Exceptional Aftertaste

Madeira's gastronomy consists of a combination of fresh regional products and traditional traits from their ancestors, resulting in an explosion of tastes in your mouth.

To truly savor these regional flavors, the "carne de vinho e alhos" (pork marinated in wine and garlic) and black scabbard fish with fried banana are a must have.

The Pearl of the Atlantic is also known for their notorious Madeira Wine ranging from a dry to sweet taste. Along with other traditional drinks, like "nikita" or "poncha" typically served around Christmas time.
