The Women of Tomorrow

By Helen-Kay Davy, Principal

We've just had a federal election in Canada and there's an election underway south of the border. During these campaigns, you can't help but notice we still have a problem with women in leadership roles. There are not enough females in high-profile positions in politics, business and beyond, and those on top face additional challenges. At Havergal, we know our students are going to be the leaders of tomorrow—or the women of tomorrow, contemplating their relationship with leadership. We make it a daily mission to prepare them for this future.

We believe the best leaders have passion and vision, but also empathy. Truly effective leaders bring everyone into their vision. They're compassionate, inclusive and put the needs of their constituents ahead of their own popularity and privilege.

Our girls not only learn all this by leading in highly visible, structured roles, but also by taking command in small groups, having the chance to be entrepreneurial and looking to role models. As part of our new strategic plan, we will weave even more leadership opportunities and teachable moments into our curriculum and co-curricular activities.

One of the best places to learn how to lead—and to follow—is in sports. We have a large athletics program and run as many teams as we have girls who want to compete: no one is left out. Team captains learn very quickly that being a leader on the field, court or rink is not about individual glory, it's about the team. Leaders with character are able to pass on the the captain jersey and tackle the role of team player with just as much passion and conviction.

Our girls also learn by watching their teachers. We have a substantial professional development program at Havergal that allows teachers to take courses to become experts in new subjects or learn from a professional coach.

We have key leadership roles that teach our girls how to take on power positions. Elected school Prefects, House Captains, Senior Year Presidents and the School Captain, as well as leadership roles at a variety of clubs and councils, help our school run smoothly. What's special about Havergal is that every year one of our girls is honoured with the J. Herbert Mason Medal for Character. This award dates back to 1897 and the recipient is chosen by the students. It's not a popularity contest—our students learn early on there's a big difference between being well-liked and tackling the responsibility of leadership.

The winner of this award is always one of those special girls who is able to manoeuvre the delicate balance of leadership at a young age. At Havergal, we know it takes years to master the ins and outs of taking charge effectively. It is our privilege to start as many girls as we can down that challenging path. Learning to be a good leader is a lifetime process that brings a lifetime of rewards. 🍀

Leading with Confidence

Meet School Captain Isabelle Caven 2016

By Jacqueline Kovacs

When Havergal students return to school Monday mornings, they are greeted by music, dancing Prefects and the smiling face of School Captain, Isabelle (Izzy) Caven. These small gestures are all part of the 17-year-old's larger plan of making everyone feel comfortable and welcome in the Havergal College community.

"At Havergal, there are a lot of opportunities to take advantage of," Caven explains. "Aside from the academic work, and even outside of the clubs and sports, there are activities that you can take part in to make yourself more a part of the community. But you have to provide an environment for people to feel comfortable enough to take advantage of it all."

A sense of comfort is not only an atmosphere Caven strives to create, but it's also something she exudes herself, making her a unique role model for the student community. "A lot of people have something that defines them, whether it's sports or music or something else," she says. "But I just live my life as me, which I think people can relate to."

That relate-ability is something Gillian Martin, Assistant Head, Senior School, has seen in action. "A big part of Izzy's charisma is her authenticity," Martin says. "She puts people at ease—they don't need to be anything other than who they are." It's no wonder, then, that Caven is so popular among younger students, as well. "She connects with them on whatever level they're at and she has absolutely zero standoffishness," says Martin. "There's no, 'I'm a Grad and I've got an intimidation factor,' so the younger students feel comfortable with her and gravitate toward her."

The feeling is mutual: Caven has long had an interest in children and has volunteered in the arts and music program at Holland Bloorview Kids Rehabilitation Hospital—the country's largest children's rehabilitation hospital—since Grade 10. "I work one-on-one with a child, helping them feel comfortable," Caven says. "It's one of the highlights of my week." She rounds out her summers, meanwhile, working as a live-in babysitter and a camp counsellor.

"She's got a natural love for children," agrees Martin, recalling that back in Grade 10, Caven helped launch the Havergal Big Sister Club during a leadership retreat. "She's one of the most compassionate young people I've ever met."

A lot of Caven's positive attitude is captured in this year's motto: Let's Remix, 15–16. "It stands for changing something in yourself—or something in the way you live your life—in a positive way," says Caven, adding that it can be as big as taking on a new activity or as small as consciously looking at something in a fresh, new way. "It can be about attitude, lifestyle—just an all-encompassing motto to change yourself for the better in some way."

It's a motto that is as open and upbeat as Caven herself. "The fact that Izzy is fun-loving and joyful is a huge asset," says Martin. "She exudes a joy and a sense of fun that is contagious." 🍌

charisma is her authenticity.”

Unscripted Moments

The role of excursions in leadership development

By Leslie Anne Dexter, Head of Junior School, and Michael Simmonds, Head of Upper School

Ask any Havergal alumna about her favourite memories from school and, inevitably, she will mention something about the trips she took. Excursions are an exciting part of a Havergal education because there is nothing quite like opening a door to the unknown and experiencing a new adventure with your peers and teachers. But what can be overshadowed by the thrill of exploring new worlds off campus is the role that excursions play in developing leadership capacity.

Excursions at Havergal are deliberately planned along a continuum from simpler, fairly structured experiences in the Junior School to more complex and open-ended international adventures in the Upper School. When we develop the slate of excursions we provide, we work with the faculty to address a question that lies at the heart of our leadership program: what is the relationship between the self-efficacy and global capability we develop in our students and leadership qualities?

