il faut devenir.

Tout comme on ne peut guère honnêtement entreprendre de ranger le monde sans avoir d'abord rangé sa propre chambre, on ne peut guère tenter de s'offrir comme canal ou instrument sans s'être d'abord assuré de la nature des hôtes que l'on héberge.

C'est justement contre cela que Sri Aurobindo, dans les termes les plus catégoriques, mettait en garde ses premiers disciples – particulièrement durant la période la plus cruciale de Son travail, dans les années 30 et 40, quand la Conscience Force descendait jusque dans les soubassements du vital et jusqu'au subconscient, vers le physique : l'obstruction était alors déchaînée et c'était une guerre occulte déclarée, qui se manifesterait physiquement par la guerre de 40-45, entre la possibilité d'une évolution accélérée qui servirait la vérité de la Terre et des hommes, et celle d'un contrôle totalitaire de l'humanité entière par le modèle exclusif d'un surhomme sans amour.

Car ce sont justement ces hôtes que l'on héberge qui peuvent détourner la Force à leurs propres fins sublimées, retardant ainsi indéfiniment le progrès nécessaire.

Ces hôtes sont des pouvoirs et des agents de possession.

Quelque chose s'est effectivement produit dans l'histoire de la terre : un accident, une intervention, une chute, une invasion – selon les traditions, le fait est représenté sous des formes diverses ; une influence est entrée dans le champ de l'expérience, à la faveur d'une faute, d'une « erreur » quelconque.

Une autre perspective du même évènement nous montre un combat entre des dieux formidables, les uns voulant demeurer fidèles à leur origine suprême et les autres voulant profiter de la liberté donnée pour affirmer leur indépendance et déterminer séparément leurs propres créations.

Quoiqu'il en fut, avec cette influence est entrée la corruption : l'attachement, la possession, la division, la souffrance, l'assujettissement et la haine.

Voilà ; l'an 2000 est arrivé !

Je n'en pense rien. Et ce que j'en éprouve : une sorte de tristesse endolorie – nous sommes si loin du compte !

Combien encore de souffrance et de désordre à générer, à endurer, nettoyer, absorber, transformer ? Il a a-t-il une issue prochaine pour la conscience incarnée ?

C hier a téléphoné ; elle m'a raconté les millions d'arbres abattus, les maisons détruites, la violence déchaînée de la nature, ces vents terrifiants qui parcourent le pays et l'Europe, qui vont et reviennent ; plus de la moitié du Bois de Boulogne à Paris est aplatie : une plaine saccagée là où j'ai vu ces scènes qui m'ont bouleversé, deux soirs avant de revenir ici...

Je médite – ce n'est possible ainsi que lorsque la Grâce me dépose sous la cascade – sur Auroville, sur Matrimandir, et sur ce qui devient de plus en plus inacceptable et tend à impliquer des compromis trop graves.

Et je poursuis aussi ma méditation sur la sexualité dans ma nature. C'est une méditation plus émotionnelle ; il me semble que la perception de la conscience doit s'incarner autant dans le milieu de l'émotion que dans celui de la pensée et la réflexion.

Et cette double méditation se situe dans la même nécessité, celle de se rassembler et s'unifier, de changer et de marcher.

La société, la culture – les forces qui les parcourent et les animent -, nous lient et nous épinglent à un temps d'expérience linéaire qui appartient à la mort, qui recrée constamment l'inévitabilité de la mort.

C'est une oppression, une suffocation qui devient insupportable ; comme si tout – le monde, les êtres, les circonstances, les événements et les mouvements de chacun – coulait dans un même unique sens, avec toute la force cumulative d'un contrat auquel presque rien de soi n'échappe : un sens faux, une trahison et un piège, une arnaque. Et comme si l'on voulait crier, malgré toute cette conviction générale, « arrêtez ! ce n'est pas là que le Vie coule, ce n'est pas par là que nous voulons aller, arrêtez, regardez, respirez, c'est Là, c'est Là qu'il faut se tourner, Là dans ce geste même qu'il faut creuser, qu'il faut retrouver le Lit même de Ce Qui Est... »

Mais on est lourd encore, on est soi-même une masse qui résiste et obstrue, tant qu'on est encore soi-même le refuge et la perpétuation de contradictions et de vouloirs séparés et d'adhésions aux mirages de la division, quels qu'ils soient.

3-1-2000, Auroville :

On a tous besoin du support énergétique d'une activité qui ait un sens, si limité soit-il, à laquelle on puisse se donner.

Même le yogi dans sa caverne doit adopter et établir une discipline, doit organiser sa relation au temps, à la durée, et découvrir les rythmes qui vont scander son progrès, son action et sa méditation.

Et plus nous nous engageons dans le corps vers la matière, vers la vie même de la matière, plus nous devenons conscients, ou nous unissons à la conscience de cet éternel enfant, et plus proche se révélera le rythme nécessaire des pulsions, ou pulsations essentielles et permanentes de la création.

Ce support énergétique dont nous ne pouvons encore nous passer est nécessité par la séparation.

Tant que nous évoluons dans et par la séparation, nous ne pouvons percevoir du réel que des échos et des reflets ; nous devons nous orienter dans une pénombre, une demi obscurité semée d'abîmes, sujette à des ténèbres incomprises, un milieu dont les frontières indistinctes semblent parfois plongées dans l'inertie.

Nous devons sans cesse, quotidiennement et sans relâche, nous définir contre le chaos, le désordre insensé, la confusion qui menace de nous défaire et nous absorber.

Quand après combien de périples et quelque somme imprescriptible d'expérience nous commençons d'apprendre à nous centrer et nous reposer, par un mouvement de foi ou de confiance qui peut se dispenser de la raison et de ses calculs, et que nous nous laissons porter et habiter par un sens qui émane du dedans de soi, nous acquérons proportionnellement une marge de choix envers l'activité qui sera la nôtre.

Nous lui conférons alors l'ampleur, la profondeur et la portée de ce que nous sommes, et serions en toutes circonstances.

Mais tant que nous ne sommes pas intégralement unifiés, que toutes nos parts, tous nos aspects et tous nos mouvements ne sont pas consciemment centrés, l'activité disciplinée demeure en grande partie à la fois le terrain et la condition de notre croissance.

Il est impossible de s'en remettre à la pratique d'une spontanéité inspirée à tout instant, aussi longtemps que l'unification n'est pas entièrement accomplie.

Cette impossibilité s'applique également à l'individu et à la collectivité : une anarchie féconde d'harmonie ne sera possible dans le monde physique que lorsque chacun des membres de la collectivité sera sûrement et irréversiblement établi dans la conscience et la vie de l'Unité.

Seulement voilà : plus s'accroît la marge de choix et plus grandit la question de la responsabilité.

La liberté n'est pas un confort.

Si la libération est synonyme de délivrance, de soulagement et de joie, ce n'est pourtant qu'un évènement.

La liberté, elle, est un feu.

Un feu impitoyable qui élargit et creuse et brûle sans répit tout ce qui en soi et par soi se refuse, se recroqueville au bord de la naissance, redoute de perdre son acquis séparé, craint le nouveau et tremble devant l'inconnu.

Un feu qui nous met en face de nos prétentions et de nos professions, qui nous défie sans égards de nous mesurer à l'idéal, qui nous projette dans la complexité du monde et nous fait réaliser encore et encore la vanité de nos opinions et de notre exclusivisme, l'étroitesse de nos principes et l'effrayante et bouleversante insuffisance de nos compréhensions.

Alors nous avons encore cette issue, cet absurde choix est encore possible : se refermer et tracer un cercle autour de notre moisson, en faire le capital de ce qui nous reste à vivre pour cette fois et l'exploiter à l'aune de notre discernement relatif.

Mais la question – accepter la question et la vivre, l'endurer à chaque instant, en chaque circonstance, par chaque énergie émise ou reçue, laisser sa constante déflagration se produire sans la fuir ni s'en abriter dans une attitude ou une autre, la conviction d'un rôle ou d'un autre, l'excuse d'une limitation ou d'une autre, ou le refuge d'une croyance, d'un parti, d'une entreprise, ou encore la négation arbitraire de tout sens et de tout cheminement : comme c'est rude, et comme c'est impérieux !

Tout le temps elle pousse et elle flambe !

A quoi participe-t-on, à quoi se prête-t-on ?

Est-ce à la perpétuation de la même illusion et du même règne de la mort et de l'inacceptable ?

Ou est-ce à la dé couverte, au déblaiement, à l'émergence de l'incarnation ?

Au service de quoi est-on mobilisé effectivement ?

Car s'il nous est impossible de nous abstenir de l'activité – le fait même d'être manifeste implique une activité permanente -, plus on avance et plus s'ouvre le regard de la conscience, et plus il devient impératif de saisir ou d'être saisi par l'unité, dans l'activité même, et de la servir, de s'y donner.

Plus il devient important et essentiel que toute expérience active soit une expérience d'union au Réel, quelles que soient ses conséquences : comme si, de plus en plus, c'était tout simplement la seule véritable sécurité.

Comme si, concrètement et immédiatement, toutes les secondes et tous les gestes qui ne sont pas saisis d'union sont volés, utilisés et récupérés par cette même rapacité qui continue de tout engouffrer et de tout réduire et de tout reproduire, jamais rassasiée, à perpétuité.

On peut quelques temps peut-être se contenter et se bercer de souhaits et d'intentions, d'aspirations élevées et de la nourriture de l'idéal ; mais l'évolution ne se soucie pas plus de nos idéaux que de nos trahisons : c'est une autre substance qu'elle exige, et distille en nous à travers toutes nos souffrances, nos faillites, nos débâcles et nos retours.

Comment reconnaître un acte juste ?

Ce ne peut être par les résultats perceptibles, puisque d'une part aucun effet ne résulte d'un seul acte mais d'un ensemble de facteurs, et que d'autre part notre perception même des résultats ne peut être que partielle, sinon conditionnée.

Est-ce dans l'atmosphère qu'il génère, le souffle qu'il porte, la qualité qu'il rend présente ?

Depuis que je suis rentré, je suis à la recherche de la direction dans l'activité.

Il y a ce livre que je souhaiterais savoir accepté et reçu, quelque part, par quelques-uns, comme l'enclenchement d'un mode de fonctionnement et de circulation ; et il y a la continuation du travail de Matrimandir, dans une orientation que je ressens de plus en plus comme une tromperie, une récupération, un détournement.

Et, comme un troisième pôle, ce sentiment qui ne me quitte pas, me tire en arrière ou m'empêche de franchir un seuil décisif, le sentiment de quelque chose d'inaccompli, humainement, d'une harmonie qui doit être atteinte pour être offerte et dépassée, et qui est lié à cette bisexualité : le besoin lancinant de lui trouver son équilibre, comme s'il fallait que cela se réalise dans le monde, une possibilité qui doit trouver sa vraie place évolutive.

Et ces trois pôles d'attention se profilent parmi toutes les figures de la question sur une même muraille qu'il faut démolir, dé réaliser, traverser : la Vie ici, ou la mort toujours.

La décrépitude, le réalisme de la défaite inéluctable, ou la naissance d'un chemin matériel un et fondé... ?

Communication téléphonique : une dévastation formidable dans le Sud Ouest de la France, des vents de près de 200 Km/heure pendant deux jours et deux nuits, des forêts entières abattues, les pylônes renversés, les maisons détruites ; et la marée noire qui s'étend tout le long de la côte Atlantique : un coup massif à toute l'économie du pays.

... Je ne crois pas que Tu souhaites favoriser la contradiction ou la légitimer pour cet effet de suffocation qui peut susciter un ressort secret, plus radical.

Il me semble plutôt comprendre que la sincérité que Tu demandes ne légitime ni la souffrance ni l'obstacle mais se rassemble comme une lumière d'offrande active pour que tout en nous veuille le changement et y adhère en toute confiance, avec la certitude que l'avenir, et la condition qui nous y attend, est un état de plénitude ; que la vérité est plénitude.

C'est vraiment la déformation, le mensonge de la séparation et de l'égo qui nous a convaincus, dans son avidité à nous retenir sous son règne, que le changement soi-disant spirituel serait nécessairement une privation, un appauvrissement, un héroïque déchirement, l'ascétisme de victimes immolées, une diminution, une sublimation et un renoncement ; c'est ce mensonge qui fait de l'humilité véritable un abaissement et une violence, et de la fidélité une corruption de soi.

C'est peut-être ainsi que je n'ai jamais pu croire aux vertus de l'arrachement ; à moins que cet arrachement se présente à la conscience individuelle comme une grâce, comme le dernier simple geste nécessaire à l'issue de tout un travail honnêtement accompli, comme on arrache enfin, avec juste ce courage-là et cette compréhension-là, une chose qui n'est déjà plus soi, qui déjà n'appartient plus à l'état réalisé de la conscience.

Mais la croyance qu'il faille se faire violence parce que c'est ainsi que l'on est supposé faire des progrès « spirituels » m'a toujours paru suspecte.

... Il ne s'est pas agi pour moi de confondre l'amour ou de chercher à tirer de l'amour une représentation humaine ; je sais depuis longtemps, et de plus en plus, ce qu'est l'amour vrai, et ce qui dans notre nature nous rend incapables, constitutionnellement, de l'incarner durablement.

Mais je crois beaucoup à l'amplitude, à la profondeur et au secret pouvoir de l'amitié ; et de la tendresse – libre, disponible, tranquille et puissante.

Les années qui ont juste précédé l'adolescence ont été comme une danse, une rencontre qui ne cherche pas à prendre, qui se dirige sans calcul vers sa propre douceur d'expérience, quand le corps lui-même est à sa propre recherche et trouve, sans se l'être représenté, l'autre corps qui répond, le partage d'un tâtonnement d'où jaillissent inattendues des flambées d'émotion – quelque chose de délicieux et d'exquis qui ouvre un sens dans le fait même d'être dans des corps distincts, indépendants.

C'est un peu après mes dix ans, je crois, que C, revenant seule en voiture d'un passage clandestin de frontière, a dérapé sur la route verglacée : fractures du crâne et de la colonne vertébrale.

Il lui fallut des mois d'endurance pour se rétablir, et notre vie a changé.

Nous sommes retournés dans la ville, près de Montparnasse et du Jardin du Luxembourg ; nous sommes entrés dans une histoire différente.

C'est avec R, qu'elle avait rencontré quelques temps auparavant, que nous nous sommes installés, et le père de C et Marie, dans un mode plus bourgeois.

Et je fus inscrit au Lycée Montaigne.

C'est durant ces trois années, de la onzième à la quatorzième, que je dus me fourbir quelques armes.

C'est là que j'ai d'abord rencontré Stéphane.

Du point de vue interne, de la perception interne, ce sens de bien ou de mal être, je n'ai aimé ni l'enfance ni l'adolescence : c'était comme un étranglement presque permanent ; je ressentais les mouvements d'énergie comme stridents ou grossiers, ingrats et pénibles, comme une perpétuité de fausses notes, une sorte de brutalisation et de dénaturation générale, ambiante.

Les jeux, les plaisanteries, les complicités, les codes relationnels étaient une corvée, une imposition corruptrice ; je me sentais corrompu, je me sentais me corrompre.

Ainsi j'étais peut-être fier et distant.

Mais presque tout s'est au fur et à mesure effacé.

Je sais pourtant encore que c'est avec une sorte de désespoir que je me mis, avec tout le feu qui brûlait, à la recherche d'une perfection « personnelle » - de la forme, et de l'expression. Les transformations ou mutations successives de l'enfance et de l'adolescence étaient source de tourment ; il y avait ce sens d'être lié à des mues qui ne correspondaient à rien de profond et s'imposaient par une force que je luttais pour contrôler ou corriger, une force qui obligeait le corps à se trahir.

Stéphane, c'était un corps ami, une tendresse familière et sans clivage, qui ne se regardait pas et ne s'épargnait pas, et ne cherchait pas à se créer une identité calquée sur des modèles imbéciles ; c'était une substance semblable et différente à la fois, dans laquelle on se retrouvait et s'oubliait, se donnait et se perdait. Nos corps ensemble s'animait de tendresse, la lutte caressante et dansante de l'amitié ; l'énergie sexuelle ne les parcourait pas encore, n'y creusait pas encore ses sillons : nous restions indemnes.

Les prémisses de l'adolescence sont comme les signaux de départ d'une compétition absurde, douloureuse et minée vers l'acquisition d'une identité émotionnelle, sexuelle et physique. Pour la plupart, les jeux sont truqués, les dés sont chargés : les données physiques héritées sont trop dominantes, trop inflexiblement déterminantes ; la pesanteur de la forme produite est telle qu'il ne reste plus qu'à s'en accommoder.

Mais il y a ceux dont les corps sont encore munis d'une certaine plasticité ; à des degrés variables un espace ambivalent, encore indéterminé demeure, où l'être interne peut encore imprimer des accents, des harmonies, peut encore s'aménager une certaine flexibilité d'expression.

Le regard des autres – ce ramasse tout d'une culture, d'un âge ou d'un milieu social – est un souverain jaloux et colérique : c'est ce Jéhovah courroucé, tout pénétré de lui-même ; qui crée l'homme à sa ressemblance. Dans cette jungle, il faut survivre. Le choix de pouvoir continuer de choisir a un prix, qu'il faut payer de suite, et continuer de payer !

Il y a ce moment terrible de l'adolescence où les amis – ceux dont le corps et les yeux étaient un prolongement de tendresse, une extension diffuse d'un espace à chérir – sont happée par le retentissement d'un glas tout proche ; leur réalité émotionnelle est comme déchirée par le milieu : il leur faut choisir leur identité, et se ranger du côté des lois de la vie ; il leur faut « s'assumer ».

C'est le moment où l'énergie sexuelle commence à se manifester.

Il faut être à la hauteur ; il faut être capable de jouer le rôle attendu, d'entrer en contrat avec le monde adulte et de s'y faire sa niche – autant que possible en y apportant un peu de panache, en y flambant sa propre empreinte originale...

La séparation s'accomplit.

Avec une douleur émotionnelle qui parfois ne guérira pas.

L'ami rejette l'ami, car l'ami devient le témoin compromettant, le rappel de cette part de soi que l'on enterre, enferme ou vend. Il faut lui préférer le complice, le compère, le camarade d'une entreprise et d'un abordage nécessaires.

Plus tard, beaucoup plus tard, les hommes qui n'ont pu oublier ni éteindre la flamme si intime de l'amitié lui rendront, avec mille précautions, par les mille rites complexes d'un déplacement tacite de la gravité émotionnelle, une place dans leur vie d'homme : une place royale, mais prisonnière.

C'est-à-dire qu'elle n'aura droit qu'à une expression exclusive et restreinte, commandée par des principes inflexibles dont l'objet sera de donner le change et de préserver le statu quo. Et justement dans la mesure où ils refuseront à l'amitié retrouvée le corps même de son émotion, ils seront parfois amenés, à son service, aux actes les plus extrêmes ; car, plutôt que de lui rendre vie, ils l'auront érigée en valeur et en mythe.

L'ironie de ce processus est que les femmes (les membres de « l'autre camp ») ne s'y trompent pas ! Et comment pourraient-elles s'y tromper, elles qui savent tant le manque terrible de la tendresse dans le monde.

Cela les fait sourire – l'esbroufe, la poudre aux yeux du monde -, elles qui savent tant le pouvoir d'une seule caresse vraiment ressentie, vraiment donnée.

Combien une seule vraie caresse dissoudrait de nos drames absurdemment meurtriers, dégonflerait les pulsions monstrueuses et sordides d'une civilisation qui marche à l'envers et se développe dans le mauvais sens.

Vers le milieu de cette période au lycée Montaigne j'ai aussi rencontré Nicole, qui fut ma première compagne « officielle ». Elle était comme l'incarnation d'un charme unique, sans effort ni recherche : sa démarche, ses choix vestimentaires, sa longue chevelure acajou retenue sur l'oreille, sa peau un peu bistrée, les grands cernes sombres qui soulignaient ses yeux noisette, sa manière de fumer les cigarettes brunes qu'elle gardait toujours dans son sac en bandoulière – elle n'était explicable par rien autour d'elle, ni ses parents, ni son milieu, et pourtant ne se posait pour rien d'autre qu'elle-même, ne se préoccupait d'aucun modèle mais ne prétendait rien non plus. Un peu plus âgée que moi, à 15 ans elle aimait le vin rouge ; et deviendra plus tard alcoolique.

Lorsqu'elle eut ses premières règles, il nous sembla à tous les deux, dans le désarroi de la culbute vers les formes fixées, attribuées et adultes, qu'était venu le signe de notre conversion : il fallait donc nous dépuceler l'un l'autre !

Mais c'était un défi de principe. Nous n'éprouvions pas en fait le besoin correspondant : l'harmonie que nous partagions était en fait suffisante.

Ce fut un fiasco ; qui, pourtant, ne l'empêcha pas de s'attacher de plus en plus à ma vie.

Ce fut ainsi par mon ami Guillaume que son dépucelage à elle se produisit, alors que nous étions tous ensemble dans les montagnes. Guillaume était celui dont l'aura me retenait le plus prisonnier ; il incarnait justement ce moment douloureux de choix ; il se tenait juste là sur cette crête, il allait passer du côté des hommes, il ne pouvait y résister, il ne voulait y résister ; l'ambition du mâle singulier s'était trop forte éveillée en lui, malgré toute l'intensité de ce qui coulait encore entre nous – une intensité dont il ne trouvait plus la place vivable. Pour moi alors, la pâleur vulnérable et sensuelle de son cou, de sa gorge un peu découverte à l'échancrure de sa chemise, l'effort encore innocent qu'exprimait son visage tendu, que tentait de masquer ses yeux pers, effort de se montrer averti parmi les hommes, suscitaient une émotion si douloureuse.

6-1-2000, Auroville :

Mon propre dépucelage conventionnel s'est produit sans éclats ni romance, un jour de vacances, avec l'une de ces jeunes filles dont la féminité est comme une pesanteur sans définition, une passivité neutralement accueillante.

J'avais 14 ans. C'était la dernière année de ma carrière scolaire – je venais d'entrer en « seconde » au Lycée Henri IV, juste derrière la Panthéon.

Cette année-là vit mon dernier effort pour adhérer à l'itinéraire officiel de la vie.

De là j'ai plongé dans les remous d'un autre parcours, qui ne se révélait que d'instant en instant et de jour en jour, et se traçait au travers d'un nombre croissant de rencontres.

Ceux que j'ai alors commencé de côtoyer étaient tous plus âgés.

Je suis entré dans cet enfer relationnel avec mon propre feu qui poussait du dedans, pour en délivrer les leçons, les messages et les indications d'un sens, d'un but, d'une destination, d'un accomplissement ou d'une aventure que j'aurais été bien en peine de me formuler.

Chaque être, chaque relation était un monde en soi, et un nœud qui se formait, dont il fallait trouver la note délivreuse.

Neuf années se sont alors écoulées, neuf années d'une tension si intense que je ne pouvais l'endurer justement que d'instant en instant. La courbe de ces 9 années est assez claire : 4 années pour que mes antennes intérieures et (il me semble que le mot est correct) supra physiques s'éveillent et s'activent ; 2 années pour me diriger physiquement et centralement vers la Réponse ; et 3 années encore pour parvenir à offrir toute cette improbable somme.

Avec la perspective du temps et de l'expérience, les 4 premières années ont une qualité de gratuité et d'honnêteté qui restent pour moi une référence ; il y avait là à la fois une nudité, une disponibilité, une exactitude, une humanité enfin, qui même aujourd'hui me semblent supérieures à toutes les prétentions et les contraintes éthico spirituelles que j'ai rencontrées par la suite, dans les autres, dans la vie et en moi-même – ces contorsions auxquelles nous livre le désir ou l'ambition d'être reconnu, accepté, apprécié.

Les 2 années suivantes ont été une alliance étroite et de plus en plus intime de désespoir et de feu solaire : la révolte insupportable côtoyant l'évidence croissante d'un sens, d'une tâche, et d'un ordre supérieurs. Une flamme tantôt dévastatrice, tantôt rayonnante : comme les deux serpents enlacés la spirale des attachements sans issue et celle qui fait fondre et qui aime – qui est chemin et l'énergie qui nous y porte.

Et ainsi les 3 dernières années de cette première épopée personnelle ont été consumées par la nécessité d'éclaircir les attachements formés, à leurs racines, et les dettes karmiques contractées, et à incarner le choix qui s'était fait en moi, aux abords de mes vingt ans, dans la Présence de Mère.

J'attends de savoir, comme par la poussée qui fait se gonfler la mer et monter la vague, à quoi je vais pouvoir maintenant me donner.

C'est curieux : on sait que tout est énergie, selon différents modes et différentes fréquences ; pourtant dans la pratique une distinction s'opère entre la multiplicité des énergies et la coulée de la Force consciente, sa pression et son arrimage. Car c'est la Force consciente qui seule peut organiser ces énergies dans leur complémentarité progressive pour chaque individualité et à chaque étape du travail.

Il me semble que nos aspirations durables, ces chambres secrètes de clarté dedans que l'on habite et arpente avec une intensité toujours plus grande, plus précise et plus consciente, ne sont pas forcément ce que la Force consciente élit pour base de son action évolutionnaire.

Je crois observer que ce que la Force consciente saisit de nous-même, ce sur quoi elle fonde ses opérations, est plutôt de la nature d'un « Oui » qui, à un moment donné, a jailli : un « Oui » qui s'offre, sûr et pur, simple et entier.

Et autour de ce « Oui » sont toutes les données du travail, en flux constant : les aspirations et les résistances, les ouvertures et les contradictions, les potentiels et les aveuglements.

Ce « Oui » transcende tout le reste : par ce « Oui » une appartenance s'établit qui n'est plus jamais remise en question.

Les modalités font partie du labeur : il n'y a pas de garantie temporelle à la bonne poursuite du chemin qui s'est engagé ; mais qu'il se soit engagé et qu'il doive se poursuivre et nécessairement s'accomplir, est un fait irréversible.

Il y a un état d'aspiration qui, bien qu'individuel, peut cependant en chacun embrasser une infinité de domaines. Il me semble maintenant que cet état d'aspiration est effectivement un attribut de la conscience véritable lorsqu'elle se tourne vers le monde.

C'est réellement un feu. Un feu que l'on éprouve comme un besoin autant que comme une irrigation, une nourriture donnée, manifestée du dedans. C'est la musique essentielle de soi et la clé centralement formée, plus ou moins universelle, d'une création qui ne cesse pas de naître.

Il faut du temps pour commencer de comprendre un peu clairement sa propre musique, et s'ouvrir à sa clé évolutive. Il faut bien, par exemple, ne plus être soumis à l'égo, le sien propre comme celui des autres ou d'une collectivité quelconque – que le pouvoir de l'égo soit dissous et remplacé par une perception libre, directe et équilibrée es conditions qui prévalent à tout moment...

9-1-2000, Auroville :

Ma musique intérieure, celle qui me porte, me pousse et m'appelle, me nourrit et m'aimante, a sa fonction dans la vivante symphonie du monde, une fonction spécifique et néanmoins complexe, qui m'est enseignée constamment, de l'intérieur et par le haut et dans la fibre même de l'expérience : c'est mon métier intérieur que j'apprends ainsi, avec plus ou moins de bonne grâce ; et ce métier-là, on ne peut pas l'apprendre en une seule vie !

Une fois que l'on en prend conscience, et depuis cet instant de fusion et de reconnaissance, on ne peut plus que rire de la notion même d'une seule vie humaine et de la mort comme un anéantissement : cette croyance que la mort est une disparition effective de soi est une notion absurde et comique à la fois ; car c'est un non-sens, un impossible plus absolu encore que de stipuler l'arrêt de tout mouvement dans l'univers.

La mort agit, oui ; mais elle ne continue d'agir et son phénomène ne continue de se reproduire que par une nécessité évolutive. C'est une disparition, oui, une résorption et une dispersion des matériaux d'une manifestation relative dans la mesure où la conscience ne les a pas encore directement unifiés : non de la conscience elle-même ; non de soi !

Ma musique, ma fonction est celle d'un soleil ; pas au sens d'une masse spectaculaire de lumière ou d'une souveraineté exclusive ; mais au sens d'une capacité à changer l'obscurité en lumière : à donner le jour.

C'est un fonctionnement à la fois universel, essentiel et solitaire, comme un travail d'alchimie, qui demande une sorte d'ouverture intérieure complète et un ancrage indéfectible, et de l'endurance.

Il y a là un aspect de neutralité ; pas comme une polarité neutralisée, mais plutôt comme une position générique qui contient la polarité et la transforme.

Et c'est par cet aspect que la bisexualité est signifiante.

Toutes mes expériences et toutes mes relations, psychologiques et physiques mais aussi intérieures, indépendamment du corps et des circonstances, tout comme toutes ces relations que j'ai pu observer directement, m'ont convaincu de ceci : notre approche de la sexualité est imbécile, et la cause d'une quantité formidable de drames, de malentendus et de souffrances dont nous pourrions très bien nous passer, la cause en fait d'une très grande part de la misère humaine – morale, psychologique et physique. Et que cette imbécillité est induite et préservée par un jeu de forces qui constamment se nourrissent des énergies ainsi dévoyées.

Cet état de choses remonte très loin dans le temps historique, et s'est si tenacement inscrit dans la condition humaine que la seule issue à tout effort de progrès spirituel a jusqu'à présent paru être le rejet radical et en bloc de toute la sexualité et de tous les mouvements humains qui pourraient s'y associer.

Bien sûr la sexualité, en ce qu'elle sert les desseins d'une technique privilégiée par la nature pour assurer la perpétuation de l'espèce, deviendra très probablement obsolète pour l'espèce nouvelle à venir dont les fonctionnements physiques et matériels seront directement conscients ; et ainsi l'on pourrait vouloir s'en libérer tout à fait dès maintenant, pour se concentrer exclusivement dans la nécessité évolutive d'accueillir un état plus vrai : la sexualité tombe de l'être ; elle n'y a plus prise ; elle n'y opère plus.

Mais il me semble improbable que l'espèce nouvelle puisse s'incarner dans le milieu créé par cette misère humaine terrestre dévastatrice sans que s'effectue d'abord une sorte de revirement ou de rétablissement collectif ou qu'au moins s'amorce dans la conscience et l'expérience humaine le commencement d'une pratique plus aimable, mieux équilibrée, plus « fraternelle » de la sexualité.

10-1-2000, Auroville :

La relation de l'homme et de la femme, ou du masculin et du féminin, a sa résonance éternelle. Dans son équilibre, elle est victorieusement créatrice ; elle est la garantie de l'intégrité évolutive.

De cet équilibre la nature a emprunté pour ses propres fins instrumentales les rôles énergétiques qu'elle a fixés dans nos corps.

Ces rôles sont partiels, des extraits d'une réalité infiniment plus vaste, des fragments d'un tout qui ne peut être reconstitué là.

Dans notre expérience de créatures physiques nous sommes biologiquement liés au passage et à l'action d'un feu spécifique : à son passage et pour son passage, nos corps sont momentanément altérés.

L'expérience physique que nous avons lors de ce passage est la seule expérience physique qui nous soit donnée de l'action d'une force supra physique ou subtile – sinon celle de la mort. Il y a rencontre et union, pour un instant, avec une force agissante qui transcende notre réalité corporelle et mobilise tous nos sens.

L'impact émotionnel de cette fusion est sans égal.

C'est un instant d'abandon concret où l'individualité physique et émotionnelle s'en remet entièrement à une force dont elle ignore et le fonctionnement et la source.

Cette fulgurance à laquelle nous nous livrons nous appelons orgasme ou jouissance ; et parce que nous nous y livrons si intimement et que cet abandon se produit en présence de l'autre, nous voudrions bien que cette possession temporaire soit légitimée dans une dimension plus centrale et plus durable de notre humanité, qu'elle s'associe et s'allie à l'expression d'une délivrance plus constante et déterminante de notre solitude, qu'elle implique un accomplissement émotionnel : nous voudrions bien qu'elle signifie l'amour – le passage fécond, hors de notre isolement, à un partage effectif de l'expérience du monde.

Sur la base instrumentale invariable des lois de la nature chaque civilisation et chaque culture ont élaboré, selon leur perception ou interprétation du sens de l'existence terrestre, des principes de conduite qui tentent d'intégrer pour une cohérence collective les réalités physique, physiologique et biologique des cycles successifs dans toute vie humaine.

La civilisation de l'Inde, qui perçoit pour objectif réel de l'expérience humaine la découverte et la réalisation de la dimension spirituelle et de l'immanente divinité, s'est édifiée sur des principes d'une sagesse qui demeure encore incomparable – le désastre que nous ne pouvons que constater aujourd'hui n'est dû en grande partie qu'à la corruption de ces principes.

On peut tenter d'énoncer ainsi ces principes :

- L'aptitude de l'être humain à aimer lui vient de son origine spirituelle, afin qu'il puisse retourner graduellement au divin et le réaliser.

- L'idéal d'une société humaine épanouie est de pourvoir à chacun de ses membres les directions d'un service désintéressé et la possibilité ultime de sa libération et de sa réalisation spirituelles.

- L'équilibre de cette société humaine demande à ce que chacun remplisse au mieux les devoirs qui incombent à sa nature selon les phases successives de son existence humaine.

De ces principes ont découlé les règles de vie, l'arrangement des « castes » et la distinction des époques de la vie et de leurs tâches respectives.

Les parents et les éducateurs doivent veiller à ce que l'enfant soit préparé à assumer les tâches qui correspondent à sa nature donnée dans l'équilibre durable de la société, en lui inculquant la connaissance nécessaire et le sens du devoir qui constituera sa loi de conduite, son dharma, tout au long de sa vie jusqu'à ce que, s'étant déchargé de ses responsabilités, l'adulte ayant rempli son contrat avec le monde soit libre de se consacrer à la recherche et la découverte de son destin spirituel.

C'est aux parents qu'incombe la tâche de désigner au jeune adulte la compagne ou le compagnon de sa vie et de lui transmettre les directives nécessaires à l'accomplissement d'une harmonie juste et féconde.

Ainsi les choix de l'individu ne peuvent se former qu'en fonction de son dharma, qu'il a reçu en même temps que les circonstances de sa naissance et la manifestation des traits fondamentaux de sa propre nature.

L'homme et la femme sont personnellement mis en présence l'un de l'autre pour la vie, et leurs capacités d'affection, de solidarité, de service, de courage, d'intégrité, doivent se développer sur cette base, qui ne peut être remise en question ; seule la mort les séparera.

Cependant au cours des temps ces principes ont été peu à peu corrompus, minés du dedans comme du dehors, et n'en restent extérieurement que des ombres calculatrices.

Deux acquis toutefois demeurent.

Le premier est ce sens même du dharma, qui est supérieur au devoir chrétien : supérieur parce que d'une part à la fois son origine, sa raison d'être et son but sont spirituellement fondés et respectent l'infinie variété et diversité des destinées spirituelles, et que d'autre part il embrasse et inclut le tissu entier des relations humaines, reconnaissant leur interdépendance et la nécessité fructueuse de leur cohésion sans pour autant leur permettre de dominer le cheminement de l'âme individuelle, le droit inné de l'âme à se trouver, uniquement et absolument.

Le deuxième de ces acquis s'incarne dans la femme : une universalité puissante, un regard millénaire dont le silence fondé est le miroir d'une grande connaissance et s'approche de la force créatrice.

Il faut encore que l'un et l'autre s'animent dans le présent de la Terre et s'y épandent, au service d'une évolution plus consciente pour toute l'humanité.

Tel est le rôle véritable que l'Inde doit jouer, qu'elle est encore retenue de jouer ; entravée par sa propre dégénérescence et ses propres contradictions, abaissée et rendue vulnérable au regard et à l'opinion que portent sur elle des éthiques, des morales et des projets bien moindres que les siens mais apparemment victorieux, elle est embourbée dans les conséquences d'un métissage qui l'a saisie et violée dans sa faiblesse essentielle.

Et cette faiblesse est celle-ci : c'est d'avoir cessé de chercher la perfection du monde et de la vie au profit d'une perfection morale et spirituelle, c'est d'avoir sacrifié le corps du Divin à l'autel d'un égoïsme spirituel.

Et la force de l'Occident est celle-ci : c'est de n'avoir jamais cessé de vouloir la perfection du monde physique, et de continuer à vouloir arracher à la matière son secret de plénitude.

Nous sommes à ce moment de bascule où doivent s'intégrer ensemble et la solidité vaste et puissante de ce réservoir d'expérience spirituelle et la pratique vivante d'une volonté de progrès dans l'absoluité de la matière, dans une révélation concrète qui toutes deux les contient.

Alors, où se situe la question de la sexualité ?

La sexualité nous encombre, nous parasite et nous réduit, telle que nous continuons de la mal vivre.

Notre mal pratique nous conduit à constamment nous trahir les uns les autres, à nous malmenier et nous ignorer et nous prostituer les uns les autres ; infirme en chacun de nous le respect de la personne et de son intégrité et nous condamne à des relations piégées qui portent les germes de leur propre défaite.

Nous devons recouvrer le respect de chaque autre, ce recueillement devant le mystère créateur de chacun.

Que l'homme et la femme n'abordent l'acte sexuel que dans un don mutuel et commun, librement choisi et consenti, transparent de tout calcul ; qu'ils soient chacun nu et conscient devant l'importance de cet acte et sa dimension de responsabilité sacrée ; libre et net de toute accumulation de désir, de tout bagage de manque et de besoin refoulés ; que cesse enfin ce crime et cette violence de tirer dans le monde ceux qui ne l'ont pas librement voulu, ceux que l'on n'est pas prêt à bien accueillir.

Que cesse cette transmission aveugle perpétuelle de tares et de souffrances ; que cesse cette effrayante, formidable irresponsabilité.

Et que cesse l'emprise déformante et corruptrice de la désapprobation du plaisir.

Que les garçons et les hommes, que les filles et les femmes, assument ensemble aussi la diversité de leurs réponses émotionnelles et la richesse potentielle de leur identité sexuelle dans l'amitié, la tendresse et la solidarité ; qu'ils se donnent les uns les autres du plaisir, sans honte ni culpabilité ; qu'ils explorent ensemble la réalité du plaisir.

Ainsi seulement le monstre qui nous dévore reprendra sa taille et ses proportions et nous serons en mesure de découvrir notre complétude, d'éclairer notre subconscience et d'appréhender enfin, vivants et corporels, le sens et la portée de notre parcours évolutif.

Tels que nous sommes encore, la majeure partie de notre vie physique est effectivement corrompue par cette possession sexuelle ; notre appréciation de nous-même est déterminée par notre capacité de séduire ; nous sommes indignes, des caricatures extériorisées de soi, jusqu'à la vieillesse et la mort.

Notre existence individuelle est affligée d'une suite de tromperies et de compromis, et nos révoltes mêmes sont des violences, des manques à l'harmonie que nous devrions plutôt contribuer au monde.

16-1-2000, Auroville :

Relisant ces dernières pages, je ressens comme un malaise, dont le censeur interne est prompt à me fournir l'explication : « As-tu perdu la tête ? Comment peux-tu te concentrer ainsi sur cela même qui doit disparaître, trahir ton engagement, légitimer ton insincérité ? Crois-tu donc connaître mieux qu'Eux la voie du changement ? »

Je me suis toujours défié des vertueuses désapprobations...

Ce malaise, je ne le ressentais pas lorsque j'écrivais ces lignes, lorsque mon besoin était qu'elles soient les plus exactes possible ; je ressentais au contraire le soutien tranquille et bienveillant de la conscience, comme les mains fermes de la mère qui soutient son petit dans ses premiers pas incertains vers la cohérence du mouvement maîtrisé.

Mais je dois aussi m'interroger sur ce qui pourrait constituer de ma part un aveuglement persistant : ne serais-je pas en train de prêcher une fausse ouverture, qui n'aurait pour conséquence effective qu'un nouveau déferlement de possession et de débauche ?

Car enfin n'ont-ils pas expliqué, avec une indiscutable autorité, que la seule, l'unique manière de parvenir à la manifestation physique de l'amour véritable, de la joie certaine, de la tendresse divine, était de se libérer intégralement de toute sexualité ?

Ne suis-je pas en train de mêler à une perspective consciente ma propre douleur et mon propre manque d'héroïsme ?

Car, cela est certain, il nous faut sortir vivants de la sexualité, comme il nous faut sortir vivants de la mort.

L'une et l'autre, la mort et la sexualité, sont les tenants d'une étape évolutive, qui n'est pas celle de la plénitude, mais celle de la lutte pour l'individualisation de formes.

La plénitude ne deviendra possible dans le monde manifesté que lorsque la mort et la sexualité auront cessé d'être nécessaires à notre développement ; lorsque devenues inutiles et absurdes elles tomberont de nous, se déferont et seront désamorçées de nos organismes et nos corps.

Alors évidemment, puisque tout progrès commence par soi-même, ce qui est de première importance et précède tout autre considération, c'est de retirer en soi-même obstinément, avec persistance et persévérance, tout assentiment à la sexualité comme à la mort.

Et ce que je continue de faire, c'est de moduler mon assentiment selon des rythmes et des mélodies qui me semblent seulement plus plaisants, ou moins douloureux ! Et de justifier ma propre incapacité à m'engager et à choisir par un état de choses collectif !

17-1-2000, Auroville :

Mais je récidive !

C'est le mental qui, jusqu'à présent, joue le rôle d'un guide sélectif dans la construction de nos personnalités.

C'est mentalement que nous évaluons notre propre cohérence individuelle, que nous nous efforçons d'en combler les lacunes, de remédier tant bien que mal à nos défauts de nature, et de nous conformer autant que possible à une image que l'autre puisse accepter et apprécier.

Mais nous nous rendons tous compte que les bénéfices optimaux de cet exercice ne nous permettent que de donner le change assez longtemps pour pouvoir éventuellement, à l'abri de formes et d'habitudes plus ou moins stabilisées, retourner à l'exploration de nous-même.

Car les opérations du mental sont linéaires. Le mental est incapable de saisir le tout à la fois.

Notre multiple réalité est pour lui infiniment contradictoire.

Mon observation est que, dans leur grande majorité, les relations de couple homme femme, sont en fait des esbroufes et des supercheries ; au mieux, ce sont des compromis supérieurement motivés.

Et ma conviction est que, tant que chacun ne se sera pas trouvé et n'aura pas unifié sa propre multi dimensionnalité, seul avec les autres et seul avec le monde, nous ne pourrons découvrir le sens vraiment créateur de cette rencontre et de ce couple.

Devant le couple tel qu'il est pratiqué dans l'immense majorité des cas de nos jours, je me sens iconoclaste.

Ce que je vois ne m'inspire aucun respect.

Ce que je vois, c'est une démission de chacun, c'est une prétention : c'est de la fausse monnaie.

C'est de l'utilisation mutuelle, c'est la légitimation mutuelle d'une compromission, c'est l'adhésion complice au partage arbitraire et mensonger du monde et de la réalité.

Dans les cas les plus exceptionnels, chacun devient pour l'autre un dépositaire et une garantie. Dans les cas ordinaires, l'équilibre qui règne est celui de la terreur – qu'elle soit sourde et polie ou bruyamment dramatique, ce sont bien les pratiques de la terreur qui ont cours : le chantage, la coercition, la revendication, l'intimidation, la vengeance...

Ce qu'on appelle l'évolution des mœurs dans les sociétés occidentales est en fait, il me semble, la réflexion d'un profond besoin de distance, ou de distanciation. C'est la nécessité évolutive de l'individualité humaine qui est en jeu.

L'on est prompt de nos jours à dénoncer l'oppression que la femme a subie millénairement dans la plupart des sociétés humaines. C'est un fait historique, physique et psychologique. Mais l'énergie est égale et ne connaît pas de barrières. Ainsi ce n'est pas que l'énergie de la femme a été diminuée ; c'est seulement qu'elle a dû se distribuer autrement.

Dans la division sexuelle du monde, c'est la femme historiquement qui a été l'opprimée ; la part frontale organisationnelle des sociétés a été exercée par l'homme.

Mais chaque être vivant dispose pourtant de la même « quantité » d'énergie : c'est donc subtilement que l'énergie de la femme s'est déployée.

A partir de la définition physiologique des fonctions sexuelles s'est peu à peu instauré un partage énergétique selon lequel furent octroyés à l'identité masculine la force physique et la clarté de la volonté mentale, et à l'identité féminine la puissance et la continuité de la vie.

Les ressources de la femme se sont ainsi développées plus intensément dans le vital matériel, et l'identité féminine s'est plus particulièrement et spécifiquement alliée à la force de vie.

La donneuse de vie, celle qui transmet les lois de la vie et les préserve, vie où peuvent s'établir les racines, vie qui coule, qui inonde, qui emplit, vie qui s'attache et croît et perdure, vie qui contient, soutient et porte, vie qui irrigue et nourrit, vie qui suscite.

Et ce partage énergétique est aussi une guerre, la lutte constante pour le pouvoir d'orienter la destinée.

Il me semble clair qu'on ne sortira jamais de cette ronde tant que l'on reportera en avant la référence au modèle mythique d'une femme et d'un homme accomplis et respectivement parfaits, si spirituellement émancipés soient-ils.

Et que la tâche qui incombe à chacun de nous est de s'unir à la personne humaine, de réaliser son harmonie et de laisser à son avenir le soin de révéler la nature profonde, plus éternelle et plus souveraine, de l'union.

Et que nous servirons mieux l'émergence physique d'un état plus conscient en acceptant d'abord de reconnaître la multiplicité de chaque être et en apprenant à l'unifier autour du centre individuel conscient qui est libre de l'une comme de l'autre identité.

Je suis un adorateur de ces femmes qui ont su maîtriser leur atmosphère, y harmoniser leurs attributs et leurs « atouts » spécifiques en une représentation exigeante qui mobilise et canalise tout leur être et ses mouvantes nuances, représentation qui acquiert un caractère universel. On ne peut plus fixer ces femmes à aucun rôle.

Il faut les accepter dans leur flux et leurs rythmes et les chérir, les servir, leur donner ce qu'elles demandent, les deviner si on en est capable, et toujours les solliciter dans leur plus grande profondeur et leur tribut le plus essentiel.

Si l'on se contente de vouloir les consumer ou prendre d'elles et les posséder, elles ne peuvent le supporter longtemps et doivent s'échapper, dans la contradiction tragique, ou tenter de renverser les rôles en devenant prédatrices, prisonnières alors d'une solitude effrayante.

Mais si l'on souhaite les accompagner et cultiver attentivement leur richesse dimensionnelle, alors elles peuvent vraiment devenir les chenaux et les emblèmes et les forces de la grande source féminine.

Ces femmes ne sont pas nécessairement, selon nos canons d'appréciation formelle, les plus belles ; ce sont celles qui ont identifié en elles-mêmes le don ou la capacité de composer puissamment avec leurs propres données, leurs propres mouvements et leur propre substance, avec la volonté d'y incarner un peu de cette grâce et cette perfection qui soutiennent le monde ; elles sont leurs propres créatrices.

D'être célébrées fait partie de leur destinée et de leur responsabilité.

Les femmes que j'ai connues intimement n'ont pas été d'une grande beauté ; elles ont été, chacune, profondément singulières ; de chacune émanait un charme unique, presque exclusif. Chacune était presque, finalement, le monde.

Aujourd'hui, après beaucoup d'années, j'ai reçu le premier message de ma fille : à l'approche de ses dix-huit ans, et de ce degré d'indépendance, elle me fait savoir qu'elle voudra me rencontrer, et demande une photographie de moi.

Ainsi devrai-je être perçu comme « père » ? Par un être dont mes derniers souvenirs sont ceux d'une infante, d'un amour qui s'ouvrait enfin pour moi sur la Terre, d'une fonte qui pourrait tout centrer de la vie, et qui me fut retirée ; retirée par une sorte de haine ou de défiance coalisée, puisque je n'étais pas en mesure de me plier aux gestes internes d'un rôle et d'une appartenance, puisque je ne pouvais adhérer au drapeau qu'on me tendait, et puisque je n'avais pour sa mère que de l'amitié. Et à cause, enfin, de cette bisexualité que je ne pouvais ni ne voulais embrigader, de cet équivoque que je ne pouvais ni ne voulais tenter de trancher.

19-1-2000, Auroville :

Depuis que je suis rentré mon corps demande beaucoup de sommeil, plus encore qu'avant. Cette sorte de confort énergétique, d'aise et d'immédiateté de l'énergie physique, que j'avais retrouvée avec étonnement durant ce séjour en France, cela s'est dissipé, comme neutralisé, ou alourdi, englué.

Hier soir deux Auroviliens se sont fait vicieusement attaquer à coups de tessons de bouteille dans un bar de Sadarapet par des jeunes du village d'Edayachavadi, qui ont pris la fuite dès que Rama s'est ressaisi et a empoigné une barre de fer pour leur rendre comptant ; trop tard : Mani est sous oxygène et transfusion, le ventre ouvert, et Ponnu a douze points de suture à la jambe.

La violence : la violence physique est au bout de la chaîne, là où le corps est exposé ; le corps, la matière naturalisée, celle d'une fleur, d'une pierre cristalline, celle d'un enfant... L'innocence devient dans notre monde une vulnérabilité.

La violence ne peut se manifester physiquement que lorsque toutes les autres protections ont déjà été trahies et abîmées.

Nous croyons que ces protections sont morales : peut-être, si l'on entend par là le sens incarné de la valeur de toute vie et le respect de toute intégrité. Mais la déperdition de ce respect, la dévalorisation du manifeste, ne sont pas causées par une violence précise : il y a des violences plus sourdes, plus diffuses, plus générales, qui précèdent loin en amont toute violence spécifique et caractérisée.

Tout est solidaire : l'égoïsme et l'ombre, comme le besoin de vérité et d'harmonie.

Et la substance est d'elle-même solidaire en tout, quels que soient nos principes, nos jugements, nos soifs et nos intentions.

Le pillage d'un côté, la démographie de l'autre, sont les deux faces viles et grotesques de l'hydre menaçante qui engendre à chaque seconde plus de désarroi, plus de détresse et plus de désordre.

La question de la violence ne relève plus seulement de la justice sociale.

Alors que j'écrivais cette dernière ligne, un bruit soudain de bâtons frappés durement contre le sol, une frénésie : l'un de nos gars poursuit une petite iguane, essayant de l'assommer : je dois le rappeler à l'ordre d'urgence, et l'iguane s'échappe.

J'ai « dû intervenir »... ce qui nous motive à intervenir est rarement pur. L'instinct, l'indignation, le sens, oui, de la justice ? Quand est-on conscient et de l'acte, de l'origine de l'acte et de ses effets ou conséquences ?

Kr est venu me rejoindre, sur le plus haut gradin de cette grande aire orangée de l'Unité ; le soleil couchant s'épand comme une onde chaleureuse et, devant nous dans la pâleur bleutée du ciel apaisé la lune déjà levée, aux trois quarts pleine, son orbe d'or clair suspendue juste à la droite et un peu au-dessus de la sphère de Matrimandir : native et insolite à la fois, notre sphère d'un monde à devenir, en haut de laquelle flambe déjà la première couvée de disques dorés.

Kr, tout de douceur, son rire simple, à la fois ouvert et contenu, sa tendresse patiente quand il pose sa tête sur mon épaule...

Combien de nos actes, extérieurs ou subtils, sont réellement exempts, dépourvus de violence ?

Nos violences mutuelles sont le plus souvent polies et domestiquées, rôdées comme un jeu d'escrime ou enrobée du poids convenable des sentiments.

L'Inde qui a institué, en un dépérissement millénaire, la violence des castes, a prétendu ce siècle dernier prêcher au monde, par l'exemple d'un seul homme plus chrétien que les évêques de Rome, l'idéal pratique de la non-violence, et l'a exploité jusqu'à trahir dans son corps même la force et la vision de son âme résurgente. L'Inde a laissé ses masses dériver dans l'inertie et la pauvreté de sens et de vie, la pourriture de la pensée.

Comment mesure-t-on l'ampleur de la violence morale ?

Comment calcule-t-on la dévastation produite par un jeûne public, par une immolation, par la volonté délibérée de s'étendre sur les rails au nom d'une cause proclamée ?

Doit-on confondre violence et force d'âme ? Mais la violence n'est-elle pas toujours et en tous les cas force déviée et pervertie ?

De quelles plaies et de quelles blessures doit-on faire le compte au tribunal de toutes les violences infligées ?

21-1-2000, Auroville :

Cette situation ne répond plus aux normes, qui m'est assignée comme une semelle de plomb ; j'y suis ramené, tenu et maintenu, usé, érodé, nettoyé – comment le savoir ? Il y a encore du désespoir et de la révolte ; les pulsions suicidaires affleurent encore, comme ces courants bizarres, ces courants fous qui soudain surgissent de nulle part dans le fond des mers.

Il y a tout, en fait : la gratitude et la certitude et la confiance, le sens puissant du choix central et la réceptivité, et aussi la densité de l'impossibilité, de la question, du tourment et de l'impuissance face à l'obscur perpétuation de la laideur, la misère et la mort.

Il y a la rébellion même contre l'idéal, tel qu'il devient dans notre conscience humaine ; la rage de vivre et de démolir toutes les identités creuses ; le sens de la vanité de tout effort, et de l'abîme absurde entre cette construction collective dans laquelle nous survivons sans joie et la manifestation d'une harmonie vivante où tout vibrerait, où il n'y aurait plus d'inertie ni d'oubli. Et cette affliction de culpabilité devant le monde, d'être si privilégié et pourtant de servir si mal et si peu.

On ne peut pas servir l'humanité : la notion même de service de l'humanité est fallacieuse, car l'humanité n'est encore que l'habitation de maîtres rivaux ou ennemis, un établissement qui a l'égo pour tenancier.

On peut éprouver le besoin de servir le vrai dans l'humanité, de s'unir à cette perception d'une humanité intérieure qui tâtonne et s'efforce sans cesse de s'accomplir ; mais comment le servir bien, ce vrai, tant qu'on ne l'a pas trouvé déjà en soi-même avec cette certitude de contact qui seule permet de ne plus être trompé, égaré, influencé, détourné ?

Il faut bien alors nommer le divin !

Puisque c'est de Cela et de Cela seul qu'il s'agit, originellement, relativement, et ultimement !

Mais comment se débarrasser une fois pour toutes de cette formation si terriblement réductrice d'un dieu séparé du monde – qui n'est que notre propre ego séparé, projeté et sublimé par l'absence ?

Comment communiquer simplement, sans peurs ni prétentions, dans nos vies et nos actes et nos sensations mêmes le sens ou la conscience du miracle permanent ?

Comment partager simplement l'expérience toujours plus évidente que nous sommes le Divin, qu'il n'y a que le Divin – et que notre condition est seulement primitive, embryonnaire, fragmentée ?

C'est Cela qui S'est projeté : de Soi-Même le Divin S'est exposé, S'est manifesté – est devenu tout, tout ce qui est et tous les possibles, la vie, l'esprit, la matière, l'oisillon ; le sein d'une femme, la buée sur la vitre, la douleur dans ton cœur, et toutes ces galaxies. C'est l'évènement, le seul évènement qui se poursuit.

Et alors, cette déflagration, c'est comme un accident, une vaste unique commotion : il faut se retrouver. On est tout éberlué, on est tout ce qu'on voit, sent, touche, devine, éprouve, on est tout ce capharnaüm impossible de réalités séparées, de complexités et d'harmonies incompréhensibles, de chaos ordonnés ; on est répandu, éparpillé, divisé et multiplié, rivé, écrasé, astreint, délivré... On cherche à se souvenir, on lutte pour se réveiller, on est emporté encore, on se heurte et se cogne et, parfois, une seconde, on fond...

Mais il ne s'agit que de Cela ; c'est Cela qui Se réalise : c'est Soi, c'est le Divin qui naît, qui devient.

Alors, c'est le Divin que l'on peut apprendre à servir dans l'humanité.

Il y a tant et tant d'êtres démunis, qui souffrent et chaque jour de la vie doivent s'accrocher, lutter, mendier pour subsister et maintenir leurs dépendants.

Où agir, comment aider ?

C'est dans les pays dits « riches », et dans la plupart des grandes villes du monde, que l'on rencontre une souffrance du bout d'un chemin, d'une impasse brutale, et radicale : là où ont miroité le matérialisme, l'industrialisation, le capitalisme, la démocratie, là où fut érigée comme but de l'existence la poursuite d'un bonheur extérieur... Et beaucoup de cette souffrance est éprouvé dans et par le regard de l'autre – le regard du nanti sur le démuné -, l'absence soudaine, la fermeture...

Car la chute est une dénonciation ! Plus elle est visible et plus elle remet tout en question !

24-1-2000, Auroville :

Depuis près de 30 ans je suis attaché à l'exécution d'un projet qui est probablement, objectivement, le plus beau du monde contemporain ; et ceci dans un contexte encore unique, dont la fondation est une aspiration libre au plus haut, au plus vrai, au plus conscient, dans la vie même et tous ses mouvements.

C'est un privilège si formidable que la pensée, qui ne peut que mesurer et comparer, se sent écrasée : on se précipite dans le détail, comme l'autruche fourre sa tête dans le sable.

Le plus beau du monde...

J'ai vu en France plusieurs grands projets qui m'ont touché : quand la grandeur et l'envergure de la vision, alliées à la maîtrise des techniques, aboutit à un vertigineux déséquilibre, ce besoin de rétablir une dimension humaine, une modulation de l'espace où le corps humain puisse recouvrer son rythme et sa relation vivante à l'infini.

Mais aucun de ces projets, ni aucun de ceux de par le monde dont j'ai vu les photographies ou lu les descriptions, n'émane d'une vision centrale qui percevrait la place et la fonction justes de chaque élément et de chaque relation. Ils naissent tous d'une idée, d'un fragment de compréhension, d'une nécessité particulière magnifiée, d'une volonté ou d'une association de volontés limitées.

Ici le noyau de l'entreprise est un avec la simplicité essentielle, revisitée par une expérience profondément nouvelle, qui fonde, anime et habite tous les grands symboles et tous les rythmes premiers ; cette simplicité créative qui est identique au cœur de l'expérience spirituelle, comme au cœur organique de la vie, comme au centre atomique de toute expansion matérielle.

Et c'est seulement dans la sécurité de cette essentielle simplicité qu'une richesse, une complexité, une prospérité de formes et d'attributs peut se créer, s'épandre et augmenter : une création vraiment génératrice, dont le souffle ne peut être récupéré ni usurpé...

Pourtant, si beau, si vaste et si profond soit le symbole autour duquel nous nous réunissons, si éternelle et puissante soit la référence donnée à nos progrès et nos actes, notre bagage est encore si obscur que notre service et notre aspiration en demeurent les otages et continuent de s'y engluer.

Comme nous tordons, durcissons, divisons, comme nous argumentons, découpons, réduisons, comme nous nivelons, pillons, trompons, méprisons, oublions, marchandons, et d'autant plus douloureusement que nous sommes plus près de la beauté et du souffle qui cherchent à se manifester !

Comme cette beauté même nous plonge à la racine même de toutes les résistances et de tous les vols : car notre ego, tout bon instrument qu'il fut, est le grand voleur, le malin pilleur qui n'aurait de cesse qu'il ait tout reconquis à son image, tout violé et détourné pour se grossir !

Et ces années de privilège sont aussi celles d'une complexification à la limite du supportable, où se résume toute la difficulté évolutive : et ici aussi l'on arrive au bout du monde, au bout de l'ego !

Face à la seule question brûlante, d'une évidence presque à hurler ; il n'y a plus rien qui ne soit la question : comment passer ?

Physiquement ?

Ici ?

« Il faut être toujours plus grand que l'expérience »...

Là se trouve la sécurité : de ne pas devenir fou, idiot ou débile, de ne pas céder à l'impulsion d'une destruction facile, de se centrer dans le grand silence qui regarde, la grande liberté qui aime, et le rire de Cela.

25-1-2000, Auroville :

Qu'est-ce donc, vraiment, qu'un « pays sous-développé », ou, selon cet euphémisme poli, un « pays en voie de développement » ?

Avec un peu d'honnêteté et d'objectivité historique, il faut bien admettre qu'il s'agit de pays et de peuples dont le développement naturel, c'est-à-dire le développement issu de leur culture propre et de son évolution interne, a été enrayé, entravé ou colonisé, dominé, désorienté et persuadé ou forcé par des moules de pensée et des systèmes de valeurs et de motivations qui leur étaient étrangers.

C'est ainsi que tous nos jugements et toutes nos évaluations sont faussés et viciés.

Et il me semble que notre seul espoir terrestre collectif se situe désormais quelque part au-delà d'une première et générale bâtarde.

Et qu'il est vain, comme une bataille perdue d'avance, de soutenir l'effort, qu'une complicité hypocrite rend à la mode, de retrouver chacun ses racines culturelles « authentiques » et de recouvrer chacun son identité historique : il est désormais trop tard pour cela.

Il vaudrait beaucoup mieux pour la Terre entière que l'on s'efforce de répondre à cette violence devenue banale et ordinaire qui s'inscrit dans tant de nos gestes : ce geste de jeter les ordures ménagères dans la rue, ou les restes polluants d'une entreprise industrielle dans la rivière, ou ce geste de battre l'enfant, ou de rejeter dans l'océan des milliers de poissons morts, ou celui de clouer un panneau de propagande dans le tronc vivant d'un arbre.

Et que l'on s'efforce de répondre aussi à cette violence plus subtile et plus délibérée encore, plus froidement intéressée, qui se répand comme un tissage ou une grille de plus dans un nombre croissant de situations et de circonstances : les pratiques publicitaires.

Cette Terre d'aujourd'hui a besoin d'hommes et de femmes désintéressés qui se mettent au service d'une éthique nouvelle, une éthique commune à l'humanité entière, en la percevant déjà, puis en la définissant simplement et en la vivant, la répandant, avec les moyens du bord.

Dans les villages ici les animaux domestiques sont le plus souvent négligés, sinon maltraités ; quant aux chats et aux chiens, ils prolifèrent sans aucun soin et se débrouillent comme ils peuvent dans le sillage des humains, sont battus et se battent entre eux – et les cas de rage augmentent à nouveau.

Ce matin nous avons trouvé dans un terrier creusé par leur mère non loin des travaux d'excavation huit chiots à peine nés, leurs yeux encore clos.

Avant que s'ouvrent les yeux les chiots, et les petits en général, sont encore seulement à mi-chemin du passage dans la définition physique du monde matériel ; le seul changement important qui soit intervenu dans leur expérience sensorielle, est une première découverte diffuse de l'espace et, dans cet espace, l'acte de téter : leur organisme a juste commencé de fonctionner de manière autonome, mais ils reconstituent l'atmosphère connue en demeurant serrés les uns contre les autres ou se rassemblant dans la chaleur ambiante du corps de la mère pendant la tétée. Ils pourraient encore retourner dans la poche amniotique et s'y réadapter.

Ainsi est-il encore possible de les noyer sans violence.

Quand on les plonge doucement dans l'eau, ils retrouvent la respiration fœtale et, sans se débattre, continuent longtemps de se mouvoir ; ce matin, Somu et moi avons compté plus d'une demi heure avant qu'ils ne s'immobilisent tout à fait, dans le grand étang ensoleillé d'Irumbai.

Il n'est pas facile d'être certain que tel acte soit légitime ; par associations ou glissements, et une sorte de contiguïté, on pourrait justifier d'autres actes autrement motivés : l'existence physique pose cette sorte de questions presque à chaque instant...

Quelles sont les alternatives à ce « meurtre », dans la situation locale présente ?

Ne pas intervenir revient à accepter passivement le danger croissant de contamination de la rage, comme l'augmentation exponentielle des chiens errants et mal nourris, transmetteurs de germes, maraudeurs et rendus parfois agressifs par les mauvais traitements qu'ils reçoivent.

Inoculer chacun des huit chiots ainsi que la mère, puis stériliser la mère, puis s'assurer que chacun d'eux trouve un foyer relativement stable, est simplement impraticable dans le milieu économique et social environnant...

Nous aurions pu aussi tenter ce matin, par quelque ruse, d'attirer la mère chienne jusque dans la camionnette avec ses petits et de les emmener dans une forêt où elle pourrait chasser pour les nourrir et les élever jusqu'à ce qu'ils puissent à leur tour subsister et survivre ; mais de telles forêts n'existent presque plus dans la région.

J'étais prêt pourtant, ce matin, à tenter la chance ; je m'étais approché du terrier avec un plat de nourriture pour attirer la mère chienne jusqu'à la camionnette ; les huit petits étaient blottis contre elle, juste après la tétée ; mais elle n'a pas bougé ; elle m'a seulement regardé : nous nous sommes longtemps regardé ; c'était tout à fait tranquille ; il n'était pas question de lui mentir : soit elle venait et ce serait dur pour elle de subsister ; soit je prenais les petits pour les renvoyer « de l'autre côté ». Il n'y avait aucune peur dans ce regard.

Je ne sais pas s'il s'agit seulement là de confiance, au sens où nous l'entendons dans les relations humaines. Je crois que c'est plus que cela, et que c'est d'une qualité dont nous ne sommes pas capables, mais dont nous devrions pourtant être dignes.

Elle n'est pas venue. J'ai commencé d'ouvrir les bords de la tanière, tout doucement pour ne pas les ensevelir ; elle s'est de suite dégagée de ses petits, s'est ébrouée, et s'en est allée loin de nous ; même quand j'ai eu déposé les petits dans un sac ouvert à l'arrière de la camionnette, avec le même plat de nourriture à côté d'eux, elle n'a pas voulu venir.

Maintenant, elle cherche ses petits ; les cherche-t-elle vraiment, ou est-ce seulement le besoin physiologique qui la pousse à les chercher quand même, parce que son corps produit encore le lait qui leur est destiné ?

Si je la regarde maintenant, elle ne m'en veut pas.

Si je me sentais coupable, si mon acte avait une ombre, alors dans cette ombre serait-il possible de contempler la possibilité d'actes similaires, ou analogues, mais à une autre échelle... Pourrais-je faire ce même choix, dans des circonstances extrêmes, pour des petits d'homme ? Des enfants, des nourrissons ? Serais-je capable de noyer des bébés qui viennent de naître ?

Selon quelle éthique doit-on s'orienter ?

Une première éthique, « traditionnelle », est le commandement presque universel : « Tu ne tueras pas ».

La deuxième éthique, que l'on est obligé de nommer « personnelle », plonge dans le verbe « aimer », dans l'apprentissage de la loi de l'amour...

26-1-2000, Auroville :

Dans l'Inde traditionnelle le commandement de ne pas tuer s'applique non seulement à son prochain mais à toute créature ; il est même enjoint aux adhérents de certaines lignées morales et religieuses, telle celle du Jâinisme, d'être scrupuleux au point d'épargner la vie, autant que faire se peut, aux plus petits des insectes.

C'est pourtant dans l'Inde aussi que certaines orthodoxies astreignent, encore de nos jours, la veuve à se jeter dans la bûche crématoire de son époux décédé.

Et c'est dans l'Inde qu'encore, rituellement si possible, l'on pratique le meurtre des infantes (les nourrissons de sexe féminin), pratique due à l'esclavage économique à la coutume de la dot, coutume dont l'Inde n'a pas encore la vigueur de se défaire.

Dans les villages de notre région immédiate ne résident plus que les membres des castes les plus inférieures et ceux qui sont « hors castes », dans des colonies adjacentes.

Aucun parmi eux ne serait en mesure de décider de noyer les petits d'une seule de ces milliers de chiennes errantes qui reçoivent plus de cailloux que de nourriture – par crainte de la colère des dieux, ou de la vengeance des esprits, ou d'un retour de mauvaise fortune...

Quant aux animaux domestiques dont ils dépendent pour leur subsistance, tels les vaches à lait, les bœufs de faix ou de labour, les chèvres, les cochons, les volailles, ils ne reçoivent d'eux que les égards dus à leur rendement ; les bœufs en particulier sont fréquemment maltraités jusqu'à l'épuisement et il est bien rare qu'ils reçoivent le moindre signe d'affection, même si leur possession confère pourtant un statut social et leur disparition soudaine est économiquement désastreuse.

Il en va de même dans la famille même : l'homme considère de son droit de frapper sa femme lorsqu'elle ne remplit pas ses devoirs comme il l'entend.

Il me semble que le temps n'est plus aux études sociologiques : les plus démunis sont les plus nombreux.

Il s'agit d'une érosion collective : l'érosion du respect du manifesté.

Du respect des formes et des corps, du respect de la matière, du respect de l'autre.

Et cette érosion opère par le bas, par la masse de notre humanité, mais elle opère aussi par le haut, précisément à travers les éléments que nous estimons les plus développés : les politiciens, les technocrates, les propagandistes et exploitants de la science, les financiers.

Que ce soit par le bas ou par le haut, les formes que prend la vie reçoivent de moins en moins d'amour et sont de moins en moins respectées : utilisées, marchandées, exploitées, altérées, forcées, usées, consommées, galvaudées, souillées, partout, par tous, de toutes les manières connues et de nouvelles manières aussi, oui – mais aimées ?

L'on peut bien parler du malaise existentiel !

Nous sommes tous solidaires dans le mépris obscur et la déchéance !

Kusum est tombée il y a deux jours ; elle a encore mal.

31-1-2000, Auroville :

... Ce n'est pas que je perde le contact intérieur, mais plutôt que je ne trouve plus dans quel mouvement, dans quelle discipline, dans quel engagement le servir.

Cela fait comme un trou de tristesse ; presque le sentiment d'une incompatibilité qui grandit.

Il me semble aussi être absorbé dans un passage, une sorte de révolution : pas exactement un retournement, mais un mouvement circulaire ou sphérique très profond, plus profond que les sentiments ou les perceptions qui peuvent être formulées ; cela brasse du temps, le sens même du temps ; cela touche à l'expérience du temps dans le corps même ; il y a là comme une nécessité de se détacher, de se défaire de l'emprise du temps linéaire ; comme si, sans cela, on ne pourra jamais rien « faire » de bon, tout sera inévitablement et perpétuellement récupéré, réduit et dissous.

Comme si tout au fond, là, profondément obstrué ou empêché, ou difficile d'accès, mais souverainement là, en attente, absolu, se tenait le vrai présent.

Et que d'y parvenir, de s'y rendre, était la seule chose nécessaire, ou la première chose nécessaire, la condition pour que s'ouvre enfin un autre possible.

Et je me trouve dans ce passage, comme coincé juste là dans l'entrée d'un tunnel, d'un goulet, retenu par une quantité de « choses » : mes désirs, mon sens du devoir, de la solidarité, de la responsabilité, mon besoin de créer, ou même d'offrir ; même mon aspiration, ou mon engagement d'harmonie et d'ordre ; même mon sens d'appartenir à une aventure collective ; tout cela me retient comme un bagage, ou un encombrement, une pesanteur ajoutée.

D'un côté, tout ici me semble petit, étriqué, rigide, artificiel.

Et pour rejoindre l'autre côté où tout est un, une seule cohésion infinie toujours consciente d'elle-même, je suis trop fragmenté, trop dissipé ou morcelé pour passer.

Je viens de terminer la lecture du livre de Lise Thouin (la nouvelle compagne de Daniel Meurois) ; c'est passionnant, avec beaucoup d'honnêteté, d'ampleur et de don ; il y a eu dans ce livre un ou deux moments qui m'ont ému aux larmes, tout comme j'ai été ému à plusieurs reprises, intensément, étonnamment, pendant mon séjour en France, à des instants de films ou d'un livre d'Izzo.

Cette émotion est d'une telle force qu'on ne peut plus la nommer ; c'est porté par une vague qui traverse les vies, qui transcende justement ce temps linéaire.

Ce que ces instants ont en commun, c'est qu'ils canalisent ou laissent affleurer à peu près intacte l'expérience d'une perfection de don, d'une synchronie de reconnaissance, d'une gratuité d'aimer – car la perfection n'est pas un fait immobile : c'est un maximum d'intégrité dans l'instant même, un maximum qui ne compte plus, ne calcule plus, ne veut plus rien, mais se donne et, se donnant, voit juste et agit juste. Et souvent ces instants là se manifestent circulairement ; c'est-à-dire qu'il y a un, ou deux êtres, et il y a aussi un nombre, une foule, un écho immédiat, une substance en résonance où la même vague est perçue simultanément ; comme si l'on retrouvait là, alors, l'acte d'amour essentiel de la multiplicité.

Et pourtant, ce livre est encore presque une surface, ou un abord : une silhouette entrevue à travers un milieu qui demeure exclusif et séparé.

Toute ma vie j'ai été « bon public » : du moment où j'accroche, je me laisse coloniser, impressionner.

J'ai longtemps cru que c'était un travers qu'il faudrait corriger, que cela ne pouvait que me rendre influençable, une proie de tous les envahissements incapable de s'orienter, incapable même de fidélité. Puis j'ai appris à me fier à un autre centre de perception et j'ai découvert que je comprenais mieux et plus profondément les êtres et les choses en me laissant envahir et en les devenant ; et que ce phénomène, si je le laissais se produire sans chercher à le contrôler, était momentané, c'est-à-dire qu'il avait à chaque fois sa propre durée. Et que si je me gardais d'intervenir et ne me hâtais pas de recouvrer mon propre discernement actif, et demeurais tranquillement disponible en laissant le mouvement s'accomplir, se clore et se retirer, alors se formait très simplement une évaluation plus compréhensive, sans effort, attentive, où les choses sont situées à leur place relative dans le mouvement général.

1-2-2000, Auroville :

On oublie toujours que les seuls progrès qui comptent, qui contribuent vraiment à l'évolution, sont d'abord et avant tout des progrès de conscience : on devient plus conscient – et conscient de plus ! Et naturellement il faut assimiler ce plus et s'y donner, car ce plus nous change dans notre être même : la conscience EST !

Nous avons beaucoup d'instruments, de plus en plus d'instruments ; ce que nous n'avons pas, ce qui fait de nous, malgré toute notre panoplie, des handicapés et des infirmes, c'est que nous n'avons pas développé la capacité consciente d'utiliser ces outils et ces instruments.

Et il faut s'entendre : « capacité consciente » ne signifie pas « délibérée » !

« Délibérée » implique une volonté séparée qui est déterminée à influencer, et cette volonté peut être issue du plus sombre égoïsme !

Alors que « capacité consciente » signifie l'aptitude à s'unir à la vision, l'amplitude, la sûreté de la perception, de l'unité de la conscience.

Aujourd'hui nous avons à notre disposition une pléthore de machines et nos outils, se perfectionnant, en inventent d'autres ; et pourtant combien parmi nous savent vraiment penser ?

Combien parmi nous ont, par exemple, effectivement exploré et maîtrisé la faculté mentale de l'intuition, au-dessus de la logique et de la raison ?

Ou encore, combien parmi nous sont-ils en mesure de manier les vibrations vitales de telle manière, par exemple, à établir ou rétablir l'harmonie ?

Quand je me suis retrouvé largué dans les rues de Paris ou Bordeaux, je me suis donc trouvé à nouveau au sein de ce qu'il est convenu de nommer une société affluente ; on ne peut guère concevoir un contraste plus saisissant, de la rue d'un village de l'Inde à une rue de Paris. Mais finalement, les différences ne sont pas là vraiment.

Prenons l'éducation : il est certain que le nombre de ceux qui ont la possibilité de recevoir une nourriture éducative élaborée est proportionnellement plus grand en Occident que dans l'Inde.

Pourtant si l'on attend de l'éducation qu'elle prépare l'individu à l'expérience du monde et l'équipe pour sa participation à venir, la comparaison est moins concluante.

Il me semble plutôt que le désarroi est assez bien réparti !

Et que l'éducation moderne telle qu'elle est encore généralement conçue ne prépare guère plus l'individu à embrasser le monde et s'y donner en avant et consciemment que la perpétuation rigide de traditions sclérosées sous la menace d'un modèle d'abondance occidentale.

Et, finalement, dans une situation extrême, entre le jeune universitaire diplômé d'une faculté française, et le jeune apprenti, cinquième enfant d'une famille de huit au père alcoolique, à la mère épuisée, qui n'a que deux chemises de rechange et un coin de terre battue pour dormir, qui saura le mieux s'adapter et générer en avant les qualités et capacités de cœur et d'instinct ?

Kireetbhai a si généreusement parlé des fondements d'une éducation plus profondément vraie et utile à la Terre.

Je regarde toutes ces grandes questions, et je mesure la diversité de toutes ces occasions manquées, auxquelles je continue de manquer chaque jour, de pratiquer la culture d'une richesse de vie véritable, de développer ces facultés et ces capacités qui combleraient le déséquilibre du monde ; je regarde et j'éprouve, et voilà : comme une grande épée plantée dans le milieu de tout, une terrible vibration du manque et du dérisoire, le sens insupportable d'une déviation, d'une déformation, d'une absurdité logée dans la vie même : le phénomène de la mort !

Que la mort soit pour tous le seul fait invariable de l'expérience humaine ; que la mort ait usurpé ce rôle de l'absolu !

Que la mort soit la conclusion identique pour tous, quels que soient les parcours, les accomplissements, les développements, ou les défaites et les parjures !

Que la mort soit l'inévitable point final de toute aventure, déjà inscrit dans le premier instant !

La spiritualité a semblé nous enseigner une distance et un détachement de notre état matériel au profit d'une identification intérieure à une dimension de soi qui demeurerait égale indépendamment du corps, qui nous libèrerait en même temps de l'illusion de nos vœux de créatures séparées, nous permettant ainsi de traiter avec le monde, pour le reste du temps de nos corps, avec une bienveillance éclairée et une prière pour la libération de tous.

Ainsi la spiritualité a-t-elle, en principe et dans son ensemble, accepté la mort – accepté le fait de la mort, et de la limitation de la manifestation, et l'a presque légitimé.

Ceux qui ne pouvaient renoncer à la quête du principe de l'immortalité ont été ressentis par l'élite spirituelle comme des ambitieux assoiffés d'illusion.

Pourtant, qu'il ait été étouffé ou détourné, mythifié ou méprisé, le débat originel se poursuit avec une acuité plus grande d'avoir été ignoré.

Mais que comprenons-nous par « immortalité » ?

Souhaitons-nous seulement déjouer les lois de la nature physique et prolonger indéfiniment le temps de notre jouissance égoïste et perpétuer indéfiniment notre propre réalisation séparée ?

Il y a encore un tel abîme entre la vie de la matière et ce que nous éprouvons comme notre vie. Nous mesurons cet abîme, cette distance, par nos microscopes, nos accélérateurs atomiques, nos fusées, nos éprouvettes, nos théories ; nous jalonnons cette distance de nos repères, nous l'affublons de nos lois, nous la fixons. Il arrive heureusement que ces lois volent en éclats, car nos logiques ont des failles et ne peuvent rendre compte de tous les comportements de la matière observée ; plus nous l'observons, en fait, et tentons de pénétrer son mystère, et plus elle se dérobe et nous force à l'implosion de notre pensée.

Il y a ceux parmi nous qui portent cette foi entièrement déraisonnable : que quelque part dans l'être, physiquement, consciemment, se cache encore et nous attend le secret d'un état Un.

Un état qui est à la fois matériel, pure matière, et spirituel, pure divinité.

On serait tenté de dire qu'il se cache dans nos corps ; mais ce n'est pas qu'il faille le traquer dans la géographie interne de nos organes ou de nos veines, ni même que sa clé soit inscrite dans tel assemblage de neurones ou qu'on puisse jamais le déchiffrer dans la composition symétrique d'une cellule.

Il y a seulement, ou presque, la certitude que c'est là, qu'il est là, ce secret.

Et qu'il nous faut seulement développer comme une antenne chercheuse, un nouveau sens qui nous oriente vers ce centre vibrant qui attend, une antenne toute nourrie de notre besoin clair, de vérité, d'unité, de plénitude, et d'une Présence que plus rien ne puisse contredire, pas même la mort.

Mais pour développer cette antenne au sein silencieux de l'expérience de chaque instant, un énorme déblayage est nécessaire.

Il nous faut « renoncer » à beaucoup de nos acquis de créatures sociales et civilisées, à beaucoup de nos habitudes et de ce que nous appelons avec indulgence nos instincts.

On est mis très vite en présence d'une condition assez rude ; c'est peut-être la porte étroite ou terrifiante des légendes, c'est la mort de l'image de soi, c'est la destruction de l'identité, c'est la mort de l'ego et de sa relation intime à la mort, c'est le « mourir à la mort ».

Car pour parvenir à ce point d'épreuve il faut déjà s'être donné à une intensité de flamme silencieuse, et à une fréquence d'appel telle que l'on peut déjà s'offrir sans réserves à une éternité de transformation !

Parce que, voilà : la seule réponse à la mort, la seule alternative à la dissolution et l'inévitabilité de la désagrégation, est une éternité, une continuité de transformation, un continuum de devenir : le continuum intégral du devenir.

Mais aucune individualité, si vaste et grande soit-elle, n'a la capacité, le pouvoir et la vision de cette éternité de changement !

C'est là, c'est alors, que la vérité des choses éclate comme un rire !

La boucle est bouclée, et toutes les philosophies se mordent la queue !

C'est si simple, et si évident !

L'éternité n'est possible qu'à cet être qui peut s'unir entièrement, absolument, intégralement à la conscience, sans plus vouloir aucunement demeurer séparé !

Car c'est la volonté même de préserver et perpétuer une identité séparée, quelle qu'elle soit, qui provoque et produit une césure, qui inscrit la séparation dans la résonance matérielle ; le temps même est divisé et distribué, et devient le lieu de la représentation symbolique de l'expérience : la conception, la naissance, la croissance, la maturité, le déclin et la dissolution – de l'universel à l'universel en passant par la forme, où momentanément se rejoignent le plus subtil et le plus matériel...

C'est là que se pose la question du temps du yoga.

Nous sommes dans l'évolution, nous en faisons partie ; la Terre est un lieu d'évolution.

Nous pouvons, au terme de quelque discipline, nous réfugier sur les hauts plateaux d'une réalisation statique, typale, parfaite là où elle nous a hissés, mais partielle.

Nous avons aussi le « droit » de prendre des vacances : nous avons le choix dans l'éventail des plans et des réalités, dont la subtilité croît ou décroît selon notre point de vue ou notre perspective. Nous pouvons nous procurer les moyens d'accéder à des niveaux d'expérience remarquables...

Mais l'incontournable, l' inexplicable fait demeure : c'est sur la Terre et dans le corps que se fraye le chemin central, nulle part ailleurs !

