Do you consider instruction to be the top priority of your school district? Are you looking for a way to assess your current instructional programs and strategically plan for the future?

Would you like to have your community feel that your instructional programs and practices best meet the needs of your student population?

Then you are encouraged to attend the workshop offered by AdvantaCORE School Improvement Solutions on “Conducting the Instructional Audit.”

The instructional audit is an investigation by external instructional experts who sample a multitude of components related to instruction in your school district. Instructional and administrative processes are observed on-site, and areas of strength and need are identified. The investigation ends with a detailed written analysis of the district’s instructional programs and practices and recommendations improvement.

“AdvantaCORE has helped our district identify areas of challenge so that we might better address the changes we need to make to adapt to changing accountability demands. Just going through the process has been eye-opening for me” -Jon Saxton, Superintendent of Chillicothe City School District

“We were interested in taking an in-depth look at our instructional strengths and weakness as a district, and we were committed to hiring experienced professionals with proven success in the field. It quickly became clear that AdvantaCORE was the best choice to lead us in this work.” -Brian D. Hamler, Superintendent of