Helping students to make a difference and shape the world in which they want to live requires a clear definition of leadership, something that is notoriously difficult to achieve. There are as many different views on leadership as there are leaders, which make conceptions of leadership highly value-laden. Add in that just about anyone can be a leader in some way, and you run the risk of settling on a definition of leadership that is everything and nothing at the same time.

To resolve this ambiguity, we often focus on a simple reality about leadership: it takes place within or on behalf of a group. The student practising her bassoon every night until she earns a place in the orchestra is not a leader during her individual pursuit of excellence,

“You gain strength, courage and confidence by every experience in which you really stop to look fear in the face. You must do the thing you think you cannot do.”

but she may become one if she leads by example and inspires others around her to become better. When two or more people come together with a shared purpose, there is a need for individuals to play leadership roles, whether to exert influence, direct the group's decisions or accomplish a goal.

There are hundreds of ways that any girl can lead by influencing, guiding or performing within a group. She might share an idea, change someone's mind or support a peer's initiative. It would be false to think that a supporting role is never a leading role: sometimes it's that second or third voice that tips the balance toward a new enterprise. And sometimes that second or third voice resounds because it belongs to a quiet girl who rarely speaks up and who, therefore, commands attention when she does.

Any voice can become the voice of a leader. To be effective, our leadership program has to offer diverse experiences that foster diverse approaches—from the up-front leader on the vanguard to the student who guides a group by expressing her values clearly and consistently. We know that leadership develops rapidly in situations where students take mitigated risks, head into the unknown and forge new ground. Any time our girls are pushing boundaries and testing their ability to cope with new circumstances—whether on a day trip in Grade 3 or during weeks away on an Upper School student exchange to another country—they are given the opportunity to expand and practise new languages.

We build excursions that offer our students opportunities to work within a group, to articulate a position in the face of conflicting values, to influence others toward a solution and to show strength and insight by following through on a commitment. In essence, our excursions allow each girl to explore questions about her own power and authority in a world where change is the only constant.

We want our girls to ask themselves questions such as “What does my voice sound like when I lead? What kind of leader am I? What is leadership to me? What does leading by example or by direction look like when I do it?” To achieve this goal, we create off-campus opportunities for our students to lead—times when the right thing to do or the best direction to take is less certain than it may be in the classroom, which is a place fixed in space and time. Excursions offer so many less defined moments: moments that are unscripted and open-ended, or moments when a student can influence the way that the activity unfolds, either in a high-profile role or by quietly ensuring that the group remains focused on its goals.

Excursions provide the right age-appropriate opportunities for each girl to find her way when she’s a little off balance, unsure or surprised by her environment. Some of the greatest learning and leading moments are characterized by surprise and uncertainty, when it’s hard to predict what’s coming next or know what direction to take. Even disagreement in the face of options allows our students to debate and debrief the merits of each choice.

Havergal’s classrooms are places of inquiry, exploration and curiosity, but, as in any school, the day is highly structured and there is a degree of predictability in how the days unfold. The dynamics of a group change off-campus when girls are exposed to many different and new situations. The opportunity to experience a more fluid and open-ended environment is invaluable in cultivating real-life skills beyond the classroom.

There are a wide range of excursions available at Havergal, including one-day field trips, partnership experiences such as ArtHeart and Best Buddies, grade-wide outings like the Grade 5 trip to Algonquin Provincial Park and the Grade 8 trip to Saint-Donat and the numerous trips on offer through the Institute at Havergal’s Global Experience Program in the Middle and Senior Schools.

Here are two examples to consider:

In our newly developed Grade 3 to 6 leadership excursion to the Mansfield Outdoor Centre, our younger students head outdoors to face a series of initiative challenges and group dynamics. This customized initiative and leadership development program was designed by a team of faculty representatives in the Junior School working closely with the outdoor education experts at Mansfield. The program immerses students in new and unexpected experiences that help them develop a shared practice and vocabulary of leadership. This shared language and understanding is then used throughout the year as a framework for Havergal's ongoing emphasis on initiative, collaboration and challenge.

A second illustration lies at the other end of the spectrum: the international excursions that immerse our students in a foreign culture and a complex social experience. One example is the adventure last June that took a group of students to Nicaragua to build a school—a trip similar to the Costa Rica and South Africa excursions happening this year. In this environment, our girls developed a perspective not available at home and acquired new skills and insights every day in order to achieve their individual and group goals.

If you read the excursion blog at the time (www.havergal.on.ca/excursionblog), you'll remember this scene: "The girls worked in small groups through all of the various tasks on the job site under the watchful and patient tutelage of our local construction crew. They were laying brick, sifting, tying rebar, splitting cinderblocks, etc." What did each girl need to call on within herself to achieve mastery? How did she help her team to finish their task? When exhausted or overwhelmed, what individual fortitude and group resolve were further strengthened?

Whether in Grade 3 or Grade 12, each of these trips pushed our girls to a new limit. You can see that as they grow older, our excursions offer increasing autonomy and complexity so that students are always faced with age-appropriate challenges.

A woman who makes a difference in the world draws on the values of integrity, inquiry, courage and compassion. These values are developed through understanding, reflection and opportunities for action. In other words, when our students live our school values, it is a form of practice—a way of doing built upon a way of being. Excursions provide the real-world, unscripted experiences needed to rehearse and apply the values that underlie each girl's unique leadership mindset and voice. 🍌

The Power of GOLD

By Heather Colwell, Senior Development Officer

When a Havergal student or Old Girl hears the word “gold,” she may think of a prize or award that she won for a special achievement, or she may think about Havergal alumna, Jill Apps, and her two gold medal hockey wins at the Olympics. For graduates of the last decade, GOLD is now an acronym for the cohort of most recent Old Girls—Graduates Of the Last Decade.