4-2-2000, Auroville :

Ainsi se pose la question du yoga.

Peut-être l'évolution a-t-elle, tout comme soi-même ou comme la cellule, des niveaux, des degrés et des dimensions.

Collectivement nous ne l'avons longtemps saisie que dans sa réalité naturelle : l'irrésistible et infaillible force de la Nature, dont le milieu spatio-temporel nous porte, nous situe et nous englobe ; notre expérience est pétrie et conditionnée par son omniprésence ; et lorsque nous sommes parvenus à une relative maîtrise de ses immenses ressources, quand nous l'avons ici et là partiellement harnachée à notre entreprise civilisatrice, nous la retrouvons plus insaisissable et mystérieuse encore par-delà les miroirs et les signes codés des mécanismes subtils qui semblent constituer la base première de la vie matérielle ; pareille au mirage d'une ultime conquête elle nous tente et nous invite et entraîne notre volonté insatiable de contrôle jusque dans les atomes et les gènes.

6-2-2000, Auroville :

Dans le règne de la Nature, tout comme les plantes et les minéraux, les animaux sont libres de ce fardeau que nous sommes seuls, semble-t-il, à porter : le sens du temps.

Les animaux et la plupart des végétaux naissent, croissent et se développent, se maintiennent dans la maturité d'une pleine vigueur et, passée une certaine apogée d'expression, diminuent, dépérissent et se décomposent.

Les minéraux, à moins d'une intervention mécanique extérieure, semblent participer d'une continuité de rythme évolutif d'où la mort est exclue

Les plantes sont soumises à une courbe inéluctable : venues de l'invisible elles retournent à l'invisible ; et les animaux ont l'expérience de la mort, car ce n'est plus seulement que la sève graduellement se tarit, se fige et s'absente : c'est leur corps individuel qui, d'un instant à l'autre, est atteint de mort.

Il est pourtant clair que ni les végétaux ni les animaux ne sont affectés par le sens du passage du temps comme nous le sommes ; et c'est l'activation de la pensée et de la capacité de se représenter les choses et de les anticiper, les comparer et les évaluer, qui est responsable dans notre expérience de la dramatisation de la mort.

Il semble ainsi que plus la créature est complexe et plus elle acquiert le sens de son individualité et de son unicité, et plus poignante est la mort.

Nous existons dans le croisement de deux feux.

L'observation instrumentale commune d'une réalité objective relativement stable dont la constance équivaut pour nous à une éternité, nous maintient au niveau des espèces, pour lesquelles le temps et la mort ne sont que des incidences rythmiques. Tandis que l'expérience psychologique subjective de notre vie et de celle d'autrui nous expose à l'acuité de questions insolubles et nous précipite à des frontières dimensionnelles où le temps et l'espace, la matière, la conscience et la mort parfois se contredisent, parfois se confondent.

8-2-2000, Auroville :

Nous sommes autant de discordances.

L'animal à chaque instant de sa vie est un alignement parfait ; son rythme est un, sans disparité ni brisure ; l'animal n'est pas tourmenté par le passage du temps ; il n'anticipe pas séparément la venue de la mort : son instinct est la garantie de son intégrité d'expérience.

9-2-2000, Auroville :

Il est bien plus facile d'être fidèle quand on est de passage !

Dés que l'on s'implique et se situe dans un contexte particulier, quel que soit le discernement dont nous soyons capable et qu'on le veuille ou non, on entre dans un jeu de réponses, de réactions et d'échos qui se saisissent de notre image, s'adressent à notre personnalité frontale et la ciblent.

Et c'est précisément là que l'on sait combien l'on a besoin de temps, d'un temps donné et sûr, d'un temps sans mort, pour accomplir des progrès véritables, des progrès qui s'incarnent dans la substance et la matière, des progrès qui deviennent de réels acquis sur le chemin de la manifestation consciente.

L'on comprend profondément que la première réalisation nécessaire, à la fois objectivement et subjectivement, pour que s'opère dans l'humanité sur la Terre le passage à un autre Etat, est la conquête d'une durée indéfinie pour la vie du corps : de la possibilité de maintenir l'agrégat individuel en travail aussi longtemps que cela est centralement perçu comme bon et utile.

C'est le principe d'une victoire sur l'arbitraire de la mort.

Krishna a quitté son corps – ou son corps l'a quitté ?

D'après Agnès et Gopal, cela s'est passé il y a trois jours, le 10 au soir, à 23 h.

Selon eux, Krishna avait demandé à ce que personne ne soit informé avant cinq jours, et il avait choisi l'endroit du jardin où son corps devrait être enterré.

Et ainsi, je ne l'ai pas revu.

Il a souffert. Je sais très peu, extérieurement, de sa lutte ; j'ai cru comprendre que cela avait commencé il y a deux ans, avec un cancer du pancréas.

Une semaine avant son départ, il s'était déplacé jusque chez Ganga, pour lui demander de l'eau dynamisée ; il n'avait plus que la peau sur les os, et des prothèses à la place de plusieurs organes, me dit-on ; mais, comme le dit Ar., il aura jusqu'au dernier moment voulu garder le contrôle sur ses proches – sur les deux êtres qu'il n'avait pas encore rejetés.

Mais la « mort » de Krishna est une impossibilité : c'est absurde et imbécile !

Le pire qui pouvait nous arriver à tous les deux est arrivé effectivement, il y a déjà combien d'années, quand cette mégalomanie en lui, associée à une forme de terrorisme, qui l'a peu à peu écarté de lui-même, et en moi une dureté, une sorte de petitesse ou de peur égoïste, ont fermé pour notre amour ensemble la possibilité de se manifester en avant.

Pourtant je sais bien qu'à travers tout son choix de demeurer ici, tout près, le plus près possible, juste au-delà d'un jet de pierre, est un avec cet amour – cet amour qu'il nous faudra redécouvrir et retrouver autrement ; et que les autres, peut-être tous les autres, n'y comprennent presque rien.

Tu m'as nommé. Tu l'as nommé.

Il faut marcher. Il faut que quelque chose vraiment s'établisse.

Tout cela est inacceptable.

Comment incarner cet équilibre inconnu, cette force d'équilibre consciente, cette lucidité puissante dans la matière ?

Il faut le faire ; il faut le faire !

Quand on s'installe et fait sa demeure principale dans le mental – comme ces savants qui jusque dans le métro poursuivent l'écheveau subtil de leurs équations ou partent à la trace de nouvelles hypothèses en regardant la goutte perler sur la vitre ou l'improbable symétrie de l'eau soulevée par la poussée du chaland dans la rivière -, l'on tend à relativiser la primauté de la condition physique et matérielle, et l'on peut être amené à confondre les frontières et attribuer une valeur de concret à des expériences qui se situent pourtant dans un plan subtil.

Il est par exemple de plus en plus fréquent que l'on se trouve disposé à accepter l'éventualité d'autres modes de développement physique dans l'univers, d'êtres plus conscients que nous le sommes sur la Terre.

Peut-être est-ce pour nous sauver de cette sorte de confusion qu'on se cogne à l'armoire ou rate la marche en sortant vider la poubelle, qu'on a un furoncle ou une rage de dents et tout va de travers...

15-2-2000, Auroville :

On tourne autour de la Question, on la regarde d'un angle puis d'un autre, on la contemple ; elle se nourrit de notre tremblement de créature comme de notre besoin.

La Question est au milieu.

C'est un Feu.

C'est une transcendance là, au centre de l'espace et du temps, vivante, vibrante, flamboyante, crépitante – ou silencieuse comme l'apparence d'un vide, d'un grand trou au cœur de tout.

Une flamme que l'on dirait parfois noire, que l'on devine à peine et qui pourtant dévaste toutes nos certitudes.

Ce n'est pas un contraire : c'est au-delà des contraires.

C'est ce qui existe entre l'origine et ce que nous sommes, et ce qui attend entre ce que nous sommes et le but, la vraie naissance.

Quand on prendra corps dans la vraie matière, celle qui ne trompe plus, ne se retire plus, ne trahit plus, ne se défait plus, n'inflige plus ni masques ni lourdeurs, celle qui tient la charge, qui croît, une densité de lumière sans contradiction.

C'est là que nous allons.

C'est là qu'il est bon et juste d'aller !

Le Vaste, l'Exact et le Vrai !

Nous sommes encore des singes ; et, à peine, des pointillés. Dans cet esclavage linéaire nous n'existons que çà et là, presque accidentellement ; jamais entièrement, jamais pleinement, jamais uniment. Et c'est ce temps-là, ce faux temps, qui use.

G.F m'écrit que mon manuscrit a encore été refusé deux fois.

Et, comme irrésistiblement, je me trouve en train d'écrire à nouveau, inutilement ; c'était inutile, c'est inutile, ce sera inutile : une conjugaison qui annule...

16-2-2000, Auroville :

Je lis dans le journal la revue de deux ouvrages scientifiques récents qui suggèrent que la mort, contrairement à ce qui est dit jusqu'à présent, n'est ni un phénomène inéluctable, ni le processus le plus logique, se référant aussi bien à certains végétaux comme l'if et le séquoia, qu'à certains poissons et mollusques ; et qu'il nous faut avant tout travailler à défaire l'inscription erronée des justifications et légitimations de la mort que la religion, la morale, la philosophie et la science ont fournies à l'humanité afin qu'elle accepte l'inévitable.

Si l'on tente d'observer le phénomène de la mort en tant que fonction naturelle – l'abdication par l'organisme de sa volonté à demeurer et persévérer en tant qu'agrégat ou communauté -, c'est au terme d'une dégénérescence ou d'une atteinte trop considérable à l'intégrité du corps qu'il nous faut le faire, là où cela semble être la conclusion et le choix les plus sages.

Mais il semble maintenant, d'après les nouvelles découvertes, que la dégénérescence – le vieillissement, par exemple - ne soit en fait produite que par une action positive soutenue, qui elle ne relève pas d'une fatalité biologique ou génétique, mais d'une intervention qui pourrait en principe être combattue ou même évitée.

Dans les tropiques on est plus qu'ailleurs confrontés à l'ambivalence de l'eau : l'eau vie, oui, mais aussi, presque simultanément et dans une profusion de métamorphoses, l'eau pourrissante, l'eau putride, l'eau effervescente, l'eau génératrice de monstres parasites, l'eau qui alourdit et vulnérabilise, l'eau qui mine, envahit et accable.

Les légendes d'un paradis terrestre se réfèrent souvent à des lieux d'altitude, plus hauts que les nuages, qui contiennent enchâssée par leurs cimes comme une concentration privilégiée de formes de vie, une opulence contrôlée, une abondance maîtrisée, tel un puits de miel préservé et goûté avec infiniment de soin et de conscience.

Et c'est bien ainsi que le corps voudrait exister, c'est bien à ces rythmes qu'il voudrait s'allier, comme un souvenir de temps si reculés où la Terre s'ouvrait et s'offrait en une communication multiples vibrante : un air sec et limpide pour base, des forées ponctuelles aux berceaux de la vie, des missions contemplatives aux rives océanes ; le sens d'une frugalité vigoureuse, nourrie d'air, de lumière et d'espace, une union sensible et révérente du petit corps au grand corps et à l'univers.

17-2-2000, Auroville :

Il y a comme un vide qui s'est formé : je ne sais pas où servir...

Je voudrais que le Seigneur me dise : « Fais ça ! »

Mais Il ne dit rien.

Alors, partir marcher ?

La tentation du sannyasin ?

Et puis la solitude du corps est une chose difficile. Partager l'univers dans une caresse, sans le drame ni les rôles ni l'histoire ni le poids de soi et de l'autre : c'est ainsi que je sens plus d'affinité pour ceux que l'on taxe de promiscuité que pour ceux qui prétendent à la « pureté » ! Je ne comprends toujours pas, en fait, pourquoi la sexualité devrait s'excuser, se justifier, s'enrégimenter, se neutraliser, être contrôlée !

18-2-2000, Auroville :

Ce qui m'empêche d'accepter avec confiance cette apparence de « rien » dans laquelle je me trouve à présent, est une accumulation non éclaircie d'une vague culpabilité ; une culpabilité indirecte, comme celle de ces condamnés innocents mais présumés coupables qui doivent endosser de force, par le regard des autres, une seconde identité, et qui, même longtemps après que leur innocence ait été prouvée, du fait même qu'ils aient pu être soupçonnés, restent à jamais suspects – c'est la loi du dicton « il n'y a pas de fumée sans feu » !

Mais chacun de nous est impliqué dans cette édification collective hystérique de fausses identités ; c'est le masque obligatoire qu'il nous faut revêtir et faire revêtir à l'autre dans l'arène commune et, dans notre compréhension superficielle, mécaniste et linéaire de la causalité, nous l'associons au bagage individuel de chacun.

Dans ces termes, j'ai eu droit au traitement de luxe : dans la parlance culturelle, j'ai ainsi été « asura » plus souvent, il me semble, qu'à mon tour, même si j'ai aussi, parfois, été « déva ». C'eût été simplement drôle si certains ne s'étaient appuyés sur leur interprétation de Tes actes à mon égard pour confirmer leur jugement.

C'est comme une brûlure à blanc : on n'en sort pas indemne !

Il faut en renaître.

La plupart du temps je l'ai vécu comme une grâce ; cela m'a protégé aussi de beaucoup de liens ou de relations encombrants ou inutiles, filtrant de rares qualités d'amitié et de libre loyauté. Et cela m'a protégé aussi de toute ambition en moi-même.

Mais toutes ces considérations et ces formations collent : il y a encore du nettoyage à faire !

20-2-2000, Auroville :

Les routes d'Auroville sont jonchées de détritiques, emballages déchirés, tasses en plastique : les dévots et les touristes ont défilé, autobus chargés à bloc, taxis et rickshaws soulevant la poussière rouge ; la ville de Pondichéry fait des affaires, mais pas nous ! A nous de balayer, de nettoyer, d'effacer autant que possible !

Faut-il parler de Vous ? Sri Aurobindo, Mère, Vous qui ni des gourous ni des emblèmes ni des dieux vivants ni de grands maîtres au panthéon de la spiritualité, Vous qui êtes trop vrais pour ces dénominations et ces rôles...

Vous êtes plus que l'idéal, plus que la perfection : Vous êtes Cela, en sécurité absolue, au-delà de toute possibilité de limitation ou de déformation ou de séparation. Vous êtes Cela, Vous êtes Soi, indéfectiblement. Souverainement.

Vous êtes plus que la somme de tous nos amours et nos élans, Vous êtes le corps de notre besoin immémorial, Vous êtes le Sens et la Direction, Vous êtes le Chemin, Vous êtes la venue du Divin.

Vous êtes l'amour du Suprême.

Pourquoi parler de Vous ?

Il vaut mieux, je crois, devenir une offrande vivante à Votre pression.

Vers Vous ne viennent pas ceux qui ne cherchent encore que leur propre salut, leur propre résolution.

Vers Vous se tournent ceux qui sont simplement amoureux d'un Divin incarné qui est soi-même, nous-mêmes enfin libérés, enfin animés, enfin entiers.

Alors c'est Ta Fête !

Et la clôture d'un millénaire de travail !

Et au pied de cette sphère symbolique le politicien que nous continuons de nourrir continue de pêcher à la ligne : les hameçons décorés de Ton symbole et trempés dans le souvenir de Toi ne sont-ils pas plus délectables ?

Devrais-je mieux m'en aller ? Est-il acceptable de n'être qu'une présence ?

La « position » que j'occupe a un nom courant de nos jours ; elle est prisée comme une sinécure : c'est le métier de « superviseur » !
 Beaucoup de cette vie humaine est une grande blague ! Mais qui cela fait-il rire autant, et si longtemps ?

22-2-2000, Auroville :

Ce matin, finalement, Eleanore est partie.

Elle refusait de se nourrir ; elle n'avait plus le goût de lutter, cette femme qui s'est tenue droite, fière, libre et exigeante de sa propre bonne volonté ; indépendante pour tous ses choix de vie, qui l'ont amenée ici âgée de 80 ans, loin de ses habitudes et ses comforts, pour une nouvelle aventure.

Le 1^{er} Janvier à l'aurore, je l'ai vue tomber ; le mouvement de son corps en arrière a attiré mon attention, puis ce que ce mouvement exprima : passée le stade où quelque sursaut de volonté aurait pu enrayer la chute, elle s'est laissée aller, elle s'est livrée ; elle a basculé dans la chute même et s'est retrouvée étendue sur le sol de l'amphithéâtre au milieu de tous, dans la lumière limpide du jour naissant, ce premier jour d'un autre millénaire, ses yeux droits dans le ciel encore rosé, tout près du Feu, tout près des fleurs ; et pour elle c'était une simple perfection.

C'était un « oui » de tout l'être : quel autre moment serait-il aussi beau, aussi juste pour prendre congé ?

Quand les gens se sont approchés pour l'aider et les membres de son groupe se sont rassemblés près d'elle, elle ne voulait pas l'effort de se redresser. Elle voulait peut-être simplement un chant, un poème ? Du repos ? Du temps dégagé pour ce moment précieux ?

Je crois qu'elle aurait seulement souhaité qu'on la ramène doucement dans sa communauté, pour de là s'en aller, en harmonie.

Cela, c'est ce que j'ai vu et perçu sur le champ, sans mots, en la regardant, pendant ces quelques instants.

Je ne me suis pas déplacé : je ne la connaissais pas personnellement et elle était entourée de ses amis, dont deux sont docteurs, et tout se passait donc aussi bien que possible ; et je pressentais aussi que ses partenaires de recherche – un genre de dilettantisme gratifiant versé dans les techniques de méditation et de guérison – n'auraient pas la même compréhension de ce qui venait de se passer.

Ce groupe décida alors de la transporter jusqu'à un hôpital de Pondichéry, où il fut établi qu'elle avait une fracture de la jambe et qu'il fallait opérer le jour même ; elle a dû rester là des jours et des nuits d'inconfort extrême, loin de toute atmosphère souhaitable ; puis ils l'ont ramenée dans notre dispensaire où, depuis plusieurs semaines, les uns et les autres se relayaient à son chevet, essayant de la persuader de se rétablir, de se nourrir ; et ainsi elle a dû endurer ces humiliations et cette débâcle physique...

Mais de quel droit puis-je parler ou même penser ainsi ? Moi qui n'ai connu Eleanore ni dans le travail ni dans sa vie personnelle ?

Mais n'est-ce pas pour apprendre à percevoir et se percevoir les uns les autres que nous sommes réunis ici ?

C'est cela aussi qui est nouveau dans le monde : c'est qu'une aide agissante, impersonnelle, partout présente, est disponible à chacun de ceux qui ont l'aspiration et le besoin de développer la vraie conscience.

Mais pour identifier cette action, il faut avoir cessé d'adhérer à la division entre l'esprit et la matière, soi et l'autre, ici et au-delà, l'humanité et le monde, dieu et les hommes : il faut avoir trouvé son âme.

Nous avons depuis deux jours comme une petite mousson hors saison ; ça verse, ça cascade, ça trombe ! Il paraît que de mémoire d'homme il n'a jamais plu autant au mois de Février ; en quelques heures la nuit dernière, tous les réservoirs collectifs des villages voisins ont été remplis ; les nappes d'eau couleur de rouille, virevoltantes et tournoyantes, sont partout ; l'excavation que nous venions de terminer, entre le par cet les Jardins de Matrimandir, est pleine : plus de 10,000 mètres cube prêts à déborder...

Nous devons assembler les bûches pour le Feu de l'aube de demain, jour de la fête d'Auroville... Le Feu ou l'Eau ?

Hier soir C m'a lu au téléphone la belle lettre de Laffont, en réponse à sa lecture de mon manuscrit : il est à la retraite et ne peut imposer sa volonté sur le comité d'édition, qui redoute que mon texte soit d'une lecture trop ardue ; mais ce qu'il en dit lui-même, et qu'il se sente de la même famille spirituelle, me touche. Je lui écris maintenant pour lui demander d'essayer tout de même d'aider ce texte à voir le jour.

C se bat bien, et s'applique magnifiquement à ne pas se laisser entraîner, absorber et dominer par cette force centrifuge que R émane constamment vers elle dans sa souffrance égocentrique et obsessionnelle ; elle a 87 ans maintenant, mais elle a d'abord l'âge imprescriptible de son âme et la compréhension d'une conscience qui progresse et qui aime l'équilibre et l'harmonie, qui aime la vie.

28-2-2000, Auroville :

La pluie s'est arrêtée dans la nuit, et le Feu a pris et flambé.

Un silence trop bref, incertain, comme bordé, cerné par une grande confusion.

Nous sommes comme un îlot qui s'effrite, dont les berges se jonchent peu à peu de dépôts, ces choses et ces formations de la marée humaine qui s'avance aveuglément sont autant de détritiques polluants qui obscurcissent et compromettent notre travail.

C'est l'un des effets de la gangrène de nos instruments de perception que nous oublions si aisément cette simple évidence : la pollution extérieure ne peut se produire que par une pollution intérieure ; ou plutôt, la pollution extérieure est une manifestation de la pollution interne et, une fois le cycle enclenché, l'externalité phénoménale élargit la brèche et nous entraîne dans sa gravitation.

Laideur, veulerie, égoïsme éhonté et mépris de la vie, pillage grossier de la matière, bêtise, voilà ce que nous manifestons tous aujourd'hui.

Il faut aujourd'hui être un héros, un yogi, et un amoureux passionné du corps du Divin pour ne se prêter aucunement à cette corruption.

Mais même si nous ne pouvons être ces héros et ces yogis, nous pouvons au moins aimer le Divin, Le chercher, L'appeler et Le sentir dans le monde : L'aimer, L'attendre et Le trouver dans les yeux que nos yeux rencontrent, dans les mains, les corps et les matériaux et ce que nous appelons les « choses », avoir besoin de Lui sans réserve ni prétention, partout et en tout et tout le temps, que ce soit dans le verre que l'on tient, la nourriture que l'on ingère, le tissu que l'on porte, ou l'asphalte sous nos pieds, le néon qui dévore les façades et le ciel du soir tout bruni de fumées toxiques, Le chercher vivant, là, Le chercher présent dans tous les moments ordinaires.

Jusqu'à ce que nous devenions capables de le trouver même dans la haine et la souffrance et la purulence et la cruauté la plus sordide ou l'ambition la plus froide, parce qu'Il nous aura fait toucher le levier au-dedans de nous-même et nous aura appris à changer.

Il y a des sortes de souffrance qu'il faudrait pouvoir annuler pour les autres, pour tous les autres, à tout jamais.

On peut concevoir une harmonie si vaste, complexe et complète qu'une certaine qualité de souffrance y trouve sa juste place, cette souffrance qui brûle et aide à grandir, qui consume les scories, arrache la petite formation dissimulée et nous délivre d'un égoïsme bien déguisé, qui nous révèle notre petitesse et par laquelle une grâce nous tire en avant.

Mais c'est avant tout d'une puissante harmonie dont nous avons besoin.

Notre capacité mentale la plus accomplie peut nous aider à manifester une harmonie ordonnée, une clarté sereine et une égalité inspirée ; notre capacité vitale la plus accomplie peut nous aider à réaliser une intense harmonie, un déploiement raffiné, une richesse ardente. Mais l'égo en nous prévient leur alliance.

Seule la conscience, qui est unité, peut assigner à chacune sa place juste et complémentaire et sa dynamique féconde.

Hier, journée du 29 Février – année bissextile, et jour anniversaire de la descente de la Force et de la Lumière Supramentales dans l'atmosphère physique de la Terre, le 29 Février 1956 – a été pour moi, dans mon corps, une journée heureuse : il y avait l'équilibre juste et la complémentarité harmonieuse d'un service physique actif orienté, d'un service émotionnel créatif appelant la beauté et d'un service intérieur vers une atmosphère consciente et réunie ; il y avait une certaine perfection dans le détail, comme dans le rythme et la concordance ; il y avait Ta musique, pour tous, et une douceur de réalisation collective.

J'ai passé presque tout le jour en plein soleil sur les dalles de pierre orangée de l'amphithéâtre : Shiva, Charudatta et quelques autres m'ont aidé à modeler une grande forme de sable, puis à la couvrir et l'emplir de fleurs, des milliers de fleurs, orange dorées et orange claires et blanches, les blanches tubéreuses de la nouvelle création et les boutons de jasmin de la pureté ; puis, quand le soleil est descendu derrière la cime des grands arbres de Service et que tous étaient assis sur les gradins, nous avons allumé la lampe, sa flamme dansant dans le vent du soir juste au pied de l'Urne, sur son lit de fleurs, et diffusé jusqu'aux couleurs du crépuscule Ta musique d'orgue.

Le soir, notre troupe de théâtre a joué une pièce originale représentant un moment crucial dans la vie de Nishtha (Margaret Woodrow Wilson) lorsqu'elle choisit, malgré les formidables pressions qui s'exerçaient sur elle, de demeurer près de Vous pour se donner à Votre travail ; et ce fut une très bonne performance, intelligente et sobre et drôle et ouverte et tendre et bien centrée.

Alors ? De telles journées devraient être fréquentes, au lieu de demeurer exceptionnelles ; ce sont des journées qui rechargent et ressourcent, nécessaires et bonnes, c'est le sens de la Fête, qui devrait recouvrer sa proximité et générer le sens d'un présent progressif...

Mais qu'est-ce que le progrès ?

Il est entendu qu'il est souhaitable de répondre aux circonstances et aux chocs de la vie avec l'attitude de vouloir devenir une meilleure personne ; et il y a des êtres pour qui c'est une offense faite à la nature que de ne pas exprimer la générosité, la bonté, la justice, la charité : souvent ce sont des femmes, dont les tâches quotidiennes sont physiques et nécessaires.

On peut cependant progresser de mille manières et, au rythme de ces progrès innombrables, contribuer à l'évolution de la condition humaine.

Mais ce changement qui est aujourd'hui voulu et appelé est d'un autre ordre : c'est un changement de conscience, qui se manifeste par un changement de nature, qui permette à son tour un accroissement et une densification de la conscience dans les formes, qui presse à son tour sur les opérations de la nature afin qu'elles se modifient, s'adaptent et se transmutent pour le passage et le flot continu de la conscience.

Il faudrait tant que cette pression de la Conscience – qui n'est pas une pression morale mais la pression d'un Etat supérieur pour se manifester – nous saisisse avec de plus en plus de fréquence, que son incidence se multiplie et se répande et franchisse vite les seuils de notre réceptivité ; il faudrait que l'atmosphère de toute l'humanité en soit si chargée, comme d'un or fluide, et que plus aucun de nos mouvements n'en reste indemne ou étranger à son toucher – ce toucher qui est comme le regard intime et puissant d'une vérité qui comprend.

Mais il nous faut être bien libérés de nos attachements ; il nous faut ne plus légitimer les motivations et les raisons de l'égo en nous-même, pour ne pas ressentir cette pression de la Conscience comme inhumaine et impitoyable et sa sagesse comme froide, sévère et lointaine.

Dés qu'un peu de notre nature consent à s'unir à notre âme et que nous nous ouvrons à la coulée de cette Force consciente, c'est une sécurité immédiate et entière que nous éprouvons, une chaleur si pleine de vie et de paix et de création, si certainement inexhaustible, que le corps lui-même ose prier et connaît le bonheur.

Toujours le même problème : qui compte les jours, si ce n'est la mort en nous, tapie dans le soubassement de l'instant – le seule certitude future qui impose sa mesure.

Cette ombre, cette inversion, ce dévoiement de présence, qui évalue l'énergie de chacun de nos jours ; « nos jours sont comptés » : plus qu'un dicton, c'est la loi obscure qui dicte toutes nos valeurs de vie ; nous payons notre droit même à vivre, à survivre ; nous sommes jaugés à l'aune de la rentabilité ; nous sommes tous des endettés.

Et sur ce parcours sans surprise majeure, veille sur nous la chape d'un poids implacable, qui a deux visages : le labeur et l'ennui ! Il nous faut agrémenter le labeur et distraire l'ennui : emplir ce vide et cette insupportable corvée, tenter de croire à quelque chose et déjouer le sens tout tracé, ruser avec les propriétaires, s'inventer des itinéraires...

Le changement et la transformation nécessaires apparaissent si formidables.

Il me semble que le premier seuil radical doit être celui où l'existence individuelle est entièrement prise en charge par Cela, par la Conscience Force ; où le tissu même des instants est enfin habité, insufflé, animé par Cela seulement et totalement et continûment.

Jusqu'à ce seuil, il faut l'effort personnel ; la discipline ; la sadhana. L'offrande persistante et honnête, de plus en plus constante et éveillée, de tout, tous les mouvements, toutes les émotions, toutes les sensations, et toute la trame minuscule du quotidien.

Parfois, on ne sait pas comment, on se « branche » et le courant passe ; on ne sait pas pourquoi non plus ; et alors, tout a une autre importance : ce qui compte alors, c'est que rien ne vienne contredire l'unité ou l'altérer ; comme dans une rivière fraîche et vivante et limpide et bonne, qu'aucune concrétion opaque n'obstrue, n'alourdisse.

Mais on retombe dans la séparation ; on s'isole à nouveau, on est de nouveau « moi », seul à pousser son rocher !

Qu'est-ce qu'une sadhana utile ?

Je crois que c'est essentiellement un effort soutenu, que nourrit le besoin central, de flamber « vers » : de rejoindre, de tendre à la Présence, avec les énergies de chaque moment.

Et il me semble que les deux choses à rejeter activement sont la dépression, d'une part, et toute obsession du mental physique, d'autre part ; car ces deux choses ont pour effet commun de nous aliéner de la conscience du présent, multipliant ainsi le pouvoir de la séparation.

L'aspiration à devenir un feu ardent, un feu paisible et confiant et constant qui plus jamais ne s'étouffe dans ses cendres, un feu plein d'énergie tranquille, consciente ; cette flamme n'est pas comme la flamme orange et jaune et rouge et bleutée de nos brasiers matériels, et pourtant elle est perceptible : c'est un feu pâle, ni blanc ni exactement transparent, mais un peu comme une onde de chaleur qui deviendrait positive, presque liquide : et cela ne monte pas dans l'air, cela n'écarte pas l'air, ne se sépare pas de l'air, mais s'élève aussi comme une onde qui ouvre les dimensions, ou leur est intérieure ; et cette onde est comme un champ plus ou moins intense, plus ou moins vaste et plus ou moins universel, plus ou moins ancien et nouveau à la fois. Et cette onde est telle à une présence contagieuse, qui fait du bien et se communique par le dedans, qui fait vibrer le cœur et venir l'âme en avant, qui apaise le corps et le fait prier de joie.

Nos organismes physiques, qui ont été adaptés par les forces naturelles de l'évolution pour permettre l'expérience matérielle de la séparation et, à travers elle, de l'individualisation progressive, nous gardent dans la dépendance d'un apport de matière « extérieure ».

Pour la conscience, il s'agit là d'un artifice ; mais c'est un artifice dont nous ne pouvons encore nous dispenser.

De nos jours nous ne pouvons plus vivre de la chasse ou la cueillette ! Nous sommes liés à un système ou un autre d'échange, et l'accès à cet appoint de nourriture extérieure, d'énergie matérialisée indispensable à nos corps, dépend d'un certain nombre d'intermédiaires. Nous sommes redevables ; et il est tacitement entendu que chacun de nous doit en quelque sorte justifier son existence et son droit à consommer par une contribution énergétique appréciable à l'ensemble.

Il y a des gens qui prétendent avoir appris à se nourrir directement de l'énergie universelle, par un certain alignement volontaire et avec l'aide de guides subtils, et qu'ils n'ont désormais plus besoin que d'un apport tout à fait minimal et ponctuel et espacé dans le temps pour seulement garder un équilibre relationnel avec la société environnante. J'ai lu il y a quelques temps le témoignage d'une Australienne, je crois, qui prétend être l'une des pionnières de cette technique d'alignement, « preuves à l'appui ».

Cela m'avait donné, fugitivement, l'envie d'essayer ! Mais je m'étais vite rendu compte qu'il n'y avait en moi aucune adhésion intérieure ; ce n'était même pas que je doutais de la véracité de ses propos : simplement ce n'était pas, ou pas encore, sur le chemin. Il manquait, dans la vibration ou l'atmosphère de ces récits et comptes rendus, quelque chose d'essentiel.

Mais quel soulagement, quelle libération ce serait pourtant ! Etre physiquement délivré de ce parasitage ; pouvoir librement – sans plus rien « devoir » à personne – et rythmiquement faire l'apprentissage de sa propre contribution véritable au monde...

Ici je vis dans la beauté, une beauté toute pétrie de grâce, une harmonie de beauté : les arbres que nous avons plantés, les murs que nous avons levés, les pierres et les roches placées, les objets honorés, les volumes et les lignes, et la réponse merveilleuse de la Nature, le jeu de la lumière et les oiseaux partout, la douceur vibrante de la Matière, comme cette beauté offerte et bienfaisante m'aide et m'a tant de fois aidé à ne pas basculer, comme sa musique et son sourire et sa richesse tranquille me retiennent et m'ont tant de fois retenu...

L'attrait du suicide est encore puissant : c'est le sens aigu, intenable, d'être dans un cul de sac, une impasse. Ce n'est pas que je veuille le suicide : ce que je veux, c'est progresser et Te servir.

Je ne veux déranger personne, occuper la place de personne, ne rien empêcher qui soit bon ou nécessaire à d'autres : je ne veux d'autre rôle que le mien, quel qu'il soit, dans Ton travail.

Et je ne sais pas m'y rendre ; je ne sais pas lire les indications : je ne comprends pas les messages de la vie !

Il y a des choses qui peuvent encore s'exprimer dans le monde : cette sauvagerie, cette volonté de faire souffrir la matière et les corps ; ces forces qui possèdent les hommes ne sont ni humaines, ni animales, ni « naturelles » !

Je lis encore d'autres récits de rescapés Tchétchènes : ces choses se passent ici et maintenant, dans ce monde matériel !

Certains de ces survivants ont remarqué que leurs bourreaux étaient drogués, qu'ils avaient été délibérément mis dans un état second, induit pour qu'ils acceptent de se livrer à ces influences et aux actes qu'elles leur dictent.

Combien de travail en nous-même, dans la substance, faut-il faire pour que ces choses ne puissent plus nulle part se produire ? Pour que l'incarnation soit si dense et si cohérente et si rayonnante que le monde physique et matériel soit enfin protégé, aimé et célébré, pour que la vérité puisse enfin s'y trouver, y habiter, y grandir et y jouer ?

Quand j'ai commencé ce journal, il y a maintenant 6 mois, le jour de mon départ pour l'Europe, ce n'était pas pour moi seulement ; ce n'était pas exclusivement pour Toi non plus ; et ce n'était pas seulement pour d'autres ; c'était pour cette communication qui participe des trois à la fois.

Je me demande en fait si toute expression n'est pas ainsi, en tous les cas, circulaire ; s'il ne s'agit pas toujours de ce Terme indéfinissable qui tient à égales mesures de soi-même, d'autrui et de Cela (n'importe comment on L'appelle – le monde, le principe, la présence, la sagesse, l'esprit, dieu, l'énergie primordiale, l'absolu, l'infini, la vérité, l'essence, l'harmonie universelle...)

Je reçois aujourd'hui la lettre de Laffont, où il écrit entre autres qu'i se sent « spirituellement proche » de moi, et qu'il a chaleureusement recommandé mon texte à ses successeurs... Je souhaite que ce texte fasse son chemin ; je crois à son contenu, car j'ai confiance en la Coulée qui m'a permis de l'écrire et en la qualité de l'atmosphère qui était là alors que je l'écrivais.

Cela me donne l'impression curieuse de pousser, pousser vers une naissance : que ce texte vienne au jour, vienne au monde et trouve son destin ; tant qu'il ne franchit pas ce seuil, c'est comme s'il demeurerait par force dans un état de gestation qui ne doit pas se prolonger...

J'attends quelque chose ; je ne sais pas ce que j'attends...

8-3-2000, Auroville :

Ce matin Deepti et son équipe de « Last School » nous ont amené leur classe : c'est cette génération qui émerge de l'adolescence et, ici comme en Europe, c'est une génération insolite ; on aurait presque le sentiment d'une génération perdue, sacrifiée au creux de la vague ; il faut être très attentif pour commencer de percevoir ce qu'elle porte, et quel est son rôle dans la transition vers l'avenir de l'humanité. Un rôle ingrat, au premier abord et selon les vieux critères.

Ce ne sont ni des révoltés ni des révolutionnaires ; il semblerait au contraire que leur seul but soit d'obtenir un confort de consommateur branché, une sorte de nouvelle version de la bourgeoisie, qui fournirait un minimum d'effort et prendrait le moins de responsabilité possible. Il y a en eux une réticence marquée à entrer vraiment dans le corps, comme s'ils voulaient maintenir à distance la pesanteur des rôles sexuels ; leurs choix vestimentaires sont à cet égard très expressifs, à la fois d'un rejet des harmonies consacrées et d'une volonté de s'abriter de toute définition et de toute suggestion ; ils choisissent spécifiquement des alliances criardes et discordantes, et des formes trop grandes, qui deviennent informes : une sorte de dévalorisation volontaire, ou de neutralisation délibérée de toute valorisation conventionnelle.

Pourtant la plupart d'entre eux aimeraient, et souvent le souhaitent activement, devenir parents le plus tôt possible, comme pour raccourcir la distance ou combler l'abîme entre l'état d'enfance et celui de l'adulte ; ils sont à la recherche d'un milieu continu de tendresse ; ils n'apprécient pas le drame, et ne sont guère réceptifs aux grands idéaux.

Ils sont très vulnérables, et menacés immédiatement : par la drogue surtout, et par le cynisme de la débrouille et, au bout de la chaîne rapace, par la violence.

Ils prennent grand soin de ne pas s'engager dans quelque entreprise que ce soit qui nécessiterait un effort physique soutenu, mais ils sont prêts à s'immerger des journées entières dans les opérations d'un ordinateur.

Néanmoins ce sont des proies faciles et très impressionnables pour les stratagèmes les plus grossiers et les plus réactionnaires d'un enrôlement disciplinaire dans un contexte exclusif.

On pourrait croire qu'il leur manque un ressort, que toute initiative leur est impossible, qu'ils sont incapables de former en eux-mêmes le moindre projet.

Pourtant leur sensibilité est comme nue.

Et ils savent directement ce qu'est la sincérité.

Interrogés, ils tendent à se replier sur des positions identitaires faciles ; mais c'est un fait qu'ils ne veulent pas entrer dans le piège, et ne veulent pas endosser le manteau de la responsabilité.

Comme à côté de tous les discours et toutes les professions et toutes les intelligences, ils voient le monde tel qu'il est, et leur conclusion est lucide.

Mais toute connaissance qui a pour effet ou application de pouvoir manier plus librement la matière les attire ; ils comprennent vite la portée des inventions les plus sophistiquées ; ce sont des candidats naturels pour toute technologie qui promet une indépendance matérielle, de mouvement, d'action et d'effectuation.

9-3-2000, Auroville :

J'ai l'impression d'être réduit, réduit à un filet de conscience si ténu, à peine inutilisable, dans une masse de bourbe lourde, sombre et sans joie. Il n'y a plus de capacités : seulement des reflets de possibilités qui s'effacent. Il n'y a plus d'inspiration, plus d'élan, plus d'identification : il n'y a qu'une sorte de lutte sur place pour durer, comme lorsqu'on a trop longtemps nagé, que la distance jusqu'au rivage ne semble pas diminuer, que l'on s'est vidé déjà de l'énergie requise, que le ciel se couvre et la nuit tombe et on sait seulement une chose, qu'il faut rester bien tranquille, essayer encore et encore d'éclaircir sa conscience, et durer...

On ne se déprime pas, on fait bonne figure, on ne se confie à personne – non par fierté, mais par compréhension et fidélité : on ne se plaint pas.

C'est curieux, c'est comme si l'être - l'être humain, pour résumer les choses – n'était pas encore debout !

Le sens véritable de la croix est glorieux, en ce qu'il signifie une plénitude et une circulation consciente, effective : la transcendance, l'universalité, l'immanence.

Nous ne sommes pas alignés ; nous ne sommes pas libres.

Nous sommes voûtés, tordus, incomplets, infirmes.

Lorsque je me suis trouvé en France – en Europe, en Occident -, c'est, dans l'atmosphère même, l'absence poignante de l'Esprit : quel nom donner ? Quel mot employer pour désigner la conscience, la présence, au-delà et par-delà les instruments connus ?

Ici, c'est dans l'air même, un fait plus certain que la matière même !

Mais peut-être parce que c'est une évidence, qui pourtant ne nous a pas vraiment changés, n'a pas pris pleine possession du monde et de la vie, c'est comme le soleil ou l'espace sidéral : on s'endort dessous !

Notre réponse est morale ; notre maximum commun est éthique et moral : une glue, une sécrétion opaque et lourde et inhibitrice, lente, si lente à se mouvoir, une épaisseur qui fige et force et nivelle.

Par exemple, dans la simplicité de la conscience, chaque être doit livrer son propre combat pour la vraie liberté, la liberté de n'appartenir qu'au vrai et de n'être possédé, dominé ou même influencé par aucun moindre maître ou monarque. Mais ce combat nécessaire, par le caractère de notre réponse collective, est dénaturé et rendu méconnaissable : il devient un combat moral !

17-3-2000, Auroville :

Tant que nous ne sommes pas alignés, établis et fondés dans la conscience dite supérieure – la conscience au-delà du mental et par-delà les émotions -, aucun changement réel ne peut s'effectuer, et nous devons marcher au rythme de la nature.

Mais si nous voulons participer, collaborer, appartenir à la conscience et son action, alors il nous faut veiller à ce que la source de tous nos mouvements – physiques, énergétiques, émotionnels, intellectuels – soit une, et une seulement.

Il y a une comparaison qui me vient, qui est mieux descriptive : la lumière de la conscience véritable est la lumière blanche ; mais ce n'est pas un blanc opaque, un blanc plat, un blanc de surface ; cette blancheur-là est un milieu, comme un lait de diamant.

Cette lumière blanche est toute-puissante, c'est-à-dire qu'elle peut dissoudre ; si elle ne le fait pas, c'est par compassion.

Elle peut être infusée d'or, d'un or rosé, ou orangé.

C'est la lumière fondamentale.

19-3-2000, Auroville :

Je vois les corps qui s'abîment au lieu de progresser, et c'est insupportable.

C'est un tel mensonge, un mensonge si énorme, si flagrant, si foncièrement vil : je ne comprends pas comment on peut le tolérer ou, pire encore, s'y adapter, l'accepter, « faire avec » !

La seule vérité vivable est que nos corps doivent matériellement apprendre à mieux manifester, à se raffiner, à devenir plus plastiques et plus réceptifs, plus aptes à exprimer la conscience et l'infinité de ses états ; que nos corps doivent s'unir de plus en plus à la beauté véritable, à la richesse émotionnelle de l'univers ; que nos corps doivent progresser sans cesse, s'ouvrir de plus en plus à l'intégralité de la vie consciente, devenir les réceptacles de plus en plus fidèles de la présence, et être, de plus en plus, matériellement, Cela.

Mais je ne parviens pas encore à percevoir où s'arrime l'hypnose qui envoûte nos corps, les conditionne, les corrompt et les avilit.

Mon corps a souvent des difficultés, depuis longtemps – de ces difficultés qui, si elles étaient soumises au regard examinateur de la science médicale, seraient définies comme « troubles graves » ou « maladies » : les unes après les autres, parfois en groupes ou en associations, il y en a des familières, il y en a qui ne reviennent pas, il y en a qui sont nouvelles... C'est acceptable, cela entre dans le travail et dans le champ du progrès ; cela reste relativement fluide, cela évolue ; les effets peuvent être intégrés, assimilés, et peuvent enseigner.

Mais le vieillissement, la diminution, la trahison, la disharmonie qui s'installe et prend le pouvoir, non ! Ce n'est pas acceptable !

Comment peut-on jamais l'accepter ?

20-3-2000, Auroville :

J'ai acheté un nouveau cahier pour ce journal.

Mais faut-il continuer ? Je ne sais pas.

Il y a des jours où les choses s'arrangent pour me solliciter, et il y a d'autres jours où il n'y a rien, une absence de terrain.

Mais dans un mode comme dans l'autre, il y a comme une attente, l'attente d'une prise, d'une densification du chemin, quel qu'il soit...

March 2000, Note:

I had been collecting and compiling for some time all known and recorded words of the Mother on the Matrimandir and its Gardens, into a document titled 'The Mother's Shrine – L'Oratoire de la Mère'.

Based on this compilation, I prepared, during that month of March, 2000, a comprehensive presentation which could be made available to every one concerned or interested, whether "old-timer" or "newcomer" to Auroville and its issues. Each one in our team checked and double-checked and corrected and added and fine tuned: we felt such documents were becoming increasingly important as the debate over the Matrimandir's environment proceeded up the political ladder, and that utmost care must be given to their exactness and objectivity.

"The Main Features of the Peace Area, and their Relationships, as Described by the Mother." – March, 2000 -

(The Mother's words are all in italics.)

".Introduction.

The need for this document has arisen from the present controversy as regards the project of a very large lake occupying the area so far dedicated to the Outer Gardens of Matrimandir, this project being endorsed by Roger A.

Historically, the Mother's descriptions of the park and gardens at the centre of which She wanted the Matrimandir to be built – earlier named "The Pavilion of Love", "The Sanctuary of Truth" -, are extensively documented.

The existence of a lake was definitely part of Her vision, as recorded in Her conversations with Satprem and with Huta as early as 1965.

However, the graphic description of the lake in relation to the Matrimandir itself and to the park, in the form of a sketch drawn by Her while explaining Her vision to Huta on June 25, 1965, has only resurfaced from Roger A's archives in 1999.

The sketch was drawn at a time when Auroville was still meant to be built near the Lake Estate.

Yet it represents with amazing accuracy the actual proportions of the Oval and the actual relationships between the sphere, the banyan tree and the amphitheatre.

If one looks at this sketch in relation to the now existing physical site, it shows clearly a lake around the Oval, of about 50 metres width, and a vast park area marked by several large circles around this lake to indicate the large trees.

It also shows the position of a "mountain" built with the soil excavated from the lake.

There are however two differences: the first one is that the planned oval channel – the continuous water body which was planned directly around the Oval – has been planned as only 7 to 8 metres wide.

Another, perhaps lesser difference, is that some soil has indeed been collected to form a higher hill, but it is located within the Park area, North East of Matrimandir, instead of being located outside or, or at the edge of the Park, North West of Matrimandir.

The understanding that has generally been shared amongst all those who worked at Matrimandir since the beginning has been that, since there was not sufficient water to fill a larger lake throughout the year, the solution of a narrower channel was elected as a compromise.

Reading carefully all the various recorded conversations and statements of the Mother between 1965 and 1973, and trying to picture for each description a visual representation, there is definitely a change occurring in the later years. We will follow chronologically this development.

.Part I – Her Dream, “by the lake”.

Her first recorded description was made to Satprem on 23-6-1965.

The plan is at that time to build the Mother’s Pavilion near an existing lake (Lake Estate). Huta would have her own guardian house next to the Mother’s by the lake.

“... This central point is a park which I saw when I was very young... perhaps the most beautiful thing in the world from the point of view of physical, material Nature...”

Let us remember that the location of this Pavilion, at the centre of the Park, is “by the lake”.

Mother continues: “... A park with water and trees, like all parks, and flowers, but not many, flowers in the form of creepers, palms and ferns, all varieties of palms, water, if possible running water, and possibly a small cascade...”

The following part of the sentence is interesting as it gives a definite clue to the Mother’s practical sense:

“... From the practical point of view, it would be very good: at the far end, outside the park, we could build reservoirs that would be used to supply water to the residents...”

So, even though at that time it was planned to build the Mother’s Pavilion by an existing lake, She did not see the lake itself as being a reservoir for the residents’ water consumption.

She stated clearly that “reservoirs could be built”.

Later on, in the same recorded conversation, the Mother continues:

“That is the centre. All around, there is a circular road, which separates the park from the rest of the town. There would probably be a gateway – in fact there must be one – in the park. A gateway with the guardian of the gate.”

So here it is unmistakably clear that what separates the park from the rest of the town is a circular road.

And in fact, until a few years ago, there was the clear understanding in Auroville that the Outer Gardens of Matrimandir would be surrounded, encircled by a road, the radius of which had been formally fixed at 300 metres.

The Mother goes on to describe the “four big sections, like four big petals” of the city itself.

Again, a little later in the talk, the Mother observes that:

“Huta wants to be quiet, silent, aloof, and that is quite possible in her park, surrounded by a road, with someone to stop people from entering, one can stay very quiet – but if I am there, that is the end of it!”

Let us remember again that, at the beginning of this conversation, Mother spoke of the Pavilion as being built “by the lake”.

So the configuration we may draw from this talk is a park, surrounded by a circular road, with a gateway: at the centre of this park, the lake; by the lake, solitary, the Mother's Pavilion, flanked by Huta's house - the guardian house.

Later on in the same conversation, the Mother mentions the problem of water scarcity, perhaps in terms of being able to keep the lake filled throughout the year, and refers to the Americans' research work:

"Experiments on a large scale to transform sea-water and make it utilisable - obviously, that would be the solution to the problem..."

.Part II - The setting for the Mother's Pavilion.

Next, we move to Her recorded conversation with Huta, which took place only two days later on 25-6-1965:

"Ah! Now, the Mother's Pavilion - it will be surrounded by a lake, tall trees, various kinds of flowers..."

Here it would seem that in the intervening two days the Mother has seen the Pavilion on a built island, rather than merely "by the lake".

"I especially want the creepers of hibiscus - Java - red flowers - Power upon the outer dome of the Mother's Pavilion. There will be rockeries, in Japanese style, with varieties of cactus, small waterfalls, small pools with lilies, marble statues, marble fountains and pavements decorated with precious stones..."

Later, She says:

"This Shrine must have a vast area, not like this (Mother took her handkerchief in Her palm and closed Her hand), so small. Also there must be a silent zone. No vehicles should move in this area, there should be no noise of any kind."

Here we remain with basically the same configuration as two days earlier, although now the Mother's Pavilion is on an island in the lake. The lake is surrounded by the park, the park is surrounded by a road - it is itself a silent zone.

Now the Mother goes on to describe more precisely the Park itself, which She names the Park of Unity:

"The Park of Unity will be divided into twelve gardens, which will represent the twelve attributes of the Supreme Mother; in these gardens I would like to have various kinds of flowers - especially the different types of Hibiscus - the Divine Consciousness."

So now we have a more detailed and organised picture of the inner part of the Park, directly around the lake: it is composed of twelve gardens.

Then, the Mother says:

"On the other side, towards the boundary of the gardens, I wish to have huge trees like palms, varieties of ferns, neem, Indian cork trees, eucalyptus and many other beautiful big trees - they all represent unity and aspiration."

So the picture becomes more alive and complete: towards the lake and facing the Pavilion, twelve gardens; towards the boundary, that is on the outer rim of the Park, tall trees.

Thus the environment is created for the Mother's Pavilion.

The following sentence, if taken alone out of context, would be confusing - we do not know in fact whether, as Satprem did for all of the Mother's talks with him,

Huta was taping the Mother's talks and transcribing them from the tape, or from her own notes.

The Mother says:

"The whole area will be surrounded by a lake so that the Mother's Shrine may be on an island."

If the sentence is quoted out of context, it in effects contradicts all Her earlier statements.

The Mother goes on to add:

"When the lake will be dug, all the soil will be collected on one side in order to make it look like a mountain where there will be fir trees. You see, in the future there will be snow..."

With this new precision, it now seems that either the existing lake is insufficiently deep, or else the Mother has decided indeed, within the last two days, to shift the location of this centre where there is no lake as yet.

She adds to Huta:

"And you will be the guardian of the Mother's Shrine. Your tiny house in the shape of a lotus bud will be on the island very close to my house..."

Fortunately, while uttering these descriptive words, the Mother was actually drawing. And the sketch She drew is the one which we have mentioned at the onset of our exploration, showing: the Pavilion and the guardian house on an island surrounded by a circular lake, which is in turn surrounded by a large area of tall trees, with the mountain indicated on the North West.

On 1-9-1965, That is, a little over two months later, the Mother shows to Huta a picture of the Golden Temple in Kyoto, saying:

"This is exactly what we shall have except for the shape pf the roof – it must be a terrace and a dome -, but the surroundings will be the same – lake, flowers, trees, rockeries, small waterfalls and so on..."

This is a very helpful reference, as there is no mistake possible here, in the sense of misinterpretation. Pictures of the Golden Temple area show the Temple near the lake, and itself as well as the lake surrounded by a dense park, a park which gives both the lake and its pavilion their natural setting.

We must remember here that the Mother had Herself visited the Golden Temple in Kyoto when She lived in Japan during the First World War.

Less than a week later, on 7-9-1965, the Mother writes to Huta:

"The central park will be the park of Unity containing the Pavilion and its annex as formerly decided."

On that very day, the Mother also wrote, on a report submitted by Roger A, to whom She had described Her vision in the morning, the following statement:

"The park of Unity must be surrounded by a kind of isolating zone so that it is solitary and silent. One has access to it only with permission."

This statement is significant in its context. The Mother is not saying that the park is to be surrounded by a lake! She has described clearly the lake a number of times, and She now refers to the absolute need for the whole central area to be kept sheltered from noise of any kind.

.Part III – Auroville shifts to its permanent site – Design and Architecture.

On 24-12-1965, that is three and a half months later, the Mother mentions to Huta: "The place for the Mother's Shrine is chosen. It is really a very nice place."

Two months later, on 20-2-1966, the Mother draws a sketch of the entrance of the Matrimandir: this sketch depicts a small bridge, a box-room to keep the cleaning equipment, and a fountain at which people would wash their feet.

This is implying that the water is very close to the Shrine, and yet that the width of water to be crossed by a bridge cannot be very large; the bridge is shown as a small one.

So we remain with the same configuration: the Shrine itself, with its guardian house, situated on a small island.

Three weeks later, on 10-3-1966, The Mother wrote to Huta that, as a result of Roger A's work, plans and models of the town were ready and about to be exhibited, and She writes:

"I am sure you will be happy as the Truth Pavilion is on a kind of island in the centre of an artificial round lake and looks like an immense lotus opening towards heaven..."

No mention is made here of the gardens, or of the Park.

These do not clearly appear either on those first plans and maps, which were not yet of the galaxy but followed the pattern of the Mother's symbol.

Yet, in 1966, a first brochure was prepared and issued by the SAS on the project of Auroville.

This brochure was read and approved by the Mother, and She Herself wrote its introduction.

In this brochure, the description of the central area of Auroville is the following:

"The axes of penetration towards the centre create a convergence, a densification of buildings, increasing to a point where they suddenly open out upon the gardens of Unity.

In the centre of these gardens, surrounded by a lake will be situated "the Sanctuary of Truth" and the Matrimandir...

The "Sanctuary of Truth", by its form and position, will be the heart of the town, the dominating point of Auroville opening to the light."

The photograph of a model that is shown in this brochure represents the island as a raised volume, rather like a small hill.

According to this formal description, the configuration before our eyes resembles closely to the earlier ones: on a small island is "the Sanctuary of Truth" which houses within itself the "Shrine of the Mother"; there is lake around this island, and this lake is surrounded by a crown of gardens which together form the Park of Unity.

It is only more than a year later, on 11-9-1967, that the Mother mentions this configuration to Huta again, while explaining to her about the foundation ceremony for Auroville.

At this point in time, the geographical centre for Auroville has shifted completely east of the main Madras road, and has now been fixed by the Mother where a single banyan tree stands, alone on a barren eroded plateau.

She says:

"The Truth Pavilion and your tiny house will be very close to each other; your house will stand between the banyan tree and the Truth Pavilion. All these will be on an island – surrounded by water, trees and the Garden of Unity."

So now we have, even though the planned location of Auroville has changed, basically the same configuration as before, except that the island houses not only the Pavilion and its guardian house but also the banyan tree.

Around the lake are still the gardens and the trees, the park of Unity.

Again almost one full year later, on 28-6-1968, the Mother, after a meditation with Huta, mentions the banyan tree:

"Do you know the banyan tree at the centre of the Mother's Shrine...?" and goes on to describe a vision She had just had of Huta seated under the tree, at peace.

This small sentence refers to the Mother's Shrine as being itself the island, with the banyan tree at its centre.

Therefore we see once more that this central island has now grown to include the large banyan tree at its centre.

.Part IV – A step closer to the birth of the Matrimandir.

In 1969 – when exactly is not documented – the Mother spoke to Narad, to whom She had given the specific charge of beginning the gardens of Matrimandir. She spoke to him in the presence of Huta, who reported part of this conversation as recorded by her:

"It must be a thing of great beauty – of such a beauty that when men enter the gardens, they will say 'Ah! This is it!', and experience physically, concretely, the significance of each garden. In the garden of Youth, they will know youth; in the garden of Felicity, they will know felicity; in the garden of Perfection, they will know perfection, and so on. One must know how to move from consciousness to consciousness..."

It is significant that the Mother thus described emphatically the 12 gardens – the names here quoted refer to the 12 names given by Her at an earlier date (the date itself is not on record), months before the actual shape of the Matrimandir was formally and finally determined.

Therefore at the time none of the studies that contributed to the elaboration of the model later presented by Roger A featuring the golden sphere, the 12 petals around it, and the 12 contours serving as bases for the 12 gardens, was made.

The Mother had thus separately instructed Narad to begin work for those gardens while She had entrusted Roger A with the task of finding the most suited architecture for the Shrine itself, or rather, for the Pavilion.

At the end of 1969, people in Auroville and in the Ashram started focussing more and more on the need to have the Matrimandir built as a priority.

On 31-12-1969, the Mother had a long conversation with Satprem, who conveys to Her the feelings expressed by Paolo.

In the course of this conversation, in which mention is several times made of the difficulty to communicate with Roger A, the Mother explains:

"Roger's idea is to have an island in the centre surrounded by water, running water, which will be used for the city's whole water supply, and when it has gone through the city, it will be routed to a mill and will be used to irrigate all the envioning agriculture.

So this centre is like an islet, and in this centre there is what we had called the Matrimandir..."

The Mother simply states Roger A's idea. She does not qualify it. She goes on to describe what She Herself SEES as the inside of this Mandir.

Then She continues:

"And to look after this islet, it was understood that there would be a small house for Huta, who would like to be there simply as the guardian... So Roger had arranged a whole system of bridges to link it to the other bank. And the other bank would be composed entirely of gardens all around..."

So here again we still have the same configuration: the Mandir, the guardian house, and the banyan tree, are either one single islet, or three linked islets, in the middle of the lake, on the shore of which, all around, are situated the 12 gardens.

The Mother continues:

"These gardens... we had thought of 12 gardens, of dividing the distance by 12, of making 12 gardens, each concentrated on one thing, a particular state of consciousness and the flowers that represent it.

And then the 12th garden would be in the water, around – not around but besides – the Mandir, and with the banyan tree that is there. That is what is at the centre of the city. And there, there would be a repetition of the 12 gardens that surround it with the flowers similarly arranged..."

This description is intricate and may lend itself to at least two different representations:

- One would be of actually a 13th garden which would be situated near the banyan tree and adjacent to the Shrine as well, in which a repetition of the 12 gardens would be expressed through its flowers.
- The other representation would show the 12th garden itself extending into the water to reach and enclose the banyan tree, linked by bridges to the Shrine and to the guardian house. And in this extension would be the repetition, with flowers, of the 12 gardens situated on the other bank.

The first interpretation seems to have been generally elected, as it was understood, at the site, that this 13th garden would be called the garden of Unity and ought to be the first to be built.

However, an alternate adaptation of it could also be that the "inner garden", as the Mother called it since 1972, which is now situated on the Oval area itself, surrounded by a water-way, could be a repetition, through flowers, of the "outer gardens" on the other bank of the water-way, which should then also number 12.

The Mother goes on to say:

"There are two Americans here now, a husband and wife, and the man has studied over there in America, for more than a year, I think, to learn how to make gardens and he has come with this knowledge. And I told him to begin right away to make the plans for the inner garden; they are working on it."

A little later in the conversation, the Mother refers a second time – the first time was in 1965 – to desalination plants:

"There are material difficulties: for the islet, water is needed – naturally, otherwise it's not an islet! As far as water goes, it will have to be transformed. There isn't enough underground water... There is water, but just enough for one or two houses; in short there isn't enough water to create a permanent stream. They would have to convert sea-water. In Israel, they have found a way to do it economically – we even have brochures about it – but, you understand, 'economical' for a city, not for an individual! And so we have to get water in order to make this islet, that is the difficulty."

However, the Mother is open to the option of beginning the construction now:

"... To begin building even before there is an islet..."

Perhaps this is the beginning of the compromise which was later adopted: instead of a lake, to have only a narrow continuous channel all around the Oval area of the inner gardens.

At the very end of that conversation, the Mother repeats:

"Yes, I understand, the thing is to build the centre, even if we can't make an islet."

.Part V – The birth of the Matrimandir.

On 3-1-1970, the Mother has a long conversation with Satprem, where She describes at length and in detail Her experience of the Inner Chamber of the Matrimandir, which She had in the night of the New Year.

She mentions that perhaps, for now, one could build a sort of small version of this place She has seen, as an experiment, and later the real one could be built around it or over it. In this connection, She says:

"It is like the gardens: all the gardens which are being made are for now, but in twenty years, all that will have to be on another scale; then it will have to be something really... really beautiful..."

This statement shows again how much importance the Mother attaches to these gardens; and it evokes the possibility of starting with smaller gardens, as for example with the "inner garden", and ending with larger gardens – outer gardens – on another scale; this may account for the Mother's acceptance of smaller gardens constituting the "inner gardens" on the Oval island.

One week later, on 10-1-1970, the Mother has another long conversation with Satprem about Matrimandir. Satprem conveys to Her Paolo's impressions, feelings and suggestions about the building.

The question arises of its outer shape and of its access. At this point the Mother brings in quite a new perspective, integrating for the first time the presence of the Urn, which had been erected for the inauguration ceremony of Auroville, on 28-2-1968.

She explains:

"The underground entrance... One will enter a dozen or so metres from the wall, at the foot of the Urn. The Urn itself will mark where the descent begins. I must choose from which side exactly. And thus it is possible that, later on, the Urn, instead of being outside, will be inside the enclosure.

So perhaps we could simply put a great wall all around, and then the gardens.

Between the surrounding wall and the building we are going to build now, we could have the gardens and the Urn. And the wall will have one entrance – one, or several, ordinary doors; people will be able to walk around the garden. And then one should fulfil certain conditions to have the right to go down into the underground passage and come out into the temple..."

Here we have an extremely significant instance of the Mother choosing to adapt Her vision to the prevailing conditions. There is no more lake and therefore no more island. Instead, to ensure the isolation and the silence of a sanctuary, She now describes a continuous wall that encloses both the entire garden area and the Shrine itself. Access into the garden area is through one or several doors into that boundary wall, while access to the Shrine itself is a sort of initiation, via an underground passage starting very near the Urn, the Urn having now a critical role.

Yet, She goes on to say:

"I said to Roger, we will see in twenty years! So that calmed him down. But the original idea was to surround it with water, to make an island so that one would have to cross the water to be able to reach the temple. It is quite possible to make an island..."

With this last sentence, the Mother makes it clear that She still much prefers to have the Shrine on an islet, and the gardens around the lake, as initially envisaged.

What is common to both options is the need for the Shrine, for the Mandir, to have its own privileged access, marking a real passage.

After one week, on 17-1-1970, another long conversation takes place between the Mother and Satprem, when Satprem conveys more ideas and suggestions from Paolo, concerning both the inside and the outside of the Mandir. The Mother disapproves of many of those ideas, as being too mental, too complicated and impractical.

However, when Satprem suggests to Her... "or perhaps we could make some kind of a moat with water all around, clear water which would show the lower curve of the shell, for example," the Mother answers:

"Yes, this might be good."

This shows once more Her wish for having the Mandir itself surrounded with water.

On 28-3-1970, the Mother dictated the following letter for Huta:

"It has been decided and will remain decided that the Matrimandir will be surrounded with water. However, water is not available just now and will be available only later, so it is decided to build the Matrimandir now and surround it with water only later, perhaps in a few years time. As regards the Matrimandir itself I have selected our plan, which agrees with the vision I had of the inside and have myself approved. Therefore there is no need to worry. The Matrimandir will be built now and water brought around it later."

Between March and August of 1970, the Mother received groups of Aurovilians.

In one of these talks, the Mother explained the idea of building the Matrimandir as the centre of Auroville, saying there will be work for everyone.

"There will be gardens. There will be everything, all the possibilities: engineers, architects, all kinds of manual work..."

On 21-2-1971, in answer to Aurovilians working at the Matrimandir Nursery who offered to stop their work there in order to join the excavation work, the Mother stated:

"No. The gardens are as important as the Matrimandir itself."

On 19-1-1972, in a conversation with Satprem, the Mother lists the 12 attributes of the Divine Mother, along with their corresponding colours:

"They are going to build 12 rooms around the Matrimandir, at ground level, and Roger wanted each room to have a name: one of the attributes of the Divine Mother and the corresponding colour."

This new element – the 12 Petals and their meditation rooms – takes up additional physical space.

Along with the Urn and its newly-designed amphitheatre being very close to the Matrimandir, it is now hardly possible, physically, to situate the lake immediately around the Matrimandir, as had earlier been planned.

Some time either in 1970-71, or in 1972, when the Mother names the gardens, She not only named the 12 gardens, and the 13th, the garden of Unity, but also a garden directly around the Mandir, the garden of Love.

.Part VI – The Construction has begun.

From about mid-1972 onwards, by all accounts, the Mother became more and more silent and indrawn.

Several of Her messages and formal statements during that period had to do with the necessity not to lie.

On 17-8-1972, Shyamsunder read out to the Mother a letter from Narad when he complained of the small size of the gardens; to this the Mother replied orally, as reported by Shyamsunder in his notes:

"I have never told Narad that it should be very big... Roger is the best judge."

On 4-11-1972, the Mother tells Shyamsunder, as reported in his notes, that Huta is to be the guardian of the Matrimandir and that her house must be built in one of the 12 gardens, and the money for it has already been given.

These last two statements seem to indicate that, with the several changes of design and the additions of new elements made by Roger A, the Mother has accepted that the size of the gardens may have to be reduced, and that they too should be part of the island; nonetheless She still insists that the guardian house must be very close to the Mandir, even though it may mean that it can only be built in one of the 12 gardens.

On 22-12-1972, responding to a query from Mary Helen conveyed to Her by Shyamsunder, referring to the style or spirit in which the gardens must be created, the Mother confirms, as reported by Shyamsunder in his notes:

"Of course, it must be in the Japanese way..."

On 12-2-1973, after Shyamsunder had read out to Her a letter from Narad seeking guidance for the planting of trees and the execution of the gardens, the Mother comments that it has already been told in detail to Roger A.

On 15-3-1973, Roger A himself notes that the Mother has reiterated, concerning Huta's guardian house:

"The important thing is to plan a room for her in the gardens..."

This statement is a few days formulated by Roger A in a formal note of information to all:

"The Mother has confirmed that the sole important thing is the lodging foreseen for the guardian within the framework of the gardens around Matrimandir."

Beyond the date of 10-5-1973, there are no records regarding the Matrimandir.

.Concluding Notes.

From all the documents available regarding the period from 1970 to 1973, it is strikingly apparent that the clash and rivalry of individual egos was at a peak. It is also evident that the Mother freely and simply stated Her wishes only when there was a receptivity without preferences, as was the case with Satprem.

We have now a better and more precise sense of the evolution of the plan for the manifestation of this dream of Hers.

There are no records available, apart from a few scattered notes taken from memory by Roger A himself, of the many talks the Mother must undoubtedly have had with him.

From subsequent events and information passed orally between people, it was generally understood that Narad had sufficient guidance to help him in his work of executing both the inner and outer gardens.

Actual work on the outer gardens began in 1973, with the marking out of the circular boundary road wherever it was possible – where the land had already been acquired – and the first planting of trees.

In 1974, the Oval area was marked out, almost entirely – there too, one piece of land was yet to be acquired.

Throughout the 1970s, planting of trees for the South to North West part of the Outer Gardens, along with contouring of the same, was an ongoing work.

The understanding generally shared since 1973, an understanding which was confirmed and further defined under Roger A's direction in 1987-88, was that the Oval area – ten times the section of the sphere – was to enclose besides the Mandir the banyan tree, the Urn and the Amphitheatre and the Inner Gardens.

This Oval area was to be marked by a continuous pathway alongside a continuous water channel, with either one single bridge at the West, or a bridge at every cardinal point.

The Oval area was then to be surrounded by a Park, or Outer Gardens area, the outer perimeter of which was formally fixed, in the 1990s, at a radius of 300 metres.

The entire area, the "Peace Area", would be encircled by the first Ring Road, which would follow its outer circumference.

Through the years several experiments have been conducted to test various methods of lining and sealing water bodies, and two sections of the Oval Channel were excavated in the early 1990s.

It is only in 1998, with the contribution of Harald Kraft's proposal for solving the future water needs of the city, that Roger A explicitly returned to what can be called his own early vision of the centre, as indicated in some of the early galaxy plans, of a large lake surrounding the central Shrine and immediately bordered by the high density buildings of the city.

.Summary.

Both the foundation and the purpose of our work in overseeing and coordinating the completion of the Matrimandir and its entire environment, are one: to be as faithful as possible to what She has seen and wished.

In view of the present proposal to create an enormous lake as the only transition between the city proper and the Inner Gardens of the Matrimandir, we can but state that it does not conform to the Mother's stated wishes.

The above review of Her recorded words regarding the Matrimandir site makes it unquestionably clear that:

- 1- The Matrimandir itself must be on an island, together with the banyan tree and an inner garden.
- 2- This island must be surrounded by a moderately-sized body of water.
- 3- This water body must be surrounded by a full garden/park.
- 4- This park as a whole must be either encircled by a road, with gateways, or by an isolating zone.

The only major difference between the Mother's early descriptions and Her latest ones is that the central island has gradually grown in size so as to house more and more elements – the banyan tree, the Urn and its amphitheatre, the 12 Petals around the sphere and finally the 12 Inner gardens, leaving on the other bank of the water body the Outer Gardens where are the tall trees.

We may thus suggest that the general lay-out which has been the operative reference accepted by Roger A, Piero and Narad and all those who worked at Matrimandir since the early 1970s (the present MMCG came into existence only in 1988) is to be once more confirmed, with perhaps one significant improvement: the water-way could be deepened and widened here and there so as to provide the sense of a substantial expanse of water around the Oval island.

Note: Our comments and analysis of the project proposal of a large lake for the needs of Auroville's water supply are articulated in another document".

Note: We were later on to prepare more such documents, accompanied by clear, graphic illustrations; it took the form of a large sized brochure, which we printed ourselves for distribution to all the members of the Governing Board and other eminent guests who were invited as consultants.

C a téléphoné hier soir. Malgré la recommandation de Laffont, les Editions Lattès ont refusé mon texte, conseillant de rechercher une Maison d'Édition ayant au moins une collection spécialisée dans le domaine « spirituel » ! C'est toujours la même vieille histoire, comme une créature préhistorique qui aurait survécu aux éons, de la division entre ce qui est « spirituel » et ce qui ne l'est pas – tout le reste !

... Le fût du puits de la communauté s'est effondré.

Pendant plusieurs jours l'équipe appelée par le Service a essayé de le dégager ; mais le métal du fût est trop corrodé et a dû s'affaisser sous la pression des eaux qui se sont infiltrées après les dernières pluies torrentielles. Ils ont dû renoncer.

Mais je souhaite continuer de puiser au même point ; alors nous allons tenter de re-forer le puits, juste à côté, et d'y insérer un nouveau fût de plastique épais (j'étais en fait presque certain d'avoir déjà pris cette mesure il y a quelques années, et Maurice partage le même souvenir ; c'est donc un peu mystérieux !).

Dans le contexte de la controverse autour du projet gigantesque de créer un grand lac réservoir autour de Matrimandir – projet auquel nous nous opposons afin de préserver l'environnement que Tu as souhaité -, cet incident est troublant.

Ce puits est excellent ; je l'ai toujours senti comme un cadeau de la Grâce. Mais je vois bien que l'accident est interprété ici et là comme un signe que cette communauté (« Sincérité ») doit disparaître, presque comme une punition.

Il y a là comme une symétrie : ces formations sous-jacentes qui circulent entre nous tous, et ces événements souterrains, physiques, qui échappent à notre contrôle de surface et à notre ingéniosité technique.

Téléphone de C : Paul est parti hier après-midi.

Le matin il avait téléphoné à C et R : il était en colère et désespéré de se trouver de plus en plus souvent dans une condition où il ne se souvenait plus des choses les plus simples et ne pouvait plus vivre sans aide immédiate ; durant les derniers jours il avait appelé chacun de ses enfants, sans rien avoir à leur dire, simplement pour le contact. Wanda, sa compagne, n'osait plus le laisser seul ; mais hier, elle était elle-même clouée au lit par une sciatique, et Paul était sorti seul ; en rentrant, alors qu'il était dans l'ascenseur, il a quitté son corps – ce même ascenseur que nous avons pris ensemble il y a 4 mois quand il m'emmenait déjeuner dans son restaurant favori, une sorte de petit bistrot auvergnat, une pièce bondée, à deux niveaux, et il lui fallait plusieurs minutes pour grimper le minuscule escalier branlant menant à la loggia où nous nous sentions plus à l'aise : dans le brouhaha des conversations animées, les allées et venues périlleuses des serveurs, partageant notre bouteille de blanc fruité, sa surdité légendaire disparaissait et ses grands yeux ronds dans sa figure ronde de vieux Chinois, si pleine de vraie générosité, à la fois enfantine et lucide, ses yeux attentifs, directs et discrets à la fois, transparents, ses grands yeux étaient les portes ouvertes de son cœur et il écoutait et entendait chacun de mes mots comme s'il les buvait, et ses réponses étaient l'expression de cette synthèse vibrante dont seules les âmes vivantes sont capables.

La qualité de notre lien était faite de cette confiance inconditionnelle, que rien d'extérieur ne peut expliquer ; et de le revoir avant qu'il ne s'en aille, de le revoir au moins une fois après près de trente ans pendant lesquels il ne fut même pas nécessaire de s'écrire, était l'une des raisons claires de ce voyage en France – quand il avait su que je venais, il savait aussi que le temps de quitter le corps approchait.

Chaque départ individuel est unique, déclenche ses propres rythmes, déploie ses propres ressources et s'oriente selon les données qui sont propres à chaque être ; il n'y a aucune comparaison à faire ; aucune formation n'est acceptable, et le seul souhait que l'on puisse composer et entretenir est que la personne réunisse le plus harmonieusement possible et dans les meilleures conditions possibles ce qu'il lui est bon et nécessaire de préserver dans le silence conscient de la paix et du repos qui l'attendent.

Paul avait la perception d'un progrès, d'une évolution psychique dans l'humanité, et je sais qu'il était ainsi branché, au-delà de l'âge de son corps et du passage imminent, au cheminement d'une réalisation nouvelle dans l'homme et en avant.

Pour C, il y a autour d'elle un accroissement des signes d'une fin corporelle : R est mal en point, et bien enclin à se tourner négativement dans la déchéance ; G, leur amie de longtemps, vient d'être emmenée en maison de soins avec une leucémie des gens âgés ; leur ami D est pris par l'angoisse... Heureusement elle a son travail quotidien, et son chemin à elle qui grandit de tout, mais je sens bien qu'il me faut aussi être prêt à retourner près d'elle.

... Bhaskar m'a annoncé il y a quelques jours son intention d'essayer d'aller vivre seul à « Vérité » ; il a reçu hier l'accord des gens de cette communauté, mais le mouvement même de quitter physiquement la maison est émotionnellement chargé, et il attend maintenant de trouver ses gestes.

Pour moi, cela veut dire que je vais retrouver un peu de « privé »...

Peut-être sommes-nous ici un peu les sacrifiés.

Ce n'est pas une notion reconfortante, ou consolante ; mais cela peut aider à former la distance d'une certaine sobriété.

Ce que l'on peut contribuer au chemin de tous et à la vraie destinée de la Terre, c'est la manifestation si partielle soit-elle de nouvelles attitudes, de nouvelles compréhensions et de nouvelles possibilités relationnelles, de nouvelles pratiques qui soient délivrées de la division et de l'asservissement au pouvoir et portent dans le monde un peu de ce regard et de cette présence dont l'humanité demeure si tragiquement séparée.

Lorsqu'il se disait dans les premières années que notre travail était celui d'un laboratoire, il me semblait que c'était une manière bien commode de justifier la perpétuation de toutes sortes de mouvements – et de la lâcheté, la veulerie, la médiocrité.

Mais avec le temps et l'expérience, ce procédé d'effort collectif, dans la liberté de choix et sans guide apparent, s'avère effectivement relever d'une expérimentation constante.

Quand bien même on se rassemble individuellement dans une offrande ou un service soutenus, une action orientée, et tente d'y dédier le meilleur et le plus clair et le plus sûr de ce que l'on a assimilé, quelque intervention immanquablement survient, s'interpose, dérange et désordonne et remet tout en question. Et ce phénomène n'est pas dû à la mauvaise volonté de quiconque : cela semble plutôt être dû à l'action de cette Vision qui préside à toute l'expérience et travaille à notre ouverture et notre changement...

29-3-2000, Auroville :

Dans la mesure où l'on ne peut pas encore renoncer à établir individuellement une harmonie ou une eurythmie quotidienne, ce processus auquel nous sommes soumis peut bien être décourageant.

Mais c'est qu'il nous faut, à chacun et ensemble, trouver le secret d'un équilibre direct, dans l'instant de la conscience, qui génère sa propre harmonie, sans calculs ni prévisions, sans anticiper ni investir le moment à venir...

Du point de vue de l'énergie, ce peut être passionnant ; mais un autre problème se pose, profondément pratique. Nous abordons là la vraie pratique, le chemin tout à fait concret : car pour pouvoir soutenir à chaque instant de chaque heure de chaque jour et chaque nuit le flot ininterrompu de cette manifestation, il faut être absolument et irréversiblement et intégralement uni à la Conscience Force.

Il faut que plus rien en nous, plus aucune part de notre être, plus aucun mouvement, plus aucune opération de la vie en nous et dans nos corps, n'éprouve le besoin d'un repos ou d'un répit séparé – d'un repos d'oubli et d'inconscience, d'une disparition momentanée dans un néant automatique, d'une immersion passive dans un milieu obscur, la détente de l'une de ces multiples pénombres où l'on participe aux soubassements semi conscients des mondes et des événements sans avoir à les offrir, sans avoir à progresser, où l'on redevient élémental ou bien absorbé par quelque état plus informe, où l'on se laisse dériver dans des respirations obscurément impersonnelles, des pulsions plus vastes dont nous ignorons les termes où l'on flotte, abrité par la protection du corps, au gré des courants d'une vie subliminale, le lit fluide et omniscient de la Nature...

... Bhaskar ne semble pas réellement disposé à quitter la maison, à se retirer de cette vie auprès de moi ; il attendait finalement que je lui en donne l'ordre ! Mais je ne puis que souligner pour lui les termes de ses choix, en l'assurant de mon soutien dans un cas comme dans l'autre.

... Ce n'est qu'en me trouvant transporté dans un contexte humain ordinaire – ordinaire par rapport à celui, justement, de ce laboratoire – qu'il m'a été donné de pouvoir vérifier l'application de ce que j'ai appris ici, sans pouvoir jusque là le mesurer ni même m'en rendre bien compte, tant ce qui prédomine dans notre expérience de chaque moment et chaque situation est le sens de notre faillibilité, inaptitude, grossièreté, opacité.

Et j'ai constaté que ce que j'ai appris au cours de ces années ne constitue ni un savoir ni la maîtrise d'une technique de vie, ni même une réalisation quelconque, mais quelque chose d'à la fois plus diffus et plus dense, plus universel et précis, plus actif et silencieux, quelque chose qui s'apparente à plus de présence au monde, à plus d'évidence, à un secret d'incarnation.

Un vent froid s'est levé de la baie du Bengale, après plusieurs heures de pluie.

La plupart de nos travaux sont arrêtés pour la journée.

Ici, c'est un repos et une douceur de pouvoir parfois contempler les cimes des arbres dans le ciel gris – et comme le vert est riche de nuances !

Sûrement il faut pouvoir accepter, paisiblement accepter, d'être zéro – neutre : inactif... Que la conscience ne dévoile en soi aucun dessein, n'y manifeste aucune volonté, n'y induise aucune orientation : comme une barque immobile dans le silence. Tout autour, les autres barques se meuvent au loin, leurs trajectoires définies ; mais là, c'est un îlot de gel, comme si on existait juste en deçà du plan commun – on existe en fait beaucoup plus dans la perception des autres...

Il y a aujourd'hui trente ans que Tu m'as donné mon nom, et la confirmation de ma naissance en Toi, pour Ton travail ; trente ans que Tu m'as dit que Tu voulais de moi pour la transformation.

Aujourd'hui, j'ai cinquante ans.

Voilà : c'est mon « âge ».

Quoi d'autre ?

C'est dimanche ; je viens de finir de nettoyer et ranger la maison ; j'ai allumé l'encens dans chaque pièce, j'écoute la musique de Sunil, le jardin est paisible, les oiseaux et les fleurs y sont libres, et les abeilles et les mangoustes et les serpents, chaque organisme y a son rythme parmi les autres – nous sommes les seuls dont le rythme est une question, un effort pénible et discordant, dont la loi d'être est en travail.

Je n'ai plus le cœur à écrire.

La conscience ne bouge pas.

Des bouffées seulement viennent, parfois : comme à propos de Ganesh, et la possibilité d'un canal créatif, ou pour les terres, les terres du Seigneur...

Entre les bouffées, rien : la pénurie, la trime, le ressassement des manques, comme de parts incomplètes...

Ce qui s'enroule dans le corps est révoltant, un scandale et une imposture.

Quelle est la valeur réelle d'une expérience ? L'expérience, par exemple, que Ganesh est mon ami, et qu'avec lui du travail peut être fait – compagnons d'une action au service du Suprême ? Tout cela reste comme parallèle, ou tangent : une progression subtile qui ne se développe pas. Comme beaucoup d'autres expériences.