Last year, as Havergal celebrated its 120th birthday, a new giving society was launched—the GOLD society. Created to honour young Old Girls who donate to Havergal’s Annual Giving Program, participation lies at the core of the GOLD society. To honour its establishment, we paired one lucky GOLD society member with another member of the Havergal Old Girls Association (HOGA) for a professional coaching session. GOLDen Old Girl Kate Applin 2005 was our lucky winner for her participation in the Annual Giving Program at Havergal College.

Applin was a strong leader during her time at Havergal and she continues to thrive as a young professional. Recently, she successfully completed her MBA at Wilfried Laurier University. Throughout her post-secondary education, she made giving back to Havergal through our monthly giving program one of her personal charitable priorities. It was a great pleasure to pair her with fellow Old Girl Jane Ross 1979, who also continues to support Havergal in so many ways as a donor, as a professional coach and as a facilitator for professional development sessions with HOGA.

Old Girls like Applin and Ross continue to strengthen the culture of philanthropy at our school. They know first-hand the value of a Havergal education, and their support and participation in our community is paramount to the long-term success of Havergal College. Each generation of Havergal families has benefited from those generous members of the community, who have understood the need to keep Havergal at the leading edge of girls’ education.

Old Girls from 1944 to 2015 continue to show their support for Havergal by making gifts to their class endowments each year. For current students at Havergal, the tradition of the class endowment begins in Grade 12. Old Girls and—more recently—their families have been establishing class endowments as a legacy to their graduating year since 1947. These funds support many different areas at the school, including bursaries, curriculum enrichment, the arts, music, athletics and green initiatives, to name just a few. The power of these gifts over the last 75 years can be seen throughout the halls at Havergal. The generosity of those who have come before is prevalent in every nook and cranny of the school’s beautiful campus and has touched the lives of all its students over the decades.

“Just as ripples spread out when a single pebble is dropped into water, the actions of individuals can have far-reaching effects.”

So what does the word GOLD mean to you? Whether you are a current student, Old Girl, current or past parent or another community member, you have the power to contribute to this extraordinary place. We know that amazing things happen when you invest your time, talent and treasure at Havergal. The power of our combined philanthropy will be felt for many decades to come. 🍀

Engaging Student Leaders in the Forum for Change

By Melanie Belore, Interim Manager of the Institute

Student leadership at Havergal takes on many forms. Formal leadership roles, such as Prefects and House Captains, perhaps come most easily to mind. However, leadership is also found in students who embody Havergal's values through everyday acts of integrity, inquiry, courage and compassion.

What all of these leaders have in common is that they are understood as learners. In other words, at Havergal a student's leadership journey is focused on learning about herself and her place in the world—a safe environment in which to learn to take a seat at the table and work alongside others to build the kind of world in which they want to live.

Upper School students can find support on their leadership journeys within Havergal's Students Act Now program. They are welcome to bring their thoughts, ideas, concerns and questions to the Forum for Change (room C32), where they will start by having a conversation. Institute staff members will help guide the students through the process of building an action plan, connecting with the right people and resources, and moving ideas into action.

Anna Shinn and Clare Morneau are two such students who have emerged as school leaders through the Students Act Now program, mobilizing their peers into taking action on issues that matter to them.

Middle School students in the Forum for Change

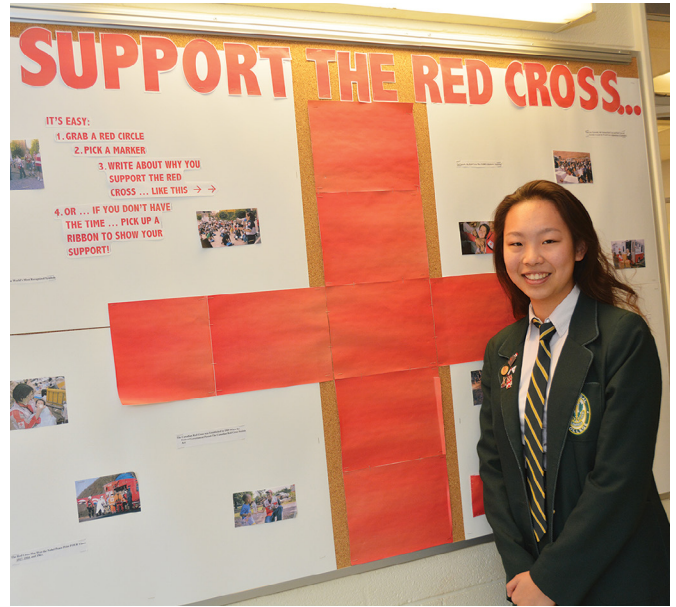

Anna Shinn

Grade 11 student Anna Shinn is the GTA Youth Organizer for Amnesty International, the High School Committee Lead for the Canadian Red Cross and a member of the Base Executive Committee for Dreamation. She facilitates workshops for peers interested in humanitarian and human rights issues across the city and has learned how to adapt her leadership style to her audience.

“I think that being a good leader is about paying attention to the group you’re working with and finding unique ways of engaging with them, and then moulding your approach to their specific needs,” says Shinn. “I enjoy facilitating workshops because I learn a lot about how different people think. I love how they come up with conclusions that I never thought of.”

Last year, Shinn used these skills to bring together a group of her peers to form a Red Cross Group at Havergal to discuss humanitarian issues around the world, specifically those affecting women and children. Shinn and her team will continue to build on what they learned last year to expand their impact.