Ce qui se développe est une sorte de compromis résiduel, sans grâce ni puissance de réalisation.

Hier W, m'apportant des fruits du verger de M, m'a décrit le rêve qu'il avait fait la veille : il s'était trouvé dans une communauté, un peu comme un petit village, dont il avait aimé l'atmosphère ; dans cette communauté j'avais avec chacun une relation très proche, directe et intime – avec chacun également ; ce n'était pas que je « présidais » à la vie de cette communauté, mais plutôt que se situait en moi son ferment ou son lien ; et W, dont la nature personnelle ne le porte pas à rechercher la compagnie des autres, avait été touché par cette possibilité, et cela lui a semblé correspondre à quelque chose qui se passe effectivement, bien que dans d'autres termes...

Pour moi, cela correspond à une réalité, mais une réalité qui était plus vivante dans le passé, bien qu'elle fut le plus souvent entravée, abîmée, dépravée ou avortée par nos vœux et nos attachements qui refusent de s'offrir, nos révoltes et nos jalousies qui rejettent à chaque fois la possibilité du changement...

16-5-2000, Auroville :

C'est la nullité : la nécessité d'endurer, endurer, dans un état de non-progrès, de non-sens...

Pratiquement, je n'ai pas assez de travail.

Pourquoi ?

En principe, ce doit être dû à un manque de sincérité.

Mais je sais bien comment, devant la volonté ou la soif de contrôle de certains de mes collègues, compagnons et frères, je me suis retiré, laissant la place convoitée, parce que l'alternative de lutter pour m'affirmer ne me plaisait guère.

Mais voilà : en chemin, j'ai perdu l'intérêt, ou la confiance, cette confiance en partie ignorante qui permet d'agir parmi les autres et d'intervenir dans les circonstances.

Et rien encore n'est venu la remplacer.

C'est l'été ; 43° à l'ombre et presque toute l'énergie disponible est employée à supporter physiquement cette masse suffocante.

... Je vois la peau du corps qui se flétrit, comme une fleur dont la vitalité se retire : quel est ce monstre logé dans le corps qui dévore son innocence, corrompt son amour de la beauté, le convainc de son impuissance et l'oblige à désirer mourir ?

Quel est ce pouvoir vicieux qui agit à la dérobee ?

Où cette force de défaite est-elle logée ?

Qu'est-ce qui dans notre conscience la nourrit ?

... Arjun est parti à Chennai pour consulter d'urgence un spécialiste renommé : ses deux yeux sont affectés, et il doit subir une intervention pour drainer ses sinus.

A travers cette expérience physique et cette épreuve qui le mobilise entièrement, un changement s'opère qui est en relation avec cette énergie compulsive et presque maniaque qu'il déploie et manifeste depuis des années dans notre travail commun, par laquelle il doit absolument être au centre et allouer à chacun le rôle qu'il lui prescrit, et imposer son sens de la marche à suivre et des priorités ; énergie mêlée à celles d'une grande générosité et d'un engagement profond, d'un sens aigu de l'intégrité, et d'un humour dévastateur...

... C téléphone assez souvent – par besoin : elle est seule à lutter auprès de R qui engage toutes ses contradictions vers la mort et souhaite l'y entraîner ; elle parvient pourtant à continuer de travailler quotidiennement, à préserver son indépendance et ses choix d'harmonie, de marche et de progrès...

J'ai su récemment, su à nouveau, avec une clarté nouvelle, plus tangible et plus précise, ce que je veux vraiment réaliser.

C'est venu à partir d'une contemplation, en quelque sorte négative, de ce fait de l'abandon du corps à la « mort » - de cette séparation matérielle : on se retire, ou l'on est expulsé de la matière, et on y laisse un déchet, un corps qui se décompose, une masse de cellules qui doivent se désagréger, pourrir ou sécher, un embarras pour les autres, une laideur et un fardeau, un emblème de la défaite, une preuve de plus de la division de la conscience.

Et c'est un fait qu'il m'est de plus en plus difficile d'accepter.

Alors est venue la vérité positive : il faut physiquement unir le corps et l'être psychique (ce que nous appelons ici l'être psychique : l'individualité divine, plus ou moins développée en chacun, que l'on porte en soi et qui est le centre véritable de soi-même).

Il faut que les deux s'épousent mutuellement, tout à fait concrètement : qu'il n'y ait plus la possibilité de la séparation.

Et qu'ainsi, lorsque l'être psychique choisit de se retirer, qu'il soit capable de dissoudre ou d'absorber en la transmutant la substance même du corps : que toutes les cellules du corps soient si conscientes et si établies en l'être psychique que plus rien ne puisse les dissocier de leur appartenance.

C'est difficile à décrire, ou expliquer.

Mais cela m'a donné mon angle pour aborder le travail, avec ma propre aspiration.

Seulement, comment s'y prendre, et par où commencer ?

Et le temps du travail est-il donné ? Ce temps que je gaspille dans l'inertie, ou la persistance de mes désirs et mes manques...

17-5-2000, Auroville :

Comment exprimer correctement, avec des mots surtout, cette perception, cette saisie de compréhension ?

Il y a beaucoup de choses que l'on sait inacceptables : il est entendu qu'on le sait ; cela est considéré comme une évidence.

Pourtant, à l'examen attentif, on s'aperçoit vite que ce savoir est, sinon superficiel, du moins incertain ; comme s'il était mal fondé, ou fondé sur un terrain instable et mouvant.

Par exemple, il est universellement entendu que l'on considère la torture comme inacceptable, et que l'on peut, sans ciller, professer de la condamner.

Pourtant, n'y a-t-il pas des circonstances particulières qui, exceptionnellement, peuvent justifier la pratique et l'usage de la torture, la légitimant pour la sauvegarde d'un ensemble collectif, d'une société, voire d'une civilisation ?

Et puis, n'y a-t-il pas des formes pernicieuses de torture mentale et psychologique infligées plus ouvertement dans nos sociétés ? Qui peut juger parmi ces formes de torture laquelle est la plus nocive et la plus condamnable ?

Et l'on est bientôt confronté à tout le réseau complexe des responsabilités, des rôles et des fonctions et des limitations individuelles – où est la faute, où est, qui est, l'auteur de la faute ? Celui qui, au risque de sa vie, doit obéir aux ordres donnés et obtenir à tout prix l'information demandée ? Celui qui, choisi pour sa vulnérabilité spécifique à cette forme de perversité, doit exécuter ? Celui qui, dans l'ombre du dédale administratif, doit caractériser la stratégie suggérée ? Celui qui, protégé par la position qu'il occupe dans la hiérarchie, peut prétendre ignorer les implications des directives qu'il transmet ?

Peut-on encore déclarer avec la pureté convaincue de l'innocence que toute forme de torture est inacceptable ?

Ce savoir dont nous nous réclamions était constitué autant par la convention que par l'instinct, par le contrat intellectuel autant que par le sens de la décence, par la morale autant que par la peur. Ce savoir n'était pas le fruit d'une expérience directe : c'était, comme la plupart de nos savoirs, la fixation confortable d'un assemblage composite de notions non vérifiées, de préjugés transmis et d'une vague éthique liée à notre identité collective.

Un savoir n'est solide et son évidence n'est vivante que s'il a été pleinement rencontré, mesuré, réalisé par la conscience.

Alors ce savoir est-il un avec la flamme qui rayonne au fond de nous ; plus rien ne peut le compromettre ni le remettre en question : il ne peut que grandir et devenir plus conscient, et acquérir une force de vérité plus effective.

C'est une saisie de cet ordre qui m'est venue, devant ce fait de la séparation, de la dissociation – de cette consécration perpétuellement reproduite de l'abîme entre nos âmes et nos corps, entre le souffle et la forme, la conscience et sa manifestation.

Il faudrait, pour décrire cet inacceptable, y venir de plusieurs perspectives à la fois. Ce n'est pas la mort en soi, c'est-à-dire le retrait, ou la disparition, qui est inacceptable : il y aura probablement toujours d'excellentes « raisons » de se retirer, de se refondre, de se rassembler dans le silence de l'immuable et absolu, de replonger par-delà toute forme.

Ce qui est inacceptable, c'est cette profonde injustice, l'emprise de cet ancien arbitraire, qui nous oblige à la loi d'une formidable perversion : celle de la réification de la matière.

La matière nous accueille, se modèle à notre spécificité, nous abrite, nous nourrit et nous protège, et nous l'utilisons, la revendiquons, la consommons, lui imposons notre volonté et notre vision, la violons, la compromettons, la pillons, pour la rejeter et l'abandonner – sans jamais rien lui avoir donné de durable...

 Nous n'y laissons surtout qu'un souvenir pénible, une empreinte sans grâce, une blessure.

Peut-être notre compréhension individuelle du corps, notre relation à sa propre réalité, dépend-elle du degré auquel notre être intérieur a participé à sa formation ; et peut-être ce degré de participation dépend-il à son tour du développement de l'âme individuelle et du type d'expérience et de progrès qu'elle recherche cette fois-ci.

Quoiqu'il en soit, c'est dans la grande majorité des cas aux parents que revient le privilège, la tâche et la joie de chérir, de célébrer et d'assister l'élaboration harmonieuse de l'intime association entre la présence intérieure d'un être unique entre tous et la formation d'un agrégat cellulaire.

Tes mises en gardes contre le suicide sont si vigoureuses, limpides et radicales, que cela continue d'agir en moi comme la plus efficace des protections ; il arrive souvent encore que cela seul subsiste, comme l'ultime contrainte, qui se traduit aussi comme un égard profond, et une sorte de responsabilité, envers C.

... J, de l'Ashram, qui est en contact électronique avec Daniel Meurois-Givaudan, a finalement reçu de lui sa réponse, attendue depuis l'été dernier – il semble que nos lettres se soient perdues, des deux côtés – et me l'a faite parvenir. Il écrit, à propos de mon texte, dont je lui avais envoyé la première copie : « ... Je n'ai pas encore réussi à faire aboutir le projet et je doute maintenant d'y arriver dans le contexte actuel. Il s'agit d'un travail de très belle qualité, comme je le lui disais (il s'adresse à J en parlant de moi) dans une précédente lettre, mais qui, dans sa forme et son expression, est à contre-courant de ce que notre société occidentale 'consomme' en ce moment... » Etc. Plus haut dans la lettre, regrettant de n'avoir pu venir en Inde cet hiver, il écrit : « Ce n'est bien sûr que partie remise car l'Inde est pour moi une vieille complice dont je ne suis pas prêt de me passer... ! »

Alors, en lisant cette lettre, j'ai reçu deux chocs, d'ordre différent : le premier avec ces termes « l'Inde est pour moi une vieille complice » ; tout à coup, instantanément, j'ai perdu toute la confiance et le respect candide que j'avais pour cet être ! Seul un ignorant peut s'exprimer ainsi – ignorant au sens spirituel du mot. Chez un homme ordinaire, même un intellectuel, cela pourrait s'attribuer à une sorte de pédantisme arrogant et facile et faire partie d'un personnage ; mais chez quelqu'un qui prétend à la vérité du cœur et qui s'est emparé de très belles idées, de très beaux principes et de très belles émotions dans une prolifération d'ouvrages qui forment maintenant comme le corps d'une mission, c'est une petite phrase impardonnable et péniblement révélatrice, une petite phrase qui annule des milliers d'autres.

C'est à pleurer.

Puis est venu le second choc : « ... à contre-courant... ».

Oui, à contre-courant : de plus en plus et de manière de plus en plus terrible, insupportable, impitoyable, à devenir fou !

Car c'est exactement l'expérience que j'ai eue hier encore, dans la grande réunion générale, où je n'ai pu dire un mot ; une quasi unanimité pour plonger dans une autre de ces vagues collectives émotionnelles, avec tous les relents souhaitables d'unité, de cœur, d'ouverture à l'avenir, qui cependant ne mènent jamais qu'à des sables mouvants et ne résolvent jamais rien, et qui sont profondément irresponsables, dans le sens que seuls des individualités directement conscientes, centrées directement, chacune établie dans la conscience véritable, peuvent constituer une communauté gnostique. C'est un contresens que de s'attendre à ce que, magiquement, le mélange semi obscur d'énergies animées par un besoin plus ou moins profond, ou superficiel, de partage et d'unité, puisse effectuer le changement nécessaire et apporter la clarté requise pour une action collective qui serve vraiment la vérité de demain ; c'est une impossibilité pratique !

Tout cela se traduisait en moi par un malaise pénible et, justement, le sentiment ou même la sensation d'être comme maudit, de ne pouvoir appartenir nulle part ; d'être « à contre-courant » !

Je ne peux pas continuer ainsi ; il faut que quelque chose s'ouvre quelque part...

Ou qu'au moins Tu me donnes une tâche absorbante, quelle qu'elle soit, où me concentrer et m'annuler : en finir ainsi, si je ne peux pas en finir autrement !

2-6-2000, Auroville :

Aucune tâche absorbante ne m'a été donnée !

... Il y a eu le passage de Pnina : une Pnina qui a trouvé sa dimension spirituelle et une force tangible de progrès dans sa vie et son itinéraire individuel ; elle a développé sa capacité de chant ; elle a publié un livre et en écrit un autre ; elle va et vient entre Varanasi et Jérusalem. Notre relation date d'une vingtaine d'années maintenant et, par certains aspects, pourrait offrir une solution de vie ; elle et Bhaskar se sont bien entendus et appréciés l'un l'autre, et ils ont joué ensemble.

Il y a eu aussi l'expérience d'Arjun : plusieurs interventions chirurgicales, et la solidarité dans l'épreuve, avec lui comme avec Deepti.

Et il y a eu les difficultés physiques de Kusum.

Le temps passe et je suis dans le vide ; je ne sens pas le chemin. Rien ne s'articule, rien ne s'organise, que ce soit dans le corps ou la vie, rien ne s'anime en chemin ; le courant n'opère pas.

Je viens de recevoir et de lire le livre d'entretiens que F.J et Ch.J ont publié au début de l'année, entretiens qui couvrent toute la période de mon « absence » : c'est un bel ouvrage et j'aime son message, tel qu'il est et là où il est, en cet être plein de grâce qui est aussi mon père biologique.

Et je suis fier de l'évidence et de la fidélité de l'engagement de F.J, dont la nature s'est approfondie avec les années, devenue plus consciente et plus sûre de ce qu'est la véritable responsabilité de chacun parmi les hommes, de ce qu'est la liberté véritable et l'exigence véritable ; cette évidence transparaît dans ces pages comme une flamme qui s'affermir et s'enrichit.

Et je vois avec toujours plus de reconnaissance ce choix silencieux, d'une autre dimension, qui m'a permis de « tomber » là, par ces deux êtres, C et F.J, et de me lier à chacun d'eux par le sang et la vie, pour le chemin conscient.

5-6-2000, Auroville :

Intellectuellement je ne puis m'expliquer cette impasse, cette stérilité, cette nullité, que par mon insincérité.

Et l'insincérité est bien là, je ne Te la dissimule pas : c'est un sujet tout ouvert !

Mais le malaise que je ressens est aussi, je crois, dû à une sorte de disparité – je ne suis pas « en phase » avec l'environnement social, relationnel, expérientiel. Mais je ne suis conscient d'aucun autre environnement qui serait préférable à celui-ci ; j'accepte la question de ne plus être à Auroville, mais je ne sens aucun signe, aucune indication, aucun appel, aucun goût même...

... Plus ça va, plus je ressens combien notre temps biologique est faussé, comme s'il était une parodie d'un autre temps biologique beaucoup plus sensé qui a dû, tout mon instinct me le dit, se manifester déjà sur la Terre (quand, approximativement, la mesure biologique d'un de nos jours correspondait en fait à celle d'un de nos mois). Je ne sais comment décrire ce terrible inconfort, cette sensation d'être floué, par rapport à une sorte de mémoire vécue d'un état physique infiniment plus praticable ; et plus je me sens physiquement précipité comme vers le rétrécissement d'un goulot d'expulsion, de dissolution et de mort, et plus mon corps veut dormir, comme pour échapper à cette contrainte arbitraire, à cette imposition invalidante.

... Je réfléchis à la potentialité créative de l'imagination ; c'est en relation avec Ton indication du pouvoir effectif de l'imagination, si elle est saisie comme une discipline formative pour assister le progrès du yoga – tel un émissaire que l'on envoie en avant pour dynamiser les possibles dont on a besoin pour les progrès à faire dans la substance, ici même ; et je me demande dans quelle mesure cette discipline peut être utilement pratiquée pour ce travail dans le corps, ne serait ce que pour contrecarrer les effets dévastateurs de cet arbitraire presque absolu qui intervient dans le fonctionnement des cellules et leurs relations.

C a téléphoné encore, pour se soulager de l'épreuve en « dents de scie » à laquelle R la soumet constamment : R, dont le seul ouvrage publié avait pour sujet la médecine psychosomatique, un concept encore nouveau à l'époque où il l'écrivit, et qui se trouve maintenant précipité dans une alternance assez infernale d'états physiologiques auxquels il s'identifie, avec, envers C, cette ambivalence active de vouloir la tirer avec lui dans ce vortex sous le prétexte plus ou moins présentable qu'ainsi seulement il trouvera la paix – s'ils s'en vont ensemble !

C m'a aussi suggéré que j'écrive au directeur du « Département Spiritualités » des Editions Albin Michel, qu'A a rencontré et trouvé « très ouvert »...

... Ce matin j'ai accompagné Kusum à l'Ashram pour qu'on lui fasse une radiographie des intestins afin de juger de la condition de cette tumeur ; l'attendant, je contemplais l'étendue de l'Océan Indien, et j'essayais de me représenter ce que pourrait être une sadhana solitaire, en France, peut-être dans la maison de Bretagne, ou ailleurs ?

Car il y a ce dégoût croissant que j'éprouve envers l'obligation, l'imposition, la violation méchante et destructrice de l'action intracellulaire que l'on appelle « vieillissement ».

Et il y a cette distance croissante que je ressens envers les conduites, les démarches et les pratiques qui ont cours à Auroville.

Et il y a enfin l'impasse dans le travail extérieur, à cause de la personnalité d'Arjun qui a le besoin absolu d'avoir le contrôle – et j'ai depuis longtemps déjà choisi de lui donner de l'amitié et de la place ; et en conséquence je me suis retiré de plus en plus, et j'ai perdu l'enthousiasme et le contact avec l'énergie de l'action, et il s'est produit comme une sorte d'atrophie des capacités de manifestation dont je disposais.

Alors tout cela ensemble établit une sorte de propension vers un retrait ou un éloignement ou un déplacement... Je ne sais pas...

8-6-2000, Auroville :

Ce sont d'étranges symétries : depuis quelques jours, à la demande de Vishvanath de l'Ashram, j'ai placé l'équipe d'Anand sur le toit des chambres de Sri Aurobindo, tout autour de Ta chambre, pour le réimpermeabiliser ; et voilà que je dois arpenter et parcourir, en examinant les moindres détails, cet espace plus sacré qu'aucun autre ; voilà que sur ce même Balcon où Tu es apparue tant de fois mon équipe plie et range ses affaires ; et voilà que je dois porter l'attention sur la séparation de tous ces matériaux hétéroclites qui composent ce milieu plus que tout autre béni... Et je retrouve là encore une fois cette position ou cette fonction qui correspond en partie, qui résonne en partie, comme depuis l'éternité, la fonction de l'intendant, à la fois impersonnelle et intime avec l'acte qui s'effectue et la force qui s'incarne.

Et malgré tout ce qui s'est passé, malgré toutes les lâchetés et les petitesesses, j'aime toujours l'atmosphère de l'Ashram, et ces gens sont toujours ma famille ! Quoique l'on puisse dire de l'Ashram, ce que Tu as réalisé en certains de ces êtres est sans précédent et sans comparaison – ce Vishvanath, par exemple, qui, à 95 ans, travaille comme il a travaillé toute sa vie pour Toi, arrive à son bureau à 8 h chaque matin, visite les chantiers, monte et descend les échelles, s'intéresse à tous les détails avec cette fraîcheur et cette calme souplesse qui ne se compromet jamais, car elle est toujours fondée...

Il est vrai que la satisfaction d'un désir est suivie d'une sorte de tristesse. Alors que le mouvement soutenu de surmonter un désir et de s'en libérer ouvre à une qualité de joie qui est comme un air pur, un calme qui nettoie et vivifie en même temps. Mais, dissipant la tristesse, il y a un apaisement et une tranquille gratitude, qui s'accompagne d'une prière pour l'autre ; plus profondément que la satisfaction du désir, c'est l'évènement de la réponse à un besoin : on veut remercier.

Je ne trouve pas ma place, cette place exacte, quelle qu'elle soit, où la Force sera présente, où de nouveau la rivière de la Force sera tangible, son flot, son corps et sa sécurité, où l'on n'est plus seul comme une ombre projetée, où l'on n'est plus séparé.

Le solstice de l'été, et le jour le plus long de l'année ! Mais pour nous ici, non loin de l'Equateur, ce n'est qu'une petite rallonge d'une heure ! Ici, nous nous efforçons, nous tendons vers l'émergence d'une société qui sera libérée de l'affliction des classes et des castes, où la valeur de l'individu sera fondée sur ses propres capacités uniques et mesurée par les responsabilités que ces capacités lui permettront de remplir ; où la possibilité de l'arbitraire sera neutralisée par la pratique progressive en chacun d'une perception directe et spirituelle, c'est-à-dire libre des jugements et des préférences de l'ego... Cet état collectif, vers lequel nous tentons de graduellement nous orienter, auquel nous nous efforçons de devenir réceptifs, à mesure qu'il se réalisera, devra nécessairement se répandre dans la conscience terrestre ; et il se répandra depuis des réalisations multiples, car la tentative d'Auroville, si singulière soit-elle encore, n'est pas exclusive, et en d'autres contextes cette même poussée se manifeste simultanément – jusqu'à acquérir le rôle et le pouvoir d'une référence vivante, d'un modèle réel pour l'humanité entière.

27-6-2000, Auroville :

La question qui se profilait, comme une interrogation encore diffuse, est en relation avec les choix de l'âme ; il me semble que, désormais, les termes de ce choix basculent vers un autre domaine ; car les situations terrestres ne sont plus si définies, et les déterminismes gouvernant les conséquences probables d'un choix de situation ou d'environnement n'opèrent déjà plus de la même manière : la pesanteur d'une situation donnée, et le lit de circonstances qu'elle tendait à former, sont moindres.

Tout comme les distinctions de caste, de classe, de culture ou d'appartenance ont tendance à s'atténuer, les possibilités de développement de l'expérience à partir de quelque situation particulière tendent à échapper aux caractéristiques qu'il était jusqu'à présent possible de prévoir ou d'anticiper.

... Aujourd'hui, c'est la fête de « ma fille » : Ajneyam Auragni, née à Sincérité, Auroville, Inde, le 27 Juin 1982 ; dix-huit ans. Et peut-être la décision mûrit-elle en elle de venir ici et d'y vivre sa propre expérience indépendante... Les forces qui nous ont séparés se sont-elles assagies ? A en juger par l'animosité persistante d'un Jean P, je doute qu'Auragni puisse trouver tout de suite une voie facile, si elle n'a pas déjà acquis une liberté intérieure considérable.

Il est inutile de spéculer !

Et j'ai à présent une si piètre opinion de mon existence et du sens qu'il pourrait y avoir à me rencontrer, que je suis en fait tout à fait capable de faire mieux qu'eux le travail de mes « ennemis » et autres détracteurs attirés !

... Du point de vue du cœur, l'impasse se résume brièvement : je ne suis pas encore parvenu, tout simplement, quoiqu'il arrive et quel que soit le jeu des forces internes ou externes, à me concentrer avec assez de constance dans l'état central.

L'ocre rouge de la terre retournée, la marée verte des cimes et feuillages, cavalcade immobile sous le ciel plombé, la pierre orange et rose montant vers l'or de la sphère... puis, là, tout près, l'ordre sans grâce de nos méthodes : de la matière interrompue, déflorée, où une force séparée est intervenue avec son intention persistante et ses modèles d'une organisation présumée supérieure : comme un corps exposé, démantelé, et accablé par l'inertie que génère le contrat social.

Sans grâce, oui ; un ordre qui est véritablement un désordre ; une création que l'on ne peut qu'avec trop de peine entretenir et que l'on ne peut longtemps maintenir, car cette maintenance implique la préservation d'une identité fixe ; alors que la matière toute entière est en perpétuelle transformation, qu'elle soit cyclique ou évolutive, nous insistons, avec notre instrument tronqué de vision et de volonté, à mesurer notre grandeur par la persistance inchangée d'une identité et notre connaissance par la durée des monuments et des œuvres que nous lui avons consacrés.

Oui, ce que je crois et ressens de plus en plus, c'est que les choix de l'âme dans le monde terrestre d'aujourd'hui et surtout de demain seront de plus en plus en relation avec le corps, avec l'évolution du corps et dans le corps.

Il y a un jeune gars ici, qui a grandi dans une communauté d'accueil depuis l'âge de 9 ans, et a traversé l'adolescence sans référence solide ; il y a quelques mois, grâce à une confusion administrative due à l'inexpérience d'un nouveau travailleur à l'ordinateur des comptes du Fonds Central, il fut découvert soudainement que ce garçon était juste sur le point de réussir une petite escroquerie assez astucieuse et de se faire verser le montant de chèques importants ; après bien des délibérations, une équipe s'est formée pour tenter de l'encadrer pendant un an ou deux, en mettant en place un programme d'activité quotidienne aussi équilibré que possible, espérant qu'ainsi il pourra se ressaisir et mieux s'orienter – 4 heures de travail physique le matin dans une ferme, 2 heures d'études, 1 heure de service, 2 heures de sport et le soir 1 ou 2 heures d'études comme il l'entend.

Pour cette heure de service, ce garçon, A, avait souhaité participer à la réception des visiteurs au Matrimandir. Mais il nous a semblé que ce contexte particulier ne nous permettrait pas de traiter avec lui de manière assez responsable. Je devais donc le rencontrer pour lui expliquer notre décision, mais je souhaitais lui proposer une écoute et un partage, et peut-être un travail de compréhension pour qu'il acquiert la capacité de surmonter sa difficulté. C'est un gosse intéressant ; il a maintenant 21 ans, et il a dû commencer à voler dans l'enfance, et donc, en même temps, à pratiquer l'art de la dissimulation.

Une de ses réflexions, dans notre conversation, a trait à ce sens qui l'opprime d'une sorte de malédiction qui ne le quittera plus : que toujours, quoi qu'il fasse et où qu'il se trouve ici, quelqu'un ne manquera pas de rappeler au présent le poids de cette erreur passée, et que jamais il n'en sera libre, que ce ne sera jamais nettoyé... Et effectivement, dans cette atmosphère souvent paroissiale, la mesquinerie, la facilité et la paresse rendent souvent les uns ou les autres destructeurs de tout renouvellement et de toute évolution. Je ne peux guère le nier, ni même souhaiter escamoter la question ; je n'ai pu qu'essayer de lui faire sentir que, malgré la petitesse de notre nature humaine, sa situation particulière, dans la mesure où il continuera de marcher, de grandir, de comprendre et d'évoluer, lui ouvrira une qualité de relation et d'amitié qui sera nécessairement plus précieuse et plus valable. Et là, j'ai parlé en « connaissance de cause » !

Ironiquement, Selvam me raconte aujourd'hui que, dans un groupe de travail il a été question une fois de plus de l'interdiction que Tu es supposée avoir éditée en ce qui me concerne : Hervé aurait affirmé que c'était écrit de Ta main, il y a 30 ans, « Divakar ne doit pas être à Auroville ! »... Trente ans !

7-7-2000, Auroville :

Trente ns d'une vie humaine adulte, c'est tout de même considérable : si les choses ne se sont pas éclaircies, si un début de réalisation et d'équilibre dans l'avance ne s'est pas manifesté vers l'âge de 50 ans, cela ne présage rien de très lumineux pour la suite ; si de telles formations ont su persister si longtemps, à travers tant d'expériences et dans un contexte exceptionnel où se produisent tant de brassages et de soulèvements, on ne voit guère pourquoi les mêmes mécanismes ne continueraient pas d'opérer indéfiniment...

Alors cela en soi procure un argument de poids en faveur de ce procédé, qui fait figure de loi absolue, de la mort du corps, de l'éparpillement des énergies, de la perte de la mémoire consciente, et de la période de temps physique qui peut s'écouler entre deux vies, et de la rupture de tous les processus linéaires d'identité...

En ce qui me concerne, j'ai peut-être poussé trop loin cette exigence de n'entrer en relation durable qu'avec ceux qui étaient capables d'une ouverture inconditionnelle, et d'une confiance et d'une amitié libres des influences.

Ainsi, ne me montrant nullement sociable, je n'ai pas permis qu'une compréhension plus réelle se répande de ce qui s'est vraiment passé, de ce que Tu m'as vraiment dit, écrit ou montré, et des forces qui ont joué.

Il est aussi vrai pourtant que, jusqu'à ce jour, je n'ai pas entièrement compris de quoi il s'est agi, de quoi il s'agit peut-être encore ; même si, jugé, défendu, condamné, honni, banni ou embrassé et protégé, j'ai eu bien des occasions uniques d'accéder à une compréhension des êtres qui n'est sûrement pas à la portée de tous.

De quoi s'agissait-il ? De quoi s'agit-il ?

Car il ne s'est jamais agi d'un acte que j'aurais commis, ni même d'une position que j'aurais prise à un moment ou un autre ; il ne pouvait s'agir que d'un jeu de forces directement lié à mon existence. Mais même cette hypothèse, largement générique, me semble encore fumeuse, approximative, et finalement peu utile...

Peu de gens se soucient d'être les maîtres de leur demeure, ni même d'être clairement conscients de ce qu'ils y hébergent ; peu de gens prennent la peine d'examiner le contenu et l'origine de leurs opinions, leurs jugements, leurs préjugés, leurs sentiments mêmes.

Et c'est précisément cette inertie, cette sorte de veulerie si répandue et si « normale », cette adhésion égoïste et aveugle, qui est l'un des plus grands obstacles à une évolution positivement harmonieuse et créatrice de constants renouvellements.

Dans cette dimension du problème, nous sommes tous à la fois victimes et responsables, car qui d'entre nous a l'exigence et la décence de vérifier la validité ou la nature de chaque pensée, de chaque sentiment, de chaque principe d'action ou habitude d'agir, de chaque préférence ou chaque affinité qui nous occupent, et constituent l'apparente richesse de notre bagage ?

Dans le cas de figure qui est le mien, une autre dimension, redoutable, s'ajoute en surplus à la déformation ordinaire et semble la légitimer et la nourrir en profondeur : c'est la dimension soi-disant spirituelle. Car, ici, la condamnation, ou la définition négative, serait issue de la plus indiscutable des autorités spirituelles !

Qu'importe que Tu m'aies accueilli, appelé, nommé et accepté pour Ton travail, du moment que Tu es censée m'avoir renvoyé ou écarté de Ta base d'opérations ou Ton terrain privilégié d'expérience ; il ne peut y avoir que deux conclusions pratiques à mon égard : ou bien, tôt sur le chemin ; je T'ai trahie et me suis ouvert consciemment à l'adversité, prenant son parti contre Ton œuvre ; ou bien Tu as vu en moi, dans ma nature ou dans la part qui m'échoit, une configuration qui ne pourrait qu'être néfaste à la tentative collective d'Auroville.

Dans un cas comme dans l'autre, ce deviendrait ainsi le devoir de tout membre sincère de cette communauté d'aspirants de persister fidèlement dans le rejet de ma présence et de ma participation...

C'est donc sous cette sorte de malédiction plus ou moins subtile que j'ai vécu ces trente années...

Une malédiction si effective que le meilleur de moi-même en est autant l'agent que tous ces autres chercheurs plus ou moins clairement intentionnés se doivent de l'être ou le sont malgré eux.

En effet, combien de fois ne me suis-je pas retiré, soit d'une proximité humaine, soit d'un champ de travail, pour que cette personne-là ou ce travail-là ne soient pas affectés, compromis ou exposés à la mauvaise volonté par le simple fait de leur association avec moi ?

Et combien de fois, réciproquement, le souci de ne pas m'exposer aux attaques n'a-t-il pas justifié, en ceux qui ont su être mes amis, un mouvement à peine déguisé de mise à l'écart préventive, ou l'érection d'une barrière ou d'une limitation à l'exercice de mes capacités ?

Il y a eu ainsi, même positivement, une sorte de double processus d'évitement. Et, écrivant maintenant ce mot, « évitement », je suis frappé d'une sorte de consternation, car cela évoque la fuite ! Et pourtant je suis certain, du point de vue psychologique personnel, que rien de ce qui m'est arrivé n'est dû, de ma part, à une attitude de fuite ; au contraire, ma tendance psychologique a plutôt été, tout au long de ce chemin, de faire imprudemment face, de me jeter dans la gueule du loup et d'ignorer activement tout ce qui pourrait s'apparenter à une forme de calcul visant à la préservation.

Il y a la Vérité intraduisible, éternelle, omniprésente, libre absolument et nouvelle à chaque instant.

Cela, aucun instrument ne peut prétendre connaître ; de Cela, aucune conscience individualisée ne peut se réclamer.

Cela pourtant peut nous guider, du plus grand ensemble au détail le plus infime, dans la mesure de notre ouverture directe et de la transparence réalisée en notre être.

Et il y a les vérités. D'innombrables vérités, comme les notes innombrables d'une musique infinie, dont certaines sont majeures, dans le sens où elles permettent à d'autres de trouver leur juste place et leur unique fonction.

L'une de ces vérités majeures est que nous sommes le Suprême essentiellement, et qu'ainsi « ma » lutte et « mes » tâtonnements sont les Siens, et que cet ensemble de données que je représente uniquement est le Sien, inconditionnellement le Sien.

Ce soir, G et moi avons rendez-vous sur le champ de cajous, et j'ai longtemps marché, poussant mon vélo, le long des canyons, sous le ciel chargé, alourdi de masses grises, méditant - l'une de ces méditations actives qu'on laisse la conscience organiser - sur l'état des choses, sur le mystère du chemin...

D'année en année les sentiers et les ravines traversant les palmeraies sont plus jonchées de détritiques, de plastique, de déchets séparés, durs, étrangers - comme toute la région, comme tout le pays : un dépotoir.

Nous sommes dans un pays « en voie de développement » ! La question lancinante qui se pose : quelle est cette obscurité à l'œuvre sur cette Terre, qui oriente le processus multiforme d'une civilisation entière de telle manière qu'elle se sépare de plus en plus de son environnement et l'abîme et le trahit. Où opère-t-elle ? Où est sa tanière ?

Car ce n'est qu'en saisissant pratiquement un processus qu'on peut le changer, ou au moins tenter d'y remédier...

Il faut de l'égo pour éprouver l'humiliation.

Mais il y a une dignité intérieure qui est libre de l'égo et peut cependant éprouver une sorte de sentiment de recul, mêlé de quelque chose comme de la peine, envers l'avalissement ou l'abjection.

Et il y a un troisième état, qui permet de traverser : c'est un état d'immobilité, qui est comme une pureté active - un très léger retrait, ou rétablissement, dans une immobilité vivante et consciente, qui nettoie. Instantanément.

Cela peut même annuler une douleur tout à fait physique, comme lorsqu'on se heurte violemment ou se blesse, et je crois que, dans une certaine mesure, cela peut aussi annuler les effets physiologiques.

12-7-2000, Auroville :

Jérôme d'Astier m'a envoyé deux petits livres qu'il vient de publier l'un après l'autre ; le plus récent de l'indignité spécifique au milieu de la prostitution masculine, et de l'horreur des sévices qui y sont infligés à ces gosses qui se laissent prendre dans l'engrenage. C'est un ouvrage que je trouve remarquable, et justement d'une grande dignité. Il s'agit d'un adolescent, de ce type physique aux cheveux très roux et bouclés et à la peau très blanche, dont la sexualité semble se défier des caractéristiques corporelles trop définies, et dont la vie émotionnelle a secrètement dominé l'évolution de la personnalité ; enfant adopté, il s'éprend à l'école de son professeur, lequel ne peut, de par sa propre nature, répondre à cette passion. C'est alors qu'il s'exile et plonge dans la fange de la ville, cherchant à y perdre tout respect de lui-même ; il demeure pourtant, à travers toute l'ignominie, comme protégé intérieurement par la force et la constance mêmes de cet amour impossible, tel un espoir irrépressible. Et, depuis cet enfer, comme une offrande de vérité, il écrit à cet homme, ce professeur inatteignable, lui disant tout – tout ce qu'il éprouve, mais aussi tout ce qu'il vit. Le professeur est lui-même engagé dans un mouvement de transition inconnu, ayant décidé enfin de se retirer du système éducationnel prévalent, le jugeant contraire aux nécessités d'un développement véritable de l'individualité ; de plus, sa compagne de plusieurs années attend un enfant, qu'ils ont tous deux désiré. Elle l'encourage à répondre à cet adolescent meurtri, l'invitant à séjourner auprès d'eux. C'est ainsi que cette première densité de souffrance et de manque affectif est comme inexorablement menée vers un degré plus tragique de l'impasse car, alors même qu'une partie de son impossible rêve se réalise et qu'il lui est donné de pouvoir exprimer son amour par un dévouement entier de tout son être, lui est aussi démontrée la supériorité de la femme qui seule détient le pouvoir et les attributs nécessaires pour recevoir et nourrir cet amour qui le hante. Au bout du chemin, fuyant dans la nuit vers sa propre destruction, c'est au moment même où l'homme, enfin touché, est prêt à se rendre et à s'unir à lui dans une tendresse qui enfin l'accepte, que la foudre le frappe, juste là, à portée de bras, et qu'il s'écroule inconscient contre la poitrine adorée.

Et donc c'est encore une fois la négation de la réponse.

Mais quand nous savons qu'il n'existe rien autre que le Suprême, que la seule réalité est le Suprême, et que nous sommes chacun le Suprême à la recherche et la découverte de Sa propre plénitude manifeste, alors devient-il impératif de trouver la réponse vivante à l'obstacle, l'impasse ou la contradiction, à la mort ; et la réponse ne se trouvera pas dans plus de morale, ni dans de la morale perfectionnée : la réponse ne se trouvera que dans plus de conscience, plus de présence, plus de courage et plus de vérité.

Tant que nous demeurons ancrés au linéaire, comment pouvons-nous devenir conscients d'une solution durable ?

Le linéaire, c'est la mécanique de l'usure, le spectre de l'ennui, l'inévitabilité de la mort.

Ce n'est qu'en s'élevant assez haut, en plongeant assez profondément, et en s'unissant à cette conscience si essentielle qu'elle peut tout englober, ce qui est manifeste comme ce qui est non manifesté, et en la tournant vers le monde, que peut s'établir une pression s'exerçant sur tous les points à la fois...

19-7-2000, Auroville :

Peut-être à cause des formations qui continuent de peser sur moi, je suis constamment à la merci d'un doute très corrosif : non ce doute de la Présence et du Réel – ça, c'est impossible – mais le doute que je puisse jamais Le servir, Te servir ; que je puisse jamais devenir un instrument fidèle, un corps ou un membre ou un rayon de Cela...

... Il y a le souvenir brûlant comme un trou de flamme au centre de la vie même, ce souvenir physique, entier, plein de Ta Présence corporelle et de la Pression qui était partout dans l'air même, dans nos corps et dans chaque instant, cette Pression qui plongeait comme un glaive de diamant et ouvrait l'univers à une éternité consciente et une infinité du Possible et une tendresse sans limites : la fin de tous les murs.

Et, depuis, le retrait de cette Pression a causé, par sa puissante absence, comme le sens d'un mime pitoyable, d'une représentation creuse, inapte à progresser.

... Je voudrais tant rendre le don qui m'a été fait, tout au long de cette vie, le rendre au monde, à Cela, comme à ceux qui m'ont aimé : je voudrais tant pouvoir donner, transmettre, canaliser quelque chose qui vaille la peine...

Et maintenant que même l'œuvre de Matrimandir me semble comme adultérée – comme si ce n'était plus le lieu d'un avènement auquel on puisse adhérer sans réserves -, il faut, il faut trouver la clé d'une circulation de la conscience. Il me semble que si je ne la trouve pas, si je n'en suis pas digne ou capable, alors cette vie cesse d'avoir un sens et il vaudrait mieux la résumer, la rassembler autour de l'expérience de Ta Présence, et l'emporter : nettoyer les traces, réunir l'essentiel, et conclure.

Et pourtant, je me sens aussi, plus même qu'il y a trente ans, prêt à commencer, prêt à aborder un chemin qui s'annonce, prêt avec mon corps – même si la trahison de l'âge intervient ici et là.

Soaz, en visite avec Samuel, me parle de la situation physique dans la région de la France où elle habite et travaille comme institutrice ; elle m'a expliqué comment elle doit désormais veiller à soigneusement filtrer l'eau qu'ils boivent car, dans cette partie de la Bretagne, l'eau puisée n'est plus potable : la nappe phréatique est empoisonnée par un excès de nitrates infiltrés par les pluies saisonnières, à cause des pratiques sauvages d'un nombre croissant d'éleveurs et de fermiers ; en particulier les éleveurs de porcs, qui enfreignent la loi en élevant plus de porcs qu'ils n'ont de terres pour y étendre le lisier ; c'est-à-dire que, pour un gain monétaire immédiat, beaucoup de fermiers bretons choisissent sciemment et délibérément de poursuivre des pratiques dont les effets sont destructeurs à plusieurs niveaux de vie : ils élèvent des animaux dans des conditions d'indignité évidente, pour la seule valeur commerciale de leur corps tués ; puis, plutôt que d'utiliser le lisier pour le bien de la terre, ils l'épandent en si fortes concentrations que le sol et les eaux souterraines s'empoisonnent et empoisonnent à leur tour combien d'espèces vivantes.... C'est le portrait de cette barbarie moderne qui prend et prend et prend encore et ne donne rien, et s'étouffe lentement de ne rien donner, et se déshumanise sans se dépasser.

Et ici dans l'Inde, nous avons les villageois subventionnés par le gouvernement qui inondent leurs champs de casuarinas, de cajous ou de canne à sucre, en y versant les pesticides les plus violents, officiellement bannis du marché par les nations « développées », ruinant le sol et décimant sa faune et sa flore, empoisonnant la nappe souterraine, tout cela pour augmenter le « niveau de vie » sans trop d'efforts et acquérir aveuglément les biens et les équipements qui les dévoreront à leur tout...

On est pris d'un vertige effroyable !

Quelle démarche peut-on élire qui ne soit pas vouée à l'échec, si, justement, ne s'exerce pas une Pression de la Conscience vraie sur tous les points à la fois ?

22-7-2000, Auroville :

J'ai reçu de F.J une note synthèse de plusieurs pages résumant ses commentaires et questions après trois lectures de mon texte – lectures espacées puisque, depuis plus de six mois, sa détermination à me livrer ses réponses ou interrogations a été successivement entravée par les puissantes tempêtes de l'hiver et les dégâts matériels qu'elles ont causés, par une longue et pénible bronchite, par les tensions dues à ces retards pour la réalisation de ses engagements variés et, probablement et plus prosaïquement, par son appréhension à se prononcer d'une manière quelconque et à risquer ainsi de compromettre et la qualité et l'avenir de notre dialogue.

Il me faudra relire dans le détail cette longue note, mais déjà m'apparaît clairement la question majeure : c'est celle d'un arbitraire qui nous déposséderait de l'authenticité, et de l'intégralité de notre état.

Je crois qu'en fait il ne sait pas bien identifier, et donc exprimer, cette question fondamentale qui prend en lui presque le caractère d'une hantise et qui, en beaucoup d'êtres qui tiennent à « jouer le jeu honnêtement », légitime les soupçons ou les réserves qu'ils éprouvent envers toute promotion d'une sorte d'interventionnisme spirituel, qu'il s'agisse d'un jugement dernier, d'un retour de messie, d'une descente d'énergie, ou d'une action concertée depuis d'autres mondes ou planètes, et de manière générale de tout programme « supérieur » qui serait déjà inscrit dans l'ordre des choses.

Cette question est importante parce que, d'une part, elle est sincère, elle est engagée, et d'autre part, elle est représentative d'une assez vaste partie de l'humanité pour laquelle il manque un pont, un accès ou une reconnaissance et une communication vers la conscience et son action.

Je ne sais pas si la possibilité de dialogue qui nous est donnée, et notre effort d'une vraie communication, pourront contribuer à une ouverture, à une mise en présence et une réceptivité ; mais je le crois...

24-7-2000, Auroville :

Par scrupule et pour bien m'assurer de ne pas commettre à mon tour d'injustice, ou de me laisser aveugler par quelque trace d'orgueil, ou d'ignorer le bon sens de ses critiques, j'ai encore relu, lentement et attentivement, la note de F.J. Mais cela me casse la tête : c'est comme une volée de bois mort... Alors je crois que ma réponse, qui s'adressait à la question qui le tourmente et ne s'embarrassait d'aucune velléité de réfuter ses critiques, était bien inspirée. Reste à voir comment il la recevra et ce qu'il en fera...

Et alors il y a cette reconnaissance et cette gratitude envers Vous : combien, dans Votre atmosphère et Votre rayonnement, la compréhension s'élargit et s'approfondit et se centre et s'anime de présence, et combien le mental même s'apaise et s'assouplit à mesure qu'il s'oriente vers la lumière intérieure et s'offre à un mode de perception plus direct et plus vrai.

Avec cette note de F.J, je suis encore une fois devant le fait d'une limitation constitutionnelle ; cela arrive souvent que je me trouve en présence, par exemple, de deux personnes qui argumentent et ne s'entendent pas, ne se saisissent pas – je parle ici de gens honnêtes, de gens convaincus, qui se donnent à ce qu'ils pensent et font un effort de dialogue et d'ouverture -, et qui peuvent poursuivre une discussion sans issue jusqu'à l'épuisement, au découragement, ou même à la rupture ; alors qu'il est relativement aisé, dans un mouvement de concentration paisible et d'identification silencieuse, de percevoir la vérité respective de chacune des positions qui semblent ne pouvoir que s'affronter ; et, souvent, de saisir ainsi leur complémentarité, et la puissance de progrès contenue dans leur rencontre.

Ce qui est terrible en Occident, et surtout dans les milieux intellectuel ou artistique, c'est que chacun se sent tenu et obligé de mettre au point et de parfaire sa propre démarche originale et singulière, et de prouver qu'elle peut s'appliquer à tous les sujets et dans tous les domaines, comme la griffe d'un couturier...

C a téléphoné hier soir de Bretagne ; à grand peine elle et Odile sont parvenues à y conduire R, et C se sentait déjà un peu soulagée par les effets que le changement de cadre et d'atmosphère avait déjà sur la condition de R... Il est certain que chacun, chaque corps, doit trouver sa propre manière juste d'approcher cette « fin » - d'aborder cette perte radicale et ce total inconnu...

Quoique l'on dise et quelle que soit la réalisation individuelle, la connaissance acquise, la force de caractère, ou l'état de paix, de détachement ou d'expansion et d'universalisation déjà obtenu, dans la mesure où on ne se raconte pas d'histoires, où l'on reste lucide et assez humble et... pondéré, le fait est, le fait demeure, que cette fin, que l'instant même de cette irréversible césure, que cet acte de disparition final, que cette mort, cette cessation, est un mystère entier.

Et l'on ne voit guère comment, de quelle droit ou par quelle autorité, l'on pourrait jamais prêcher une « bonne » manière d'approcher la mort – la fin de la vie !

Il paraît évidemment souhaitable que les derniers instants de la vie corporelle soient vécus dans un état rassemblé, lucide et tranquille, réuni peut-être autour de l'émotion la plus belle, la plus profonde et la plus vraie que l'on ait jamais éprouvée.

Mais comment « vivre bien » cette relation temporelle à l'approche graduelle et inexorable de la fin quand l'organisme et ses capacités d'endurance sont si atteints qu'il est désormais impossible qu'un rétablissement conséquent se produise ? Que peut-on conseiller ou même souhaiter à celui ou celle qui se trouve là ? Dans quel sens peut-on le mieux, par identification, y servir ?

Je grossis et caricature la question parce que, dans le cas de R, je dois me mettre « à la place » de quelqu'un qui ne reconnaît ni la foi ni la Grâce, et qui a fondé son intégrité et son honnêteté personnelles sur l'agnosticisme, de quelqu'un qui est pourtant assez conscient, dont l'intelligence est aigüe et capable d'intuition, et dont la gamme émotionnelle et pulsionnelle est complexe ; et c'est aussi l'histoire d'un couple, avec quarante années de vie commune, et de la fin de cette histoire à deux, et des possibles permutations de cette fin selon que l'un ou l'autre s'en va le premier...

27-7-2000, Auroville :

Peut-être y a-t-il un nombre critique d'occasions où l'on se trouve si détestable, si insuffisant et si inadéquat, où l'on se fait à soi-même l'effet d'une telle imposture, que l'on comprend alors le mobile de cette force instinctive de la nature qui replonge les éléments de ses créations dans son vaste chaudron, toujours à la recherche de cette combinaison magique qui tiendra enfin la route et permettra un progrès continu – que l'on comprend l'utilité de la mort...

On voudrait se secouer brutalement, ou être immergé dans cette eau légendaire qui dissout les scories, les habitudes et les plis, tout le rebut et le déchet et la subconscience du souvenir et l'accumulation négative de tous ces milliers de petits mouvements d'ego enregistrés, logés et incrustés comme une suie qui encombre et obstrue...

1-8-2000, Auroville :

Depuis quelques mois, parallèlement à cette sorte de détresse ou de révolte que suscitent les mécanismes de l'âge, je suis aux prises avec une déperdition de l'énergie physique, qui se traduit concrètement par un besoin accentué de sommeil et un ralentissement de certaines fonctions, telle celle de la digestion. Et c'est comme une bataille qui serait vaine, mais dans la pénombre ou le chaos de laquelle il y aurait pourtant, si improbable cela soit, le sens mystérieusement tangible d'un chemin qui se fraye...

Ce sens est en affinité avec une sensation que j'avais souvent lorsque j'étais enfant, comme d'un corps dans le corps, ou d'une ressource corporelle secrète, voilée, mais certaine ; la sensation d'une vérité physique, qui était à la fois presque une douleur cellulaire – une intensité inhabituelle et difficile à supporter – et le bien-être de la présence interne, cellulaire, d'une grâce.

Mais l'expérience de la vie est destructrice, et s'attaque particulièrement à ce qui est le plus cher, le plus précieux et le plus pur : un jour ou l'autre, dans le marasme de cette universelle confusion, on ouvre les mains et on plonge entier, sans plus rien préserver, avec cette seule foi que la conscience saura toujours, ultimement, triompher.

Mais comment accepter la corruption de cet aveugle absolu qui gouverne encore le destin organique du corps ?

Parfois, la nuit, c'est une répulsion qui m'éveille : il n'y a rien de noble dans le vieillissement ; c'est un avilissement et un viol, c'est une monstrueuse violence.

Comment peut-on l'accepter ?

Parce qu'il n'y a pas le choix ?

Mais est-ce vrai qu'il n'y a pas le choix ?

Comment cela peut-il être vrai ?

Il s'agirait alors d'un monde essentiellement taré ?

Mais quand on sait que le Suprême est au centre, à l'origine et au but du monde et de tous les mondes, comment peut-on accepter de se prêter à cette violence ?

2-8-2000, Auroville :

Il me semble que le rôle de la science médicale, et les fondements mêmes de toute approche thérapeutique, se trouvent dans une position de plus en plus ambiguë.

En deçà de cette vague d'enthousiasme qui se réclame à la fois d'une compréhension holistique inclusive de l'environnement et des rythmes subtils qui scandent la vie de la nature physique, et du pouvoir formateur du mental sur la condition du corps, et s'alimente, un peu superstitieusement, aux postulats novateurs de la physique, un autre évènement semble se produire ; cet évènement est double, ou à deux versants : d'une part, l'incertitude constitutionnelle de l'instrument mental, intellectuel et de sa logique rationnelle s'accompagne d'une crainte profonde devant le fait de la diversité absolue comme de l'unicité absolue de chaque phénomène, et de chaque désordre et apparente disharmonie ; et d'autre part, le pressentiment ou la préhension d'une conscience directe, une et omniprésente s'accompagne d'une sorte d'angoisse devant la révolution si formidable de nos habitudes d'être et de comprendre qui semble être requise pour que nous devenions capables de nous unir à cette conscience, de vivre et de voir et de connaître par elle.

Comme si nous nous tenions à la frontière d'un milieu physique où le sens même de notre existence nous mène à passer, mais nous sommes démunis : nous n'avons pas les organes correspondants, et nous allons suffoquer ; c'est presque pire que la mort physique, puisque c'est la vie, là, et la vraie vie enfin, mais nous ne sommes pas équipés pour y exister : c'est une intolérance presque terrifiante.

Et la première évidence de notre misère et notre indigence est celle-ci : nous sommes insuffisamment habités, il n'y a pas en nous assez de Présence ; ce qui nous habite, ce sont des échos, des images, des fragments, ou ce sont des saccades d'une intensité trop exclusive ou trop partielle, ou ce sont des circulations routinières et des associations sans vigueur, ou des courants d'activité trop lents et trop linéaires, une marche hésitante qui tente constamment, et vainement, de réconcilier les trois termes du temps.

C m'a téléphoné : les Editions Albin Michel ont refusé mon texte, qui ne cadre pas dans la spécificité de leur collection « Spiritualités » ; R est mieux, grâce à des médicaments anti-dépresseurs ; et elle pense maintenant venir ici cet hiver, et me demande de la raccompagner en France et de passer quelques temps avec eux.

Je n'ai plus écrit dans ce cahier depuis des semaines...

Je crois que j'essayais d'oublier ce texte qui ne trouve pas sa place, et la peine que j'en éprouve... comme si cela portait l'ombre d'un Refus supérieur, et la condamnation de toute capacité en moi à servir les mouvements ou l'action de la conscience...

C'est probablement enfantin, mais je ne puis m'empêcher de ressentir que si ce texte ne rencontre pas d'accueil, c'est que Tu n'en veux pas, que la Force n'en veut pas...

Cet émerveillement immobile au cours de l'écriture, cette expérience de plusieurs mois que c'était la conscience qui me permettait de le rédiger dans son flot mesuré et sa clarté sans ombre : était-ce une illusion, était-ce pour rien, était-ce encore l'ego qui vole et usurpe ?

Mais si cela avait été l'ego, alors ce serait encore l'ego qui chercherait à se faire reconnaître et appliquerait à cet effort son habileté et son amoralité, comme je le vois faire dans la majorité de ceux qui parviennent à s'affirmer dans ce monde...

Mais rien ne bouge.

Je n'éprouve qu'un malaise.

13-9-2000, Auroville :

Localement, dans la routine plus ou moins exceptionnelle d'Auroville, de Matrimandir, ce que je peux apporter est si minime, et inévitablement mélangé ; alors que résident en moi des capacités de perception, d'expression et de création qui peuvent atteindre plus et plus loin... Mais je ne dispose pas, justement, de cette assurance, ni de cette innocence ou ignorance vitale qui permet à tant d'autres de mettre leur travail en avant ; je souhaiterais que ce soit la vertu essentiel de ce travail qui soit chargée de son propre pouvoir de circulation...

Et cela me ramène à cette impression terrible – terrible parce qu'elle semble être sans recours et sans explication – d'une malédiction...

Il y a en fait, dans cette existence – et peut-être pas seulement – comme une étrange confluence, ou conjugaison, d'une malédiction puissante et d'une bénédiction souveraine.

Et les choses se sont passées dans cette vie comme si, à un moment donné, s'était répétée, ou produite à nouveau, ou réactivée une malédiction spécifique, une condamnation négative... Et, en même temps, l'assurance claire et entière d'une percée de conscience et d'un chemin de transformation...

On peut bien se dire que ce n'est là qu'une disposition singulière de la contradiction qui nécessairement traverse la vie de chaque être individuel s'approchant d'une conversion effective de l'ego : cette attribution juste et inévitable en chacun des parts d'ombre et de lumière...

Mais d'une part il me semble, depuis longtemps déjà, que cette philosophie qui voit en chacun la place de l'ombre et celle de la lumière en combat perpétuel, est un piège moral et une justification pour nous maintenir dans une ambiguïté qui repousse toujours dans l'avenir la possibilité même de la plénitude ; et d'autre part mon expérience a été trop précise et trop concrète d'une intervention extérieure positivement contraire. Je repense à cette phrase de Nata : « Je suis sûr qu'un jour la vérité sera faite » ; ou à l'avertissement qui me fut donné plus tôt : « Quelqu'un est en train de te jouer un tour... ».

Hier s'est tenu un premier séminaire, ou « dialogue », sur le thème de l'Art de l'Harmonisation. Invité, je m'étais préparé intérieurement à ce que l'on explore à la fois les degrés et dimensions du sens que l'on donne à l'harmonie, et les implications de l'usage de la forme active, « harmoniser ».

Ce premier volet s'est déroulé avec la participation de Kireet Joshi : un avantage, car cela garantit une certaine hauteur de débat ; et un désavantage, car cela induit la plupart des participants à modifier leur comportement. J'aimerais beaucoup mieux qu'il se joigne à Auroville, en tant qu'individu, plutôt que d'assumer ces fonctions.

Il s'est avéré tout de suite que la plupart des participants voyaient là une occasion d'attirer l'attention sur telle ou telle contradiction, difficulté ou impasse qui leur semblait mériter justement un effort particulier d'harmonisation, ou indiquer un manque particulièrement poignant d'harmonie ; et que très peu d'entre eux étaient disposés à rechercher ensemble un niveau commun de définition et d'approche.

Je n'ai rien dit ; j'ai écouté.

Ce qui est de plus en plus frappant à mesure que l'expérience d'Auroville se développe, c'est le fait que l'on ne peut commencer de communiquer que lorsqu'on s'est désengagé du fonctionnement mental égocentré pour s'établir dans la perception consciente.

On peut voir cependant, dans ce thème de l'harmonie, la question peut-être la plus cruciale, et à la fois la plus éternelle et la plus urgente.

Il n'y a pas de manifestation sans harmonie : l'harmonie est une constituante fondamentale de toute manifestation ! Même la destruction est harmonieuse !

Le mouvement des atomes ou des molécules comme le déplacement des étoiles ou leur collision, est nécessairement harmonieux ; la décomposition d'un agrégat cellulaire est aussi harmonieuse que sa formation.

Mais en l'homme, parce qu'il est un être évolutif de transition, et parce que l'évolution l'a distancié de son statut de créature et l'a attelé, pour les besoins de l'individuation, à la séparativité de l'ego instrumental, la question se pose d'une harmonie supérieure, d'une harmonie consciente : car l'homme est un être tourmenté, un être en quête, insatisfait, tendu, inaccompli.

Et sa perception, ou sensation de l'harmonie nécessaire, de l'harmonie qui lui manque et doit être acquise ou créée, est déterminée par son degré d'évolution individuel. Aussi longtemps que son développement est dicté par la formation de l'ego physique, psychologique et mental, son objectif d'harmonie est synonyme de sécurité, de contrôle et d'ordre et d'intelligibilité, de transmissibilité. Mais dès que s'ouvre son expérience intérieure et qu'il s'éveille à la dimension spirituelle, sa référence d'harmonie change de caractère et devient représentative de l'état de conscience à réaliser. Or cette référence est variable, car tous n'auront pas le même développement intérieur, ou la même réalisation, ni le même degré d'ouverture ou la même aspiration, ni la même liberté de conscience.

Cette inégalité était amplement démontrée hier.

Au sein d'une même collectivité dont les membres s'engagent à servir un même idéal, un résultat de cette inégalité est que les individus ont une évaluation différente de l'harmonie – dans leur besoin même comme dans leur motivation pour y parvenir, et dans ce qu'ils en attendent...

29-9-2000, Auroville :

J'ai éprouvé le besoin l'autre jour de communiquer directement à Kireet certaines de mes réflexions sur le thème de l'harmonie ; j'ai d'abord hésité à lui en remettre la notation, parce que je ne voulais pas être motivé par le désir égoïste d'être « reconnu » ; mais je devinais aussi que, malgré sa clarté mentale et sa réceptivité dédiée, il était enclin, dans son orientation et selon son rôle officiel, à exercer une pression pour qu'un accord moral soit obtenu sur quelques-uns des sujets les plus sensibles et des conflits actuels les plus diviseurs.

Donc, ma lettre lui a été remise lundi soir. Et hier, jeudi matin, lorsqu'il est venu nous rencontrer au Matrimandir, il tenait cette lettre dans sa poche, et s'y est référé de telle manière que notre contact a semblé en être approfondi, éclairé.

Il a abordé alors, sans la nommer, la question du conflit qui nous oppose à Roger A à propos de la réalisation des Jardins, avec ce qui a semblé être plus de mesure et plus d'attention.

Il a comparé le besoin que, selon lui, chacun, de part et d'autre, devrait ressentir d'offrir ses efforts à l'avènement de l'harmonie, à la peine de l'enfant devant la souffrance de la mère et son désir intense qu'elle se rétablisse. ...

On peut effectivement, si l'on écarte la préférence de l'ego à durcir ses positions et se nourrir de réactions, continuer de vouloir et de souhaiter, quoiqu'il arrive, fidèlement et honnêtement, qu'une harmonie véritable s'installe, sans à aucun moment compromettre ce à quoi l'on croit profondément ni sa propre intégrité. On peut s'assurer de n'accepter en soi-même qu'une énergie de bonne volonté éclairée qui dépasse la petite personne et l'étroitesse exclusive de ses vues.

Mais il faut toutefois, et en même temps, cultiver cette capacité de discernement qui saisisse non seulement les vérités qui s'opposent mais la fonction et la place qu'elles devront occuper et la relation de chacune à l'ensemble – l'harmonie supérieure – comme à la présence centrale.

... Tout cela est bien ; mais revient le bât qui blesse, lancinant : pour traiter avec des personnes, des individualités, il faut du respect, il faut pouvoir les respecter ! Je me sens tout à fait démuné en face de quelqu'un pour qui je ne puis éprouver de respect ; c'est comme si l'essentiel s'était absenté...

On peut se méprendre les uns sur les autres ; on peut s'en vouloir ; on peut s'opposer, on peut s'éloigner momentanément les uns des autres ; mais il faut que le respect demeure. Si ce respect est atteint, abîmé, il ne reste alors qu'un jeu de forces, et c'est terrible !

Il s'agit des choix dont les actes témoignent : quand vient le moment où les choix exprimés par des actes répétés ne peuvent plus être sujets à interprétation ni bénéficier de l'ignorance ou du doute, quand ils représentent une volonté égocentrique exclusive et délibérée, ou prennent la valeur d'une trahison, c'est comme une mort, une désolation, c'est comme un vol. Il n'y a plus d'intégrité dans le chemin...

L'amour véritable pourtant, doit nécessairement être plus fort, être capable de déréaliser les effets de cette trahison... S'il ne l'était pas, l'évolution serait impossible ! Qui d'entre nous n'a pas une fois, n'a jamais trahi ?

La Grâce et le Rire du Seigneur toujours nous attendent !

Texte de ma lettre à Kireet Joshi, à propos de « l'Art de l'Harmonisation ». 26-9-2000, Auroville:

"Preparing to come to the seminar "Dialogue" on Sunday last, I had found that my inclination, and my sense of priority, was to first try and define together what we mean by "harmony".

For there are layers and layers of harmony, and at each layer it holds a different value and a different meaning.

I felt that priority to be all the more important as the title given to this exercise – "the Art of Harmonisation" – was rather ambiguous and misleading.

In fact, I did feel wary and almost suspicious of the intent which would express itself in such a wording, insofar as the will to harmonise, if it is determined or even influenced by any egoistic ambition may, even with the best of intentions, cause a lot of harm and be quite disastrous.

(Note on 15-8-2005: How right I was to be wary then! If only we had been able to see and sense more clearly where Kireet's drive was taking Auroville!)

I did not know at the time that the choice of this title had been yours.

And, in the evening session, when you spoke at length of the need to define together the currencies of the thought waves in today' Auroville, I felt reassured.

But, you see, unless you continue to be part of the exercise and to contribute this exigency and this thrust towards conscious communication, rather than mental or emotional trading, I am afraid that it will not bear much fruit.

As I understand it so far, the issue of harmony is at once so complex, so vast and so essential that we might perceive it as the central issue in evolution.

I would like here to try and go through the main aspects of this issue.

First of all, no manifestation is possible without harmony; harmony is a constituent of any and all manifestation: within a given manifestation there is harmony even in destruction.

There is thus harmony in disintegration as well as in formation.

Distanciation from this occurs with man, the transitional being, and humanity, the transitional species.

Ego is in man the means of this Distanciation, as it is the agent of individualisation.

There is disruption.

And therein comes the necessity to identify the next level of harmony and to choose to attune to it.

As the range of experience in diversity has increased, so has the range and gradation of the levels and states of harmony which man, as an individual or as a group, strives to reach, attune or open to, facilitate or incarnate.

In the course of evolution accordingly humanity, through its individuals as through its groupings, has developed various affinities and capacities of attunement to many states and levels of harmony, across the entire field of its activities.

It has also learnt that, once certain conditions are fulfilled, a degree of harmony results or, rather, is let in. The forms these conditions take may vary, but there are constant characteristics, such as discipline, attention, dedication and steadfastness.

Whether in arts, in techniques or in the realm of organisation, whether in science or philosophy, whether in the culture of the body's capacities or in the development of spiritual experience, harmony can flood in and settle only when these conditions are met.

However, the mere fact of harmony prevailing in any particular context or situation is no guarantee, of and by itself, that what is actually taking place is beneficial or serves the purposes of evolution.

Through sheer discipline and coordination, a particular group may indeed achieve harmony while it is engaged in the most destructive and adverse endeavours.

Therefore the distinction has had to be made between this harmony which is merely the satisfying result of order and discipline, and the spiritual component of harmony, to which one must make the effort to unite consciously.

Yet as, we know, in order to become able to unite with the spiritual level of harmony, one must have undergone a reversal of consciousness. And it is fact of experience that such a reversal of consciousness as the spiritual birth has, one might say as a side effect, the power to throw off whatever state of harmony was previously established.

It is unquestionably clear, individually as well as collectively, that the entry of a further degree of awareness – be it through a revelation, an opening or a descent – invariably causes a disruption of the established order which is commensurate to its power of realisation and its evolutionary implications.

Thus, as we are subjected to an acceleration of both the processes of evolution and incarnation, we are bound to be exposed to a proportionate increase of such disruptions, and faced more and more imperatively with the necessity of centring into the living, essential truth of our being.

In Auroville, we are expected to strive towards both the unification of all our individualities around the central truth and the integrality of manifestation.

In the process, inevitably, we encounter not only our own limitations but also the limitations of our other selves and, depending on our psychological needs, we are bound to be exclusive in the stress we each lay on various priorities.

This unevenness of approach applies particularly to our search for and valuing of harmony: a level of harmony which to one may seem of primary importance, even momentarily, may well be felt as secondary by another, and insistence upon its advent may even appear detrimental.

To highlight for instance the frequency of this type of misunderstanding, or crossing of purposes, it may seem crucial to some of us that a good-willed compromise be reached on a particular point of action, while, to some others of us, the very attempt to seek and arrive at such a compromise may endanger or jeopardise the emergence of a truer solution.

Or else, in more social or psychological terms, one may give priority to a mode of behaviour which, to another person, may be experienced as hypocrisy and a waste of opportunity for progress in the field of relationships.

And so long as the ego persists in us these differences of approach are likely to harden into positions that are often mutually exclusive.

Keys have been given us as we embarked upon this adventure, but they remain as reminders only till we actually begin to experience their living truth.

It is in this respect that I feel the exercise of this seminar, if pursued with the intent to develop our awareness of the issue, may help each of us to realise what is at stake and where our responsibility lies.

You, and a few others, have made mention of a number of situations in Auroville that are blocked, any fruition or advance being neutralised by the force of opposing views.

But I am inclined to feel that this observation, by itself, is of little help.

It is perhaps salutary that such blockages take place, until we develop the discernment that can discover and identify, in relation to the whole as in relation to the One, the harmonious role and place of each of the apparently incompatible and irreconcilable truths that are now conflicting.

And I do indeed trust that it is precisely this necessary discernment which you wish to help develop amongst us all.

Therefore I take this opportunity to tell you how much I enjoy your company; with enormous affection!

Divakar"

Il y a quelques jours, un drôle de petit homme a soudain débarqué ; c'est un homme un peu triste, tout à fait imbu de lui-même, qui a fait un effort de réflexion toute sa vie, mais de manière exclusivement égocentrée, et cela lui donne une curieuse réceptivité. Il a tenu absolument à me faire le récit historique de toute sa vie : il s'était joint, au sortir de sa période militaire, au réseau de F.J, réseau Français de soutien à la lutte du FLN pour l'indépendance de l'Algérie ; arrêté au cours de la grande rafle, il a passé quatre années en prison ; puis, avec l'aide d'un groupe d'intellectuels que j'ai connu dans mon enfance, il a trouvé un poste dans la maison d'édition Hachette, et il a fait sa carrière de représentant et d'intermédiaire dans ce milieu, le commerce de l'écriture, pour finir chez Odile Jacob ; la retraite venue, associée à une série de déboires personnels, il a choisi Pondichéry, ancien comptoir Français, pour une période d'assimilation et de mise au point... Au terme de la seconde entrevue – du second monologue, durant laquelle JYL est heureusement venu m'aider, il m'a tout à coup proposé de m'introduire à la maison d'édition Payot...

15-10-2000, Auroville :

Téléphone de C hier soir : elle était la veille entrée à l'hôpital pour examen complet et coloscopie ; le chirurgien a trouvé une polype à l'endroit même où il avait opéré il y a maintenant dix-huit mois, et n'a pas osé la retirer, craignant de causer une hémorragie interne ; il a fait des prélèvements, et nous saurons les résultats dans quelques jours. Généralement, les examens divers montrent que C a une santé exceptionnellement bonne « pour un corps de cet âge »...

Et alors, pour agrémenter la situation, le même jour, R a eu une crise soudaine de violentes douleurs au ventre, et a dû être emmené d'urgence à la Pitié, où il a été déterminé qu'une infection s'était développée dans la vésicule biliaire, et qu'il devait être opéré immédiatement !

Alors que C me téléphonait, de retour chez elle et ayant repris son travail le jour même, R était encore en salle de réanimation ; mais il avait pourtant trouvé le moyen de déjà parler tout autour de lui de son nouveau livre d'« aphorismes » récemment publié...

C m'assure qu'elle est prête à faire face à une nouvelle opération...

Mais je ne crois pas que cette solution soit bonne ; il vaudrait mieux il me semble, même si cette polype s'avère maligne, que C se prête, par un mouvement de confiance intérieure, à une action directe de la conscience.

Elle ressent que ce nouveau « déraillement » est une conséquence de l'été que R lui a fait subir, en se vautrant dans cette dépression spectaculaire et la prenant pour otage, pour en sortir ensuite dans un état d'exaltation pénible pour tous ses proches, une sorte d'exhibitionnisme dépourvu de toute dignité.

Je ne puis guère ignorer la logique morale, sentimentale, psychologique, selon laquelle il serait normal et bon que j'aille les rejoindre et reste près d'eux ; mais c'est une logique de « fin » qui va à l'encontre, il me semble, d'une loi plus profonde et plus vraie.

Et la distance physique, alliée à une proximité intérieure, est favorable en fait à l'action de la conscience, au recours à sa circulation.

16-10-2000, Auroville :

Quelquefois je me trouve, par ma propre faute, dans une grande confusion vibratoire...

Je pourrais dresser deux listes curieusement complémentaires : la première, de toutes les occasions où les autres – souvent ceux dont je suis solidaire – m'ont empêché d'aller dans le sens que je ressentais comme juste, et comme le temps et les circonstances ont fini par me donner raison ; et la seconde, de toutes les occasions où, en ce qui me concerne plus personnellement, j'ai ignoré volontairement l'avertissement ou le malaise interne, à mes propres dépens.

C'est une curieuse complémentarité, parce que, me semble-t-il, il y a une corrélation effective, et que si j'adhérais autant à la perception intérieure lorsqu'il s'agit de certains de mes choix « privés », la justesse de cette perception lorsqu'il s'agit d'orientations et de choix « impersonnels » aurait un pouvoir de conviction et une autorité qui lui font défaut jusqu'à présent.

Même si je ne dissimule rien à la Présence et lui offre tout, y compris ma résistance à devenir « raisonnable ».

... G.C a quitté son corps avant-hier, probablement dans la matinée : il n'a été découvert que tard dans la soirée ; ce matin-là il était descendu comme d'habitude faire son café, et s'était conduit « normalement ». Ce petit bonhomme terne, blême, émacié, a vécu des années à Auroville cantonné dans cette atmosphère raréfiée de ceux qui fument quotidiennement la marijuana ou le haschich ; rappelé à l'ordre par la communauté pour avoir été jusqu'à en fournir à des adolescents contre paiement, il avait dû, cette dernière année, se plier à une certaine mesure de contrôle collectif quant à ses habitudes et ses activités ; comme il était représentatif de pas mal d'Auroviliens, qui prisent ce type de refuge au quotidien, tout un groupe d'intérêts s'était opposé à ce qu'il soit temporairement renvoyé d'Auroville, mesure qui pourtant, m'avait-il semblé, pouvait le sauver...

Arjun et moi avons ramené Shiva de l'hôpital ce matin ; les points de suture sont retirés, laissant un grande balafre horizontale à la base du cou, là où Dinkar a retiré la moitié de sa thyroïde...

19-10-2000, Auroville :

C a téléphoné : sans rien me dire, elle et F.J, constatant la puissance de la loi du marché et la mainmise de quelques monopoles, ont pris contact avec une petite maison d'édition dans le Sud de la France et obtenu un accord pour une impression de qualité de mon livre, à compte d'auteur, et pour sa diffusion ; mais il me faudra venir en France à la fin de l'année pour la correction des épreuves et le choix de la couverture, ainsi que le texte de présentation. Ils ont aussi décidé de partager le coût de l'opération.

Je ne parvenais pas, au téléphone, à m'enthousiasmer : j'étais gêné d'occasionner ces dépenses pour eux, bien que C insiste catégoriquement sur la joie qu'en éprouve F.J. Mais j'ai donné mon accord de principe... Cela m'a remémoré quand Tu avais dit à Satprem, après que son livre « La Genèse du Surhomme » ait été refusé par trois Maisons d'Édition, que cela n'avait pas d'importance et que l'Ashram pourrait aussi bien le publier, et qu'on trouverait les moyens de le faire circuler...

« Circuler » : c'est ce mot qui me hante depuis un an ; le besoin de m'unir à une action, d'émerger ailleurs, hors de ces cercles qui m'étouffent, où je ne trouve plus assez de sens et ne parviens plus à me donner ; ce n'est pas le besoin d'être « reconnu » - j'en suis sûr maintenant -, mais celui d'être associé à un mouvement de conscience plus vaste, plus impersonnel et plus sûr...

Le doute affleure, bien sûr, qu'ils font ça pour me faire plaisir, parce que j'ai l'air de tenir à ce texte, et par tolérance et respect pour mes choix de vie et mes orientations...

Mais quoi... ? Toucher ne serait-ce qu'une centaine de personnes qui tomberont sur ce livre « par hasard », n'est-ce pas tout de même un juste commencement ?

Que peut-on espérer de plus dans cet univers dominé par un tel déferlement d'information, une telle surabondance de nourriture visuelle, mentale, émotionnelle et sensuelle, une hypnose si colossale et si pénétrante ? Qui a l'espace et le temps de reconnaître et d'entendre quelques mots plus vrais, chargés de plus de sens, et d'en retirer l'occasion d'un progrès de conscience ?

... Nous sommes à la frange d'une nouvelle « activité cyclonique » ; le taux d'humidité est de 80%, la température est remontée, et les moustiques semblent naître à chaque instant ; on est comme liquéfié, et incapacité, à moins de se mettre en colère, et alors on devient insupportable !

Que peut-on donner aux autres et au monde de mieux que la tendresse, la solidarité, la bienveillance ? Comment peut-on aider à dissiper la souffrance et vaincre la mort, à établir les bases conscientes d'un progrès ininterrompu ? Comment servir l'unité et le continuum entre l'être et la substance, la vie de l'âme et la matière, la présence spirituelle et le corps terrestre ?

Ne pas se faire d'illusions : n'accepter aucune illusion...

Je n'ai pour référence tangible qu'une expérience, aussi physique et concrète qu'elle est spirituelle et insaisissable, aussi immédiate et intime qu'elle est haute et impersonnelle ; et cela m'a toujours suffi ; et cela m'a permis finalement d'accepter, à travers toutes les crises et toute l'insipide routine de notre état et son labeur interminable, une sorte de nullité permanente, avec la confiance que derrière ce voile opaque et cette grossièreté calamiteuse quelque chose se prépare, quelque chose se bâtit : un corps de vérité, infiniment plus « réaliste » que le nôtre, pas à pas et petit à petit, avec la minutie d'une prodigieuse concentration, se condense et se constitue...

Allergie ? Je ne sais pas ce que c'est : une éruption galopante, accompagnée de démangeaisons qui demandent tout le calme dont je suis capable pour ne pas m'enrager ! Cela a commencé il y a quelques jours au coude, puis aux aisselles ; maintenant c'est le côté droit du bassin et la taille ; comme un poison qui veut sortir ! Je n'ai jamais eu ça. C'est arrivé, je crois, après que je débroussaille une partie des Jardins, ou que je nettoie le bassin au temple...

22-10-2000, Auroville :

C'est un désordre spectaculaire ; cette éruption s'est maintenant répandue sur tout le corps ; c'est comme si j'étais plongé dans les orties, de nouvelles cloques ne cessent de se former, avec une sensation violente de brûlure et de démangeaison en même temps, et aucune crème ni aucune application de neem, de vinaigre ou de camphre n'y fait rien. C'est une épreuve pour les nerfs, et un nouveau test pour la conscience du corps. C'est dans ces moments que l'on mesure le fonds de peur qui est engrangé dans les cellules, et que l'on se rend compte concrètement de tout le chemin à faire.

Moralement et physiquement, il y a une confiance assez bien établie dans les ressources d'harmonie du corps et son pouvoir à s'auto guérir et se rétablir, et c'est probablement l'un des traits qui composent pour les autres mon identité – une sorte d'équilibre physique et de foi vivante dans le corps. Mais en fait, il y a encore un formidable ménage à faire ! Tant d'ombres à déloger : la malédiction de la séparation dans les cellules mêmes et leurs relations entre elles et leurs divers groupements...

Mais pour tout ce que l'on « croit » et ce que l'on « sait », il en va de même : c'est une succession de résonances, comme autant de degrés de manifestation...

Une profession de foi peut sonner creuse, lorsqu'elle n'est que mentale ou intellectuelle ; elle résonne mieux, et prend de la densité, lorsqu'elle est aussi émotionnelle ; elle acquiert un pouvoir d'existence et de contagion lorsqu'elle participe de l'expérience vécue. Mais elle reste aléatoire et précaire tant qu'elle ne résonne pas avec le degré de la conscience physique ; et elle ne peut devenir réellement immédiate, irréprouvable, indubitable, et créatrice, que lorsqu'elle a acquis sa résonance corporelle, matérielle : alors on a toute la sincérité.

... Aujourd'hui, comme annoncé par C, R m'a téléphoné – c'était la résolution qu'il avait prise après cette dernière épreuve physique : « Après 40 ans de silence honnête, des choses importantes se sont passées en moi, et je sais maintenant que tu es mon père... »

Que veut-il me dire ? Comment l'aider ?

Je lui ai parlé de l'amitié, de cette base d'amitié qui rend toutes les positions possibles sans en fixer aucune ; alors il m'a dit « je t'aime » ; c'est comme s'il recherchait sans cesse cette fusion avec C et moi...

Il lui est si difficile d'accepter que C veuille revenir ici, et être ici sans lui ; comment lui montre qu'il est possible et bon d'être moins égoïste ?

Il semble bien qu'il va me falloir repartir début Décembre...

... Cette éruption, qu'est-ce que c'est ? Un phénomène nerveux ? Une conséquence de ma soumission à la sexualité ? Un simple empoisonnement cutané dû aux égratignures et écorchures quand j'ai élagué ces curieux épineux, il y a une semaine environ ? Trop de temps passé en visites à l'hôpital ? Les préoccupations de ceux parmi mes proches qui ont des difficultés physiques ? Une attaque ?

Vraiment, je ne sais pas.

C'est peut-être seulement un nettoyage. Il n'y a pas d'autre dysfonctionnement, et j'ai comme le mouvement physique interne de pousser du poison au-dehors, d'évacuer, d'éclaircir... Mais c'est pénible, et c'est vilain !

27-10-2000, Auroville :

C'est un exercice de patience et d'endurance.

Beaucoup de silence ; la beauté du jardin, de la lumière, m'aident beaucoup.

Comme ce qui m'arrive ressemble par certains aspects à une maladie contagieuse qui est ici associée à une divinité féminine très respectée, la plupart des gens restent à distance et me laissent tranquille ! Seul Selvam, qui en est immunisé, m'a donné hier un bain de neem et turmeric ; d'autres vont et viennent, avec une gentillesse qui veut aider.

C a téléphoné avant-hier : les docteurs sont catégoriques, il faut absolument qu'elle subisse sans attendre une seconde opération, car un nouveau polype s'est formé sur la paroi intestinale, risquant de provoquer une hémorragie ou un percement. L'opération est fixée pour le 20 et doit être suivie de 10 ou 15 jours de soins intensifs en isolation, puis de plusieurs semaines de repos et convalescence, période à l'issue de laquelle elle pourra voyager et venir ici.

Elle ne veut pas que j'assiste à ces jours d'hospitalisation, mais souhaite que je sois présent lors de sa convalescence, d'autant qu'il lui sera impossible de se reposer si je ne suis pas là pour apaiser R, dont l'état de violente exaltation semble s'aggraver. Puis elle souhaite que je la ramène ici, à Auroville.

J'ai retrouvé « ma » chambre du haut, dans ce petit pavillon vétuste qui semble se souvenir encore des forêts ; An a tout préparé, avec sa discrète attention pleine d'émotion retenue...