“I’ve learned more about myself through my role as a leader than through other activities,” says Shinn. “I’ve discovered that leadership is not about telling a group of people what to do, it’s about giving people a platform and the support to figure it out themselves.”

Clare Morneau

When Grade 11 student Clare Morneau learned about girls living in the Kakuma Refugee Camp in northern Kenya, she wanted to understand their stories. Kakuma is run by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). With a fluid population of more than 150,000 people escaping conflict in countries like Sudan, Somalia and Ethiopia, Kakuma is one of the largest refugee camps in the world. Because Kakuma is well-established, and refugees are not permitted to work in Kenya, UNHCR provides education, health care and basic food to its occupants.

Morneau’s vision began as a partnership that connects Havergal students with girls who live and attend school in Kakuma. Her goal was to open up different perspectives of life for both groups. Last year, Morneau brought together a group of her peers to explore ways of connecting with the girls at Kakuma. Students exchanged letters and Skyped with one another, sharing thoughts on everything from the weather to the girls’ education.

Morneau spent the summer writing and compiling the correspondence into a book she plans to publish early next year. For her, the relationships she has formed with the girls at Kakuma have guided her along this journey.

“Leadership to me is forming a connection with the people I am working with,” says Morneau. “Learning the stories of the girls at Kakuma has changed my approach from one of charity to one of friendship. For example, at first I wanted to collect books to send to the girls at Kakuma. Today I want to make sure that each one is addressed with a name and a personal message. It’s personal to me now.”

Everyday Leadership

Havergal celebrates the formal and informal ways that students take charge

By Suzanne Bowness

As one of this year's Senior Year Presidents and last year's co-chairs for Havergal's Gay-Straight Alliance, Grade 12 student Stephanie Fung is increasingly an expert on leadership at Havergal. A student here since Grade 5, she laughs knowingly when asked whether students ever hear the word "leader" floating around. "A lot!" she says. Fung even has a ready definition: "It's about trust and responsibility. Being a leader takes commitment and reliability, especially when people are depending on you."

That's not to say it's not fun; for example, Fung says her current role means she's gotten to know a lot of the girls much better. "I get to talk to people I normally wouldn't, and this is our last year, so it means a lot," she says.

Although opportunities for formal leadership are most plentiful for Grade 12 students preparing for that move into the world beyond Havergal, these days the school's key mantra on the topic is that not all leadership happens formally. "One of our goals at Havergal is to broaden the definition of leadership," says Gillian Martin, Assistant Head, Senior School.

"I think many young people—and sometimes even many adults—get a little narrow in their definition. 'Everyday leadership' is the phrase that we use, which is to say mentoring a younger student or being a tutor or even stopping in the hall and noticing that someone is in need. It's those everyday leadership moments that I think schools need to be pretty deliberate about recognizing and celebrating and naming as leadership."

Kate White, Assistant Head, Junior School, recalls a specific instance that illustrates Martin's point. "It's a small example, but I think it's really an important one," says White, describing a student who struggled as a newcomer last year trying to navigate the new environment and then, in turn, tried to make the transition easier on someone else.

"This year, at Harvest Festival, as the children were coming into the Brenda Robson Hall, she went and specifically sought out one of this year's new students and brought her over and asked her if she wanted to play. Then she went and introduced her to her family. To me, that is leadership. She wasn't asked to do it. She didn't know that I happened to be watching. It was borne out of empathy and kindness. That student was living the values of the school. That's ultimately what we want," says White.

“Being a leader takes commitment and reliability, especially when people are depending on you.”

—Stephanie Fung, member of the Grade 12 Senior Year Presidents

Talking about leadership directly helps broaden the definition for the students and encourages them to see themselves as leaders. “We talk a lot with our girls about the fact that sometimes girls themselves are quite hesitant to call themselves leaders,” says Martin. “It’s almost as if they feel like it’s bragging or being too sure of themselves or it will separate them from their peers in a way they don’t want. We talk about that tension.”

“It’s a conversation that starts as early as Junior School,” says White. “We try as much as possible to have the kids talk about what it means to be a leader. We make it very explicit in the teaching. Instead of just saying, ‘Okay. You’re in Grade 6 now; you need to be a leader.’ We actually talk about what that means and we elicit answers from the children,” says White.

She says one description that comes up is that a leader is someone who tells others what to do. “We try and unpack that with them and we talk about the idea that being a leader is not always the one standing up on the chair and screaming and yelling.

It’s often the person who is quietly on the side simply doing the right thing when nobody is watching,” says White.

Besides having conversations around leadership, Havergal also fosters informal opportunities by encouraging students when they come up with their own initiatives. Jennifer Patterson, Assistant Head, Middle School (Grades 7 to 8), recalls a recent example of a Grade 8 student who wanted to learn more about the situation in Syria and took the initiative to research and run an information session. “There were over 40 students who went to the room and they couldn’t fit any more in. This is just a 12- or 13-year-old student who said, ‘I want to know more about this. I think people will be interested to learn and see what we can do,’” says Patterson.

As another example of where an idea sprouted informally but may become formalized, Patterson points to a Grade 8 student executive member’s initiative to create a week to celebrate kindness. “I helped her through the process of creating a proposal and bringing it to the Student Council,” says Patterson. “I think when the students generate the ideas, there’s a tremendous amount of empowerment and buy-in.” She says the Student Council loved the idea, launched it last year and is already talking about making it an annual event.

Other roles that combine the formal and informal include team captains on sports teams, the Welcome Committee (in both the Junior and Upper Schools) and the Havergal Big Sisters Club. And there are more than 80 clubs at Havergal, ranging in topic and formality from model United Nations to debating to the DECA business club, to more light-hearted fare like film, cooking, origami, Spanish or Mandarin. There are student newspapers and magazines. There’s even a Quiddich club. “The goal, of course, is we don’t want girls to sign up for everything and go nuts, but we do want them, particularly in Grades 9 and 10, to just try a lot of different flavours and see what clicks. Many times you’ll see a girl who tries a club in Grade 9 or 10 and then by Grade 12 she’s leading it or co-leading it. I love it when that happens because that’s a neat progression to see,” says Martin.

Grade 8 Executive on the Middle School Council

For those interested in formal leadership opportunities, they do abound at Havergal. Most visibly, Grade 12 students can become school Prefects, led by a head girl called the School Captain. Prefects specialize in different areas of the school, for example, the Arts Council, Sports Council, Student Council and others. They assist in running Prayers, they liaise between the students and faculty, and they are called on as ambassadors to attend events such as our annual Open House. “They are our go-to girls,” says Martin.

Other leadership opportunities for Grade 12 students include roles such as House Captains, who oversee House Councils and organize everything from athletics to friendly House competitions. “I think of the House Captains as sort of the caretakers of school spirit,” says Martin. Then there are the six Senior Year Class Presidents who oversee activities (such as special assemblies, workshops, the Grad Gift) for the graduating classes.

Students interested in any of these roles apply in Grade 11, filling out leadership profiles shared online with the Middle and Senior Schools three weeks before the vote. “We have a hotly anticipated school election day, and we cast all of our votes on one morning, from Grade 7 all the way up to 12, including faculty and staff,” says Martin. She adds the election is made fun by the real element of surprise. “I’ve been through two elections now at Havergal and what is actually wonderful is that we really go with what the school chooses. That’s a great leap of faith, but the school elects a pretty diverse group of girls,” says Martin.

In the Middle School, formal leadership is taken on by five Grade 8 executives who are elected by their peers (at the end of Grade 7), forming the Executive of the Middle School Council. In an example of leadership crossover between the schools, these councils are co-chaired by two Grade 12 students, called Middle School Prefects. Once the school year begins, there are also Form elections, and the Executive is joined by four reps for Grade 7 and four reps for Grade 8 (each Form is between 22 and 24 students).

The Havergal Old Girls Association Mentoring Program

The Havergal College Old Girls Association (HOGA) offers young alumnae and experienced Old Girls mentoring opportunities through the Light the Way Program. Since its inception in 2006, hundreds of Old Girls have participated in the program.

Farah Ismail 1996 has been a member of the Mentoring Committee since 2012 and has served as Chair since 2013. “In my role, I have been able to utilize the skills I have developed, such as effective communication, organization and collaboration, to work collectively with a group of Old Girls who come from a variety of backgrounds. Together, we share the responsibility for developing and sustaining the mentoring program,” says Ismail. “Our goal is to make mentoring and networking accessible to all Old Girls, regardless of the sector in which they work. The critical success of the Light the Way Program is based on the participation of Old Girls and, particularly, mentors who are willing and able to share their time and expertise.” The Mentoring Committee encourages experienced Old Girls to volunteer their time in whatever way they are able in order to ensure continued success for the program.

For more information about the program, visit www.havergal.on.ca/mentoring.

Parent Leadership

Leadership opportunities abound for Havergal community members. The Havergal College Parent Association (HCPA) includes parents who volunteer in roles such as committee chairs, Grade Reps and special events, to name only a few.

Laurie Hay, Chair of the HCPA 2015–16, explains why parents enjoy taking on volunteer roles within the school: “Our members are ambassadors of the school. They enjoy being involved, making a difference and seeing the impact their roles have on the girls and the other parents.”

One of the goals of the HCPA is to help encourage an engaged, committed community. “It is important for our girls to see their parents involved in the school,” says Hay. “When they see us taking on leadership roles and acting as ambassadors, our kids lose the perception of the school as a separate entity from their home lives. It helps them connect with the school on a different level.”

In addition to assisting with school events and leading committees, members of the HCPA embody the school’s values of integrity, inquiry, compassion and courage. They are excellent ambassadors and are key to community building.

In the Junior School, leadership begins with building a sense of responsibility among the Junior and Senior Kindergarteners by putting their own belongings into their backpacks. “The reason why we do that and why it’s so important is simply because we want the children to know that they’re capable of doing things and to have a much greater sense of confidence within themselves. When children are confident within themselves and see themselves as problem solvers, they’re much more able to take on a more formalized leadership role later on,” explains White.

Higher up the Junior School ladder, the Grade 6 students are in charge of the 10 Houses at the Junior School, developing relationships to increase intermingling between the grades. “It really strengthens the fabric of our school,” says White.

Another source of inspiration for students is the approximately 120 teachers at Havergal. Leadership opportunities abound there, too. Seonaid Davis is Director of Curriculum and Faculty Development and Head of Technological Education, responsible for academic programming at the school, including teaching and learning strategies, implementation and learning support, as well as professional development for teachers. She says leadership opportunities for our Senior and Middle School teachers include roles as Department Heads. In the Junior School, faculty can take on the role of curricular co-ordinators to support specific programs, including literacy, science and kindergarten. Other roles include House advisors, Form teachers and roles assisting the heads of student clubs.