C est en soins intensifs et doit endurer la période la plus pénible de toute cette expérience : une grande fatigue nerveuse, et une nausée constante. Mais sa condition générale est bonne et l'opération, qui a duré plusieurs heures, a réussi, et ils ont pu retirer sans dommage ce polype qui s'était reformé. Mais ce polype, c'est maintenant confirmé, n'était pas cancéreux – ainsi que je l'avais senti, et c'est pourquoi je n'étais pas du tout en faveur d'une autre opération ; cependant, d'après les connaissances médicales actuelles, il risquait de le devenir à tout moment...

De l'avis de tous ici, C a beaucoup souffert de ce que R lui a fait subir toute cette année ; c'est l'opinion unanime de tous leurs proches et amis, qu'il a été trop loin.

Il était 8h30 du matin quand je suis arrivé hier dans le froid de Paris.

R avait espéré que je resterais avec lui chez eux, mais il n'en était pas question pour moi.

Tout de suite, nous sommes allés voir C à l'hôpital. Et je suis retourné passer tout l'après-midi auprès d'elle. Olga et Pierre m'y ont rejoint, et Maurice.

Je ne suis pas content de moi, de ces limitations et ces impuretés qui m'empêchent d'apporter une aide concrète, effective à ma C. Lui masser les pieds, lui parler, oui, mais la soulager effectivement ? Je n'en suis pas capable. Et ce n'est pas correct !

Tout le ciel est gris, et les dernières feuilles tombent des arbres.

Pour C, les effets secondaires de l'anesthésie sont très pénibles et déconcertants : nous avons passé des heures hier à travailler sur les confusions de perception qui l'absorbent encore – ces recouvrements de réalités physique et subtile qui rendent incohérents.

Elle a eu une expérience violente au moment de l'endormissement : il semble que pour de longues opérations – celle-ci a duré 6 heures – on utilise le curare, et elle a éprouvé comme une explosion, une sorte de déflagration dans tout le corps, comme s'il était secoué brutalement de part en part et désassemblé...

R accepte volontiers de nous laisser seuls.

Hier j'ai rencontré le chirurgien, puis l'anesthésiste ; je n'ai pas apprécié leur attitude, mais cela fait partie d'un ensemble : les intentions sont louables, la discipline est légitime, les progrès sont incontestables, tout cela est admirable et tout à fait respectable ; mais il y a, à la base, et aussi dans la manifestation, quelque chose d'essentiellement faux, comme une usurpation, et une illusion. En quelques jours seulement, tout ce merveilleux contexte médical aurait le pouvoir de faire de ma C, d'une personne entière, d'un être qu'ils ne connaissent pas, une vieille femme sénile !

C'est à crier !

Et je ne puis rien faire que d'être là, à tenir le fil et écarter les suggestions, à être presque comme aux deux bouts d'elle à la fois.

Oh, comme tout cela, comme tous ces engrenages logés dans nos corps et les pouvoirs de tous ces conditionnements, comme tout cela est dégoûtant, révoltant : comme ce mensonge est puissant !

30-11-2000, Saint Maur :

C se sent encore « anéantie », et désorientée, désemparée, mais elle commence aussi à dormir et à récupérer, et recouvrer les fonctionnements corporels.

Il y a ce dégoût que je ne parviens pas à dépasser vraiment, envers ce qui abîme nos corps : c'est inacceptable !

Où sont les racines de ce conditionnement ?

Je vois tous ces êtres qui luttent pour survivre et tentent de se conformer à l'image et au contrat... Pourquoi vivre ?

C'est un grand vide, depuis si longtemps.

Il n'y a pas d'impulsion vers – pas de transmission, pas de sens : seulement la mesure des ravages du temps, incontrôlables, incompris.

Une seule chose aurait un sens : être capable de recevoir la Vie et la Présence comme une pile, comme un transmetteur....

On recommence encore et encore à zéro, à tout apprendre... peut-être parce que, tant que l'on n'est pas capable de ne vouloir que Cela, entièrement et intégralement, on ne peut pas faire le premier pas – ou Cela ne peut pas faire le premier pas ici, et ne le fera pas : c'est Cela qui attend !

1-12-2000, Saint Maur :

C refait surface ; hier on l'a débranchée des moniteurs et portée dans une chambre séparée ; elle recommence à manger. Mais les radios des poumons montrent encore une obstruction – une conséquence de l'anesthésie générale -, et les docteurs veulent faire une fibrilloscopie : aspirer cette poche bronchiale avec un petit tube, sous anesthésie locale de la gorge.

Elle devrait en principe quitter l'hôpital dans quelques jours ; et là, se pose un autre problème ! R est malade à nouveau, avec une angine ; tous les deux dans le même appartement ? Dés que possible, je veux emmener C en Bretagne, et qu'elle ait un vrai repos.

2-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Hier j'ai apporté de la musique à C ; elle s'est levée deux fois.

Mais R... c'est absurde : il a pris trop de somnifères et s'est rendu misérable ; par n'importe quel moyen, il demande plus d'attention.

Je ne sais pas qualifier cette atmosphère ; il y a là une absence presque positive ! Il faut que je sois ouvert à Ton Aide !

3-12-2000, Saint Maur :

C hier s'est maquillée, et nous avons marché un peu dans le couloir, puis nous avons regardé ensemble un film à la télévision, et écouté de la musique.

R est venu et reparti seul en taxi, car j'avais eu avec lui une scène intense le matin, qui a produit ses effets ! Nous avons convenu que je le retrouverais chez eux pour que nous fassions ensemble des rangements et préparions l'appartement pour le retour de C ; mais il m'attendait tout habillé pour sortir et aller chercher des résultats d'examen sanguins ayant trait à cette grippe qu'il avait lui-même « soignée » en prenant une forte dose de somnifères ; et il est apparu qu'il n'avait aucune intention de se prêter à ces rangements, ni de faire le moindre effort pour alléger l'atmosphère ; je lui ai livré mon impression qu'il ne pensait qu'à lui et que je n'avais donc rien à faire là, et je l'ai laissé dans la rue !

Il y avait là les restes d'une ancienne charge émotionnelle, du temps de mon adolescence, quand l'atmosphère de R m'était si pénible ; et la constatation que, si ce n'était pour C, il n'y a rien, vraiment rien, qui m'appelle ici ; et en même temps la perception de cet être complexe, qui lui aussi a besoin d'une issue, d'un progrès, d'une réalisation, et le sens qu'il m'est peut-être possible de l'aider un peu...

Après quoi je m'en fus marcher, plusieurs heures !

... Il y a comme une incompréhension, une sorte d'étonnement : je ne suis rien, ne puis rien ; je n'ai aucune capacité qui corresponde à ce monde, et ne suis pas encore né à un autre monde, à ce qui doit venir.

En même temps, ce privilège d'être devenu conscient de Toi et de T'appartenir et d'avoir reçu de Toi des repères si tangibles, et une expérience si centrale – ce privilège est si formidable : comment justifier que cette Grâce m'ait été donnée !

Et même, quel est ce don, si ce n'est pas un don pour tous ?!

A Auroville, nous baignons dans ce privilège.

Comment pouvons-nous en être dignes ?

Cela touche à l'absurdité !

Le fait, le simple fait est, que nous ne sommes pas dignes, et que nous ne pouvons pas l'être, tant que nous ne sommes pas changés !

Et alors il ne s'agira plus de le mériter, il ne s'agira plus d'être dignes : nous serons des corps et des outils de Ta Grâce, pour un travail que nous ne pouvons même pas concevoir.

Croire que Tu es « notre » Mère et pas Celle de tous relève d'une telle imbécillité, c'est embarrassant !

5-12-2000, Saint Maur :

La fenêtre devant ma table donne, au-delà des maisons voisines, sur une colline boisée et un grand pan de ciel, plein Est, et les rayons d'un soleil pâle viennent jusqu'à la page où j'écris.

Hier soir j'ai reçu des messages d'Auroville, de Barbara et de Selvam : il y a eu un cyclone la semaine dernière et beaucoup de nos arbres ont été abattus...

Hier, R et moi avons ramené C chez eux.

Elle a encore un peu mal quand elle doit faire certains mouvements, mais son organisme s'est rallié à son élan intérieur, et c'est beau à voir !

... Je me trouve dans un désert.

... Quelques jours avant de quitter Auroville, j'ai découvert, à l'arrière du genou gauche, une enflure, un gonflement inexplicable ; et je ne suis pas parvenu depuis à percevoir la cause ou l'origine de ce phénomène, et cela s'est élargi ; j'ai seulement la sensation que c'est en rapport avec le plasma, comme l'était cette spectaculaire et douloureuse éruption qui m'a immobilisé le mois dernier ; mais il y a un détail étrange : un de nos ouvriers venait juste de se faire traiter à l'hôpital - par ponction ou par incision, je ne suis pas sûr - pour une grosseur à l'arrière du genou qu'il avait depuis longtemps et dont il se plaignait souvent : comme si cela m'avait été transmis, à un niveau matériel et d'une « manière » dont je suis péniblement inconscient...

Et puis, il y a ce processus répugnant de détérioration générale : les dents sont une zone sinistrée ; ma jambe droite est déformée depuis cet accident il y a plusieurs années ; les tissus s'affaiblissent, le visage se marque et se burine, et les yeux, brûlés par tant de soleil, ont désormais besoin de lumière vive pour voir précisément les détails, ou lire de petits caractères.

Tout cela est vu et perçu et ressenti depuis une position qui n'est plus tout à fait « normale » : il y a à la fois une distance et une identification, et un grand besoin d'harmonie et de beauté, comme une nécessité absolue pour le progrès de la manifestation. Je me sens tout à fait incapable d'adhérer à ce type de progrès qui peut s'accomplir - psychologiquement ? spirituellement ? - depuis une situation de détérioration. Tout mon élan et toute mon aspiration et toute mon orientation sont pour un progrès qui s'accomplit d'harmonie en harmonie plus grande et plus consciente et plus intégrale. Il y a, au-dedans de l'être, un refus radical de tout ce qui peut trahir, tromper ou déformer l'harmonie de base ; un refus qui peut à tout moment se traduire par le choix de ne plus « vivre », de ne pas continuer...

Et cela persiste, malgré Ton exemple même : Toi qui T'es unie, quoiqu'il arrive et quelles que soient les apparences mensongères, si parfaitement et si absolument – « Ce que Tu veux, ce que Tu veux... »

Je suis incapable de dire « oui » à ce chemin-là.

Peut-être est-ce dû à la conviction presque physique – mais où est-elle précisément, où vibre-t-elle exactement, dans le corps ? – que Ta Volonté est pour la victoire de l'Harmonie, et de son pouvoir effectif.

6-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Je suis là sans mode d'emploi !

Je passe chaque jour de nombreuses heures auprès de C, dans leur appartement ; l'atmosphère n'y est pas très bonne, à cause de R, et cela pèse sur elle et l'alourdit, et je ne sais pas ce que je dois « faire »...

9-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Au cours de ces journées, j'ai encore pu voir plusieurs films remarquables, exceptionnels, magnifiquement joués et réalisés – « In the mood for love », et « Hustler white », et « A dead man walking », et « Un automne à New York »... Le cinéma m'avait manqué, toutes ces années ! Cet art – le cinéma – a maintenant atteint une maturité, une finesse et une profondeur de sens que je trouve bouleversantes...

... Il est presque 9 h du matin et le soleil vient à peine de se lever !

13-12-2000, Saint Maur :

J'ai fait un aller-retour à Claouey – train de luxe et voiture -, pour raccompagner Ch.J et F.J et voir et corriger les épreuves de « Chemins Entiers ».

DEB, l'éditeur, un ami de F.J, est venu nous y retrouver, pour que nous décidions ensemble de la couverture ; je voulais absolument garder les deux couleurs orange et bleue ; F.J est alors allé puiser dans sa bibliothèque et, tout d'un coup, alors que nous allions fermer un dernier album de photographies sur l'Ile de la Réunion, j'ai trouvé une vue splendide : de la lave en fusion, une splendeur vivante de feu solide et liquide à la fois dans un ciel d'un bleu profond ; nous étions tous soulagés et heureux.

Tout cela m'a ému : le soin et l'affection et la participation de chacun – de Ch.J et F.J d'abord, puis de DEB et de ses 3 enfants, qui ont revu les épreuves plusieurs fois déjà avant moi.

L'attitude de DEB m'a aussi redonné confiance, qu'il a exprimée ainsi : « ce texte est a priori à mille lieues de mes préoccupations et de ma compréhension des choses, et pourtant, après plusieurs relectures je m'en suis imprégné et l'apprécie de plus en plus et ça devient présent... » Et c'est exactement ce que je souhaite, que ce « livre », tranquillement, devienne comme un ami.

Su m'a téléphoné dimanche dernier de « Baca Grande » dans le Colorado, où elle s'occupe de Seyril : elle avait tant de choses à me raconter, après tous ces mois d'éloignement !

14-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Le ciel est tout chargé d'une masse grise et ouatée, comme s'il allait neiger...

... C'est une étrange sensation interne : il me faut me rappeler positivement, avec la pensée, et fréquemment, volontairement, que... j'ai ma place à Auroville – comme le lit d'une rivière, ou la forme d'une âme - ; et cette pensée est nécessaire et réconfortante, mais étonnante aussi...

15-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Chacun une impasse.

L'âge.

Des sanglots intérieurs ; une peine qui monte, qui monte...

Comment recevoir ici Ton atmosphère ?

16-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Il est 9 h du matin et le soleil vient juste de monter devant ma fenêtre, dans un bleu pâle comme celui de Sri Aurobindo – et il fait fondre le givre sur les vitres.

Sur ma table il y a : « Savitri » et un livre d'asanas ; quelques messages imprimés ; un vase d'épis séchés et de tulipes en bois, et un petit pot de bégonias, un gros coquillage et une rose des sables, un cheval e bronze en marche, deux lampes et un paquet d'encens et un miroir pliant, des fioles d'essences de fleurs, des clés, les billets de retour, la montre de Kusum, des cigarettes et des beedies, la pochette qui contient tous mes papiers, une bourse, un peigne et un cendrier, le journal des films de cette semaine, une tasse de café noir, la carte de Ton Symbole, un gobelet de bambou où je brûle l'encens, trois pommes et un couteau et trois citrons de « Sincérité »...

Chaque jour C et moi sortons et marchons un peu plus loin...

R s'est mis à sourire et rire et jouer un peu...

Je bute sur des ensembles de données.

L'un de ces ensembles est centré autour du processus de vieillissement du corps, et c'est presque de l'horreur que j'éprouve à rencontrer les effets de son empire dans la substance corporelle, mêlée d'incompréhension douloureuse, comme celle d'un enfant. Pourquoi, pourquoi ce viol, cette violence implacable, cet influx irrésistible qui abîme et détruit et trahit ? Où est le ressort ? Où est la racine de cet avilissement ? Toutes les attitudes morales d'acceptation me semblent aussi révoltantes ! Je suis dans l'incapacité de croire et de sentir que ces conditions puissent être données par le Seigneur, qu'elles puissent porter ou exprimer Sa vérité... Et je ne veux pas continuer ainsi !

Et pourtant, s'il s'agit de C, parce qu'elle est si belle et si donnée, dans son élan de progrès, à ce souffle de devenir qui l'habite, de tout mon cœur et de toute ma conscience je l'encourage et la soutient et lui montre les voies de l'harmonie ; même si je souffre aussi du vieillissement en elle, je sais et je sens que de continuer vaut la peine, de continuer comme elle peut le faire, avec cette exigence vivante et si essentielle en elle.

Et puis, cet autre ensemble, celui-là centré autour du fait de la bisexualité, et de ce besoin terrible que je porte depuis l'enfance d'une libération effective des « mœurs » ; et là aussi, il y a presque une horreur de ces ghettos de la vie, de cette ligne de division qui dénature et empêche et empoisonne. Le film que j'ai vu il y a deux jours, « Les yeux fermés », m'a bouleversé, par ce qu'à la fois il montre cette possibilité adorable de tendresse et d'amitié physique entre les hommes, comme la victoire d'une compréhension si profondément douce et fraternelle, collective et humaine, et toute la petitesse de l'égoïsme qui trompe, nie et récupère, qui utilise et qui ferme.

Malgré toutes les très bonnes raisons de se retirer de ces énergies et de leur champ, je demeure ancré à cette conviction – une soif brûlante, un besoin puissant comme de la braise vivante – que ces barrières doivent tomber à jamais ; que tous les hommes acceptent enfin cette tendresse entre eux, que toutes les femmes s'équilibrent enfin par cette connaissance mutuelle et ce soutien intime, et qu'hommes et femmes soient enfin délivrés du mensonge exclusif des rôles qui conditionnent et déterminent les lois de leurs rapports.

Je viens de lire un petit livre remarquable de Michel sel Castillo, « Gerardo Lain », qui, malgré son cri d'appel vers une reconnaissance et une acceptation de ce potentiel de tendresse libératrice, aboutit à la défaite par la mort donnée, l'égoïsme et la peur. Dans ce livre est mise en scène cette très vieille emprise morale qui est si semblable dans ses termes et sa portée dans le code manichéen du catholicisme comme dans le code « spirituel » de la sadhana à Vos pieds : le démon de la chair, les suggestions de l'adversaire, le renoncement négatif et le tourment du jeu des forces : ce code auquel je n'ai jamais pu ni voulu me plier...

Il y a un secret à trouver là : une innocence et une sincérité qui seront une victoire et une délivrance réelles. Parfois, j'ai touché à ce secret. Mais, pour que cela devienne une réalisation, il ne faut pas que le corps soit diminué ; il faut qu'il demeure uni à ses forces vives, il faut qu'il marche et qu'il progresse et acquiert toujours plus d'harmonie ; il faut qu'il puisse manifester le bien de cette tendresse, de cette confiance, de cette coulée de douceur...

Il y a une telle peine...

17-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Hier, après quelques heures de marche, j'ai vu un autre film, « Le goût des autres » ; un film réalisé en équipe, plein de gentillesse et d'humour attentif : ce goût des autres qui vainc les préjugés et les jugements superficiels et oblige à plus de sincérité, de courage et de confiance...

Comme à mon premier séjour, l'an dernier, tout ce que je vois me touche, m'émeut, parfois me bouleverse.

Mais cette fois j'ai moins conscience de « passer », de canaliser ; c'est plus rude.

20-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Je marche autant que possible et traverse et sillonne la ville et découvre ainsi des espaces que je n'y avais jamais connus, tels ces milles de berge tranquille le long des canaux. Mais dès que je quitte leur appartement, R recommence auprès de C sa ronde obsessive et régressive et l'épuise, si bien qu'hier j'ai dû y rester toute la journée, car C se sent trop privée de ressources. Enfin, dès demain, je l'emmène en Bretagne, où nous serons seuls pendant une semaine.

Je cherche un chemin pour elle et pour leur couple ; c'est une sorte de bataille, R tirant la mort vers eux, l'entraînant vers la mort à deux, vers une soumission à deux devant l'impasse.

DEB m'a envoyé hier une photocopie de la couverture qu'il a préparée pour « Chemins entiers » ; ils ont tous insisté pour qu'une petite photographie de moi soit placée sur le dos de la couverture, avec un court texte d'introduction.

J'ai tous les doutes du monde, naturellement : est-ce que ce texte est accepté de Toi ? Est-ce qu'il a quelque valeur ?

Ce qui me conforte un peu, c'est ce que C m'a confié : m'exprimant son contentement et soulagement de cette solution de publication, elle m'a dit combien elle T'avait consultée, et comme elle T'avait demandé de trouver le moyen juste, comme elle avait parlé avec Toi, en regardant Ta photo... Cela m'a rassuré.

21-12-2000, Saint Maur :

Hier a été une journée difficile : C, qui ne peut plus respirer auprès de R, a éprouvé une fatigue très intense ; elle a eu une forte baisse de tension, et a dû lutter toute la journée, dans ce climat que je ne parvenais qu'à peine à alléger, pour demeurer centrée et endurer une vague d'accablement très massive.

C'est déconcertant : je n'ai pas la conscience nécessaire, et je ne sais pas où piocher là-dedans ! J'essaie de rester réceptif malgré la contagion des appréhensions et des angoisses de tout un passé de vie commune entre eux, et surtout malgré cette force qui agit en R et tire vers le désastre, vers le « naufrage » comme il dit, vers leur mort à tous les deux.

Il y a une telle grâce en C ; mais il est temps, il est grand temps que je l'emmène !

22-12-2000, La Ville aux Prévôts :

La route a été facile, avec un beau soleil d'hiver dans un ciel nettoyé.

C, dès que nous fûmes installés dans la voiture, au sortir de Paris, a retrouvé la joie et l'enthousiasme.

La question demeure, qu'il nous faudra aborder en paix : quel est l'avenir de leur couple ? Quelle est la solution de vie, pratiquement, économiquement ?

Que puis-je faire ?

23-12-2000, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Il y a dans cette maison une harmonie simple et paisible et confortable.

Mais j'y suis en suspens, pour C seulement...

24-12-2000, La Ville aux Prévôts :

C a un besoin formidable de récupération, de sommeil, de paix et de tranquillité.

Nous écoutons beaucoup de musique.

Mais R ne suit pas : il a téléphoné hier dans un état de régression égocentrique qui a replongé C dans l'inquiétude, voulant que je vienne le chercher tout de suite...

Je suis là comme suspendu à une branche ! Comme ce monde est à l'envers !

26-12-2000, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Hier nous avons fait une grande ballade en voiture et sommes allés retrouver Pierre, Olga, Elena et Yan dans leur maison près de Saint Briec ; avec eux nous avons confirmé une résolution « collective », un dispositif de mesures à prendre dans le proche avenir, particulièrement après le séjour de C à Auroville, au cas où R ne serait pas capable de surmonter les contradictions qui le dominent et le traversent ; cela a beaucoup rassuré C.

29-12-2000, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Hier je suis retourné à Paris pour chercher R et le ramener ici : 9 heures de route !

Il est tranquille, dans un gentil effort...

30-12-2000, La Ville aux Prévôts :

J'ai visité « ma » falaise sous une averse de grêlons – comme un gravier de boulettes de glace blanche -, alors même que le soleil s'ouvrait un passage au dessus de l'horizon...

Nous avons fait tous les trois le tour des remparts de Saint Malo : cette petite ville fortifiée est un exemple unique de proportions justes, et de relation privilégiée avec la nature et les éléments, une sorte de perfection exacte et durable qui exprime le vrai sens de la cité.

... Je suis comme un vide qui regarde.

Comme si toute la mécanique de notre humanité était mise à nu, dévêtue des sens et des valeurs connus... Je comprends, je vois, j'entends, j'éprouve, j'apprécie – mais tout cela s'enfonce comme dans de la neige, sans laisser de traces...

Il n'y a plus que le corps, et le besoin émotionnel du corps... Et plus profondément encore dans le corps, ce besoin d'harmonie, d'une sève pleine et une et forte et absolument paisible, inconditionnelle et inconditionnée – comme si le don véritable ne pourrait et ne devrait finalement advenir que dans le corps et par le corps ; comme si c'était là seulement que la Présence se vérifierait, se manifesterait.

Pour un autre devenir.

Je pense à « nous », à Auroville, à cette année qui s'achève...

31-12-2000, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Nous avons fait hier une longue marche le long de la Rance, et C est nettement plus vive et légère...

R, lui, est en proie à des moments de panique, d'affolement intense, et tourne vers moi un besoin d'aide presque violent... Comme c'est difficile d'accompagner un autre vers la capacité intérieure de s'orienter et de choisir... !

- 2001 -

1-1-2001, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Hier il a fait si froid que nous n'avons pu marcher que quelques moments, pour aller déjeuner... Et l'après-midi nous avons regardé un film reconstituant la période historique de l'occupation des Allemands lors de la Seconde Guerre mondiale : il s'agissait de la résistance et de la solidarité des habitants d'un groupe de villages dans les Cévennes, menés par un pasteur protestant à héberger et cacher, dans leurs maisons et leur école, un nombre important d'enfants juifs.

Cela me prend souvent par surprise : l'émotion si intense qui monte et affleure, devant toute représentation d'acte héroïque, de solidarité courageuse même devant la mort, de don de soi ; ce sont des sanglots qui montent instantanément, et à chaque fois c'est « ma » peine et « mon » élan – cela arrive à tout le monde, évidemment ! Mais c'est la proportion qui me surprend ; c'est comme une évidence d'unité qui ne peut se révéler que lorsque les circonstances exigent de soi que l'on puise à une profondeur de choix autrement dormante ou occultée et, lorsqu'elle se manifeste, c'est comme une porte qui s'ouvre soudain toute grande sur une qualité et une intensité de sens et de vie, sans lesquelles nous ne sommes que des morts-vivants, des marionnettes ou des images de nous-mêmes...

Et dans cette émotion, quelle que soit sa modulation particulière, il y a justement toute cette peine de ne pas être capable de vivre là, d'exister là à chaque instant, sans qu'il soit nécessaire d'y être propulsé par quelque extrémité de circonstance. C'est la peine d'être gris, mangé, volé, gaspillé, usé par ce rien multiforme qui occupe nos vies.

3-1-2001, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Les activités de la nuit sont étonnantes : la nuit dernière ce furent des heures passées sur le thème de l'irréalisation, ou déréalisation physique de la mort – ni du romantisme, ni de la théorie, mais des détails et des circonstances tout à fait « réalistes » !

Hier nous avons passé un long moment de grâce sur la pointe rocheuse du Cap Fréhel, C bien accrochée à moi contre un vent formidable, devant l'étendue des champs de la mer ; rien que la mer, le ciel, le vent et les mouettes et, nous portant, la falaise de granite rose, et le courant s'en allait comme une onde de prairie vers le large...

... J'ai rapporté de Saint Malo un livre magnifique, « 365 jours de la Terre », et autant de vues prodigieuses, prises d'avion, comme des hommages emplis de tendre révérence à l'âme vivante de la Terre.

5-1-2001, La Ville aux Prévôts :

... Il y a encore l'habitude de croire et de sentir que c'est à moi de négocier, de discerner, d'évaluer et de doser ; c'est idiot et cela ne mène évidemment à rien. On en revient toujours à cette première nécessité d'une pureté consciente.

6-1-2001, La Ville aux Prévôts :

Plusieurs villes de Bretagne sont inondée et déclarées sinistrées ; ici même une source a jailli dans le jardin, s'écoulant devant la maison ; le téléphone est coupé... Mais les pluies se sont arrêtées.
Nous retournons demain à Paris.

DEB a apporté « Chemins entiers » aujourd'hui.

La couverture est si belle.

La présentation est simple, aisée, propre.

Je dis et je sens : « merci ! »

C'est un « merci » apaisé et confiant ; il me semble qu'il n'y reste presque plus rien de personnel.

Hier soir, jusqu'à 4 h ce matin, j'étais à Bordeaux avec mon petit, mon adorable petit frère, Olivier...

Je vais cesser le jeûne.

Le ciel ce matin est entièrement limpide : seules le marquent comme des griffes les sillages de quelques avions...

Hier soir, au milieu de ce discours incohérent qu'il a tenu à nous faire, R a prononcé cette drôle de phrase : « le spirituel est terriblement matériel, pas une seconde ne lui échappe !... »

C et moi revenions juste du cinéma : j'avais pris deux places pour l'emmener voir « Lisa » et l'extirper un moment de cette atmosphère corrosive et « mortifère », comme l'appelle Ch.J !

Su m'a appelé hier de Pender Island (au large de Vancouver).

R rend les choses aussi difficiles qu'il le peut.

C'est étrange et complexe, misérable et comique et redoutable, et profondément triste.

Dés que je m'éloigne, il redouble la mise...

19-1-2001, Auroville :

Mission accomplie. C et moi sommes arrivés hier en fin d'après-midi.

Presque tout de suite, une fois les bagages rangés, C a retrouvé son visage d'Auroville, cette dimension qui lui a tant manqué : c'est une joie de le voir.

Selvam nous attendait à l'aéroport, mon doux Selvam, et depuis ce moment jusqu'à maintenant, j'ai entendu le récit des conflits et péripéties de ces dernières semaines...

Tout l'être physique n'est pas encore rassemblé ; c'est une impression curieuse, comme une mère qui n'aurait pas encore retrouvé et rassemblé ses petits, après une longue randonnée...

Certaines des nouvelles qui me concernent personnellement sont un peu troublantes : il y a évidemment un courant d'insinuation et de rumeur qui est chargé de l'intention de me faire quitter Auroville ; l'une de ces rumeurs, qu'un Luca tout embarrassé m'a rapporté, est que j'aurais eu récemment des activités homosexuelles sous le Banyan de Matrimandir !

Les effets dévastateurs du cyclone qui a eu lieu juste une semaine après mon départ, bien que Selvam, Bhaskar, Paramashiva et Ar.salam aient travaillé des semaines à tout déblayer et élaguer, sont bien visibles et sensibles dans tout le jardin, et particulièrement près de la maison.

Les choses, en termes de conflits et de polémiques, ne semblent guère avoir changé au Matrimandir, sinon que, pendant mon absence, Ramalingam a renforcé sa position sur le site.

Dans un sens, je me sens soulagé de deux tâches que j'avais à cœur d'accomplir : celle de veiller sur C et de la raccompagner ici au moins une dernière fois, et celle de persister jusqu'à la publication de mon texte.

Et de ce point de vue, je pourrais maintenant m'en aller – quitter le corps.

S'il y a une suite, il faut que je parvienne à me réconcilier avec des données que je ne comprends ni n'accepte bien...

Maintenant, je sens le besoin d'une période d'assimilation ; il y a une charge de sens que je n'ai pas encore pu intégrer, comme une montagne trop grande, trop formidable pour être gravie...

20-1-2001, Auroville :

J'avais oublié cette sensation de cordes tendues...

Je ne sais pas où me diriger : il faut que je laisse la direction venir, du dedans...

Note : Pendant son séjour à l'hôpital, probablement dans les jours qui ont suivi l'opération, un virus s'était logé dans les poumons de C ; la pneumologue qui la suivait s'en était inquiétée, mais C était alors dans un service post-opératoire où elle était censée récupérer suffisamment pour pouvoir rentrer chez elle, non dans un service équipé pour traiter des « maladies pulmonaires », et aucun symptôme vraiment alarmant ne s'était déclaré.

2-2-2001, Auroville :

C n'est pas bien ; elle est misérable, elle a mal et elle a peur, elle est tourmentée et se sent barrée dans ses efforts et son travail personnel.

Deux choses me troublent : la première est que la Protection ne semble pas agir ; et la deuxième est qu'à travers son expérience répétée de l'univers médical, trop de peurs et de distances se sont logées en elle.

Les premiers jours ici ont été pour elle des jours de liberté et de renouveau ; puis elle a commencé à avoir des douleurs dans le dos, et à tousser ; cette douleur s'est figée sur un point, une douleur qu'elle dit maintenant insupportable ; et elle perd le souffle.

Ce matin elle n'a pas pu se lever. Je suis allé acheter des antibiotiques.

Je ne me sens pas à la hauteur de la situation.

C est très préoccupée de son retour en France ; elle demande la sécurité des médecins, des examens médicaux ; elle se soucie de ses patients ; et cela la tourmente d'être pour moi un poids, et de m'imposer une telle détérioration la révolte et la peine. En même temps elle éprouve d'autant plus combien il était important qu'elle puisse refaire le voyage, être ici une fois encore, avec moi.

Cette limitation de l'âge, de la maladie, de l'usure, est intolérable ; voilà un être, une personne, dont la nature et le mouvement spontané sont jeunesse, progrès et continuité – même son corps exprime cet élan et cet équilibre interne : elle est belle, toujours, et claire. Mais dans son corps aussi sont les manifestations contraires : son dos s'est encore voûté ; l'opération a détruit une fois encore ses muscles abdominaux ; les substances qu'elle a dû absorber ont sapé ses forces...

S'il n'y avait pas R là-bas, tapi dans son drame et attendant de se nourrir d'elle, empêchant les mesures les plus simples et les résolutions pratiques les plus légères, je ne me soucierais pas autant ; mais avec lui, et ses difficultés, dans la balance, il y a comme l'ombre active d'un désordre désolant, comme un goût de désastre qui la suit et inhibe ses propres facultés.

... Je ne veux pas retourner là-bas, dans ces conditions !

Je voudrais la paix en elle ; je lui ai demandé de faire le mouvement de se rassembler et de se centrer, en rejetant toute forme de peur. Mais je ne puis le faire à sa place, et il y a comme une emprise qui interfère, que je ne suis capable ni de mesurer ni de combattre effectivement.

Par Ch.J, j'ai pris contact avec les médecins de C, pour qu'ils me donnent leur avis.

... Et puis, en guise d'accompagnement, il y a les bribes et les bruits de cette petite campagne contre « moi »...

Et il y a cet appel qui grandit, d'entrer dans un travail physique, un travail dans le corps...

4-2-2001, Auroville :

C'est une petite bataille de chaque moment...

C « déguste » ; et sa conscience est trop dispersée, trop poreuse à la formation ordinaire, et trop attachée aux symboles d'une sécurité extérieure et relationnelle...

Les antibiotiques semblent avoir quelque effet sur l'infection pulmonaire, mais elle a mal dans tout le dos, s'essouffle beaucoup, et se sent très affaiblie. Il y a l' « idée » qu'elle doit être « rapatriée d'urgence » afin d'être soignée dans de « bonnes conditions »...

Heureusement que JYL est ici, qui sent comme je le sens combien il est indispensable pour C qu'elle se ressaisisse et se réclame elle-même et recouvre sa confiance et sa dignité.

Uma est venue la voir (la sœur de Deepti, qui était doctoresse dans l'armée) et sa visite a été bonne ; elle reviendra demain matin...

Note : Comme C ne se rétablissait pas, et qu'elle était trop inconfortable dans les conditions matérielles que je pouvais lui offrir à « Sincérité », nous avons demandé au Docteur Datta de l'Ashram qu'elle soit admise dans le « Nursing Home » ; malgré les règles très strictes de l'Ashram, par amitié Datta avait accepté.

Datta a traité C pour une pneumonie. Les soins et la réelle gentillesse de tous les aides du Nursing Home, autant que le traitement médicamenteux prescrit par Datta, dans l'atmosphère si douce de ce lieu, ont permis à C de recouvrer graduellement assez d'autonomie pour pouvoir envisager son retour en France.

Nous décidâmes alors que je l'accompagnerais jusqu'à Mumbai, dans le cadre d'un rapatriement organisé par « Europe Assistance » ; je ferai office d'accompagnateur pour ce déplacement.

Nous partîmes au début du mois de Mars. Une chambre d'hôtel avait été réservée pour nous à Mumbai, où un docteur viendrait l'examiner, envoyé par la même organisation, pour s'assurer que C était en mesure de supporter le voyage de Mumbai à Paris. C avait plutôt bien réagi pendant le trajet en avion depuis Chennai, mais la fatigue l'avait rattrapée dès notre arrivée à Mumbai. Pourtant, dans la chambre d'hôtel, elle se sentit plus légère.

Deux médecins sont venus et l'ont examinée : « lungs collapse » - crise pulmonaire aigue ; pas question qu'elle voyage ; elle devait être emmenée d'urgence dans un service de soins intensifs, s'il y avait quelque chance de la sauver.

« Europe Assistance », par l'intermédiaire d'une Indienne Parsi de Mumbai, qui était venue nous attendre à l'aéroport, et avec qui j'avais déjà souvent parlé au téléphone, a tout de suite arrangé que C soit admise dans une clinique de luxe, « Lilavati Hospital » ; elle y fut transportée le jour même.

Un traitement intensif d'antibiotiques et d'autres substances lui fut de suite administré ; C était de nouveau arrimée à toutes sortes de moniteurs, dans une atmosphère remarquablement propre et sophistiquée.

Je fus autorisé à garder la chambre d'hôtel.

Je n'avais presque plus d'argent avec moi, et C non plus.

Je pus juste téléphoner à Selvam à Auroville, pour qu'il prévienne en France depuis Auroville.

6-3-2001, Mumbai :

Ce matin C, n'en pouvant plus de cette nausée constante, douloureuse, qu'elle éprouve comme une torture, a demandé qu'on la laisse dormir, qu'on la laisse mourir.

Je suis là autant que possible, sans direction, impuissant.

Les circonstances se modulent et s'ordonnent : la main de la Grâce y est évidente.

Au niveau instrumental, c'est l'équipe d'Europe Assistance qui prend les décisions et les responsabilités. Et du point de vue médical, il est probable que les conditions dans lesquelles C a été placée sont les meilleures qui existent ici. « Lilavati » est réputée dans tout le pays.

On m'a laissé la chambre à l'hôtel Rang Sharda ; la fenêtre, au dixième étage qui domine toute l'aire de Bandera et Reclamation, une presque île qui s'avance dans l'Océan Indien, surplombe sans obstacle, de l'autre côté d'un vaste terrain vague, les fenêtres de l'étage de « Lilavati » où se trouve C.

Je ne sais toujours pas, après toutes ces semaines que nous avons vécues ensemble, s'il s'agit maintenant d'un départ imminent, ou si cette nouvelle expérience s'inscrit pour C dans un cheminement et un progrès de conscience en avant, par une nouvelle phase de vie corporelle...

Cela a été, cela continue d'être, vraiment, une bataille...

Je n'ai rien noté, rien écrit, depuis... je ne sais plus...

Je n'ai avec moi ici qu'une chemise de rechange (C devait partir tout de suite pour Paris et moi rentrer à Auroville !)

Et maintenant ?

... J'ai rencontré les docteurs.

Voici le bilan : les deux poumons sont atteints ; le poumon gauche avait déjà une lésion ancienne, tandis que le poumon droit a été atteint pendant l'anesthésie et l'isolation, au cours et à la suite de la dernière opération en Novembre dernier ; cette double faiblesse pulmonaire a donc exposé C à une infection (une pleurésie) qui n'a pas été entièrement éradiquée par le traitement de Datta ; la nausée est le résultat de l'un de ces cercles vicieux typiques de toute l'approche thérapeutique officielle – vulnérabilité intestinale après l'opération et aérophagie, aggravées par les traitements médicamenteux qui ont suivi et par le refus de C de se nourrir suffisamment de crainte de vomir... D'après eux, C devrait être en état de voyager après quelques jours ; mais ils doivent d'abord stabiliser son niveau de potassium et d'oxygénation du sang. Et naturellement, selon le cardiologue, la situation est telle maintenant que l'âge joue contre elle...

Voilà pour le panorama médical...

Ce que je souhaite encore, ce que je continue de souhaiter, de mon côté, c'est que C se remette de cette épreuve suffisamment pour s'engager dans la dernière phase de sa vie corporelle avec plus de conscience et de réelle tranquillité, et d'amplitude et de concentration à la fois.

... Je dois m'en remettre à la Grâce directement...

Il y a, pour grossir les choses, un conflit entre deux issues : l'une est cette formation de désastre, de défaite et de désagrégation, non seulement du corps, mais de la situation et de la conscience – c'est une formation que R a exprimée très crûment un jour récent à Paris, alors que je l'accompagnais à la banque, « tu assistes à un désastre », avec toute la densité psychologique correspondante.

L'autre est une issue progressive, faite de paix et d'un regard qui s'éveille, d'une force d'harmonie qui conduit tout et chaque élément à sa fruition, à son meilleur, et s'exprimera nécessairement par un rassemblement, une concentration tranquille, et un retrait conscient de l'état corporel, laissant une situation accomplie...

Ce qui est peut-être le plus pénible à présent, c'est que nous nous trouvons comme entre les deux ; C doit retrouver sa confiance, mais cette médicalisation intensive l'a comme aliénée d'elle-même.

J'en reviens toujours à ce point : ce qu'il aurait fallu éviter, c'était cette seconde opération, en Novembre ; depuis ce moment, c'est une lutte de chaque instant pour remonter la pente...

J'ai toujours cette référence intérieure – comme des images du passé – d'une mort simple : digne, sans faiblesse ni peur, sobre. Et en cette époque où nous sommes maintenant, un certain type de connaissance mentale et pratique s'est développé de manière si poussée et si aigue et si fragmentée à la fois, et avec un tel pouvoir d'hypnose et de conviction, que c'est comme si on ne savait plus mourir, on ne savait plus s'en aller.

Cela fait sûrement partie d'une transition collective et d'un apprentissage : car nous allons nécessairement vers un état de conscience où non seulement la défaite du corps sera vécue autrement, mais elle cessera d'être inéluctable.

J'aurais voulu, aimé, souhaité, que C soit plus libre intérieurement, soit de s'orienter vers une cessation corporelle dans la paix et la tranquillité, la tendresse et l'amitié, à Auroville, avec moi, parmi nous, soit de se tourner vers Toi et de trouver en Toi la force positive intérieure pour affronter ce retour en France...

Mais il y a comme une force contraire qui n'a pas cessé d'agir toutes ces semaines, une force d'indécision et de prostration qui opère par vagues, comme si le but était de rendre la condition corporelle si inhospitalière que tout l'amour que C a de l'harmonie lâcherait prise.

Et il me semble que je n'ai pas été à la hauteur, que je n'ai pas été un bon combattant...

Mais à travers tout, C est si belle et si désireuse d'apprendre, de progresser, de s'unir...

Il y a un amour, là, qui est célébré...

7-3-2001, Mumbai :

Je regarde par la fenêtre de la chambre la Baie de Mahim. Tout le ciel est embrumé de pollution. Entre l'hôtel et l'océan, s'étend un vaste terrain vide en cours de terrassement, qui semble appartenir à la compagnie pétrolière ONGC. A la droite de cet espace se dresse le bâtiment jaune de Lilavati, où attend C. Au-delà, la presqu'île de Bandra, avec ses gratte-ciels, jusqu'au Bandra Point. Des corbeaux et de grands oiseaux noir et blanc sillonnent l'air tiède chargé des effluves d'égouts et de produits chimiques.

Chaque jour Selvam, Arjun, John H, JYL, Kusum, et Ch.J et F.J, et R, me téléphonent, et cette solidarité est une expression de la Grâce...

Dans notre habituelle ignorance nous ne savons que bien rarement et exceptionnellement à quel point nous dépendons de la Grâce...

Ce matin, C criait encore ; elle criait qu'elle n'en pouvait plus, qu'elle ne pouvait plus supporter cette torture, que personne ne pouvait comprendre, qu'elle faisait tout ce qu'elle pouvait, mais que c'était trop insupportable.

Je suis resté près d'elle et l'ai persuadée de manger un peu – j'ai dû me fâcher; je lui ai donné la nourriture moi-même.

Les nouvelles radios montrent que l'engorgement des poumons a diminué ; les signes vitaux sont plutôt bons ; je viens de copier dans mon carnet la liste de tous les médicaments qui lui sont administrés ! (Alcaline Phosphatase, Bilirubine, Calcium, Crealinine, Magnésium, Fraxiparine, Zanicin, Onetouch, Metronidazole, Ranitidine, Enhancin, Ondem, Insyte, Ketisol, Kesol, Rantocid, Augmentin, etc.)

J'ai l'impression d'être fermé, bouché, de ne pas être capable de recevoir les indications justes...

... J'agis parfois sévèrement avec elle ; je lui ai montré comme elle mésusait ses facultés mentales en laissant tourner sans cesse les pensées les plus négatives et les plus nourries de peur, et combien elle devrait au contraire lutter contre l'hypnose de ce malaise qui la domine, et reprendre ses « conversations » avec Toi – et apprendre ainsi à participer au rétablissement du corps.

Et ce soir elle était plus réceptive et mieux disposée...

8-3-2001, Mumbai :

C s'est ressaisie.

Et tout de suite, les médecins ont décidé de la transférer dans une chambre seule, où j'ai pu également m'installer.

Le départ de C pour Paris s'organise pour ce lundi prochain au soir.

C'est comme d'avoir longé un précipice, dans la tempête et la nuit, et d'arriver enfin sur le plateau un peu ensoleillé, dans une sécurité physique retrouvée...

... Je reçois toutes sortes de fax et de coups de téléphone de l'équipe au Matrimandir ; cette équipe de fous qui T'aiment, sur le navire de Ta Grâce, est une joie... !

9-3-2001, Mumbai :

C a bien dormi. Elle a pu parler au téléphone, à R, et à F.J et Ch.J ; maintenant, elle mesure le temps qui nous reste ensemble avec une sorte d'effroi... Mais elle saura marcher... Et il est entendu que je viendrais la voir en France, dans quelques mois peut-être...

10-3-2001, Mumbai :

Comment dire l'innommable ?

Je suis un témoin impuissant : voilà un être, une personne, une manifestation, une femme, une sœur, une amie, une mère physique, dont le corps a porté mon corps, une compagne dont la vie et le chemin sont liés aux miens par l'amour humain le plus inconditionnel qui soit, voilà cet être, cette femme si belle, en travail et en marche et en progrès, qui parvient à ce seuil redoutable, par la loi aveugle qui nous gouverne encore : non pas celui de la mort, de la cessation matérielle ou corporelle, mais celui de l'usure et de la désintégration.

Et à ce seuil attend, telle une entité toute prête, une vieille femme, une vieille femme qui veut dominer, prendre le dessus, absorber, effacer, dévorer.

C'est comme un monstre, une caricature, qui guette au bout, ou le long de chaque geste, de la plus anodine des opérations physiques, du moindre déplacement, de chaque expression.

Et il faut trouver la flamme de l'être vrai, central, et l'attiser, l'aimer, l'honorer ; il faut poursuivre le chemin, il faut continuer sans tomber sous cette emprise, sans céder à cette défaite qui se présente comme une atténuation confortable, un refuge temporaire, un répit apparent...

Et je me rends compte que ce qui m'empêche le plus de porter des forces utiles dans cette lutte, c'est que je suis moi-même incapable de résister au dégoût et à la dépression et à la tristesse devant le fait du vieillissement et de la détérioration dans mon propre corps ; cela m'a encore rattrapé tout à l'heure : je vais encore perdre une autre dent, et les autres sont si abîmées que leur tour ne saurait tarder ; et une semaine de mauvaise nourriture, de manque de sommeil et d'exercice, et tout cela tend à devenir une épave...

En fait je supporte mal, très mal, cette période...

11-3-2001, Mumbai :

Tout semble effectivement s'organiser pour le départ de C demain soir ; le docteur français (le fils de JJ.F, en fait) doit arriver ce soir et examiner C demain matin.

Il n'y a rien que j'aie à faire, ou puisse faire ; c'est comme une halte, presque une léthargie...

Je voudrais donner plus à C, et la pourvoir des ressources dont elle aura besoin dans les semaines et les mois à venir, mais je ne sais pas le mouvement nécessaire ; et son état aussi est contagieux : je l'absorbe en étant ainsi constamment près d'elle et il me faut du temps pour le résoudre et émerger de l'autre côté... Ce séjour forcé à Mumbai a ses effets, surtout depuis que j'ai de nouveau le temps de marcher : hier j'ai pu marcher plus de deux heures, et sentir la vie de tous ces êtres, les clivages, les forces et les nécessités, et l'horreur du milieu, cette monstruosité qui ne cesse d'enfler et de se multiplier – qui peut enrayer, arrêter cet acheminement vertigineux de l'humanité vers sa propre impossibilité matérielle ? Quelle force ?

Que faire de toute cette expérience cumulative de ces millions et ces millions d'êtres, qui sont soi-même, là où « bien » et « mal » ne signifient plus rien vraiment qu'inextricablement mêlés, mutuellement absorbés, devenus autre chose ?

Il n'y a que la conscience et sa présence inaltérable qui embrasse toujours plus, contient toujours plus, au-delà de toute pensée, de tout discours et de toute émotion, comme un déroulement simultané de tous les possibles, de tous les assemblages, de toutes les créations – vers un grand cœur souverain qui EST.

13-3-2001, Aéroport de Mumbai :

Je viens de laisser C et J.F à l'aéroport international ; J.F va s'occuper d'elle pendant le voyage et l'assister jusqu'à son arrivée à l'hôpital Saint Joseph à Paris, où un nouveau bilan devra être fait au plus tôt.

Avant de quitter Lilavati, J.F a mis C sous oxygène pour optimiser le niveau de saturation sanguine ; tout est arrangé pour qu'elle voyage allongée, au repos.

Je lui ai acheté une nouvelle robe, lui ai lavé et reteint les cheveux, elle s'est maquillée : elle est adorable ! Et elle a été bien courageuse au moment de la séparation physique.

Malini vient de me déposer à l'aéroport domestique.

J'ai dit à C que je ne la quitterais pas ; mais il faut que ce soit vrai, hein !

Je voudrais apprendre à former consciemment une émanation qui l'accompagnerait toujours ; il y a déjà quelque chose de cet ordre qui s'est depuis longtemps établi, mais je suis encore tellement inconscient, c'est-à-dire que le contact avec la conscience physique est encore si voilé, alourdi et obstrué par la faiblesse et l'obscurité de l'« adhar » - du vaisseau, du récipient...

Et puis naturellement je me dis que c'est Toi qui a veillé, qui veilles et qui continueras de veiller sur elle ; et c'est seulement dans la mesure où elle a besoin de ma forme que cela lui sera pourvu, sans que j'aie du tout à exercer ma petite volonté ignorante !

15-3-2001, Auroville :

C a téléphoné hier soir, de l'hôpital Saint-Joseph, très émue ; les médecins veulent la garder ; ils ont trouvé bonne sa condition générale, mais une prise de sang artérielle a montré que les antibiotiques n'avaient pas pu détruire le virus (ou le microbe) qui s'est installé dans ses poumons – évidemment, puisqu'elle l'a contracté alors même qu'elle était encore sous antibiotiques après l'intervention chirurgicale de Novembre ! Ils lui administrent à présent, par perfusion, un nouvel antibiotique très puissant, et la traitent aussi avec des aérosols...

Je ne puis rien dire et ne dois chercher à exercer aucune influence : seul un mouvement au-dedans de son être, de confiance en la Grâce, d'abandon positif à Cela qui peut et sait, serait supérieur à cette impression de sécurité qu'elle éprouve dans le milieu médicalisé qui lui est maintenant devenu familier.

Je ne puis qu'essayer de lui communiquer, autant que possible, le besoin d'intégrité consciente, de courage et de liberté...

... Ici les choses sont difficiles, et absorbantes ; un retour de vague, et la vieille histoire de l'unité contre un commun adversaire : notre équipe est à nouveau menacée...

18-3-2001, Auroville :

La conduite de Kireet se révèle assez pauvre ; par faiblesse, ou pour s'assurer de certains soutiens, il cède et plie facilement devant les pressions et les volontés « communautaires » ; c'est ainsi que nous devons maintenant accepter gracieusement l'évènement de cette célébration factice, de type « Nouvel Age », au lever du soleil le 20 Mars ; une sorte de cérémonie doit se tenir à l'amphithéâtre, qui sera filmée et diffusée en Europe et je ne sais où, pour marquer la première équinoxe de l'« Ere Nouvelle » ; au même moment, en plusieurs points de la Terre où un effort particulier se poursuit d'unification sociale, culturelle ou interreligieuse, d'autres démonstrations doivent avoir lieu.

Nous devons donc nous écarter et assister sans commentaire au spectacle, et constater la perte d'une illusion : notre relation avec Kireet n'est pas aussi fondée que nous l'avions cru.

Nous nous retrouvons, une fois de plus, isolés.

Note : J'ai cessé de tenir un journal peu de temps après mon retour de Mumbai.

Les affaires de Matrimandir étaient de plus en plus absorbantes, et complexes.

J'étais depuis des années déjà en désaccord assez profond avec le reste de l'équipe de coordination, et surtout avec Arjun, sur le principe sur lequel s'était édifié l'organisation de l'accès du public au Matrimandir. Cela toutefois ne nous empêchait pas d'être solidaires, et de tenter de servir ensemble la direction que nous ressentions comme la plus vraie et la plus intégrale pour la réalisation de l'aire du Matrimandir avec son parc et ses jardins.

Et je poursuivais mes efforts pour établir dans Auroville une compréhension active et pratique de notre situation dans le monde et du service que nous avons non seulement l'opportunité mais le devoir d'y accomplir, à travers l'afflux croissant de visiteurs.

J'avais l'espoir qu'il serait bientôt possible de favoriser un concours d'énergies tel que nous pourrions établir une base physique d'accueil et de réception et d'interaction à une autre échelle, un autre palier d'action.

Avec quelques autres Auroviliens qui avaient à cœur de réaliser une infrastructure pratique plus dynamique et mieux adaptée à la situation, nous nous rencontrions régulièrement et cherchions ensemble à identifier des sources de soutien financier qui permettraient de réaliser bientôt ce que nous envisagions.

Nous pensions pouvoir compter sur la compréhension du Chairman, Kireet Joshi, qui avait à plusieurs reprises commenté ouvertement sur l'extraordinaire opportunité qui se présentait à nous de servir la diffusion de l'œuvre de Mère et Sri Aurobindo.

J'avais alors préparé deux textes, l'un une description de la situation et des besoins, qui pourrait être communiqué à toute personne intéressée, et l'autre qui serait formellement communiqué par le FAMC aux membres du Governing Board, qui devait se réunir à Auroville prochainement.

On the upgrading of the Visitors Reception facilities in Auroville and Pondichéry, May 27, 2001:

"Auroville is 33 years old.

By virtue of its uniqueness and through the diversity of its ventures and the variegated physical expression of its efforts, its material site is increasingly known.

However, Auroville's aims are not widely understood yet.

In this epoch of consumerism, it is Auroville's most striking feature – the Matrimandir – and characteristic – an international community – that attract the larger public. And the majority of those who reach Auroville presently do so on the strength of one of two main assumptions: that either Auroville is a tourism spot or a new spiritual/religious centre.

As things now stand, little is being done and little happens during the daily visit of these hundreds and sometimes thousands of people for them to review and correct these assumptions; so that, in effect, these assumptions snowball and gradually acquire a kind of validity.

We constantly seek understanding, help, financial support, technological assistance, official protection.

And wherever we address our requests, we endeavour to explain the aims and ideals of Auroville and to present an image of Auroville likely to raise sufficient interest and to elicit a positive and substantial response.

Yet, every day of the year, many hundreds of people from all walks of life and all classes of society reach Auroville and, reaching it, have some expectations; what do we do for them, how do we cultivate their understanding, speak to the goodwill in them, to the sense of the ideal, to the very essential dream lodged within every human being?

It is true that there are not many of us yet to live and work for Auroville, and tasks are so numerous and impressive, and obstacles and contradictions so persistent, that the odds against the likelihood of our catching up both with our sadhana and with the tide of public intrusion at one and the same time appear sometimes overwhelming.

And it is also true that none of this is for ourselves as individuals, nor for personal gains of any sort or nature; indeed we do need support, understanding and participation from all over the world if this experiment is going to make real sense to humanity as a whole.

So this is a call, directed both inside and outside the physical Auroville, to invest work, efforts and finances in this extremely important and sensitive area of interface between Auroville and the general public.

Inside Auroville: a call and invitation to all Auroville units, whether commercial or educational and research units, to contribute to the enlivening, animation and meaningfulness of the Visitors Centre, by putting up stands and meeting the public and representing the diversity of interests, focuses and explorations wherein Auroville's strivings for a new life and a new consciousness apply themselves.

A call and invitation for the collective services of Auroville to collaborate in making the Visitors Centre the living space Auroville needs to interact with the public.

Outside Auroville: a call and invitation to all Auroville's friends and well wishers, individuals and organisations, to help fund the upgrading of Auroville's Visitors Reception facilities in a significant way, so that the message of Auroville and its universal import may effectively and actually reach more and more people.

In order to illustrate and delineate the efforts with which this call is concerned, we present here the main elements of the proposed project of upgrading the Visitors Centre on the one hand, and the access facilities to the Matrimandir on the other hand.

A third part outlines a proposal for a framework conducive to a more harmonious and effective co-development with those neighbouring villages that are directly affected by the increasing flow of visitors to Auroville.

.Part I: Upgrading of the Visitors Centre.

- A- An additional covered space of about 400m² to hold exhibitions, educational stands, further sales of Auroville products and a large video room which can serve up to 200 people at a time.
- B- Setting up of covered areas on the main roof and terraces of the building to allow for art exhibitions and cafeteria facilities.
- C- An additional block for toilets facilities.
- D- A small, contained children playground.
- E- A "Theme Park" which will demonstrate, besides simple ecological measures and practices, various techniques for waste water treatment, alternative building approaches, new architectural concepts, alternative energy devices. This "Theme Park" is to be combined with a "Discovery Walk" which will lead one to plots where alternative agricultural methods are also demonstrated and medicinal plants are cultivated, down to an existing canyon where methods of water conservation are made explicit.
- F- A well appointed and contained picnic area, with welcoming shady spots and supply points of clean, filtered water.
- G- A remodelling of the road into Auroville, so that the Visitors Centre is marked with a more substantial character of entranceway.
- H- Setting up of a proper Visitors Reception and Information Office in Pondichéry. This is presented here as part of the upgrading of the Visitors Centre itself as its creation will fulfil one of the main conditions for its adequate functioning. This Office in Pondichéry will connect visitors to all facilities in Auroville such as Guest Houses and training centres, and will provide a wide range of materials on all aspects of Auroville's research. It will also establish clear agreements with selected tour operators for the transportation of interested visitors to Auroville, so as to regulate the traffic of tourism vehicles in the Auroville area.

.Part II: Access Facilities to the Matrimandir.

The Matrimandir is at present the major focus of public interest.

This fact tends to create misleading impressions in the public awareness both of the Matrimandir itself and of Auroville as an integral proposition.

A number of factors contribute to the near exclusivity of this focus.

One of them is that the International Zone, which would obviously draw the interest of most visitors, is not yet built, except for the Bharat Nivas, the Pavilion of India – which has not only remain uncompleted for many years but has also been extensively used for collective services and administration.

Another factor is the profit motivation driving the majority of agencies that form the tourism industry, intent as they are on providing their customers with products rather than with more participatory experiences; a quick visit to a golden globe in South India, as one of the two most striking modern temples in the country (the other being the Ba'hai temple in Delhi), is easy to sell.

Still another factor is the very physical configuration of Auroville, spread as it is over a large area which appears as mostly green and uninhabited to the casual visitor, who meets of Auroville nothing but a stretch of shaded road between the Visitors Centre and the Matrimandir.

But the most determining factor is precisely our collective state of unreadiness in meeting and receiving the public and presenting it with a vision and a living atmosphere filled with purpose.

The Matrimandir needs to be situated, in the public awareness, as the spiritual and physical centre of a rich and intense collective search – instead of being so widely perceived as a costly monument or a religious centre of some kind of international movement.

For this to happen, people must be provided with the necessary elements of understanding.

The approach to the Matrimandir must be gradual and meaningful and the physical, human and spiritual context in which it stands must be made tangible.

So that, when visitors eventually reach the entrance to the Matrimandir area, they have already experienced a difference – a difference in quality, a difference in outlook, a difference in atmosphere -, and are, in their respective individual capacities, as receptive as possible to the contact of the Matrimandir.

At present the regulations and facilities are both cumbersome and rudimentary. Apart from the lack of proper transportation and proper buildings, the fact that the entire physical area is not yet consolidated, sections of it still belonging to private land owners and the internal roads being still temporary public roads, considerably complicates the organisational requirements that must be met in order to have a fairly quiet and disciplined movement to and fro of the many hundreds of visitors on any day.

The following is a summary of the main features that must become manifest on a permanent basis for the reception of all visitors to the Matrimandir – including the Auroville residents.

- A- We have already mentioned that for visitors from the general public, the main transportation will have to be organised from the Visitors Reception Office in Pondichéry to the Visitors Centre in Auroville. As for the transportation from the Visitors Centre to the Matrimandir and back, which is presently chaotic, polluting and rather dangerous, the only practical, clean and efficient system is a small electric railway. This railway system would run throughout the day, every half hour; during the special visiting hour it would run every 5 minutes. It would have a double lane and each train would have a seating capacity for 100 people.

- B- At the entrance to the "Peace Area", at the western end of the Matrimandir Outer Gardens, or Park, a transit area is to be designed beyond which only maintenance vehicles will be allowed. This transit area will contain a circular drive from which will stem the western path to the Matrimandir.
- C- At the beginning of this path and on either side of it, two buildings of equal size and matching design will serve to receive both the casual visitors and all those individuals, Auroville residents and others, who wish to enter for the purpose of concentration. Both buildings will duplicate facilities such as toilets and baths and resting lounges, storage and locker rooms, libraries and exhibition spaces.

Past these buildings, the western path will shortly become a bridge over the water body that is to separate the Outer from the Inner Gardens, and only those who have permission to either concentrate in the Inner Chamber, or to view the Matrimandir at the special visiting hour, will be allowed to pass.

Other casual visitors will be guided into the Outer Gardens from which they will be able to view the Matrimandir and its Inner Gardens area across the water.

Those individuals who will be allowed in to concentrate will be free to move within the Inner Gardens area, to meditate in any one of the 12 Petals rooms, to remain in one or another of the Gardens, or to ascend directly into the Inner Chamber: the entire inner area will be kept silent.

.Part III: Co-development with Edayachavadi and Kuillapalayam villages.

Those two villages are located within the Auroville general area, along the main public access roads: Kuillapalayam on the South Eastern side, near to the East Coast Road, and Edayachavadi on the Western side, on the way to the main Tindivanam Pondichéry Road. Between them they share the effects of the entire public traffic to and from Auroville.

The public roads traversing both villages are too narrow and very poorly maintained; besides, they are really the main streets and ought not to be used for heavy traffic, as they cannot be widened without having to demolish many houses and relocating their inhabitants.

Nonetheless, despite these inconveniences to their collective life, a number of villagers have taken the initiative, in the recent years, to draw some advantage of the situation, and have built up several shops and stalls along the way. The profits are such that even some outsiders have now brought in investments and business schemes to exploit this new opportunity.

The price of land in those areas has boomed and the profits of all the speculation are not always, are in fact seldom used for the improvement of the villagers' lives.

So that, on the whole, those beginnings of an apparent prosperity are less than healthy, in terms of a balanced and harmonious development for the actual residents of these two villages.

High priority status must be given to a concerted effort to reorient these developments for the good of these villages as well as for the good of Auroville.

The following is a summary of the proposed steps to be taken in collaboration with the village, panchayat and State authorities.

- A- To prepare a detailed Land Use Plan for those two areas, marking out sports and playground facilities, hostels, agricultural and orchard sections, commerce, collective facilities, whether the lands belong to individual land-owners, to panchayat, to temple authorities or to the Auroville Foundation.

- B- To formally agree with representatives of all these authorities on the location of proper by-pass roads and to design the commercial areas accordingly.
- C- To establish a budget and identify funding sources, and to ascertain the commitments.
- D- To set up a monitoring and coordinating organ with representatives of all the parties concerned, with the mandate of faithfully serving the development lines agreed upon, and being accountable for all expenditures and transactions.

We hope this document will inspire all those who care for the present and future impact of Auroville to collaborate in the realisation of the objectives we have underlined, and thus to help ensure that Auroville will best fulfil its dharma. "

On Auroville's relationship with the public – From the FAMC to the Chairman and Members of the Governing Board of the Auroville Foundation – May 2001:

"Dear respected friends,

We would very much appreciate to be given some of your precious time in Auroville so as to draw your attention on an area of utmost importance, which has yet so far been quite neglected, the area of Auroville's interface with the public and particularly with these members of the public who are attracted to visit Auroville in increasing numbers.

The FAMC has recently been solicited to form a special sub-group to assess the potentials and existing conditions of this area of Auroville's life, in terms of material facilities as well as in terms of human resources, policies and orientations.

In its report to the FAMC this sub-group has emphasised the need for the Governing Board to be appraised of the current situation, and has recommended that the FAMC should seek the Governing Board's full-hearted support and endorsement for the active conversion of this apparently burdensome problem into the very wonderful opportunity that it truly is.

For this is a given chance for Auroville to share not only a more concrete sense of its ideals and evolutionary aims, but to help spread the conscious significance and import of the Mother's and Sri Aurobindo's work, of which Auroville is a part.

Many thousands of individuals visit Auroville in any week of the year, and it is largely up to all of us to make of the impact this visit has on each of them a meaningful and truly useful one, the consequences of which cannot be measured.

We are requesting you to read through the attached documents and to consider with special attention the following points:

- 1- Although it is generally agreed in Auroville that the Visitors Centre and the Visitors Service ought to be able to become financially self-supporting in the physical context of the existing facilities, it is also clear to everyone that these facilities are woefully insufficient and inadequate.

The option to charge visitors for entry into Auroville is not one that could ever be consistent with either the raison d'être or the aims of Auroville.

Therefore, as for every area of its physical development, Auroville must rely to a very large extent on the flow of energies directed to it by those individuals and organisations most responsive and most supportive of its evolutionary tasks.

We would ask the members of the Governing Board, along with the members of the International Advisory Council, to help us seek the most appropriate sources of funding.

2- Shri Kireet Joshi, our dear Chairman, has had in the past two years several occasions to address this issue of Auroville's interface with the public, and has done so in very inspiring terms, with a clear focus on the educational opportunity this interface provides.

We would request the members of the Governing Board to consider the appropriateness of integrating this area of concern within the larger scheme of CIRRHU so that it may receive part-funding not merely for the creation of further physical facilities but also for the creation of informational and educational materials and processes.

3- The growing influx of visitors to Auroville has vivid and telling repercussions on the life and welfare of the neighbouring villages.

In the absence of a conscious and positive coordination effort on Auroville's part, this process is already resulting in an increase of disharmony, materially as well as psychologically, both in Auroville and in these villages.

We would like the members and Chairman of the Governing Board to endorse the necessity for a concerted effort to define the most appropriate terms of a harmonious co-development with those villages, in collaboration with the villagers themselves and with all relevant and concerned authorities, and to assist Auroville in whatever possible ways in creating this desirable environment for the welfare of all.

To begin with, we would recommend the formation of a balanced team commissioned to present a feasibility study on the main critical aspects of this co-development: by-passes roads, definition of commercial and recreational sites and formulation of land uses in the concerned areas.

Finally we would greatly welcome any advice and suggestion the Governing Board members may wish to share with us.

With our thanks, at the service of Truth."

Note: While the Chairman and all the other members of the Governing Board were appointed for a maximum period of 4 years, Roger A had somehow become the only permanent member.

And now, with the insurance and stated guarantee of the Chairman, Kireet Joshi's unconditional support – and that meant not only psychological but political and legal support –, Roger A's position was considerably reinforced.

For the first time in the history of Auroville, he seemed to have the means to establish some sort of supremacy over the affairs of the Matrimandir in particular, and at least the main lines of the physical and architectural development of Auroville, in general.

With the Chairman's proactive assistance, and the enlisting of old associates well-versed in "social engineering", Roger A's declared role as the "Chief Architect of Auroville" was given an aura of spiritual respectability.

Roger A did not want to waste more time: he would now be having his way.

Following the time-honoured dictum that "offence is the best form of defence", he and his group began an active campaign of belittling, ridiculing, brow beating, steam-rolling, and bulldozing our team and particularly Arjun and myself. Slander and calumny became an acceptable practice.

But we were always late in realising our isolation.

In preparation for the official meeting of the Governing Board on the 15th of September, we had submitted, as usual, our detailed work report.

After the meeting had taken place, we received a formal letter from the Secretary, on behalf of the Governing Board, along with a copy of the report which had been submitted by Roger A himself.

This was no less than an open and official declaration of intent: we would be crushed out of existence, unless we complied and went down on our knees.

I reproduce both those letters here, as it gives the tone of the period that followed, up until our legalised ousting in October, 2003.

From the Secretary, N. Bala Baskar, to the MMCG, 18-9-2001:

"Dear Members of the MMCG,

The Governing Board acknowledges the receipt of the progress report on Matrimandir sent by you.

The Governing Board received another report from Shri Roger A, Chief Architect of Auroville, raising certain issues regarding progress of work in Matrimandir.

The Governing Board considered the reports and decided that the report from Roger A be sent to you (MMCG) for acquainting you with the views expressed in the report. It was also decided that the MMCG report as well as the report from Shri Roger A be sent also to the Working Committee of the Residents Assembly, so that the same could be considered by the Residents Assembly as expeditiously as possible.

Accordingly, I am forwarding herewith a copy of the report from Shri Roger A presented to the Governing Board at its meeting on 15th September 2001.

With regards, yours sincerely,

N. Bala Baskar."

Note: With this letter, it became clear that, between them, the Chairman and the "Chief Architect" had become sure that they now could "handle" the community and capitalise on various forms of discontent and rumours to rally the vocal majority to their views

Roger A's report to the Governing Board, on 15-9-2001:

(Note: The report is headed by two quotes, of messages issued by the Mother.)

"The Matrimandir wants to be the symbol of the Divine's answer to man's aspiration for perfection."

"The Matrimandir will be the soul of Auroville. The sooner the soul is there, the better it will be for everybody, especially for the Aurovilians."

"To the Members of the Governing Board, Auroville Foundation.

In answer to the letter of Mr. Bala Baskar dt. 23-3-01 conveying Dr. Subash Kashyap request of a progress report on Matrimandir, I regret to say that there has been hardly any progress at Matrimandir except regarding the gilding work.

In view of this situation, I am obliged to propose measures to restart the work – measures which I have held back from proposing for many years – in the hope that the harmonious atmosphere of past years would re-establish itself, bringing forth the joy and understanding essential for the Matrimandir's realisation.

The present situation with regard to the construction work has become so difficult and incoherent, that it has resulted in a complete demotivation and withdrawal of the majority of the Aurovilians once committed to Matrimandir. They now refuse to work in the confusion and spirit currently prevailing there.

Also, the presence on the site of 250 poorly supervised workers, resulting in unjustified expenses, is cause for concern.

The intention of this letter is not to accuse anyone, but to try to ensure the raison d'être of Matrimandir and its role as envisaged by Mother, by allowing the work to be restarted and also in trying to understand how the Matrimandir coordination team has voluntarily isolated itself in order to keep control and an unshared power of decision, attributing itself a decision making role in all the technical aspects, that is, concerning the construction, the decoration and the fitting out of the Matrimandir for which they have neither the competence nor the qualifications.

In fact, these two aspects – isolation and making decisions – have become so important and justifiable to their eyes that it has resulted in years of delay in Matrimandir's completion, whilst awaiting and hoping for hypothetical changes in architectural designs, setting in motion consequential irresponsible delays.

In order to improve the present situation we propose that construction work of Matrimandir be coordinated with specific responsibilities for the following areas.

- 01- Marble work
- 02- Masonry
- 03- Electricity and energy
- 04- Air conditioning and ventilation
- 05- Inner skin and discs
- 06- Landscaping and garden
- 07- Metal works
- 08- Workshop
- 09- Water

- 10- Ramps
- 11- Meditation rooms
- 12- Coordination of design planning and construction
- 13- Others...

Each of the above area will be under the charge of the responsible person who is a technical expert in that field. He will be assisted by a team of volunteers, consultants and workers.

In addition, the collective work of Matrimandir will be promoted by a team consisting of all those who are responsible for the above areas through the method of mutual consultation and by holding coordination meetings as and when necessary.

This proposal it is written with the hope to give a new "élan", a new move forward towards the realisation of Matrimandir and to open the unfolding of new energies so that Matrimandir "will be as soon as possible" as Mother wanted.

Roger Anger."

Note: I had subsequently drafted a response to Roger A's. I don't now remember whether it was actually communicated; perhaps I was prevented from publishing it by the team!

In response to Roger A's "report" to the Governing Board.

"In our view and experience over many years at Matrimandir, not only as members of the MMCG but as workers, what is at issue is an approach towards relationships in the work of building the Matrimandir and its environment.

Roger A has stated repeatedly that he expects us to be subordinates and to regard his decisions as ultimate.

But this is unacceptable to us, for the following reasons:

- 1- Auroville's adventure is a collective as well as an individual one, and one can assume authority over other Aurovilians only as a natural result of one's proven ability to harmonise and lead rightly.
- 2- Roger A has been absent from the Matrimandir work for nearly 15 years, and is nowadays only present for two periods of the year.
- 3- Roger A had taken in the past a number of decisions on designs and technical 'solutions' which have proven to fail entirely, and yet he has taken no responsibility for any of it, blaming it all on others.
- 4- Roger A has been unable, from the very beginning, to offer a basis for real collaboration – either with Piero who has been the main instrument for the manifestation of the entire body of the Matrimandir, or with Paolo, whom the Mother expressly wanted to be fully involved in the realisation of Her dream.
- 5- The designs for the details of the finishing, as well as the main design of the discs, are actually not Roger A's, but the results of a combination of influences, including M.Ferrari, Jacqueline, Anand, etc, and we have found it increasingly difficult over the last several years to meet with Roger A himself, free from a certain sycophancy and self-interested groupism.

- 6- We have found too large a discrepancy between Roger A's statements regarding what the Mother may have told him, which was not recorded, and the existing records of Her words and conversations on the subject of Matrimandir and particularly its Gardens.
- 7- We have found Roger A's attitude towards Paolo, whom he invited two years ago to work on the Gardens concept – invitation which let us hope for a while that a collaboration could still take place at Her service and in dedication to Her dream -, was unworthy of a man in his position.
- 8- We cannot but question the ethical validity of Roger A, an interested party and the cause of continued disharmony in Auroville, having accepted an appointment as a member of the Governing Board, and of the subsequent misuses he has made of this legal context.

As for the work situation presently prevailing at Matrimandir, we shall always be happy to describe it in detail to whoever is interested and in any Auroville forum.

Lastly, in his 'report' to the Governing Board, Roger A lists areas of responsibility; it so happens that this is precisely the list we have been working with all these years, with only one item having remained constantly problematic – the No 12!"

Note: We were thrown once more into the arena.

There followed a new series of general meetings and Residents Assemblies.

The old and proven practice of beginning with just a tiny lie, or an innocuous misrepresentation, and weaving a pattern from insinuations and leading remarks, while letting unchecked the wildest rumours and allegations, until it all becomes a sort of true picture, consolidated by all available frustrations and various resentments and jealousies and the vying for position and status, was flourishing among us all. It is a telling symptom of our general condition as human social animals – in this, the Kali Yug - that the lie uttered in slander and gossip acquires a reality that is more enduring than the actual truth of the matter, and in the society of Auroville as it has so far developed, character assassination as a method of warfare has yielded very profitable results.

An attempt was made at forming a "neutral and objective" body of Aurovilians who would have as their mandate to look into all the controversies related to Matrimandir – the matter of the Matrimandir's environment as gardens and park versus designed setting for a monument, essentially; but also matters of decorative elements in and around the sphere versus practical and safety requirements -, and to get back to the "community" with their observations, assessments and recommendations.

However, various factors coalesced to heavily influence the direction this exercise was moving, not the least of which was the Chairman's moral sway over a fairly large group of Aurovilians and his "sharing" of a "spiritual experience" he'd recently had, right after undergoing heart surgery in Delhi, in which he'd been "told" to "follow Roger".

Another decisive factor was certainly, on our part as a team and as individuals, a kind of persisting pride and intolerance, which further alienated us.

Yet, through and despite of it all, we also experienced a very interesting deepening and strengthening of our comprehension and perception of what the Matrimandir and its Gardens were meant to convey, to channel and to realise in Matter.

In this regard, Paolo T's participation and whole hearted dedication to the depth and substance of this dream of the Mother's, as he painstakingly and against all odds worked on a full detailed study and proposal for the realisation of the Matrimandir's Gardens and Park, and delivered an extremely moving and beautiful presentation of it, was invaluable.

And even though, as of today, in 2005, it is still wilfully ignored or dismissed by the new establishment, its quality and profundity remain unaltered, and are bound to find recognition, sooner or later.

Deepti's participation was equally fulfilling as, during this same period of about 3 years, from 1999 to 2003, she undertook, alongside our team, to bring out a dozen of thoroughly researched and wonderfully articulated issues of what we had called "the Matrimandir Journal", exploring, through the Mother's and Sri Aurobindo's writings, the import and significance of the symbol that the Matrimandir and its area, the Peace area, were to materialise, in terms of a more conscious future for humanity.

I have not kept any documents or records of the rest of the year 2001.

- 2002 -

Note: Huta had early on, more than a year before, announced her coming publication of a revised edition of her early book "The Spirit of Auroville", in which she had recounted every thing the Mother had said or written to her regarding Auroville: in this new edition, she had claimed that she would bring out "everything", hinting that there would be utmost clarity as to what the Mother had wanted to be materialised at Matrimandir.

Naturally we had fairly high expectations; we hoped that these new records would help clearing the controversy and make it at last unavoidable for Roger A to accept a real dialogue and an actual collaboration in seeking to manifest what the Mother had really wished for.

Huta's new book came out at the beginning of 2002.

It did contain several new indications that enriched the picture one could form of these gardens and surroundings the Mother had talked to Huta about.

But it also proved further that Huta had not actually tape-recorded the Mother's words; nor had she checked her transcripts with the Mother. And in a couple of instances, the discrepancies between the first and the second edition threw more confusion than light, if one was bent on proving one's point literally rather than trying to imbibe the spirit of it all. And, alas, this was not a time to be "spiritual" and to go by the inner understanding of things: this was a time of sparring and arguing and being legalistic and serving the powers that be.

It became apparent too that Huta had actually but little practical understanding of the physical, actual reality at and around Matrimandir.

Her book, which nonetheless brought out priceless gems of the Mother's touch and presence, could thus be largely ignored in Auroville, and the spirit of the vision which it illustrated so richly was superseded by the peremptory and absolute claims made by Roger A and his group, such as that he was, in the Mother's own words, "the man of the project", and he "knew best".

Our team had officially ceased to exist, although we continued to function together on the site and to fulfil our daily responsibilities, albeit in a severely handicapped fashion.

At the end of March, 2002, I took one of my reckless plunges and made a lonely foray into the "collective mind", in the form of an open letter to all.

Open letter to all, March 31, 2002:

"Please everybody, bear with me; I undertake to give you fairly good reading.

Why do I write now, so late in the day? I can see two different reasons.

One is that "my team", the MMCG, is no more officially accountable for any of its members' actions, and therefore I am freed of that consideration.

And another is that a last ditch attempt is being made at neutralising a certain number of voices, of people, who constitute a persisting obstacle to the realisation of a "Chief Architect"'s concept of the Matrimandir.

The members of the ad hoc Matrimandir Design Study Group, whose mandate was to assess and study the pending questions, problems, issues of design for the completion of the Matrimandir and the Peace Area, and then make a presentation as impartial as possible to the community of their findings and their conclusions, instead of fulfilling this mandate, have taken it upon themselves, in cahoots with some of the members of the newly elected Interim Working Committee, to recommend the urgent formation of a "new" Management Team with full decision powers – with the understanding that none of us of course would be part of it.

I am perhaps conservative in that I firmly believe that the means one uses to achieve one's goals are even more important than the goals themselves, in the sense that the means are used in the present and one becomes what they manifest.

In other words, I believe that the means one uses must be inspired by the goals one dedicates oneself to. The higher and deeper and vaster the goals, the more demanding they are of that quality of integrity in the means that are chosen.

If and when one uses means that are low, cheap, calculating, conniving, manoeuvring, which involve untruths, calumnies, campaigning, then what these means reveal is the actual nature of one's goals, regardless of what the professed goals are.

I shall come back to this, with examples that are proven and documented.

I have several times been told that I was being perceived by the "chief architect" and his entourage as one of the main, if not the main, causes of conflict and stalemate at Matrimandir.

The present Chairman himself, upon his last departure from Auroville, has felt it indispensable to tell me personally that, although he himself wholly embraced me and was committed to a "no exclusion" course, one of the main aspects of the problem at Matrimandir was the relationship between the "chief architect" and me.

But here lies the very essence of the trap that is trying to engulf much more than a few of us, and my purpose in writing this letter to all is to show how this is indeed a trap, and a covering up of the real issues.

I am referring here to the age-old trick of masking the issues of choice and direction by focussing everyone's attention onto exaggerated personal portraits, aiding oneself with "interesting" rumours and the universal taste for gossip.

I am not "against" the "chief architect".

There have been periods of time when it was possible for me to relate happily to him – for he is a very likeable person.

I am only opposed to his claims and concepts, and have been so for a long time, insofar as they exclude the many indications the Mother herself has given of Her own Wish and Her own Dream.

And that is all.
There is nothing else.

These indications of Hers do not concern only the terms of the physical environment and atmosphere and approach She has described for the Matrimandir, but also the very terms of the relationships She has wanted to see established in Auroville, and particularly around the Matrimandir.

All of these, whether on the material plane or on the psychological plane, point to the need for complementarity, integrality, collaboration, pre-empting any attempt at absolute authority, at exclusivism, at personal ambition.

Yet we have now a situation wherein the conflict between the integral approach of the Mother's dream – with a secluded parkland, solitary and silent, at its centre – and the exclusive approach of the "Chief Architect"'s concept is edging onto the material plane.

The "Town Hall Annex" is nearing completion: trees have been felled overnight so as to provide an uninterrupted view of the gilded Matrimandir, gilded and resplendent out of its twelve red petals, but naked of its environment, its atmosphere, its isolation which the Mother had wished.

No more park, no more isolating zone, no more gardens, but a direct, unimpeded, forceful entry of the city into the space of its soul.

It is of interest to note, in this regard, that the first building element that the "chief architect" has elected to have materialised is to house together the Central Financial organ, the Central Urban Planning organ and the central Organisational organ of Auroville: the nexus of authority-power-control.

There are implications to these steps that have been and are being taken by the "chief architect" and his followers, which ought to be seriously debated among us all, considering that our collectivity is a grouping of individuals who have freely chosen to come together for a new and true adventure of consciousness – and not to be mere followers.

Unfortunately, what is mostly debated is not the real issue.

The real issue is whether the Mother, who has founded Auroville and inwardly called each of us here, knew best what kind of environment the soul of the experiment ought to have, or if this knowledge of Hers was just as temporal and relative as the "Chief Architect"'s knowledge or any one of us' understanding of the role of the soul.

What is mostly debated instead is whether or not the (in)famous five of us, or more specifically Arjun and myself (we have shared the dubious privilege of being targeted over the years) are indeed adverse forces or not and how to get rid of us or make us run for cover.

And here I come back to the question of the means being used, with some examples.

- Misuse of status and function.

The "chief architect" has somehow – I do not know how exactly – been an active member of the Governing Board for several years, been in fact the only individual to have sat on at least 3 successive Governing Boards, under 3 successive Chairmen.

From this august position he has had no qualms in pressing for the implementation of his own agenda and his personal vendetta. Under a previous Chairman he had tried to have Arjun removed. Under this Chairman he has tried to have me removed.