Davis says teachers also lead professional learning communities to explore various teaching practices or ideas such as teaching through dialogue, creating cultures of thinking, looking at assessment practices or working on effective communication. Teachers may also lead working groups to look at issues such as timetables or leadership development. “All of our professional learning communities are led by teacher leaders who basically said ‘I’d really love to start a group to investigate this aspect of teaching and I’m willing to lead the group.’ We support that 100 per cent,” says Davis.

“I think there is leadership potential in every student. It’s about finding what makes a particular student tick.”

Martin says she’s been really pleased with the opportunities that Havergal provides its teachers. “I’ve worked in a couple of different places, and Havergal is absolutely a standout in terms of that support. There’s a lot of attention given to all of our faculty members for goal setting, looking at ways to measure whether they feel fulfilled and successful,” says Martin. Patterson agrees. “The professional development that goes on and the opportunities that are provided are really incredible,” she says. As an example, she says many teachers, including herself, have attended the Leadership Institute through the Canadian Accredited Independent Schools (CAIS).

White sums it up by praising Havergal’s exploratory approach to finding leadership in its students. “I think there is leadership potential in every student. It’s about finding what makes a particular student tick.

Students who know themselves are going to be able to contribute to something that they care about. We really believe that there’s a way for every child to become engaged. That’s why Havergal is such a great place for students to be because there are so many opportunities for them across the board, from arts to athletics to academics to social justice.” 🍌

Staff as Team Leaders

On average each year, 30 Havergal staff members volunteer their time and expertise to lead athletic teams at Havergal. These leadership opportunities provide staff members with the opportunity to connect with students and school life, exhibit their love of sports and feel a deeper involvement with the school community. “When our administrative and support staff take on coaching roles at the school, they experience an excellent form of community building,” says Jackie Suongas, Upper School Athletic Director. “We are lucky to have so many involved staff members who are willing to take on these important leadership roles.”

Havergal Student Awards 2014–15

The Havergal community congratulates the following students for their achievements for the 2014–15 school year. Special awards ceremonies were held on June 8 for the Junior School and on October 8 for the Upper School to honour and acknowledge the many award recipients.

Upper School Honour Roll and Award of Distinction

In Grades 7 and 8, students who earn a weighted average of 80 per cent and above are placed on the Honour Roll. Students who earn a weighted average of 90 per cent and above are given an Award of Distinction. To achieve a position on the Honour Roll in Grades 9 to 12, students must attain several grades in the 80s: Grades 9 and 10—six subjects out of eight in the 80s; Grade 11—five subjects out of seven or eight in the 80s; and Grade 12—five subjects in the 80s. To attain an Award of Distinction, a student must have the same number of grades as above in the 90s.

Democracy at Havergal— Empowering Our Student Leaders

By Susan Pink

For the past 112 years, the young women of Havergal have been exercising their right to vote at the school. First Principal Ellen Knox began teaching her students about the democratic system 14 years before women were given the right to vote in Ontario in 1917. Knox believed that women could do anything they set their minds to and that education was a preparation for an active, contributing life. Her mission as principal was to inspire, train and indoctrinate leaders for service in the far corners of the world; this mission continues to inspire our students and faculty today.

The democratic system at the school began in February 1903, after Knox established a new constitution to expand student leadership opportunities. She introduced the idea that Upper School students could vote for class Presidents and Vice-Presidents for each grade. That year, Knox also appointed six Grade 12 girls as Prefects to act as liaisons between herself and the student body. These new Prefect positions were in addition to the group of Grade 12 students the faculty and staff selected to be Seniors. Until the establishment of the School Captain role in 1917 (a position also selected by faculty and staff until 1929), the Seniors were the most powerful students in the school and were selected carefully because of the special privileges and authority they had.

When the House system was established school-wide in 1929, the position of Seniors was replaced by House Prefects. That year, Upper School students could elect one Grade 12 student per House to take on the role of House Prefect, now called House Captains. Students would also vote for the School Captain and Games Captain positions for the upcoming school year.

Encouraging young women to participate in democracy was forward-thinking for an all-girls school. However, the system proved challenging as student election results could be easily influenced by the heavier-weighted votes of the administration, faculty and staff. At the time, the value of each vote was counted as such:

- Grade 9—one
- Grade 10—two
- Grade 11—three
- Grade 12—four
- Grade 13—five
- Prefects—six
- Faculty and staff—seven
- Department Heads—eight
- Vice Principal—nine
- Principal—10

Faculty members tallied the votes. Clearly, those with the heavier-weighted votes had the power to change the results of the election process.

This democratic process continued until 1983, when School Captain Lynn Archibald and her team of Prefects decided that it was time to change the system to make it even more democratic. “They believed if we were to be teaching true democracy, it was important to ensure that each person involved in the process understood it and had input into it,” reflects Brenda Robson, Dean of Students at the time.

2015–2016 Prefects

The basis of their proposal was that every school Prefect should be elected by all members of the Upper School and not by any individual group (for example, a House). It also stated that any changes to the basic policy should be passed by a vote of the Upper School students and faculty. The proposal included the following suggestions: Grade 12 students would be elected to take on the leadership of groups within the school; the weighting of votes in all elections for student leadership positions should be changed so that the staff vote could not outweigh that of the students; and the School Captain should represent the students as votes were being tallied by the staff. In addition to changes to the voting process, the students also established that each Prefect would take on a portfolio of duties and give a report at the weekly Prefect meetings so that the group would have a good understanding of what was going on in all areas of the school.

As the Prefects explained the new proposal in detail to each grade and to the faculty and staff, the student leaders used the feedback offered at these sessions to make amendments to the proposal. Once everyone had the chance to participate in this reform, the Prefects held a vote for which 72 per cent of Senior School students, faculty and staff voted in favour of the new system. “The other independent schools in the area were astonished by these changes,” says Robson. “They were even more surprised that this new system had been developed by students. It demonstrated that Havergeral was ahead of them in allowing our students to voice their ideas.”

Today, Havergeral’s Prefects continue to be at the forefront of most of the school’s events and gatherings, whether it be to help seat all students at Prayers, lead school spirit or organize various student activities. The Prefects are currently divided into the portfolios of House & Clubs, Student Council, Sports, Prayers, Community, Admissions, Junior School, Boarding, Middle School and Arts.

“Havergeral relies on our Prefects to be stewards of school culture and community,” says Gillian Martin, Assistant Head, Senior School, who currently leads the Prefects. Her relationship with the student leadership team is two-way, built on mutual respect and commitment. The school community relies on the Prefects to be compassionate and courageous role models for their peers. Our student leaders rely on the support of the school administrators to listen to their ideas on improving the civic engagement at Havergeral. This collaboration will allow the democratic system at Havergeral to continue to evolve as it has over the past 112 years. 🍀

Celebration Weekend 2015

By Helena Follows

Hundreds of Old Girls returned to Havergal to reconnect with former classmates and the Havergal community at Celebration Weekend October 2 to 4. This year, we welcomed back our graduating classes ending with 0 and 5.

Celebration Weekend 2015 began on Friday morning with a special Old Girls Legacy Prayers in the Junior School. Linda Hiraki 1995, Junior School parent and recipient of the Susan Ditchburn Young Alumna Award 2014, spoke about the importance of kindness she has experienced within the Havergal community.

Old Girls braved the wind and cold, and came back to the school the next morning for Celebration Saturday, an annual event that reaches out to help the broader community in the spirit of the “Bazaar.” Proceeds from the event support Havergal’s community partnerships. Each year, Havergal students decide how the funds raised will be allocated.

In support of Celebration Saturday, the Havergal Old Girls Association (HOGA) and the Class Rep/Reunion Committee organized the first annual HOGA tent. The tent marked a fun meeting space for Old Girls to reconnect over a coffee, beer or cider. Many Old Girls volunteered their time to help make the tent a great success.

Later that evening, the Reunion Years Cocktail Party brought together more than 350 Old Girls to mix and mingle with friends, classmates and former and current staff. Laughter could be heard as they reminisced and looked at old pictures of their time at Havergal located in the archives display (with thanks to Debra Latcham, Library Technician). Old Girls toasted their Havergal memories before moving on to their individual class celebrations, which were hosted in a variety of homes and restaurants around the city.

The Celebration Weekend festivities continued on Sunday with the Old Girls Chapel Service jointly led by the School Chaplain, The Reverend Canon Susan Bell and The Reverend Canon Susan Sheen 1965. The service included remembrances from Kirby Chown 1965, Patricia Carter Cooper 1965, Linda Galley Stokes 1965 and Fiona McHaffie McGaw 1955. Many thanks to Sarah Siu 2008, who provided the lovely musical accompaniment for the service, and to Boarder Captain Ayana Sunami, who spoke about Boarding life at the school today and what it has meant to her. After the service, the Class of 1965 gathered in the Ellen Knox Library to celebrate their 50th reunion with a luncheon. Congratulations to our newest Cinquantenaires!

Classes ending with 1 and 6 will celebrate reunions next year. Watch for more details in the spring and summer of 2016. 🍷

NEW SCHOLARSHIP

The Principal's Scholarship

Havergal is pleased to announce the establishment of The Principal's Scholarship, offering four new Grade 9 students of strong potential the opportunity to benefit from Havergal's educational, co-curricular and leadership programs, regardless of their financial means.

Designed to support the recipients throughout their academic journeys at Havergal's Senior School (Grades 9 to 12), the scholarships will be awarded based on academic standing, community engagement and exemplary character. Thank You from the Chairs

In this fall 2015 issue of the Torch/Annual Report, we explore the concept of leadership in its many forms. As the Chair of the Havergal College Board of Governors and the Chair of The Havergal College Foundation for the 2014–15 school year, we were privileged to lead a senior group of volunteers who held leadership roles in our community. We would like to take this opportunity to thank our fellow governors and trustees for their commitment to Havergal.

In addition to its governing boards, the school has several other groups to whom it is indebted for outstanding leadership—the volunteers of the Havergal Old Girls Association (HOGA) and the Havergal College Parents Association (HCPA) are two such groups—and we extend our gratitude to them for the important work they do in keeping the Havergal community vibrant and connected.

The leadership of our Principal, Helen-Kay Davy, and our School Captain, Tessa Buchan, in 2014–15 resulted in a productive and exciting year as faculty, staff and students examined the school's mission and values. This process helped Mrs. Davy and the Board of Governors to articulate a new strategic vision for Havergal, which you will hear more about in early 2016.

Turning to our broader community, every person named in this Annual Report is a leader in philanthropy as they have helped us to grow Havergal's culture of giving. Our new strategic plan will lead us into a remarkable period of growth and development for our school. Without the active participation and support from our Havergal community members, we would be unable to contemplate the bright future we see. The impact that each of us makes through our giving is tangible—we see it every day reflected in the lives of our students, faculty and staff. We encourage every member of our community to give generously. Your contributions are greatly appreciated!