He has also thus been able to hijack a collective process of defining a much needed Land Use Master Plan for the entire area, in order to have a full fledged City Master Plan legalised.

- Calumny.

My personal itinerary has provided me with first-hand experience. I suppose I am partly to blame, being rather asocial and therefore little inclined to belabour at projecting a popular image of my little self. But here is a fine example: some months ago, when the "chief architect" saw that I was not being lynched or excommunicated as fast as planned, he declared, in order to further prove the darkness of my nature, that my name had not actually been given to me by the Mother, but taken by me alone. This, I felt, was the height of calumny, for it implied that my entire relationship with the Mother was based on a falsehood. A few people whom I respect, another member of the Governing Board among them, asked me whether I could prove that indeed the Mother has given me the name "Divakar"; I could and I did; and the relevant documents now rest in the Auroville Archives, under Krishna's care (which is fitting).

- Building up one's foe.

It is often said by the "chief architect" and his entourage that I have the ambition to compete with him and to replace his designs with mine. One instance is often cited, of the entranceways to the central stairwell of the Matrimandir, for which I am supposed to be pushing for my own design.

But I do not have designs.

The facts are quite different: the "chief architect" himself had earlier, aware of practical objections raised by many to his latest design, invited for mock-ups of alternatives to be presented to him. Following this, Walter and myself made a mock-up of the "Chief Architect"'s own earliest design, which allowed for a wider opening and was free of jutting corners and angles, while basically expressing the same movement and spirit. This was done to remind him of his own original idea, which we found more practical than the present one.

In today' Auroville, where expertise, diplomas, "professional" stamps, and any kind of certificate are again the rage, where a horde of architects compete for a few acres of land on which to leave their signature, if one has been thoughtless enough to come to the Mother without such diplomas to brag about, and to endeavour to learn directly from Her and from Her Matrimandir, one is either considered worthless or an engine of bad will.

But I have been under the growing impression that, provided one remained focussed in matter while simultaneously aspiring for the growth of the true consciousness, in receptivity to her, one would eventually be enabled to face any task at hand with a creative inspiration, within a team of living souls, each cooperating and collaborating towards a comprehensive, ever more complete realisation.

Which brings me to the question of inspiration.

I don't see how anybody could object to the fact of the Mother's appointment of a particular architect for Her city.

An architect is necessary. An architect is an architect; he is also a human being, and perhaps a sadhak.

This appointment does not constitute a fiat on the whole of the experiment, it does not make the architect a leader or a king or a divine messenger. It is simply the allotment of a task to one of Her children. And "come what may"!

For there are all the other necessary tasks and instruments, too.

When the Mother wanted, in January 1970, to have the plans drawn of Her direct vision of the Inner Room of the Matrimandir, She specifically did not want an architect to do it; She asked for an engineer to provide Her with an exact rendition of Her detailed vision.

In this matter She did not want anyone to tamper with Her direct "inspiration", of which She guaranteed the source.

For many years, as we were building the structure of the Matrimandir and then of its Inner Room, there was constantly, and despite all the difficulties, a sense of evidence and timelessness.

To my experience, this sense is the expression of a sanction, of the highest sanction.

This sense has gradually got covered, obscured, as we moved in to the completion phase and, in the absence of clear plans and technical solutions, our many little minds and preferences entered into the fray.

This became acute in 1987, when the triangular beam-structure got completed, and no one really knew how to go about the outer completion of the sphere. This was when the "chief architect" returned to Auroville, after about 10 years of absence; this was also when his concept, modified here and there, of the gilded discs on the sphere and the petals around it, was voted with a count of raised hands in a large and long community meeting – without the slightest idea of how to execute it.

I have worked closely with the "chief architect" after his return to Auroville in the late 80's, during his twice-yearly stays, mostly over the Petals – where to locate the rooms, which shape to give them, how to provide practical access, how to structure the main volumes – and later over a number of details in and around the sphere. I have never found him to be particularly inspired, not any more than any one of us. Rather, I found him easily influenced, to the extent that he would change his designs innumerable times as long as the inspiration came through "his people".

And I came to the conclusion that what was and still is most important to him is the matter of authority: he demands to have the final say, with the proviso that he, and only he, can change it.

Thus, like a small king who welcomes bad advice from his courtiers and refuses or ignores good advice from those over whom he holds no sway, we have a "chief architect" who is addicted to authority for its own sake. A psychological context that is far from conducive to an effective collaboration of the energies available, wherein, if you are not "for", you must be "against".

It seems to me that the highest source of inspiration lies in the Mother alone, and that we are in dire need, at all levels and in all directions, of this sense of evidence and timelessness that can only be experienced when we are open to her and are moved by Her in Her ways.

The whole history of this present Auroville began with Her relating Her vision of a Park, sheltering Her Pavilion.

This, to me as to many others, is a central key to the vibrancy of that collective existence, the beginnings of which the Mother has sought to create here.

It cannot be dismissed as mere historical fact. She is ahead of us all, immeasurably. Her voice is not of the past; it is waiting.

And, just as in the late 70s those present at the Matrimandir came to the decision that the columns would be erected in the Inner Room, whether the "chief architect" agreed to it or not, simply because She had seen them, just in the same spirit of affirming Her dream and the Law of Her wish, I believe completely that it is time for us all to say: the Park and the Gardens of the Matrimandir will be created, simply because She has seen them.

And this must be done with the "Chief Architect"'s collaboration.

This is all I have to say for now – I do have a lot more to say on other aspects of the Matrimandir's "role", another time.

But I ask, please everybody, look at the real issues, reflect upon them; do not allow these farcical vendettas to continue in Auroville, do not allow, in the name of goodwill and harmony, the reduction of Her dream to another pitiful saga of power. There must be, there is, a way to stand FOR a deep, vast, sure, central vision, for its realisation in matter, that does not end in standing against whoever seeks to limit it.

At the service of Truth,

Divakar"

Note: This letter was posted on the internal Auroville net. The following week, it appeared in print in the Auroville News. Along with it, two other open letters also appeared: one by JYI and one by Luca; I enter both here, as they expressed complementary positions.

"Matrimandir: what is at stake?" by Jean Yves:

"A current opinion about the divergences and conflicts around Matrimandir is that it has no deep significance: it is only egos battling for supremacy.

This is a very lazy thought, if a thought at all; it is rather a way not to look at what is at stake.

For others, what is at stake is simple and obvious: the truth of a vision is prevented to manifest physically by the obstruction of the ignorance or the bad will of those who have taken responsibility on the site, and who are then credited with the necessary role of the hostiles opposing the Divine. The very fact that these obstructive ones dare to argue against the inspired leaders is the very proof of their bad will.

Then it is not necessary to listen to their arguments, and still less necessary to make the effort of including them or answering to them: there is just nothing to be understood; there is only an unanswerable opposition to be eradicated in order to free the way of the divine manifestation.

But the idea that the Divine may manifest His law in this way and that this theocratic and intolerant pattern is the ideal one for Auroville, is precisely the problem.

What is really at stake is not any issue of design, which is of little importance after all, if we consider that the expression of Matrimandir will necessarily evolve through time; it is much more serious: it is the possibility for anyone to say "I am the divine will in action, surrender to me or you will be named hostile forces".

It gives an idea of what a "divine" anarchy may be if each one starts to wrap himself in the pride of his "divine" inspiration and tries to take over the decision power on that basis.

What is really at stake is the design of the Auroville community itself, in its progressive capacity to speak together and move together towards a common goal, whatever contradictions and conflicts we have to meet on the way, with the faith that a harmonising power will always keep all of us together.

For that, we have to refuse the intrusion of charismatic leaders asking for followers and splitting the community between the good ones and the bad ones.

The easy and simplistic certitudes of theocracy have to be left behind if we are to become adults and assume our collective responsibility before Auroville.

Not to take that step will stop us from growing and delay the emergence of a true collectivity.

Jean Yves."

Open letter to the members of the Working Committee and of the Matrimandir Design Study Group, by Luca, 30-3-2002:

« Dear WC, MDSG members,

We have received a copy of the letter dated 20-3-2002 from the MDSG to the WC regarding the recommendation from them to create "a Management team with decision making powers on all matters related to Matrimandir and the Peace Area". After having read it we all felt the necessity to communicate to you our disappointment regarding this final output of the work of the MDSG that definitely is going beyond their mandate with their final, ambiguous recommendations.

We would like to clarify and reiterate that none of the Matrimandir workers team has any feeling of refusal of the role of Roger Anger as architect, as we perceive in this letter, or that we feel belonging to any group in particular. In fact we all wish to solve the existing problems that are under discussion and work all together toward a harmonious accomplishment of this wish of Mother.

We believe that solutions to problems are never impossible to find if there is that goodwill that She wanted every Aurovilian to have. What we also felt not emerging from the MDSG report given to you is the very concept and most important cause of the actual difficulties.

As we have chosen to dedicate ourselves to the task of fulfilling Mother's will we always have expected this to be implemented and nothing else. We have all gone through Her recorded statements and we all agree that it is very clear that She wanted a "park" surrounding the Matrimandir with the plants She named with their spiritual qualities and trees. A perimeter protecting belt of tall trees in the outer gardens was also envisaged and already partially implemented in 280 selected trees not by us but by previous Aurovilians according to Her vision. These are indispensable elements of Her vision that cannot be ignored.

It is our belief that it is not only our responsibility but that of every Aurovilian to follow faithfully Her instructions.

It was our expectation from the work of the MDSG to inform the community that this original concept of a park has been arbitrarily changed into a different one. What we have been presented with now is a lawn of grass bare of any tree together with a legalised environmental disaster of a big water body facing coffee shops and town annex offices of the surrounding buildings as it can be seen already.

It is our common perception that the proposed "Management team" will only implement such an arbitrary change of concept guided by political means already active in the community. And a most important point is that any management group has to know the directions in which it is going before it can act. The major design decisions have to be made as the very first step in this process.

For the gardens, lake and park in particular, the Residents Assembly has to make an informed decision in which direction to follow and then only can any management team venture to organise a detail designing and finally the work execution.

Mother's will and vision were already clearly expressed for all to see; any architectural symbolic addition will only suppress the living message She wanted to express through living beings, the plants and their flowers She was in contact with. All these last months it was not an opposition that the Matrimandir group wants to express but a will of obedience to Her will and Her living spiritual message to all of us.

We therefore conclude that only an effort to implement this very point will bring harmoniously all of us to the final moments of truth and accomplishment of Her Matrimandir.

Luca"

Note: Another member of our now officially defunct but still operating team, Walter, in the same week also posted his own open letter in the internal Auroville Net. Walter had come to Auroville in the late 80s, about the time when Roger A had returned, and he had first worked, as a landscape engineer, directly under Roger A, to redefine and eventually confirm the general layout of the gardens, water body and park surrounding Matrimandir, layout which had served as our physical basis of implementation from 1972 to the present day.

"What is it that the Soul of Auroville wants?" Open letter from Walter W, 3-4-2002:

"Auroville started with the Mother's vision of the central point as a park, in which She saw the 'Pavilion of Love', which later changed to the 'Pavilion of the Mother', the true Mother, the principle of the Mother. She describes this park, which She had seen repeatedly since She was a little girl, as '... perhaps the most beautiful thing in the world with regard to physical, material Nature...', '... in Japanese style...', '... all around, there is a circular road that separates the park from the rest of the city...', '... also there must be a silent zone...', '... there should be no noise of any kind...', '... the Park of Unity must be surrounded by a kind of isolating zone so that it is solitary and silent...', '... I should like the whole area to be called Peace...', '... the gardens are as important as the Matrimandir itself...'.

This concept of a lake followed by a park surrounding the Matrimandir Oval has been the basis of all the work since 1973 in the Matrimandir "Peace Area". Until in 1999 the architect of Auroville accepted as the new city centre the vision of a German water engineer and an Austrian landscape architect, to build a huge lake around the Matrimandir Oval. Thus he eliminated the whole park area with its app. 300 consciously planted trees, the isolating zone, which works as a protection of the Matrimandir and its Oval and as the indispensable background for the 12 Inner Gardens. Since the 21st February 2002 we can see and feel what the architect's city concept of interaction between the city and the soul means, since he cut trees in the Matrimandir Park area overnight and destroyed forcefully the protective environment, ignoring former agreements with the people working at Matrimandir, in order to allow the full view of Matrimandir from the "Town Hall Annex".

The Soul of Auroville, the Matrimandir, is used by the body, by the city, in the architect's concept and all the "modern urban concepts" that come with it, which he imposes on the Soul and the Peace Area. Nobody asks the Soul what it needs. A few try to find that out from what is recorded from the Mother. The desire-soul grabs and wants from the Soul, what it is not willing to develop itself, exposing the Soul totally by robbing from it its natural protection. In the yoga of the Mother and Sri Aurobindo the order of things is exactly opposite: development goes from inside out, while the Soul remains in its eternal silence space.

- A personal observation

In Mother's conversation on 23 June 1965 with Satprem we find a very interesting remark. She says "Then, we took up the idea of Auroville again (I was the one who called it 'Auroville'), but from the other end: instead of the formation having to find the place, it was the place (near the Lake) that caused the formation to be born..." The place caused the formation to be born.

In the beginning of the year 2000 the architect followed his often repeated words that he as an architect is not able to design the Matrimandir Gardens. He invited Paolo, with whom the Mother had wanted to build the centre, to take up the design of the Matrimandir Gardens with the MMCG. Shortly after that day I observed that the very soil around Matrimandir – Matter – which we had moved, shaped and worked upon for years, rejected the architect's concept of the tiny gardens stopping at the oval road; it threw it off, its imprint was erased from the ground.

I see and experience the Matrimandir as a living entity, the soul. No matter how hard the old world with its "one man show and the followers" and fully backed by high political power – all alien to the Mother's Auroville – now tries again violently to impose its outdated concept by eliminating in the name of Unity a handful of souls, working at Matrimandir, pointing to the Mother's vision, I believe that the soul of Auroville itself, the Matrimandir, and the awakened soil around it will decide and allow what will be built in the Peace Area. Remember Her words "the place caused the formation to be born"...

And remember Her message: "The city will be built by what is invisible to you. The men who have to act as instruments will do so despite themselves? They are only puppets in the hands of larger forces. Nothing depends on human beings – neither the planning nor the execution – nothing! This is why one can laugh."

I would like us Aurovilians to come into the Matrimandir Oval to the Banyan tree (leave our desires with the watchman), individually, with enough time, to see with the eyes of our inner soul quietly and with the Mother's words in our consciousness and aspire for Her vision to be fulfilled and to carry this aspiration with us in our daily life.

Walter."

Note: I soon had to travel back to France.

C was having a very tough time coping with R's condition, psychologically. She had also not quite recovered from her own physical ordeals, and her lungs were giving her trouble, and she was distressed at the steady diminution of her capacities. For her to return to Auroville, although she very much missed being here with me and with us all, was out of the question, unless and until she would be ready to stop her work as a psychoanalyst and leave everything and to accept the likelihood of her life ending here.

I had also realised that it was important for F.J and Ch.J to have me physically now and then, as neither of them was anymore in a condition to make the journey here. I had therefore agreed to come and spend another 5 weeks in France. I left Auroville in April.

Things accelerated while I was away.

Since our official disbanding as a team on site, we had initiated regular gatherings of all those Aurovilians who were working regularly at Matrimandir, and this new, informal body, "the Matrimandir Workers Team", allowed us to continue fulfilling our various responsibilities through the passing of minutes, recording all the practical and financial decisions of the day to day work and progress. These gatherings were naturally often occupied with the ongoing power struggles and deepening controversy over the physical destiny of the Peace Area.

On the 28th of April, everyone present – about 40 Aurovilians - at the gathering drafted and signed an open Statement, which was communicated and circulated widely in Auroville.

A Statement from the Matrimandir Workers Team, 28-4-2002:

"The Matrimandir Workers Team is made of Aurovilians who are working daily on the site. We meet together regularly to coordinate the work and to consider all issues that concern the Matrimandir.

We are a diversity of persons and points of view, and cannot be seen as a narrow or uniform grouping. Our common point of unity is that we all work physically for the manifestation of the Matrimandir.

What unites us also is our common dream and our wish to give Mother the Peace area that She envisioned since Her childhood, complete with true Gardens, the Lake and a Park with tall trees that She has described.

We see as very urgent the need to re-establish the integrity of the Peace Area.

There is great energy, willingness and enthusiasm to start work on the Inner and Outer Gardens (Park) immediately and the way must be unblocked.

We must unite our energies around the completion of the Matrimandir Peace Area.

We welcome the collaboration of all towards this."

Note: On that same day, an Open Letter to Roger A was read out at the General Assembly which took place at Bharat Nivas. The copy I have kept, which had been given to Kusum in my absence, is hand-written and unsigned; I do not remember who wrote it, but it conveys a fine perception of things. One thing is certain: this letter was written by an Indian, and a person who is mature and well aware of the ways of the world.

Open Letter to Roger Anger read at the General Assembly, 28 April 2002:

"Dear Roger,

The Matrimandir is the only innovative shrine construction of our lifetime. No doubt about this. It is a jewel and its heart is under direct influence of the Divine. It is nearing completion and you are the one entrusted by the Mother (blessed be Her name through these pages) to concretise Her vision. I want to express here my deep gratitude.

The casket of this jewel are the gardens. There are problems with the gardens. What kind of gardens did Mother envision. To quote an Avatar is a very difficult exercise for us. Because She is beyond as well as on this side of Her words or sayings. She can say everything and the opposite of everything without ever having to give the reason why. She has never to justify any apparent contradiction. What we can only do now is to strive to lay the most beautiful gardens imaginable.

Mother has hinted directly or not so many times to what She regarded as the summum of beauty in garden design. Who heard Her ever commenting on Mughal, French English Italian or Babylonian hanging gardens? Who has read Her praising zoological gardens, German beergardens or Swiss Schreiber gardens, etc?

But repeatedly and according to several sources who spoke or wrote about it, She expressed Her recognition, admiration and love for the garden style our Japanese neighbours have developed over the centuries. That is more than enough. In Her boundless freedom She never seemed to have given much consideration to a possible incoherence of style some of us would sense between a revolutionary shrine design and a Japanese style garden. In the contrary. What She has brought us is so revolutionary that everything else turns pale next to it. In Her synthetic, joyful, global vision of the future, there is not much place for our exiguous aestheticism or called for priesthood. Everybody can read (or listen), the traces left by Her Divine feet are omnipresent. If we thus offer Her what She was asking for, She will surely be present in Her gardens and make it feel to those receptive.

Through this green vastness woven into details the main aim of the wanderer will be to discover or rediscover the Matrimandir. The Mother's Shrine is not thrown into your face but offered as a reward after patiently uncovering what gardeners have expertly concealed in a 'parcours initiatique', Yin (gardens) playing with Yang (Matrimandir) at hide and seek. This is the Orient. But you have chosen to stay so far in the West and whenever you jump out of the airplane and come to stay with us for a short while you are dissatisfied with what has been done in your absence.

Take in account our need for mystery; don't drown under a huge deep and uninspiring water body most of the gardens. Couldn't you feel the shock that was felt by the sudden and naked intrusion of the Town Hall (the building itself is not questioned).

Dear Roger, you know quite well that painters do not like to frame their paintings themselves, having lost at the end 'la fraîcheur du regard'. Wouldn't you like to delegate and collaborate for the garden design, could you come down from your foreign ivory tower and be with us in Auroville where Mother's shrine is gleaming in the morning sun, at noon and in the evening?"

Note : Je passai donc cinq semaines en France, entre Paris, Claouey et Bordeaux, et notre lieu de retraite en Bretagne.

Depuis près de deux ans, Auragni m'était revenue. C'est-à-dire qu'elle avait d'abord eu seule le courage de braver tous les interdits et toutes les formations – on avait bien pris soin de lui dépeindre son père comme un monstre dangereux -, et de venir une première fois me rencontrer à Auroville. Plus tard, elle rencontra C à Paris et une extraordinaire relation de confiance et d'affection a commencé de se développer entre elles. Cette fois-ci, en France, elle put, et nous pûmes ensemble, apprendre doucement à nous trouver l'un l'autre et aborder un espace de confiance et de reconnaissance qui nous avait à chacun tant manqué. Pour elle ce fut aussi l'occasion de rencontrer toute cette partie de sa famille qu'elle n'avait jamais pu aborder, et la richesse de ses rencontres avec F.J, Ch.J, et mon petit frère Olivier, vint combler un grand vide en elle.

J'étais cependant constamment préoccupé par la situation au Matrimandir, et il y avait peut-être une sorte de fatigue qui s'était installée en moi.

Je revins à Auroville le 13 Mai. J'appris tout de suite une chose qui m'atteint profondément, et par surprise – j'aurais dû pourtant m'y attendre : pendant mon absence, un vote électronique (c'était devenu la mode à Auroville, avec la marée des ordinateurs et des « méthodes nouvelles de communication », de sonder l'opinion collective sur tel ou tel sujet) avait été sollicité sur la question « Pensez-vous que le Matrimandir irait mieux si Divakar ne s'y trouvait pas ? »...

Quelques jours plus tard, je fus emmené d'urgence à l'hôpital. Je dus subir bientôt une opération importante – on m'ouvrit tout l'abdomen et en retira plus d'un litre de pus, mais personne ne comprit ce qui s'était passé ni pourquoi, et aucune lésion ne fut trouvée.

Une partie des notes qui suivent fut reconstruite, dès que je me trouvai en mesure d'écrire.

12-5-2002, Paris Dubaï :

Départ de Paris. A l'aéroport, Auragni, adorable et ouverte, Odile, C, R ; R qui promet de tout faire pour garder l'équilibre physique et moral qu'il a pu gagner durant ma visite. C, courageuse, si belle.

Premier trajet Paris Dubaï plutôt aisé ; peu de passagers ; je prends un peu froid.

Escale à Dubaï : 2 heures d'attente ; j'y trouve finalement un bar salon, où on me sert un grand, magnifique boc de bière : le plus délicieux demi de tous !

13-5-2002, Chennai, Auroville :

Arrivée à Chennai à 8h le matin. J'avais remarqué que le FRO avait indiqué exactement la date de mon billet de retour, mais au départ de Paris le 12, et non à l'arrivée à Chennai le 13 ; je m'attendais un peu à une complication. Cela m'a retenu près d'une demi heure dans l'aéroport. Selvam m'attendait.

Je redoutais la chaleur, cette fois, surtout avec les nouvelles de la récente tempête à Auroville. Et ça me prend tout de même par surprise : c'est une chaleur anormalement lourde pour la saison, et à son pic : 44°.

Je suis en flottement, entre deux réalités, si brutalement différentes.

Selvam pendant le trajet en voiture me relate petit à petit les points marquants de ces semaines passées. Et finalement me décrit cette séance où toutes les calomnies contre moi s'étaient concentrées (surtout à propos de mes « activités sexuelles », de mon mésusage de l'argent, etc.) et comment lui, et d'autres qui me connaissent, ont répondu.

L'arrivée à « Sincérité » - d'abord rencontré Arjun, John H, Barbara et Walter au Matrimandir - est aussi un choc : le jardin n'a jamais été aussi misérable, de grandes cimes ont été arrachées, et des plantes grimpantes...

L'après-midi, je suis un peu en difficulté, fatigué, et ne voulant pas me l'avouer, moi qui viens de bénéficier de cinq semaines de fraîcheur et de confort et de bonne nourriture... !

Kusum, Kumar, quelques autres, et bien sûr JYL, Anand et Bhaskar.

Le soir, c'est la fête de Deepti, et je m'y rends avec Kusum.

La nuit est trop courte, inconfortable. Il n'y a pas tout ce que j'aimerais trouver dans la maison.

14-5-2002, Auroville :

Sans me presser du tout, je me rends au « travail » le matin, vers 9h. Je fais ma ronde. Salue chacun. Ecoute des rapports.

Une réunion générale est prévue le soir, toujours à propos des Jardins, et de la tentative « inédite » de prendre toute l'aire de « Peace » à la charge et sous la seule autorité d'un nouveau « Comité pour le Centre de la Ville ».

J'essaye de m'y préparer en parcourant les plus récents documents – confabulations...

Je m'y rends en vélo vers 17h. Je suis en avance et je m'assois à l'écart sur les gradins. D.P vient à moi – une surprise – et demande si je suis prêt à parler avec lui, et me raconte ses « expériences », sa réception directe de Ta Force et de Ta Volonté... C'est un peu fatigant !

Mechtild, un instant.

La réunion commence. Je me sens un peu fiévreux.

Ce sont les mêmes tentatives, sous de nouvelles présentations, et les vraies questions ne sont pas abordées.

Seul Piero a eu le courage de parler droit et de soulever l'une des questions majeures.

Et le venin de Jean P, encore, sans fluctuation.

15-5-2002, Auroville :

Trop fatigué.

En fait, c'est comme un coup de massue.

Un vidage violent de toute énergie. Un épuisement.

Avec une sorte de violence.

Je peux à peine manger.

Je reste à « Sincérité ». Tout est inconfortable.

Il y a de la fièvre.

16-5-2002, Auroville :

L'état devient de plus en plus pénible, et pourtant aucun symptôme clair ne se manifeste. Je commence à tousser, une toux sèche qui fait mal dans l'abdomen.

Je reste presque tout le temps étendu.

Les uns et les autres viennent me voir, mais je ne sais pas quoi dire, comment expliquer.

Le soir, comme prévu à mon départ de Paris, C téléphone, et je ne puis lui dissimuler que j'ai le souffle court et la fièvre.

Tout le monde commence à s'inquiéter, et à me pousser à prendre des mesures.

Les nuits sont pénibles.

17-5-2002, Auroville :

J'envoie Selvam acheter des antibiotiques (Amoxyl) pour 5 jours, et un sirop contre la toux, et je commence à les prendre, avec de l'aspirine.

Mais rien ne s'améliore et je demeure extrêmement fatigué.

JYL me raconte que les gens du « Pulse » (l'outil électronique de sondage d'opinion) ont mis la question : « Divakar doit-il rester au Matrimandir ou la communauté doit-elle lui demander de partir ? ».

Plusieurs personnes, dont John H, ont immédiatement protesté.

Il y a une sorte de méchanceté qui s'acharne, qui entre dans le corps.

Je ne sais pas quoi faire.

18-5-2002, Auroville :

Toujours aucun symptôme, ni aucun progrès. Une fatigue qui creuse.

19-5-2002, Auroville :

Incapable de rien faire. Bhaskar doit s'occuper de tout.

Les visites des uns et des autres.

Je n'ai pas de ressort.

Depuis le retour, j'ai une douleur lancinante, constante, au centre de l'épaule droite, comme un arrachement des nerfs.

Tout le corps est comme endolori.

20-5-2002, Auroville :

Je ne sais pas quoi faire.

Je ne vois rien. Que cet acharnement de fatigue.

Le soir. J'ai beaucoup de mal à manger, mais je sais qu'il faut que je prenne de la nourriture solide pour compenser les antibiotiques. Bhaskar prépare quelque chose de frit, que j'ai presque peur de manger.

Tous ces jours-ci j'ai eu à faire avec des mouvements du subconscient du corps, des choses engrangées, des peurs abjectes, toutes sortes d'éléments qui sont cachés dans la substance.

Je mange un peu.

Presque instantanément, soudainement, une violente douleur dans tout l'abdomen inférieur, une bande de douleur, une crampe. Terrible.

JYL et Bhaskar sont là ; près de moi.

Après quelques temps cela semble s'apaiser un peu ; je les envoie se coucher.

Je me vide.

Je vomis.

Une nuit de cauchemar.

Une nuit terrible.

A attendre. Endurer.

Presque incapable de respirer.

Une sorte de dissociation de l'organisme.

L'abdomen semble suspendu à un autre niveau.

Une attaque subtile.

Un état d'enfer.

21-5-2002, Auroville Pondichéry :

Tôt le matin, dès que j'ose les réveiller, je demande à Bhaskar et JYL d'arranger avec Arjun pour qu'on m'emmène voir le docteur Vijay Oza – le seul que je suis prêt à voir, car il est comme un ami.

Ils m'emmènent en Sumo vers 7h30.

La douleur est constante.

Vijay m'installe au Trésor Nursing Home de l'Ashram et me met immédiatement sous perfusion – glucose, etc.

Le lieu a une bonne atmosphère.

Vijay voit que le ventre est un peu ballonné, et soupçonne une sorte d'empoisonnement du colon, ou de l'estomac.

22-5-2002, Auroville :

Bhaskar reste avec moi tout le temps.

Il y a une accumulation de gaz dans l'abdomen, et la douleur ne cesse pas.

Je ne peux plus dormir. Et me sens de plus en plus faible.

23-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Vijay essaie de me faire absorber de nouveau oralement des jus de fruits. Cela semble aider au début.

Mais les gaz continuent de s'accumuler, et tout l'abdomen est tendu et gonflé.

Vijay commence de s'inquiéter et arrange de me faire transporter à la clinique de Nallam où, dit-il, il y a un meilleur équipement et la possibilité de faire des tests plus recherchés.

Bhaskar reste avec moi et s'occupe de moi tout le temps.

Arjun et Deepti sont complètement présents.

Je reçois des messages, de Gillian, de Shyama, de Menaig...

Mais la condition s'aggrave, et je suis constamment au seuil de l'insupportable, comme un seul point d'endurance, de douleur, d'épuisement.

24-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Les radios montrent une obstruction intestinale, et bien que je parvienne à évacuer des gaz, l'estomac et tout l'abdomen sont distendus, ballonnants, comme ceux d'un noyé.

La douleur est constante, une sorte d'agonie.

Et le terrible sens de dissociation de l'organisme, de séparation.

Nallam est de plus en plus fâché que Vijay ne décide pas d'opérer – il me dit franchement que d'attendre plus est dangereux. (Mais c'est moi surtout, je crois, qui refuse d'être opéré dans cet endroit)

Arjun et Vijay font venir Dinkar – (un autre ami chirurgien, en qui nous avons confiance, mais il ne peut venir me voir qu'en tant qu'ami, à cause des territoires professionnels).

Dinkar estime qu'il faut opérer. Bien que personne ne comprenne la cause de l'obstruction, Dinkar trouve qu'il n'y a pas d'alternative.

Deepti et Arjun me demandent : mais tout ce que je puis dire est que je n'ai plus de ressources, je me sens concrètement, absolument, à bout.

25-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Par la Grâce de cet Amour tout s'organise : Datta accepte de tout cœur que Dinkar fasse l'opération dans le Nursing Home de l'Ashram.

Je suis transporté dans l'après-midi.

L'opération a lieu le soir.

Deepti me dit plus tard qu'il y a 12 personnes qui sont là, à attendre, avec moi, pendant toute l'opération qui dure 1 heure et demie.

Dinkar ouvre tout l'abdomen et retire plus de deux litres de pus.

Comment cela s'est produit, reste un mystère.

Je suis placé en chambre spéciale, que je partage avec Dayabhai.

26-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Commence une autre lutte.

Et un autre devoir d'endurance.

Dans l'épuisement et la douleur je dois maintenant me concentrer vers la guérison et le rétablissement, et avoir la patience et l'endurance et la confiance et la détermination.

Et la pureté et la sincérité.

27-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Arjun et Deepti sont mes compagnons infailibles, présents, luttant avec moi, sensibles et engagés dans un même combat, sans sentimentalité.

Je vois que j'ai besoin de me concentrer exclusivement dans la confiance en la Grâce et l'harmonie. Et que la sympathie et l'affection des autres n'est pas toujours utile, quand il me faut alors y répondre : Arjun arrange pour que seuls Bhaskar, JYL, Deepti et lui puissent venir près de moi.

Bhaskar est tout le temps là. Il me fend le cœur.

Toute l'équipe s'organise pour informer et rassurer C, à qui j'ai pu parler au téléphone de chez Nallam, et qui a compris la concentration et l'orientation et l'attitude qui lui étaient demandées, à elle.

28-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Tous disent que le processus de guérison est actif et que je me remets vite et bien.

Mais c'est une lutte pour me centrer dans la confiance.

Il y a de telles questions.

29-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Je crois que c'est ce jour-là que Dinkar décide de retirer le tuyau qui draine l'estomac, par la gorge et le nez.

Je dois apprendre à évacuer les gaz qui demeurent dans l'abdomen et les intestins.

30-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Je crois que c'est ce jour-là que j'ai « le droit » enfin d'absorber une première gorgée d'eau.

Puis, un peu plus.

Et plus tard dans la journée, d'autres liquides, par toutes petites doses.

Dinkar retire, le soir, le tuyau qu'il avait laissé dans l'abdomen afin de drainer une éventuelle accumulation de liquides toxiques ou de pus.

Tard, j'ai droit à un peu de soupe très liquide.

(Pendant ces quelques jours, j'avais l'expérience très concrète et détaillée d'un niveau de la Nature matérielle auquel le système digestif du corps appartient, comme en coupe horizontale, dans le monde terrestre. Il y avait toutes sortes de perceptions que je n'ai pu noter. Deepti me lisait « Savitri » souvent ; elle et Arjun me confortaient en me parlant des Jardins, et de tout le travail que j'avais à y faire dans l'avenir ; et ces Jardins, et tout le conflit autour de leur réalisation, étaient d'une étrange manière directement associés à ce qui venait de m'arriver, de la manière la plus physique qui soit : leur nécessité organique.)

31-5-2002, Pondichéry :

Les gaz s'évacuent plus facilement, et on me donne de toutes petites quantités de nourriture semi liquide.

1-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Tout le temps, chaque jour, Deepti et Arjun me tiennent au courant de tout, et de la situation dans le pays.

Je me sens prêt à voir d'autres proches à nouveau.

Je peux faire quelques pas, Bhaskar tenant la bouteille de perfusion bien haut près de moi.

C peut me parler au téléphone ; elle est rassurée.

Une semaine s'est écoulée depuis l'opération.

2-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Dinkar décide que je peux me nourrir normalement, et retire la perfusion.

Le soir, lui et Vijay retirent les points de suture.

Je suis déplacé dans une chambre à l'étage supérieur.

Dinkar accepte de me donner un calmant pour la nuit, et cela m'aide à me détendre enfin, musculairement et nerveusement.

4-6-2002, Pondichéry :

La chambre se remplit, et je vois que Datta est débordé. (Il y a quatre lits dans cette chambre semi circulaire ouverte sur l'océan).

K et Dayabhai m'ont offert depuis le premier jour de venir me rétablir dans leur Guest House, le Park Guest House, juste à côté, sur le rivage de l'océan.

Ils arrangent pour que je puisse emménager dans une belle chambre avec balcon sur la mer : chambre 68, « Confiance », par l'escalier de « Grâce ».

Bhaskar transporte tout, et m'y accompagne à pied, tout doucement.

Là, je suis seul, et dois réapprendre le rythme de l'harmonie physique.

C'est une des choses qui m'ont frappé : cet apprentissage du milieu de soutien de la nature matérielle qu'un nouveau-né doit faire, par étapes, d'abord à travers le sein de la mère, puis à travers le sevrage.

Etablir dans l'organisme individuel un équilibre, une symbiose et une synthèse de tous les agents et éléments qui composent la nature matérielle, la « soupe » atomique, et ainsi entrer dans un fonctionnement qui est l'un des systèmes de soutien en vigueur pour la manifestation de la conscience humaine animale.

Et les questions.

J'écrirai, j'essaierai d'écrire plus clairement.

Il y a encore tout un chemin à parcourir pour recouvrer un équilibre de base – cela prendra encore des jours et des nuits, et je suis ignorant et je tâtonne.

5-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Aujourd'hui j'ai pu écrire, donc, ces quelques pages.

Hier, ayant reçu la lettre de Kireet, j'ai écrit quelques notes : pour lui, si, comme il le déclare, il veut me voir.

L'après-midi et le soir sont difficiles.

Un déséquilibre dans la nourriture.

La béance d'une sorte de découragement.

Letter from Kireet:

"New Delhi, 1-6-2002, Dear Divakar, I have heard from Arjun in detail the painful account of the ordeal through which you have passed. I understand it quite well, as I was through similar ordeal not long ago. The help that came through Arjun and Deepti and other friends from Auroville and from Dr Datta and Dr Paï is a vivid demonstration of the way the Divine Mother is extending Her Protection to all those who are given to Her in their being and through their devoted service. Please accept my very good wishes for your speedy recovery, and I am confident to see you in good health by the time I am able to come to Auroville. And that will be quite soon. Be well now and always, with love and regard, yours affectionately, Kireet."

Note: The notes I had taken in preparation for the time when I could speak with Kireet, were meant to try and convey to him how deeply and thoroughly confirmed I had felt, through this period of physical battle, of the necessity to have a complete environment given to Matrimandir, with the full collaboration of material Nature.

Kireet came indeed to visit me in my room, overlooking the sea; he sat on the balcony with me, closely, and listened in silence while I spoke, haltingly; Kusum was keeping watch from a polite distance, seated on the bed in the room. He offered no comment, and we parted with affection.

6-6-2002, Pondichéry:

La nuit, petit à petit, le système se nettoie.

J'ai peu d'appétit, je me sens encore « en danger ». Il y a comme des vides, des creux dans le corps, là où l'énergie devrait passer, couler, circuler.

Mais on me dit de ne pas m'impatienter.

Je suis tout à coup comme dans le corps d'un vieil homme.

Je regarde et regarde la question d'Auroville, de Matrimandir ; je ne sais pas comment Te demander, ni même si j'ai le droit de Te demander – mais il est si clair, si clair, ce qui doit être compris à la base.

Et comme c'est dangereux de ne pas comprendre.

Aujourd'hui je mange moins.

Il y a une stabilisation qui doit prendre place, qui n'a pas encore pris place.

Kireet est venu me voir, seul, dans l'après-midi ; il est resté près de 40 minutes. J'ai essayé de lui communiquer l'essentiel pour le Matrimandir : ne pas choisir l'exclusivisme, ne pas céder, mais servir l'intégralité de Ton Rêve, et l'Equilibre de la base nécessaire pour l'évolution de la conscience. La fatigue demeure jusqu'au soir.

7-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Bien que je dorme peu la nuit – ce sont des moments, des séquences -, ce matin je me sentais moins fatigué, et l'appétit revient un peu.

Et, rétrospectivement, je suis fâché d'avoir été « faible » avec Kireet, de ne pas avoir été capable de me centrer dans une certitude plus puissante.

Il y a comme une colère – comment peut-on être décentré, hypnotisé, dessaisi à ce point que les gens d'Auroville, que Kireet, choisiraient le rêve d'un homme, quel qu'il soit, plutôt que le rêve de Toi, le souhait de la Mère ?

Où en sommes-nous ?

Puis, je suis moi-même repris par ce vertige de dégoût, de refus, devant le fait physique apparent du « vieillissement » - et avec cette « expérience », cet « accident », c'est comme si j'avais perdu 20 années en quelques jours. La peau du corps est partout ridée, fripée, comme un sac vide, il n'y a plus de sève – c'est dégoûtant, et je ne veux pas traîner cette grimace à Ton service.

Comment puis-je retourner au travail si je ne recouvre pas une harmonie physique suffisante ?

Mais simultanément, quelque chose dedans, même dedans le corps, comme une petite joie, une sorte d'enthousiasme confiant, de rire – oui, c'est possible, et ce sera.

On va se reconstruire, les muscles vont revenir, le corps va respirer, il y aura une harmonie, et cette harmonie sera peut-être supérieure, parce que plus consciente.

8-6-2002, Pondichéry :

A peine de sommeil encore, dans la nuit ; mais je crois maintenant que ce sont les moustiques qui sont les plus responsables, et que je dois me résoudre à mettre une moustiquaire pendant la nuit.

J'ai vu et senti, dans cette violente expérience, que je ne savais pas, que je n'étais pas prêt à « partir »...

Que je n'étais même pas prêt à seulement considérer de reprendre un autre corps – choisir de nouveau des « parents », un milieu, un itinéraire... que je ne voulais pas : que ce n'était pas ça.

Et qu'en même temps je n'étais pas plus prêt à entrer dans le « vieil âge », qui me paraît un plus grand mensonge, quelque chose de si profondément et radicalement inacceptable...

Que j'étais là, comme dans un étau, devant deux sortes d'horreur ou de contradiction.

Que s'est-il passé réellement ?

On pourrait penser à de la magie, en d'autres temps... comment expliquer cette destruction, cette volonté de nuire ?

Et maintenant, je sens comme un appel dans une sorte de joie, de confiance, dedans le corps et la substance, de reconstruire, de manifester, de tendre vers, de s'orienter...

Téléphone de C dans l'après-midi ; elle est bien.

Je me souviens très bien de ma prière, je crois un ou deux jours avant l'opération...

Et c'est cela que je sens maintenant, comme le renouveau d'un calme enthousiasme, d'une confiance en l'harmonie, en la vérité du progrès de la conscience – de la conscience Une.

9-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Deux semaines se sont écoulées depuis l'opération.

Je commence à reprendre un peu d'énergie, et les muscles se profilent comme des silhouettes, dans la poitrine. Mais il y a encore du chemin à faire : combien de temps sera nécessaire, je ne sais pas.

Depuis quelques jours les muscles internes de l'anus sont affectés ; les vaisseaux éclatent et cela produit un gonflement pénible ; là aussi, de la vitalité doit revenir.

Je ne dors toujours qu'à peine, quelques moments dans la nuit.

Cela n'ajoute pas à la fatigue mais, il me semble, limite trop la conscience active : je crois que j'ai besoin de rêver, de laisser le corps plus en repos – mais cela viendra en son temps.

Il n'y a pas de pensées qui dérangent, il n'y a pas de suractivité : tout est tranquille.

10-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Toujours pas de sommeil, la nuit : seulement quelques moments de retrait, mais pas assez même pour « rêver ».

Les choses que je voudrais dire à Kireet – comme une dernière tentative – s'il revient me voir, viennent très clairement même dans la nuit.

Je me remplis de la mer, du ciel.

L'organisme lentement se ravive, comme un petit enfant.

Il y a des choses que j'ai besoin d'approfondir – dans lesquelles, vers lesquelles j'ai besoin de trouver le flot, le mouvement, l'état de devenir.

11-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Quelques bribes de sommeil la nuit dernière ; et un premier rêve sexuel !

Hier soir, avec Selvam, marché jusqu'à la statue de Gandhi – à peu près un kilomètre en tout.

C'est le gonflement et relâchement des lèvres de l'anus qui est le plus invalidant, maintenant, avec la perte d'énergie correspondante.

Il faut plus de patience, plus de temps.

Ces jours qui me sont donnés ici, protégés, dans une harmonie physique aisée, simple, large, tranquille... : comment me préparer au retour, à la replongée ?

Evidemment, ce qui m'est arrivé n'a pu arriver que parce que j'étais vulnérable ; du point de vue médical, mes défenses immunitaires étaient si basses et si pauvres qu'ils ont naturellement pensé que j'avais le sida (tous les tests sont négatifs).

Il y a une note de Toi ici, qui conseille à tous ceux qui ont des problèmes de digestion de pratiquer la bienveillance et la bonne humeur... Mais le fait est que, de toute ma vie, je n'ai presque jamais eu le moindre problème digestif ; c'était une part de l'organisme sur l'harmonie de laquelle je pouvais compter !

Par contre, qu'il y ait eu graduellement un trop-plein de mauvaise volonté, de calomnie, d'attaques, et que, m'étant physiquement éloigné de l'atmosphère et m'étant momentanément trouvé parmi des êtres qui n'ont que de la bonne volonté et de la joie à ma présence, je me suis aussi trouvé démuné et exposé au retour. Et ça a littéralement débordé ! Je n'ai plus été capable d'assimiler, au sens physique et presque clinique du terme.

Bon. Mais alors, maintenant ? Dois-je m'armer ? De quoi ? Comment ?

Car la bataille est loin d'être conclue, et les choses n'ont pas encore atteint leur point de rupture ou de résolution.

Plus d'humour, oui.

Plus de liberté.

Plus de clarté.

N'accepter aucune amertume, aucune dépression, aucun découragement ; aucune érosion.

Egalité. Pas de réaction.

Un rythme plus profond.

Oui, ces éléments, je comprends.

Téléphone de C et d'Auragni ensemble, ce soir.

Après le dîner, je vais marcher seul jusqu'à la rue de l'Ashram.

Ce sont les hémorroïdes qui me freinent maintenant, et causent une perte d'énergie.

12-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Hier soir Arjun m'annonçait joyeusement la nomination quasi certaine d'Abdul Kalam à la fonction de Président de l'Inde – Abdul Kalam qui avait juste fait savoir son souhait de visiter le Matrimandir aujourd'hui même.

Une journée très tranquille, sans presque voir personne, sauf le soir.

Arjun et Deepti viennent tard et me racontent les efforts de Kireet pour influencer et convertir le Général – K.T... C'est triste ! Mais cela ne sert à rien de contempler cette tristesse.

Il vaut mieux veiller et prier pour ne pas nous-mêmes jamais tomber dans le piège de l'ambition spirituelle !

13-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Pas de progrès dans le sommeil : quelques bribes ici et là, et les moments pénibles d'une sorte d'attaque subtile, liée au Matrimandir, sur le cœur et la respiration.

Pourtant hier soir encore j'ai fait une marche assez longue, avec Selvam.

Maintenant il faut que ces hémorroïdes se calment et se résorbent, que plus de vitalité revienne, et j'ai du poids à reprendre.

Combien de jours dois-je rester ici encore ? Ce n'est pas très clair ; mais ces deux points doivent être atteints d'abord.

Ecrit à C une première lettre.

Un peu plus d'exercice sur le toit terrasse dans l'après-midi.

Le soir, rencontre Dinkar, qui confirme que je ne dois soulever aucun poids supérieur à 5 kilos pendant encore deux mois – et, par conséquent, que je ne dois pas soulever la moto sur sa béquille, par exemple !

Mon corps ne sent pas comme cela ! Mais Dinkar insiste sur cette précaution, le risque étant qu'une hernie se forme là où les muscles internes ne seraient pas encore consolidés...

Parcouru toute la promenade, dans la soirée.

Il y a la question du tabac : depuis le début de cette crise physique, je n'ai plus fumé – il n'y avait plus l'occasion. Les jours passant, je m'attendais à ce que l'organisme se détache, à ce que la chose perde de son attrait, naturellement, avec le nettoyage de la nicotine. Mais en fait, tout comme pour la nourriture, cela continuait de ma « faire envie » - et cela n'a pas cessé ! J'ai toujours autant envie de fumer – simplement, ce n'est pas un problème si cela ne se présente pas. Je ne sais pas si je dois m'engager à ne plus fumer du tout, ou bien si je puis essayer de reprendre tout en gardant une modération, que j'avais perdue... Il me semble que, là comme partout, ce qui compte réellement est la liberté : ne pas être lié, dans sa condition intérieure, à aucun de ces « plaisirs » ou de ces « besoins »...

14-6-2002, Pondichéry :

C'est la première nuit, depuis un mois, où j'entre dans le sommeil – en plusieurs tranches distinctes, avec les activités correspondantes, presque comme des tranches de civilisations.

Il y a une sorte de détente dans le corps.

Et la mesure de tout ce qui est encore à recouvrer, d'une « convalescence » encore en cours.

Je crois que je dois rester ici encore plusieurs jours – rentrer ce dimanche à Auroville, à « Sincérité », comme je l'avais d'abord pensé, semble prématuré.

Je dis en plaisantant que je suis maintenant « addicted » - attaché comme à une drogue – à regarder l'océan. Mais c'est un peu vrai.

La mer, en fait, m'avait beaucoup manqué : cette possibilité physique de se plonger dans une infinité mouvante, changeante, une infinité de beauté.

La question commence à se poser devant moi : dois-je reprendre le même travail au Matrimandir, ou vaut-il mieux que je reste encore comme en marge pour quelques temps ?

Ces jours qui me sont donnés ici – puissent-ils contribuer à devenir - : ce n'est même plus une question de « changer » ; bien sûr, toutes les positions sont à changer ; mais, se fondre en avant, se donner dans un mouvement de devenir, où c'est Cela qui est un peu plus, au lieu de « soi-même »...

15-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Cette histoire d'Alexandre, en trois volumes, que je lis à petites doses depuis des semaines, est plus que remarquable. Et pourquoi a-t-il fallu que ce soient ces livres qui m'accompagnent dans toute cette expérience ? (Un professeur de l'Ashram, Kailashda, un homme qui a probablement mon âge ou un peu plus, était hospitalisé dans la même chambre que moi pendant mes derniers jours dans le Nursing Home ; il me disait que pour lui j'étais évidemment, où il y avait évidemment en moi, quelque chose d'Alexandre, ou qui avait été en relation avec Alexandre ; il disait cela avec un sérieux et une profondeur intérieurs, certain d'une connexion ... ; mais, c'est une sorte de mode dans l'Ashram !). Toutefois, je suis impressionné par le nombre de fois où les émotions évoquées par l'auteur – biographe romancier – trouvent un écho si immédiat en moi que j'en pleure.

C'est une œuvre magnifique ; très bouleversante.

Le ciel se charge de nuages un peu plus densément chaque jour et, vers le soir, quelques gouttes sont tombées.

Je ne suis pas encore prêt à rentrer.

Ce processus de rétablissement, de retour de l'énergie, est vraiment comme une renaissance – il y a toute une fragilité, in besoin de calme, et de temps.

Que ce soit harmonieux, que ce soit physiquement, matériellement harmonieux... !

C'est encore comme si l'organisme était profondément troublé, et ne savait plus comment assimiler ce qui lui est nécessaire ; je ne me suis jamais nourri si abondamment, ni si fréquemment, et pourtant je ne reprends du poids que très lentement, et les muscles ne se ravivent qu'un tout petit peu chaque jour ; mais c'est ce petit peu qui compte, où est l'aspiration du corps à l'équilibre, à une harmonie qui sache progresser, qui sache se transformer, qui sache devenir !

C'est cela qui est crucial.

Trouver le rythme matériel d'une capacité de devenir, d'harmoniser toujours en avant, vers, en réceptivité.

Le soir, je suis revenu par les rues intérieures, pour m'acheter un paquet de cigarettes – j'ai fumé une première cigarette sur la jetée. Et j'ai toujours aussi envie d'une bière fraîche ! Comme ce dernier demi que j'ai bu à l'escale de Dubaï, en rentrant ici...

16-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Je dors plus la nuit, et un peu le jour aussi, et rêve à nouveau...

Mais les hémorroïdes sont encore là. Et tout un constant ajustement stomacal et intestinal qui demande plus de temps...

Ce matin, Deepti doit rencontrer Kireet, seule...

J'essaie de composer une série d'exercices que je puisse pratiquer deux fois par jour, sur la terrasse ici, pour aider le corps à retrouver un équilibre et une harmonie – c'est vraiment comme si tous les muscles avaient fondu en l'espace de quelques jours, et il faut les réveiller, les ressusciter un à un. Je n'ai jamais absorbé autant de nourriture, mais cela semble n'avoir qu'un effet très limité.

C'est toujours impressionnant de constater comme il est aisé, matériellement, de détruire, et comme toute construction durable demande un labeur persévérant et méticuleux...

Deepti et Arjun me font ce soir le rapport détaillé de l'entretien avec Kireet. Les choses sont dites. Mais les intentions demeurent.

C'est la fête de John H aujourd'hui...

17-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Ce matin j'ai décidé de marcher jusqu'au Consulat, profitant de ce séjour à Pondy pour faire refaire ma carte d'identité. Cela m'a pris toute la matinée, surtout à attendre dans la salle de réception.

Le temps est gris aujourd'hui : un répit ; le corps a été content.

L'après-midi, alors que je fais mes exercices sur le toit, utilisant pour la première fois les deux petits haltères disponibles – un peu incertain, attentif à ne provoquer aucune contraction abdominale –, Kovalan vient me rendre visite... Plein de vigueur, son corps jeune et athlétique : avec cette santé sûre d'elle il me déclare que, passés les 40 ans, il est impossible de reconstruire et de développer les muscles qui se sont relâchés ! Je suis là devant lui, encore affaibli et amoindri, complètement exposé à ce regard critique et insouciant à la fois, essayant vaillamment de participer à la reconstruction de ces muscles qui ont fondu, et à l'instauration d'une harmonie supérieure à celle qu'avait le corps avant cette expérience – exposé devant cet exemple de santé et de jeunesse, avec mon torse amaigri, les rides aux épaules, les cuisses réduites, tout concentré dans ma confiance et mon effort... C'est une situation étrange ; et d'une certaine manière, cela me confirme dans cette confiance, justement : oui, cela semble être une ruine, et le vieillissement du corps un fait inéluctable et sans appel – mais non : mon corps même a une autre perception, une autre compréhension, une autre certitude : presque, une autre connaissance.

Il faut persister, continuer, et marcher.
C'est cela qui a du sens.

18-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Je crois que je vais rester ici encore toute cette semaine.

Il y a toujours cette hésitation, cette sorte d'embarras : je vis de tels privilèges, ce confort qui m'est donné, cette nourriture de beauté, l'océan devant moi jour et nuit, le calme et l'aise physique... Mais je crois que je dois justement le vivre d'autant pleinement et profondément, avec l'aspiration pour un maximum de progrès dans la conscience et dans la substance.

Je me trouve confronté à des faits physiques étrangement contradictoires ; bien que le corps soit encore très amaigri, particulièrement aux cuisses et aux épaules, il y a très concrètement u retour d'énergie, comme une sève qui remonte, vers un niveau. Mais, sur le conseil de Datta, je suis allé vérifier mon poids, à midi, à la clinique de l'Ashram, où je continue de prendre mes repas ; et c'est déconcertant : en deux semaines d'un régime nutritif très attentif et intensif, je n'ai repris pratiquement aucun poids ! Alors, que se passe-t-il ? Je n'en sais rien ! Il me semble seulement, sans avoir la connaissance physique mentale correspondante, que ces deux semaines de repos, avec les exercices que j'intensifie graduellement, ont permis de réveiller et raviver les muscles et à l'énergie de circuler ; mais que je ne suis pas encore parvenu à une stabilisation. Et qu'alors seulement, il y aura une reprise de poids...

Ce matin, M est venu me rendre une brève visite, par besoin, avec toute la tendresse physique qui m'avait manqué – c'était réconfortant.

Alors que j'écris ces lignes, commence la réunion générale des Auroviliens convoquée par Kireet. J'ai prévenu JYL qu'il fallait être très vigilant et ne pas se laisser imposer une définition réductrice ou orientée de la question qui se pose au Matrimandir – que Kireet n'avait pas le droit de le faire, et qu'il ne fallait pas le laisser manipuler et influencer les consciences... Je prie pour que d'autres parlent et se prononcent. On ne peut pas continuer ainsi.

Dans la soirée une grande et longue et bonne pluie : la première depuis des mois.

La nuit est tombée, et de gigantesques éclairs sillonnent le ciel verticalement, droit sur la surface soudain illuminée de l'océan : c'est magnifique.

Plus tard je fais une marche sous une pluie fine, apaisante.

VK est ma seule visite ce soir, car tous doivent être à la réunion générale, je suppose... Je suis plus sensible encore que d'habitude à ce que chaque être véhicule...

19-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Le ciel reste couvert et l'air s'est rafraîchi de la pluie ; tout est tranquille, au repos et, face à l'océan, dans cet état de « convalescence » qui se centre, avec une sorte d'enthousiasme, autour d'un mouvement d'harmonie, un mouvement offert, tourné vers, un mouvement de confiance, conscient de la Grâce – je ressens du bonheur.

Que cela soit le gage d'un progrès réel de la conscience !

Le soir, Deepti me donne un compte-rendu de la réunion générale : Kireet a parlé pendant une heure et demie, sur l'organisation, l'économie, l'éducation, et le Matrimandir ; bien qu'il ait tenu encore une fois à dire son « expérience » (où l'indication lui aurait été donnée de « suivre Roger ») il a néanmoins semblé vouloir corriger la perspective en insistant sur la nécessité pour chacun d'étudier profondément et attentivement le problème, et pour tous de vouloir une vraie solution, qui incluse tout le monde et soit atteinte dans l'esprit d'Auroville, comme un exemple d'un fonctionnement collectif utile au monde. Il semble donc y avoir un effort de sa part pour se dégager de toute partialité et pour encourager l'émergence d'énergies compréhensives, plutôt qu'exclusives et dissociatives...

Plus tard dans la soirée, A et Luca viennent me voir, tous deux de retour ; A s'interroge intensément sur Auroville, et sur son propre itinéraire, et le besoin d'un guide physique...

20-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Ce matin, j'ai marché jusqu'au Samadhi – c'est la première fois que j'y retourne. Beaucoup de salutations, des uns et des autres...

Je dis à K que je pense rentrer à Auroville ce dimanche après-midi : elle me dit que mon séjour ici est celui d'un hôte, qu'elle en est heureuse, et que je peux revenir quand j'en ressens le besoin...

Maintenant il faut que je me prépare à retrouver le contexte et l'atmosphère de « Sincérité », et à les faire évoluer selon ce qui est nécessaire...

Il faut aussi que je trouve un rythme pour la nourriture, l'exercice, le travail.

Le corps est encore vulnérable, la digestion est encore en cours d'adaptation et, psychologiquement, je ne suis pas prêt à me laisser envahir à nouveau par les questions et problèmes des uns et des autres.

Mais la chose la plus précieuse, à laquelle je dois être le plus attentif, est cet enthousiasme calme et confiant qui est là dans le corps : ça, c'est mon chemin, le chemin du progrès.

Le soir, revenant de ma marche, je suis accosté par un jeune Kéralaite, professeur de danse Kathakali ; c'est curieux ! Il est doux, et sûrement courageux, et très direct et discret à la fois ! Il y a de la reconnaissance, un sens de sécurité et d'aise.

... Deepti m'avait apporté le premier jet du Journal dédié à Mahasaraswati : il faut que je me concentre mieux sur ce travail.

21-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Le matin, un moment un peu inquiétant : une douleur continue dans tout le ventre, comme des pointes d'aiguille vives depuis l'estomac jusqu'en bas de l'abdomen, et tout est tendu ; je marche, puis je m'étends en respirant profondément, et tout se calme. La doctoresse du Nursing Home me donne des vitamines, Neurobion, au déjeuner, quand je mentionne cette douleur.

Je continue les exercices, un peu plus chaque jour, et la marche.

L'après-midi, avec Bhaskar, j'essaie la moto ; en fait, je peux me débrouiller seul et il y a une manière de la tirer sur sa béquille qui n'oblige pas à contracter l'abdomen ; on fait un tour dans la ville, pour vérifier que les vibrations du moteur ne provoquent aucun malaise.

Téléphone de C, qui a reçu ma première lettre.

Le soir, Deepak, le Kéralaite rencontré la veille, me trouve sur la promenade ; il s'apprête à repartir dans la nuit, pour Chennai, puis Cochin.

22-6-2002, Pondichéry :

Ma dernière pleine journée, dans ce refuge qui m'a été donné.

Il y a une sorte d'incertitude, et probablement d'appréhension, dans le corps (ou seulement dans le mental physique ? je ne suis pas sûr) : puisqu'on ne sait pas vraiment ce qui s'est produit, ce qui a causé cette infection, comment être sûr que cela ne se reproduira pas ?

Le soir je rencontre Vijay sur la promenade ; c'est très affectueux et simple ; ce que lui pense être la plus probable des causes, ce dont il est, dit-il, à peu près certain, c'est qu'un ulcère s'était formé, dans l'estomac ou l'intestin, et que cet ulcère s'est ensuite développé à tel point que cela a causé une perforation de la paroi intestinale, infectant ainsi tout l'abdomen ; je lui ai demandé comment il se faisait que je n'aie rien senti, aucun malaise, aucun inconfort, aucun désordre, pendant la période précédente ; il n'a pas de réponse, sinon que la perforation peut se produire très soudainement. Le fait est que j'avais, certains jours et depuis quelques temps, des remontées d'acidité, ou une sensation plutôt de brûlure acide dans l'œsophage, vers la gorge ; cela arrivait souvent le soir, mais pas chaque jour. Et j'avais aussi remarqué, parfois, certains jours, une sorte de ralentissement ou de paresse dans le processus de digestion et d'évacuation... Mais rien d'autre.

D'un point de vue plus subtil, il y avait une sorte de fatigue – pas « fatigue » au sens ordinaire, mais plutôt un sens d'érosion, de trop, directement lié à la persistance comme acharnée de ces attaques et accusations et calomnies contre moi... des années et des années de ça... !

Alors évidemment, la question demeure, avec une forme d'autant plus précise : s'il y a eu un ou des ulcères, qui ont provoqué une ou des perforations, comment veiller à ce que cela ne se reproduise pas ?

Tout ce que je peux sentir, est comme un élan, un besoin de m'unir plus sûrement et plus solidement et plus constamment à ce mouvement de confiance et d'aspiration pour le progrès : le progrès dans la conscience et le progrès dans la substance, à la fois, ensemble, inséparablement : pour Toi, vers Toi, en Toi.

Et j'ai pu voir, dans cette journée, comment cette confiance était déjà, et serait inévitablement mise à l'épreuve – avec des nouvelles des uns et des autres : Kamala d'abord, à qui il vient d'arriver une fracture spontanée du col du fémur, à côté de K.T qui vient à peine de se remettre d'une infection pulmonaire ; Barbara qui est de nouveau affaiblie et mal en point ; et puis JYL m'apprend, ce qu'il gardait silencieux ces dernières semaines, qu'on a trouvé à Ch.J une « leucémie des vieillards » ! Alors, quelle est la perspective pour elle et F.J ?

Cela me confirme en tous cas que, très probablement, ce sera juste pour moi de retourner, comme ils le souhaitent tous, les voir en France en Novembre.

Dans toute cette expérience, il y a une autre question qui reste ouverte pour moi, d'un point de vue purement intime, individuel, physique ; c'est difficile à définir avec les mots ; j'ai réalisé, avec le passage des jours durant cette première période de « convalescence », que certaines parties du corps, ou certains niveaux de fonctionnement ou d'organisation, prenaient alors seulement conscience du choc, de l'ampleur ou de la force ou de l'importance de l'évènement, ou de l'accident, ou de l'attaque ; comme si, durant l'attaque même, ces éléments, ou ces niveaux, avaient dû instinctivement se concentrer d'autant plus sur leurs propres rythmes et dans leurs propres domaines et tâches, pour assurer l'équilibre, quittes à rester ignorants de ce qui se passait...

Et cela touche à Ton observation sur la volonté centrale du corps – que ce n'est que lorsque cette volonté centrale abdique que la « mort » survient.

Car, à aucun moment, je n'i senti, je n'ai eu l'expérience concrète d'un mouvement d'abdication.

Je n'ai eu vraiment l'expérience que d'une absolue demande d'endurance, avec le sens que, d'une part je n'étais pas prêt à « partir », que je souhaitais avoir le temps de progresser encore, et que d'autre part je n'avais plus de ressources. Il y a, au, clairement, le moment – un moment qui a duré longtemps, peut-être deux jours – où j'ai tout offert, et il y a eu une « surrender » : ce serait ce que Tu voudrais, ou plutôt, « que ce soit selon Ta Volonté ! ».

Et c'est là qu'il a été décidé d'opérer.

Mais la question est : est ce que j'aurais pu, ou dû, avoir plus de confiance encore, et recevoir l'énergie de lutter, d'endurer, de résister, de guérir, sans intervention ?

Je ne sais pas.

Il y a un enseignement en soi dans cette Grâce qui a circulé dans les uns et les autres, qui a formé ce cercle de protection active, cette détermination de servir l'harmonie et l'équilibre et la continuité.

Et, pour cela, une reconnaissance qui est pleine, et qui doit encore apprendre à dépasser le sens de la dette pour se donner dans le sens plus vrai d'un engagement, libre d'ego, dans le progrès, le service, le devenir – individuel et collectif.

23-6-2002, Pondichéry Auroville :

Voilà. Le dernier matin dans cette chambre calme et simple ouverte à l'océan – l'océan dont je ne ma saoulerai jamais assez...

Cet après-midi je retournerai à « Sincérité », et c'est avec le lieu même, avec le contexte, que la guérison et les changements nécessaires vont devoir s'accomplir.

Je ne crois pas que je sois prêt à me replonger tout de suite dans l'absorption du travail quotidien ; cette concentration sur le rétablissement, l'harmonisation, le progrès dans et avec le corps, est bonne et encore nécessaire ; mais une transition graduelle, et un élargissement.

Il y a un petit déchirement à quitter ce lieu, cette proximité de l'océan, ce refuge comme un cocon de protection vraiment, au-dedans duquel ce sentiment, cette perception, cette sensation tout à la fois, très simple, très simple, nue, directe, enfantine, d'enthousiasme calme et de confiance, d'effort confiant vers l'harmonie physique et entière, pouvait se développer et se manifester...

Et je ne ressens pas de joie particulière à « rentrer ».

Je crois que cette dernière période, peut-être d'une année, a en quelque sorte annulé ou déréalisé ce qui était peut-être mon dernier attachement : l'attachement à « Sincérité », à ce lieu de vie que la Grâce m'avait permis de créer.

Pourtant quand nous arrivons, Bhaskar et moi, en moto, en fin d'après-midi, c'est avec calme, un calme assez dense et profond, sans limite perceptible, que je m'y retrouve.

Seulement, tout de suite, j'éprouve le besoin de ranger, de mettre de l'ordre, de débayer, de voir et sentir chaque chose à sa place...

J'avais oublié les oiseaux !

Le bruit des vagues, et le son de quelques corbeaux et mouettes, qui ont habité les ces dernières semaines – et maintenant, tous ces oiseaux !

Il me faut me diriger vers un rythme juste... Pour la nourriture, le repos, l'exercice, le travail, tout est à revoir, pour une relation nouvelle et un nouvel équilibre.

Je passe de longs moments à ranger, réorganiser les armoires et les étagères ; deux séances d'exercice, une promenade en vélo ; et deux visites au Matrimandir.

Retiré du contexte et du travail extérieur, j'ai pu constater combien le mental était tranquille, et même le vital, et comme toutes ces années j'avais simplement été rempli par les détails physiques et pratiques, les « problèmes », les questions de relations et d'organisation, de soin et d'attention... Et, comme une marée qui reflue, ou une immersion, tout revient, et les éléments de la situation « locale » se rappellent à mon attention, avec, en même temps, un retour du sens de responsabilité, ou de service...

Mais je ne veux pas laisser ce que j'ai trouvé ces temps-ci, les données d'un meilleur équilibre physique et énergétique : il me faut m'orienter plus consciemment, avec une concentration plus effective...

Je retrouve des nuits d'un sommeil très riche et très actif...

Voilà donc un mois que j'ai été « opéré » ! Un mois ? Il ne peut s'agir du même « temps » !

Que ce soit le rythme de la Conscience, du progrès conscient, qui gouverne !

27-6-2002, Auroville :

Les journées se chargent à nouveau.

Mais je garde une heure de la matinée pour l'exercice, et je cesse le travail à 16h30 pour une autre séance d'exercice, suivie d'une randonnée à vélo, que je prolonge chaque jour un peu plus.

Hier soir, après le vélo, j'ai fait une longue marche avec M, et nous avons retrouvé notre abri dans la forêt...

29-6-2002, Auroville :

Aujourd'hui, depuis midi, j'ai mal dans tout le ventre ; c'est un mélange de deux douleurs différentes : l'une est une « soreness », une sensibilité comme une brûlure qui tire, et qui provient des muscles là où la chirurgie les a rattachés et serrés ensemble de telle manière que tout mouvement abdominal les tend ; l'autre provient de l'estomac et de tout le trajet intestinal, comme une colique néphrétique, ou bien ces douleurs qui font hurler les petits bébés, arquer leur petit corps et ne supporter aucune position... J'attends que ça se calme ; c'est-à-dire que je m'applique à n'y prêter qu'une attention indirecte et à le comprendre activement comme une simple crise d'adaptation de l'organisme ; car en fait, c'est effectivement comme à l'âge du bébé, quand le système digestif doit apprendre à accommoder toutes les réactions chimiques dans son milieu interne.

Pourtant, généralement – et il me semble essentiel de garder cette pratique de l'exercice physique progressif quotidien –, l'énergie est meilleure chaque jour, la musculature s'améliore visiblement, et je crois que j'ai dû commencer à reprendre un peu de poids. Mais il y a évidemment cette formation : ce qui m'est arrivé pourrait m'arriver encore !?

17-7-2002, Auroville :

Il y a deux soirs, le corps se trouvait tout à coup dans la condition d'un enfant, qui voulait jouer encore et plus, qui avait toute cette énergie à dépenser pour recevoir celle qui le ferait grandir et se développer – sans compter : cette joie simple de la croissance.

Et hier, graduellement, des douleurs dans tout le ventre se sont massées, à couper le souffle, avec une sorte de succion de l'énergie dans les membres ; j'ai dû rentrer, m'étendre ; puis j'ai téléphoné à Dinkar, qui m'a donné son explication de chirurgien et de médecin, graphique, séparée, et finalement ignorante... (Par exemple, il m'explique que, lors de l'opération, il a nettoyé toutes les surfaces internes, de telle sorte que les liquides ou fluides lubrifiants naturels ont été aussi asséchés, et par conséquent il est possible que quelque part de l'intestin se colle à une autre ou à la paroi abdominale, temporairement, ou bien même forme un coude et ainsi une obstruction, auquel cas, il faudrait réopérer !)

Mais c'est venu avec une vague qui voulait me décourager, me prouver que c'était sans issue et sans lendemain...

Aujourd'hui, les douleurs s'espacent ; ce sont comme des lances qui s'ouvrent circulairement dans tout le ventre jusqu'à la limite, puis se retirent ou se résorbent, tous les quelques moments...

Il faut trouver le chemin, l'équilibre ouvert en avant, vers plus de vérité physique, et plus de joie.

Ce doit être, pour le corps, le gouvernement de la joie.

Cela est certain.

Il ne s'agit pas d'une joie excitée, euphorique ; cela n'a rien d'insistant.

Mais c'est de la nature du « Delight ».

Cela, ça vaut la peine.

Parce que cela a un pouvoir dans le monde.

21-7-2002, Auroville :

C'est dimanche ; la maison est propre.

Je n'i pas encore essayé de définir, ou de décrire, la position dans laquelle je me trouve – ce qui a changé. Je ne sais pas si c'est utile de le faire.

Le sens du progrès, d'un chemin à faire, est essentiellement et principalement situé dans le corps, ou associé à la conscience du corps.

Si je m'en éloigne, ma vie devient grise, car, d'un point de vue général, elle est sans but – ou bien elle est à la recherche de son but, de son unité...

Je suppose que je pourrais encore écrire, peindre, faire des maisons, créer ; mais il n'y a aucune impulsion, ni de l'extérieur, ni du dedans, ni d'en haut.

C'est beaucoup comme si j'étais arrivé au bout – et je crois que c'est cela, en fait, qui s'est passé ; mais alors, quelque chose d'autre aussi s'est passé, et c'est ce quelque chose d'autre qui donne le sens : et c'est directement lié à la fois au psychique et au corps.

Et, dans la perspective de cette expérience, les valeurs sont tout à fait autres, ou plutôt se découpent autrement.

L'amitié est importante, mais elle doit être libre de malentendus.

La tendresse est importante. Le don de soi. De petits mouvements qui ont en commun, peut-être, la liberté...

Note : J'ai de nouveau cessé d'écrire. Et je le regrette aujourd'hui.

J'ai pu voir de très près, au cours de ces quelques dernières années, comment l'histoire se réécrit à mesure que se renforcent les assises des intérêts qui ont obtenu de faire « table rase ». Comment les choses dites et les choses écrites s'orientent graduellement vers la consolidation d'une version des faits et des intentions plus favorable, plus consonante. Combien rares sont les voix et les esprits qui savent demeurer libres et lucides, et exigent d'eux-mêmes de demeurer probes et intègres. Comme toute approche gênante ou compromettante, qui pourrait remettre en question l'unité présentée, est activement ignorée, aliénée, ostracisée, enterrée.

I have not kept many documents with me; only a few, which seemed to me to be representative of the positions and viewpoints.

We continued with our daily work at Matrimandir, and we kept holding the weekly gatherings, on site, of those Aurovilians working with us who wished to meet together. Each time we would select a chairperson amongst us, and someone else who would record the topics and the decisions reached, if any.

Paolo's study had by then progressed very well, and he was able to produce a very beautiful, comprehensive and detailed picture of the entire Peace area, which brought by itself a kind of fulfilment: it was proof enough for us that truly, not only this complementary was possible, between the architectural integrity of the Matrimandir and the richness and beauty of a natural environment, but was far superior to any exclusive solution.

We all agreed to write to the Governing Board members about it, in September.

On Paolo's study, to the Members of the Governing Board of the Auroville Foundation:

"21-9-2002.

Greetings.

This letter is being written to you by the members of the Matrimandir Workers Team, which is comprised of those Aurovilians working on the Matrimandir site who gather weekly, in open meetings, to see to the carrying on of the work at Matrimandir.

This weekly gathering was established by the community following a series of intense meetings regarding Matrimandir in September and October, 2001.

We bring to the attention of the Governing Board that the issue of direction and design for the entire Peace Area has not been addressed truly or fairly.

The Matrimandir Team is convinced that the stated and recorded wishes of the Mother for this Peace Area call for real gardens with greenery, trees, shrubs, flowers and lakes, all arranged in the Japanese way, and not simply a reduced series of "symbolic" gardens - with no Park (or Outer Gardens) to speak of.

The recent studies of Paolo Tommasi attempt very well, we believe, to capture and embody the deepest sense of what Mother has described of Her visions of the Gardens.

In their last meeting, the members of the Governing Board had insisted on the need for dialogue between all concerned to find the way forward, but this has not happened, because the architect does not agree to participate in the needed dialogue. Instead of dialogue and collaboration, there is mounting pressure to enforce decisions instead of inducing consensus and harmony with patience until it is achieved.

We want to work for union and a harmonious future together; at the service of this aspiration we always remain.

At the service of Truth."

Note: There was considerable confusion in Auroville as regards the type and style of self-government that was wanted. Kireet, having professed everything and its contrary, had once already intervened in the method of collectively forming an organisational body, by introducing a "new" voting system: each Aurovilian was to select two names; out of all the names selected, the 30 names which got the most votes would be nominated to form a first support group; these 30 people would then choose among themselves the 7 or 12 members of the new body, and the rest would remain available as members of the larger support-group.

Now it was proposed to apply the same method for the election of a new management group at Matrimandir, with the amendment that the selection must be done from a list of those who have expressed interest and willingness to be part of such a group...

Deepti plunged and posted a strong protest; here are some excerpts of her text:

On the Working Committee's most recent Matrimandir Management proposal, from Deepti, September 24, 2002:

"So at last it is out in the open – the canker at the root of Auroville's distorted growth, the worm in the apple of the recent experiment in 'new organisation'. How reasonable the WC's proposal sounds (funny, it's their 5th or 6th proposal about Matrimandir management since they came into being!). Auroville must have a majority vote, every single adult Aurovilian must participate: let us 'take back our soul'!

We are ready to do to our symbol soul what we will never dream of doing to more secular activities – can you imagine electing, by majority vote, a new management at CSR, at Auroville Press, at Maroma... let alone at the Central Fund or Auroville Fund, however egregious the present managers become...

But Matrimandir... is only our soul, and it 'belongs' to everybody (what an oxymoron, or rather what an asuric distortion of the soul's truth of Divine Oneness); and so let's call upon every Tom, Dick and Harry's ego, jealousy, envy or hatred to pronounce upon it. The good people, as well as the good within people, will be fully repelled by this exercise – so all is safe... and I guess the organisers are banking upon this fact to get things through...

... This is text-book material: first arrange a petition program, then organise a series of meetings, get the mobs baying for the blood of those "terrible MM team members"; when the soil is churned, a morass of mud and mire, just in time the intelligent ones will step in with a perfectly reasonable proposal to "solve the impasse"... These techniques have been perfected round the world in political action... disinformation, poisoning the well... they even have names!

... Sri Aurobindo... has spoken of the sheer caddishness of human nature, and of the evil at its root.... "

Note: We, the Matrimandir Team, made another attempt to state our position, and published in the AV News the following statement, which we printed directly below a fac-simile of the message the Mother had given to the Matrimandir Workers on 31-10-1972 (the original of this message had been "lost", more likely stolen or destroyed, in the 80s).

An appeal to the Residents of Auroville, by the Matrimandir Workers Team, 28-9-2002:

"31-10-72

Harmony

Good will

Discipline

Truth

I can work with you only if you do not say a lie and are at the service of Truth Mother"

"AN APPEAL

To the residents of Auroville:

We, the Matrimandir Workers Team, reject completely the proposed process of electing the management for Matrimandir. As a precedent for resolving disputes or for creating management groups in Auroville, this process of voting leads to manipulation, politicisation and chaos. A dangerous trend is being started in Auroville of removing and excluding people due to intolerance of differing perceptions and personal dislikes, rather than sincerely attempting to address issues at hand and to resolve them through harmonious dialogue and interaction.

The bid to change the present management in Matrimandir seeks precisely to impose the wishes of a certain faction, rather than sincerely addressing the issue at hand. The true issue at hand is not the management but the need for a clear consensus within all the residents regarding design directions for the completion of the Matrimandir Peace Area – Park/Outer Gardens, Lake, and Inner Gardens – according to the Mother's vision.

A thoroughly researched proposal regarding the entire Peace Area has been presented to the Governing Board and all the residents by Paolo and the Matrimandir Workers Team. We believe it reflects faithfully the Mother's vision of the park and gardens with all their various significances, instead of reducing the gardens to a series of symbolic plots with practically no park. We maintain that the Peace Area should not be designed just as a mere city centre like many others all over the world, but given a special attention so that it reflects the soul of Auroville.

We sincerely hope that the collectivity of Auroville would perceive the truth of these serious issues raised by the Matrimandir Workers Team."

Note: I drafted, soon after, a fairly complete historical of the issue.

This text was circulated on behalf of our team.

Not many of us were left who had been present from the beginning of the construction of Matrimandir, and for the majority of people, the various claims now held forth were rather confusing. There were many too who could not help doubting our motivations, thinking that perhaps, as our detractors were wont to say, we were merely clinging to our seats and using the debate over the physical environment of Matrimandir as a justification to ward off contenders to our cherished positions. This text was prepared as much for the purpose of situating the debate in its historical perspective for those of us who had joined Auroville only later, as for that of attempting to share in the community at large the significance of the issue for the future of Auroville.

"Our position today and the reasons for it. October 3, 2002.

1- Historical background. Part One.

. In 1965, the Mother describes Her vision of a central park, with a pavilion of Truth and Love sheltered in it, to Satprem and to Huta respectively.

. In 1966-67, the Mother agrees to a plan proposed by Roger A, with the Matrimandir as an open lotus surrounded by a medium-sized lake and connected by bridges to the Banyan tree and the guardian's house; around this lake are 12 gardens, the last of which is located near to the Banyan tree; tall trees stand at their outer boundary.

. In December 1969, on Paolo's request through Satprem to begin the construction of a centre, as an axis and a focus for the energies of the Aurovilians, the Mother refers to the above plan and describes it at length.

. Following this conversation, the Mother has the decisive experience of being inside the Inner Room of the Matrimandir, and describes it in great detail, gives its exact measurements and has a drawing made of it by Udar, a disciple engineer. This description She gives both to Satprem and to Paolo together.

. In January 1970, Roger A proposes different shapes for the outer structure of the Matrimandir. However Paolo had the intuition of a sphere emerging from the earth, which Roger A also comes to refer to as the best solution; this is accepted and adopted by the Mother.

. It is then agreed, on Satprem's suggestion, that the construction may start at once even though there is no water available to create a lake around the Matrimandir as yet; it will be done afterwards, when water becomes available (the Mother mentions again the desalination process as the solution).

; The Mother also explains how She has entrusted Narad with the task of creating the entire gardens area.

. Later on, the Mother informs Satprem that Roger A has asked Her to give names to 12 underground rooms that he proposes to build around the sphere. There are no records available of the Mother's agreement, if any, to the changes brought about by the introduction of the 12 petals around the sphere. Yet we have Her written statement, in 1971, confirming that "the gardens are as important as the Matrimandir itself".

. Early 1971, the excavation work begins.

. Early 1972, the foundations of the sphere are cast and actual construction begins. The first trees are planted in the Outer Gardens.

The Amphitheatre is built around the Urn, on Vikas's and Roger A's suggestion. Everyone is working according to a commonly accepted plan of the "Peace Area": the Oval island, which is ten times the size of the Matrimandir in section and contains the Matrimandir and its Petals, the Banyan tree, the Amphitheatre and the 12 Inner Gardens; a water channel all around it, and the Outer Gardens beyond it, where large trees from all over the world are to be planted.

. The 4 pillars and the first slab of the sphere are completed on November 17, 1973, at the exact moment when the Mother's physical heart stops beating.

- Part Two.

. From the late 70s to the late 80s, Roger A is absent from Auroville and Piero is sole in charge of the construction of the Matrimandir.

. In the late 80s, as the triangular beam structure for the double shell of the Matrimandir nears completion, it is agreed to invite Roger A and seek his collaboration in designing both the double shell of the sphere and its immediate environment.

. At the time many Aurovilians, including a number of the Matrimandir Workers, object to Roger A's design of a golden shell surrounded by 12 huge Petals with their underground rooms, finding it artificial, showy, impractical and unnecessary, and requiring too much money and time and, later, maintenance. However no convincing comprehensive alternative is available. (Paolo only prepared one model of the completed sphere with a simple cladding of white triangular marble panels.)

. Roger A presents to the community his modified design: instead of the original pattern, the golden discs now follow the structural pattern of the triangular grid; the 12 petals are reduced in height; there is some greenery around them as grass replaces the red tiles he had earlier wanted.

. In a large community meeting late 1987, through a raised hands vote, Roger A's new design is accepted despite considerable objections.

. Subsequently an attempt is made to encourage active collaboration between Piero and Roger A. Eventually Piero withdraws and decides to concentrate his energies on completing the Inner Room under Paolo's guidance.

. The execution of Roger A's designs requires years of study and research as there is no feasibility report from him; outside engineers and consultants are called in.

; Roger A himself calls in various teams of Aurovilians to execute the discs, the inner skin panels, the Petals; the techniques chosen by him end up proving non durable and unsafe and several lines of experiment and of production must be abandoned.

. In the face of this a mounting opposition is expressed throughout Auroville and many people ask that another design is found at least for the completed sphere, which must be simpler and free from the use of unsafe materials.

. Through further research done by M.B abroad and here on site a new technique is finally developed, tested and found acceptable for the fabrication of the golden discs – despite Roger A's claims that everything was fine. (Continued research is still being pursued for the creation of the inner skin panels.)

. In the early 90s Roger A directed a team work on various options for the Gardens, Lake and Park. The proposal that is then elaborated the most has the lake half inside and half outside the Oval and the Park around it all.

. Finally Roger A comes back to and confirms the working plan that has been guiding everyone on site since the beginning: the Oval island with its 12 gardens and the garden of Unity around the Banyan tree; a 10 to 12 metres wide water channel around the island; a landscaped Park, or Outer Gardens, around that; the whole area, "Peace", extending to a 330 metres radius from the centre.

. Subsequently the exact contouring of the entire Oval Island is precisely defined under Roger A's direct guidance, and executed accordingly.

. In the mid 90s there is a push to try and complete the whole Peace Area – Outer Gardens, Water Body and Inner Gardens - simultaneously with the Matrimandir itself, so that the Matrimandir does not stand as a mere attractive monument but is actually approached through its own true setting and the rich beauty of the environment the Mother had wanted for it. By that time hundreds of big trees have already grown to adult size in parts of the Outer and Inner Gardens.

Unfortunately it becomes evident that Roger A not only favours again his original concept of a bare and limited urban centre, but will oppose anybody who tries to work towards the actual realisation of the environment the Mother has described.

. This essential difference of approaches culminates in 1999.

Roger A's approach, architectural and spectacular of a monumental statement and symbol; and the other approach, held by most at Matrimandir and many others in Auroville at large, of a sanctuary, silent and secluded, within the natural harmony of which, moving "from consciousness to consciousness" among "the most beautiful gardens of the world", one would prepare oneself for the experience of concentration inside the Matrimandir Inner Room.

. In 1999, Harald Kraft and Roger A present a proposal of a huge lake extending from the Oval to the city buildings – taking the place of the Outer Gardens -, which they claim will be the only solution for the water requirements of the city.

Roger A seeks to have this proposal made official and legal by including it in the Master Plan that is to be sanctioned by the Auroville Foundation Governing Board, of which he is a member.

. This marks the beginning of a conflict which has gradually drawn more and more energies into itself, while the community of Auroville has as yet been unable to identify the fair means by which the actual issues could be addressed and their solution be discovered to the satisfaction of all.

. Instead, a nexus of interests and individuals has grouped around Roger A and exerted all available pressures to convince the rest of the community that the only problem is not one of "design" or "approach" but one of ill will from certain individuals at Matrimandir blocking the progress of the work for their own purposes.

. Early 2000, Roger A, with whom Paolo had maintained a cordial contact throughout the years despite their divergence of views, invites Paolo, in a conversation with him, to take up the work of the Gardens, as he himself is "not interested in it".

. Paolo works ceaselessly from that moment until July, 2002, on a concept of the entire Peace Area that can integrate harmoniously both the strong architectural features designed by Roger A and already executed of the Matrimandir and the Petals, within the expanse of natural beauty, treated in the Japanese way, which the Mother has wanted and described at length.

. Paolo's completed study is presented to the community from August 15, 2002 onwards and to the Governing Board on September 21, 2002.

It includes detailed drawings and perspectives of each Inner Garden and reflects accurately the existing situation on the ground, with the adult trees that have been part of the Inner and Outer Gardens all these years.

Along with this study, a total detailed estimate is also presented.

A preliminary assessment of the best methods for constructing, waterproofing and lining the water body has been received from the German Institute of LGA, Nuremberg, the laboratories of which have analysed samples of the soil here.

Directly related to the feasibility of the proposed lake, preliminary reports of the practicality and feasibility of a desalination plant, as a pilot project for the entire area, has also been received and more detailed information is underway.

2- Declaration of Intent.

Numerous conflicts have arisen in relation to the birth, construction and completion of the Matrimandir.

Throughout these conflicts, the guiding and saving grace has always and every time been the will to serve the manifestation of Her stated wishes.

For instance:

. Roger A had not wanted the columns to be erected in the Inner Room; yet the Matrimandir Workers chose to erect them, simply because the Mother had seen them.

. Many people did not want Roger A's design of the discs and petals. Yet the Matrimandir Workers eventually chose to build and construct them as it seemed to be a fact that the Mother had blessed a brochure representing them and as it was certain that She had also named the 12 Petals.

. Now Roger A refuses to work for the realisation of the Matrimandir Gardens and Park as per the Mother's recorded description, nor does he even accept to let others do it who might complement his own contribution as an architect.

Rather, he seeks to impose on the whole area an urban concept that has no relation to the Mother's initiating vision of it.

But now the situation has evolved to the point when we actually have, for the first time, a clear and detailed plan, ready for execution.

This plan has been elaborated by Paolo, to whom the Mother had directly spoken, as recorded in the Agenda.

The work can begin at once and, in our view, must begin at once, for several important reasons.

01. Within the next few months, work on the large Petals, the small petals, and on the landscaping of the Oval, will be complete, and we have a fairly large labour force that must be employed properly and usefully without any break.
02. The realisation of the Inner Gardens, Lake and Outer Gardens in their entirety signifies an enormous amount of work, representing tremendous inputs of energy, dedication and service over several years. This realisation has been delayed for too long, and the Matrimandir must be given its true environment so that its symbol is complete and ready for the full manifestation of the consciousness it stands for.
03. The expectation that was placed on all of us to unite in a true spirit of collaboration has been, in our view, consistently betrayed by Roger A's persistent will to impose his own concept through means that have been less than ethical. In this sense we feel now free to make the choice we must make, of realising Her dream in Matter. And it may well be that, further on, we shall all meet again in the work and find all together the joy that will justify all the labour.

3 – Plan of action.

We will therefore outline here our plan of action.

- A. Finalise all the pathways in the Oval, with their percolation trenches, infrastructural routings and slopes.
- B. Prepare for the excavation of further sections of the lake, moving the soil to the landscaping of the Outer Gardens North and East of the Oval.
- C. Select one or two Inner Gardens with their corresponding elements in the Outer Gardens, lay down their structure and begin their detailing and planting work.
- D. Prepare the ground for a permanent Reception Pavilion at the Western end of the Peace Area.

Regarding the completion of the sphere, inside and outside, as well as that of the Petals, we shall be happy to proceed with all the work as per Roger A's instructions, provided that he respects and accepts the few requests which have been made to allow for better access, safety and maintenance, and to observe the proper use of symbols."

Note: Kusum had become over the years a most cherished member of our team, a mother and an elder sister and a friend; she had lived an exemplary life; a Jain by birth and upbringing, in a very orthodox family of Gujarat, she had run away at the age of 16 to live her life with her beloved; for that she was banned from most of her family and her social set for many years; but her husband and her were soon engaged in the fight for the freedom of the nation from the British Empire. Her husband died, just around the time of the birth of the Indian Republic, of an "accident", when their sons were only small children, and she was then alone, in a new nation, a single mother in a society where widows were still supposed to follow their spouse into death or to at least withdraw from active life altogether. She was already well acquainted with the Gandhians, and went on tours with the Acharya Vinobha Bhave; she became a manager of one of the Khadi concerns, and raised her children single-handedly, put them through college and university, till each of them settled in their chosen life. She had already met the Mother during one of her tours in the South East, in the late 50s, and had vowed to herself that, as soon as she would have fulfilled her parental duties, she would return to the Mother for good. It was only in 1971 that she could do so. The Mother welcomed her. As Kusum still wanted to be able to attend to her grown family now and then, she chose to stay in Auroville rather than in the Ashram, and started living and working in "Promesse", as nursing help; soon, she was given by the Mother the additional, and permanent, charge of looking after the small temple to Sri Ganesh, which the Mother had accepted to care for when the land on which it had earlier been built and dedicated was bought for Auroville.

Kusum was a very fine and very generous person; she was a living example of rectitude, and yet was full of open warmth towards everybody; but she found our situation very painful and was increasingly distressed by the games that were being enacted around the Matrimandir and its destiny, and what it portended for the future of Auroville.

In October, 2002, she decided to publish a first open letter; she first wrote it down in Hindi, and got help for a proper English translation. This letter was posted, sent directly and also published in the Auroville News.

Open letter to the Working Committee and Support Group, on Matrimandir, by Kusum. 23-10-2002:

"Mà.

Dear Working Committee and Support Group.

Generally I offer any intention to write at the feet of the Mother with a flower-filled prayer and an entreaty, 'O Mother, show us the way, as we have strayed!'

I came to know that a few days ago there was a meeting of some residents of Auroville at SAWCHU, where they 'passed' some 'resolutions', although these were changed later to 'proposals'. What strange games are being played: today it's this, tomorrow that, what next we ask?

But now it is absolutely clear to me. It is due to our self-interest alone that we have allowed ourselves to forget the supremely important things the Mother has said about the building of Auroville. Today I wish to say something – that which is clear to my 'drishti' (my view of things). This is particularly with reference to the so-called proposal demanding transfer of Matrimandir money to Auroville Fund:

- 1- The money that people donate or offer ('arpan') to Matrimandir, all of that treasure, must go through the Central Fund, it is said! This is to say, that Matrimandir's money will now have no connection with Matrimandir any more; this is to say also that Matrimandir will have no direct relation with the money that is donated to it, for from now on the entire power should stay with the Central Fund's managers.
- 2- Do you even know or understand with what and with whom is attempted this game that is being played? Matrimandir is not only the Soul of Auroville: 'The Matrimandir wants to be the symbol of the Divine's answer to man's aspiration for perfection. Union with the Divine manifesting in a progressive Human Unity', She said.

- 3- You should know that for all the people of India, the word 'mandir' holds a very deep significance. In their hearts the 'bhava' of 'Bhakti' is always present. From the poorest to the most well-to-do, depending upon their 'Shakti', which may range from one rupee to thousands, all are offered ('arpan') to Matrimandir. And do you even know what 'bhava' is present in their hearts? 'Mà, it is at Your sacred feet that I offer not whole flowers, but mere petals of my offering, for You in Your Grace to accept'. This is their prayer.
- 4- Matrimandir is indeed a totally 'nirala' (interesting, different, unique) Mandir. It is wholly different to what is commonly understood from age-old times. As people come, they read and study and attempt to comprehend what Mother wants behind the creation of this shrine. And then slowly they start to understand and to experience what She has created in this Shrine. Slowly, as they understand what all this means, they begin to give bit by bit to it, always with great joy and great 'shraddha' and 'bhakti'. All this does not happen in a day. Gradually, in each heart is erected the edifice of 'bhava' and 'bhakti'. And people continue to surrender their wealth as a symbolic contribution of themselves. And as they offer it at Mother's feet, this offering creates a wondrous 'adhbhut' (bond) with Matrimandir. Their offering, of all they can give with all their heart, is always surrendered directly at Mother's feet.
- 5- They do not need go-betweens or brokers in this sacred relationship. For indeed, this brokering could cause or result in a great slight, even insult to their feelings and their 'bhavana'. Therefore such a thing SHOULD NOT BE ATTEMPTED. There hardly could be a greater fault or mistake committed than such a thing.

Therefore I say, do not for the sake of self-interest, play such a game with the 'Atman' of Auroville, and with the sacred 'bhavana' of donors who are devotees only of Mother and through Her of Her Shrine, Matrimandir – not necessarily of Auroville. Indeed, I cannot comprehend why people are so obsessed to control the donations given to Matrimandir. For there is indeed no comparable system in Auroville that may match on an equal basis the transparency of the Matrimandir financial system.

Leave then these trivial and trivialising games. Let us leave all these at the feet of Mother.

Let us rather pray together: 'Thy Will be done'.

Note: We did not claim to be perfect, or superior; in fact, we were most acutely aware of our own failings and, even though we were often seen as being arrogant, we shared among us such a very strong sense of ethics that we would not even consider the majority of responses that seemed to be offered to us. We kept making our stand on matters that to us were essential while refusing to even counter even the most ludicrous allegations. In that way, probably, it became easier to dismiss us...

In the same month of October, Deepti too published two papers.

They are reproduced here, as they may well remain relevant for some time...

These two texts were posted and circulated.

What exactly is happening? Text offered by Deepti, October 28, 2002:

'India of the ages is not dead nor has she spoken her last creative word: she lives and has still something to do for herself and the human peoples. And that which must seek now to awaken is not an Anglicised oriental people, docile pupil of the West and doomed to repeat the cycle of the occident's success and failure, but still the ancient immemorable Shakti recovering her deeper self, lifting her head towards the supreme source of light and strength and turning to discover the complete meaning and vaster form of her Dharma.'

Sri Aurobindo.

"Dear Friends,

It is sometimes hard to manage coherent explanations especially when, as is the case with the Matrimandir imbroglio, so many spirals intersect and influence each other. Indian wisdom recognises that a great deal of reflection and discernment in thought is needed to arrive at a Dharmic standard of life and action. For a collectivity, an open dialogue and debate on crucial issues and ideas is essential. Therefore this more deliberate, written note might prove useful to stimulate the much needed 'vichar' and 'viveka' to help clarify thought and further action. As long as collective spaces are used against people to destroy or replace or forcibly put them in their 'right' place little progress can actually take place. When and if the calm required is found and the necessity of seeking a commonality of approach agreed upon – some of these subjects will definitely required to be discussed.

.What exactly is happening?

There are many popular views about the Matrimandir situation. Depending upon one's way of being one may settle for one or another. Broadly, the superficial 'presentations' of the problem express themselves as: that it is merely the supposed 'power trip' of the ex MMCG from whom 'control' must finally be wrested as the time for 'change' has finally arrived; or, it is the hitherto unacknowledged godlike status of the architect which must finally be settled; or, it is two groups endlessly warring with each other while the rest of Auroville's population unfortunately suffers the consequences. Only those who have a lazy mentality can persuade themselves to settle for such silly, mechanical explanations.

Let us have no illusions. The present situation at Matrimandir is one of the most crucial tests before Auroville – one that has the power to reorient its destiny for a long time to come. And it touches almost every aspect of Auroville life: what is the relation of a soul to the body? And depending upon our answer, what is the type of city we want? What is the manner in which a city such as Auroville ought to organise its governance? How should its economics be arranged? The problem of race relations inexorably surfaces in this story, and so does the attitude to the local area. And then there is the question of what should the Dharma of an Aurovilian be. Finally, Matrimandir touches India in a manner that nothing else in Auroville does, and what we do there will have a prime impact upon what happens to Auroville in India and with India. It is as if the Time Spirit is bringing up for review everything that happens in Auroville as also the manner and motivation of its occurrence.

The architect has certainly not considered the vast implications of his action when he has brought in office bearers of the Auroville Foundation to act and interfere with what should have been kept as an internal Auroville Process. He has fundamentally altered the 'rules' of the process! Since the last year, much has accelerated; he and his friends have attempted repeatedly to make the Auroville Foundation 'take action' – of course in his favour! The Auroville Foundation cannot be a tool of some Aurovilians, however sympathetic it might appear at present. It remains always answerable to the Parliament of India. The simple truth is: if today there are persons 'sympathetic' to a particular perspective, tomorrow the opposite could be true. A door has been opened that could have unforeseen consequences for the Auroville Experiment. There is much in Auroville which could suffer ill a deeper scrutiny. Once interference begins it will automatically encompass wider areas – why has no one thought of this?

What are the underlying factors that have permitted all this to come about?

1. A vision of the soul of the 'City at the Service of Truth'.

It seems to me that the most important issue at stake is the vision of the city as Mother conceived it. The city has been gifted a soul to hold in trusteeship for all aspiring humanity. Mother's vision placed the Matrimandir at Auroville's centre as a living and vibrant spiritual symbol, a central and cohesive force with the power to radiate its dynamic peace to all of Auroville and beyond. She never spoke of a mere city centre; She speaks of a spiritual symbol, powerful, active and creative. She had its vision and She described it at length and in a manner that She elaborated for little else in Auroville. It would seem that while the humans were given much freedom to experiment with the city, the spiritual centre was to be Her Vision. And this is as it should be for only She has the Consciousness to give this Centre its universal dimension. She spoke of it as a double symbol: the Divine's response to mankind's (not merely the Aurovilians'!) aspiration for perfection; and also the expression of Auroville's aspiration for the Divine. But it is also in itself 'the symbol of the Universal Mother according to Sri Aurobindo's teaching'. It is in this message that Mother definitively makes every single element of the Peace Area essential to Matrimandir's total truth. It creates the mandala of which one of the crucial presences is the structure that houses the Inner Room. But this sanctum, housed in the Matrimandir structure, in no way downgrades the other elements. On the contrary Mother Herself states that 'the gardens are as important as the Matrimandir itself'. In unmistakable terms, She speaks of Her repeated visions from childhood as She describes the living, pulsating and sublimely beautiful environment She wants around the Matrimandir structure. It will be a golden jewel arising from and housed in a fairytale bower of Nature.

This vision is now sought to be proven 'outdated' by some chronological sleight of hand. Why would anyone want to deprive Auroville of something so unique and precious? Something that will turn its central point into a thing of immense beauty and harmony, capturing the most sublime elements of Mother Nature's genius: flowers, shrubs, rocks, ponds, lake, trees, groves filled with birds. If the Centre loses some of its essentials not much can remain of the truth of the city and its Green Belt. (Already we observe Auroville's physical body beginning to experience all sorts of 'threats'). So what exactly is happening? Why are persons who should be familiar with all of Mother's marvellous work in the domains of material nature not able to recognise that Matrimandir is the place where this work will be perfectly expressed in matter? There is again something to understand here. For there is a psychological stance that can allow one to arrive at the above attitude – and it is rooted in the occident’s cyclic social evolution.

2. Of city centres versus spiritual power sources.

Observing the physical location, the manner of disposition and the purposes of buildings, one can discern the true centre of a city – where is its heart. In even a slightly organised city, nothing ever finds itself placed where it is by mere chance. Each thing and its particular location is a symbol in itself. If you look at today’s western cities, almost always the most important ‘centre’ is the economic (not by chance were the World Trade Centre buildings the tallest in New York, and they were targeted last year precisely because they did symbolise the US’s economic power). Often very close to the economic centre one may find the symbols and sources of military or political might. For these remain the outer symbols by which the West measures its power.

This was not so in medieval times when Western cathedrals were the real city centres and sources of radiating energy. But the European Reformation downgraded such power sources – shifted the energy to ‘secular’ spaces. Humanism and the seeking for rational knowledge progressed through the cycle of triumphant outer sciences to end upon the rocks of Utilitarian philosophy (a philosophy Mother called a ‘disease’ with no place in the Ashram, so antithetical is it to Their Work). Today, after a hundred years of utilitarianism, it is normally the economic and the political/military symbols which represent the power centres of collective life in the West.

India’s temple cities present another picture – the spiritual centre was the true source of life and action. And even in the present day messes which are today’s Indian cities, the spiritual centres remain the sovereign sources of a unique and radiating power. Political and civic authorities hesitate greatly before choosing to intervene in such centres. For all her problems, India always remains open to perennial Truths; she never quite gives herself over to mere outward ways of being.

The differing truth of the East and West must be understood for it holds one major key that may help to explain the present situation around Matrimandir. If one looks deeper, it may also reveal why so many people have appeared to support what is by any standards an inexcusable, adharmic action. One reason certainly is that the dominant force and the dominant manner of action in Auroville yet remains inspired by Western models. India and Indian ways have had little place here in spite of all the pious lip service that is paid to Auroville’s host country.

The question before Auroville is: is the Matrimandir a city centre (as the present Master Plan conceives it), or will it be allowed to be a sovereign soul space?

3. The Town Hall and Matrimandir.

From the time that the architect placed the town hall where he did and (in an overnight commando action) Aurofuture felled the trees to create an ‘unobstructed view’ of the Matrimandir ‘monument’, it has been clear that the final denouement between these opposing Forces was approaching. The recent ‘resolutions’ to transfer Matrimandir's financial control to managers seated in the town hall were an inevitable outcome of this line of development.

This is nothing less than an attempt to reassign the sovereign energy and authority of Auroville's spiritual centre into the hands of economic and civic authorities. It is an attempt to downgrade a vibrant, living and free spiritual presence into a mere tool in the hands of habitual power brokers. It is the Western cycle of social organisation asserting itself – reaching out to snatch control of something that must at all cost remain self-determining for the sheer spiritual well-being of this city. Again this denouement has been a long time in the developing.

One has only to study the town hall (even its architecture), consider what it represents and who will inhabit it. Town halls are generally occupied by 'mushroom groups' – that is, groups which are not rooted in life and action but are rather those that supposedly 'manage' the work and the life of others. Thus they do not often experience the regulating and self-limiting effects of handling a 'piece of matter'.

But Mother conceived of Auroville as a city with no managers – She said 'No army, no police', and She never spoke of a judiciary, nor of legislature. On the contrary, She said 'More committees, more useless talk!'. When asked about organisation, Her answer was that it was a 'discipline in action' and in Auroville we 'aspired to go beyond arbitrary' and ordinary methods and means of organisation. Clearly whatever else She meant, She NEVER recommended that Auroville settle for ordinary structures of self-organisation.

But more and more one observes in Auroville a parody and imitation of outside methods to organise governance in Auroville – of course without the solid checks and balances and/or means and recourses to justice that exist outside! Auroville does not have the ethical, social, moral, religious codes that are tools to regulate the darker side of human beings in ordinary societies. And now one hears bruited the argument justifying these methods – that human nature is ordinary! But indeed, Mother knew that already. She was wiser than the very human Aurovilians! She set targets that were achievable for ordinary humans. She never had illusions about Aurovilians being a super humanity – 'sub humanity' is an adjective She Herself once used to describe residents! So why are so many people so keen to adopt these ordinary ways? Again analysable reasons can be found.

4. Who will inhabit the town hall?

If you look at all the groups and persons who will have 'desks' at the town hall and you also observe the manner in which they function, you can immediately see that together they constitute Auroville's Establishment. These are the 'civil servants' who have controlled, oriented and directed development in Auroville for many years. The structure has worked so smoothly, has kept so many people happy, that it is only when you have occasion to run afoul of it that you notice its aberrations. And often only a certain type of person has cause to 'run afoul'. Therefore it is again only such a person who is likely to recognise how this 'entity' within the collectivity has helped prevent any real change in the three essential psychological domains of Auroville's development – namely its governance, its economics and its education. For years now there has flourished a marvellously symbiotic relationship between many groups and persons. Even when there have been disagreements these have never threatened the fundamental ideological orientation and basic axis of control in Auroville. And because these persons have had this pragmatic unity of purpose, they have constituted an impenetrable bulwark against all movements, proposals or suggestions for a change of approach.

Unfortunately, the Matrimandir, both as a symbol and as embodied in the persons of those who have worked there, has represented a sort of 'impossibility' to this large 'melting pot' of groups. The Matrimandir group has not been allowed to be part of this dispensation. For years the Matrimandir team was kept away from collective representation even though they were responsible for the largest work force and the largest financial system in any single project in Auroville. All this is verifiable and is the reason for the sometimes startling positions/actions that 'public' figures have taken on the Matrimandir issue. This is also at least one reason for the popular success of the disinformation campaign against the Matrimandir team!

5. The Matrimandir situation.

Let us look at some objective facts.

The Auroville financial managers have never considered it necessary to contribute money to the soul of Auroville, not even from the large sums of interest that they have power to administer without any transparent collective process. It is only quite recently that some contribution towards the maintenance of Matrimandir Aurovilians has been started! This is so fundamentally shocking because it materially demonstrates the financial managers' total lack of understanding and concern for the soul of Auroville.

The stark reality is that these people see Matrimandir as a project, whose large money donations they absolutely want to control; they have never understood or accepted the spiritual dimension of this Centre. And even as late as last year they unanimously 'killed' an attempt to create a service unit (the gold tile unit) which would generate some funds within Auroville for Matrimandir. And it is such persons who can justify the present moves under the guise of creating a team to 'complete the Matrimandir as soon as possible'?

It is also such persons who have recently played the worst kind of politics with the unity of Matrimandir. Private accounts have been unilaterally opened as the first step in parcelling out the integrity of the Matrimandir whole into little politicised and warring groups. The protests of the Matrimandir team have been totally ignored; they have not even been granted the courtesy of an open discussion. This ethically questionable action has implications for the autonomy and right of decentralised functioning of working groups.

We have heard slogans such as 'Mother's bank' and 'Auroville's channel' to describe these offices and these accounts. Since when has Mother's bank been modelled upon the Swiss banking system (numbered accounts and no accountability)? This obscurantism has such popular support that few remember the repeated scandals that have occurred over the years because of the lack of rigour in money management. One needs to contrast with this how Mother and Sri Aurobindo (in his early years in Pondichéry) maintained detailed accounts of disbursements.

If the discussion about the Matrimandir Finances continues and an intervention is actually invited through the Auroville Foundation that intervention should justifiably extend to all other financial activities of Auroville.

6. What are the facts about Matrimandir's finances?

The Matrimandir accounts are already an Auroville channel. They are part and parcel of the Auroville Fund group of accounts. The Balance Sheet has always been available with the Financial Services. The CAG audit has always been pleased with the method and maintenance of Matrimandir's financial system. When you consider the number of persons who have scrutinised, searched and studied the Matrimandir financial system year after year, month after month, to find some flaw, some indiscretion, some slight irregularity which could serve to crucify the coordinators, you will quickly realise that Matrimandir does indeed have an excellent system in place! Thus the present proposal to 'shift the cheque book' has to content itself with the singularly pathetic argument: 'it's time for a change'!

The other stark reality is that almost all the donations to build Matrimandir come from outside of Auroville. We could just as easily call the Matrimandir accounts 'Mother's Bank' – after all the money comes from people who really feel they are giving to the Mother Herself and it is used to build Her Vision. Except for the few individuals and units who have understood the deeper necessity of putting financial energy into the building of Matrimandir, most Aurovilians are content only to intervene to claim ownership of Auroville's soul: 'Our place that must be reclaimed from these stupid Indian tourists and the present Matrimandir Team who deserve to be dismissed'!

The move to transfer Matrimandir's 'cheque book' is quite understandable in those who have not accepted the spiritual dimension of Matrimandir. These are also they who refuse to see the writing on the wall – namely that Matrimandir has already outstripped Auroville in the scope and dimension of its influence. As the soul is always much vaster than the body it chooses to inhabit. One sign among many is that almost all of 'official' India (and the rest too) has been flowing like a steady river to touch down upon this great and solid 'reactor' for spiritual change. Mother is working dynamically through Her great symbol upon much more than Auroville. A very eminent Indian recently remarked that 'Matrimandir is the Soul of India'! Such sentiments are to be ignored at peril. The question now is: can Auroville rise to maturity and to its spiritual dimension to hold its soul?

7. Auroville 'Elections'.

This background becomes crucial, especially today as many Aurovilians watch in disbelief Auroville's processes seemingly high jacked for the present and steered inexorably towards 'petitioning', sloganeering, voting and electioneering with all their resultant evils. Now collective meetings 'vote' even upon crucial spiritual questions and almost no voice cries 'Hold! This is not permitted in Auroville'! Auroville apparently slides down a muddy slope towards decisions based upon the mere opinions of those with the loudest voices and the least dharmic standards. Power brokers step in as 'peace makers' only to further confuse, darken or distort, seldom to genuinely lift things up. This method of organising collective life, led to its logical conclusion, could cause a destruction of all the higher truth of Auroville.

This stark choice has been made imperative after the collective descent into the pit demonstrated by the recent meetings about Matrimandir.

But in some ways such a situation was quite predictable. Auroville is about conscious choices at every step of the way. The choice before us is whether this city will be like a hundred other cities following the West's cycle of failures or whether this collectivity will have the courage and the awakened aspiration to choose a spiritual path. And whether people like it or not Auroville is in India because it has the knowledge of the spirit! A conscious choice has become urgent, even imperative in Auroville's civic life, in its governance, and most importantly, in the way it perceives the spiritual centre Mother placed at its core, not just as a symbol for Auroville itself, but as a symbol of all mankind's aspiration for the Divine. Mother has already created the domains of consciousness; these await their hour, for they require a satisfactory life mass to manifest. Auroville could be today outwardly what it is inwardly – a creation of harmony. Or it could descend into the opposite reality!

And it is precisely this opposite reality that has been demonstrated by the current round of meetings organised about Matrimandir. In fact these meetings are a text book case of how not to deal with a problem! (And if analysed as such they might still be made to serve some future purpose). But the force that has expressed itself in them can be transmuted only if another force, another way of being asserts its supremacy. It is significant to note that the meetings could NEVER have come to such a pass if the organising structures of Auroville had not only actively legitimised them but, till quite recently, tacitly encouraged the brutality they manifested. This brutality remains still unaddressed whatever euphemistic twist or justification is used to describe it.

We remain destined to such a Western cycle of development also because of the bleak truth that the Indian way has not yet asserted itself with enough purity and surety. There is not yet the critical mass that could bring the needed change. Indians remain excellent followers – they seem still so burdened by their colonial past!

8. To find a true individual position: to make it an active power for change.

Auroville's sole protection now is that it rises to a higher status where another sort of security can prevail. It should not have to endlessly circle in inane, darkly aggressive, ignorant cycles of collective behaviour. There ought to be acceleration. But this acceleration can come only if people inform themselves, develop the individuality to stand for dharmic 'rightness' even at personal cost, give birth to a sufficiently large collectivity of awakened individuals. We talk of brotherhood, but words without matching actions are mere mouthings. Brotherhood can be born only in conscious soul spaces. Unless we think deeply, unless we live widely and generously, this cannot be developed. Brotherhood is a priesthood, an austere discipline. Will, character, self-discipline and self-mastery are the backbone of Dharma. There can be NO sanction for a certain type of behaviour: brotherhood, with its spiritual laws, necessarily VANISHES the moment we 'go after' someone, for then remain merely destructive laws from the vital plane (the laws of Kali and Rudra)! 'No real peace can be till the heart of man deserves peace...'

This then is a first view of some of the issues which I offer at the feet of the soul of India; the soul of Auroville, the ancient immemorable Shakti who must discover herself in Auroville.

Deepti"

On Matrimandir and the play of forces. Text offered by Deepti, October 30, 2002:

"Our first necessity, if India is to survive and do her appointed work in the world, is that the youth of India should learn to think, - to think on all subjects, to think independently, fruitfully, going to the heart of things, not stopped by their surface, free of prejudgements, shearing sophism and prejudice asunder as with a sharp sword, smiting down obscurantism of all kinds as with the mace of Bhima."

Sri Aurobindo.

. The Play of Forces.

When Mother first launched the manifestation of Auroville, all the forces in the world that oppose the divine action must have arisen to prevent its coming down. From the beginning of Auroville, these contradictory forces have been in action. Unfortunately, the forces opposing Mother's work found much fertile ground in all Her human instruments, as any one who approaches the Agenda with some insight will observe.

She had arranged the circumstances for something that was to be a 'creation of harmony', but the sole condition She demanded of Her human instruments – the heroism of agreement – was never given to Her. This fundamental lack of unity crystallised after Her physical departure into the SAS imbroglio with terrible consequences for Auroville – consequences of which the present struggle around Matrimandir is a continuing manifestation. The human refusal to be in the safe inner domains of union opened the door to an inrush of vital forces: power struggles, contradictory assertions of the rights of control, mutual devouring and destruction. Instead of the laws of harmony, the laws of division become predominant.

Every single human being big or small who has been connected with Auroville has been a channel for one or other of these forces – the force of unity or the force of division. Higher forces can manifest only through one who is irrevocably centred around the psychic personality. NOBODY fulfilled this basic condition and so mostly it has been the lower vital forces which found vast scope.

Her remark that Auroville would be built in 20 years was wiped away from Auroville's present destiny and the fledgling experiment was plunged into a vortex of division.

. The Auroville Partition.

While Mother meant Auroville to be a creation of harmony, the problem of disunion was cast as if in stone when the 'divorce' from the Sri Aurobindo Society was made permanent. Today we are lectured ad nauseam about the persons Mother 'appointed'. But those thrown out were also persons Mother appointed. And they were ruthlessly removed from all contact with Auroville. It is held that they wanted to possess Auroville – and this was a prime error. But EVERY SINGLE 'mistake' the SAS made, every manipulation, every power game, every use of legal means is being repeated by currently upheld 'appointees'.

Sri Aurobindo speaks of one law of the universe – when and if you conquer something, beware: for the spirit of that which you have conquered may actually conquer you! Thus, those who 'removed' the SAS for the 'ills' it represented have themselves become the permanent representatives and repositories of those ills!

Today this force, reaching out for control and possession, is clearly active and visible. It hides behind arguments of sacred, divinely ordained appointments; and if that does not work it puts forward arguments of power trips; and if even that does not work, it is the argument of 'reclaiming' Matrimandir for Auroville. As if spiritual force ever needs belligerent political manoeuvring to assert itself! Those who dare point to the crass, subliminal political game are immediately dubbed dark forces – or the unsuspecting followers and channels of dark forces! They must be purged for their own good. And who would want the label of standing up for dark forces – all but the bravest scurry for cover before such an accusation!

This Great Possessor force and its bullies upon the ground want to 'seize' Auroville in the same manner as the SAS did; even if they use the arguments of the Abrahamic religions. It is for this reason there is such a no-holds barred vicious campaign against the Matrimandir group and anyone else who dares speak in its favour. The little David with slingshot full of honest work must confront the great and armoured Goliath of the united Empire holders who are the 'keepers of the truth' of Auroville.

. To cut to the chase!

We should not allow ourselves to be distracted – the issue is not about recognition of a 'divinely chosen or appointed' person: the issue is who or what will control Auroville's destiny, its money, its governance and, most of all, its Soul at the Centre. There is a great deal of personal ambition in the main attackers. Already there are those in the 'entourage' who are there simply because they see themselves as the next Pope. Auroville and Matrimandir remains for some that irresistible Eden, that forbidden fruit, which all such egoistic forces want to occupy, to possess or to devour. And the present rounds of actions around the Soul are merely the first step in a process that could establish for a long time this control, this power dispensation.

Therefore it has the power to distort for a long period the future of Auroville; unless a Grace intervenes!

. The continued fallout of Auroville's political past.

It is also a strange illusion and distortion of a deeper truth when people imply that the dark forces are always in the 'other'. This often translates when history is analysed as the position that the SAS was false or dark or wrong and the Aurovilians were true and right. And today around the Matrimandir situation this antediluvian ideology continues on track wanting to remove the 'dark' elements. It is somewhat embarrassing that intelligent people can propound arguments such as these (as though they were spiritual kindergarteners) – or perhaps it is merely because they too want a piece of the cake. A cake which might just be made available if pieces of the Matrimandir are parcelled out as a reward to all those who contributed to the destruction of the present team!

To a mind centred upon the Indian way of being, all such behaviour is so incomprehensible that it finds itself slow to react to the danger. But the danger must not be minimised. It is the turbid ghost of Europe's past. The dark ominous shadow of all the crucifixions, burnings, hangings and drownings practiced upon thousands of witches and other so-called 'dark blasphemers against the One Truth'. Europe's long history of devouring its best: the supra social spiritual beings, the redeemers and liberators (Jesus, Socrates, Jeanne d'Arc) is a permanent blot upon human history. And always the tool and method used was the mock trial, the sham judicial process. And hundreds of independent minded beings were happily got rid of by this simple expedient. The legal veil, the Christian cloak, invariably disguised its proponents' egoistic self-aggrandising impulses.

It is so depressing that such wide room is found in Auroville for this obsolete force's action.

. The Bystander's dilemma.

Finally, a word about those who claim not to 'take positions' because they are supposedly 'above' things: in a situation of generalised strife such as has been created at Matrimandir, there are seldom really neutral positions. Little do people recognise but their every action or their inaction, based mostly upon their biases, preferences or mere indolence, contributes to the situation's movement up towards the light or in the other direction.

History can give a salutary lesson in this regard. The Nazi killing machine could not have flourished so smoothly if so many nameless civil servants had not kept the system in such well oiled working order: the cattle trains, the station masters, the hundred and one desk clerks who merely did their job. Or take the German judicial system which for love of the Vaterland signed orders of sterilisation and dispossession, and sent hundreds of innocents to concentration camps. Without the abetment of a mass, no large scale harm can be practiced, and yet the twentieth century can be dubbed the century of Genocide. It is not the men who wielded the knife, the gas tap or the pistol who alone made it possible – it was the hundred and one bystanders and quiet workers who stood aside and allowed this force to rampage freely over the earth!

Therefore it is necessary to act and the only safe action is one that arises from a consciously discovered inner place that is constantly guided by Mother's Force. In a time such as this there is no such thing as an innocent bystander!

Deepti"

Note: One of the weapons most used to bluntly disregard or invalidate our stand consisted of the most basic or primitive tactic: if Kusum spoke up, it was merely as a pawn, as she had been caught in our web; if Deepti spoke up, rather than having to respond to any of the lucid points she raised, her entire person was dismissed as being under my influence; in the same fashion, many an attempt was made at "saving" Arjun from my clutches. What became in fact the main obstacle to the campaign seeking our removal was the solidarity that flowed between us, through all these years of attacks, aspersions and calumnies.

I had to travel to France again in November, to be with C, and with F.J and Ch.J, and with Auragni.

While I was away, Kusum wrote to the Governing Board members, in her personal capacity (she had already taken a public stand, speaking up openly in the presence of the entire Governing Board and many Aurovilians in their last meeting in Auroville, late September). This is her letter:

On Matrimandir, to the Members of the Governing Board, from Kusum Shah, November 11, 2002:

"Sadar Pranam,

Before I say anything else perhaps it is necessary for me to introduce myself. I am Kusum Shah. In my youth, during the Independence Movement, I was able to serve Bharat Mata as a freedom fighter. I am also proud to be the widow of a brave warrior of this country who was jailed during the struggle for Independence, in Gujarat.

India became free. Years passed, and on my own spiritual quest, I arrived in Pondichéry in 1970. From then till now I have been a member of Auroville. Seen in this manner, I am not only a senior citizen of India, but also a senior citizen of Auroville. In Auroville, Mother had given me the task of taking care of the temple of Sri Ganesh that formed part of one of the first pieces of land bought by Her for Auroville. Though born a Jain, Mother made me the Pujarin of this temple of Auroville Sri Ganesh and enjoined me to conduct without fail the daily prayer in a manner I saw fit. This responsibility I have carried out since 1972. I do not know if you are aware of this unique Auroville Ganesh Mandir, I would like to invite you to visit it when you are here next.

I am also a member of the Matrimandir Workers Team. My responsibilities include the reception, information and liaison work connected with receiving hundreds of visitors and donors who come to Matrimandir every day. I also do fund-raising for Matrimandir when necessary.

With this background I would now like to draw your attention very strongly to some events that are unfolding with great rapidity in Auroville. Since more than a year a group of Aurovilians are demanding 'change and replacement' at Matrimandir. This movement began after the Governing Board decided, during its meeting in August 2001, on the insistence of its Auroville member, Roger Anger, to refer the issue to the Residents Assembly of Auroville.

I am deeply offended and distressed at the way this matter has been conducted so far. I have never seen such behaviour in Auroville. This is why I feel constrained to write to you. The simple truth is that the ONLY person who has consistently refused dialogue is Shri Roger Anger. Rather than acknowledging this basic fact, the target has been turned into persons working at Matrimandir for many years, and the movement for their 'change and replacement' is being organised through a very dubious and dark process which overrides the protests of many persons in Auroville. This demand is aimed at people in Matrimandir who have given all their shakti, loyalty, honesty and sincerity and have worked with a deep sense of Bhakti and surrender for years together. You may remember that in the recent Governing Board meeting of 21st September at Matrimandir, I had declared that than such shocking treatment, we should be welcoming and honouring the great dedication they have demonstrated.

In the present movement, the major objective is the takeover of the financial management of Matrimandir. The attempt is to snatch away the 'cheque book' from the hands of the person who is presently coordinating the work, Arjun, and to transfer this control to managers of the Central Fund. The second target is the coordination of the Work Force which is presently in the hands of Divakar and Somu. The whole conspiracy is being played out to give Roger and Frederick absolute control at Matrimandir. If the control of the money and the workers can come into the hands of Roger, Frederick and their group, then they can do what they wish to at Matrimandir.

This action was given a great impetus, through the Auroville Foundation. How? I do not know if you are aware of this, but the entire movement has had the publicly affirmed encouragement and support of the Chairman of the Auroville Foundation. He still continues to give guidance to Frederick, his main reference point in Auroville. The Chairman has also announced repeatedly in many Auroville meetings his deep devotion to Roger (I worry now that what began as 'follow Roger' might soon become 'follow Frederick!') I wonder to what point this singular devotion to Roger, now also demanded from members of Auroville, will take us?

All this is taking Auroville very far from the goal of Brotherhood. In the name of creating an organisation for Auroville, groupisme has been hardened into a completely rigid political reality. Collective meetings have been taken over by a small group led by Frederick, the main representative of Roger's faction. This group is not prepared to allow any questioning of Roger's absolute status. They claim that they have both majority and governmental backing. Collecting votes, petitioning and sloganeering are very far from what we came here to do. There can be only one truth in Auroville; 'Follow Mother'!

I am writing to you because I am deeply saddened and disturbed at what is being done to the soul of Auroville. You bear some responsibility because it was your reference last year that started this. It is now you who can remind Auroville of the path it should take in consonance with its basic aims; it is you again, as elders, guides and true friends of Auroville, who can, with the Grace of the Mother, help us out of this darkness. Can we not find a way to change the 'follow Roger' back to 'Follow Mother'?

Yours,
Kusum Shah"

Note: Two members of the Governing Board replied to Kusum. The first reply to reach Kusum was written by Jyoti Madhok. Jyoti was Arjun's eldest sister.

Our situation was quite intricate: both Deepti and Arjun had personally known Kireet Joshi, the Chairman, for many years, and met often with him in Delhi – Kireet had been largely instrumental in creating the text of the Bill of Parliament that had caused the Auroville Foundation to exist; they had a high regard for him and he had acquired an elevated stature in their psyches, until they saw and understood his ruthlessness, through his actions in Auroville.

Jyoti had also known Kireet for all these years; although she visited Auroville frequently in her personal capacity, she had remained based in Delhi, where she often was able to assist Auroville as an informal ambassadress with the Government authorities. When Kireet had at last been given the post of Chairman of the Auroville Foundation, he requested her to become a member. Jyoti, an aristocrat in all the senses of the term, with very high ethical standards, was also very devoted to Kireet and regarded him rather like a guru. On the other hand she was extremely attached to Arjun, having somewhat raised him after the passing of their mother when Arjun was still a small child. This attachment was mutual. Being formally appointed as a member of the Governing Board meant, to Jyoti's mind, that she must not yield her judgement to this attachment, and must not give any cause to anyone to doubt her impartiality. This principle of action she took very far, and was helped in that by her unconditional reverence to Kireet Joshi.

This was her reply:

To Smt. Kusum Shah, from Jyoti Madhok, New Delhi, November 18, 2002:

"Dear Kusumben,

It is true that the problem concerning Matrimandir has caused considerable anguish to us all and I realise only too well how imperative it is that a true and harmonious solution is found at the earliest.

In response to your letter, I would like to say that the Chairman of the Governing Board of Auroville Foundation, Kireetbhai, is someone whose commitment to the Mother and Sri Aurobindo is to my mind unquestionable. His whole life bears ample testimony to this fact and has been devoted entirely to the realisation of Their Ideals.

That he has worked for Auroville unceasingly for many years with only one aim, that of the highest welfare of Auroville, is something acknowledged by a number of Aurovilians and others I all echelons of the country. That 'the Mother gives work and not authority' finds visible expression in his method and approach to his own work, which involves numbers of people. Personally, I can tell you that he has stressed many times that he is against the exclusion of anyone. Therefore, I think that a more correct and a deeper understanding of Kireetbhai's words is called for.

I would like to add that cynicism and mistrust have to give way to understanding and goodwill. It is the first requisite for moving towards agreement, collaboration and a progressive harmony. We all have to make a great effort to overcome the obstacles that stand in the way of arriving at true Brotherhood. With the Mother's Grace all is possible.

Best wishes and regards,

Sincerely yours,

Jyoti"

Note: The second reply to Kusum was written by another member of the Governing Board, Dr Subhash Kashyap, a very eminent jurist, and a constitutional expert universally respected in the country, whose advice was frequently sought by the highest office bearers. Dr Subhash Kashyap had a high sense of fairness and justice and was a very gentle and precise person, with a great capacity for assessing the crux of any situation. He at one point volunteered to try and obtain an acceptable and meaningful compromise, or agreement, over the issue of the Park and Lake, between Roger A and our team. We had much respect for him and were comfortable with him all through. We wholeheartedly agreed to a solution that, we felt, would help manifest the truths of both approaches in a harmonious material creation; the lake would be increased in size to the East of Matrimandir, to reach almost to the city, while the Park would spread on all three other directions. Subhash Kashyap got Roger A's agreement to this solution, and we believed for a while that the way was opened. However, Roger A soon reneged on this agreement, saying that it had not been properly explained to him. Later on, Subhash Kashyap decided to resign from the Governing Board, along with another member, Smt Mirra Srivastav. Dr Subhash Kashyap had been often associated with Kireet in Delhi and they were close friends. He was therefore in a difficult position and would not publicly disagree with Kireet. Yet he would not abide with the lack of ethical standards that were displayed.

This was his reply:

To Mrs Kusum Shah, from Dr Subhash Kashyap, New Delhi, November 25, 2002:

"Dear Mrs Shah,

Thank you for your letter of 11 November 2002. Please forgive me the late response. I have been travelling or neck-deep meeting deadlines in several commitments foolishly made.

It is due to the sacrifices of freedom fighters like you and your husband that the country is breathing in freedom for the last half century plus. I am tempted to add that I also come from a family of freedom fighters and am proud to have been an humble 12 year old boy fighter in the 1942 Quit India Movement.

I would love to visit the Ganesh Mandir if and when I visit Auroville next. Also it would be my pleasure to meet you and talk about matters of interest to all of us.

I am deeply distressed at the unnecessary and unbecoming controversies that have cropped up at Auroville. But I am sure these would pass away and we would see more sublime dawns. The night is said to be the darkest immediately before the dawn.

I believe, Aurovilians know only too well the categorical imperatives of working together, in unity and harmony; they value freedom and can settle their matters themselves without any outside interference.

I cannot reconcile myself to the existence of any factions at Auroville. I would like to believe that there are none. Those who strongly disagree with each other at Auroville, I believe, are all devoted to the Mother and Her words. I wish they try to think what Mother would have advised them. Let them follow the Mother's voice and stand by their conscience and the inner voice. I am sure it would be for all to work together.

May I add that I see nothing wrong in our agreeing to try to 'follow', i.e. 'to understand' what each one of our colleagues may have to say. If we care to look up any English dictionary, we would find that 'follow' does not always mean 'obey', 'walk behind' or 'become a blind follower'. 'Follow' is also often used in the sense of 'understand' e.g. when I ask: 'Do you follow what I say?'

I must say, I have the highest regards for Dr Kireet Joshi and the fullest faith in his leadership. His life is a saga of sacrifice and selfless service. He is an erudite scholar and sincere and devout devotee of the Mother and Her path. He has no personal axe to grind. It saddens me to see accusing fingers raised even at him. It is a great disservice to Auroville to drag Dr Joshi's name into any controversy. He should be seen as above all mundane controversies and above all factions, if there are any. If a saintly and selfless person like him can be so misunderstood, of all places at Auroville, I do not see why I can continue to be associated with all this.

I cannot somehow accept that at Auroville and at its soul, the Matrimandir, any of the followers of the Mother would be fighting over the control of cheque books, money and the like.

To the best of my knowledge, the Auroville Foundation has tried to function as a facilitator and not to interfere with the life and work of the Aurovilians. It is in that spirit that it wanted them (the residents) to deliberate upon and themselves settle matters regarding Matrimandir. I do not think the Foundation would or should like to impose its views on the residents in matters which are not strictly germane to its domain under the statute. I am a little surprised at anybody finding fault with the Foundation honouring the freedom and the right of Aurovilians to decide their own matters themselves.

I must add that I have the greatest regards and love for all those who have been working for the Matrimandir. All – Roger, Divakar, Walter, Arjun, Frederick, yourself, Somu and others – are some of the most honourable and lovable persons. I have found all of them to be very reasonable and understanding and equally devoted to the Mother and Her Vision. All of these names have my fullest faith and confidence and I am sure all will work together in unity and harmony in the cause of the Divine and no one would try to oust the other from the Mother's path and service.

Since some other friends have also written to me and I am not in a position to reply to all separately, I am taking the liberty to send copies of this letter to them.

Warm regards,

Sincerely,

Subhash C. Kashyap.

Copies to Serge Brelín, Smt Jyoti Madhok, Shri Kireet Joshi, Christine Devin.”

Note: The above letter, written by Subhash Kashyap and sent to the names listed above, was actually an offering: Dr Subhash Kashyap was suggesting the clear line of action and position that ought to be taken by all concerned, in order to come out of the impasse and save face at the same time. But no one picked it up. And thus the drama unrolled to its logical conclusion, exclusion being the price of a showcase harmony. In the process, even Kireet was expelled, as a Chairman.

Note: While I was away, I too wrote a note, which I sent to be posted in the Auroville Intranet, through U.B.

For the lovers of the Mother, regarding the Matrimandir and its sanctuary, written by Divakar, November 2002:

“I. It is perfectly clear, from all the available records, that the Mother has seen as the centre of Her city a large area, secluded and silent, which would manifest the psychic and spiritual core, or foundation, of the whole work to be done. Do we realise both the essential and the dynamic significance of this, Her vision and Her wish?

II. It is perfectly clear from the Mother’s and Sri Aurobindo’s teachings that in our individual and collective work of accelerated evolution towards the new, egoless species, our central guide, reference and source of strength must be Her Shakti, Her Consciousness Force. Do we realise the importance and power of dedicating, at the centre of our lives, an entire and complete site?

III. It is perfectly clear from all of the Mother’s recorded statements, comments, messages and answers that the work to be done requires at its base an integrality of self-giving, a centeredness of all nature around the psychic presence, the offering of calm, of beauty, of harmony. Do we realise the creative force of manifesting such a place in the physical world?

IV. It is perfectly clear to anyone who has tried that, in order to establish a conscious atmosphere in the physical and material plane, a boundary must be defined within which the concentration of force must take place. The Mother has clearly indicated the extent of this boundary and the main elements that must combine in the physical world in order to manifest that central atmosphere. Do we realise and appreciate the value of Her indications?

V. It is perfectly clear from the importance the Mother has attached to Beauty in the physical, through Her naming flowers and plants, and Her statements of experiences with Nature, that She considers material Nature in its offering to the Supreme a true channel for Her Force.

Do we realise the importance of providing Her with this channel of manifestation, in the site that is dedicated to Her?

VI. It is perfectly clear from all of mankind's known history that there has never yet been such a place, at the centre of collective life, where each person would be free at any time to enter and open oneself, concentrate within, sheltered in a field of conscious Force, that of the Supreme – beyond any exclusive power of religion, government and human authority.

Do we realise the momentous significance in today's world of manifesting such a possibility?

VII. It is perfectly clear from all of the Mother's and Sri Aurobindo's guidance that collaboration of all energies, in the individual as well as in the collectivity, is a condition for the passage to a truer and more conscious status upon earth. As regards the Matrimandir and its area, the Mother has specifically stated that by uniting our energies around it, the force of cohesion of Auroville would manifest.

Do we realise the importance of this collaboration?"

Note: For about two years I had been part of the then called "Representatives Group"; some level of balanced and mutually respectful communication had been established with a few people through that collective experiment; one of these people was Janet F. Upon my return from France, after three weeks of absence, I learned that she had been selected as one of the members of the new Auroville Council. I thought that our line of communication would still allow for me to try to express quietly a few points as regards the Matrimandir, and to be heard.

I wrote to her:

To Janet of the Auroville Council, regarding the Matrimandir, from Divakar, November 23, 2002:

"Janet,
Greetings.

There is at least one development I can be happy about: that, for the first time, an actual Auroville Council has at last been agreed upon, which includes the Working Committee; a notion which, you will remember, I used to promote at every chance! And that you are part of it in its first trial is only fitting; it also means that you are now feeling better in general!

I wish you all the clarity you will need.

I was out for three weeks for family matters and have just returned. I am told that, regarding the Matrimandir, a plan is being conceived for a general meeting to be devoted to 'open discussion' at the beginning of next month.

I have also heard of a proposal to form a group composed of 2 'from that side', 2 'from this side' and 3 'from no side'...

I would like here to try and clarify some basics, in preparation for the possibility of a meaningful step towards the sharing of a common direction and the commitment to it.

. There is a harmful misunderstanding which has become habitual – that of approaching the present difficulty as the result of a conflict between two groups holding mutually opposing views or striving to impose mutually exclusive designs. It is essential that we come out of this rut.

The reality is very different.

- 1) Our first question has been all along: how is it that Roger's plan for the Matrimandir/Peace area bears so little relation to the several recorded descriptions made by the Mother?
- 2) Had the Mother's expression of Her dream been such that Roger's concept would reflect it, we would have no objection whatsoever to follow its main lines, in principle.
- 3) The fact is that over the last 31 years, many individuals who may or may not be present here today, such as Narad whom the Mother instructed directly, have actively worked towards the realisation of a complete environment for the Matrimandir, which was perceived and felt to be 'as important as the Matrimandir itself', and have inwardly grown with it.

Our position is that Roger's continued attempt to dismiss, ignore or negate this fact is far too exclusive and arbitrary, and that his claim that his concept is the Mother's is untenable.

Out of this difficulty emerge several questions of a different nature.

- 1) Roger's role as the architect of Auroville is by definition limited. It must be actualised in complementarity with all other roles and functions. And, particularly as regards the Matrimandir and its sanctuary, all the necessary roles and functions must, in collaboration, seek to realise Her dream and Her wish. How do we, as a community, respond to any particular role wanting to assert itself to the detriment of the whole?
- 2) The Mother's description of the central site of this, Sri Aurobindo's and Her city, implies and contains and manifests a quality of collective centeredness, concentration and reference, an integrality of experience radiating outwards, which are of formidable import for all other activities. Roger's concept of a monumental, barren, forceful focus is partial, and exclusive as all partial truths tend to be, and is bound to affect all collective activities with the very same character of partiality and exclusiveness. Can we, as a community today, be mature enough to choose integrality over exclusiveness?
- 3) Each one's service to the Mother is as valuable and as respectable as Roger's service to the Mother. Can we, as a community, reach this state today wherein each one's service is actually respected and allowed to complement the others?
- 4) Auroville's essential dimensions reach way beyond the existence of a mere 'community'. Their universal relevance is most concrete and the most securely expressed in its 'Soul', the Matrimandir and its sanctuary. Can we, as a community, enable ourselves to become its actual servitors, recognising thus both the privilege and the duty inherent to our commitment, rather than insisting on our 'rights'?

There is a vast difference between a process of negotiation between two warring parties, and an actual, genuine dialogue, or 'multilogue' shared by seekers and researchers who all aspire to find the way together at the service of a new condition of being and a new consciousness, of an integral progress and evolution.

'Dialogue' between Roger and Paolo, between Roger and Piero, between Roger and the MMCG – to give only these few examples – has failed.

This failure was manifest in the Mother's very physical presence; it is manifest today.

It is our understanding that what has been missing all along, and what it is crucial to find today, is a true collective awareness and its capacity to open to integrating choices rather than to reductive, exclusive and fragmenting ones; its capacity to hold a space wherein all apparent contradictions can be resolved by letting all seemingly contrary elements find their secure and enriched expressions.

This briefly sums up the clarifications I wish to contribute to any positive and genuine effort that may come from the present Auroville Council's shared concern towards a creative resolution.

I forget now who the other members of this Council are, but for a few names. With Ulli I have already communicated a little.

I hope you will find the above somewhat useful.

With my regards,

Divakar"

Note: In December, Kusum wrote a note of thanks in acknowledgment of Dr Subhash Kashyap's words to her:

To Dr Subhash Kashyap, from Kusum Shah, 12-12-2002:

"Respected Dr Subhash Kashyapaj,
Pranam with regards.

Thank you for your e-mail.

I like to stress the word 'follow'.

It would be a great relief to me and, I am sure, to everyone in Auroville, that the Chairman himself confirm in his own words the significance you are suggesting for the term 'follow' as used by him in public meetings; for, if it does, as you say, signify 'to understand deeply what each of us may have to say', then this discipline may be of very valuable use in order to reach a harmonious, inclusive and progressive resolution.

With warm regards,

Kusum Shah.

- 2003 -

Note: In October of that year, 2003, Arjun and I were officially dismissed, that is, the Central Government was made to issue, through the Secretary of the Auroville Foundation, who followed instructions given him by the Chairman and the Architect, official written orders appointing other Aurovilians in our place, and naming them Executives. This was the first time in the history of Auroville that Aurovilians were appointed to a particular position and function by any outside organisation, let alone by the Government of India.

Up until that day, we each continued holding our respective responsibilities, and working on site as usual, the whole day long and day after day. Personally, I never, till the last moment, believed that such a thing could and would happen between Aurovilians.

In terms of work fulfilment, the situation we were in was stifling, and I remained there and present for two main reasons: in solidarity with Arjun, and out of a sense of responsibility for the 200 or so workers who had been with us for quite some time. I felt I belonged to Matrimandir, no matter what, but I also was fast losing interest in the general direction taken by people in Auroville, and it was increasingly obvious that we were not finding much support in this community, and that very few people even understood the difference between the orientation promoted by the "Chief Architect" and the one that we had tried to serve, although many people had really liked Paolo's proposal, and it had actually drawn more positive comments than Roger A's model had.

I once typed and posted a few basic questions, openly addressed to Roger A:

Questions to R. January 2003:

". How do you explain the obvious contradiction between:

- Your architectural/sculptural concept of a city centre and
- The Mother's concept of a secluded sanctuary dedicated to silence and concentration, vibrant and filled with living harmonies, at the heart of the collective/city?

. How do you intend to honour the terms and spirit of Her dream as She first described it in 1965 and later in 1969/70?

. How do you justify the decision taken by you to destroy the results of 30 years of work in the Matrimandir Gardens and at the Matrimandir Nursery, when this work was consistent with a working-plan which you had yourself confirmed after your return to Auroville in the late 1980s?

. How do you suggest that Aurovilians relate to you as regards decisions that concern them all?

. How do you suggest that Aurovilians should approach the Mother's Shrine and serve it in relation to the rest of the world?"

Note: In February, 2003, Roger A felt buoyed enough to publish a statement of his position and of the conditions he set for the realisation of the "Gardens", it being understood that the area referred to from now on was the oval island, and that the Park had simply ceased to exist – it was no longer part of any "official" plan: either it would be drowned into a vast and huge lake or, at any rate, it would be gradually absorbed by the city buildings. These conditions were also his justification for dismissing out of hand the entire work done by Paolo, terming it as a betrayal. Here is the statement published by Roger A, followed by significant excerpts of the "Proposal" he presented to the community for the realisation of the "Gardens":

Roger A's statement on Matrimandir, 7th February 2003:

"In the view of my certitude of the realization of Mother's Auroville, today, after so many years, I have come to the point of no return. For this reason, I would like to state my position regarding certain situations in Auroville, in which I no longer want to participate.

. I no longer want the Matrimandir plans, already completed by 90%, to be used as a tool for political manipulations.

. I no longer want Mother's words to be misused. Her directions cannot be interpreted.

. I no longer want us to forget Mother's protection against disasters or catastrophes.

What I want is simple:

I would like to be able to finish the work that has been given to me by the Mother. I don't have any other ambition, but to aspire for a proper solution towards a luminescent future.

I make a call to each Aurovilian to come forward and help in the completion of Matrimandir.

Roger Anger."

Excerpts from Roger A's proposal for the realisation of the Matrimandir Gardens, February 2003:

"... The proposal is based on three principles that will facilitate constant research towards greater perfection:

- a) Respect for the overall layout: the twelve gardens as a whole are an integral part of the general initial plan of Auroville. Each of them is inserted into a space created by the land movements around Matrimandir. Therefore the layout and form is already fixed in the master plan and will not be modified. The content and theme of each garden as a symbol to be expressed should evolve through successive experiments aiming at the perfection that Mother had wanted.
- b) Flexibility/Mobility: the design of the gardens will evolve from an initial prototype to progressive realisations. This will facilitate modifications without demolition. Plants and flowers coming from the nursery in containers will be moved or replaced according to the evolution of the concept of the garden. The principle of 'mobility' demands a production of plants and flowers in containers, which are different for each garden. It will make possible an ever evolving decoration. The obligation to assure year-round presence of flowers in all the gardens will require a constant renewal of the flowers. The necessity of a regular production will demand good planning from the Nursery.
- c) Collective or impersonal realisation: the realisation of the gardens should have an 'impersonal' character. This will imply from the designers the acceptation to participate in a collective work with a small team chosen by them. Each garden is a work in progress and becomes the creation of a team. Nobody will claim the ownership of a concept.

... Specifications to be followed by the participants:

- Each one of the twelve gardens is to express a state of consciousness as given by Mother. It will include the flowers designated by her.
- The gardens have to be placed in the spaces and with the forms described in the Master Plan. Overall landscape and contour levels cannot be modified. They have been planned as a whole.
- The water and electricity connections will not be modified without a serious justification.
- The height of the trees and the bushes will have to respect the allotted openings allowing interesting perspectives.
- The unity among the gardens will be looked for through the choice of materials, the harmonious selection of colours, etc.
- The works involved in the realization of the gardens will have to be done keeping in mind the respect for the cleanliness and the security of the area. The delivery of the materials will be arranged at the most convenient hours.
- The deadlines of the execution of the works and the estimated cost will have to be respected... "

Note: There is, as regards the conditions laid in this proposal, a double irony; on the one hand, we had, as a team, insisted that Paolo, in his study, must respect the existing contours, as designed by Roger A and executed over the years, and Paolo had painstakingly integrated them into his detailed studies of each of the twelve inner gardens as in his overall study of the entire Peace area. And on the other hand, as soon as we had been expelled from the work, Roger A and his group promptly set about destroying all the executed contours and remodelling the entire oval area as per a new design of his...!

On 14th February, 2003, the Governing Board met in Auroville, at the Secretary's Office in Bharat Nivas. We were given a "slot" – the Matrimandir Team had to be let into the room, and this was a larger number than had been anticipated. Arjun and I were sat at the long table, at one end. We stood our ground, without any anger, but without weakening either. Towards the end, a trap was sprung on us. As per the age-old practice to "divide and rule", the entire Governing Board requested Arjun to agree to be a member of a new group to be called the "Matrimandir Core Group", isolating him and singling him out at the same time, and forcing him to function in a loaded and heavily monitored and controlled context along with 4 others: Roger A, Frederick, Ulli B. and the Finance Officer for the Foundation, Srinivas Murthy. It meant that Arjun would be heavily outnumbered at every step, as apart from Roger A, Srinivas Murthy could only follow Roger A's lead, and Frederick was only there to provide Roger A with the "community support" that mattered and, as for Ulli B, it was unlikely that he would take a stand that would not make him popular. Despite my immediate warnings not to accept, Arjun could not see his way out of it and he obliged.

One reason that led to this new dispensation was that, as per the rules of the Foundation Act, a representative of the Finance Ministry had to be member of the Board; and this person had very sharply noted that the Central Government must not tolerate such situation where large sums of public money were perhaps being wasted (by public money he meant that donors to the Matrimandir were tax-exempted); his remarks made it all the more obligatory for the Chairman to steer the entire Board towards what would best appear to be a serious measure of control.

This is the text of the official Resolution that was passed on that day, as recorded in the official Minutes of the Governing Board, with minor changes brought in, such as the replacement of Srinivas Murthy by the Secretary himself, Mr. Sharma:

Resolution of the Governing Board, 14th February, 2003:

"During the meeting of the Governing Board on the 14th February 2003 at the Office of the Secretary, Auroville Foundation, Bharat Nivas, Auroville, the concerns regarding Matrimandir were considered by the Board Members in detail. Discussions were also held with the members of the Working Committee and their invitees, the Auroville Council and the Matrimandir Workers Team.

The Governing Board had studied all the papers presented in respect of Matrimandir including enclosures as 1, 2 & 3. The Board noted and appreciated the procedures which were followed by the Residents Assembly. However, it was painfully noted that there was disagreement on important issues. It was felt that these issues needed to be resolved as early as possible. It was further suggested that agreement should be arrived at by concerted effort of all concerned before the conclusion of the Governing Board Meeting.

In response a further meeting was held in order to narrow down the differences and disagreement, and even to arrive at an agreement. At this meeting Mr Fred, Mr Ulli and Mr Arjun, representatives of the Working Committee, the Auroville Council and the Matrimandir Workers Team respectively were present. Mr Roger Anger, Member of the Governing Board was also present throughout these meetings.

At this meeting, it was agreed that:

1. The total money available with Matrimandir – specified and unspecified, to be presented by Mr. Arjun Puri.
2. There will be a Matrimandir Core Group consisting of five Members:
 - (I) Mr. Roger Anger
 - (II) Mr. Arjun Puri
 - (III) Mr. Friedrich Schulze Buxloh (alias Fred)
 - (IV) Mr. Ulrich Blass (alias Ulli)
 - (V) Secretary of Auroville Foundation
3. All the designs, works to be done will be presented by Mr. Roger Anger. Wherever there are areas of agreement, the works will be carried out expeditiously. In case of disagreement, the matter will be taken up by the Core Group. Subsequently, if necessary, it will be taken up by the Finance Committee and if further necessary by the Governing Board.
4. All communication with the workers on site of the Matrimandir shall be made by the above mentioned Core Group for implementation of the decisions.
5. All the Financial information i.e. the details of receipts and expenditure will be reported to the Finance Committee/Governing Board regularly.
6. Mr. Roger Anger is the Architect of Matrimandir and Auroville, to realise Auroville according to the vision of the Mother.

On 15th February 2003, Governing Board met the representatives of the Working Committee, the Auroville Council and the Matrimandir Workers Team at 11.30 hrs. at Bharat Nivas. Apart from the members of Board, the following were present:

1. Mr. Arjun Puri
2. Mr. Ulrich Blass
3. Mr. Frederick Schulze Buxloh.

At this meeting, Mr. Arjun Puri presented the details of funds available for Matrimandir.

Apart from the agreement reached on 14th Feb, it was further agreed as follows:

1. That the Matrimandir Core Group will meet to carry out the work at the earliest.
2. With respect to the matters agreed by Matrimandir Core Group, the Core Group will take steps to implement them expeditiously. In areas of disagreement, Matrimandir Core Group will be at liberty to devise its own ways for arriving at an agreement expeditiously including various ways as outlined by the "experiment" (Note: term for the collective process being promoted at the time).

If agreement is still not reached, the matter will be referred to the Finance Committee, and if necessary, to the Governing Board.

As approved by the Chairman,

The Secretary in charge, Mr. Sharma, 18-2-2003."

Note: This Core Group was soon looked at, as the first Government-instituted apex body for the Matrimandir, as both an arbiter and a sort of basket to throw in one's various complaints and allegations, variously outrageous. One of Roger A's most fervent supporters on the site had for some time been Jean P., who had as his first priority and sacred mission the task to somehow get me out. He had sustained this determination over the years, ever since Auragni's mother, Diane, had left him to be near me. Late March, 2003, Jean P. had written one of those tirades to the Core Group, and we had been given a copy of it. I took this as an opportunity, mid-April, to write in turn to the Core Group an open letter regarding the kind of practice such as Jean P's letter propounded in Auroville – there had been by then so many awful, absurd, vicious, crazy accusations spoken and written about us, and particularly about Arjun and me, and specifically about me, that one somehow ceased to lend people the "benefit of doubt" (that they had perhaps been genuinely misinformed or confused, for instance).

This was the text of my letter:

Open letter to the Core Group, with Copies to the Auroville Council and the Support Group, from Divakar, 14-4-2003:

"In a general atmosphere of diffuse conflict it is easy to provide the passive audience with a few strategic lies that will go a long way, with the least effort, in feeding and justifying a specific antagonism, giving it body and shape.

It is old and lowest tactics: deliberate and purposeful defamation, well-timed and placed, will yield disproportionate results, possibly exponential.

In the world at large what we here, with all our presumption which is truly ridicule, call the 'ordinary world', societies have evolved all along their fault lines sets and series of mechanisms, processes of appeal and redress, with a view to preserve and uphold justice.

But we, under the pretext of being part of an experiment and an adventure in search of new forms and new methods to manifest the spirit of the future, claim the right to dispense from these mechanisms and processes. Further, we seek to substantiate this claim with the profession of being 'the willing servitors of the Divine consciousness', an outrageous statement at the best of times, but who are we actually cheating. Possibly our own little minds only.

So in live practical terms what we have is a free, lawless market of the worse kind where each peddler can display their dubious wares shamelessly while piously uttering Her name.

Letters filled with the cheapest venom and the grossest slander such as Paul V.'s – who has gained remarkable notoriety with this very practice over the years – and Jean P.'s are usually signed under the sacred words 'at Her service'.

Variations of the same have been so callous that these miserable diatribes will sometimes end with 'Truth', as if Truth indeed had directly inspired, nay, dictated their words.

It would all be perhaps merely comic if it did not aggravate the general tamasic, obscure, unwilling atmosphere which has no qualms in vitiating and violating, by the sheer massive weight of its self-satisfied opacity, the treasure of the Grace.

This is the situation, and each one and each part of us who still finds some pleasure in the dark easy trade is responsible for it and for the conditions it creates in Auroville.

A team – us the ‘accused’ – has in this fashion been tarred over and over by these tactics, dragging the name of the Matrimandir with their devious trail: we shall only say that we have been and we remain ready to answer any questions in a process of clear and fair inquiry towards a resolution that will honour the spirit of Auroville.

But we request the people of Auroville, those who need to be decent and care enough to value honesty above political interests, to somehow withdraw all support from such ill motivated actions.

Note: At about this time, I found that both my Passport and my residential visa were going to expire. The general situation in Auroville, where the ‘Foreigners’ were concerned, was in a flux and there were many uncertainties. In my own case, there was also the sense that there might well be some interference. In preparing myself to apply for a renewal of my Residential Permit and of my Visa – as I had to be able to go out of the country for C’s sake -, I wrote the following letter, which I meant to address to the Central Government authorities in Pondichéry.

Request to be allowed to remain on Mother India’s soil; early 2003:

“Since my early teens I was looking desperately for the centre and purpose of my life, and I felt I would only find it in India. I first came to India in 1968, for a journey that ended abruptly with a serious illness. In 1969, the call became imperative. I came to India for the second time and reached Pondichéry where I found the answer at the feet of the Mother.

In 1970 on my twentieth birthday the Mother blessed my true birth and gave me my spiritual name, the name of my soul, ‘Divakar’.

I had to return once more to France, the country of my physical birth, for military service and personal family matters.

It was only on November 13, 1973, that I was able to give myself entirely and for good to the work and service that alone could give meaning to this life.

Since that time I have been committed to the construction of the Matrimandir and through this service the awareness of Mother India has constantly grown within me, making more and more tangible and precise the significance of belonging to Her, of being Her child, Hers to use, Hers to direct, Hers to transform.

I know very concretely that, despite the tremendous difficulties India must overcome, there is no other land and no other people upon this earth where true divinity has a home in such a complete, essential and living way.

I do not renounce the understanding I have gained through my experience of being born and raised in France, for it has become one offering which I could learn to make at Her feet, towards a more integral realisation.

Auroville, the creation of the Mother based on the foundation of Sri Aurobindo's teaching, is a challenge at once terrible and formidably rewarding, as it will necessarily bring about a real change of consciousness, the very change that the Mother and Sri Aurobindo have been working for, and India alone is great enough to shelter and nurture this very difficult and very crucial endeavour.

This is the dharma that has been given me when my being turned to Her, and I pray and trust that in Her I shall always find the refuge and protection needed to undergo this change.

Note: It was also in April of that year, I think, that Kumar, Manikandan, Gajendran and I took a trip on two bikes to a place in Tamil Nadu called Kovakam to attend the last day of a week-long festival dedicated to the mythical godlike figure of Aravan.

In India for many centuries "hijras" or "alis", that is, transsexuals and homosexuals, have been segregated into separate communities, which have evolved their own customs and means of survival. For some years, there had been relative improvement in the tolerance shown to them, and there is a small temple in a far-off village inland of Tamil Nadu where they had been gathering in increasing numbers, year after year, during a week of open celebrations. This was the one occasion when they could be publicly what they are, meeting one another from various parts of India, and going together through the symbolic rites of formal wedding, enacting the story of the Lord Krishna who had taken the guise of a beautiful young maiden to initiate the young warrior Aravan, before he went to the final battle, to the depths of joy of sexual coupling, as His boon.

We found ourselves swept in a tide of thousands upon thousands of gentle and radiant people, and I felt entirely at home with and among them.

This experience went very deep in each of my three friends, who had never been exposed to that reality. Each of them, once we had returned to our work at Matrimandir, wrote a poem about it; I have translated two of these poems from the Tamil, while Manikandan wrote his in English.

"Inner Perceiving", poem by Gajendran:

"Along a rough-hewn path winding
Into a golden eve

Whatever is seen
 Partakes of Krishna's play.
 What used to be a bunch of thorns
 Is now revealed
 As garland,
 Whatever is seen
 Is a glimpse into
 Mahabharat's land.
 Just as dewdrops resting on a bloom
 Suddenly flash into prisms of light,
 So the touch of that reality
 Suddenly bursts within one's breast
 In joyful and sweet anand.
 To be complete, or incomplete,
 Is a matter
 Of individuals.
 O jasmine, how are you drawn to the touch of the Araivani?
 Just as the Lord, self-created,
 Was too drawn to their touch.
 As the Kuringi every twelve years blossoms,
 So Kovakam every year opens and beams
 Into songs.

Gajendran"

"All creation's beauty", poem by Kumar:

"We journeyed far
 But held in my memory is
 A new rising, the sense
 Of another, new world,
 Absorbing me.
 How many colours, I can not count,
 How many flowers, I can not say,
 A peace was within
 And I was drawn, intensely,
 Like a subtle wave shifting,
 Hardly visible,
 Till it became so clear,
 Like a translucent jar
 Of the brightest milk,
 A new creation from the hands of gods.
 The meaning of beauty
 Opened to me,
 Through them, they gave it to me,
 The "aligal",
 They, walking as
 A river flows
 Fearless and soft and blooming
 Their hands outstretched with their Offering

Of friendship.
 Was I dreaming?
 There were no stains and no shadows to mar
 The joy in the heart, the deep Contentment
 Shared by all.

Kumar"

"A sudden awakening", poem by Manikandan:

"Entering into a joyful world,
 The same eyes of ages
 Look at everything from a different view.
 'Why' arises, deep in the heart.

A smile, a glance, a touch,
 All simple day-to-day actions,
 Mean something especially special,
 Something that can't be limited by words.

Oh, maybe it is discovered,
 Hidden both in one and in all,
 A wider, deeper, higher understanding
 That opens a door to be.

Manikandan"

Note: During that same period – the hot spring of 2003 – Kovalan helped me to create and offer a small book, dedicated to the Matrimandir Gardens.

Kovalan had become, as for cricket games which earned him many trophies, a sort of computer champion; he sat with me at the computer every afternoon in Walter's planning office at Matrimandir for a bout six weeks, and followed my directions and turned them into actual layout, made of all the recorded texts from the Mother, scanned drawings, scanned pictures of Japanese gardens referred to by Her, scanned photographs of flowers with their names given by Her, scanned messages in Her hand. The purpose of this offering was to introduce everyone interested to the spirit of the place as the Mother had seen it, rather than dwelling on interpretations and commentaries. The materials presented would speak for themselves.

We titled this booklet, of 108 pages, "On the Matrimandir Peace area – 2003 – An Offering", by Divakar and Kovalan.

The result was a document that could be telecharged on anyone's computer, with a simple and clever automatic selector devised by Kovalan, or printed in hard copies on request.

This book was posted on the Net and presented individually to a few people, and a couple of copies were also made available to the Governing Board. However it seemed to be dismissed as irrelevant, although several friends commented on its beauty... It is included here as an attachment.

Note: Once again, in May 2003, I drafted a paper which tried to recapitulate the reasons for our position and to place in a perspective that would be meaningful to others.

On the completion of the Matrimandir and its Peace area; on Roger A's role and function, May 2003:

"Let us first acknowledge that Roger A's authority has never been unanimously recognised in Auroville. Where the Matrimandir is concerned, the Mother Herself had at some point suggested that he had enough to do with Auromodel and other projects and Paolo should be the one to look after the construction of the centre.

Roger A is not an Aurovilian, and that also has a bearing on the quality of response to and regard for his position.

For 10 crucial years of the development of Auroville and the construction of its Soul, the Matrimandir, Roger A was altogether absent.

In 1987, he was invited to participate again in the completion of the Matrimandir and make a new proposal for its finishing and cladding; he and Jacqueline then proposed the present design for the discs and the reduced height of the twelve Petals, and this proposal was the subject of a difficult vote which deeply divided the community over the following years.

Even though this proposal was thus accepted, it was not worked out and the community, through its Council, formed a coordination group and a planning group in an attempt both to speed up the work and to have the contribution of mutually balancing views to its execution.

It is only in the late 90s that, through his being appointed a member of the Governing Board, thereby acquiring a superior position in the legal hierarchy, and through the active moral influence of the present Chairman, that Roger A and his group of supporters have seemingly gained the upper hand, in the sense that their opinions have been provided with political means.

. Regarding the configuration of the Peace area, the area that surrounds the Matrimandir and extends to a radius of 300 metres from it:

This area was defined with the agreement of all concerned in the early 70s – chiefly Roger A, Narad and Piero.

- 1) The oval island containing the Matrimandir and its 12 Petals, the Banyan tree, the Urn and its amphitheatre, the 12 Inner Gardens and the Garden of Unity (later on, the Rose Garden was added to it with Roger's agreement).
- 2) The oval water channel, the width of which would on average be 12 metres.

- 3) The Outer Gardens or Park, with a flowing landscape, where various species of tall trees from all over the world would help provide the natural atmosphere of a sanctuary.

Roger A confirmed this configuration after studying again a number of alternatives and rejecting them, in the late 80s.

The Matrimandir Nursery, which was started in 1970 by Narad under the Mother's direct instructions, has worked all these years since to develop and maintain as many varieties of plants, shrubs, trees, orchids, cacti, etc. as it has been possible towards the manifestation of the Matrimandir Gardens and Park.

And to this end hundreds of individuals have contributed their efforts in labour, resources, expertise and financial means from 1970 to the present day.

Late 1999, Roger A sought to have a new, ambitious proposal for a very vast lake around the oval island to be entered into the new Master Plan which was to be legally endorsed by the Governing Board. The creation of this lake would effectively nullify the entire environment of the Matrimandir, leaving no visual 'obstacle' such as trees between the monument of the sphere with its twelve petals and the city. As for the Inner Gardens, they would be reduced to symbolic renderings utilising free-form sculptures, a few potted plants and some design elements.

This was indeed in keeping with early proposals made by Roger A to the Mother. But it was not in keeping with any of the available, recorded descriptions given by the Mother Herself of the central area of Auroville.

And it is on the basis of Her words that most everyone has aspired to serve the construction of the Matrimandir and the manifestation of Her vision and dream.

Upon hearing the objections, the Governing Board agreed to add a qualifying clause to the Master Plan.

. A situation has then developed in which apparently opposed viewpoints and arguments have been expressed with reference to the Mother's words.

Roger A's supporters base their argument on the Mother's written invitation to him, back in 1965, to be 'the man of the project', and on Her having given her written Blessings to a brochure which featured Roger A's model of a barren sculptural and monumental oval island, as also on statements reportedly made by the Mother, as noted down from memory by SSJ in his diary, as late as 1972, to the effect that 'Roger A is the best judge' and that he has been given by Her all the details; it is further argued that the Mother was 'very flexible' and turned towards the future, and had accepted and welcomed all the changes suggested by Roger A.

However there is a large body of evidence in the form of tape-recorded conversations and statements written by the Mother Herself that point to a realisation for the environment of the Matrimandir which Roger A's designs contradict, both in essence and in form.

This realisation 'of the most beautiful place from the point of view of physical, material Nature', is one of a sanctuary in which Nature's and man's efforts at beauty and harmony are joined, an area of silence and conscious experiencing, fairly secluded and self-contained, wherein the expression of the integrality of the Universal Mother's new creation is made tangible through clear and living symbols, as well as through the various significances of the flowers identified by the Mother Herself.

In the descriptions that are on record, made by the Mother of Her visions, as well as in the references made by Her to the Golden Temple Grounds in Kyoto, the spirit of this environment and the balance between its main elements – detailed gardens nearest to the Pavilion, a water body around that and the tall trees around it – are very clearly outlined and evoked.

. Roger A's contribution to the building of Auroville's Soul has been respected; it has materialised. The golden sphere and its twelve massive reddish petals have been built. They stand in their forceful majesty for all to see. That work is done.

What of the intimacy, the nearness of the soul? Its atmosphere vibrant with fragrant mystery, discovery made conscious in the silent rhythms of its profound beauty?

What of its approach, which allows one to perceive the infinite riches of conscious existence?

What was an issue of direction with far and deep-reaching implications for the work of Auroville has become a political issue of control.

Resources, capacities, commitments are acknowledged insofar as they may serve political ends, and the 'Architect', from the only meaningful 'position' of serving the Mother's dream in life and matter, has now sought to be installed as the sole and ultimate authority over and above every other one of Her servitors, by political and legal means and not by means of a genuinely acknowledged moral and spiritual stature as a leader.

With this legal backing, his supporters have staked their claims on the actual territory, biding their time until, convinced, the Government does remove the few individuals who still remain as obstacles to the execution of his own designs.

But again, where is the space and where is the will to discern the terms of the choice, to identify a direction that would bring all these trends together?

Should not the Governing Board, whose essential role is to guard the Charter and the Spirit of the adventure called Auroville, insist on the only path of resolution, the only way worthy of Auroville, that of collaboration and mutual respect, rather than lend itself to the politicisation and personalisation of the choices to be made?