Class of 2015 David Sumner Bursary

Every year, graduating class families are asked to contribute a special gift to the school in honour of their daughters' graduation. Families of the 2015 graduating class established the Class of 2015 David Sumner Bursary. A committee of parent volunteers and student representatives worked throughout the year to encourage support for the gifts, with more than $137,000 raised to establish the fund. Thank you to all of the students and families who generously supported the Class of 2015 Bursary.

Giving Ambassadors

In 2014-15, the newly formed Giving Ambassadors group supported Havergal's annual giving program. These Ambassadors had a major impact on our program by helping to increase participation across every grade level in the Junior School.

The Giving Ambassador program now stretches across all grade levels. Participation progress can be tracked for the 2015-16 school year at www.havergal.on.ca/gradechallenge.

Thank you to all of our volunteers for making this program a success!

Grad Profile 2015

Congratulations to the 121 students of Havergal's graduating Class of 2015 who have chosen to attend universities both in Canada and abroad. The Class of 2015 was offered in excess of $1.2 million in both renewable and non-renewable scholarships. We wish them the best of luck in their areas of study.

Tessa Buchan

Harvard University, Liberal Arts Program

As School Captain in her graduating year, Tessa worked hard, played hard and created an upbeat atmosphere within the school. She enjoyed her time at Havergal because she could pursue her passions for sports and music through the school's co-curricular opportunities. This included playing on the hockey, rowing and field hockey teams and participating in musical ensembles such as the Senior Choir and the Symphonic Band (she plays the trombone). At graduation, Tessa was awarded The Suzanne Curtis Memorial Senior Athlete Trophy for her contributions to sports throughout her years in the Upper School. Tessa currently attends Harvard University, where she is exploring the university's liberal arts program. She looks forward to a career in the health care industry.

Florence Chan

King's College London, Law (LLB)

Florence's experience with Havergal's Exchange Program to England in Grade 10 sparked her interest to study abroad. She is currently a student at King's College London studying Law (LLB).

While at Havergal, Florence enjoyed being a member of the school's badminton, swimming and softball teams and assumed leadership roles in the Public Speaking Club, TEDxHavergal College and Student Council. She admired the balance at Havergal that inspires opportunities to engage in academics, sports and the arts. "Havergal's culture of intellectual curiosity has motivated my ability to make a difference. The relationship of law and democracy, and how the former can help aid or define the latter, is of great interest to me," says Florence.

Nicole Leung

New England Conservatory of Music, Vocal Performance

An opera singer in training, Nicole attributes her love of singing to the music program at Havergal. "My music teachers recognized my talent and fostered it," she says. Currently a student at the New England Conservatory of Music in Vocal Performance, Nicole is a proud Old Girl and feels lucky to be connected to the school's alumnae community. During her time at Havergal, she participated in various music groups such as the Middle School Choir, the Chamber Choir, the Senior Choir and Symphony Orchestra (she plays the violin). Nicole also enjoyed the leadership opportunities available at Havergal and was a member of the Community Council and the Arts Council and was the Admissions Prefect in her graduating year.

Saira Obaid

University of Waterloo, Mechanical Engineering

Saira first fell in love with mechanical engineering and biomechanics in her Grade 11 Physics class, where she learned about the various fields of engineering and took an interest in the biomechanics of artificial hearts. This passion for engineering led her to become involved in Havergal's Robotics and Environment Clubs. During her spare time, Saira volunteered for various robotics and engineering competitions at the University of Waterloo (including judging LEGO Robotics competitions and supervising math competitions) and is a student member of Professional Engineers Ontario (PEO). Today she is studying Mechanical Engineering at the University of Waterloo and looks forward to a career in industrial research and biomechanics. She thanks Havergal for giving her the confidence to join this male-dominated profession.

Orli Silverberg

Western University, Medical Sciences and Ivey Program; Scholar's Electives Program

As the daughter of an Old Girl, Orli knew that Havergal was the right fit for her. As a violinist, she welcomed the many opportunities she was given to perform at school, whether with the Senior Orchestra, with the Chamber Group or during Prayers. Outside Havergal, Orli was a member of the Toronto Symphony Youth Orchestra and The Phil and Eli Taylor Performance Academy for Young Artists. She was also active in Havergal athletics as a member of the swimming, volleyball, soccer and track & field teams. In her senior year, Orli developed a community partnership with Holland Bloorview Kids Rehabilitation Hospital in which students performed music for the young patients of Bloorview. Currently, Orli is studying at Western University in the Medical Sciences and Ivey program; she is proud to be a member of the university's exclusive Scholar's Electives program.

Karishma Singh

Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, Medicine

Karishma describes her time at Havergal as "confidence building." During her six years in the Upper School, she enjoyed participating in many of the co-curricular opportunities available at the school such as the Environment Club, the volleyball team, the basketball team and the Derrydown Saturday Community Partnership (in which she led activities for young students with varying physical and intellectual abilities). She was also Co-Head of Beatstock, a student-organized music event in support of one of the school's community partnerships, and led her House as House Captain. In her graduating year, Karishma was the recipient of the J. Herbert Mason Medal, which is the school's highest character award. Currently studying medicine at Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, Karishma attributes her love of chemistry to her science teachers.

Lauren Wilcox

University of Toronto, Engineering

As Head Junior Don in her graduating year, Lauren and the Junior Don Boarding team planned many fun and engaging events for the Boarding community. She enjoyed her time living at Havergal because of the sense of community she felt with her fellow Boarders, who became her family away from home. "What I learned during my time at Havergal is that the more you put into something, the more you get out of it," says Lauren. She is currently studying Engineering at the University of Toronto, where she is interested in learning more about the environment and sustainability. She thanks her Grade 12 Physics teacher for fostering her passion for science and the environment.