Note: The above text was posted and circulated.
I also wrote a short note to the "Core Group":

Note regarding the Matrimandir and its Sanctuary of Peace, to the Core Group formed by the Governing Board of the Auroville Foundation, May 2003:

"There are those amongst us who have been for many years striving towards a complete realisation in Matter – that realisation evoked and invoked by the Mother in several recorded descriptions of Hers – and it was but natural that, as part of the striving, contradictions would at times manifest in order to deepen one's understanding.

For this completeness was meant to be all-inclusive, in a profoundly ordered manner, again following Her trail with the clues and keys She gave.

To excavate a bit of red soil for a lotus pond and create a hill with it on which to plant uniquely beautiful trees was as important, as necessary as to fit the bolts of a shuttering or cut a tile of white marble.

To yearn for Nature's magic was as much part of one's aspiration as to honour the Presence in Matter itself and learn to offer one's being through service.

It is through the ordinary centre of gravity that ideals eventually become subterfuges, dreams turn to illusions and the soul's knowing is made into dogmas that oppose one another, and it is through that ordinariness that we continue to pay tribute to the necessity of destruction and death rather than find the strength to uphold Love's victory.

Now again we are at this point of choice:

This ordinariness, this habitual exclusiveness of our still dominating instrumental nature demands that we adhere to a truncated realisation, dogmatised, legalised, planified, undersigned and countersigned; while the inner breath, the sense of grace, still sings within of a dream coming true, of an embrace that welcomes and contains all apparent contraries, of a living environment within which will freely move the blessings of Her fragrant Presence and the sovereignty of Her transforming hands".

(Submitted by Divakar)

Note: The Core Group soon became the occasion for Roger A to "practice" his new-found legal authority; he issued a number of written complaints claiming that we were spending funds to execute works which had not been approved by him, while works which were approved by him and ready to be implemented were kept in abeyance. He accused Arjun and me, by names, of being the main challengers to his authority and designs. (In a couple of formal, official occasions, both he and the Chairman had put forward as a condition for any resolution to arise that I, particularly - "this man!" -, must be removed)

The "idea" was floated that, if and when no consensus could be reached in the Core Group, a simple majority could be considered as acceptable: this of course meant that, from now on, every decision made by Roger A would be smoothly passed, since Arjun was from the start outnumbered by 1 to 4.

Efforts were underway to consolidate Roger A's authority on the site as well, by appointing an on-site architect and an on-site engineer, so as to effectively undercut the functioning of our team.

It was further decided that every expenditure would have to be passed by the Core Group, and that the Secretary's Office would be associated with the disbursement and utilisation of all funds destined to the Matrimandir - meaning that for every single operation and transaction, there would be the heaviest administrative rigmarole. Therefore, the Secretary was made a compulsory signatory of all cheques.

It was also decided that, "in the absence of the Architect, his duly authorised representative may represent him..."

We were continuing with our daily activities, and we were ready also with the new issue of the "Matrimandir Journal", devoted to the Divine Shakti and the Integral Yoga, for which Deepti had worked by far the hardest. She presented this issue to each of the Governing Board members, along with a letter of introduction in which she deplored the new interventionist role played by the Board, and the increasing resemblance its proceedings bore with the "Star Chamber" of old.

In this letter she quoted two messages of the Mother. The first one had been given by Her at the beginning of Auroville:

"Here no one is the exclusive leader – everybody has to learn to collaborate. It is a very good discipline for the vanity, self-love and the excessive sense of importance of personalities."

And the second one was more general:

"Heroic action fights for the beautiful and the true without fear of obstacles and opposition."

In the meantime, Walter had written directly to the President of India, Abdul Kalam, seeking his support in the creation of a desalination plant for the area of Auroville.

It is a measure of the genuine humility of this humane scientist who had suddenly been propelled at the highest echelon of the country that he took note of Walter's simple request and put him in touch with one of his friends, Sri Gopaldaswamy, an active researcher and an aerospace engineer, based in Hyderabad, who had become involved in solar energy projects along with Abdul Kalam, and their possible applications to desalination plants, much promoted by them. This first contact opened the way for further exchanges, meetings and seminars, some of which later took place in Auroville.

On June 21st, 2003, Arjun decided to write an open official letter in his own name, stating his position:

To the Members of the Governing Board, from Arjun Puri, 21st June 2003:

"Dear Members of the Governing Board,

Basing its action upon allegations, claims and demands made by one of its own members, Mr Roger Anger, the Governing Board appears to have resolved upon the unprecedented step of taking over the Matrimandir's finances.

The new arrangement which has not even the validation of dereliction of duty or misappropriation of funds, turns Matrimandir, the symbol of the Universal Mother, the Soul of Auroville, into a mere government department with the many consequent implications. The whims of the Architect through his representatives in government are made supreme. This is completely contrary to the spirit of self-governance and autonomy envisioned for Auroville by the Mother – for She installed no exclusive leaders in Auroville.

The Parliament of India hardly intervened in Auroville to create the rule of any small faction. It stepped in to remove political exploitation born of similar claims of exclusive control. Auroville was granted every possibility for freedom and self-governance, for only so could it grow straight and true towards its dream of a new society.

It has now been conclusively demonstrated to what Matrimandir is to be reduced. We are informed that no financial transactions may take place during the absence of the new statutory 'compulsory signatory' appointed by the Finance Committee. The work site of Matrimandir can close shop if it must! Suppliers and other working partnerships, as also workers, donors brought together in a relationship of trust through years of painstaking effort, are all to be subjected to this highly politicised condition.

By this action the Governing Board has inexorably positioned many of us in direct opposition. On 28th February 1968, the day She inaugurated Auroville, Mother declared:

'At last there is a place where nothing will have the right to impose itself as the exclusive truth'

This is Auroville. To serve this Dream we stand – for that True and Right to which our lives have been given – come what may.

At Her feet,

Arjun Puri"

Note: The Governing Board, for the first time since the creation of the Auroville Foundation, held an official meeting in Delhi, on 24th June 2003.

In this meeting, the entire operation was rounded up in one definitive statement.

This was published as part of the official Minutes: the battle was coming to a victorious close. The Chairman had effectively and efficiently gathered all the support that was and would be needed.

Here is the full text of those Minutes, as regards Matrimandir:

Statement on Matrimandir from the Meeting of the Governing Board:

"The Governing Board, in its twenty-eighth Meeting, held on 24th June 2003 at Delhi, has studied the Statement concerning Matrimandir in the Minutes of the Meeting of the Finance Committee, which was held on 11-12 June 2003. The Board endorses that statement.

The Governing Board has also studied the latest statements that have been received from the Working Committee and the members of the Matrimandir Core Group. The Governing Board has also been furnished with all the material relevant to the study of the Mother's vision and directions concerning Matrimandir and Auroville.

Having taken into account all the views in regard to the Mother's visions and directions, the Board has come to the conclusion that:

- (a) The Mother has appointed Mr Roger Anger as the Architect of Auroville and Matrimandir, and that his responsibilities as the Architect must be respected and supported.
- (b) Mr Roger Anger has had numerous conversations with the Mother right from 1965 up to 1973 on the subject of Matrimandir and Auroville, and his statements in regard to what the Mother has explained to him of Her vision and Her directions for Auroville and for Matrimandir and the adjoining areas (now called the Peace area) should be respected and implemented.

The Governing Board requests all the members of Auroville to come forward to contribute to the expeditious completion of the Matrimandir and the Peace Area and carry out the required activities and works in the spirit of collaboration and dedicated service.

The Governing Board regrets the aggressive negativity that has been expressed in one of the statements which have been received. The Board reiterates that it has been assigned a heavy responsibility to promote the spirit and ideals of Auroville. It finds today that despite notable achievements, Auroville has not yet succeeded in demonstrating the spirit of united endeavour vibrant with those four essential elements that the Mother has laid down in one of Her important messages to Matrimandir, viz., Harmony, Goodwill, Discipline and Truth. In this situation, the Governing Board has the sacred duty to intervene and help Auroville to be put on the road towards fulfilment of the ideals of Auroville.

It has been reported that the Matrimandir Core Group has not functioned harmoniously and fruitfully to the extent expected? It has even be reported that there is no team spirit. The Board, however, urges the Core Group to make one more effort to manifest true team spirit. The matter may be referred to the Governing Body, if any difficulties arise.

The Governing Board suggests that this year, being the Mother's 125th Birth Anniversary, should appropriately be dedicated by all the members of Auroville, individually and collectively, to unity and harmony in every field of activity on the lines indicated in the Charter of Auroville and in the directives given by the Mother. The Board also suggest that 21st February 2004 be dedicated to a meaningful event that would demonstrate the living spirit of Auroville – the spirit of collaboration and agreement, - and rededication to the realisation of the Dream that lies at the basis of the establishment of Auroville.

The Board is happy to receive from a group of residents of Auroville expressing its resolve to serve constantly with voluntary optimism that the ideals of Auroville have to be and will be realised. The Board welcomes this resolve and invites every member of Auroville to join this resolve.

26-6-03, the Secretary"

Note: With this statement, obviously authored by the Chairman, the responsibility for all the disharmony was laid neatly at our door.

The Chairman was almost at once back in Auroville and a large meeting was held, in which this statement was read out.

JYL decided to write an open letter to all:

Open Letter to all, by Jean Yves:

"Dear Friends,

I would like to bring a few points to your attention regarding the meeting that has happened last Sunday with the Chairman.

1. About the meaning.

The Governing Board has established some sort of official 'truth' regarding what Aurovilians have to do. Consequence: we don't need any more to make the effort of harmonising our different approaches, only to follow the official 'truth'. This is a new and qualitative change in Auroville's development. By doing so, the Governing Board deprives us of our most central guidelines in our experiment towards human unity: how to go beyond conflict by widening our initial points of view so that we can arrive at a place where not only they can be combined, but appear to be necessary to each other. The whole meaning of the Auroville experiment is thus disregarded and the search for harmonisation is replaced by an administrative imposition of one aspect of the Truth against others. This makes the position of the Governing Board very weak in terms of legitimacy, for it bases its decision on the denying of our most essential law.

2. About the method.

- a) Although the main issue was the taking over of Auroville by the Governing Board, the focus was put on Arjun's letter along with the one written by the 5 'voluntary optimistic' Aurovilians. If we look at the dates, knowing that Arjun's letter arrived on the 23rd, one day before the Governing Board meeting, and that the 'optimistic' one was sent on the same day by fax, one feels a bit uncomfortable. Presented as a spontaneous outflow of Aurovilians of goodwill who suddenly felt the need to express their faith and gratitude, it seems to be rather something asked by the Chairman, a purposeful letter with a certain aim. But maybe I am wrong... I would like to hear that I am wrong.
- b) In his presentation of Arjun's letter to the community, the Chairman 'forgot' to mention that Arjun was asked to write it by the financial committee and that therefore it could not in any case be interpreted as an attempt to present the Community's point of view, unless one chooses to see it and present it like this. Still the Chairman very heavily gave this interpretation. Thanks to Abha, the truth was restored.
- c) During the meeting the Chairman got a 'spontaneous' feedback from the 'Community' to be conveyed to the Governing Board. What this feedback is, I and many others don't know exactly because all of Sanjeev's words could not be heard, but something has been proposed and a 'yes' that could appear unanimous was uttered. Those who couldn't hear or didn't say 'yes' were not counted. But the result is that the Chairman can go back to the Governing Board with what seems to be a unanimous, although undefined, support from the Residents Assembly to its Chairman and to the Governing Board's decision or attitude (it isn't clear which).

If all this is not pure politician manipulation, I don't know anymore what the words mean. It gives ground to Arjun's letter when he speaks about a faction operating politician manoeuvres. It is sad to see how happily Aurovilians get manipulated under the name of goodwill and collaboration (and I don't doubt one minute the sincerity of their aspiration).

I thank Arjun for the flame I found in his letter, a flame I would like to see burning in each Aurovilian.

Jean Yves"

Note: Several other individuals in Auroville, such as Kosha, who could not be seen as 'partisans', had the courage to speak up and to write up their minds, questioning the ethical grounds of letting Roger A continue as a member of the Governing Board, of the Chairman thus interpreting Arjun's letter, and of the Board's interventionist course.

While several of us also protested individually, such as Deepti, Jithendra, John H, the entire Matrimandir Team put out a short statement:

Food for Thought. 30-6-2003:

"Much has been made of Arjun's letter. Here are some points that rectify a few subtle and not so subtle 'impressions' created in the General Meeting!

1. Arjun sent his letter dated 21st June 2003 in response to a 'most urgent' official request dated 13th June 2003 from the Secretary-in-charge to send his 'views' on the Matrimandir situation in his capacity as member of the Core Group. This letter from the Secretary-in-charge and Arjun's reply are posted alongside this note.
2. More people wished to sign along with him but he insisted that it was easier for him to take the consequences that might arise.

What happened yesterday is a mere diversionary tactic, false fire to distract everyone's attention from the Government takeover of the finances of Matrimandir.

Matrimandir Workers Team"

Note: At the time, the BJP was in power at the Centre. The Ministry directly responsible for the Auroville Foundation from its inception has been the Ministry for Human Resources. The Minister was Sri Murali Manohar Joshi, who had recently visited Matrimandir and had had a very deep experience while in the Chamber. His daughter had also visited Auroville independently and become a close friend of Arjun and Deepti.

Kusum decided to write two letters, one open letter to the Governing Board and to the Working Committee, and one directly to the Minister.

To the Members of the Governing Board and the Working Committee, by Kusum, 2-7-2003:

"Dear Members,

To welcome the Government in the Soul of Auroville, Matrimandir, is a great shock. It is painful and shameful for me and should be for Auroville. It is very dangerous. It is completely wrong. Why is nobody speaking?

What is spirituality? Today this is a great question-mark in front of me! Especially now as it seems if I speak out frankly or write about an issue I could be branded a 'criminal' as happened on Sunday 29th when the Chairman termed Arjun 'criminal'. In spiritual life does not one have the freedom to express one's views? What kind of spirituality is this? I thought we lived in a free country where right of speech is a fundamental right!

I am remembering my past days when we were fighting the British for the freedom of India. If anybody spoke against them, the British would first resort to 'lathi-charge' and then throw you into jail. Are we going to repeat the same thing here in Mother and Sri Aurobindo's Auroville?

Does our Chairman have the right to play this type of role and are we all to keep quiet? My friends, today it is Arjun, tomorrow it may be anyone. It seems to have become a habit of the Chairman's – first he does 'Pranam' and then he 'points' at the person an accusing finger. According to my understanding, in spirituality one should be honest and fearless. This is what Sri Aurobindo wanted from India and Indians.

I stand by all the points that Arjun has made in his letter. Already the daily 'lathi-charge' of the office babus has begun. Letters come every day. Cheques are returned unsigned – so many questions are asked. What is official? What is legal? What has approval? Even the workers' daily wages have been put under these petty politics. Sincere people always find it hard to get help from those who sit in government offices with the power to block development. Is this what we have brought into the daily work at Matrimandir? Is this answering the good faith of thousands of friends who give money to build Mother's Matrimandir? Will they be happy to know that Matrimandir is now a government department controlled by small people in far away offices with no sympathy or understanding of the daily difficulties of the work on site?

Where are we going? We seem to have lost our aim and spiritual path. Let me tell you that I have a deep pain in my heart. I could never think the Chairman could do what he did on Sunday. It is a shameful act. He has brought only dishonour to his office.

It seems now we must obey ONLY the Chairman and his friend the Architect. Spirituality has been converted into politics and religion.

Oh! Mother, save us!

Kusum"

To the Minister for Human Resources, Sri Murali Manohar Joshi, from Kusum Shah, July 2003:

"I write this letter to you because the issues I raised in previous letters written to the Governing Board (attached) have now come to a most dangerous flash-point. It is time for you to look into this situation.

When the Government of India first intervened in the experiment of Auroville it was with the avowed purpose of protecting it, of keeping it safe from any ambitious individual. India also wished through its actions to expressly demonstrate her deepest respect and appreciation for the legacy of Sri Aurobindo.

Every single one of the Government of India's actions in and upon this unique laboratory must be measured against the highest norm and ought to withstand the most critical scrutiny. By her manner of nurturing Auroville, India makes a living demonstration of her transcending gifts for manifesting harmony, synthesis and unity – gifts that are unique amongst the nations of the world.

Yet today the Government has shown the greatest unwisdom. The actions of its present representatives have brought to an abrupt end what has been so far an otherwise impeccable record of good trusteeship. This wonderful, precious gift of Sri Aurobindo to humanity is being warped and twisted away from the truth and beauty of its ideals, and that will bring grave consequences.

Today, under the present Chairman of the Governing Board of the Auroville Foundation, India's intervention has been brought to disrepute. Statutory decisions have been made that have caused only divisions, have given rise to the crassest politics, and have victimised sincere and dedicated persons. These decisions are not only inexcusable; their sole purpose is to favour a single faction (personal friends of the Chairman). These actions will prove to be grossly harmful for both the Government of India and Auroville.

I ask you therefore:

1. What are the limits of power, rules and regulatory mechanisms to control a person who by his very appointment is called upon to be impartial and who instead behaves as a faction leader, backed by and having at his disposal all his statutory authority?
2. What are the rules and regulations by which a body such as the Governing Board can be regulated when it begins to commit gross injustices solely to favour one of its members?
3. What court of appeal is available for us to address our call for fairness and justice? Do we turn to you? Or to the Courts of Law? Or to the Parliament of India which first created the Auroville Act?
4. The Matrimandir HAS to be protected from such heavy-handed manipulation. There is NO validation for the present arbitrary takeover of its finances. The Matrimandir has been built from the beginning solely by the dedicated efforts of those who serve the Mother. Its monies have come from the contributions of individual donors in the public at large. It receives no Government money. The Shrine of the Mother must remain necessarily independent and self-managing if it has to keep its spirit and its nature.

As the Minister under whose responsibility the Auroville project is placed I ask you for answers to my questions.

Kusum Shah”

Note: Major General KK Tewari (Retd), Deepti’s father, the senior Indian-born resident of Auroville, respected by all, K.T here, also wrote to the Governing Board:

To the Members of the Governing Board, by Krishna Tewari, 2nd July 2003:

“Dear Members of the Governing Board,

I write as an old time resident of Auroville as also an elder Indian. I am deeply disturbed.

I have served our Motherland for the best part of my life. I have also served Auroville for almost three decades – even representing Auroville residents in the Supreme Court of India in 1980-82 when there was an attempt to convert Sri Aurobindo’s teaching into a religion.

It seems to me that the very basis on which the Supreme Court case was won by the Government of India for Auroville, is being violated by the Governing Board’s decision to take over the finances of Matrimandir, the Soul of Auroville.

Also, at a meeting called by the Chairman of the Auroville Foundation in Auroville on Sunday, 29th June, there was more than an hour long monologue by the Chairman aimed against one individual, based solely upon a line by line interpretation of the words of his letter. I have read this letter and have, on the contrary, admired the frankness, honesty, bold and forthright expression of views written as a member of the Core Group in response to the Governing Board’s own urgent request, via the Secretary.

In my view this letter embodies the strength and courage of a young person belonging to that resurgent India to which Sri Aurobindo addressed his call. To call this person’s action ‘criminal’ in an open meeting is not only deplorable, it asks for us as elders to reflect more deeply on how much we are the very cause for the lack of leadership in this country today.

What makes the matter even more absurd is that all this is being done for the sake of one member of the Governing Board who is being projected as the sole and unquestioned representative of the Mother. This is an insult and betrayal of Mother and Auroville for She never nominated any exclusive leaders in Auroville. She also told the Architect (on record) to collaborate with others. He has yet to learn this simple lesson.

I request you, as brothers and sisters, to reflect deeply on the long term implications of the present hasty action which might shake the very foundations the Mother gave Auroville and which contravenes the purpose for which you have been appointed.

With regards and all good wishes,

Krishna Tewari"

Note: Both Kusum's and K.T's letters became quite an embarrassment for the Chairman, who tried later on, on several occasions, to meet with K.T and persuade him of his having misunderstood his intentions. It is likely that such letters served, eventually, to hasten the Chairman's removal from his post.

John H too made a last attempt to awaken a clearer response from the Aurovilians in the Auroville Council:

To the Auroville Council members, from John Harper, 6-7-2003:

"Dear members of the Auroville Council,

I think none of you has to be told that we have collectively come to a very serious turn in the Matrimandir game, with the direct intervention of the Government into the daily affairs of the Matrimandir.

We all know that we have opened the door to this intrusion because we did not persist in trying to solve the problem of Matrimandir internally, within Auroville.

A year ago the Chairman himself, in a general meeting, said to us that the way the situation would be resolved at Matrimandir would set off the precedent for the way other problems in Auroville would in future be resolved. It is ironic and sad that he himself has now set that precedent by moving forward with the takeover of the Matrimandir.

The Auroville Council has now, as never before, a critical role to play.

Now as never before can your actions affect the course for all that is to follow.

What Mother wants for the Matrimandir is clear to me: She wants first that harmony and collaboration are established amongst all those concerned with the building of Matrimandir – there should be no exclusion -; and secondly, She certainly wants the soul of Auroville to be free from the shackles of any government.

If you agree with me that these are the goals then you must put all your effort to fight for them.

Do not, in the brief satisfaction of apparently getting the best of an old enemy (the MMCG), be lulled into complacency in the present situation. If you believe that this action by the Government is any kind of victory or progress for Auroville, then Auroville will have fallen asleep and will stand defeated at a very fundamental level – the level of the basic guidelines that Mother gave for our lives here.

The most extreme opposites MUST be united here at the Centre, a true unity of all our energies MUST be forged – otherwise it will just go on and on. The path of elimination will lead us ultimately nowhere except to a field of unending discord and conflict.

The world wants more of us. The world needs a true solution to be found.

Let us all have the courage to say 'YES, we too need to find that True solution'.
No effort should be spared to move towards this goal.

It is very late in the game, but perhaps it is not too late.

Sincerely,

John"

Note: Another "elder" of the community also decided to write up; for the first time in her many years in Auroville. On the 8th of July, 2003, Shantidi wrote:

To the Members of the Governing Board, from Shanti Niogi, 8th July 2003:

"Dear Friends,

I am Shanti Niogi. I have lived in Auroville from the very beginning as I along with my late husband were among the first batch of persons accepted by Mother for Auroville in the year 1967. I am 81 years old and I am writing this letter to you as an elder sister.

My experience is from more than 30 years in Auroville, but today I feel Auroville is being taken very far away from its ideals.

I had great hopes from the present Chairman, but I think now that I did not understand him. He covers himself with the show of spirituality but beneath there is only politics. He has brought politics and more politics to Auroville. His behaviour on Sunday, 29th June '03 (in a meeting of Auroville residents called by him) has broken my heart and taken away my hope in the future as long as he is there. In India elders are supposed to respect and cherish the views of their 'anuj' especially in times of disagreement but Arjun was treated in a small and vindictive way.

I would like to know if there is a limit to the power of the Chairman; is he permitted to do anything? As an elder Indian I wish to state to all that I am deeply disappointed in the action of the Governing Board and the conduct of the Chairman who is using his position to bring wrong things to Auroville.

It seems now that the only way out for me is to somehow be able to stand with the strength and courage that Mother's Grace can give so that I can continue to be truly at the service of Sri Aurobindo's work.

At Mother's feet,

Shanti Niogi"

Note: Trying to cut short to the daily flurry of official letters and demands regarding this cheque and that disbursement and this expenditure and that justification of approval, we prepared a series of documents, which we introduced with a short letter to the Secretary in-charge; this letter was signed by John H on our behalf – it illustrates well the climate then prevailing at work:

To the Secretary in-charge, from John H, authorised signatory, 15-7-2003:

“Ref: Your letter N° AF/M/13-1233 dated 2/7/03.

We would like to state at the outset that the true and most productive way forward for us all will be to adhere to Mother’s often repeated guidelines for working together at Matrimandir.

It was Her fervent request that all contrary tendencies should be united in their effort to build Matrimandir, that none should be excluded. ‘All of you must agree’ was Her constant refrain. ‘This is the only way to do good work’ ‘None has the right to impose himself as the exclusive authority’, She said.

In this spirit we give below our responses to the questions you have raised in your letter.

01. With regard to the expenses incurred during the financial year 2002-2003, please find enclosed relevant extracts from the balance sheet for the past financial year.
02. With regard to the projected expenses for the coming year, please find attached our estimate for the completion of the Matrimandir and the Peace Area. It is our policy to advance the work in all aspects simultaneously according to the funds available.
03. With regard to the current labour force and the activities being carried out, please find enclosed our report which is the updated version of the work report submitted to the Finance Committee on June 6th, 2003. Details of the monthly labour cost for each work area are included.
04. Ref: Letter N° AF/M/13-1233 dt. 02.07.03, Letter N° AF/M-54-1306 dt. 10.07.03 § Letter N° AF/AC-41/1319 dt. 15.07.03. Work at Matrimandir since 1970 has been going on according to a generally agreed plan. Therefore what is now according to you ‘legal’ and what is ‘illegal’ is difficult to understand. We would be grateful if you could clarify this by delineating which works fall into those categories.

To sum up, we would call again for all involved in the Matrimandir project to try to accomplish the unique and most challenging goal that Mother has set before us: the working out of an actual human unity.

Sincerely,

For Matrimandir,

John Harper, Authorised Signatory”

Note: At this time, Roger A was back in his own house in the South of France. From there he wrote his appreciation of the new developments that had taken place to the Governing Board:

To the Members of the Governing Board, Auroville Foundation, from Roger Anger, 16 July 2003:

"Dear Co-Members, dear Friends,

I am very grateful for your invaluable contribution towards the resolution of the difficult problems at Matrimandir. The stand you have taken will bring new energy to the Matrimandir workers and will allow them to find again the harmony and serenity indispensable to achieve the completion of Matrimandir. This resolution is also a recognition of the tremendous work of our Chairman who spares no efforts in promoting harmony and unity within Auroville.

I am pleased to inform you that Pashi Kapur, a key member of the Aurofuture team and connected with Auroville from its early years, has accepted to represent me in the Matrimandir Core Group.

The Working Committee had recommended the appointment of a Site Engineer and Site Architect to the Finance Committee in their letter of 10 May 2003. I am glad to inform you that Mr. S. Ramanathan has consented to take up this work on a part time basis. Ramanathan has been involved with Auroville in its pioneering stages as a member of my team at Aurofuture and I am very happy that he has agreed to help us at this crucial hour. He will be assisted by Jean Pougault who is already involved with engineering work at Matrimandir.

Anupama Kundoo, an architect who has already worked on several important Auroville projects will assist me as a Site Architect.

I trust that with the resolutions of the Governing Board and the contribution of the persons mentioned above, people in Auroville will feel to participate in the work of Matrimandir and surrounding area and I am sure that Matrimandir and surrounding area will be completed without undue delay.

With warm regards,

Roger Anger"

Note: Soon after that, Ramanathan was officially appointed by the Auroville Foundation as "a part time consultant to Auroville Foundation, to assist and advise the Secretary with regard to the responsibility of signing the Cheques of Matrimandir as compulsory/additional signatory".

We had not expected Ramanathan to lend himself to this. He had been known to us over the years and we had respected him, and particularly had the highest regard for his mother, who has recently passed away, a lady of fine insight and great inner strength, who had often donated, unconditionally, to the Matrimandir work. But it was somehow our fate to meet with such surprises at every step.

We often had formidable bouts of hilarity at the perfectly cohesive manner in which so many people scurried to join ranks and assume new positions and acquire new status.

Shantidi, her letter to the Governing Board having remained unacknowledged, decided to write directly to the Minister for Human Resources in Delhi, asking him whether his office gave the Chairman "unlimited power to attack and destroy the work and reputations of sincere sadhaks..."

The Secretary was very unhappy with our answers. The goal was to make us yield and grovel and accept to seek permission from the "Architect" for every single work at Matrimandir. He demanded that we attach to every cheque a "certificate of approval" duly endorsed by the "Architect".

Instead, on 24th July 2003, we sent, very officially, this statement:

Certificate, by John Harper, Walter Wagner and Arjun Puri, Authorised Signatories, 24th July '03:

"Invoking Her Force and Protection we hereby certify in all sincerity that all works, projects, activities and wage payments undertaken by the Matrimandir Workers Team, attempt to fulfil/implement in action HER express wishes and instructions (written or recorded) for the Matrimandir Peace area.

Our WORK and our commitment continue to be offered at the Feet of HER whom we seek to serve"

Note: On July 29, 2003, I wrote an Open Letter to the Auroville Council, to all Aurovilians and to all well-wishers of Auroville, which was posted and circulated:

Open Letter to the AV Council, to all – by Divakar – July 29, 2003:

"Today a choice is being made that actually requires the awareness of every Aurovilian, every friend of Auroville and every donor to Auroville.

The choice is between two directions, each having profound implications in terms of growth, progress, commitment, and it must manifest at the very centre of Auroville, the core of its adventure, nearest to its Soul.

One direction is to work all-inclusively towards the realisation of an integral environment for the Matrimandir, a sanctuary to contain, in their harmonious relationship, all the elements the Mother has seen and described in Her recorded or written statements – a privileged area of natural beauty and quiet wherein Her Force could manifest the conscious atmosphere that must surround the Soul and radiate into the whole of Auroville and beyond.

Another direction is to surrender to the architect's vision of a monumental statement at the centre of the city, focusing and dominating the urbanscape, and to accept his exclusive authority as his claim at being the sole channel for the Mother's will.

There is, deep within oneself, 'something' that is most reticent to enter controversies, to 'take sides', to narrow itself to either this or that. It is this 'something' that begins to breathe and sing in Sri Aurobindo's wideness and vast unifying perception of the complexity of the manifestation, that begins to experience the certainty of delight when the Mother forcefully indicates that it is exclusivism that brings humanity's defeat, that there must instead be this AND that AND that again.

So, this is indeed the challenge before us: to work for the gradual advent of an all integrating living Truth within which all truths will find their harmonious purpose.

However, this is not what is trying to happen today, and this is why each one must be aware and consciously affirm the necessary choice.

The victory of consciousness is not that one 'side' wins over the other, but that all 'sides' discover the living reality that can alone reconcile them.

But the current and most unfortunate trend is defined in that the present Chairman of the AV Foundation Governing Board as well as of its International Advisory Council, has not only repeatedly made his own choice known in unconditional favour of the architect (who has himself been the only permanent member of the Governing Board under three successive Chairmen), he has also caused the present Governing Board to intervene directly, putting all the weight of the Central Government's powers at the service of this choice.

It is thus that, by means of political and legal powers, the Central Government appointed Secretary has been instructed to take over the finances of the Matrimandir on behalf of the architect whose authority is now held supreme.

That this authority could not be freely recognised by all concerned over a period of more than thirty years, that the architect's actual capacity to lead and harmonise was not by its own merits made evident, is disregarded entirely.

Instead, the blame for this disharmony is squarely attributed on those who have been tenacious enough to resist this arbitrariness where it hurts the most, at the centre. The 'culprits' are designated: these are the criminals, named and labelled.

The present Chairman happens to have also been the author and the prime mover of the very Act of Parliament that has given birth to the Auroville Foundation, and has earlier in his present tenure been most expansive in assuring every Aurovilian that the constitution of the AV Foundation has only one purpose, to aid and serve the free growth of Auroville according to its Charter, and would not ever be used to coerce, nor to impose any specific direction other than those implied by the Charter.

Yet by now he has himself turned this instrument of protection and safeguard into one of refined coercion.

Perhaps he believes that he can lead Auroville on its correct course?

Be that as it may, the fact is that today Auroville has taken a step backwards. Clashes there were, but these, all of these, were in effect honest clashes, clashes of growth and questioning and striving and stumbling towards a wider and deeper commitment.

Now this is corrupted. Power is being exercised from outside, pressure is exerted by outer means, rulings are arbitrary, a breach has been torn open in Auroville's evolutionary integrity. Auroville's formal representatives have bowed to that rule. Residents of Auroville are quiescent: to speak up may be punished, visas may be cancelled, ostracism may be applied, and public disapproval may be called (although this law of retribution does not seem to apply to outright defamation as long as it serves the interests of the ruling party).

But the choice is still there. It cannot be wished away, it cannot be stilled, it cannot be neutralised.

The choice is not for one 'side' against the other.

The choice is for integrality, for wholeness, for evolving completeness, for plenitude.

The choice is to cease from exclusivism, to rise and widen and deepen so that no part of the Truth will be excluded, so that Auroville can really exist.

Divakar"

Note: A few days later I wrote to the Governing Board, the AV Council and the Working Committee:

On the Status of Allegations, by Divakar, August 1st, 2003:

"To the Honourable Members of the AV Foundation Governing Board; to the Members of the AV Council/Working Committee; August 1st, 2003:

Note on the Status of allegations.

- I. On the basis of written allegations of mismanagement of funds made by one of its members – who is himself party to a long-standing conflict in Auroville, particularly at Matrimandir – the Governing Board has instructed the Central Government appointed Secretary to take control of the finances of the Matrimandir.
- II. The Governing Board has further instructed the Secretary to hold this control on behalf of the author of these allegations.
- III. The author of these allegations, Roger Anger, architect, in his official letter dated 9-6-2003 addressed to the members of the Governing Board and to its Finance Committee, has indicated that 'I am told that an amount of 60 lakhs...'; thus the allegations he is making are resting on 'information' provided by unidentified sources and not based on any verified facts. (A simple and straight question would have obtained a clarifying answer).
- IV. Moreover Roger Anger states at the onset of his letter of accusation that 'I do not consider it part of my work to be involved with the financial aspects of Matrimandir...'

- V. This letter then, in and of itself, may constitute what is termed as an act of defamation, and remains so to this day as it has not been substantiated and cannot be substantiated.
- VI. Yet this act of defamation by one member of the Governing Board appears to have been considered by all its other members, under the chairmanship of Dr. Kireet Joshi, as sufficient evidence to take the unprecedented step of direct intervention.
- VII. Since all the other members of the Governing Board are highly respected individuals one may wonder how they could consent to this very dubious process.
- VIII. Could one then assume that it is also our right to call attention to the various cases of wastage that have been the direct responsibility of the architect over the years?

Conclusion: The point here being that the means elected to 'resolve' a crucial difference of approaches rich with a potential for real collective progress, may not be, in effect and in spirit, the correct ones.

Submitted by Divakar"

Note: On the 2nd of August, 2003, four of us were served each a legal notice called a "Caveat": Arjun, John H, Walter and I each received by Registered Post the same legal document containing the text of a Caveat filed in the Court of the Hon'ble Principal Sub Judge at Tindivanam by the Secretary of the Auroville Foundation, through its chosen Advocate, a Mr. P. Krishnamurthy, M.A., B.L.

It said that "The Caveator apprehend that the Expected Applicants may file a suit and petition against the Caveator and get some interim orders. LET NOTHING BE DONE WITHOUT NOTICE TO THE CAVEATOR in the proceedings. The Caveator undertakes to serve the notice of this caveat on the Expected Applicants and file proof of service before this Hon'ble Court..."

In short, the Chairman had expected and feared that we would take him to Court for his recent actions, knowing full well that we did have grounds for such recourse. Yet, unknown to him – and this made us to reflect with some amount of awe on the individual destinies concerned -, we had not ever even considered such an option, let alone discussed it; in fact, it never even crossed my own mind! We did lodge articulate protests where we could, that is, to the known players of this game, directly and as fairly as we could; but it would never have occurred to us to seek redress in the ordinary courts of law. While the Chairman, on his part, had in fact a long history of court cases, some of them still unresolved, since his leaving the Ashram.

On the 4th of August, 2003, the Chairman wrote a long formal letter to the AV council and Working Committee, in which he wielded both the carrot and the stick with shrewdness, so as to ensure the tacit support of the majority in Auroville – large funding for a wide range of activities and projects under the umbrella of education in Auroville being the carrot dangling before so many people who had been promised contracting, teaching, building, or documenting jobs. Eventually this large funding was blocked at the Centre.

Here is his letter in full:

To the Members of the Working Committee, the Members of the Auroville Council, Auroville; 04 August 2003, from Kireet Joshi, Chairman; N° AV/CH/43/03:

"Dear Friends,

I write this letter, first of all, to thank you for your letter addressed to the Members of the Governing Board in which you have expressed your appreciation of the work and support that has been extended by the Governing Board to various activities of Auroville. I should like to assure you that the Governing Board will continue its support and extend and seek collaboration in all tasks that are devoted to the promotion of the ideals contained in the Charter of Auroville.

During the last few weeks, the Members of the Governing Board have received numerous letters of support from a number of residents of Auroville, and we feel that a climate is being increasingly created under which all the residents of Auroville can be united for united service to the Matrimandir and to the Future of Auroville. In creating this climate, the Members of the Working Committee and the Council have played a significant role, which deserves to be greatly appreciated.

In this background, it is to be ensured that harmony in Auroville comes to be established and stabilised more and more securely. Nothing should, therefore, happen or be allowed to happen that would come in the way of solving the problems, not only in regard to Matrimandir, but also in regard to various other fields of Auroville.

At this stage, I should like to inform you that the Union Government's Secretary for Secondary and Higher Education, Shri S.K. Tripathi, has decided to visit Auroville on an official visit soon after the Monsoon Session of the Parliament, i.e. soon after the 22nd August 2003. As you know, Shri Tripathi had been warmly supporting Auroville. He had recently taken the trouble to make a trip to Paris from Delhi, particularly to take part in the celebration at UNESCO of the 35th Anniversary of Auroville. He, along with Dr. L.M. Singhvi and myself, had called on the Director General of UNESCO. He participated in the programme of the Inauguration of the Exhibition in Auroville. His addresses on these occasions were full of appreciation of Auroville and its multifarious activities.

I should also like to mention that it was under his Chairmanship that the programme of development of SAIIER was approved, as a result of which the allocation of the sum of Rs. 15 crores has been made for SAIIER and other development activities of Auroville for the 10th Five Year Plan. Again, it was under his Chairmanship that the Grant-in-Aid Committee sanctioned Rs. 45 lakhs for the year 2002-03 exclusively towards the maintenance of the Research Team of SAIIER.

I should also like to mention that towards the end of August, a Committee is going to visit SAIIER in order to assess the work being done by SAIIER in the context of the evaluation of the scheme under which SAIIER has been receiving financial assistance since 1984. This visit is also very important, and we all need to prepare ourselves adequately, both in terms of our team spirit and of the quality of our educational research work.

As you know, I have been pleading with the Government for years to extend full support for the development of Auroville, and I have constantly been presenting to them the ideals of Auroville and notable achievements of Auroville.

In the meeting of the Governing Board, which was held on the 24th June, it was suggested that a special event should be organised for 21st February 2004 as a mark of Auroville's rededication to the ideals laid down in the Mother's Charter. This event will require a united effort of all the Residents of Auroville; it will also be an opportunity to demonstrate harmony, goodwill, discipline and quest for the Truth.

While all these positive prospects are unfolding before us, it is necessary that the Residents work together in the spirit of collaboration and happy understanding filled with unflinching goodwill.

Permit me, however, to express my genuine apprehension that there is one fact that might cause a great danger to any successful demonstration of team spirit. This factor is related to the fact that some Residents of Auroville have been feeling and expressing resentment in regard to the decisions that have recently been taken by the Finance Committee and the Governing Board in regard to Matrimandir. Letters that have been issued by some of them are regrettably aggressive and indicate also a sense of misunderstanding. I should like to appeal to them all to realise that the Governing Board is fully committed to the freedom of the residents carrying out the activities of Auroville for purposes of the promotion of the ideals contained in the Mother's Charter and of the directions that have been given by her for the work of Auroville. I should also like to request them not to take any step or measure that would jeopardise the process of understanding, agreement and lasting harmony between Auroville Residents, Governing Board and the Government of India. Collaboration among the residents of Auroville and their harmonious relationship with the Governing Board are extremely important.

In this connection, I have been feeling and I have shared this feeling of apprehension with many Members of the Governing Board to whom I have been able to speak personally, that under the pressure of misunderstanding and aggressiveness, some of our friends in the Matrimandir Workers' Team might think of resorting to the process of the Court of Law. We would like to think and believe that such a course of action must be far from their minds. But we would like to ensure that measures must be taken to prevent any action which would place the Governing Board in opposition to any Residents of Auroville.

One of the courses that might be contemplated would be to secure an ex-parte stay order on the operation of the decision of the Governing Board. With all my earnestness, I should like to make this appeal to kindly ensure that such a course of action is prevented, and, in this regard, I seek the cooperation of all the Residents of Auroville. On the part of the Foundation, I have instructed the Acting Secretary to file a Caveat in the concerned courts, so that the unlikely action in this direction is effectively prevented. I have done this most reluctantly. The only motive is to avoid confrontation, the consequences of which would be extremely injurious to the ideals for which we are all working together. I do trust that the Caveat that has been filed remains simply on paper, without the need of its operation.

May I, in the end, assure everyone of our earnest wish to serve the highest welfare of Auroville.

With regards,

Yours sincerely,

Kireet Joshi"

Note: Once again, the Chairman designated us for the collective, and active opprobrium; this time, however, he was very nearly asking the community to silence us one way or another, or else...!

The other members of the Governing Board who were not representatives of the Central Government's direct hierarchy were: Smt Mirra Srivastav, who later offered her resignation, and passed away in 2004; The Maharajah of Puri, who later refused to be re-appointed; Sri Subhash Kashyap, who later asked to be allowed to resign; Sri Chattopadhyaya, a reputed philosopher, who always insisted that no other way than dialogue and more dialogue was to be contemplated; Sri L.M. Singhvi, a very eminent jurist of the highest class, an elderly and conservative man extremely sharp and cutting, who perhaps was the main support for the Chairman in this series of episodes; and Roger A.

I soon wrote another Open Letter to all:

On Kings and Caveats for the Matrimandir and Auroville, by Divakar, August 2003:

"What a wonderful construction! All preparations are underway, at all levels of the scaffold the right people rush in the right elements, vox populi included. It is well crafted, a great rallying of energies to make everything ready: the king must be properly installed, there must be no hiccups, and no sorry show of opposition; even the least perplexity must not be allowed. Everything is legitimised, justified, everyone must answer to the call of duty, lest disaster strikes!

The only problem is: the king is naked!

There is a void at the centre.

And the same absence is to be found in every argument.

(I). What are the instructions the Mother is said to have given the architect alone, instructions which are purported to express her Will for such a complete change of concept and Her agreement to the architect's proposals?

Were they not recorded then?

Why?

The architect's proposals and designs are known. They cannot ever be considered as a reflection or an expression of the Mother's recorded descriptions of Her visions. So it is said that the Mother has 'changed' after January 1970, and changed so much that She would have found the architect's designs to be of an inspiration superior to Her own.

Why was such a momentous change not recorded?

Since this hypothesis is hardly tenable, one had then to throw all the emphasis on the architect's anointment – he the chosen instrument, the messenger, the single spokesman and executor, divinely elected, therefore divine himself, or at least vested with divine rights that are not to be scrutinised as human rights are. The ultimate sanction is to have been given once and for all and for ever to whatever would be his future actions and decisions.

Now, this thesis by itself was not going to be swallowed easily by all and sundry.

Some politicisation was required, some acquisition of ordinary powers – hierarchical, legal, financial if possible.

This acquisition has been made possible by our Chairman.

Yet, even those two trends associated by all available means of persuasion were not quite convincing.

Some remnants of lucidity, of mere alertness, might have seen through it.

An enemy had to be found, a resistance, an obstacle, 'ill-will' had to be attributed, named, given a face, be made the receptacle of unpopularity.

This too was provided.

In such freedom as Auroville's there is, don't we all know it, the risk of our infra-rational nature gaining expression more easily than in an ordinary society where a number of corrective mechanisms have been set.

Speak ill of someone, pass on a juicy piece of gossip, suggest a tinge, insinuate an intent, evoke some dark purpose, and the thing is let loose. A few defamatory pronouncements will then go a long way in the fabrication of a collective scapegoat. And soon enough the stage is set for the issuing of positive accusations – 'they have misused at least 60 lakhs', 'they were going to take legal action against the Governing Board', etc.

Self-righteous indignation is fuelled in all the right places, so that even the idea of verifying the value of these accusations is quashed. No question is asked – there is no need. Everyone 'knows'.

Yet the king is naked.

In every argument there is the same void.

What to do with that void?

(II). It is said that the entire erection of this big, big scaffold, the whole effort of setting the architect as a king and the Chairman as his moral and legal guarantor, has been at the service of all fundamental laws of Auroville.

How?

Here the void, the absence, gapes even wider.

The individuals who constitute the collectivity of Auroville at any point in time must become conscious of the Truth and able to serve it; each one of them must arrive directly at a perception of the Truth, in full freedom, for Truth is a Reality, Truth is objective. Such is the programme the Mother has given to Auroville.

What is being tried presently is to impose a truth on everybody – no need for everyone to arrive at the perception of it, it is done for them.

Here it is: serve it, serve the architect, serve the Master Plan, collaborate, nothing else is asked of you, nothing else is wanted from you; you must simply contribute your happy goodwill and be satisfied you are guided unerringly towards the goal!

But then what of the very purpose of Auroville?
Has it been 'absorbed'?

This is an unworthy farce.

I think everyone ought to urgently regain some self-respect and do a thorough check-up of one's assumptions and turn full centre, with one's very own question and one's very own little fire of need – and love.

Divakar"

Note: JYL also posted an Open Letter, on 7-8-2003:

"Finally", by Jean Yves, 7/8/03:

"Finally...

The takeover of Matrimandir by the Governing Board presents several interesting features to be studied and reflected upon.

It transforms the Governing Board into a sort of court of appeal for final decision-making in Auroville's matters, a new organ in our collective body. There is a direct psychological consequence for our experiment: why should anyone now make the effort of going beyond one's views and include the other's in a higher synthesis (the only path to human unity) if it is always possible to win by having the Governing Board on one's side?

It appears that here the Governing Board's intervention becomes dysfunctional in relation to the law of development of Auroville. Their action merely proves that power games are necessary and sufficient to make 'the truth' win. At last we are free from the effort of widening ourselves in an attempt to surrender our cherished exclusive approaches for a most integral one. What a victory!

But even a court of appeal must base its decision on some law. Here the commentators of Mother's words come in. They obligingly make 'enlightened' selections of Her words and transform Her exploration into the Unknown into an explicit and limited orthodox 'truth' to be enforced, a 'Reader's Digest' form of Her too vast and too demanding experience. On this dubious basis, the Governing Board assumes a new function: it becomes the place where the legitimate truth of Auroville is enunciated – the Mount Sinai of our collectivity in the making, as it were...

From this basis also comes the call to show our goodwill by following the official line with enthusiasm and gratitude; which makes implicitly (for the moment) of those who are reluctant to it people of bad will. What are we going to do with these ones?

But a court must make its decision effective. Here is still a missing element, but no doubt the next step will be to set up some sort of internal exit process, where Aurovilians of 'goodwill' with a high sense of duty will obligingly get rid of their undesirable brothers; otherwise, how can 'the truth' (it's a pity to see how this beautiful word which should be a liberating and enlarging one becomes an enslaving one) be victorious against 'falsehood'? Yes, Aurovilians will do this...!

Then what has worked so well, so 'expeditiously', in the Matrimandir question can be applied to other domains like economy, education and collective organisation. It is so efficient. We only have to be carried towards our aims by some sort of Big Brother (BBGB?)!

All this can happen because of a fundamental weakness of ours: we have never accepted to put into practice one of Mother's indications which She formulated several times under several forms: do not insist on your point of view but widen it so that it can include the others in a higher harmony where they become complementary to each other... We forget that if we refuse this path, Auroville is impossible. We never had the courage to believe in it, stand for it and try it out sincerely and firmly. This is our common comfortable little cowardice which we prefer to cover with big words of self-justification. Something in our human nature refuses to make this step, to surrender to Her vast integrality. Instead of challenging the Mother, we would better accept to be challenged by Her. 'Will you accept the vast freedom of my all-inclusive Truth as the law of your progress?'

I don't use exact quotations since in these days exact quotations are used to consolidate exclusivism. I find it therefore healthier, almost as an act of spiritual hygiene, to start from whatever understanding of Her we have treasured in ourselves over the years, and to present it as a contribution to some emerging common and living understanding we finally must arrive at. I believe that each Aurovillian should be able to stand for whatever truth he can seize in his relation to Auroville and to the Mother – She the Supreme, She the Consciousness, She the Delight – and be firmly faithful to it. Not to cling stupidly to this truth's exclusive partiality, but make it an indispensable starting point for a final 'complex unity', so that we can accept our diversity and explore our unity, progressively learning how to grow together out of our limitations into something vast and all-reconciling: a true totality.

And as a starting point to stand for, I feel closer to the flame I find in Arjun's letter than to the rather ambiguous and too skilful sweetness of our Chairman: to me such a position is more reliable if we are at all to build finally this Auroville Mother put in our groping but aspiring hands.

Jean Yves"

Note: The Aurovilians of the Auroville Council and Working Committee sent a note of dismissal to Arjun and me; they thanked us for our many years of excellent work and trusted that we understood it was now time to make room for others. I have misplaced this note.

Note: We did not budge and went on with our work on site.

Perhaps the Working Committee did not feel entirely comfortable going ahead on such a course of elimination without some wider formal support; perhaps they were advised by the Chairman that precautions must be taken to ensure that a semblance of community support was ensured.

On the 7th of August, they had already convened a general meeting; now they made an appeal to every resident of Auroville to formally answer a series of loaded questions by "yes" or "no". This appeal was carefully worded and underlined their good-willed innocence:

From the AV Council/Working Committee to all Aurovilians, August 12, 2003:

"Dear Aurovilians,

Following the recent decisions of the Governing Board and its Finance Committee in relation to the management of the Matrimandir Construction, there has been a rapidly deteriorating situation at the Matrimandir site. Recently several letters have been written by the individuals in control at Matrimandir to members of the Governing Board criticising the actions taken by them. The Governing Board felt it was necessary to protect itself from possible legal action by the Matrimandir Executives, and therefore filed a Caveat in court so that no adverse action can be taken without prior notice. The main sufferer in this state of affairs is the community of Auroville as the situation has been draining the energy of the community for so long and is so contrary to the ideals given to us by the Mother.

The Auroville Council/Working Committee believes that the actions taken by the Governing Board (the appointment of a Core Group for the Matrimandir) and the Finance Committee (the co-signing of cheques by the Secretary-in-Charge) were made necessary because the Residents Assembly and the Auroville Council/Working Committee have been unable to resolve the conflict at the Matrimandir site between those people controlling the management of the site and the Architect of the Matrimandir. We believe that these actions of the Governing Board and Finance Committee are in the best interests of Auroville, at least as a temporary measure, until we are able to bring harmony and a spirit of collaboration to the day-to-day functioning of the site by ourselves.

The Auroville Council/Working Committee believes that the community of Auroville should no longer be a helpless spectator to what is happening at the Matrimandir. We believe that it is urgent and necessary that the community asserts itself in relation to the progress and development of Matrimandir so that a situation can be created which re-establishes the deep links that we all have to the Matrimandir.

The Auroville Council/Working Committee presented a proposal for a change of management at Matrimandir to a General Meeting called for that purpose on Thursday, August 7th. At the meeting it was made clear that the proposals were not in opposition to the decisions of the Governing Board and the position of the Architect. The meeting further agreed with the Auroville Council/Working Committee that feedback should be taken from the entire community. We request you to give us your feedback to the following proposals, which are on the reverse page.

Thanking you,

Auroville Council/Working Committee"

. Proposals for the consideration of the members of the Residents Assembly, i.e. all Aurovilians.

1. A new site management be constituted for Matrimandir composed of competent people who are accountable to the community and are willing to collaborate with the Architect.

(I agree: . I do not agree: .)

2. The new site management team be chosen in consultation with the Residents Assembly at the earliest.

(I agree: . I do not agree: .)

3. Those persons presently in charge of the finances and the work-force be asked to step back from their positions until such time as a new atmosphere of harmony, collaboration and goodwill can be established at the site.

(I agree: . I do not agree: .)

4. Preliminary specific studies, research and experiments concerning the gardens and the lake be undertaken in collaboration with the Architect, consultants and the Residents of Auroville.

(I agree: . I do not agree;)

Name: . Community: . Signature: .

Note: I do not recall how much feed-back was actually said to have been received. But there was no doubt that it would be sufficient for their purposes.

In another General Meeting that was then held, Abha tried to speak up, but felt too stifled by the atmosphere of it. So she decided to write up her mind, as clearly as she could, and posted an Open letter the same day:

To the Working Committee/AV Council, from Abha, 11th August, 2003:

"I was unfortunately too emotional at your meeting this morning – I ill expressed my thoughts. It was difficult to speak in a roomful of opposite thinking people, many of whom so obviously showed impatience, hostility, or just that they were humouring me in allowing a few minutes disruption in the unanimous direction of thought.

I will now put my thoughts more clearly in writing.

1. Your reaction to the governing board's action (based on nothing more substantial than a 'reasonable suspicion'!) of filing a caveat in 4 district courts against 4 fellow Aurovilians is shocking. Instead of strongly condemning this action, your reaction is smug and complacent acceptance. You appal me. You say that the action is not serious. Please! At least do not kid yourself. How can you, the body representing the residents of Auroville, take such a view? Of course it is serious – at so many levels. The court caveat should have been strongly condemned and refused in no uncertain terms. Especially in light of the recent drama of visas not renewed.

2. You say that the Matrimandir accounts have not been 'taken over'? When each and every payment for Matrimandir is questioned about its 'legality' by the secretary and each and every cheque has to be countersigned by him? This is not to be defined as 'taking over' the accounts? Ask any unit holder what this means for the day to day running of a unit. Come on, at least face facts up front and do not mask actions with deceiving words to make them acceptable.
3. You also shock me with your statement that the WC is an 'organ' of the governing body. Indeed you are acting by that. But the WC is supposed to be the voice of Auroville, to liaise with the GB. When an action which is inimical to the very ideals of Auroville is taken (such as the caveats in court), then it is your voice which should be raised in protest first.

'Auroville will be a site of material and spiritual researches for a living embodiment of an actual human unity.'

This is the 4th point of Auroville's Charter. Surely at the very soul of Auroville, only those actions should be taken which call for this. It is your role to ensure this.

I find that the present actions which are being taken by you as the instrument of the GB are as 'off' from the very fundamental principles of Auroville as the GB's action itself. But considering the mantle which you have consciously donned as their instrument, I suppose it is only to be accepted.

4. About your draft for a new management team at Matrimandir. This can only lead to still greater confusion than anything we have seen so far. The differing viewpoints HAVE TO BE harmonised for a true solution to come about – no matter how long this takes. You are not going to wipe out those differing views by government intervention and court caveats and management changes. Time will prove this.
5. To end: I do not have the answer to the present impasse; except this – in 'Savitri', during the debate between Death and Savitri, she replies to him at one point: 'O Death, thou speakest Truth but Truth that slays; I answer to thee with the Truth that saves.'

What is presently being sought to be implemented is, at best, a Truth that slays, because it ignores the very basis of Auroville.

We HAVE TO FIND TOGETHER THE Truth that saves. No matter how long it takes. Surely even you can see that?

Abha"

Note: On August 15, JYL wrote another Open Letter, this time addressed to the Governing Board:

Open Letter to the Governing Board, by Jean Yves, August 15, 2003:

“Dear Members of the Governing Board,

Arjun’s letter of June 21st raised important points which have not yet been taken into consideration, the style of the letter having distracted the readers from its contents. But we can always go to the quieter enquiries of reason and dig up more deeply and precisely the issues that are at stake; since Auroville is a place for research, it is as a researcher that I would like to invite you, by this open letter, to some fundamental questioning.

Auroville being a society in the making and not only a legal body, the central question of its polity lies in the process of legitimation: how do you make decisions legitimate? Throughout history, two ways have been tried out and combined: the transcendent authority of the word of God (or of Science) and the general will of the people. The key to unite the people lies in the transcendent, this stock of living values they agree to believe in, to implement in their collective life or, better, to become in their inner and outer nature. The sensitive point has always been to determine who possesses this transcendent word, or how it has to be interpreted. Auroville has a unique feature, which makes of it a real beginning for a new way of making a society: the Truth the Mother refers to as its foundation is to be discovered experimentally and not imposed from above by the mind. And this Truth is not exclusive but all-inclusive, synthetic and capable therefore to harmonise what seems to be divergent or antagonist. Therefore our capacity to harmonise and synthesise our antagonisms will give us the exact measure of our realisation of Auroville’s ideals. It is this feature which makes Auroville a unique experiment in Human Unity, for if all the conflicting values cannot be reconciled in a comprehensive view, if one has to win over and suppress the others, then human unity is impossible, at least in a progressive and harmonious way. The process of harmonisation by mutual inclusion is therefore one of our most central guidelines, I would say a strategic value in our development policies.

In the Matrimandir issue, the Governing Board has decided to invalidate it. Even the very precise and relevant statement of the Mother about Matrimandir work, saying that Paolo and Roger should work together and why (Mother’s Agenda, 31-12-69) has been ignored. Incapable therefore of including the Matrimandir Workers Team’ views and to combine them with Roger’s approach, or to invite Aurovilians to do so in fidelity to their law of development, it had to go for legal means in order to impose a unilateral exclusive view, far more simple to deal with. But all the legal means of the world cannot abrogate the Mother’s guidelines that are available to every Aurovilian and which make Auroville so unique, and the Governing Board’s decisions will appear more and more as based on an illegitimate ground, therefore undermine at the outset, which is not a healthy situation. Moreover, we will have the issue of the Matrimandir Gardens for years on our table, because no true solution has been found. If you doubt it, just imagine the situation once it has been settled that a huge lake will be there: its realisation will be stuck in its financial dimensions and technical incertitude, and will only leave an empty space around Matrimandir, as also time for endless discussions without prospect of practical solutions, and without any method of reconciliation, since the only one that was given to us by the Mother had been rejected.

But this is not all: the Governing Board has expressed an official interpretation about the Mother's words, an orthodox one, so to say, as a Church would do. And Aurovilians are officially invited to follow and implement the Governing Board's line with 'Harmony, Goodwill, Discipline and a quest for Truth'. To follow... From Mother's indication to find the truth in ourselves and discover it experimentally together, we are now invited to follow those who have found it and explained it for us. The loss of meaning is immense and the poorness of the proposal obvious according to any serious philosophical criteria. Is this what remains of Her adventure in the Unknown of Tomorrow? Is this the final outcome of Sri Aurobindo's vast synthetic and reconciling thought? Who will believe this?

But this is not all: since Aurovilians of 'goodwill' are invited to follow, what about those who will not feel like following this line? If they are not of goodwill, what are they? What is their place in Auroville's development? Have they still a place? Aren't they virtually out? How can the question not arise? In this context, what are we supposed to understand of our Chairman's insistence in having an Exit Group constituted? How does it relate to the situation of the foreign Aurovilians, once free men and women from free countries, who may now be exposed to arbitrary administrative measures without any protection, as if they were citizens of nowhere? Was it necessary to point so nominatively at those who do not show the correct sort of goodwill?

Thus, in the name of Harmony, the process of harmonisation has been denied, and in the name of goodwill, bad will suggests itself. And this is not due to the malignancy of any of the Governing Board Members, of course, who only try to be as helpful as they can to Auroville in the little time they can give to it; it is more serious than that, it belongs to the type of approach and mode of action that have been chosen to deal with Auroville's issues: the pretence of one truth to win over the others with its inevitable consequences, which all the goodwill of the members of the Governing Board together will not be able to counterbalance.

But this is not all: in its haste to find 'expeditious' solutions – and let's recognise the discomfort of your situation of having to solve an Aurovilian problem the Aurovilians do not seem keen to solve by themselves – the Governing Board has founded some of its decisions on a very precarious basis, on pure allegations. When Roger states that 60 lakhs have been wasted in the gardens, one could expect the Finance Committee to enquire and take advantage of the sophisticated cost accounting system of Matrimandir to know what the truth is; but by some inexplicable phenomenon, this didn't happen. Result: a false statement is now officially recorded in the Finance Committee's minutes, echoed in the Governing Board's ones, both of which having been abundantly distributed by the Chairman to a Residents Assembly under his moral authority. The false has become recognised truth... How fragile a basis for decision making! Its legality may be perfect, its legitimacy and credibility are quite hazardous, and I would not bet on them in the long term.

But there is more: some members of the Governing Board thought that some Aurovilians might have envisaged to put a stay order to counteract the Governing Board's decisions. The fact is that for these Aurovilians, as for many others who have been protesting against the use of legal means to manage Auroville, the use of courts and lawyers is out of question. But does it matter any more? What people really think and believe in, what they stand for, their faithful commitment to Auroville, does all this still have any relevance? The 'might have done' replaces what is, the unreal the real, and the accusation produces retroactively its own justification: many people in Auroville are now convinced that the Caveat was put because the four Aurovilians pointed at really meant to put a stay order: the Caveat proves the stay order. The unreal has become a believed-in imaginary reality, against which no defence is possible, as Socrates pointed out long ago in his own case. A more prudent use could have been made of the Chairman's position. The passage from the field of knowledge where his contribution has been so inspiring, to the field of influence, then of legal control, is a very delicate one, which touches very centrally at all the mechanisms of power at work in any society and the commerce they have with spiritual truths to reinforce themselves. I understand his wish to make Auroville move ahead, and certainly his action will make it move in some ways, by churning it deeply I hope, but his action falls within our field of research and you can understand that it becomes then an object of direct questioning and scrutiny.

When the false becomes official truth and object of collective belief, when the unreal becomes recognised reality, when the meaning men give to their action is not listened to anymore, doesn't count anymore, we are already drifting away from Auroville's ideals, from any possible ideal. As a son of Europe, I would summarise my point in a nutshell by saying that we have to choose between the faithful constant questioning of Socrates, who knows he doesn't know, and Plato's geometrical order of certitudes, where philosophers dream of becoming kings. Socrates had a bad destiny in Europe; does he have a chance in India?

I invite you to consider seriously the above mentioned points, for they touch at what is fundamental to Auroville and at our fidelity to Sri Aurobindo and the Mother, far beyond the reach of any court of law.

With my best regards,

Jean Yves"

Note: All arguments seeking to establish the legitimacy of the Chairman's actions were derived from his initial choice to install the "Chief Architect" as the supreme authority over all matters at Matrimandir; therefore, what was not approved by him now was to be deemed 'illegal', and thus our spending funds on works not wanted by him now constituted dereliction of duty; in the same fashion, our negative protest and rebellion against this new dispensation pointed inevitably to the possible danger of wreckage for this new established hierarchical structure.

We went on with our daily work. The Workers Team continued to meet regularly, once or twice a week. The atmosphere on site was often very taut with tensions, as a number of determined supporters of "the architect" were positioning themselves, seeking to influence the workers, and generally making it clear to me particularly – as I was the most exposed on site – that every day was counted. But somehow, it was not overwhelming, and there was calm and peace in me. I did not try to convince anyone, I did not like to argue for or against; I stayed on because it was my place, the place of my heart, and because I didn't want to let Arjun down, and because I was too bound to the workers, and because I still had faith that this could not be the way Auroville would go – there would be a Grace saving us from such a narrowing of meaning in our lives here.

On September 17, 2003, Arjun and I received an official letter, on Auroville Foundation Letterhead, from the Working Committee:

To Mr. Arjun and Mr. Divakar, from the Working Committee of the Residents Assembly, Auroville Foundation, Wednesday, September 17, 2003:

“Dear Arjun and Divakar:

You have done a tremendous work for Auroville at the Matrimandir over the past twenty or so years, and on behalf of the community we thank you. However we have decided after consulting the community that in the best interest of the community the time has come for you to step back from your positions as coordinators of finances and workers.

Therefore we request you to resign voluntarily, effective before the end of September.

Again thank you for your service,

Fraternally,

The Working Committee/Auroville Council,
Signed by Sanjeev, Renu, Selvraj, Jaya, Ulli, Peter, Janet, Mauna, Swadha, Jyothi, Joy, Ashatit”

Note: The Matrimandir Workers Team met the next day or so; by that time, several people had shied away from the escalating drama – perhaps aiming at being able to remain in position, whatever the outcome might turn out to be, or simply out of a wish not to become unpopular. The buzzing in the market seemed to indicate that the ship was sinking, and one had to be rather independent and well-poised in one’s own understanding of things not to waver and seek the safety of shore. But others stayed on and didn’t think too much of the consequences; to them, whatever the outcome, this was a worthy stand, more meaningful and vibrant.

The Team together drafted and finalised a statement, which was then posted and circulated:

A Note to the Community, from the Matrimandir Workers Team, 20 September 2003:

“Auroville Council’s attempt to remove individuals from the management who question Roger’s design of the Matrimandir Peace Area is actually an attempt to side-step the issue of disagreement over the vision and building of the Matrimandir. The use of legal means to try to achieve this removal is to be condemned. This kind of politics is in direct contradiction to the spirit of Auroville. Nor does it bode well when a single individual, such as Roger, is put upon a pedestal of absolute power over the Matrimandir, the soul of Auroville. This definitely rules out all dialogue and rather creates an environment of intolerance and fanaticism. Whereas, regarding the Matrimandir, the Mother repeatedly stressed the need to rise to a level of harmony where the most opposite tendencies meet.

'... Now for me, things are no longer exclusive, not at all. I very clearly see the possibility of using the most opposite tendencies AT THE SAME TIME... with some slight deftness, that's all. It's not exclusive. I don't say 'Ah, no, not his!' No, no, no: everything, all of it together. That's what I want, to succeed in creating a place where all contraries can be united. That... Unless we can do that... (gesture in circle) it just goes on and on, we go on and on...' (Mother's Agenda, 31st December 1969).

The legitimacy of the claim made by the Auroville Council that it represents the wishes of the entire community, through a game of votes and numbers, is questionable. In reality, most of the community refuses to participate in such a false process of voting and numbers.

Rather than resorting to such falsehood, the Auroville Council should instead genuinely attempt to make the entire community aware of the issue at hand – the disagreement over the vision of how Matrimandir must be built.

We aspire to realise the Mother's vision of the Matrimandir as the soul of Auroville with its sanctuary and soul-space of Gardens, Lake and Park. Roger's design which seeks instead to reduce the Matrimandir into a mere monumental City Centre is in direct contradiction to the Mother's recorded statements.

We choose to stand by the firm decision to address the issue at hand through dialogue and refuse to give way to the strong-armed tactics of the Auroville Council. We hope that the entire community will join us in this endeavour to realise the Matrimandir and its Peace Area (Gardens, Lake and Park).

As Mother has so emphatically stated:

'You must all agree. That is THE ONLY way to do good work' (2nd April 1970 – Mother on Auroville).

The Matrimandir Workers Team,

20 September 2003"

Note: In the meantime, a growing number of people had questioned the project of building a huge lake in the centre of Auroville, such as Roger A and Harald Kraft had promoted. Several Aurovilians had got their expertises together and drafted a very comprehensive study and assessment of the entire project as presented by Harald Kraft and questioned every part of it, and its implications in sociological, ecological, ethical, financial terms as well as in terms of the spirit of Auroville. Even financially, the project had been deemed by the Governing Board itself as unacceptable and rather insane.

On September 20th 2003, this team of Aurovilians, some of whom had been engaged for many years into water conservation works in the entire bio-region and obtained very tangible results and gained much understanding, published a voluminous study, including 11 Annexures, with diagrams and a large body of relevant data. As a castle of sand, the whole edifice which the "Architect" had used for the timely destruction of the Outer Gardens/Park of Matrimandir was collapsing. But it did not really matter any longer. The deed was virtually done. The future destiny of the area between the Oval Island and the city could wait as a no man's land. What mattered to the "Architect" was then, and is now, that his authority was established and no obstruction would be left between his concept of the city and physical reality.

I was certain that the Aurovilians themselves, whether they were temporarily members of this or that group, would never have the shakti to carry out these orders on their own; until that day, not one Aurovilian had ever been able to come straight out and tell me any of this; only a couple of newcomers had ventured to let me know what they had gathered was the general trend or mood. Unless and until the same Aurovilians would be armed with some actual legal, official order, they would not find it in themselves to come and tell us physically to move out of Matrimandir. I was right, too!

But I felt, those days just after receiving their letter of "thanks", that I wanted at least this time to let them know what I thought! So I wrote another, unpopular, letter! This too was posted and circulated.

Open Communication – 21-9-2003 – from Divakar:

"To those who have put their names to the shameful act of ordering two of their brothers to quit from their life-service to the Mother.

You are in deep trouble, not Arjun, not me.

I choose to trust that this 'community' of which you have become the voice is NOT Auroville, for it is not worthy of Auroville.

Its methods and processes are a-dharmic.

And all those who wit pretty and wrinkle their nose in distaste at the 'conflict of egos' over Matrimandir would do well to think more deeply.

For, what is this 'community' (180 in the last count?) on behalf of which you speak and act?

A temporary coalition of vested interests.

And what has it nurtured and supported?

Vicious slander, hysterical build-up of the most negative formations, groupisme and division, manipulation of opinion, corrupting influences – and, more seriously, the misuse of the provisions of the Auroville Foundation Act for the sake of personal ambition, revenge and spite.

Thus what was meant as a protection for the adventure of Auroville has now been turned, with your servile and self-serving support, into a tool of arbitrary rule, exposing Auroville to hostility.

You have deemed it acceptable to spearhead this vendetta of sorts against two of us while assuming a posture of righteousness.

But, pray, what exactly are you accusing us of?

What principle, what law of Auroville have we, according to you, betrayed?

Which written or unwritten agreement have we, according to you, broken?

The truth of the matter is that you have no grounds, no ethical grounds, on which you may justifiably 'request us to voluntarily resign'.

And I will tell you, and I want it to be on record, that what you are doing is more damaging to Auroville than whatever 'outside' forces have tried to do so far.

'The Matrimandir wants to be the symbol of the Universal Mother according to Sri Aurobindo's teaching'.

Is this not the expression of a reality infinitely more potent than all time-bound political alignments may ever conjure?

Divakar"

Note: The puzzling question was, all through, that none of this – neither that nor this position – ever seemed to evoke any response in the 'silent majority' of Auroville (about 2000 people by then); either they couldn't be bothered or, for some reason that eluded us, the points any one was making lacked the clarity or the import to elicit this response. It left us with the impression of enacting some drama in a void, even though the intensity and essentiality of the issue was perfectly tangible to us.

Once again, Deepti wrote out, K.T wrote out, a few others wrote out, who had that perhaps silly and old-fashioned courage to expose themselves and to stand fearlessly for what they felt and believed mattered more than the comfort of popularity and quiescent agreement.

Deepti's first response went out at the same time as mine:

Snakes and ladders – Reflections upon the Auroville Council's recent gratuitous action -, by Deepti, 21-9-2003:

"The Auroville Council has arrogated to itself the presumptuous right to decide who, when, where, and how (yet to be unveiled) is to be 'removed'!

They know the truth and the right and plan to act upon their 'mandate'?

This 'force', that ever wants to DICTATE to Auroville, seems never in dearth of pigmy natures falling over themselves to be its instruments. Fatuity is indeed the worst human folly for it seldom recognises its own insanity, and the AVC has doggedly cornered the current monopoly. As a result, Auroville is once more tumbled helter-skelter down that descending ladder to stare agape into the snake-pit!

The Supreme, unfortunately, forgot to consult the present Auroville Council while setting the timeless conditions for Auroville's way of being: no 'element' necessary for a particular situation can be 'removed' – this is a law of the Divine. And Matrimandir is the place where ALL ELEMENTS must meet – for only so will it BE Matrimandir. Auroville's battle-scarred history ought to have taught people something; but it seems the lesson remains yet unlearned and human imbecility continues to assume that Auroville's affairs can be run on the engine power of the lower vital! However, it's not hatred and jealousy, personal agendas and uncontrolled ambitions, or, for that matter, the desire to destroy what is incomprehensible, that can decide the future of Auroville. Still, such attitudes do needlessly complicate Auroville's present actuality!

Only nincompoops would presume that this letter of 'dismissal' and the moving in of the 4 new 'pretenders', are the last word on the Matrimandir muddle! Shakespeare speaks of a Divinity which shapes our ends to make them quite other than we intend. You may act, certainly – and even be applauded by your assorted 'rah rah' boys and girls – but surely even you don't imagine that you will be able to control where this action takes Auroville whose present aspect recalls forcefully the Gita's yantrarudhani maya.

You 12, very late comers in a 34 years mess, who presume to paint the Matrimandir story in your own particular ego shades, may rest assured: your colours can hardly take! For: 'The power of division is unsteady and impermanent; union works for a steady power and a harmonious future'.

You might have done better choosing the up-ladder: worked genuinely for Union by remaining even-handed. The usual guttersnipes would have attacked you, but you would at least have 'lifted' the standards of your office! The wisdom that ought to have suggested silence and restraint and which might have behoved a group meant to represent all of Auroville (not just its favourite viewpoint) is of course missing. Even your foolish, manipulative 'opinion poll' got less than 15% feedback. This in itself should have been the message: Aurovilians are largely still not responsive to such disreputable means (and perhaps therein alone lies the seed for restoring health to diseased collective processes).

You 12 signatories: Sanjeev, Ulli, Renu, Joy, Janet, Mauna, Jaya, Ashatit, Jyothi, Selvraj, Swadha, Peter – should know that your action says more about you than about the situation! What a spiteful, unnecessary little addition to what is already a horrible mess! 'The world is full of pitiable miseries but they are most to be pitied who are so small and so weak that they cannot avoid being nasty' – Mother.

It is most unfortunate that such protests are called for; but your determination to bring down upon Auroville that which will be much worse than the present needs some dissent, even if it will be sneeringly put aside!

Deepti"

To the Working Committee & Auroville Council, from Krishna Tewari, 23-9-2003:

"Dear Members,

I am really shocked to read the letter you have written to Divakar and Arjun asking them to stop their work at Matrimandir. You have volunteered (not been chosen, mind you!) to be a member of the WC/AC. I trust you are conscious of the fact that you are meant to represent the totality of Auroville and bear a special responsibility to live up to the Ideals at the service of Truth. You have issued the 'order' on behalf of the Community. Which community are you representing? Less than 15% of the adult members who responded to your politically motivated opinion poll? Do you realise that more than 85% of the Aurovilians including myself deliberately ignored your opinion poll – rejecting the approach adopted by you? And you have done this at the very Soul of Auroville, at Matrimandir which is meant to embody that New Consciousness which, as the Mother said, 'insists' upon harmonising all contraries! I wish you had insisted on cooperation and harmony as I have been pleading.

Your action is based on falsehood and to claim a mandate to pronounce a judgement on two dedicated and devoted Aurovilians is intolerable, to say the least. It seems that you have learnt nothing from Auroville's couple of decades old history. Mother has given no 'right' to anyone to exclude or expel.

Have you given any thought to the idea of the cost that Auroville as a whole will have to pay for your ill advised, ill considered and arrogant action? I can only advise you to reflect again on the course of action you have chosen. I am sending copies of this letter to the members of the Governing Board.

Love,

Krishna T"

Note: Walter and Kusum also lodged their open protests!

To the Auroville Council, from Walter, 24 September 2003:

"Don't you think that you are taking yourselves far too seriously?

You have the arrogance to thank two Aurovilians for their dedicated work? They have never worked for you! They work at Matrimandir – you don't. You and those backing you up politically play no role in their relationship with Matrimandir. I have learned in life that we all come on earth to fulfil our contract with the Divine in us, as it were, and you have never been asked to be brokers in the matter. So the question of asking Arjun and Divakar to resign or the idea of removing them by political/legal means does not even come up. You can go on playing God and show yourselves to everybody in utter ridiculousness. But you need to understand that the price that Auroville has to pay for your action is high.

There are at least two ways to deflate the ego. One is surrender. The other is to keep pumping the ego up until it bursts automatically. The choice is yours!

Your line of action – exclusiveness, removal and so on – in the past, now and in the future stands rejected.

Regards,

Walter"

To the Auroville Council/Working Committee, from Kusum, 24-09-2003:

"You are it seems in a greater hurry than the Divine: remove Arjun and Divakar from Matrimandir! You are now even a step ahead of Mother – She who never wanted to 'remove' anybody.

I must salute your self-belief!

As you are so busy taking Auroville away from Mother's directions you may not have the time for self-analysis.

Every single action you have taken since June has been harmful for Auroville and simply nasty towards those who are your brother Aurovilians. You have even 'supported' the court action. Shame on you!

Auroville is to be pitied that it is led by such falsehood.
May Mother protect Auroville!

Kusum Shah"

Note: The Aurovilians involved with the 'movement of change' at Matrimandir must have been promised a legal order of some sort, even though it was a little slow in coming.

Personally, up until the very last day, I did not "feel" that it would come to such a turn and a drop; what was constantly up in my consciousness was the significance there was in the choice before everyone, a significance that was incommensurate with our very small persons, for it was a matter of orientation that could but have incalculable consequences in future – perhaps not in the very long term, for the truth of this world is bound to triumph, but in the near future. It was as if Auroville was to become a showcase instead of the site of an actual adventure and becoming – as if effectively the fourth dimension was cut off from our experience together and we would be forced to continue in the ordinary physical consciousness...

On October 8, 2003, we received the following e-mail, just like a dance step; this time the orchestra was ready:

From the Working Committee to Arjun and Divakar, 8-10-2003:

"Dear Arjun and Divakar,

Following our note to you to voluntarily step back from your respective positions at Matrimandir, and the fact that there was no response from your side, we have now officially requested the Secretary of the AV Foundation to formally appoint the four Aurovilians - Andy Martens, Divya Kapur, Gilles Guigan and Michael Tait – as executives and any two of them as bank signatories.

Yours sincerely,

Valli for WC/AC"

Note: The next day, I wrote out to all:

Why it is that I do not wish to obey... By Divakar, October 9, 2003:

"This (the e-mailed intimation) is only the latest in a series of steps taken in the name of the 'community' heralding a whole other understanding of the adventure of Auroville.

It is for instance interesting to note that while by and large in the history of Auroville until recently such terms as 'executives' were seen and felt as mere conventions, required as tools of communication with the 'outside world' but devoid of any substance in the context of shared commitment and service to the Mother and to Auroville, a shift of perspective has crept in so effectively that there is now hardly any protest at the shameless use of legalities to remove 'opposition'.

I shall say here why I still resist the rulings of the AC/WC as well as of the Chairman of the GB.

It is because they are mere screens to cover and/or disguise the shift that is being operated, by all means available, in the direction of Auroville.

Instead of these many loaded agendas and these pretences at opinion polls that have been aimed at the people of Auroville, here are the questions that ought to have been presented to all, the proposed directions on which everyone ought to have been asked to pronounce:

- 1- Can the person of the 'Architect' be recognised by all as having absolute authority?
- 2- Can the 'Architect's decisions' overrule all inner laws given by the Mother to serve the advent of unity and true agreement?
- 3- Are the 'Architect's statements' to take precedence over all recorded and written statements issued by the Mother, on the sole basis of Her having appointed him?

When these questions have been answered by all members of the present Auroville and a consensus has been obtained, then one can begin to sort out individual positions.

I choose to continue in the trust that:

- A. The Mother's own stated wish for the Matrimandir is to be realised in its entirety.
- B. The Mother's directions for true agreement and genuine collaboration are the key to the only viable future.

It does seem today that the spoken majority has not only yielded and/or welcomed the advent of an exclusive rule but also agreed that just about all means are acceptable to achieve this rule, regardless of the precedents it creates for the future of Auroville.

But if that is allowed to become a fact, it may also mean that the people of Auroville have not been worthy of the autonomy they have been granted.

Divakar"

Note: On October 10, the following note was addressed to "the Matrimandir Workers"; it was not clear whether that term covered all employees and paid workers or only the Aurovilians working there. This was written on the AV Foundation letterhead, for the Working Committee of the Residents Assembly:

To the Matrimandir Workers, from the AV Council/Working Committee, Friday, October 10, 2003:

"Dear Friends,

As you are probably aware many changes have been taking place in the management structure of the Matrimandir. We, the Working Committee and the Auroville Council would like to meet all of you to explain what is happening at the workshop on Monday, October 13th at 3.00 PM. We request all of you to be present.

Fraternally,

Valli"

Note: On that Monday, the 13th of October 2003, I went to work as usual, and so did Arjun, he in his upstairs office by the small entrance to the area, and I rounding the site and sitting with my registers and working papers in the open office overlooking the sphere, which everyone called "50", after its intercom phone number. The atmosphere was bizarre. I came to know the weirdest stories had been floated, to feed the support for my removal – one of the latest concoctions being buzzed abroad by none other than my friend and sister of another life, Jacqueline, was that I had been, as a routine practice, slipping extra monies in separate envelopes to the workers on wages distribution days, so as to ensure their support; another one was that I was the one to screen new employees and workers, particularly among the "security guards" so as to obtain only those who would be willing to go to bed with me! There seemed to be no actual limit other than one's imagination to the range of stories that could be told about, or rather against, Arjun or I...

That morning, I drafted two notes at my table, which never had a chance to go out. One was a last-ditch effort at veering away from this ugly little victory; the other was a demand for decency to the Secretary:

A Collective statement of Intent – suggested by Divakar, October 13, 2003 (unused draft):

"There is only one solution: you must all agree." The Mother.

"Recognising the higher value of true agreement and its essential necessity for the true and harmonious growth of Auroville, the Community of Auroville chooses, rather than the harmful path of one viewpoint imposing its rule, to give time for the all-inclusive solution to emerge.

A moratorium of 2 years is decreed during which period only those parts of the work that have the agreement of all concerned will be completed, while all the rest will only be maintained as per the present state of development.

The Community of Auroville commits itself to assisting the emergence of the necessary solution."

Note: This note was partly inspired by a very gentle Aurovilian, Yehuda, a fine psychologist who actually plied his trade in Auroville as a psychotherapist along with his wife; we had never had much contact, but he had just come up with a sort of plea that perhaps it was not too late for all to agree on a moratorium that would give time for another direction to emerge. As I write this in September 2005, Yehuda has now left his body, just two weeks back; alone in his house in Auroville, he was only found a day later!

The other note to the Secretary was inspired by a kind of delayed shock at the cavalier, callous and basically grossly stupid manner in which the then Secretary, a Mr. Sharma whom I had never even met (but who went very far, later on, to harm me, till he was removed from his post even before the end of his term, just as the Chairman was removed from his before his term), had acted in this recent period. It would have taken more work on it, and a little extra time for Arjun and I to agree on the exact wording: a time which we were not to have!

To the Secretary, 13-10-03 (unused draft):

"We are told that you have complied with the request made to you by the members of the Working Committee/AV Council to remove us from our respective functions of Executive and Bank signatory as well as of in-charge of Labour and Finances at the Matrimandir.

You must be aware that no due and fair process of verification has taken place for whatever charges may have been laid, either officiously or officially, against us.

It is therefore our right to demand that you formally and officially discharge us of all and any responsibility towards all users of the Matrimandir, towards the labour of Matrimandir, towards all donors to the Matrimandir, towards all visitors to the Matrimandir, towards all suppliers to the Matrimandir, as well as of the responsibility to see that the Matrimandir is completed according to the Mother's stated wishes.

At the service of Truth,

Divakar"

Note: This last was also dictated by the sense of outrage at the clever way this was all being done: for in fact there was no order issued to "dismiss" us; no charges were levelled against us; it was all very smooth: the actual orders were merely appointing new executives and installing them in our seats! Thus, Michael T and Divya K were to take over Arjun's work, who was supposed to have simply vanished; while Andy was to take my job – he was careful not to show his face ever to me while I was still there! As for G.G, my old friend, I cannot recall what was to be his official function!

Was it on the 13th, or on the 14th, I cannot now remember, that in the afternoon I saw, from my table at "50", moving across the inner gardens area like a regiment, about 20 or so Aurovilians: the entire Auroville Council and some of their friends! They had their paper: that official, legal order was in their hands; it was done! They walked over; they now had the shakti to come to me and tell me my fate.

Only Kumar was with me – an employee, who therefore could only watch in silence; they crowded into that small space, and those who would not fit in just stood out by the many openings, not about to miss any of the show. In front of them all I picked up the interphone and dialled Arjun's number, to verify that they had already gone to him; just as if they couldn't hear me I gave him a vivid description of the scene: we had to laugh; as so often in our many years of solidarity humour was the one sure refuge and dignity. One of them, Sanjeev, had assumed the role of spokesman, but the others were not too thrilled with his performance; they wanted more punch; another, I do not recall who, made to say that of course I could remain at Matrimandir, join the work somewhere and somehow, provided that I would not obstruct the progress of collaboration... I declined, and said that as they had built their mansion they could now live in it.

I also said to them that I could not feel respect for their 'process' which had to make use of legalities to obtain the desired results, and turn Aurovilians into Government servants, appointed by its machinery to rule its behalf...

John H had by then entered the room and managed to sit by me; in some measure it was for my sake, as he was concerned there could be some physical violence from some of them; but I saw too that there was equally in him a measure of adopting the new order of things, of making his own adaptable stand known to them.

I had taken my decision, silently. I would not pick a fight with them; I would not give them the pleasure of having to use more of their new-found stamina, simply because for me to remain a day longer would put the workers in a miserable embarrassment.

But I said nothing of this to the group of Aurovilians. I only stated that I would see what I would do.

They had to leave and move on to the rest of their round; they went over to the workshops, to "explain" to the workers there their intentions, and the goodwill and harmony which would soon be established, and how they would be taken care of...

This was my last day at Matrimandir.

There was nothing for me to take away; everything was in order. There was nothing for me to hand over: all registers and records were there, open, accessible, and updated.

I came home. It was evening.

Pnina was there. She had been visiting from Benares, postponing since weeks her return there, as she felt worried and too concerned to turn away from what was happening to me.

At night, Manikandan came, to tell me he had also quit.

Arjun would not let go; for two or three weeks he made it a point not to make it too easy for them; I understood, but I also did not understand; there was nothing to be gained in remaining in such a wilful alienation, it would only confirm their own opinion of him.

I thought for a while that we could all move to the Nursery and make our stand there by declaring our intent in continuing with the work of the Gardens, and having our base of operations shifted there. But this was too much to ask from the others, and it would in any case have been just a sort of war of attrition.

Antagonism corrodes when it is lived day after day with no respite.

From the next morning on I directed all my energies on cleaning and tending the garden at "Sincerity"; it had been for too long that I had not had the time for it, and it needed care. I worked this way for several weeks, pruning and clearing. M got into a fight at work and was given time off as a punishment, and so he joined me and we did enormous work together and the entire garden looked refreshed and reenergised when we were done.

Those who now had a chance to grab at some position at Matrimandir, and had to somehow share the "spoils" between them, had one urge in common; to undo whatever we had done. In particular, there was a sort of rage in systematically destroying whatever I had personally cared for.

So it was for the Banyan tree, the King of the area. For years I had tended it, and had to hollow out most of the original trunk so it would not rot away from age and vermin, and to train new roots to share the weight of the expanding canopy while pruning and directing the growth away from the sphere; this was a work that needed long term tending, and a quiet planning and much observation and attention.

But now the main original actors of the play – Roger A and Narad – had for all intents and purposes fused their differences in a new-found realisation, and were of one mind as to the need to regain the upper hand; Narad had resurrected from many years spent in the US away from it all, and made a grand and timely re-entry filled with spiritual panache – a dosed mix of excellent humility and soulful, well-matured aspiration.

Soon they had a plan of 'execution' as regards the Banyan tree, the reasons for which even the press was invited to hear and record in print and image: the Banyan, they said, had suffered for too long; it had been "forced" to develop too many roots and had all but lost its original character; it was crying for proper attention and strong measures had to be taken for its sake... They would chop off most of the roots, and control the growth so that it would be contained... And they would remove the grass from under its shade and remodel its immediate surroundings. This was to be a symbolic act, invoking the Mother's Force. (I am merely quoting them!)

I must say that more than any other action, this one gave me intense pain. I knew, absolutely, that we were in different realities altogether. The one in which these people functioned at the time was NOT aware of the tree, but only of its own terms.

For many years, whoever happened to be my friend was submitted to either some malicious advice as to the misleading and treacherous character of any relationship with me, or a punishing and relentless disapproval.

Kovalan, who was born in the village of Edayachavadi, had been educated in Udavi school before he went on to college in a nearby town and proceeded to get trained in informatics; he had been wanting to formally join Auroville for years, but had only entered the process two years previously, when he got the opportunity to start working at the Auro-net service for Auroville. We had met at Matrimandir, where he had volunteered to take up regular duties receiving visitors. I had then offered him to stay in C's house, so he could say to the "Entry Group" that he had a place to live in Auroville. But his association with me was a mixed blessing.

End of October, he was called in to an "interview"; he returned from it rather shocked and told me what had been said.

I wrote to the "Entry Group" – this is just an illustrating example of the kind of "dynamics" that somehow, for some reasons yet unclear to me, I have elicited throughout my life in Auroville:

To the Entry Group - Regarding Kovalan's status – From Divakar, October 31, 2003:

"Greetings,

Kovalan has informed me of a second, unexpected meeting to which you have summoned him yesterday, to apprise him of a new policy whereby he must obtain from me 'stewardship' of the house in which he has been staying since August 2002 in 'Sincerity'.

He has also related to me that at least 2 members of your team have declared: 'We do not trust Divakar; he might change his mind anytime and ask you to leave...'

This is a new situation, which raises several points that require clarification:

- 1) As far as I am concerned, this statement of yours is totally unwarranted; I am not in the habit of 'changing my mind'. Shivaya had asked me, some 3 weeks back, whether it was alright for me that Kovalan stays on, and I had clearly answered that it was entirely up to him. Whether some members of your team 'trust' me or not can only be a personal question, which has no relevance in the context of their membership and commitment to the task at hand.
- 2) In August 2002 Kovalan had been told by your team that he would go into his second year of probation only if he could find a house in Auroville to stay. I had therefore written to you stating my offer to him to stay in the then vacant unit I had built years ago for my mother. You had written back appreciating this offer and informed Kovalan that his Newcomer period would end this August 15, 2003.
- 3) This new policy that you now suddenly bring up has certainly not been discussed in the community. On what basis then do you seek to enforce it? Is it for Kovalan only, or do you intend to enforce it for every other newcomer whose probation period comes to an end? Has every other newcomer then been able to obtain such a stewardship of an Auroville house?
- 4) You had mentioned to Kovalan that the alternative for him would be to build his own house... You must no doubt realise the absurdity of the situation, as Kovalan has been working for the last 2 years as part of the Auro-net team on 'Maintenance' only!
- 5) A clear answer was to be given Kovalan on August 15. Yesterday was October 30. One cannot help but wonder: is there some discrimination at play here, either against Kovalan, or against me? Is this a sign of integrity?

Awaiting for your clarifying answer,

Divakar"

Note: I do not recall whether any answer reached me; but eventually, soon after that, Kovalan was accepted as Aurovilian.

John H, A and Walter, who had all three been, with Arjun and me, members of the now infamous MMCG, had remained at Matrimandir; John H was continuing with his usual work and had rather friendly contacts with the new management; he was choosing to place his trust and his faith in the inner process of evolution which, no matter what our opinions and views came to, was sure to bring us all to some truer condition. A was determined to try and keep the Nursery aligned to its original purpose and he thought that the new dispensation would be bound to leave the Nursery be, at least for some time – during which things might possibly change for the better; he had also become very weary of conflict of any sort and any nature and distrusted any group formation, whatever its purpose.

As for Walter, he wanted to remain as a token of resistance: this was not an easy proposition and it meant much isolation. Later on, he and M.B decided, when it was found that the German company which had supplied the waterproofing membrane for the sphere, had made a mistake in its selection of one basic component and was willing to cover the costs of redoing the entire membrane, that they would remain to take care of that unexpected work till it was completed, which could mean over two years. The new management was only relieved that it did not have to shoulder that responsibility.

But in the aftermath of our ousting, Walter was there like a vigilante and he, who knew very well how much care we had given to the Banyan tree and all we had hoped to be able to bring into matter with the gardens and the study of their completion by Paolo, with whom Walter had worked closely for 3 years – he was very worried for the fate of the Banyan tree.

Along with Paolo, in our orientation and approach to the environment of the Matrimandir, we had studied some options for a graceful, subdued lighting, strategically and unobtrusively placed along pathways and just a little above ground, so as to distribute enough light for people to move easily but to leave the night undisturbed.

Now that everyone had a “free hand”, reverse and opposite experiments were afoot; when in December of that year powerful floodlights were installed under the Banyan tree illuminating the Petals and the flashing golden sphere, Walter began to stage a one-man protest! Where we had all felt that the mystery and the sense of inviolate individual discovery, ever renewed, of the Matrimandir and its surroundings was a necessary and essential part of the experience of its Power and Grace, the attitude of this group was to make of it a vigorous, overwhelming statement of strength and glory, by night or by day.

Walter posted and circulated an open letter about it:

Torturing the Banyan tree: a so called experiment. Open letter by Walter, 18-12-2003:

“Since more than a week now a soulless and spiritless, insensitive and useless ‘experiment’ is being done at night with the Banyan tree at Matrimandir by a technician. Mother Nature is tortured and raped by two halogen flood lights of 500 watts each, which blast their cold, glaring light from ground level up on to the magnificent structure of the tree between 6pm and 10 pm.

The Banyan tree is a sensitive micro environment providing the life space and shelter for numerous animals like squirrels, the hundreds of fire flies often dancing through the dark foliage at this time of the year, the beautiful small owls with their lovely round faces and wide eyes who glide through the night without the slightest sound but also noisily giggle at times, and many others, and all of them live there in a natural harmony.

When these strong flood lights were switched on the first night, the whole tree was in an uproar at 9pm, because the animals were deprived of their sleep and the tree itself stood in shock. The Aurovilians and people from the Ashram who came down from cleaning the Inner Chamber felt that. By now birds have moved out under protest to find undisturbed sleep somewhere else but the tree, unable to escape human insensitivity, receives the shock every night. This unconscious experiment, if continued; will destroy the balanced environmental niche right in the centre of Auroville.

Looking at it squarely, the whole thing cannot even be called an 'experiment'. Every Tom, Dick and Harry can place lights somewhere, switch them on and not care for the consequences. This action has no concept, no options, no choices, and no considerations, and of course the technician is his own judge: it's just one person doing something totally egoistic with the result that Mother Nature at the Banyan tree suffers heavily every night.

This soulless and aggressive 'experiment', which says so much about the experimenter and the managers who allow it, is sanctioned and carried out in the name of the Mother because 'Auroville is for experiments and X (the technician) has to be given his experiment', I was told by one of the managers appointed by the Auroville Foundation. But this experiment is NOT according to the Mother's wishes, however much anyone tries to justify it. Mother was so particular about the Banyan tree, the spirit of which was in close connection with Her and came to Her when it was hurt. Once She sent a note to the person in charge, when workers had driven nails into the tree, to get the nails immediately removed. The ring of the day of the inauguration of Auroville is right around the main trunk of the Banyan tree with the Mother's words on it: 'AUROVILLE? THE CITY AT THE SERVICE OF TRUTH'

My request to one of the managers to stop this lighting experiment was politely listened to, but of course the lights are still on at night, wasting energy and money since no one is there at Matrimandir after 8pm anyhow to see the show.

Now I fear for the Banyan tree; the technician's action shows the trend: Nature has no priority in the architect's concept of the Centre of Auroville, which the present management has to follow. Is this the preparation for a heavy pruning of the Banyan tree to shape it to the architect's view of 'a one trunk with no aerial roots banyan tree'?

I strongly protest against all this and request the managers to stop the torture!

Walter"

Note: Kusum too had left her work of service at Matrimandir. She was very distressed by the entire situation. I could now spend more time tending the temple of Sri Ganesh and its garden, and Kusum wanted and needed me to visit with her more often, as we would not meet at Matrimandir as before. She felt very sorry for both Arjun and me, and dejected at not being able to do anything to correct the course of things in Auroville.

In France, C was waiting for me.

In the summer, R had passed away. It had been a hellish experience, for him, for her, and for their few close friends.

C only told me about it all by instalments, and I came to know the whole story of his passing only much later.

But now she was grieving, and struggling to adjust to this solitary life – she who, in her entire life, had somehow never spent a single day alone! She was determined to see herself through the stages of mourning and grieving, but she had most trouble with the guilt part of it – she was assailed by misgivings about her own conduct, her own severity, her own indifference to what she now saw must have been a dreadful torment for R; this was quite absurd, of course, as she had been giving of herself way beyond what one could ever expect of any life-companion, and her own strength and love for life had carried him despite himself for many years; every one around them had come in time to the same conclusion: that it was she who needed protection and support from the manic, possessive, ever darker cycle of depression and euphoria that R had clamped onto her, day after day, night after night, doing nothing but waiting for her, sucking on her, living off her and wanting her to yield and let go and die with him...

I would soon have to go again and be with her a little while.

The year 2003 ended.

- 2004 -

Note: While the year before, my feeling or perception of the year opening on that 1st of January had been very troubled and unsettled, this year, I had a sense of silence and of a sort of special protection.

A sweet little incident happened to Kumar, which strangely touched me; I noted it down: Kumar had gone to Pondy, on the insistence of some friends of his that he must have dinner with them; but he first needed to be in the atmosphere of the Ashram a little while, as was his wont. As it was late already he simply parked near the Ashram building and walked over to a side street that had been recently "beautified", with small stone parapets and patches of lawn; there was no one around, so he used the chance to pee, near one of the planted bushes; in the dark (there were no street lamps there) he heard a sound as of someone calling from a deep well; after a moment of puzzlement he realised that the sound was coming from very close, and he turned and saw, lying in the grass, a tiny infant, a newborn babe, crying softly; it had been abandoned there! Kumar is quite shaken and doesn't for a moment know what to do; there is a police constable posted near to the Ashram main compound and he goes to him, but that proves useless; then he goes to the phone booth right there and searches and finds the number of a Christian orphanage, and calls them; very shortly a car arrives with a couple in it, who ask him his name; but he refuses to give it and they part, the couple taking the baby along.

On the 10th of January, Bhaskar and Anand take me to the airport in Chennai.

In the airport in Paris, C and Auragni, accompanied by Odile, are waiting for me.

Auragni is preparing to go for a year of university in Melbourne, Australia, so as to complement her higher studies completed in France.

The three of us soon drove down to Claouey to be with Ch.J and F.J for a few days – as it happened, our last reunion, where Auragni could be with both her grandparents and me at the same time.

Later we spent time in Brittany, a happy time, C, Auragni and me.

And, about midway through my stay there, C and I took Auragni to her flight to Australia. She would live with her elder half-sister there at the beginning – Aurassi had been living in Melbourne for many years with her husband Mani.

This was an important time for C and me together. She could work through many things in my presence; I also began to clear up her flat, put things in order, dispose of some paintings for the money that she needed.

I returned to Chennai and to Auroville on the 6th of February. Bhaskar picked me up at the airport.

There was increasingly, in the collective climate, a shadowy flow of rumours and suspicions and gossip, with the added element of apprehension or even fear, due to the threat of visas being suspended for the Aurovilians of foreign origin.

I learnt that there was now an attempt to list down the residents of Auroville who were known to be homosexuals; in one particular case, some anonymous letters had, it seemed, resulted in that person not being allowed back into the country after a visit abroad.

I had found, over the years, that this – homosexuality – was a topic that most sharply revealed the narrow-mindedness and cowardly, hypocritical avoidance of one's "lower nature" to which most people succumbed in their half-deluded eagerness to become "Aurovilians" – and the segregation I had seen at play in most people's minds and particularly in their subconscious expressions I found particularly revolting. Yet there might well have been some abuse committed by some residents of Auroville, or some of their guests and, in India, even though no one could honestly pretend it did not exist, homosexuality was still legally considered as criminal.

In my case I had provoked the ire of many people in the past for being obviously bisexual; in the more recent years, as no woman seemed to be related to me in any intimate way, I had entered the category of the reviled "homosexuals"; there had been some wild guesses circulated about my practices and I had once been summoned by the "Auroville Council" of the time to answer to some written "report" they had received of my having homosexual activities under the Banyan tree; although they had heard me out and offered some kind of apology, I had been refused access to this "report", and only told it had been sent by an Indian woman. I never found out what exactly it was saying, or who was the author, and did not really bother about it.

But now it was fairly certain that if such a list was actually drawn, my name would be on it; that fact alone wouldn't have troubled me, but it was the attitude behind it, and the righteous justifications aiding it, that I could not accept; and I knew well enough the kind of pain such hunt could give to those individuals who would fall under its judgement.

I decided – probably one of my many imprudent and unwise decisions – to write to the present Auroville Council:

Regarding exclusivism, segregation and fear – An Open Letter to the Auroville Council, by Divakar – February 12, 2004:

"Greetings,

It has several times now come to my notice that the present AV Council, through some of its members, is drawing a list of 'homosexuals' in Auroville.

Why should such a thing happen among Aurovilians?

One cannot but be reminded of certain techniques to lay the ground for 'purification' through delation and self-serving informing.

Perhaps this intent may partly be in response to some loaded enquiry from 'local authorities', fuelled by the obscure practice of anonymous letters; perhaps it is meant as a warning, in a 'brotherly manner', to all concerned individuals?

However, in reality, to accept and shelter this mentality within our society is to yield to a backward spiralling into a substratum of dark fear and judgements, inhabited with lies.

If it was an isolated erring caused by the persistence of some narrow-mindedness or social conditioning, one could simply shrug it off with laughter.

But as it comes close on the heels of a definite and determined will to align every participant in Auroville to a one-goal/one-doctrine/one master-plan/one-vision/one-collaboration line, it cannot be treated as merely the expression of an old reflex.

Regarding 'homosexuality' per se, I believe everything has been said in today's world. In general, one has learnt to rid oneself of this noxious ignorance that judges and condemns and to make way for respect and acceptance.

Why not in Auroville then?

There may still be those who, able to convince themselves that they have never really been attracted towards a person of the same sex, wish to enjoy a little longer a sense of self-righteousness.

It is only comical, for any keen observer of human nature.

But here in Auroville, to belittle and cheapen the ideal with such low moralistic hypocritical notions is to betray the light that has offered itself to Auroville's work of transition.

I would like to suggest that, towards ourselves as towards every person and every agency of this world and of any world, we stand by the basics of Auroville's ideal and draw our code of conduct from these only:

- Not to ever lie.
- Not to ever yield to any form of violence.
- To respect every being.
- Service.
- Living aspiration.

Indeed the question cannot ever be whether one is so inclined, emotionally or physically, towards individuals of the same sex or of the 'opposite' sex.

The question can only be whether relationships develop from truthfulness, trust, mutual respect, are free from violence and open to aspiration. Any relationships.

Differences and diversity are meant for delight.

Thank you,

Divakar"

Note: The Management at Matrimandir was inching closer to take their axes at the Banyan tree, bathed in the aura of "spiritualised botany" which Narad contributed to the movement...

On the 13th of February I posted an Open Letter:

On the Banyan tree at the centre of Auroville – by Divakar, 13-2-2004:

“The purpose of this open letter is not to further the atmosphere of polemics now prevailing, nor to aggravate the sense of disparity now undermining the basis of mutual respect we should work from in Auroville.

The purpose of this letter is to complement and complete the picture that has emerged in the last few weeks regarding the Banyan tree, and to help restore the balance.

Observers of Nature and lovers of trees who have lived here long enough will have noted the several characteristics that are unique to banyan trees, such as:

- A banyan tree has the ability to fuse its limbs, and to wrap itself around another tree or any support it finds secure.
- A banyan tree will sprout aerial roots with more or less proficiency according to its needs for growth and the conditions surrounding it.
- Over a long period of time a banyan tree ‘moves’: its original trunk usually dies out while the stronger roots it has sent down become new centres of gravity for further growth of limbs.
- A banyan tree will expand over and around any ‘obstacle’ so as to retain and acquire both exposure to light and access to moisture...

We do not know clearly the age of this Banyan tree; how old was it when the Mother indicated it was to be the geographical centre of Her city-to-be, of Her dream? Twenty, fifty years old?

Its trunk was sizeable but as it was prey to constant plunder – by goats or for fire-wood – its development had been heavily stunted.

Amma’s determined dedication to it allowed for some measure of respect, but it is only when we all began to organise our life around it and responded to the care the Mother extended towards it and the inner significance She accorded it that its natural life-power could begin to fully manifest.

A number of roots – I think it was perhaps twelve? – were encouraged to develop; the largest roots one can see today are among those.

Fairly soon, in the mid-70s, while cleaning the dead wood, several cavities were found in the original limbs and trunk.

I do not remember all the techniques or remedies that were tried at the time, but eventually one method was elected: those cavities were cleaned and filled with lime.

Over the years new limbs grew from the stronger roots, so that the tree began to develop not one but two or three structures, each having slight variations in their growth pattern: one could observe for instance that new leaves would appear in one distinct canopy, then another.

A few more roots were encouraged to provide supports for new limbs extending so far that they were in danger of breaking.

I think grass was first planted in the early 80s, when the ring of stone benches was placed and someone brought a prototype of a set of sprinklers, for which the kids were the happiest!

This was, I think, Korean grass at the time.

Later we found that St Augustine grass was much preferable as it was much sturdier and required much less water, a definite plus both in terms of water-conservation and for the health of the tree.

I think that what guided us in planting grass was the sense of that heavenly peace and delight expressed in the painting Huta had done under the Mother's direction, named by her 'The Spirit of Auroville', with squirrels, birds and rabbits frolicking and wild flowers singing from a verdant floor...

The Banyan tree kept growing and extending and, as the construction of the twelve large and twelve small petals around the sphere proceeded, there was a concern that somehow one ought to exercise some control, perhaps try to guide the growth away from Matrimandir, or at least prevent it from reaching closer and interfering in the constructed parts.

The extent of the shade obviously increased as well and that might jeopardise the possibility for such flowering shrubs as hibiscuses to be planted in the inner gardens adjacent to the tree.

This was how it was decided to shift the garden of Unity westwards and to construct the Unity pond as its new centre.

At the end of the 90s we observed several facts:

- We found a large increase of rot in the main trunk and in some of the original limbs.
- The canopies, loaded with un-pruned branches, were reaching the ground almost all around and some branches were now lying on outer slope of the nearest of the small petals.

Making a thorough inspection we found that the lime fillings had prevented us from seeing the rot continuing underneath, and that there were many crevices and cracks retaining moisture, havens for all kinds of insects, besides termites.

We also found that several of the original limbs, thus weakened, threatened to break apart or fall off.

These phenomena had occurred in other banyan trees that were familiar to many of us: one at 'Promesse', which was struck down and collapsed, the other one at the reception area, eaten away by termites and severely damaged in a storm.

We proceeded to:

- Remove all the lime fillings.
- Thoroughly clean every cavity and, in the process we had to hollow out much of the main trunk which had become a spongy mass of red soil mixed with decomposed organic matter, and home to a wide variety of bugs.
- Cleanse the hollow parts from all fungi and mushrooms.

- Remove the grass from the foot of the main trunk and build a black clay slope instead.
- Clip back all the branches by a few metres, leaving a good clearance all around.
- Check each and every limb in terms of weight and direction and stimulate the growth of additional roots so they would be safe from the effects of a storm (we had several violent wind storms).
- Discourage further growth in the direction of Matrimandir by pruning at joints where ulterior growth could be directed away from it.

We wanted to 'save' the main trunk, that is, preserve life in it, and keep the sap flowing; that is why a couple of roots were encouraged very near to it so that eventually they would fuse, while regular check-ups and applications of neem oil on the inner part of the original trunk would keep it clean and prevent any further intrusion by termites or fungi.

In this way the overall canopy has since then gained in height, but been reduced in span, and it is quite feasible to monitor further growth without violating the integrity of this tree, sacred to all of us and beloved by all.

With gratitude to the Banyan tree,

Divakar"

Note: This letter was entirely ignored. They were all agreed. It was too late.

Early morning on the 16th of February, Kumar came to tell me that they were getting ready to cut the first roots.

I went over at once.

This was the first time I entered the area after many weeks.

On my way past the offices I asked Walter whether he wanted to come along; he declined, saying he'd join me there later... So when I reached the Banyan tree I was the only person there likely to raise any protest: three of the new "executives" were standing with some of their friends; Narad was with them as the leader and guide for the "operation" and a newcomer, a fellow who had some professional experience of pruning trees and had brought a whole equipment with him from abroad, renting his services in Auroville, was there to follow instructions; there were also a couple of Aurovilians who were there solely to make sure no disturbance would be allowed: one of them particularly was obviously spoiling for an occasion to have it out with me.

They were set to cut the first root, one that run down the main trunk, still tender; I stood there and asked them to explain the reasons for this action. Narad, with his deep dramatic bass voice, slightly atremble with the "solemnity of the moment" declared, looking into my eyes for the others' benefit, that they were here to try and repair the damage I had been inflicting on the tree, and they were calling the Mother's Force.

I did not find the inner movement that would enable me to stop the charade without exposing myself to the violence hovering right by my shoulder - VI had inched closer to me, tall, much taller than me, almost wanting me to oblige him, to give him that chance... Even Jacq had to tell him to please calm down...

Right then Walter walked in – I asked him openly whether he was ready to stand with me; he wasn't; rather, he turned to me and said he had called Arjun, and we should just keep quiet – he was perhaps imagining that Arjun could give some magic phone call to the Lord of all actions...

I didn't want to watch it happening; I turned and left.

This was a very bad time indeed.

The next day, Walter posted and circulated another Open Letter:

The outcry of the Banyan tree – A witness's report, by Walter – 17, February 2004:

"The physical reality at the Banyan tree at the Centre of Auroville since yesterday morning: under the orders of Narad, Roger and the four executives two handfuls of people – non-Aurovilians and Aurovilians – are happily hacking away at the Banyan tree in front of Matrimandir. I didn't want to believe that this would happen. There is fun, jokes, laughter, an insane eagerness to chop off the next aerial root, to hack the saw blade into the next minor or major branch or to use the power chain saw; everybody gets his/her chance to cripple and mutilate the Banyan a little more. It's a butcher's feast. Done in Mother's name as part of the celebration of Her birthday and the "Golden Day".

By now six substantial aerial roots and two major branches have been cut off. Two of these aerial roots were especially encouraged to grow near the main hollow trunk, to give it support. Narad has done irreparable damage to the future of the tree in only 1 1/2 days. He tries to shape a designer Banyan tree according to his and the architect's ideas of the 1970s.

But he does not feel the pain and the shock which he is causing the tree. If he did, he could not continue to hurt and damage the Banyan. But those of us who feel the pain of the tree and express protest are laughed at, told not to disturb the harmony, and the group tried to remove us from the Banyan through violence. Also Ashram people and guests of Auroville have expressed the horror and pain they felt seeing the Banyan tree now.

The Mother calls the Banyan tree 'the Inner Life' and 'Unity' and it is the geographical centre of Auroville. She said that She is in living contact with the tree and that the tree should not be disturbed in any way. She even objected to drawing pins put into its bark at the inauguration on 28 February 1968. The chopping and cutting is very symbolic. Who can give the permission to butcher the centre of Auroville like that?

What should I think of a man, appointed by the Mother, who is supposed to be a gardener and tree expert, who, after being absent for 23 years from Auroville, complains in his write-up about the Banyan having grown in diameter? What is the tree supposed to do but grow? How can a gardener even have the idea that a Banyan tree, whose very nature is to spread and grow in all directions, has to be kept at the same proportion throughout time as the static concrete Matrimandir structure and the static Amphitheatre?

We have cared for the Banyan tree for the last 17 or so years. The hollow main trunk was there already. Narad had stuffed lime brick jelly into the hollow main trunk, which had only encouraged the process of rot to go on unseen, until we removed the lime and carefully cleaned out the rot, termites, bugs and the fungus, cleared the openings for air ventilation and painted the inside with amounts of neem oil to protect it.

Narad had announced in his write-up on the AV Net that he 'was not an expert on banyan trees' and that 'an expert should be called' to assess the tree. Therefore several people had approached him, and I had written to him an e-mail:

'... I believe that it would be simple common sense and it would be horticulturally sound to have the expert's opinion FIRST, before you do anything to the tree. You are saying that you yourself are not an expert on banyan trees and I'm sure you wouldn't want to make any mistakes. I would kindly like to request you to wait with any treatment of the Banyan tree. Let the expert be found. Then the next right step can be taken...'

No reply of course.

The Banyan tree is an entity, a presence, a being much vaster than a little human being. The barbaric nature of the action of this group against a Great Soul like the Banyan tree has definitely repercussions on all of us in Auroville. There is fun and laughter now, but the Universe is responding.

Walter"

Note: I remembered how, not so very long ago, one afternoon, as I was inside the Banyan tree's main trunk, cleaning and applying oil on the inner surfaces, Kireet, visiting Auroville, had come walking by on his way to the Matrimandir, accompanied by Arjun, holding hands; Arjun had heard me inside the tree, or else he had known I was there beforehand, and he stopped and called me out, asking Kireet to watch at the same time; so, when I moved up from where I was crouching and looked out through the southwards opening the tree had formed with new bark, Kireet saw me, as if rising out of the tree and he was enchanted; this was a genuine surprise to him; he had never imagined a person could be inside a tree! And he went on exclaiming about the psychic being, and was filled with affection and delighted laughter... This small event now seemed as if from another world, or another life. Now was serious business! And Kireet had brought it, or helped to bring it about...

A week later, Jithendra too wrote an Open Letter, which he addressed to the official groups concerned:

Our Sacred Banyan Tree – Auroville, 24th February 2004 – to Matrimandir Steering Committee, AV Working Committee, Auroville Council – from Jithendu Kumar, Matrimandir Nursery:

'Be joyful, you plants that bear flowers and those who bear fruit. Like mares that win the race together, the growing plants will carry us across.' (Rig Veda, 10.97.3)

"Why is our banyan tree sacred?

Because it is the symbol of immortality, because it is the source and centre of Auroville.

Because traditionally in India the banyan tree is believed to be inhabited by a divine force and thus venerated as a holy presence. Since olden times women have painted its trunk with white chalk and tied a red thread around it to worship the sacred banyan tree. Because it is the seed of the banyan tree that contains the nature of creation, says an old Hindu story. The story goes that the sage Uddalaka once asked his young son to break open a fruit of the banyan and find out what was within. The boy saw only tiny seeds. The father asked the boy to break open the seeds and see what was within. 'There is nothing at all', said the boy. 'My son, that unseen subtle essence within the seed contains the huge Nyagrodha banyan', said Uddalaka. 'In that unseen essence all things exist. It is the Truth. It is the Self. And thou art that.'

That is why traditionally, before cutting any branch, or root, or trunk, of a banyan tree, one should perform a special puja in order to appease the wounded spirit of the tree, to ask for permission from the earth which sustains the tree and from the beings that under and among its branches find shelter. Mother knew this very well, so well that She asked the workers at Matrimandir's site not to hammer any nails into the trunk of 'our' banyan tree. Since then, so many years have passed and our banyan tree has grown in size and strength, secondary trunks have developed beside the main original one, and many aerial roots have found their way down to the ground to support the growth of the most outreaching branches.

Or at least this was true before last February 15th.

On that day a group of people approached the banyan tree armed with long ladders and electric saws and different kinds of blades and axes, and started to energetically cut aerial roots and branches and secondary trunks.

On that day I tried to ask these people if they were conscious of what they were doing. I tried to ask them why they were cutting the aerial roots (four of them were chopped in the end) around the main trunk, the very roots which might have given the trunk the support it needed in the future because of the fungal infection which is making it hollow and die. I am repeatedly writing 'I tried' because I was not even allowed to give full expression to these questions.

Those people kicked me away without listening to me and aggressively proclaiming: 'You are nothing. Go away from here. You are nothing.' The only question of mine which got an answer was a desperate 'Who gave you permission for this, since no expert has been called yet to give a final evaluation about what should be done?' The architect answered this question. And his answer was: 'I gave permission.'

Well, I thought that in Auroville everybody was 'something', that decisions were taken collectively, questions answered, promises kept. I was wrong.

Not only our sacred banyan tree has been brutally treated and more than 30 aerial roots, small and big, have been cut, and long, big branches have been 'pruned', but the way this has been done shows that the people who did the job (who are doing the job, as they have not stopped yet, as they have brought their electric saws and blades and axes under the banyan tree again after the recent celebrations) do not know much of the life of banyan trees. They do not seem to know that very often the main trunk after a number of years dies and is replaced by the aerial roots which reaching the ground have grown into new trunks for the support and life of the tree. They do not seem to know that to live and prosper a banyan tree needs aerial roots to reach the ground and support the branches which otherwise will crack under the weight of their length or the force of a storm; they do not seem to know that one of the oldest banyan trees in India has more than 230 supporting roots and 3000 secondary trunks, or that O.T. Ravindran, one of India's best known experts of banyan trees, has said: 'After inspecting some of the better known specimen of ficus bengalensis, I feel that only if we stop interfering in their lives can many of these flag bearers of our country's ancient and deep rooted culture and philosophy be revived and made to carry on forever.' (The Hindu, Sunday, May 13, 2001)

What they seem to know, and care, is only something which has to do with the architect's aesthetic views, as it is the architect who gave the permission for chopping many roots which took more than eight years to reach the ground (some of them even more than twenty), the roots which the future life of a banyan tree depends on.

That day, after having been kicked away from under the Banyan tree, I then decided to sit down on one of the benches around its edge and start fasting. I wanted to share the feeling of helplessness of the tree, so cruelly harmed and abused. I also became helpless, so helpless that after one day and one night there, when the electric blades started their job again the next day, I could not bear the scene any longer, and got up and turned my back to the tree, knowing that its living spirit had been wounded, and a terrible sin had been committed.

I am kindly requesting you that no further destruction should be allowed and this inconsiderate cutting of the Banyan tree stopped. Now, please.

'The movement of love is not limited to human beings and is perhaps less distorted in other worlds than in the human. Look at the flowers and trees. When the sun sets and all becomes silent, sit down for a moment and put yourself into communion with Nature: you will feel rising from the earth, from below the roots of the trees and mounting upward and coursing through their fibres up to the highest outreaching branches, the aspiration of an intense love and longing – a longing for something that brings light and gives happiness, for the light that is gone and they wish to have back again. There is a yearning so pure and intense that if you can feel the movement in the trees your own being too will go up in an ardent prayer for the peace and light and love that are unmanifested here.' The Mother.

At Her feet,

Jithendu Kumar"

Note: In a matter of weeks, the Chairman convinced the Auroville Council and other Aurovilians involved in "communication" that the "Auroville News" should cease from printing any statements, letters or notes that carried any controversial contents or made any personal accusations or disparaging comments about any one, or included any pronouncement that could offend the public sentiments. This decision was somewhat justified by the fact that the "Auroville News" were printed in many hundreds of copies every week and inevitably some of them would find their way to some Government offices, to the Press and to possibly ill intentioned members of the public who could use the "knowledge" against Auroville. One of the first speeches Kireet Joshi had delivered to the community upon his being nominated as Chairman was devoted to the negative image that was abroad, particularly in official circles in Delhi, and how hard it was for him to persuade people there that Auroville was worth supporting.

But in effect this decision to "sanitise" the News only served the new establishment in neutralising any dissent, any questioning, any hint of there being other views that the now official one as regards the needs and the experiences and the orientation of this collective development called Auroville. Kireet even gave the new "News" their motto: the same truncated message of the Mother's – Harmony, Goodwill, Discipline and a quest for the Truth – while the Mother's original message had been: "Harmony – Goodwill – Discipline – Truth – I can work with you only if you do not say a lie and are at the service of Truth – Blessings"

So with this motto, every future issue of the News was bound to present the do-gooders' new image to the world, while it became simply impossible to express any matter of importance with candid words anywhere, since even the Auroville Intranet forum was strictly censored, basically by the same people and for the same reasons.

Note: Our Kusum became ill in April.

She had gradually lost interest in this life. She had tried everything she could to help us, she had even gone to meet the Minister in Delhi on our behalf, and she felt that she had failed to make any difference and she could not come to terms with the realisation that Auroville was rejecting from itself those beings she had trusted and cherished most, and in whom she had full faith.

Kusum would give her good-willed solid and sober affection to everyone she met, almost as a matter of discipline, just as she would sing every morning of her life, and at every meals, the mantras for the welfare of all beings.

She had had to lead her life with the lonely strength and dignified resilience of a single mother, and in India this is most difficult and requires heroism.

For many years in Auroville she had stood alone too, doing her daily service, being firm and gentle with everyone she met, but keeping her thoughts to herself and offering everything to the Mother as best she could.

When she met us, around 1990, she met a team of friends and she opened up and began to expand and breathe and share. To each of us she could turn with confidence and each of us could find her at any moment. With each of us she developed a unique relationship, with varying degrees of closeness.

Her strongest ties formed with Arjun and with me.

With Arjun, she was also some of the mother he had not had since his early childhood, besides being a real friend who could tell him more than most about himself; and they shared many deep-rooted loves, such as the love for the pure Hindi language, and they had magical conversations, and a lot of humour was playing in it.

With me, over time, she found what she had been missing, or keeping sealed within herself, for the largest part of her life; she would feel like a mother to me, like a sister, like a friend, and I would also fill the hollow that had been left in her by the early demise of her husband, so many years ago. She would be open to me as she could not have been open to anyone as yet, and I became her closest friend, her confidant, and her days would be the happier for it; she began to remember so many songs from her youth, classical tunes and wonderful words of such poetry, such spiritual longing, and she would want to sing them again; she began to wear colours, pale pastels, or deep ochre tones, she who had wore only khadi cotton white clothes ever since she had become a young widow. She would be happiest to have to think of the dishes she would prepare that I would consent to enjoy (as I usually had no particular interest for food).

Kusum had two sons: the elder one, Madho, had been a businessman in Ahmedabad, Gujarat; the younger one, Vipul, had immigrated to the US and settled there, I think as a kind of free-lance stocks market advisor. The two were seldom of a mind, but kept in touch. One or the other would occasionally come over to see her. Sometimes she had also visited each of them. But she was not fulfilled in them and could not communicate well in any of the terms which had become parts of her experience at the Mother and Sri Aurobindo's feet.

Only very recently had she begun to entertain some hope that the elder son, Madho, might open to the Mother's presence and to some understanding of Hers and Sri Aurobindo's Yoga; and she made every effort to encourage him, quietly, and she associated me to this, asking me to let him talk with me, ask me questions, confide in me.

She had made it a point to talk to them about me and the role I had in her life, perhaps counting on their devotion to her to extend to her choices as to the persons who mattered in her life here. And as over the years we knew each other I came to do for her many of the things that a son would have done – such as remodelling her house, or taking care of her whenever she was ill, or building around the temple to Sri Ganesh for her, or simply being there for her – they both had to not only accept but appreciate the fact of my existence, insofar as she was concerned.

As Indians will often do, they each expressed profuse affection and respect for me, but I cannot say that I felt there was as yet a genuine, truly-born bond between us, although, even for her sake alone, I was willing to find it.

Kusum had a robust build, a strong voice, a deep and frank laughter and caring hands and a luminous skin; but she had troubles too: for years she had been bothered with recurring pains in her abdomen, and lately she'd had endless bothers with acidity in her throat, which made her cough and cough. Several doctors had diagnosed tuberculosis of the intestines; a couple of them had recommended surgery. She had thought and thought and meditated and offered it to the Mother and asked for guidance, and she had decided every time not to go for any intervention. She tried various treatments: some did nothing for her, some helped for a while. She went on. This had been a nearly constant worry ever since we had come to know her.

For a good ten years she had lived on with this formation of tuberculosis in her body, and overcome every crisis of it and gone on with her work. She would be 79 soon.

But this year, she had lost some of her will to serve here.

She would tease me that I'd better taste her dishes now. She would remind me that I was to continue taking care of the temple. She would force me, with her insistence, to sign "Fixed Deposits" along with her, so there would be some reserves for Sri Ganesh... I would not like her tone and would say so, and we would laugh, and I would tease her back – after all I was the one who had nearly gone, two years before, not her!

Late March or beginning of April, Vipul, who would phone regularly from the US, told her he was thinking of taking his own son to France for the summer vacations, and would she meet them there? She thought about it: this could coincide with my being there visiting C, whom she had met several times here and loved very much; I phoned C about it, and saw with her how to let Vipul and his son live in the house in Brittany for some weeks, until Kusum and I would come. Vipul was happy with the idea. But soon Kusum became silent about it. As if she had seen that, for some reason, it could not work. I also kept quiet.

Mid-April, one morning, as she got up from her chair with her empty cup in her hand, she got dizzy and fell to the floor. She had been pacing the compound of "Promesse" earlier, in full sun, trying to arrange for the proper disposal of all the plastic waste. When I came to see her, a little later, I thought it was because of the exposure to the strong sunrays that she had thus fainted.

She rested that day. She complained later of some pain in her abdomen.

The next day it became worse. She made me touch the swelling in her right side.

She did not want her sons to be informed. She wanted to try and regain her balance.

She was vomiting. Then she seemed to stabilise: she would tease me before Shantidi or Bittiben that when I gave her myself some fruit to eat, she would already be 50% recovered, and so I had to come twice a day without fail if she had to get the other 50%.

Then one day she called me: she informed me that she had called our doctor friend Vijay Oza, and taken an appointment with him that same evening, so he could take a scan and decide.

I arranged for a car. We went late afternoon. We had to wait, as night fell, by the laboratory in a crowded street, while all the electricity had failed in that part of the city. It was very hot; she sat there with me in the car, curled up, quiet; she had pain, but it was bearable.

Then Vijay called us, and told us to drive to a private hospital where he had an office as well, and there he took the scan. He found a very large swelling on the lower intestines, which was agonisingly painful to the touch.

He couldn't say what it was yet. He said we must admit Kusum in the Ashram Nursing Home at once, so he could get other doctors' opinions and run some tests under Datta's direction.

So we were back in the Ashram clinic, and it was like coming home too.

Kusum slept there.

Vijay is from Gujarat too. He had met Kusum's elder son a number of times. He must have persuaded Kusum that Madho must be informed. He himself talked to Madho on the phone.

Vijay told us there was one surgeon he trusted, who would normally do surgery at Cluny Hospital, and had his own private cabinet besides. This surgeon was a gruff man, who perhaps had some dislike for any foreigners; he examined Kusum and declared she must be operated at once. But Madho apparently could not come so fast, and asked for the operation to be postponed until his arrival.

Much of the communication was taking place in a language I did not know, Gujarati, and under the "normal" assumption of family ties.

On the 24th, the operation took place: we were all there to see her in and to wait for her to come out. When the swelling had been removed – one and a half foot of intestine was cut off – Vijay came out into the corridor where we were standing, as he had done during my operation, and showed us the contents of a small bucket, while explaining to us that this was actually a case of appendicitis, infecting the neighbouring parts of the intestines, and not at all a case of tuberculosis as had been diagnosed for the past ten years or so! This meant that Kusum had lived for more than ten years with an inflamed, chronic appendicitis, which could have been fixed with minor surgery a long time ago!

The chief surgeon and Vijay seemed to be happy with the "procedure" when it was over.

Kusum was then kept in an isolation ward in Cluny. Madho was with us since the previous day. He was impatient, and worried about the lack of sophisticated equipment and facilities.

Our approaches were divergent. We here placed our trust first in the Mother's Grace, then in doctors, medical science, proper care, and genuine attention. Madho had no experience of the Mother's Grace and was intent on showing what a devoted son ought to do and could do for his mother, for whom the very best was due, even if that meant taking her away by helicopter...

We diverged in another deep way as well: in our experience, the priority was not in wanting one to live; it was on uniting to and surrendering to the movement of the soul and the Divine's fiat, whatever it may be, in peace and harmony.

In Madho's experience it was indispensable to deploy all the means needed to "save" his mother, to keep her alive, to make her continue to live. We would also strive to get all the means at the disposal of healing, but not at the cost of peace and clarity and inner protection.

In those days of waiting, both Arjun and I took care of Madho, in our respective ways; he would be extremely emotional, and would turn to me for comfort and encouragement.

Two days later, the nursing staff decided to shift Kusum to a single room; this was too early; she at once felt very poorly, and complained to us that she wanted to leave her body.

For me there was one overriding sense of necessity: that she should not be swallowed by this experience; that she should not be pulled by this medicalised world; even if the time had come for her to leave, it should happen in peace and in surroundings permeated with Her presence – not in Cluny Hospital, and certainly not away from Pondichéry.

That day, we were all there in the evening, to see her or be near her; I was struck by the expression on Kamala's face, when she said to me she did not find Kusum in a good condition: it was as if we were overtaken, trapped, overwhelmed, cheated – as if Kusum had been grabbed, seized; I went in to see her, and Madhu came with me, and we were alone with her; she kept saying "margaya, margaya..." , meaning, that's enough, let it be over with, that's enough of this life... And Madhu could not bear it; and neither could I. I talked to her strongly; I said that no matter what was the inner choice or decision, to leave or to recover, it had to take place in the Mother's arms, in a truer atmosphere, and she must somehow get herself healed enough so we could leave this place. She listened, and she understood what I meant, and she agreed, and she became quiet. Madhu too was a little relieved.

That day, I was so uptight that I had a small accident on my way back: I had to veer off the road crossing the village as a bus had suddenly swerved, and I fell off the bike and the bike fell on my foot; there was only a small wound, but I was shaken out of this helpless upset and had to regain some balance.

The staff took her back up to the isolation ward. She was examined again. The diagnosis was bad: a septicaemia had taken hold.

Oddly the surgeon had not left a drain in her abdomen; we had questions, and some doubts regarding the chief surgeon; Madhu was very worried, almost frantically so. But Kusum fought the infection. She remained conscious and calm and kept her sense of humour. The nurses were impressed with her.

After a couple of days, on our nagging insistence, she was fed especially nutritious fluids; and the chief surgeon, along with Vijay, agreed that a drain had to be inserted and a small operation was scheduled for that evening. They did it, and were satisfied. Kusum felt a little improvement.

Madhu's son, Akshay, whom I had never met before, had also come by now, from Ahmedabad.

A couple of days later I realised, too late, that they had plotted to have Kusum removed from this hospital and transported all the way across the country to a special clinic in Ahmedabad. They had, without letting me know of it, prepared and arranged it all. The chief surgeon had declared that Kusum would now be recovering – he then said, perhaps persuaded to by Kusum’s son, that she could be shifted anytime.

To us, this was insane. She was not fit to be forced to travel by car and plane – two changes of planes – and by car again.

But Madhu had the blood rights, and Vijay had obviously agreed to it, and had further agreed to accompany them.

I asked that Kusum herself must confirm directly to me that such was her own decision; in this condition, to be moved all the way to Ahmedabad. Madhu agreed that she would speak to me the same evening.

I went to her with Anand; Anand had prepared a huge bouquet and we had arranged it together; through the small inner window opening onto her bed we both leaned in and laid the flowers in her arms; she said that it was her decision, that she would return full of health and strength, and that I was coming with her. It was strange. She was herself and yet not herself. She seemed to mean two different levels of meaning at once. She greeted Anand clearly; she took my hands and pressed them deeply and long on her chest, as if to take me in, within, within.

They took her the next morning.

Later I learnt that Madhu and Akshay had been so worried that I would try to stop them that they had devised two convoys, one as a decoy, in case I would plan to ambush the ambulance on the road with “my friends”.

However we were agreed that we would remain in constant phone contact.

Kusum was admitted in a clinic in Ahmedabad. She was examined.

Vipul, her younger son, had flown from the US to meet them there.

The doctors decided she must be operated again, immediately.

The surgery took several hours.

We had Vijay on the phone, at the end of it, and he said there was only the Grace which could now save her.

The surgeons had to leave her abdomen open, and part of the intestines out of it.

The next day was her birthday.

I had Vipul on the phone, several times: I kept telling him that we must put everything on the side of recovery, that it was her birthday, and that it was possible; and he should give her my message.

She picked up. Her birthday passed, and everyone there was astonished.

The next day too she kept improving.

The day after, it became stationary.

And the following day, the kidneys collapsed, and she had to be connected to an artificial system; then other organs began to collapse too.

The doctors declared that there was nothing more that could be done.

Vipul asked us whether we agreed that she’d taken home – to their house in Ahmedabad – so she may leave in peace and among her people. We agreed, of course.

On the 14th of May she was finally taken away from the clinic and transported to Madhu’s house.

They reached the house; Kusum gave two deep breaths, and she was gone.

Her body had to be cremated the next day.

Madhu and Vipul brought her ashes back here.

We prepared a silent time of gathering at the temple to Sri Ganesh, and poured half of the ashes in the soil of a new hibiscus shrub.

The rest of the ashes, Madhu and Vipul wanted to pour into the sea; they asked that I alone should come, but that I could bring a friend along.

Manikandan came. They had hired a boat out at the old harbour; we went over and around the old bay and sailed northwards, not too far from the shore, till we could see, directly facing us, the shape of the main Ashram building. There and then the 4 of us poured the rest of her ashes.

They went back to Ahmedabad, and would return after a few weeks.

And, during those few weeks, in that distance, somehow, it began to go very wrong.

There was the matter of her house, which, at my insistence, everyone concerned tentatively agreed to keep undisturbed for months, perhaps for a year; there was the matter of her journals and diaries and personal papers; the matter of her other belongings, few as they were; the matter of the stewardship of the temple.

Mistakenly I continued to act as if Kusum and I had remained together in the same way: to look after all her things the way she had always wanted me to, to sort and order her papers the way she had asked me to, to tend the temple as she wished me to.

She had clearly written in her diaries, and in a specific letter addressed to all, what she wished regarding the temple and that I must be the one to continue with its service.

Every day I would first go to the temple and do the work there; then I would go to her house – every inch of which I had remodelled for her – and clean and air and light incense and sort out a few things and be quiet so as to accompany her in the best possible ways.

Little by little I cleared out all the accumulated bits and pieces that no one would use in any way; ordered the things that I was sure her sons would wish to have and those that ought to remain in Auroville, such as her accounts of her sadhana here, her letters to the Mother in her diaries, her papers regarding Matrimandir, and all the things she had treasured for Sri Ganesh and for the Mother and Sri Aurobindo. I had told the sons that I thought her personal diaries ought to be kept at the Auroville Archives, preserved there and accessible; they had agreed.

However, the sons' attitudes took a turn; I felt it gradually; we had e-mail communication, many times, and over the weeks crept in a sense of suspicion, of resentment, of grudging and questioning on their part; from an open pouring of one's distress and sense of inadequacy and guilt at not having done more for their mother, it shifted to veiled accusations of neglect and carelessness on my part, and it came to a point when I was held responsible for her sufferings.

From the status of first brother which they had seemingly accorded me, each confiding in me and seeking some understanding if not guidance from me, they each took me, or the image they each had of me, to the status of a kind of monster who had abused their mother, taken advantage of her, mistreated her, and was now bent on profiting from her passing.

It was as if they were losing all sense and all appreciation and were now about to vent on me all the jealousies and frustrations they may have experienced in their past.

In the months that followed, it became plain ugly.

They began with police complaints, accusing me first of having stolen her personal documents; when the Working Committee got involved, and I handed to them all the documents I had kept for the Archives, they went berserk and accused me further, through a second police complaint, of having stolen money and valuables. They wrote terrible harangues to the Secretary, and to Government authorities, now accusing me of acting like the British rulers did, "bossing the natives", and of having even stolen the very gifts they had insisted I must receive from them over the years (a bath towel, a brass leaf, cigars, lighters and the like).

And it became perfectly clear that in this campaign, like two enraged bulls, they had been given full support and "understanding" by a number of interested Aurovilians. They were seen as the perfect, unexpected occasion to run an effective vendetta and to blacken my name for good.

As of today, September the 23rd of 2005, more than a year later, my visa is still held up on the basis of their inflammatory letters to the Ministry in Delhi, and I have just received an official letter stating that as a non-Hindu person, I may not qualify as the caretaker of the Auroville temple to Sri Ganesh.

Here are two of the statements which Kusum had written regarding the temple to Sri Ganesh and her wish that I should continue after her passing; the first one she wrote "to Mother" in her personal diary, as she used to write to Mother in this way regarding any matter of concern to her, any experience of importance in her outer or inner life, any point that she needed to be sure to offer at the Mother's feet:

To Mother, from Kusum, 6-4-98, 5 pm:

"MA – My dear Mother,

Lots of love – Last few days a thought is there about our Sri Ganesh Temple.

You have given me this work 1972 and it is going on. I like to continue this service at the end of my life with your blessings.

But, my M^a, I am not feeling physically so strong and I am thinking in my absence somebody will do this service. Only You may know who will be! But which You provided in advance Divakar to help me, to offer his service to Shri Ganesh Temple; I have a great hope about him.

His devotion, his dedication, his perfection of the work, his skilfulness, his ability, it indicates he is the proper person who can take the full charge of the Ganesh Temple and premises.

It is also a deep feeling in me, M^a, You have provided me Divakar for this service now and after.

My humble prayer to You, please bless him and grant my prayer.

Love,

Yours,

Kusum"

Note: The second statement is addressed to all. Kusum had left it in a separate envelope, easy to find, in the special little cupboard I had built for her to keep in safely all the things connected to Shri Ganesh, as well as to the Mother and Sri Aurobindo. In this statement I think that she perhaps mixed up some dates, as I think it is certain that I helped her first with the repair of the bronze bell of the temple sometime in 1990; but each of us will remember some particular events more than others.

My wish for Ganesh Temple in future, by Kusum, 26.3.2002:

"Aum Shri Ganeshay Namah –

My friends,

I like to tell you about our Ganesh Temple in Auroville. Today I am in inner pressure to say something for the future work of Ganesh Temple.

I like to clear that in my absence Divakar will be in charge of the Ganesh Temple. He has full right to take, to make any decision about Ganesh Temple.

Why?! You know. When I really need someone to help for Ganesh Temple work I would say that time nearly ten years before our Mother sent him to me. How?! I did not know him at all. Our first meeting 1993 by chance for the marble work inside the Ganesh Temple. It was the beginning of our joint effort, & he continues till today.

He became a dedicated worker of the Ganesh Temple. Now what you seeing the scenery & shape of the premises (Riddhi Room, black stone wall, Avirbhav Pond, garden, etc.) it is offering service of our Divakar to Ganesh Temple. Till today mostly each Saturday 3 or 4 hours he is working at Ganesh Temple taking great care of the premises. Without him I cannot think about the present beauty of the Ganesh Temple, he who gave the shape.

Mother provides him for Ganesh Temple & our Ganeshaji welcomes him with great joy. Ganeshaji looks so happy with him. I am so much relaxed now Divakar is faithful, honest, sincere, dedicated his time and work to the Ganesh Temple.

So after me Divakar, only Divakar, will be the in-charge of the Auroville Ganesh Temple.

I hope you fulfil my wish.

Love to all,

Yours,

Kusum"

Note : Dans le courant de l'été, une jeune femme, Française établie à Bordeaux, libraire de profession, qui avait lu mon livre et avait cherché à me rencontrer plusieurs fois lors de mes visites en France, est venue à Auroville pour préparer une thèse sur l'émergence d'une nouvelle société, afin d'obtenir un Masters d'Anthropologie. Elle avait déjà pu établir une communication avec mon frère, JYL. Pendant son séjour à Auroville elle a pu rencontrer un certain nombre d'Auroviliens et enregistrer la plupart de ses conversations avec eux. Par la suite, elle est restée en contact assidu avec moi et a commencé d'étudier en profondeur les œuvres de Sri Aurobindo, et « Savitri » en particulier.

Voici le texte de ce premier entretien qu'elle avait eu avec moi, à « Sincérité » :

Entretien de MHB avec Divakar – Eté 2004, « Sincérité », Auroville :

. D : « Ce n'est pas comme cela pour chacun mais, dans mon cas, je ne suis pas venu particulièrement pour Auroville ; je suis venu pour Mère et je suis resté pour Elle. Après... Auroville offre des conditions qui ne sont nulle part ailleurs présentes... D'abord, c'est un travail qui se fait, nécessairement, là où l'homme – enfin, l'être humain – est humain avant d'être chinois ou français, noir ou blanc : c'est là que cela se passe. C'est là que tu peux en être sûr, parce que tu es projeté dans un brassage de toutes les origines et de toutes les cultures. C'est une garantie que le petit peu de progrès qu'on va faire, ça va être un progrès qui sera central à l'être humain. Ce ne sera pas un truc dépendant de ton bagage.

Ensuite – c'est la deuxième condition – tu as le fait, en tous cas jusqu'à présent, que c'est un lieu qui n'appartient à personne, et quoi qu'il s'y fasse, s'y construise, s'y réalise, n'appartient à personne ; personne ne peut le revendiquer – enfin, jusqu'à présent. Comment c'est encore comme cela après plus de 30 ans de... sur cette planète aujourd'hui... cela n'est pas explicable ! Je ne peux pas te l'expliquer, mais c'est encore comme cela. Quelquefois on se demande si cela va rester comme cela. Il y a toutes sortes de risques, toutes sortes d'impositions qui cherchent à se...

Donc, tout cela fait un ensemble de garanties que les progrès ne sont certainement pas des progrès que l'on peut faire en étant en retrait ; ce n'est pas cela, parce qu'on est constamment confronté à toutes les contradictions que l'on peut absorber, qu'on peut endurer – parce que c'est toujours un peu au maximum... En tous les cas, je ne peux te parler que subjectivement !

Pour en revenir à Mère : avec Mère, en présence de Mère, c'est ce qu'on appelle en Inde la Conscience-Force – c'est Ca le moyen sans lequel rien ne se passera. C'est la Shakti, c'est la force de la conscience qui travaille, qui brasse, qui laboure, qui transforme – et on n'y arrive pas par ses propres moyens d'animal évolutif : on n'a pas les moyens ! Donc, il faut laisser, et puis appeler, et puis s'ouvrir et trouver la présence de Ca. Et quand on a trouvé la présence de Ca, après il y a le reste. C'est là qu'il faut apprendre à se donner, parce que l'on est identifié à toutes les résistances.

Donc, c'est cela le travail, c'est du petit pointillé, c'est pas des grandes choses. Alors, je ne sais pas dans quelle mesure ton exploration d'Auroville peut te servir pour ce que tu peux appeler la 'spiritualité hindoue'... Je ne sais pas... Mais dans les grands principes, c'est ce que Sri Aurobindo a apporté à la fin d'un cycle et au début d'un autre cycle : c'est la résolution d'une certaine impasse de l'Inde, du fait que ce que l'on appelle la vie spirituelle tendait à s'éloigner du monde, et lui, il a tout ramené dans le monde pour que le monde devienne vraiment ce qu'il doit être.

Ca, c'est une sorte de rétablissement.

Si tu prends la vie spirituelle de l'Inde par Sri Aurobindo, oui.

Si tu la prends par toutes sortes d'expériences spirituelles qui sont réelles, mais qui ont précédé, à moins que tu remontes très loin dans les temps, jusqu'aux Védas, cela va toujours avoir tendance à t'éloigner du monde.

Donc, ce n'est pas là où se situe Auroville.

Auroville se situe après le rétablissement que Sri Aurobindo a fait.

Au tout début, c'est quelque chose d'entièrement nouveau, même pour les spiritualités... Et la vie spirituelle en Occident, elle aussi est basée sur une certaine méfiance de ce que le monde peut offrir.

Donc, avec Sri Aurobindo et Mère, on doit apprendre à balayer tout cela. Pas seulement à balayer, mais à déraciner, à dissoudre, parce que cela nous empêche de se donner à la vérité du monde...

. MHB : « Ce lieu ?... »

. D : « Ce lieu est fait pour cela, du fait qu'il appelle, qu'il invite des êtres de tous les bords ; en principe, parce que ce n'est pas encore entièrement effectif, tu ne peux pas rêver d'une condition plus sûre. Si on ne travaille pas là (au niveau) où l'homme est un, qu'est-ce qu'on va faire ?

Il y a des solutions, il y a l'adage 'travailler localement et penser globalement'... Je ne sais plus... Mais ici aussi, c'est comme cela ici aussi... »

. MHB : « Travailler à l'unité du genre humain, ne peut-il pas se faire ailleurs qu'à Auroville ? »

. D : « Si, si, mais... »

. MHB : « C'est présent partout, dans l'ignorance, ou voilé, mais c'est là... ? »

. D : « Oui, oui ; il est présent partout (ce travail) ; mais ici, tu es obligé de vérifier constamment que tu n'es pas en train de t'installer dans une manière par exemple occidentale de considérer ce que peut être l'unité humaine : c'est une manière très limitée ! Il lui manque un énorme vécu, formidable, de plus en plus.

Parce que si tu vois le positionnement de la pensée par rapport au monde en Occident... il est encore très centré sur lui-même... La carte du monde est encore représentée avec l'Occident au centre ; tout est pensé comme cela, alors que c'est une imbécillité ! Cela ne se passe pas comme cela ! Ca ne peut pas se passer comme cela !

Ici, on a un peu plus de chance de ne pas perdre cela de vue ! Parce que l'on est constamment, dans les... Si tu veux, bien qu'apparemment, tu vois, tu peux observer une sorte de surimposition d'un modèle plus ou moins occidental sur la vie de chaque jour, mais si tu grattes un peu, ça peut pas vraiment, parce qu'il y a une telle dynamique, qui pense, qui sent, qui perçoit, qui vit les choses autrement...

Et ça, c'est essentiel. Si tu n'es pas baigné là-dedans, tu te fais avoir, c'est sûr !

Donc, si ça, tu l'as acquis par quelque manière, tu peux trouver partout... D'autant plus que maintenant... Quand je suis allé récemment – depuis 3 ans, je retourne : pendant presque 30 ans, je n'avais pas bougé – j'ai vu : dans les villes, dans les grandes villes, c'est bien, maintenant, t'as le mélange, non ? Peut-être pas Bordeaux, mais dans Paris c'est... tu te promènes dans le monde et pas seulement dans le milieu français... Et je vois bien que dans mon enfance aussi c'était un peu comme cela, on habitait, et puis j'i toujours habité ensuite avec des gens de toutes sortes... Mais maintenant, c'est plus général... Mais tout de même, comme tu dis, l'atmosphère générale, collective, est telle... »

. MHB : « Il y a une tension, une pression sociale... »

. D : « Oui ; et puis l'argent, qui domine tout... Donc, là, où bien il faut se déplacer, ou bien il faut avoir une telle ouverture en restant en contact avec les points de vue d'autres parties du monde, qui ont d'autres expériences...

Donc, ici, je te dis, on est un peu... on a cette sécurité : qu'on est, qu'on travaille, enfin, un travail qui est un travail de la terre, pas seulement d'une culture... »

. MHB : « Un travail de la terre ? Qu'est-ce que... ?

. D : « Dans la terre, enfin, de la terre évolutive, de la terre humaine !... »

. MHB : « D'accord : de la matière... ? »

. D : « Oui, de la terre : au point de vue terrestre... »

. MHB : « Comment avez-vous découvert les écrits de Mère ? Par les écrits de Sri Aurobindo ? OU simplement vous êtes arrivé à l'Ashram et... Est-ce qu'il y a eu un cheminement, ou... ? Certainement ? »

. D : « Oui, mais je n'avais rien lu. Enfin, je n'avais rien lu de Sri Aurobindo. »

. MHB : « Tu connaissais ? »

. D : « Non. »

. MHB : « Alors, cela a été une pure rencontre ? »

. D : « Non, non ! (Rires) Mais ce n'est pas tellement intéressant... je ne crois pas ! »

. MHB : « Non, peut-être pas. Si ce n'est qu'il y a quelque chose qui vous lie tous, à mon impression ; c'est vraiment d'être allé ici, à l'Ashram pour les plus anciens, ou d'avoir découvert le lieu ; d'être passé par ici, après des lectures – pas toujours ; le lieu aime l'individu ; le lieu : pas forcément Auroville. J'ai rencontré des personnes qui sont là depuis très longtemps et qui ont connu l'Ashram avant de connaître Auroville. C'est cette rencontre qui a été décisive dans leur vie et qui a complètement porté leur vie vers tout autre chose. K.T qui était un militaire de carrière, a changé de chemin...

C'est très difficile de parler de... ces choses-là. Vous êtes quand même... Je ne sais pas si c'est continu ou en ce moment, mais je trouve qu'il y a beaucoup de déception actuellement, tout en croyant très fort à ce que chacun essaye de vivre et même de partager avec les autres. Mais c'est comme si vous étiez à une étape de déception. Il y a des choses qui arrivent et qui ne devraient pas arriver ; des contradictions qui naissent dans un lieu où normalement ce genre de tension ne devrait pas être là... »

. D : « Ce n'est pas tellement ça... C'est que les tensions et les contradictions ont toujours été là ; heureusement, parce qu'on a tendance à s'endormir. Mais c'est que les choix pour les résoudre ont diminué en qualité...

Les moyens employés pour arriver au but auquel on croit sont très appauvris pour le moment. Je crois que l'on n'a pas collectivement suffisamment compris qu'il n'y a pas d'autre chemin que celui d'intégrer. On est encore dominé par l'exclusivisme, le rejet, la réduction ; et tant que l'on n'a pas compris cela, on est sur... au bord de l'échec, constamment... Alors évidemment, je ne sais pas si l'on doit dire que cela vient des.... On est tous responsables ! »

. MHB : Est-ce que le rejet ne forme pas des limites qui permettent de rassurer, qui les encadre ? »

. D : « Oui, oui ; c'est beaucoup plus rassurant ! Quand on est fanatique, on se sent beaucoup mieux parce qu'on est encadré, parce qu'on n'a pas besoin de penser, on n'a pas besoin de réfléchir, on n'a pas besoin de rien remettre en question : on a la ligne, on a les mots, on a la certitude, on a aussi le tracé et, bon, tout va bien !

C'est justement ce qui tend à se produire : il y a une réduction de toute cette expérience qui tend à prendre le dessus, et qui utilise pour s'affirmer des moyens qui sont... euh... qui, il y a quelques temps encore on n'aurait pas pu concevoir, et qui sont utilisés ici !... Dans ce sens-là c'est... Auroville n'est pas dans une... enfin la condition de la chose, de l'expérience humaine d'Auroville, n'est pas dans une phase très... très encourageante...

Maintenant, s'il y a assez d'individus qui sont, qui sentent, qui peuvent retracer... la faiblesse, alors peut-être c'est une leçon qui va être vraiment utile ; mais si on n'en a pas assez, je ne sais pas ce qui va se passer... C'est toujours une question du nombre critique... »

. MHB : « Mais pour moi, le nombre penche plutôt en général du côté... »

. D : « De la facilité... »

. MHB : « Oui »

. D : « Oui, en général. Mais disons que le seuil critique de ce qui fait qu'une chose ne s'écroule pas, enfin ne se dissout pas, mais continue une progression, ce n'est pas... je ne sais pas si le 'nombre' est un bon mot... Mais c'est tout de même, il y a tout de même un seuil critique. Il faut quand même un certain poids d'expérience authentique répartie dans des individus... Le nombre, je ne sais pas... Pour la balance, pour l'équilibre : pour pas que ça s'enfonce dans le marécage.

Mais je ne sais pas si on va, si on l'a, si on va l'atteindre... Jusqu'à présent on a passé des périodes très, très... pas sombres, mais, oui, dures, à Auroville ; il y a eu des années... quelquefois on ne voyait pas, cela ne semblait pas possible ; mais c'est toujours là ! Alors, je ne sais pas !

Mais là, c'est retors, parce que c'est beaucoup plus... justement, les mots ont été tellement marchandés que le sens... quand tu dis 'vérité', tu te dis 'à quoi ça sert de le dire', ce n'est plus un mot qui est porté avec sa... avec son pouvoir : c'est un mot qui a été trahi... »

. MHB : « Oui, parce qu'il est utilisé dans tous les domaines. Il est bradé. »

. D : « Oui. Alors, tu te demandes... il y a quelques personnes qui me sont proches et qui... on a plutôt envie de rester tranquilles pour le moment, d'attendre... Ce n'est pas qu'on attende sans... comme un poisson mort... Mais on attend... »

. MHB : « C'est la position adoptée... »

. D : « Il n'y a pas... et puis, tu ne veux pas devenir cynique : tu ne peux pas, ce n'est même plus possible de devenir cynique ; si tu es en chemin, tu ne peux pas en vouloir aux autres, ça aussi, c'est fini !

Mais en même temps, tu ne vois pas comment partager avec, comme cela, sous prétexte qu'untel et untel sont 'Auroviliens'... Avant, tu pouvais peut-être te dire que, oui, s'ils sont vraiment Auroviliens, tu peux apprendre un peu avec eux ; maintenant, c'est incertain. On en est tous là... enfin, je suppose ! »

. MHB : « Auroville a peut-être été aussi toujours comme cela, mais est ce que le fait de s'ouvrir par des entreprises à dimension économique et commerciale, qui vous permettent tout simplement d'exister en tant que structure, est ce que ça n'a pas été le lien ? »

. D : « Avec une atmosphère ordinaire ? Non, mais tu sais, c'est parce que l'on n'a pas bien compris... ! Parce qu'il n'y a aucune raison... la réalisation qui nous est demandée est de mettre au service du progrès essentiel tous les moyens d'action – tous les moyens : et le commerce en est un.

Donc, c'est encore une fois par manque d'exigence que tu te laisses te justifier à toi-même, parce que tu es en contact avec l'atmosphère ordinaire du monde, que tu cèdes du terrain. Mais ce n'est pas vrai, ce sont des faiblesses que nous-mêmes... dont on est nous-mêmes responsables. Sinon, tu n'as aucune raison. Tu peux très bien faire, avoir une activité commerciale, et avoir toute la joie de transformer l'énergie acquise en énergie constructive, d'être tout simplement un canal. Il y a une joie formidable à cela. Tu te sens accompli, tu te sens utilisé de façon fonctionnelle et pour quelque chose qui a tant de possibilités... Au lieu de cela, tu te trouves en train d'avoir ton... ta petite affaire, et d'y tenir parce que cela te demande beaucoup d'efforts et beaucoup d'attention et tu n'as pas envie qu'on te dérange, et puis tu sais mieux que les autres... »

. MHB : « D'en faire une chose à soi... ? »

. D : « Oui ; et puis tu sais mieux que les autres comment... c'est toi qui l'as fait ! Alors, c'est tout cela, c'est tous ces trucs, mais dont on est responsable... »

. MHB : « Ca ne sert à rien, d'inscrire ici cette expérience comme une tentative d'expérience libertaire ? »

. D : « Je ne sais pas ce que ça veut dire, 'libertaire'... Cela a une connotation un peu... qui ne me... »

. MHB : « Politique ? »

. D : « Oui. »

. MHB : « Là je te coupe lamentablement, excuse-moi ! Discussion sur l'anthropologie : tu cites un livre, dont le titre serait sur un certain Ismaël, sur la naissance de la division et sur la naissance de la civilisation – sur la création d’une valeur basée sur l’accumulation de la production de l’agriculture... Je te parle d’une approche que je veux avoir sur la réponse : remonter en amont de la réponse pour en comprendre le sens ; se demander si la réponse est la bonne ; se dire que cette réponse peut comporter des éléments de vérité, mais qu’elle n’est pas pour autant une vérité... ? »

. D : « On doit quand on parle se baser sur une expérience réelle. Autrement, on ferait mieux de se taire. Les mots sont ceux qui, sur le moment, font partie du... magasin : ce que l’on peut trouver pour essayer de faire passer un peu cette expérience, disons, intérieure – réelle ; si tu ne l’as pas, le sujet devrait être clos ! Donc ne devrait pas être ouvert ; il faut quand même voir les choses comme cela ; il ne faut pas que tout soit subjectif à tel point que tout s’explique en amont... ! Donc, si tu es attentive, la réponse peut changer de forme, mais l’expérience est la même ; et je pense qu’il faut voir les choses un peu comme cela – parce que tout est subjectif alors... Tout ne s’explique pas en amont, parce que là, là, c’est linéaire... Je crois que cela dépend de la disponibilité de chacun... Si tu rencontres des gens qui te parlent comme cela, juste parce que ça marche, c’est à toi de voir ! Si tu n’es pas fatiguée tout de suite, c’est que tu aimes cela !... »

. MHB : « Mais je crois que, quand on est dans une position de recherche, c’est intéressant de rencontrer des gens qui sont dans cette dimension-là, c’est-à-dire, qui se foutent des implications telles qu’on les entend dans la société – et qui soient des implications différentes et, justement, par cette différence, amener peut-être le monde à lentement évoluer... Est-ce que tu penses au monde quand tu es là, comment va le monde, la certaine déroute de ce monde ?

. D : « Quelle est ton impression ? »

. MHB : « Je ne sais pas. Je te sens en retrait. S’en foutre serait excessif... et en même temps, j’accepte tout à fait que tu me dises que je n’ai pas de discernement... »

. D : « Là, un petit moment : je me suis demandé si tu n’avais pas compris exactement à l’envers de ce que je t’avais dit ? Je disais tout à l’heure que l’on n’a à parler qu’à partir d’une expérience réelle, pas personnelle, mais d’une expérience qui soit assez solide et vérifiée pour ne plus avoir à revenir au processus dont tu parles... Ce que j’essaie de te dire, c’est que je ferais mieux de me taire si je ne peux pas parler en référence à une expérience solide, et j’attends un peu cela des autres. C’est la moindre des choses. Je ne vois pas le sens de ton truc de remonter en amont, en amont... Cela ne s’applique pas... C’est plutôt le mouvement d’essayer d’avoir accès à cette expérience à travers les mots de quelqu’un, les mots de cet instant-là... »

. MHB : « Est-ce que ta parole est celle d’une personne en rupture avec le monde, ou au contraire... ? Et j’ai l’impression que tu es en retrait... C’est peut-être parce que c’est moi qui suis en retrait, comme étrangère à ce monde d’Auroville, car je n’y suis pas depuis longtemps... Déjà en 8 jours mon impression a changé, tout cela fait sa route quand même... ! »

. D : « Alors, tu me vois en rupture, c’est curieux...

Cela revient à ce que j'essayais de te dire au début, c'est que c'est une condition, quand on vit ici, qu'on peut être sûr que les petits pas que l'on fait sont des petits pas qui comptent en tant qu'humains, pas en tant que membres d'une culture ou d'une race ou d'un pays ou de je ne sais quoi... »

. MHB : « Oui, et cela est du ressenti... Cette implication que j'ai face à vous tous fait que moi, je me sens en retrait... »

. D : « Non, écoute, je ne peux pas te dire qu'il n'y a pas le risque de se retrancher : c'est possible que le risque soit là, du moins provisoirement. Mais, dans l'expérience même, c'est plutôt le mouvement de plonger, avec la compréhension et la confiance qu'on ne va pas s'éloigner, mais au contraire qu'on va s'unir avec quelque chose qui est présent partout. On peut dire 'universel' et tout cela, mais c'est un adjectif – concrètement, c'est le fait de plonger qui peut sembler comme cela (comme un éloignement) ; du fait que tu aies à plonger, et par ce qui fait que tu plonges, ou que tu es dans ton chemin de plongeon depuis longtemps, tu n'utilises plus les moyens de communication (habituels), parce que tu n'en as plus besoin... Ca ne te vient plus – donc cela peut te donner l'impression... Mais je ne peux pas te promettre qu'il n'y ait pas des cas, entre nous tous, d'un certain retranchement ; mais ça ne doit pas durer beaucoup, à mon avis, parce que la vie ici ne te laisse pas – telle que je l'ai observée – ne te laisse pas t'installer... »

. MHB : « En quoi cela ne te permet pas de te laisser t'installer ? »

. D : « C'est en entendant plein, plein de petites histoires, comme ça, que tu pourras saisir la variété, et l'efficacité de quelque chose qui travaille ici : si tu en as vraiment besoin, ça te laisse tranquille – mais vraiment besoin ; sinon, cela vient te chercher, dans tes retranchements, ça te secoue un peu, et puis cela te fait rencontrer des choses comme ça tout le temps, mais à ta mesure... Mais les choses ne sont pas encore concluantes en aucune manière... donc, il doit bien y avoir des échappatoires : on est rusés !!! »

. MHB : « Il y a 30 ans que tu es ici ? »

. D : « IL y a plus de 30 ans que je suis venu à Mère... Le sens de bouger ne me vient pas... Parfois je me dis qu'il faut peut-être que je fasse un pas – un autre pas ; mais c'est dans la tête seulement... 30 ans, ce n'est pas beaucoup, quand tu considères les racines de ce qui fait qu'on est encore incapables de manifester autre chose que cette condition-là : tu te dis que, vraiment, 30 ans, c'est rien ! Travailler là-dessus pour offrir cela... c'est rien, c'est ridicule, c'est honteux ! C'est une mauvaise farce ! Parce qu'on a besoin de temps, du temps continu, pour faire de tout petits progrès. On ne parle pas d'une réalisation spirituelle, parce que cela, relativement, tu y arrives – mais c'est pour rester ici, dans cette vie-là, ici, dans le physique, dans la matière, dans le corps, que ce soit là : que cela devienne son fruit !... »

. MHB : « Une action ? »

. D : « Non, non... que cela devienne plein, radieux, habité enfin, et non plus cette absurdité qu'on est la plupart du temps... »

Donc, on a besoin de travailler et de travailler, et cela prend du temps. C'est comme cela. Alors que tu peux avoir le temps de réalisations – tout d'un coup, en une seconde -, et tu peux y rester aussi, et tu peux t'en aller avec. Mais changer ici, se transformer ici, c'est tout à fait autre chose... ! »

. MHB : « Est-ce que quelque chose a changé dans son ensemble à Auroville depuis 30 ans ? Est-ce que vous êtes toujours à vous battre, enfin, à chercher ? Y a-t-il une notion de temps à tout cela ? »

. D : « Ce n'est pas cela... en même temps tu te dis – tu aimerais, ce serait vraiment bien -, tu te dis, 'si on pouvait maintenant être au premier jour d'Auroville, avec le petit peu qu'on a compris'... ! Comme on éviterait du gaspillage, avec le petit peu que l'on a maintenant, qui s'est intégré, qui s'est réalisé si tu veux, et qui est là, sûr, à présent... et que ce soit le premier jour... Voilà, on efface, puis on commence... il y aurait moins de conneries – 'conneries', il faut le dire bien vite !

Et d'un autre côté, je pourrais te dire quelque chose – comme tout a été tellement, comme on le disait avant, tellement colporté, frelaté... Il y a une innocence, une candeur, une flamme qui est un peu corrompue... Je peux dire l'un et l'autre... L'un et l'autre sot ensemble, peut-être un peu de l'un et de l'autre, et c'est une expérience en soi... Mais cela, c'est individuel, c'est à chacun de... »

. MHB : « Est-ce que l'individu n'a pas finalement... l'étape où tu en es, est-ce que ce n'est pas cela ? Est-ce que tu penses qu'il peut y avoir évolution ? »

. D : « Oui, cela est sûr. Mais il y a des passages qui sont tellement étroits... 'Étroit' n'est pas le mot... des culbutes, des renversements, des... ou bien parfois, c'est la masse des contradictions...

Il n'y a pas de doute, l'évolution est une chose certaine : c'est la seule chose certaine, il n'y en a pas d'autre qui soit aussi sûre... ! Mais je te dis, 30 ans, ce n'est rien... !

Alors... encore la destruction, et on recommence, la destruction et recommencer... Il faut trouver une solution plus pratique ! »

. MHB : « Plus pratique, avec toute la contingence historique... »

. D : « Il y a un tout qui doit évoluer en même temps... Tu sais, il y a des signes, il y a toutes sortes de signes, des choses... qui sont comme juste au bord d'une simplicité, comme dans la science... De temps en temps, il y a des percées, comme cela, et tu te dis : 'ah !' Comme si tout d'un coup tu as respiré un air, presque d'une simplicité radicale... qui va tout... on est là à porter le poids de nos soucis, la contrainte et le gaspillage et l'horreur qu'on crée autour de nous constamment, et puis il y a des moments... Il y a comme une maturité qui manque encore : une maturité, pas dans le sens de vieillir, mais dans le sens d'être prêt à éclore, tout entier dans cette... pas en tension, non plus... comme dans une gestation : tu ne peux pas le presser... »

. MHB : « Il faut un lieu pour cela. Ce n'est pas possible autrement. »

. D : « Oui. Il faut un lieu protégé. »

. MHB : « C'est une ascèse ? »

. D : « Non, mais... c'est pourquoi, je suppose, certains d'entre nous sont restés ici : il y a quand même une certaine forme de protection ; il faut reconnaître qu'on est quand même très, très privilégiés, extraordinairement protégés ; cela peut être un privilège injuste – non mérité –, et en même temps cela peut être la protection indispensable qu'il faut pour être nu... »
